East of Rome lie Tivoli, site of an important military airdrome, and Guidonia, a city completely devoted to aviation. Southward is Centocelle airfield and five miles north is a large civilian airport.

Opponents of the bombing of Rome were not without recruits even in Britain. Frequent questions have been asked in Parliament indicating concern over the propriety of such a move. Some individuals spoke out openly against it.

Reply Always the Same.

Mr. Eden's reply always was the same:

"No one invited Signor Mussolini to attack France, and no one invited him to send his bombers to bomb London."

It was recalled that the United States also never had given any assurances against bombing the city beyond President Roosevelt's promise to Pope Pius on the invasion of Sicily that "churches and religious institutions will to the extent that it is within our power be spared the devastations of war during the struggle that is ahead."

Vatican Near Rail Center.

The fact that the rail was made in broad daylight testified to the Allies' intention to select military targets carefully and avoid damage to shrines of Roman and Christian civilization.

Vatican City lies in West Rome, opposite a prominent bend in the Tiber and only a quarter of a mile from one of the city's six railway stations, St. Peter's Station.

The central station lies in the heart of the city within a few blocks of the ministeries of war, air, interior and finance.

The city's biggest freight yards are vital links in Italian communications to Sicily from the industrial north and the Brenner Pass route from Germany. The attack would thus be tied in closely with the Sicilian campaign.

These freight yards have been declared by the Italians themselves to be military zones. They are the type of targets which would be shelled by artillery if land forces were within range of Rome.

As a further testament to their sincerity, the Allies selected and trained special crews to undertake the bombing.

It was observed in London, however, that interference from enemy fighters might upset the aim of even the cleverest of pilots and bombardiers and no guarantee could be given that non-military targets would not suffer.

Such precautions never had been taken by any belligerent to avoid harm to civilian establishments, it was observed. The bombings of Warsaw, Rotterdam, London, Coventry and Belgrade obviously were indiscriminate, and no claim ever has been made by the British that workers of the Ruhr failed to suffer in saturation night attacks.

No Reprisal Raid.

The bombing was no reprisal raid. In April, 1941, Prime Minister Churchill warned the Axis that if Athens or Cairo were bombed Rome also would be attacked. Bombs were dropped a few months later on Cairo, but there was no reprisal.

The bombing of Rome was expected to renew the campaign by Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain—who presumably is Axis inspired—to halt the Allied blasting of Axis cities. He has been attempting to imply his campaign had the blessing of the Vatican. This never has been confirmed, although the Pope naturally deplored the bombing of civilians on both sides.

The bombing of Rome probably will be received with no greater cheers anywhere than in Malta, whose own ancient monuments have been battered day in and day out by unrelenting Axis bombers based on Italian soil.

In Malta the cry of "Bomb Rome" has been heard oftener than anywhere else.

The closest that Allied bombers had come to Rome previously were attacks on Ostia and Fiumicino, about 10 miles southwest of Rome. In May a sharp attack was made on Lido Di Rome, near Ostia and about 15 miles from Rome.

On both occasions bombers flew over Rome and met anti-aircraft fire.

Thousands of refugees from Allied bombings in the north and south, apparently believing Rome immune from attack, have flocked to the capital in recent weeks, causing serious housing and food problems.

It has been estimated that the normal population of close to a million has been almost tripled.

ROME TYPIFIES ANCIENT GLORY

JUL 20 1943

City Is Mixture of Christian and Pagan Civilization.

By Associated Press.

Rome, the Eternal City, bombed today for the first time by Allied Air Forces, represents a curious blending of the architectural glories of an ancient pagan civilization, the enduring monuments of the birth and growth of Christianity with somewhat gaudy and tinsel aspirations of Benito Mussolini's Fascist empire superimposed over the whole.

Once just seven hills in the wilderness where shepherds tended their flocks and looked west toward the Tyrrhenian Sea, fifteen miles away, the city on the Tiber River has grown into a metropolis of almost a million population, capital of Italy and spiritual and temporal home of the Roman Catholic Church in the tiny 28-acre Vatican City which lies within its borders.

Rome, according to legend, was founded by Romulus, its first King, in 753 B. C. upon the Palatine and Capitoline hills which rise 120 feet above the river, but there is ample evidence of earlier habitation. Under the Sabine kings the city was extended to the adjoining hills.

At the birth of Christianity its warriors and ships dominated the Mediterranean basin and its kings and emperors, lavish in their spending, gave it the buildings and engineering miracles whose ruins exist today.

It became the seat of Christianity early in the sixth century when Pope Symmachus built the Vatican on the site of the old gardens of Nero, where it still remains today.

The modern city of Rome is divided into four sections, three of them lying on the left bank of the Tiber. The first section, Campius Martius, lies to the north and grew up around St. Peter's Church and the Vatican; the second is the ancient southern portion which includes many of the ruins of ancient Rome, and the more modern section to the east. The fourth district lies on the right bank. Of the court districts the first two are the most densely populated.

Contains 300 Churches.

Rome contains more than 300 churches, many of them dating back to the earliest beginning of Christianity. Of them the best known are St. John Lateran, the First Church, and St. Peters.

Fascist Italy under Mussolini embarked upon a fifteen - year restoration program in 1926 designed to enhance its ancient pagan glories and to create what were to be equally handsome and enduring monuments to the Black Shirt march on Rome half a decade before.

New highways were cut through the city, magnificent buildings were constructed and even the ancient Colosseum, scene of the slaughter of countless early Christians, became a backdrop, a stage for Fascist demonstrations.

The passion for building on a monumental scale at the whim of the Duce even went so far that in the early days of the Axis he caused a railway station to be built, together with highway approaches, the better to welcome his partner, Adolf Hitler, in his first visit to the city.

Tokyo, capital of Japan, was bombed on April 18, 1942.

The harbor district of Athens, capital of Greece, was bombed by the Axis March 14, 1942, but no bombs were reported to have been dropped in the city proper.

Argentinian Calls Bombing Inescapable

Buenos Aires, July 19 (AP)—The Argentine Foreign Minister, Gegundo Storni, said when informed of the bombing of Rome today that Italy, "being a belligerent nation, cannot escape the war's contingencies, which are extending to many nations of the world in the fullest sense."

Storni said he had not yet received any report from the Argentine Embassy, which is the only South American diplomatic mission now remaining in Rome.

Residents of these colonies have hailed the advent of American bases as a good omen for their future development, with the American and British governments "mixed up," as Churchill said, in their relations for many years, if not permanently.

They see in the Anglo-American Caribbean Commission a shape of the things to come, and they are keeping an eye peeled to Puerto Rico for other indications of their future status. They note that a Puerto Rican, Judge Martin Travieso, was the only "West Indian" to attain membership on this join commission, and they expect Puerto Rico will lead them in their march toward greater self-government.

15 European Capitals Bomb Targets Since '39

With the bombing of Rome yesterday, fifteen European capitals have been subjected to air raids since Adolf Hitler invaded Poland on Sept. 1, 1939, according to The Associated Press. Names of the cities and the dates on which they were first bombed:

Warsaw—Sept. 1, 1939.
Helsinki—Nov. 30, 1939.
Oslo—April 26, 1940.
Brussels—May 10, 1940.
Paris—June 3, 1940.
London—Aug. 17, 1940.
Berlin—Aug. 31, 1940.
The Hague—Nov. 15, 1940.
Belgrade—April 8, 1941.
Sofia—April 13, 1941.
Bucharest—June 26, 1941.
Moscow—July 22, 1941.
Budapest—Sept. 5, 1942.

AXIS IN RETREAT TOWARD MESSINA, FOR FINAL STAND

JUL 20 1943

U. S., Canadian Forces Drive Toward Central Communications Hub.

CATANIA'S FALL NEAR

British Batter Path Toward Eastern Sicilian Seaport.

35,000 PRISONERS TAKEN

Italians Yield in Groups, Germans Continue Bitter Fight.

JUL 20 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 19.—(AP) Axis resistance in central Sicily tottered tonight as American and Canadian troops raced down the 10-mile road leading to the vital communications hub of Enna after overrunning Caltanissetta and Piazza Armerina.

The British Eighth army on the eastern coast was battering at Catania's doors.

(The Moroccan radio reported that "American and Canadian troops have reached Enna," and Radio France at Algiers said aerial reconnaissance had noted the enemy's "general movement of retreat" toward Messina in northeastern Sicily.

Retreat to Messina

("By road and rail enemy forces are falling back on Messina with heavy and light equipment," Radio France said.

("All around this port, reports speak of considerable defensive preparations. It appears everything is being done for a final, prolonged stand." The broadcasts were reported by the United States foreign broadcast intelligence services.)

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British troops were within three miles of Catania, 40 miles to the east from the American and Canadian columns converging on Enna.

Nazis Defend Catania

German troops fought savagely to save Catania, a port prize half-way up the coast to Messina, the best possible point for the enemy to escape across the two-mile strait into Italy.

But inland the Italians surrendered in droves to the Americans and Canadians stabbing straight into Sicily's heart. These hard-striking Allies were now half-way across Sicily and threatened to split in half the island's defenders.

In one case a group of Italians were said to have shot a German officer and then surrendered to the advancing Canadians.

(British dispatches from Allied headquarters said it was believed Gen. Montgomery's army had reached at least some of the airfields in the vicinity of Gerbini, on the Catania plain 13 miles southwest of Catania. One main airdrome and nine satellite fields are there.)

35,000 Prisoners

Prisoners taken by the Allies had mounted to 35,000—23,000 of them in American hands—and the Italians were surrendering in droves, not as isolated groups but as complete army units. More than a tenth of the forces with which Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni was estimated to have begun defense of Sicily 10 days ago had thus been herded into camp.

While bombs in Rome, hit for the first time by Allied aircraft in this war, heralded the advancing pace of invasion armies toward the Italian foe, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters staff announced the capture of Caltanissetta by the American Seventh army of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.

Caltanissetta, 28 miles inland and only about 37 miles from the north coast, was taken in an eight mile push from the position of the Americans that was announced only yesterday.

Falling almost at the same time to the Canadians was Piazza Armerina, 15 miles to the east. One Canadian unit had pushed ahead through the difficult mountains at the amazing pace of 20 miles in a day. The headquarters communique said Canadian operations were being carried out with "skill and determination."

Two Forces Join

The Canadians and Americans then formed a junction and began a rapid push toward ancient Enna (Castrogiovanni), hardly 10 miles away, in a drive that threatened to split the enemy's front.

Enna, a city of 23,000, is on a 3,000 foot mountain and is the hub of all highway and railway communications in central Sicily.

Caltanissetta, a city of 50,000 population, was an immensely important prize, however, as it placed the Allies in control of a huge section of Sicily's internal communication lines.

(An Algiers radio broadcast recorded in London said Allied troops also had reached the vicinity of Ramacca, 13 miles east of Piazza Armerina and 22 miles southwest of Catana.)

Catania was the key objective, however, and the Eighth army was steadily knocking back the picked German divisions which sought to hold this bottleneck.

Aided by parachutists who had seized an important bridge long enough for the ground troops to reach the area, Gen. Montgomery had wedged into the confluence of the three large rivers crossing the Catania plain, thrown strong bridgeheads over the southernmost of the streams and gained control of the estuary three miles below the port.

The Germans were fighting desperately and with heavy losses to avoid being pinned back against Mt. Etna where they would have but two roads circling the mountain area for escape, but Gen. Montgomery's veterans were gradually enlarging their footholds on the Catania side of the water barriers.

Planes Smash Catania

Although the Allied air forces were busy with the bombing of Rome, they continued their pace-setting attacks behind the German lines, again smashing at Catania and the communications center of Randazzo just north of Mt. Etna.

Twice in the first week Allied light naval forces successfully penetrated the Strait of Messina to shoot up enemy torpedo boats and similar craft and Allied warships maintained a steady patrol to intercept Axis sea transport on most of the east side of the island.

(The Morocco radio said the warships were bombarding Acireale, seven miles north of Catania.)

Middle East air force Halifaxes and Liberators, British and American four-engined bombers, again hammered the mainland base of this sea-supply route early Sunday, hitting Reggio Calabria.

Road Convoy Shot Up

The mainland airdromes at Monte Corvino and Pomigliano were bombed, and the roads connecting Enna with Palermo, Catania, Messina, and Randazzo were hotly patrolled. A convoy of about 150 vehicles was badly shot up north of Agrigento.

By the capture of Caltanissetta and Piazza Armerina, the Allied line was brought up almost on a line with the right wing along the east coast, and the Allied front had now been pushed to an average depth of 50 miles into the interior.

Allied headquarters announced that the United Nations now occupied a third of the island.

Enna, which the Americans and Canadians were approaching, has been described as the "navel of Sicily."

It is an important sulphur center and is celberated in antiquity as the birthplace of the mythical Ceres. Five miles distant is Lake Pergusa where, according to the fable, Proserpine was carried off by Pluto.

Enna, in its long history, has been captured by the Saracens and Normans.

The city is 95 miles by rail from Palermo, the Sicilian capital on the north coast.

Americans Take

Vital Point in Central Sicily

British Now 3 Miles From Catania; Allies Gain on All Fronts

JUL 20 1943

By the Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 19.—The American 7th Army has captured Caltanissetta, almost half way across the midsection of Sicily, in an 8-mile smash to split the enemy's front, battle reports to Allied headquarters said today as Allied forces gained all along the front.

British forces, meanwhile, were reported to have advanced to within three miles of Catania.

Caltanissetta, an important communications center 11 miles to the northwest, was taken in a central thrust that drove to a point 22 miles inland, throwing back a German counterattack in wild disorder near Barrafranca.

Edging up toward the Italian toe, the invasion forces of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th Army burrowed relentlessly into local defenses protecting Catania on the Sicilian east coast, and pressed closer to that keystone of the enemy's position in all central and northeastern Sicily.

Defense Position Taken.

The 8th Army lunged against the outskirts of Catania after capturing one of the most important defense positions before the port.

Gen. Montgomery's men wrested some of the most important strong points of Catania's defenses from picked shock divisions of the German army to reach a point within 3 miles of the city.

While these veterans were fighting the hardest battle of the Sicilian campaign against the hard core of Axis resistance, Canadian units, jabbing dangerously at the enemy's western flank where it is stretched in front of the roadless area of Mount Etna, were said in Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's communique to be gaining important ground "with skill and determination in difficult country."

The battle-hungry soldiers captured Piazza Armerina, 15 miles directly east of Caltanissetta.

In this 10th day of the Allied invasion the combined forces had taken from the Axis approximately one-third of all Sicily, the official war bulletin stated.

Gap Is Widened.

Following the capture of Agrigento and Porto Empedocle on the south coast, American troops of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., were driving northward, widening the gap between enemy forces in Western and Eastern Sicily.

Sources here considered it probable the bulk of the German troops in Sicily were engaged in the still developing battle. These forces, once officially estimated at 60,000, are well equipped with giant Tiger tanks and smaller Mark IVs.

American troops on the western half of the line battled forward in two main spearheads—one from captured Agrigento and Porto Empedocle on the extreme western flank and another in the center from Caltanissetta.

Thousands Captured.

Agrigento capitulated Friday night under heavy pounding by American 155-millimeter guns. Thousands of prisoners were captured—one report said 4,000. A short time later American Rangers took over Porto Empedocle to the south.

Observers here regarded Catania as one of the main pins holding together the defense framework, for there probably is no place between Catania and Messina, 55 miles to the north, where the Axis could make a determined stand.

Offshore, British naval units continued to throw shells into the city and Axis positions. The city already was a shambles from shell and bomb and many fires were raging.

Heavy Axis Toll.

A headquarters announcement said Catania's defenders were suffering heavily in killed and captured. In all Sicily some 35,000 prisoners have been taken, 20,000 of them by Americans, since the invaders landed nine days ago.

In a flanking move around Catania, Allied forces striking inland from the coast were reported aiming at the Gerbini airbase network 12 miles west of Catania. The Gerbini field and its nine satellites form a major bulwark in the enemy's scheme of defense.

(The Algiers radio broadcast a report that Axis headquarters had been moved across the Strait of Messina to Reggio Calabria at the toe of the mainland.)

Among prisoners falling to the American advance was Gen. Lavernote of the 207th coastal division—the third Italian general captured in the first week of invasion.

Three of Italy's defending divisions have been officially reported eliminated since the campaign began—the 204th, 206th and 207th coastal divisions and the 10th Bersaglierie Regiment.

ALLIES BAG 15 TROOP PLANES OFF SARDINIA

Entire Flight Of Junkers Transports Bound For Sicily Wiped Out

JUL 20 1943

Airfields And Communications Hammered During Week End

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 19—The American bomber raid on Rome today was the climax of a busy week end for Allied flyers who followed up Saturday's unprecedented assault on Naples by blasting Axis airfields and communications on Sicily and the Italian mainland and wiping out an entire formation of fifteen troop-carrying Junkers-52 transport planes.

In swift, powerful stabs yesterday and the previous night, Allied squadrons battered enemy installations at Reggio Calabria, Monte Covina, Rovella and Pomigliano on the mainland and Catania and Randazzo on the island, while fighters and fighter-bombers continued to play havoc with transport facilities behind the Axis lines.

Destroy 18 And Lose 4

Eighteen enemy planes were destroyed in the course of the day's widespread operations, which cost the Allies four aircraft.

The fifteen Junkers-52 transports were shot down by American Lightning fighters while on a rescue mission over the Tyrrhenian Sea.

After assisting in the rescue of six crew members of an American bomber which crash-landed in the sea after being damaged in the Naples raid, the Lightnings sighted the German planes off the coast of Sardinia.

They sped to the attack, and in a matter of minutes all fifteen transport planes, apparently loaded with troops and supplies en route to Sicily, were shot down into the sea.

Like Tunisian Successes

The one sided battle resembled the attacks carried out frequently off the coast of Tunisia last May, when Allied planes downed dozens of the big transports flying to and from North Africa.

The rescue was carried out of RAF Sunderland flying boats, which were escorted to the scene, thirty miles off the coast of Italy, by the Lightnings. The six flyers had clung to a dinghy for eighteen hours when one of the Sunderlands sighted them and picked them up.

Lieut. Morris Thomason, pilot of the crippled bomber—a Martin Marauder—said flak knocked out one engine over Naples, causing the plane to catch fire and lose altitude at the rate of 1,000 feet a minute.

Sank In 45 Seconds

Another Marauder, piloted by Flight Officer L. H. Tarrington, of Houston, Texas, protected the stricken plane until it reached the sea despite a heavy flak barrage.

Thomason crash-landed the bomber and it sank within forty-five seconds but the crew got out in time. Tarrington dropped a life raft and notified the air-sea rescue service of the crew's position.

Catania, principal port on Sicily's east coast which is now almost within the grasp of the British Eighth Army, was hit Saturday night by American Mitchells and RAF Bostons which dropped more than eighty-five tons of bombs.

The bombers encountered a moderate barrage of anti-aircraft fire but not a single enemy fighter appeared to challenge them.

Lieut. Sanford Bloom, of Minneapolis, an observer in the Mitchell squadron, said Catania now resembled "Cologne on a small scale."

Mitchells Attack Randazzo

American Mitchells also blasted Randazzo, just across Mount Etna from Catania and key point of enemy communications between Catania and western Sicily. They punished the town with twenty-four tons of explosives, and aerial photographs showed the railroad siding covered with direct hits.

American Liberators and RAF Halifaxes from Middle East bases bombed rail and port facilities at Reggio Calabria, just across the Messina Strait from Sicily, Saturday night. A communique said bomb bursts were seen on railway sidings and munitions sheds and that the planes left one large fire and several small ones burning in the target area.

Enemy airfields at Monte Covina, Rovella and Pomigliano, all near Naples, were pounded Saturday night in the wake of the record daylight assault on Italy's principal port by more than 500 Allied bombers. Explosions and fires were reported at all of the airdromes.

Patrol Sicilian Lines

American, RAF and South African Bostons and Baltimores patrolled vital sections of Sicily during the day, attacking "targets of opportunity."

One group of American Bostons patrolling the network of roads leading north from the captured town of Agrigento shot up a convoy of 150 vehicles.

Other fighters and fighter-bombers working over the roads connecting Enna, Palermo, Messina and Randazzo bombed and strafed several large concentrations of vehicles.

Yanks Crack Axis Defenses In Drive into Central Sicily

JUL 20 1943

Artillery Blasts Invasion Path, Bringing Fall of Caltanissetta.

By JACK BARNETT

A NORTH AFRICAN INVASION PORT, July 19—(AP) With 155 millimeter "long toms" snapping like a bunch of firecrackers at fleeing enemy troops, American forces stormed into Caltanissetta and cracked the Italian line in central Sicily.

I saw them stage this smashing combined infantry-artillery success Saturday along a rocky, dusty road strewn with the crumpled bodies of our foe.

Italian trucks and motorcycles dotted the route ahead, some of them burning and others abandoned intact by a panicky enemy division which broke under the unstoppable American attack.

Hundreds Surrender

It was the kind of war the Italians couldn't face. You drive behind this ever-advancing front and you're bothered continually by hundreds of Italian soldiers streaming down from the hillside villages and vineyards, where they had been hiding out, and waving their arms frantically in surrender.

At road junctions they total thousands, all trying to be friendly and asking for American rations and cigarettes.

You get the impression that whole Italian armies have thrown up their hands.

The Italians want to live, they tell you. They don't want to die for either Germany or Mussolini.

The day before the Americans swung into Caltanissetta I went over to Agrigento, which our troops had taken a few hours earlier—with 4,000 prisoners.

Formidable Defenses

The Axis must have figured Agrigento impregnable, and it might have been if the Italians had had their heats in the fight. Agrigento was ringed miles from the city limits by big tank traps, machinegun nests and mines imbedded in concrete. It could have been a terrible stumbling block, but the Americans hit it with everything they had—naval guns and concentrated field artillery, and finally a determined charge by doughboys.

Agrigento is built on a hill overlooking Porto Empedocle, best seaport on the south Sicilian coast, which the American Rangers mopped up.

Italian gunners put on a hit-and-run performance, locating some of their artillery in some Roman ruins.

The Americans started the Agrigento show at 3:00 a. m. Friday. When daylight came, not only American warships but American Mustangs were helping out as well. Their dive-bombing started fires along the enemy lines and kept the Italians' heads down.

A number of pillboxes were still smouldering from ammunition explosions and at least ten or twelve enemy tanks were collected in the town square when I went into Agrigento. This was one place where the people seemed very Fascist. They'd been propagandized to be tough and promised they'd last out a long siege. I guess they were dazed at how quickly the Fascists flopped.

No Enemy Planes

The last three days I was in Sicily I didn't see a single enemy plane in the daytime. That's how completely our airforces won the war in the air.

But Wednesday at Comiso airfield I saw two surprised German Junkers bombers shot down when they tried to land on what they thought was a friendly runway.

The Americans had the airfield firmly under control and when the first Junkers set down, its pilot was killed by ground fire. The second was already coming in, and it attempted to gun its motor and get away, but its pilot also was killed.

The captured co-pilot of the second plane said they'd come to Comiso believing it was still in Axis hands. Our airforce already had turned grainfields into runways, and made it possible for our aircraft to land easily in Sicily at a number of points.

In almost every town I went through Sicilians were turning in arms to AMGOT—the Allied Military Government of Occupied Territory—including shotguns, rifles and pistols that looked like museum pieces.

Italian police stuck on the job, still immaculately dressed in dark blue uniforms with silver braid, but they carried no sidearms. They used only local persuasion on a population which occasionally cleared out the deserted homes of rich fugitive Fascists of food, clothing and furnishings.

In one hilltop town which the Rangers took from 400 enemy troops, civilians immediately broke into Fascist party headquarters and looted it to the bone.

Italian General Says Sicilians Aided U. S. In Taking Agrigento

JUL 20 1943

By the Associated Press.

LICATA, Sicily, July 17 (Delayed).—An army in ruins rolled through the silent, crowded streets of Licata today in vehicles of the army that whipped them.

It was the remnants of the Italian artillery and infantry units which capitulated last night after a three-day fight to save Agrigento, the ancient city on the heights overlooking Porto Empedocle, the best harbor in Southern Sicily.

A large portion of this city's 30,000 population lined the sidewalks and watched from windows as truckload after truckload sped past packed with prisoners. Army officers said thousands of prisoners were taken in the Agrigento area, including a few Germans.

General Resplendent.

The prize prisoner was Brig. Gen.

August de Lauzentis, 53-year-old commander of the 207th Italian Coastal Division, who rode alone in the back seat of a jeep. The general was resplendent in a colorful uniform glittering with stars and medals. His beaten troops—dirty, unshaven in their torn and faded field dress—watched with tired, expressionless eyes as their captured leader passed by.

For a week Sicilians in this town have been cheering the American troops filing through because they are weary of the Italian yoke. Yet they are stunned by the sight of the mass of Italians who speak their own language being shuttled back as prisoners. Many of their own sons are still in Italian uniform serving on the mainland.

These mixed loyalties showed in the faces of the crowd, which wants the war to end, but still feels the tug of sympathy at the sight of these Axis troops wheeling by in defeat.

Beaten troops looked down from prison trucks at beaten people watching them in silence as the long convoy moved on.

Gen. de Lauzentis was bitter, official sources disclosed, because he believed Italian citizens had guided American troops around Agrigento's complicated and strong defenses. Declaring he was anxious to know how the Americans had learned so much about Sicily in such a short time, he declared angrily:

"You know more about the Italians in Sicily than I do."

Large quantities of Italian weapons, including 100 light field guns and 149 heavy guns, were taken at Agrigento. Medical supplies and some food stores also were captured.

The American troops had more souvenirs—bayonets, carbines, field glasses and revolvers—than they knew what to do with.

Some of the captured material, such as clothing, probably will be used to alleviate civilian distress, it was indicated.

With the storming of Agrigento it was announced officially that in the first six days of fighting in Sicily the American 7th Army had destroyed well over 30 enemy tanks and captured, shot down or otherwise destroyed a score of enemy planes.

Sicilian Needs Braces, Takes Mine Field Tape

AGRIGENTO, Sicily, July 17 (Delayed) (AP). — Typical of many Sicilians, who have little conception of war, was an old man who was found winding up white ribbons which American Army engineers had laid down to mark a safe path through mine fields around a blasted bridge.

"I'm going to take them home and make suspenders out of them," he told the engineers.

By HAROLD V. BOYLE.

Agrigento, Sicily, July 17 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The first American troops to enter this Sicilian city were greeted with loud cheers by the civilian population, Private Edward Borycz of Detroit reported today. Borycz, who is known to his mates as Cold Steel because of his disdain for enemy tanks and guns, made light of the fighting which preceded capture of the city.

"We took the town just at dark Friday and lost only two men, who ran into machine gun fire," declared Private Borycz, "but we tossed a couple of grenades that finished off the Italians who shot our men. We came in after crossing a field and had little opposition."

With his buddy, Private Al Griebstein of Boston, Borycz was one of the first American soldiers to set foot in the streets of Agrigento.

"The people were very friendly," he said. "They cheered us and shouted 'Victory for America.' When they learned we had had nothing to eat for almost twenty-four hours they brought us water and some hardtack and jam—all they had. They would do anything for us.

"The people were so hungry they raided a spaghetti store and they were grabbing anything they could get to eat—even bread off the street."

Near Borycz were eight captured Italian tanks. He gestured toward them and said:

"When we got here the tank commander was ready to go, but when he saw us he didn't even fire a shot. They just climbed out of their tanks and came over and dropped their weapons at our feet and surrendered."

Cigarette Uncorks Tale of Woe.

We were riding through Agrigento in a jeep when a fat little Sicilian who later identified himself as Gerlando Picadello ran out from the crowd shouting in broken English: "Give me a cigarette." The jeep stopped and we gave him a couple of cigarettes and Picadello spluttered out his tale of woe:

"Six days no bread here. I have to shut down my pharmacy—no customers, no money, nothing. I live seventeen years in United States—St. Louis, Boston, New York. I sell fruit in my wagon and my two boys and girl born in United States. I come back here 1921 and later no can get back."

Picadello began to weep bitterly and pulled from his pocket a photograph of a young man.

"This my oldest boy," he said. "He killed two months ago with troops in Albania. I want to go back to America, please, right away. Honest, I do. I want a job there. I could be cook or watchman in war factory. Lots of people go there to make money. No money here."

The crowd of Sicilians about him was jabbering and pulling at his clothes as Picadello talked.

"All these people have relatives in the United States," he explained. "They want you to take letters to them telling they in trouble."

Sicilians Fete Allied Troops; Italians Surrendering in Units

JUL 20 1943

Allied Officer Proclaiming End of Fascism Is Hoisted on Shoulders of Crowd Which Shouts, 'This Is Our Deliverance!'

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 19 (A. P.).—Almost incredible first-hand reports of broken morale among Italians in Sicily poured in at Allied headquarters today. Italian troops were said to be surrendering in organized units. Civilians continued to show genuine joy over the arrival of Allied armies.

An Allied officer who read the proclamation of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander announcing the determination of the Allies to smash Fascism was hoisted on the shoulders of a Sicilian crowd and carried about in triumph in one town. The people shouted: "This is the day of our deliverance!"

A British officer who returned after six days in Sicily said the people themselves were tearing down the symbols of the Fascist party. They expressed bitter feeling against the Germans whom they blamed for the shortage of food and clothing.

First White Bread in 8 Years.

White bread, brought by the invading armies, was said by Sicilians to be the first they had eaten in eight years.

They appeared relieved when informed that forcing youths into forced labor battalions by invading armies was a Nazi practice, not an Allied practice.

A senior official of the Allied military government in Sicily who attended high mass celebrated by the bishop of the locality was intentionally seated in the main pew which for twenty years had been occupied by the leading Fascist officials of the community. Afterward he was received by the bishop personally.

The Princess of Piedmont, head of the Italian Red Cross, was in Syracuse only fourteen days before its fall, the people told the British officer.

AMGOT DISSOLVES FASCIST REGIME

JUL 20 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 19 (A. P.).—Immediate dissolution of the Fascist party and annulment of "all discriminatory decrees and laws" were among the first steps taken toward the rehabilitation of occupied areas in Sicily under Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied military governor. The orders were contained in a proclamation issued yesterday by Gen. Alexander, his first since the creation of the Allied Military Government of Occupied Territory in which former Gov. Charles Poletti of New York State has an executive post.

Gen. Alexander indicated that he would retain as much of the administrative and judicial setup in Sicily as possible under war conditions and that "existing personal property rights will be fully respected and existing laws will remain in force and effect" unless superseded by proclamation. "So long as you remain peaceable and comply with my orders, you will be subjected to no greater interference than may be inevitable in view of military exigencies, and may go about your normal vocations without fear," he said.

Among American representatives on Gen. Alexander's staff are Lieut.-Col. William C. Chanler, former Corporation Counsel of New York city, who heads the legal section, and Lieut.-Col. Bernard Bernstein, former assistant counsel of the United States Treasury, assistant to the British director for public welfare.

500 Planes Hit Naples In 24-Hour Attack

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 19 (AP).—More than 500 Allied bombers blasted the vital Italian port of Naples from dawn to dusk Saturday in the most shattering aerial attack ever carried out in the Mediterranean war theater.

Great fleets of heavy and medium bombers—most of them American—from bases in both North Africa and the Middle East rained hundreds of tons of high explosives on the important Tyrrhenian harbor, bringing to a thundering climax a 'round-the-clock assault on which block-buster-carrying Wellingtons of the RAF raised the curtain the previous night.

Some Make Two Trips.

Wave after wave of bombers roared over the city, dropping blockbusters and 1,000-pounders which spread a carpet of flames over docks, rail yards, airfields and industrial areas. The Flying Fortresses returned twice to deluge their targets.

The major portion of the day-long assault was packed into less than two hours. Fires started throughout the industrial sections of the city by the saturation bombing caused smoke which rose to a height of 12,000 feet.

Fierce anti-aircraft fire met the first waves of attackers but enemy fighter planes were caught flat-footed until the Mitchells and Marauders, escorted by formations of Lightnings, reached the scene of destruction.

The Lightnings shot down several of the planes in the weak defense furnished by Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring's Italian - German air forces.

Allied Heavy Bombers From Middle East Hit Reggio Calabria

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, July 19.—Liberator and Halifax bombers from the Middle East Air Command blasted rail and port facilities at Reggio Calabria on the Italian mainland across from Messina Saturday night and early yesterday, an Air Ministry communique announced today.

Bombs landed in the railway sidings and munition sheds, where fires broke out, the communique said. Observers saw one large and several small fires burning when they left the target.

RAF Beaufighters, in a sweep over the Ionian Sea, blasted at shipping and struck at the jetty at the port town of Kyllene on the west coast of Greece Saturday. Bomb hits were observed on the bow of a two-masted schooner.

The communique said all aircraft returned safely to base.

Americans Build Sicilian Airport in Only 24 Hours

By the Associated Press.

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13 (Delayed).—American soldiers occupying one sector of Southern Sicily built a new airfield from scratch and had it in operation within 24 hours, according to an RAF officer who made several landings on the strip.

He said the Italians plowed up the regular field before withdrawing and that the Americans decided to construct a new one rather than attempt to recondition the old.

"It was really amazing to see what they accomplished in so short a time," said Flying Officer Alexander Noon of Kenya Colony. "The boys were naked to the waist and working like hell. If we all had their spirit the war would be ended in no time at all."

ADVANCE ON OREL

JUL 20 1943

Gains of Four to Six Miles Reported by Moscow.

CITY BEING ENCIRCLED

Nazis Announce Heavy Russian Attacks Along Entire Front.

FEINZERLING

LONDON, Tuesday, July 20 — (AP) Russian armies pounding on a semi-circle around Orel captured 130 villages and populated places in advances from four to six miles yesterday to the north, east and south of the great German base 200 miles south of Moscow, the Soviet command announced today.

Earlier reports from Moscow had placed the Red army within 12 miles of Orel and said the Soviets were wheeling up artillery within range of the city. Berlin reported the whole Russian front ablaze with Red army attacks all the way from Leningrad to the western Caucasus.

Among the towns captured was Malo-Archangelsk, 25 miles south of Orel on the railway running to Russian-held Kursk.

72 Tanks Destroyed

Another 72 German tanks and 96 planes were destroyed running the toll of attrition exacted from the Germans since their attack of July 5 was converted into a counterattack to 3,516 tanks and 2,094 planes. These German losses were suffered Sunday.

The midnight communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor from the Moscow radio, said the Germans were fighting back determinedly, mounting a dozen counterattacks during Monday. All were declared repulsed with heavy losses.

Two Columns Converging

Troops pounding down from the north achieved the greatest successes, scooping up 70 populated places, the communique said. These pressing up from the south toward a junction with the column atop and behind Orel were said to have captured 20 populated places. A junction of these columns would pinch off the Orel salient and trap large German forces in the base.

Other troops moving in frontally from the east were credited with seizing 40 places.

The 255-mile front from Belgorod to Sukhinichi is formed like an "S" with a German bulge in the Russian lines around Orel, and with a Russian bulge pointing out from Kursk. It was in the Kursk area where the battle was joined July 5.

The communique said only patrol activities were reported from the Belgorod that the Germans achieved some penetration early in the month, but were unable to exploit it.

Nazis Report Heavy Fighting

Berlin broadcasts said the Red army was lashing out with powerful tank and artillery forces under artillery and air preparation in four entire sections:

1. The north flank of the 75-mile front from Volkhov to Leningrad where, it was claimed, the onslaught was repelled in bitter fighting.

2. The new Demidof-Velizh sector 40 miles northwest of Smolensk where, it was intimated, no Russian gains have been scored yet.

3. The winding 300-mile front from Suckhinichi to Belgorod, with the Russians reported hurling 10 divisions, including guards units, into the most terrific attacks of all.

4. The river Mius sector of the Kuban where the Russians are striking out again after a lull in the Caucasus bridgehead battle.

A Nazi broadcast record by the Associated Press said forces were engaged on both sides on a "scale never known before."

Germans Admit K.

German accounts admitted that their defenses had been unable to hold the force of the Russian attack in the most vital sector.

In the key struggle north of Orel, they said, the "enemy was able to achieve only some small penetration without importance for the situation as a whole because local breaches had been taken into account during the Soviet mass drives and because German counter-measures had been taken, and finally, because, owing to swampy forest area, there is no continuous line on either side."

Opposing claims of casualties were staggering. Sin e the violent summer battles started July 5 with a German offensive to pinch off a 7,500-square mile salient jutting from Kursk, the Russians said they had destroyed upward of 60,000 Germans, 3,444 tanks and 1,997 planes.

The German radio said the Russians' matériel losses included 4,964 tanks, more than 2,000 planes, 2,310 cannon and 3,500 heavy machine guns.

The attacks on Orel threatened another German base at Bryansk, too. The Red Army column charging down from the north was cutting into the German rear and was

German Orel Bastion Menaced by Advance Of Russian Forces

Red Armies Reported Within 12 Miles Of Strategic Town

JUL 20 1943

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 19.—The Russian Army, overcoming the German fluid defense, has slugged its way to the approaches of the main enemy base at Orel on the Central Russian front south of Moscow, the newspaper Pravda, official Communist party organ, announced today.

(An NBC reporter in a broadcast from Moscow said today that the Russians had pushed to within 12 miles of Orel from the southeast, the Associated Press reported from New York.)

As the battle reached the close of the second week of furious fighting along a 165-mile front it found the Nazi Army, initiators of the offensive, rocking back under sledge-hammer blows of the Russian counterattack which threatened the German base and the Nazi hold on the vital Orel-Bryansk railway.

(The Berlin radio said today in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that Russian troops launched a violent offensive yesterday in the Velikie Luki sector northwest of Moscow and on the Neva River near Leningrad with support from heavy artillery fire. The Germans said they had thrown back the Red Army men, inflicting serious losses including the destruction of 33 Soviet tanks.)

The Soviet midnight communique reported that the Red Army had advanced an additional four miles in one sector during the fighting yesterday, capturing several villages and killing about 5,000 German troops.

Suffer Heavy Losses.

The battle, which was intended by the Germans to pinch off the Kursk salient and straighten out the line, continued to pile up heavy losses in the Nazi armored and air divisions, the Russians said. They announced they had knocked out 78 tanks and 137 planes Saturday and said an incomplete check showed 20 more tanks destroyed yesterday to bring German losses to a total of approximately 3,500 tanks and 2,000 planes in the last two weeks.

Russian communiques have indicated during the last two days that Red Army troops were advancing steadily if somewhat slower despite adverse weather conditions. Their reports of the fighting showed that the Germans were striking at the Soviet flanks and melting back in the face of determined Red Army mechanized attack.

The war bulletin said the Russians succeeded in breaking in behind the retreating Germans in several instances and that German prisoners reported that the Nazi command, mindful of what happened at Stalingrad, is apprehensive of flank blows which will result in Nazi detachments being cut off and surrounded.

Engaged Large Force.

In other cases it was reported that Russian tanks were driving deep in the German rear. One Red Army armored unit engaged a German force four times its strength wrecking two tanks and routing the rest, it was said.

The midnight communique gave major attention to the Orel section of the front where the major Russian gains have been registered in this, their first summer offensive.

The area around Belogorod at the southern end of the salient, where Field Marshal Guenther von Kluege made a few small gains in the early days of the fighting, was the scene of intensified clashes between scouting parties, the communique said.

The Soviet bulletin did not identify the exact locality of yesterday's gains, but Russian dispatches during the last two days have indicated that the Red Army is within 15 miles of Orel in some localities and even closer to the Orel-Bryansk Railway.

300 Germans Killed.

(CBS said it recorded a London radio report last night which reported that the Red Army was only 10 miles north of the main highway and railroad between Orel and Bryansk and that supply trains are already under fire of Soviet reconnaissance parties.)

Northeast of Novorossisk in Southern Russia near the Sea of Azov, the Soviet communique said, 300 Germans were killed in a futile effort to regain positions lost within the last few days.

A German punitive expedition of 1,000 men supported by tanks and artillery has been repeatedly repulsed in attacks on Leningrad guerrilla forces, the bulletin said.

The Russians also reported that Soviet forces sank a German submarine in the Black Sea and a transport was sunk and two others damaged in the Barents Sea above the Arctic Circle.

LARGE RUSSIAN FORCES MOVE IN TO STORM OREL

One Red Unit Leaves Woods to Race In Closer to Nazi Bastion.

Tank Detachments Meanwhile Are Reported Cutting Deep Into Germans' Rear Lines.

Moscow, July 19 (A. P.).—The advancing Russians have battered their way from the heavily-wooded terrain northeast of Orel and are moving swiftly across rolling fields in their intensified drive to pinch off that German bastion and cut the Orel-Bryansk railway, front-line dispatches reported today.

Separate Russian tank detachments rolled deep into the enemy's rear to the very approaches of the main enemy base, believed to be Orel itself, while massed Russian forces were poised on a springboard in the Otputkha River valley only eight miles northeast of Orel. As the campaign reached the close of the second week of furious fighting along the 165-mile stretch of the central Russian front, the Nazi armies were reported reeling back under the sledge-hammer blows of the Russian counter-offensive.

'Jane's Aircraft' Doubts Planes Can Win Alone

Annual for '42 Says Bombs Will Not Bring Germany Down, but Can Pave Way

LONDON, July 20 (Tuesday) (AP).—Describing the flood of American production which turned the tide of the air war against the Axis in 1942, the latest issue of "Jane's All the World's Aircraft" declares that "we are on the threshold of mighty events in the air."

In a foreword to the 1942 volume which is being released by the publishers today, James M. Spaight, noted writer on air warfare, concluded:

"Air action alone will probably not bring Germany down. The war will not be won solely by the bombing of her industries and communications, but without such bombing it probably could not be won at all. The air arm is, in fact, an indispensable partner in the great joint adventure, and may prove to be the leading partner."

Gain in Output Seen

The foreword and text of the new volume show how the emphasis for the last year has been on great increases in the production of proved types of warplanes, rather than on the introduction of new types. The book, in more than 800 pages and hundreds of illustrations, gives much more detail on the types listed in the 1941 issue but does not add many new planes.

Noting that the United States produced almost 50,000 planes in 1942, and in December turned out 5,500 military aircraft, the book said this latter total was greater than the Axis output for that month, but a "figure nearly twice as high is likely to be reached in time."

Reporting that British production is still on the upgrade to a remarkable degree, the foreword said: "Russian production has been reasonably estimated at something approaching 2,000 machines a month. There are new and important plants in the Urals and in Siberia, but the main Russian output is still that of two big factories near Moscow."

Reviews Air War Record

Reviewing the growth of bombing assault through 1942, including the first "thousand bomber" attacks and the arrival of the 8th United States Air Force as a factor, it added: "It is difficult to see how the war effort of any country, however powerful and however totalitarian, can be maintained in the face of the assault which it should be within the power of the British and American air forces to launch in the near future."

Among the few new types added to the list of military aircraft are Britain's Mosquito bomber, Typhoon fighter and Hurricane tank buster, all of which have been proved in combat. The main new arrival in the German section is the curious Merseberg ME-323 powered glider, which, the book said, has to be towed off the ground when fully loaded with 130 armed men or their equivalent, although it can maintain flight when once it is in the air.

RAF Bombers Smash 2 Ships, Rail Targets In Blow at Europe

Abbeville Airport Hit By Typhoons; 'Forts' Pound Amsterdam

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 19.—RAF bombers and fighters destroyed eight enemy aircraft and damaged two enemy vessels in attacks last night on Nazi airport facilities in France and shipping off the Dutch coast, the Air Ministry announced today.

Swift Mosquito planes on intruder patrols over Northwest Germany and enemy-occupied territory attacked and damaged 10 locomotives and bombed railway targets near Dieppe.

Two enemy fighters were knocked down as Typhoon bombers with fighter escort blasted the Abbeville airfield in France and two others were destroyed by Mustangs on patrol off the Dutch coast, the announcement said.

An additional four fighter planes were reported shot down in an attack on an enemy convoy by coastal command Beaufighters supported by Spitfires and Typhoons. Hits were registered on two units of the convoy.

Eight British planes failed to return from the Sunday operations.

In similar raids Saturday night, British fighter planes swept over France, Holland and Belgium, ripping up railway targets and airfields and attacking shipping with the loss of one plane.

The Berlin radio also reported "nuisance flights" over Germany Saturday night by Allied planes.

In the latest of the major air attacks on enemy production centers in Western Europe Britain-based American Flying Fortresses pounded targets in the Amsterdam area by daylight Saturday in the first American raid on that locality. The United States 8th Air Force listed two bombers as lost. The Germans asserted 10 were shot down.

The Air Ministry announced yesterday that reconnaissance photographs had disclosed that more than 1,000 acres of the Rhineland industrial city of Cologne were devastated by the RAF's last three heavy attacks there. Reconnaissance more than a week after the last raid, July 8, showed fires still burning in the I. G. Farben Chemical Works.

Two factories owned by Humboldt-Deutz, second largest producers of submarine Diesel engines in the Reich, were among those reported severely damaged.

FRENCH COAST HIT IN HEAVY RAIDS

JUL 20 1943

London, July 19 (A. P.).—A strong force of Allied planes was reported heading across the English Channel this afternoon in the direction of Calais and Boulogne. Observers on the southeast coast said the planes flew almost at sea level. Other planes were heard along the coast.

Heavy explosions rumbled across the channel from the Continent a little later. Fighters ran a shuttle over Folkstone, one large group returning as another formation went out.

Earlier, the Air Ministry announced that R. A. F. bombers and fighters destroyed eight enemy aircraft and damaged two enemy vessels in attacks last night on Nazi airport facilities in France and shipping off the Dutch coast.

Swift Mosquito planes on intruder patrols over northwest Germany and enemy-occupied territory attacked and damaged ten locomotives and bombed railway targets near Dieppe. Two enemy fighters were knocked down as Typhoon bombers with fighter escort blasted the Abbeville airfield in France and two others were destroyed by Mustangs on patrol off the Dutch coast, the announcement said.

An additional four fighter planes were reported shot down in an attack on an enemy convoy by Coastal Command Beaufighters supported by Spitfires and Typhoons. Hits were registered on two units of the convoy. Eight British planes failed to return from the Sunday operations.

The Air Ministry announced yesterday that reconnaissance photographs had disclosed that more than 1,000 acres of the Rhineland industrial city of Cologne were devastated by the R. A. F.'s last three heavy attacks there. Reconnaissance more than a week after the last raid, July 8, showed fires still burning in the I. G. Farben chemical works.

Spitfires Make Sweep Over Northern France

Also Attack Nazi Shipping Off Coast of Holland

LONDON, July 19 (AP).—British Spitfires swept northern France today and damaged German shipping off the Dutch coast, an Air Ministry communique said tonight. A German fighter was shot down and one British plane was lost.

French targets were not named, but British coastal watchers saw the British planes flying toward Calais and Boulogne. Heavy explosions were heard across the Channel.

The big bombers stayed home last night, but the swifter Mosquito planes soared over northwest Germany on intruder patrols, damaging ten locomotives in the Reich and in occupied territory. They also bombed rail targets near Dieppe on the Channel.

BRITAIN REDUCES ITS MILK RATIONS

JUL 20 1943

Adults to Get Two and One-Half Pints Weekly, Children Unchanged.

LONDON, Tuesday, July 20 — (AP) The weekly liquid milk ration will be reduced from three to two and one-half pints beginning Aug. 1, the Ministry of Food announced today.

The reduction comes earlier than last year and, the Ministry said, was designed primarily to meet special demands for manufactured milk products for the fighting services.

Supplies of dried milk will be available during the winter to supplement liquid supplies for domestic consumption.

The allowances for priority consumers, including children and expectant mothers, will not be cut.

Meanwhile a white paper issued today outlined a widespread program for the improvement of the quality of milk under which Agriculture Minister R. S. Hudson takes over from local authorities the responsibility for all matters relating to milk production.

Under the program authorizat[ion] is given for it to be made [of]fense to sell milk in any des[ig]area unless it is heat trea[ted] berculin tested or accredited milk sold by a retailer from the product of a single accredited herd.

Areas will not be designated to comply with the new regulations unless there are sufficient plants available for heat treating.

BRITAIN'S LIVING COST UP

LONDON, Tuesday, July 20 — (AP) Britain's cost of living index today was officially reported as two points higher on July 1 than it was the previous month. The chief reason was given as an increase in the average price of new potatoes.

Great Fire Reported Raging in Rouen

LONDON, July 19.—The Paris radio, in a broadcast recorded by Reuters, reported today that a great fire was raging in the French city of Rouen and damage already ran into millions of francs.

It did not give the cause of the fire.

Germans Claim Sinking Of 10 Allied Vessels

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 19.—The German International Information Bureau, a propaganda agency, declared today in a Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that German submarines had sunk 10 ships recently, bringing the July total to 45 ships, totaling 280,000 tons.

The same agency in another broadcast said German escort ships sank an Allied submarine which attacked a convoy off Norway. Neither report was confirmed by Allied sources.

Norway Gets Old Destroyer

London, July 19 (AP)—One of the fifty destroyers which the United States transferred to Britain in 1940 has convoyed more than 9,000,000 tons of Allied shipping without the loss of a ship, the Norwegian shipping journal Nortraship said today. The destroyer had been transferred to the Norwegian navy.

Irish Primate Calls News Very Serious

'Lost' Fortress Staggers to Base, Smashed Up by Its Own Bombs

JUL 20 1943

Life Raft Fouled Rudder, Started Vertical Dive; Pull-Out Hurled Load Through Steel Bomb Bay; Motors Failed and 'Prop' Slashed Fuselage

By Ralph McGill

Ralph McGill, executive editor of "The Atlanta Constitution," who is in Great Britain as a guest of the Ministry of Information, wrote the following story for The Associated Press after watching a damaged Flying Fortress's return:

AN 8TH U. S. A. A. F. BOMBER STATION, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 19 (AP).—American Flying Fortresses have come back to their home stations in almost every conceivable condition, but only one has come back with a delicatessen display on the right rudder. It arrived here fifteen minutes after other members of the flight had gone to the briefing room to report that the Fortress Short Stride, piloted by Lieutenant E. H. Shelton, of Plainview, Tex., could be written off as destroyed. When they had last seen Short Stride it was in an almost vertical dive at a speed thought to be too great for the wings to stay on or for control to be regained.

This was almost true. As the Fortress was fighting its way through about 200 German fighters near the coast of Germany, bullets struck the door behind which one of the rubber rafts was kept. The large raft was thrown out and wrapped itself about the right rudder.

The Fortress promptly flipped over on its back. This was at 23,000 feet. The plane roared down on its back and in an almost vertical dive, but at 11,000 feet Lieutenant Shelton managed by terrific pulls on the rudder to bring it out of the dive.

Bombs Break Through

This was too much for the bomb load, which broke loose from its pins and was flung violently against the top of the plane. Bombs then crashed back down with such force that they burst through the steel bomb bay (something not believed possible), and took part of each side of the ship with them. Every one on the ship believed it had broken in two, but it held together.

Hardly had the craft been righted when it slid over into another dive.

Lieutenant R. A. Hocklin, of Marquette, Mich., the navigator, started to crawl through an escape hatch. He got halfway through when Shelton yelled back that he had the plane under temporary control. Sergeant A. P. Christen, of Merced, Calif., grabbed Hocklin and pulled him back into the ship.

All the men were half dazed. They had been flung about the ship in its two dives and pull-outs. Belts, ammunition boxes and equipment had been flung about with them. All were bruised.

The plane was under control, but barely so. The tail, with the rubber raft wrapped about one rudder-wing, was heavy. One engine was in bad shape.

A waist gunner, Sergeant J. O. Miles, of Liberty, Mo., tried to shoot the raft off, but it stuck tight. The men then put together three cleaning rods and tried, by leaning far out of the hatch, to fish the raft off the rudder. They couldn't quite reach it.

Men Stuck With Pilot

Meanwhile the ship was flying on, losing altitude slowly. The propeller of one engine began to knock and vibrate so that Shelton had difficulty holding the controls. Still, they flew on across the sea and limped over England to their base.

Over the field, Shelton told the crew he couldn't cut his engines to go in because of the weight on the tail. He told them they could bail out if they wished. Bruised, and a bit bloody and battered, they said: "Hell no, lieutenant. You pulled us this far. We'll go in with you."

So, unable to cut his engines, Shelton brought the clattering, creaking Fortress around and aimed her in. As the wheels touched, the ratting propeller came off and slashed three-fourths of the way through the fusilage, almost cutting the plane in half.

Shelton fought the controls once more and at last brought "Short Stride" to a stop.

They piled out and ran back to the rudder. There was the raft, and still intact in their little pockets, spread out as if for display, were sardines, concentrated foods, chocolate and oars.

Fellow battle crews had come out to the field at the news that the already marked-off plane was coming in. This field has seen many shot-up Fortresses arrive. But this one, its bomb bay and part of each side of the plane torn out, one prop gone, the ship cut three-fourths through, and a life raft about one rudder, was given No. 1 place in the saga of the Flying Fortress, the greatest bomber ever built and a ship that is making history.

The inside of the ship was a shambles of .50 caliber shells, belts of ammunition, coats, gloves, hats and equipment. A new $10 cap bought that morning by co-pilot R. W. Collette, of Husdon, Mass., had apparently fallen through the bomb bay doors when the bombs went down.

Short Stride was named for Collette's wife. In the States, during their training days, Shelton gave her that nickname because when Shelton, who is a long-legged Texan, went walking with the Collettes, Mrs. Collette, who isn't very tall, had a difficult time keeping up.

This is really Short Stride II. The first one was shot up so badly it was turned in for salvage. Now there will have to be a Short Stride III, because only parts of the ship can be salvaged.

First WACs In Britain Work Hard For Air Force

JUL 20 1943

Feminine AEF — Representing Every Sta[te] — To Grease Motors, Plot Maps, Run Switch[boards]

[By the Associated Press]

Eighth United States Air Force Orientation Center, July 19—WACs by the hundreds—the first feminine American Expeditionary Force to Britain and representing every State in the union—are here, hard at work preparing to give the Eighth United States Army Air Force a helping hand.

They will grease airplane motors, plot weather maps, take over telephone switchboards—the especial hate of men soldiers. They will release men clerks and stenographers for combat. Self-sustaining, they brought along their own cooks, bakers and laundresses.

One Grandmother Of Six

The women soldiers are redheads, blondes and brunettes varying in age from girls in their 20's to women in their 40's—one a mother of six and also a grandmother of six. They were given a gala welcome when they recently arrived at this orientation center for short preliminary training before going on duty.

From Col. Harvey H. Holland, Silver Spring, Md., commanding officer, bedecked with many medals, to army cooks in white aprons, United States Army men here beamed proudly as the first contingent came snappily marching along right in step, headed by a band from the near-by United States airfield.

Turn Out Of Officers

A second large unit came by train later. There was an impressive turnout of United States Army officers, with eagles, silver and gold maple leaves on their shoulders, at the tiny railroad station. This group wasn't met by a band, but they got a ride to the barracks in big coaches with soft-cushioned seats.

There is no doubt that in the next couple of days the WACS, as they marched to and from mess and participated in retreat, made a good impression on their own country's army and on the British. Orders were called out to them by their battalion commander, Capt. Mary A. Hallaren, Boston, who is just five feet tall "if you stretch it a bit."

First ashore was First Sergeant Virginia Rosekrans, 35, Philadelphia-born New York and Chicago sculptress, who moaned later: "Why didn't somebody tell me to say something historic?" What she did say way: "Captain Wilson, the WACs are here." Capt. Anna W. Wilson, Studio City, Cal., WAC commanding officer in Britain, was on the dock.

Representatives of the ATS, WAAFs and WRENs, British women in uniform, greeted the newcomers as they loaded onto a train. The WACs didn't know where they were going, but at the station they caught sight of Second Lieutenants Alice Holm, of St. Paul, Minn.; Ruth M. Adams, Los Angeles, and Magdalene Maciejko, Meriden, Conn., members of the advance contingent.

Babble Of Voices

"We're here!" called out one. Then ensued a babble of feminine voices that amused high-ranking officers waiting to greet them. "A-ten-shun" sang out a voice of feminine authority. Colonels and M. P.'s looked for a six-footer to go with it, but it came from a small, blue-eyed battalion commander, "Captain Pee-Wee."

The column marched off toward the orientation center. Preceding them on a motorcycle and beaming in a very unmilitary fashion was Sergt. Thomas Wood, Fort Worth, Texas.

"It really is good to hear American girls talking," enthused Private Norman B. Stricklin, Oakwood (Okla.) M. P.

"Pretty Nice"

"Pretty nice," commented Corporal John Frechette, Newton, Mass.

British girl civilians called out, "Glad to see you. Hope you like it here."

ARMED NAZI PLANE HELD IN SWEDEN

JUL 20 1943

STOCKHOLM, July 19.—(AP) A German plane announced as a courier plane but armed with a machinegun made a forced landing because of motor trouble in the Swedish province of Dalecarlia this afternoon

The gun was discovered during an inspection of the ship and was promptly dismounted.

The plane was kept by Swedish authorities and its crew of five and one male passenger, who wore a uniform, were interned while one woman who was aboard was released.

Spain to Intern 7 U. S. Fliers

Chinese Kill More Japanese

CHUNGKING, July 19 (AP).—More than a thousand casualties were inflicted on the Japanese in northern Kiangsu Province near the end of June, and one hundred more invaders were killed in southern Hupeh a few days ago, a high command communique said today. The Chinese said they repulsed a Japanese attack on July 7 on their positions near Hoihong, in the Luichow Peninsula area of Kwangtung Province.

"Our losses were light," the announcement said.

Aussies Keep Up Advance.

Australians continued their advance in New Guinea, engaging the Japs in sharp encounters on the slopes of Mount Tambu, seven miles from the big Jap airbase at Salamaua, and leaving 82 enemy dead.

Bombers from both the South and Southwest Pacific areas gave powerful support to Allied ground forces and carried the fight to enemy bases far removed.

Macassar Bombed

A strong force of Liberators during the night between July 18 and 19 repeated their near-record flight for land-based bombers to bomb Macassar on Celebes island.

Huge fires were started, some of which were visible by pilots 80 miles away on the homeward lap of the 2,000-mile round trip flight. The missions to Macassar ranks second in long-distance bombing Wake island by Hawaii-based aircraft.

The attack, directed at the waterfront, the factory area, and airdrome installations, apparently caught the Japanese by surprise because the town was well lighted when the first bombers went into action. The attack lasted five hours.

Airdromes Bombed

Flying Fortresses and Mitchells again hammered the Kahili and Ballale airdromes in the Buin-Faisi area. One plane was lost in the attack, but three large fires gave evidence of the effectiveness of the raid.

A final assessment of the aerial battle over Buin-Faisi July 18, when one Japanese cargo ship was sunk and two destroyers and another merchantman damaged, raised the toll of Japanese fighters destroyed to 21. Our losses were 10 planes, mostly fighters. First report had placed our losses at only four, the Japanese at 13.

Reports from Munda area were confused as to our actual positions. The communique said only that "our ground troops have made a limited advance for the purpose of enlarging the beachhead at Lilio."

Lilio is near the Japanese perimeter of defense for the Munda airdrome.

Air Action In Munda Area

Avengers and Dauntless bombers.. supporting the Munda action, bombed Japanese positions north of the airdrome, starting fires among the supply dumps. Later in the day bombers dropped twenty-eight tons of bombs on enemy positions at Bairoko on Kula Gulf, while other aircraft machine gunned Japanese beach defenses from low altitude.

Flying Fortresses bombed the Japanese seaplane base at Rekata Bay on the North end of Santa Isabel Island.

While Allied forces charged up the slopes of Mount Tambu to clean out another Japanese strong point on the trail to Salamaua, Boston Bombers made more than forty strafing passes aimed at knocking out enemy artillery positions and camp areas at Koimatum and Erskine creek.

A Mitchell bomber on reconnaissance knocked out a forty-foot section of a bridge at the mouth of the Francisco river which flows into Huon gulf at Salamaua.

Kill 179 Japanese in Advance —Salamaua Gain Made as Planes Aid Both Attacks

JUL 20 1943

By The Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 19.—Allied airplanes and surface ships battered Japanese shipping in the Solomon Islands over the week end as American troops increased their pressure on Munda with attacks on enemy positions near that key air base.

United States warships beat back two more Japanese attempts to run supplies to the besieged Munda garrison on New Georgia. Two destroyer flotillas, the first of three ships, the second of six, were intercepted west of Kolombangara Island and forced to retreat northward. One destroyer was believed to have been sunk and hits were scored on three others.

A powerful aerial force, described by a spokesman as almost as strong as the 200-plane armada which sank seven Japanese ships and shot down 49 planes in the Buin-Faisi area Saturday, struck again at the remnants of enemy shipping in that harbor and pounded the nearby Kahili airdrome. Thirteen Zeros were shot down. A cargo ship was sunk and two destroyers and another merchantman were damaged.

Four Planes Lost.

The raid was made by four-engined Liberators and torpedo and dive bombers with a strong fighter escort. Four American planes failed to return.

Allied planes scored another victory over New Guinea yesterday. Greatly outnumbered, fighters slammed into a formation of 50 enemy aircraft, shot down two fighters, probably destroyed four others and damaged two more—all without loss to themselves.

Sharp patrol clashes were reported from the Salamaua sector. Australian jungle fighters captured Japanese positions near Mount Tambu and Orodubi. Japanese counterattacks were repulsed. The ground action was supported by bombers and fighters which skimmed the treetops, pinning the Japanese to their holes in the jungle.

Official reports from Admiral William F. Halsey's command gave few details about the progress of the battle for Munda. But today was the first time that the communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters had mentioned American ground forces attacking the airdrome area.

The Americans, late reports said, were advancing despite heavy rains which have turned the jungle battle area into bogs in which even heavy duty tractors scarcely are able to move. The Japanese are using their usual jungle tactics at Munda—incessant infiltration at night by small patrols armed with automatic weapons, firecrackers and other noise-making devices. The enemy is taking few American lives but his activities make sleep and rest almost impossible.

Supply Attempts Fail.

American warships and planes have beaten off all Japanese attempts to bring reinforcements to Munda, but the enemy, using supplies and equipment accumulated there during the last year, shows no sign of collapsing.

Munda.

Allied progress in the Salamaua area of New Guinea also was achieved after sharp fighting, the MacArthur communiqué said.

Two thousand miles to the northwest of the central Solomons battle zone four-motored Allied bombers pounded Macassar, a town on the island of Celebes at the southern end of the Strait of Macassar, the communiqué reported.

Planes Support Munda Push

The American push toward the major Japanese base of Munda—where stiffening enemy opposition has been reported—was described as follows:

"Our ground troops have made a limited advance for the purpose of enlarging the beachhead at Lilio.

"One hundred and seventy-nine enemy dead were left in our hands. Our losses were light.

"In direct support of our ground units, torpedo and dive bombers attacked enemy positions north of the airdrome, starting fires."

In the Bairoko area of New Georgia other bombers, supporting our ground forces, dropped twenty-eight tons of high explosives on Japanese positions. Bairoko is on the Kula Gulf north of Munda.

On the New Guinea front, an Allied reconnaissance plane bombed and destroyed a forty-foot section of a bridge over the Francisco River, which flows into Huon Gulf at Salamaua.

Reporting on the renewed heavy fighting on the New Guinea front in the vicinity of Komiatum, seven miles from Salamaua, the communiqué said that "our forward elements successfully engaged the enemy in a series of sharp encounters on the slopes of Mount Tambu," which is south of Salamaua.

"The enemy abandoned eighty-two dead," it added.

Our aircraft, in support of the ground forces, extensively strafed enemy artillery positions in the Komiatum area.

The attack on Macassar in the zone northwest of Australia was a five-hour night affair. Many large fires, some of which were visible eighty miles away, were started along the waterfront, in the factory area and in the airdrome installations by Liberator bombers.

[Eight Allied planes raided the Japanese-occupied naval base at Macassar on Sunday, the enemy-controlled Macassar radio reported yesterday in a broadcast recorded by United States Government monitors.]

The sting of the Allied air power in the South Pacific gradually is approaching in force the devastating attacks leveled at the Axis powers elsewhere.

For the first time in the Pacific war General MacArthur's headquarters yesterday told of raids by more than 200 planes in the Solomon Islands over the week-end. Only a few weeks ago the figures announced in the communiqués were from twenty to fifty planes making attacks on the Japanese. Ten days ago the total went to 100. On Saturday and Sunday it rose to 200.

216 Survivors Of Jap Sub Raids Reach Port

By LIEF ERICKSON

[Associated Press Correspondent]

An Advanced South Pacific Base, May 29 (Delayed)—Two hundred and sixteen survivors of two American merchant ships torpedoed and sunk have arrived at this base port with the first eyewitness reports made here on new Japanese submarine offensive efforts against South Pacific shipping lanes.

Ship officers reported fourteen men missing and believed dead and twenty-four wounded in two submarine encounters.

South Pacific headquarters has acknowledged a shift by the Japanese in use of undersea boats. The enemy previously concentrated his submarines almost entirely against warships and Pacific shipping had been notably free from sub attacks.

Jap Boast Called Flat Lie

This week the Japanese broadcast the second report in a month on South Pacific submarine-sinking claims, indicating the Nipponese now are attempting to start a German-style submarine campaign against the long Allied supply line.

A South Pacific headquarters spokesman declared the newest Japanese claim to having sunk thirteen Allied ships, including five transports, from May 5 to May 24, was exaggeration and a typical fishing expedition for information.

The Japanese boast of sinking five transports is a flat lie, the spokesman asserted.

Claytone Riddle, 35, Connellys Springs, N. C., the first officer of one of the lost merchant ships, reported a torpedo hit his vessel without warning at 2 A. M. when she was less than a day from her destination. The ship was helpless, but the submarine didn't fire another torpedo, Riddle said. Twelve merchant seamen and eight navy men were wounded by the torpedo explosion.

A destroyer arrived on the scene shortly and took most of the survivors into port.

Captain Gustav Adolf Johnson, fifty-seven, of Albany, Calif., skipper of the second ship, said his ship was hit by two torpedoes and shelled by a big Japanese submarine in the early morning moonlight.

Ship Wouldn't Sink

Johnson said second officer John Kirken, of Richmond, Calif., and eight men were on lookout, but didn't see the first torpedo hit. The ship was settling slowly, but Johnson hoped to save her before the second torpedo hit forty minutes later.

Johnson then ordered the ship abandoned and ten minutes later the bow was standing upright in the water. But the ship wouldn't sink.

The submarine then surfaced, came to a dead stop and shelled the ship's bow with deck guns. The submarine circled the ship, continuing the shelling and then Allied HQ., Southwest Pacific, Tuesday, July 20 (AP).—Sharp jungle fighting, some of which was grim hand-to-hand combat, cost the Japanese more than 260 dead yesterday as Allied forces pressed their attacks throughout the far-flung Southwest Pacific battle area.

Near Munda, New Georgia, American troops made a limited advance to enlarge their backhead at Lilio. Today's communication said 179 enemy dead were counted after the Americans consolidated Tuesday, July 20—American forces have made a limited advance in their attack on the Japanese air base at Munda, New Georgia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

As United States planes continued to pound the enemy positions on the island of New Georgia, the American ground forces succeeded in enlarging their beachhead at Lilio, two or three miles east of stopped dead again within 100 yards of a lifeboat. The Japanese fired the last of twenty-five rounds from this position into the ship and the ship went down.

"That submarine was so close to our boat we could hear the damn Japs jabbering to beat hell," Johnson said. "We figured sure they would machine-gun our lifeboat, but they were evidently in a hurry to get away. We were mighty glad to see the sub start away full speed."

A two-engined bomber piloted by Major Leroy L. Stefonowicz, of Wildrose, N. D., located the survivors soon after dawn in three lifeboats and two rafts. A destroyer picked up the men twelve hours later.

U. S. Naval Bombardment of Northern Isles to Cover the Rendova Landing Described

JUL 20 1943

SHIPS ON 500-MILE DASH

They Pounded 5 Strongholds of Japanese Up to Bougainville and Returned Unscathed

ABOARD A U. S. WARSHIP IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC (Delayed by Censor)—An American task force successfully completed today the most daring naval bombardment of the war in the South Pacific, a venture involving a 500-mile dash from Guadalcanal to Bougainville and on which depended in part the simultaneous United States invasion of the central Solomons.

It was the deepest penetration yet by American warships into what the Japanese have claimed as their own waters. Crews were at battle stations for seventeen hours of the twenty-four-hour operation.

Amid a howling squall, during which rain-drenched naval gunners looked like wraiths under the flashes of lightning and their guns, the task force's batteries poured some 260 tons of shells into five enemy strongholds in the Shortland-Faisi and Munda-Vila areas.

The action involved a diversion within a diversion. An incidental seven-minute attack on Villa was carried out by light units to mask a concentrated assault on the primary objectives on the Japanese-held islands of Shortland, Ballale, Faisi and Poporang. At the same time the general attack was designed to screen the landings on Rendova Island together with other movements in the Solomons.

The flagship on which the writer traveled set out up the slot from Guadalcanal to Bougainville the afternoon of June 29 with the sun shining brilliantly. Despite the absence of a moon hours later, the myriad of stars threw off enough light to reveal our presence.

As our unit entered Kula Gulf, between New Georgia Island and Kolombangara, all hell seemed to break loose on the horizon—other units were cutting loose on the Japanese inst[illegible]

Japanese installations and personnel in the Vila area.

After a brief bombardment, these raiders rejoined the task force, which was beginning to despair of reaching its ultimate objective undetected as lightning flashes silhouetted it against the sea. But when it was less than seventy-five miles from Shortland Island a violent squall broke loose, effectively hiding the formation.

It arrived in the Shortland-Faisi area soon after midnight June 30, and the task force, splitting up into four divisions, went into action. The bark of the secondary batteries and the roar of the m[illegible] guns, clashing with the

Americans Invade Jap Waters to Save 157 of Helena Crew

By J. NORMAN LODGE,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

IN THE JAPANESE-HELD SOLOMONS, July 16 (Delayed).—Steaming impudently beneath a moon of almost dazzling brilliance, units of the American fleet rescued 157 survivors of the cruiser Helena from this island before dawn today.

(The 9,700-ton light cruiser Helena was sunk in the first battle of Kula Gulf July 7. She was the only American loss in that engagement, which cost the Japanese nine warships, and most of the 600 to 800 men probably aboard her were rescued within a few hours.)

The predawn rescue was one of the most magnificent maneuvers in the Pacific war to date, and the very audacity of going into the enemy's own backyard through waters thick with submarines made its signal success the more remarkable.

"Well Worth While."

Tonight heavily-beared men who have suffered from hunger, squalor, thirst and anxiety for more than a week slept once again without fear of molestation.

"It was an impudent thing to do, running up there," the commander of the protecting destroyer fleet said on his return, "but it was damned well worth while.

"The Helena's men were fighting men."

The commander explained that the force of destroyers—converted four-pipers now known as APD'S or destroyer transports — penetrated northward deep into the Japanese Solomons.

"We Americans do more than most other people to rescue our fighting men," he continued. "I am very happy our mission succeeded as smoothly as it did without interference from the enemy." He crossed his fingers and grinned. "We were lucky."

Japs Dropped Bomb.

Having been aboard one of the rescue boats, I can attest that considerable luck was attached for during the entire period spent practically at a standstill off the enemy island, there were constant enemy contacts on our location instruments.

While we were waiting for the return of our landing boats from the beach—humorously so-called—a Japanese bomber came over and dropped a stick of explosives across the stern of one of the destroyers, but the blast apparently did no damage.

At another point an enemy float biplane passed barely 100 feet above our ship, but fortune favors the brave. The moon ducked behind a black cloud at that moment and we were unmolested.

The rescue boats were in charge of Ensign Rollo H. Nuckles of Kansas City, Mo., erstwhile California University drama student. Lowered from the destroyers, they slid noiselessly ate snails pace into the coral outcroppings, feeling their way through the dark passages.

Ships Made Targets.

Then the moon rose to its full and silhouetted each ship, making it a perfect target for planes. The minutes rolled into an hour and passed beyond. Aboard the destroyer all eyes were glued to binoculars leveled on the shore.

Finally a deep sigh was heard through our ship. Tiny black specks showed ahead of white wakes, and the boats hove into view.

Alongside, men scrambled aboard quickly and were taken to the galleys where Chief Cook Harley Moore, a veteran Navy man from Alma, Nebr., had ready huge cauldrons of soup and coffee and cocoa with sandwiches, scrambled eggs and cigarettes for the semifamished Helena survivors.

There were some unlooked for arrivals among them—16 Chinese, residents of the island for five years. They included three women and four tiny, slant-eyed doll-like tots. It is doubtful if any of the cruiser's survivors were any happier than these Cantonese, who had lived in constant terror of Japanese raiding parties.

Would Revise Rules.

The survivors mostly were in nondescript attire, wearing improvised foot coverings made of rice sacks and kapok from their life jackets. All were nursing coral cuts, and every one was shoeless.

One of the rescued men, Lt. Comdr. Warren Boles of Marblehead, Mass., said some one should revise the book about going overside. We'd been taught to unlace our shoes and kick them off in the water. That probably is okay in other places, but my advice to any future shipwrecked person in these waters is to tie his shoes on tighter and save himself from coral cuts."

U. S. WARSHIPS AGAIN BLOCK

AID FOR MUNDA

Two More Jap Destroyer Flotillas Driven Off in Reinforcement Bid.

AMERICANS NEARER AIRPORT

Tokio, Meanwhile, Gives Jap Version of Battles Fought in Past Few Days in Pacific.

JUL 20 1943

By Associated Press.

American warships have turned back two more Japanese destroyer flotillas seeking to bring supplies to the hard-pressed defenders of Munda, on New Georgia Island, and the Allied air fleets have heaped new damage upon enemy air and sea power, it was announced today.

One Japanese destroyer was believed sunk by the warships that turned back the reinforcement attempts at Munda, where American land forces were fighting close to the airdrome. In New Guinea, meanwhile, there were sharp but small-scale actions, and Royal Air Force bombers sweeping over Burma yesterday were stated to have sunk or destroyed thirty-four Japanese sampans and damaged other boats. The British communique added that other raids struck at enemy communications and troop concentrations.

The American forces attacking Munda were increasing their pressure upon that key Japanese air base. These troops were mentioned by Gen. MacArthur's headquarters for the first time today. Official reports from Admiral Halsey's headquarters gave few details of the fighting, save that the Americans were advancing in spite of heavy rains that have turned the jungle battle area into bogs in which even heavy duty tractors scarcely are able to move. The Japanese are using their usual jungle tactics at Munda—incessant infiltration at night by small patrols armed with automatic weapons, firecrackers and other noise-making devices. The enemy is taking few American lives but his activities make sleep and rest almost impossible.

On the other hand, the Japanese garrison, though shut off from supplies and reinforcements, is getting along on supplies stored up in the course of the past year and shows no sign of collapsing.

A force of possibly 200 Allied planes struck again yesterday at the remnants of Japanese shipping in the Buin-Faisi area and pounded the nearby Kahili airdrome. Thirteen Zeros were shot down. A cargo ship was sunk and two destroyers and another merchantman were damaged. This attack was made by Liberators and Torpedo dive bombers with a strong fighter escort. Four of our planes failed to return.

Over New Guinea the Allied air squadrons scored another victory. Greatly outnumbered, our fighters slammed mation of fifty enemy aircraft, shot down two fighters, probably destroyed four others and damaged two more—all without loss to themselves.

What Tokio Says.

The Japanese countered with claims that a tank-led American attack upon Munda had been repelled and that seventy-seven Allied planes had been shot down in three days in the Pacific area.

One of two Japanese communiques broadcast by the Tokio radio said that on July 17 Japanese naval planes engaged 167 Allied planes which raided Buin, on Bougainville Island in the northern Solomons, and shot down fifty-eight of them while losing nine aircraft of their own.

The Allied communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters covering the action of July 17 said that seven Japanese ships had been sunk by United States bombers in the area of Buin and the nearby island of Faisi, that in a twenty-minute aerial battle in the same sector forty-nine Japanese fighters were shot down and that only six American planes were lost. The Allies listed a Japanese light cruiser and two destroyers among the vessels sunk. The Japanese communique mentioned no naval losses.

On July 15, the Japanese said, their naval planes attacked enemy positions on Roviana Island, inflicting heavy damage and shooting down nineteen of about fifty Allied planes which challenged them, suffering a loss of ten planes of their own. The MacArthur communique for July 15 made no mention of a Japanese attack on Roviana, but announced the capture of Mubo, on New Guinea, and the destruction of forty-five out of eighty Japanese planes in Solomons air battles.

The Japanese said that on July 16 their naval air units attacked Vanikoro Island, in the Santa Cruz group, as well as Tulagi and Guadalcanal and damaged enemy vessels at anchor. There was no indication of any such action in the MacArthur communique for that day.

Tokyo Issues Solomons Claims

Two Japanese imperial communiqués, broadcast by the Tokyo radio and recorded in New York yesterday by The Associated Press, asserted that Japanese naval air units shot down seventy-seven planes in three days last week, while Japanese ground forces repulsed tank-supported American thrusts near Munda on New Georgia Island.

On July 17, Tokyo said, Japanese naval planes engaged 167 Allied planes that raided Buin on Bougainville Island in the northern Solomons and shot down fifty-eight of them while losing nine aircraft of their own.

The Allied communiqué from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters covering the action of July 17 said seven Japanese ships had been sunk by United States bombers in the area of Buin and the near-by island of Faisi and that in a twenty-minute aerial battle in the same sector forty-nine Japanese fighters were downed for the loss of six American planes.

The MacArthur bulletin listed a Japanese light cruiser, two destroyers, a subchaser, tanker and two cargo ships as the vessels sunk. The Japanese communiqué mentioned no naval losses.

On July 15, the Japanese said, their naval planes attacked Allied positions on Roviana Island, inflicting heavy damage and shooting down nineteen of about fifty Allied planes that challenged them against the loss of ten of their own planes.

The [illegible]mmuniqué for July 15 made no mention of a Japanese attack on Roviana but announced the capture of Mubo on New Guinea and the destruction of forty-five of eighty Japanese planes in Solomons air battles.

The Japanese said that on July 16 their naval air units attacked Vanikoro Island in the Santa Cruz group as well as Tulagi and Guadalcanal and damaged Allied vessels at anchor. There was no indication of such action in the MacArthur communiqué for that day.

In another communiqué issued

at the same time the Japanese said their troops on New Georgia had circled behind an Allied position and raided an American landing point, inflicting heavy damage.

"Our garrison units stationed near Munda on New Georgia Island several times repulsed enemy forces supported by tanks," the Japanese communiqué said, "and on July 17 cannonaded and routed an enemy torpedo boat flotilla which attempted to effect a landing."

AMGOT SEEN OUTGROWTH OF LONG STUDY

Military Rule By Allies Is Contrasted With That Of First War

JUL 20 1943

Aim, However, Is Called Same—Problems Are More Complex

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 19—Allied military chiefs, in establishing military governments for enemy territory conquered in the current war, are using methods in sharp contrast with those followed in World War I.

A principal difference is that a quarter century ago the governments were improvised more or less hastily, while the present system is an outgrowth of intensive planning.

However, officials say the aim is the same as it was in the occupation of the German Rhineland in World War I, to preserve law and order, to keep the civilian economy operating, feed and police people of occupied territories, safeguard the army and maintain a favorable military situation. Then and now the idea is to utilize the existing civilian setup.

Problems Greater

But the problems are vastly greater now. Occupation authorities in Sicily, where the new system is getting its baptism, are confronted with the destruction of public works by bombing and shellfire and with the problem of correlating their work with active military operations.

In 1918 when the American army moved into the Rhineland to occupy its assigned sectors in the Coblentz bridgehead, military operations had ceased and war had left the territory virtually unscathed.

The Third Army was thrown into the Rhineland "on a catch as can basis." Its officers and men knew little about military administration in civilian areas. The Third Army was commanded first by Maj. Gen. Joseph T. Dickman and later by Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, with Col. I. L. Hunt as the officer in charge of civil affairs.

No Uniformity

French and British troops occupied the adjoining sectors. Although liaison was maintained, military government was administered in each sector as the various commanders directed. There was no uniformity.

Reviewing the Third Army's work, Maj. Gen. C. W. Wickersham said recently that despite its hasty organization and its luck of preparation it "succeeded better than we had any reason to expect."

"Owing to economic and other conditions," he explained, "the Germans were willing to accept our government and with few exceptions to obey its decrees."

Report Resurrected

But out of this experience came a significant report on the occupation by Colonel Hunt. In it, he expressed the hope that the United States Army never again would be caught unprepared to assume the duties of a military government.

The report slumbered in the War Department archives for years, then it was resurrected shortly before the outbreak of World War II and became the basis of an army manual on military government, issued in 1940.

The manual eventually led to the establishment of a school of military government at Charlottesville, Va., headed by a staff that included Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, the provost marshal general, and General Wickersham, a legal and military expert. To the school went hand-picked men trained in civilian life for their future military jobs.

Sicily Only A Curtain Raiser

This time the American army was prepared against the day when military government in enemy territory might be necessary. The British, working along the same lines, instituted similar training for their officers. Merged under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the American and British systems became the Allied military government of occupied territory (AMGOT) in Sicily.

Sicily is only a curtain raiser on the bigger jobs that the army expects. But it expects to be ready, whether the next job is in Germany or one of the Axis satellite countries.

Navy Reports Panama Merchant Ship Sunk in May

JUL 20 1943

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Sinking of a medium-sized Panama merchant vessel by an enemy submarine in the South Pacific late in May with the loss of eight merchant crewmen and four members of the naval gun crew was reported by the Navy today.

The torpedo struck just before dawn while the merchantman was proceeding on her course with all lights blacked out. The Navy said that although it was impossible to determine whether the submarine surfaced, the gun crew aboard fired several shells at a dark object sighted 2,000 yards away. Three lifeboats and rafts were launched before the merchantman sank about an hour after she had been torpedoed. Some of the survivors later were picked up by Allied escort vessels and landed at South Pacific ports.

May Need Women In OFEC Abroad

Washington, July 19 (AP)—Women clerical workers may help representatives of the newly formed Office of Foreign Economic Coordination in enemy lands occupied by the Allied Nations.

State Department spokesmen tonight said Secretary Hull was considering a proposal for creating a a corps of women to aid in the work of unifying economic activities in occupied areas. The total number of the women workers, however, would be comparatively few, the spokesman said.

The Office of Foreign Economic Coordination was set up by Secretary Hull on June 24 at the direction of President Roosevelt.

HONOR CAPT. ELLSBERG

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—The Legion of Merit has been awarded Capt. Edward Ellsberg of the Navy for rehabilitation of the Massawa naval base in Eritrea, the Navy announced today.

Capt. Ellsberg, with a small crew of divers, the Navy said, succeeded in salvaging many of the twenty Axis ships scuttled by the Italians before the port was captured by the British in 1941, and also restored to service a large floating drydock which had been sunk by explosion of bombs in each of its compartments.

Capt. Ellsberg is an outstanding authority on underwater salvage and rescue operations. He directed salvage of the submarine S51 which sank off Block Island, R. I., and the submarine S4 which sank off Provincetown, Mass., in 1927. His home is in Westfield, N. J.

Nye Endorses Bombing

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The reported eagerness of Italians in Sicily to join hands with Allied forces occupying the island was described by Secretary of State Cordell Hull today as a very wholesome sign at this stage.

He told his press conference that it indicated an awareness on their part of the merits of the United Nations' side and the demerits of an association with Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican of North Dakota, told newsmen that the Italians had received ample warning of what to expect.

"One dreads to find this sort of activity necessary at a point like Rome," he said, and added:

"It is to our credit that every care was exercised to avoid damage to historical spots and to confine the bombing to military activities and establishments."

RESULTS IN SICILY PLEASING TO HULL

JUL 20 1943

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—The reported eagerness of Italians in Sicily to join hands with Allied forces occupying the island was described by Secretary of State Hull today as a very wholesome sign at this stage.

He told his press conference it indicates an awareness on their part of the merits of the United Nations' side and the demerits of an association with Hitler.

Mr. Hull emphasized in response to a question that he understood today's bombing of Rome was strictly confined to military objectives asserting the operation indicated our flyers had been given very explicit instructions.

Senator Nye (R.-ND) told newsmen on Capitol Hill that the Italians had been given ample warning of what to expect.

"One dreads to find this sort of activity necessary at a point like Rome," said the Senator.

"It is to our credit that every care was exercised to avoid damage to historical spots and to confine the bombing to military activities and establishments.

"Rome had been given ample warning what to expect and I would assume the population had taken the warning seriously and prepared accordingly.'

18 More Casualties Announced by Navy

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP).—The Navy announced today eighteen casualties, including seven dead, one wounded and ten missing.

The list also announces nineteen whose status has changed from missing to dead and sixteen from prisoners of war to dead.

'Big Inch' Pipeline Completed

JUL 20 1943

Ickes, at Celebration, Warns That Oil It Brings Is Primarily for Military Tasks.

Phoenixville, Pa., July 19 (A. P.).—Government officials paid tribute to the oil industry for a tremendous job well done at the opening of the "Big Inch" pipeline today.

Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce, in a message read for him by C. B. Henderson, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, told the celebrants:

"Those who have done this job have fought every inch of the way to get the line built in the shortest possible time. Almost every foot of the 1,475 miles had to be done the hard way, but that is the way in which the oil industry is accustomed to work."

Mr. Jones, whose RFC financed the $100,000,000 job, was prevented by laryngitis from attending the opening in person.

Opposes Pleasure Driving.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Petroleum Administrator for War, emphasized the vastness of military oil requirements and reiterated his opposition to use of gasoline for pleasure driving.

"Let us not, in the knowledge that the 'Big Inch" is ready to flow new quantities of oil into the East, plead for an increase in pleasure - driving at the expense of an increase in the power of our attack," he said. "Our conveniences and petty comforts are expendable. The oil shortage that you and I know as individuals is a positive factor in the strength of our fighting men.

"We can thus have but one goal—to produce and deliver more and more—in the savage hope that all of the oil that we can provide will be enough."

Mr. Ickes, long an advocate of the line, was invited to guide the torch making the final weld to join up the line.

Turned to Oil Industry.

Realizing that the pipeline job would be tough, Mr. Jones said, the RFC "turned to the oil industry to do it," through Oil Emergency Pipelines, Inc., organized by major oil companies to build the line and operate it.

Every pipeline contractor in the United States with equipment heavy enough to handle the size pipe employed was called in for some part of the work, Mr. Jones said. "Officials of War Emergency Pipelines tell me that every one of these contractors performed his job, and spent the Government's money as economically and efficiently as he would have his own. I am also glad to be able to say that the line has been built at approximately $5,000,000 less than the estimated cost," he added.

He said Emergency Piplines officials told him "every one seems to have been conscious of the dire necessity of getting it built quickly, that lives depended upon it. All take pride in having had a part in it."

"This big inch pipeline and the 20-inch pipeline also now under construction will go a long way toward insuring our success in the war," Mr. Jones said.

Oil Is on Way.

Even before a spluttering electric torch joined the last link to the world's biggest, longest oil pipeline, "Big Inch" was carrying to the East oil that well may be a decisive factor in defeating the Axis.

While the steel fluxed under the flaring torch, a stream of oil, from Longview, Tex., surged steadily eastward through Southern Ohio, flowing three miles an hour toward its first goal—the giant refineries that dot the Atlantic seaboard. Their empty storage tanks and idle refineries that turn crude oil into fuel for planes and tanks and ships awaited the first oil, due within three weeks.

In just 350 days the $95,000,000 line designed to deliver 12,600,000 gallons every day had been made ready.

More Gas for East.

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—The starved East had a promise of more gasoline today, but the outlook in the West was for less than it has been getting, and the news on tires was not so good.

Completion of the huge pipeline from Texas to the East coast coincided with these developments:

1. Secretary of the Interior Ickes announced that gasoline rationing for the driving public would be equalized over most of the nation, meaning more fuel for the East, and a reduction for the Mid-West and the Southwest. No change was indicated for the West Coast.

2. The Office of Price Administration, acting at the request of Rubber Director William Jeffers, banned sale of new tires for spares for the next few months—no specific date being given. Excepting firemen, doctors and others dealing with emergencies, the OPA said that new, used or recapped tires will be denied motorists who have four sound tires, plus one that can be made to serve as an emergency spare. Mr. Jeffers said he was striving to make the present stocks last until synthetic casings can be turned out in sufficient quantities.

3. The OPA also notified drivers that the B, C, E and R gas coupons hereafter will be good until renewals are issued, regardless of the expiration dates. This move was made to encourage drivers to conserve their coupons without fear that the stamps will become invalid. B books outside of the East will be issued henceforth on a three-month basis. Individual needs will be adjusted by the ration boards by tearing out coupons not used in the three-month period, rather than by giving each bookholder the same number of stamps but varying the length of time in which the coupons must be used.

In other words, ration boards will try to "tailor" B books to last three months, or in the East, four months. But if a driver has coupons left at the end of that time, he can go on using them until he has to obtain a renewal of his ration. His new ration period will be dated from the day he gets the new book. This is intended to prevent a rush of motorists to filling stations just before coupons expire.

Backs Short Trips.

Declaring that many persons would be unable to take the long vacations which would warrant granting by the OPA of vacation driving visas, New York City Park Commissioner Robert Moses plans to ask the OPA to permit driving to nearby parks and beaches. If the proposed change in the present non-essential driving ban were made, he said, it would affect the seventeen-State Eastern area.

G.O.P. DRAFTS PLANK ON FOREIGN POLICY

JUL 20 1943

Conference Group Asks National Committee to State Party's Position.

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP) The eastern conference of the Republican Post-War Policy association today recommended five courses of party action and urged Chairman Harrison Spangler and the Republican National committee to state soon their position on them.

They call for:

1.—Complete military victory and unconditional Axis surrender.

2—Continued unity of the United Nations "to secure international collaboration and to prevent the recurrence of future wars."

3—On the home front, conversion of war industries to peacetime production, and establishment of a "sound economic position with equal opportunity for all after the war is won."

4—Planning now for establishment of "an organization of nations to assume full responsibility in maintaining world peace."

5—Action by Republican members of Congress, immediately after Congress reconvenes, "to sponsor and support congressional action pledging cooperation by the United States in world affairs."

The conference which is interested in drafting a foreign policy plank for submission to the party in the next Presidential campaign voted for the appointment of a committee to advise Chairman Spangler of the resolutions and urge him and "the council of 49 delegates to make an early pronouncement of its intended action pursuant to these resolutions."

Delegates from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia and the six New England states attended the conference.

Mayo Shattuck, president of the Massachusetts Bar association and chairman of the resolutions committee, who presented the resolutions, said he believed "the Republican party is about to be given a chance again for leadership" but said the people, faced with a choice between the New Deal and isolationism, would choose the former.

"If we show the people of the United States that election of the Republican party will not mean another gang of inward turning, narrow minded isolationist stuffed shirts x x x you will be given power again, just as surely as you are in this room," he said, adding that failure in that respect "may be the end of our party."

EIGHT MAY BE DEAD IN BURNING PLANE

JUL 20 1943

Malcolm, Neb., July 19 (A. P.).—An Army plane, believed to have been a heavy bomber, crashed in flames on the Walter Lange farm three miles west of here today. First reports said eight men were aboard and all were killed. Officials of the Lincoln Army Air Base went to the scene to investigate, but whether the plane was from that base was not discussed.

Dodge City, Kan., July 19 (A. P.).—Pfc. Raymond F. Mallon, 21 years old, son of Mrs. Ella Mallon of Paterson, N. J., died Friday with four other men in the crash of a B-26 Marauder near Ness

3024-6315

City, Kan.

Pendleton, Ore., July 19 (A.P.).—Staff Sergt. Joseph F. Smith of Belford, N. J., and Sergt. William T. McDermott of Aubudon, N. J., suffered minor injuries Thursday in the crash of an Army bomber near here that took the lives of four men and injured five.

Eight Missing on Flight.

Pensacola, Fla., July 19 (A. P.).—Eight men, including two fighting French flyers, are missing on a training flight, the public relations office of the Pensacola Naval Air Station reported today.

The men were aboard a patrol plane due back at the station at 1:30 P. M., Saturday. No trace of the plane has been found.

Those missing included: Albert W. Smith, 4M3C, N. S. N. R., wife, Sally Veronica, of Pensacola; father, Albert J. Smith of Schenectady, N. Y.

To Launch Nelson Dingley

Liberty Ship, Named for Tariff Bill Author, Goes Down Ways Today

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., July 19 (AP).—The Liberty ship Nelson Dingley slides down the ways at the New England Shipbuilding Corporation yard tomorrow. The craft will be named by Mrs. Elinore Bye Smith, widow of Ellstad Smith, former yard employee.

Nelson Dingley, former owner of "The Lewiston Journal," served Maine as Governor and as a United States Congresman. He authored the Dingley tariff bill.

3 Prisoners of War Die As Lightning Strikes Tent

10 Other Italian Captives Hurt by Storm in Georgia

MACON, Ga., July 19 (AP).—Three Italian prisoners of war were killed and ten others injured today when lightning struck a tent in which they were gathered, the public relations office at the Camp Wheeler prisoner internment camp announced tonight.

The men were part of a cleaning detail, working in the Warner Robins village adjacent to the large Warner Robins air depot near here, the announcement said.

The public relations office reported tonight that all the injured were responding favorably to treatment.

The detail of prisoners was one of a number which have been working on various farm, forest and public work projects near here.

Escaped Nazi Prisoner Recaptured in Canada

Hunt On in Western New York for His Companion

BUFFALO, July 19 (AP).—Military authorities and police narrowed their western New York hunt for two escaped German war prisoners to one today following notification from Canada that a Nazi who fled a Petawawa, Ont., prison camp last week had been recaptured.

The search centered on Grand Island following a report that two men, said to be escaped Nazis, had swum the Niagara River from Canada to the island during the night.

A spokesman for the Fourth District, Second Service Command, said authorities were still on the alert for Gunther Krebs, German merchant marine sailor, who escaped last week from the Ontario camp. He said the district had been notified that the second prisoner, Heinz Sshuch, had been recaptured.

634 JAP SHIPS SUNK

Allied submarines, warships and planes, hammering steadily at Japan's extended shipping lanes and its southwestern Pacific positions, have sunk at least 634 enemy naval and merchant ships since Pearl Harbor, the Associated Press reported today.

Since the beginning of the month, Allied communiques from the area have listed the certain destruction of thirteen Japanese war vessels by United States surface forces in the two Kula Gulf naval battles and of four others by air attack. Announced American naval losses were the cruiser Helena, the destroyers Strong and Gwim and the transport McCawley. Communiques also noted the sinking of ten Japanese merchant vessels in air attacks in the southwestern Pacific.

The following post-Pearl Harbor tabulation is based on United States and Allied announcements:

Type.	Japan.	U. S.

U-Boat Toll Reaches 673

Announcement by the Navy last week of the sinking of two American merchant ships in the western Atlantic early this month brought to 673 The Associated Press count of announced Allied and neutral ship losses in those waters since Pearl Harbor.

Loss of the two merchant ships raised the announced toll of American vessels in the western Atlantic to 271 since this country entered the war. Of this total, thirty-eight have been sent to the bottom this year.

The Associated Press, made no mention of recent heavy Japanese losses in the southwest Pacific.

"I am firmly convinced that we shall win the war and carry through our big plan, the establishment of a new Greater East Asia," the broadcast quoted the Premier as saying. "We shall have to overcome numerous difficulties on the way to our goal, but our enemies are confronted with yet many greater difficulties."

Axis Radio Says Church Is Hit

Italians Report One Basilica Damaged by American Bombers.

JUL 20 1943

The Rome radio broadcast the first Axis assertion that church property was damaged in today's bombing of Rome by the United States Air Force. Rome quoted Stefani, the Italian official news agency, as saying that Pope Pius had visited the Basilica of St. Lorenzo-Outside-the-Wall, "devastated this morning by bombs dropped by Anglo-Saxon aviators."

This broadcast, picked up at New York by the Associated Press, said that the Pope made a private visit to the Basilica at 6 P. M. and returned to the Vatican City an hour later.

There was no word from any other source that St. Lorenzo's had been damaged. This church is about 1,000 yards northeast of the railway yards which formed the prime objective of the Allied raid. Vatican City and St. Peter's are some four miles west of the station.

masters would still make Italy a battle ground, they assert.

But the moment cannot be far distant when dread of the terrific rolling air barrage of the Allies will outweigh even fear of Nazi reprisals upon a weakening war ally. That was the psychology of the carefully planned and executed bombing attack on Rome.

Its significance lies in the hint it gives that Washington and London see a prospect of early Italian collapse to pave the way for drives from the Sicilian advance base against the continent itself, not at some remote time ,but soon. With Sicily swept clear of the foe, the Allied road northwestward to the coast of France would begin to open. To the northeast, from foothoods on the Italian mainland boot, the Allies could launch a drive at the Greek peninsula and the Balkans.

American troops which took Caltanissetta, geographical hub of Sicily and vital road and rail communication center in the Catania plain, have not only debouched into that rolling central valley but are half way across central Sicily from their southern bridgeheads. They are in a position to widen and deepen their penetration to the north coast of the island swiftly, splitting it in half.

Eastward, General Montgomery's British veterans have set foot on Catania plain as well. They are reported closing in westward on Gerbini air base and northward in the outskirts of the port of Catania. Once that port falls, the British can sweep northwest around the inshore base of Mount Etna to widen the swathe which Allied forces on the left and center are cutting toward the north coast.

Western Sicily, the certain advance base for French-American advance upon Sardinia, Corsica and continental France itself, seems ripening to fall into Allied hands almost without opposition once the Allies complete their drive across the center of the island. That will expedite the hour when fighting French troops from Africa join in the assault in more than token strength. That is likely to be strictly a French-American affair as far as ground forces are concerned, leaving the British in eastern Sicily to spearhead the attack on the Italian mainland itself, if that proves necessary.

There are immediate Allied objectives at the lower end of the Italian boot, however, which could condition the next phase of the fight. Once the toe and heel and the Gulf of Taranto between them were taken by the Allies, Italian forces garrisoning Albania and Greece could be virtually cut off from contact with Italy by sea. And from the Italian boot heel it would be easy for massed flights of big bombers to reach the Rumanian oil fields in sustained and devastating attacks.

Destruction from the air of those Balkan oil sources would strike a more serious blow to the Nazi war effort than any other discernible move the Allies could make quickly, and the attempt is definitely to be expected soon.

What's Behind the War News

JUL 20 1943

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Caught between the devil of Hitlerism and the deep sea of all-out Anglo-American attack, the Italian segment of the ill-starred Axis is creaking with portents of utter collapse.

The American aerial attack on Rome capped an Allied invasion of Sicily that is sweeping like an irresistable flood over the big island outpost. Its fate is sealed and with it that of all Sicily—and of the nearby Italian "boot" itself from toe to heel.

It has been patent for days in Rome broadcasts and Italian press comment that only fear of the Nazi overlords is holding revolt in Italy in check. Italian propagandists preaching continued resistance hold out no victory hope to the war-sickened Italian people, only the plea that there is no escape from war even by surrender. German

Premier Tojo Urges Greater Production; Says Japan Prepares 'Decisive Blows'

JUL 20 1943

Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo was quoted by the Berlin radio yesterday as declaring in a speech calling for increased food and industrial production that Japan's armed forces are preparing to "deal more decisive blows" to her enemies.

LONDON, JULY 19-(AP)-SMOKE FROM FIRES WHICH ALLIED BOMBS STARTED IN RAILROAD YARDS NEARLY BLOTTED-OUT THE AIRMEN'S VIEW OF ROME TODAY, A REUTERS CORRESPONDENT WHO ACCOMPANIED THE FLYING FORTRESSES ON THE RAID REPORTED.

HAIG NICHOLSON WROTE AS HE FLEW:

"THE FIRST FORTRESSES OVER ROME HAVE FOUND THEIR MARK. THE GIANT MARSHALLING YARDS, THE NERVE CENTER OF THE ENEMY'S RAILS AND COMMUNICATION SYSTEM IN ITALY, ARE GOING UP IN FLAMES. X X X

"ALREADY FAR BELOW ME IN THE CLOUDLESS ATMOSPHERE A GREAT COLUMN OF BLACK SMOKE IS RISING TO A HEIGHT OF 12,000 FEET. THE ACK-ACK IS COMING UP IN CLOUDS AS THE DEFENDERS OF THE INDUSTRIAL ARTERIES LET LOOSE WITH EVERYTHING THEY HAVE. THE FLAK PASSES IN THE SKY IN BLACK-LOOKING CLOUDS BUT THE FORTRESSES HOLD STEADILY ON THEIR BOMB RUN."

FROM AN ALTITUDE OF FOUR MILES THE BOMBER CREWS SAW AT A DISTANCE THE MASSIVE DOME OF ST.PETER'S, DWARFED BY THE GREAT, WHIRLING CLOUDS OF SMOKE THAT CAST HUGE SHADOWS ON THE GROUND, NICHOLSON SAID.

FLAMES SPRANG UP FROM THE LORENZO MARSHALLING YARDS BEFORE SMOKE COVERED THEM. THE SMOKE SPREAD LIKE A BILLOWING CURTIN OVER THE CITY UNTIL IT WAS ALMOST HIDDEN, HE SAID.

"MANY FIRES HAVE BEEN STARTED," THE REPORTER WROTE, "BUT MOST IMPORTANT WE CAN ALL SEE THAT THE GREAT RELIGIOUS CENTERS AND ST. PETER'S, ST.JOHN LATERAN AND THE BASILICA OF SAN PAOLO ARE UNTOUCHED."

WHILE RETURNING FROM THE RAID, THE CREW OF THIS FORTRESS, A NEW ONE, DECIDED ON ITS NAME: "REPLY TO MUSSO".

A MORE APPROPRIATE NAME COULD NOT HAVE BEEN CHOSEN, NICHOLSON SAID, "FOR IN THE WORDS OF OUR PILOT, LIEUT. EDWARD FLETCHER, 26, OF SACRAMENTO, CALIF., 'THE FORTS MUST HAVE GIVEN HIM HELL.'"

LONDON, JULY 19-(AP)-A PLAN FOR POST-WAR INTERNATIONAL TRADE, THE BANKERS OF WHICH SAY IS DESIGNED TO INSURE THE FULL CONSUMPTION OF THE WORLD'S PRINCIPAL EXPORT GOODS AND RAISE THE LIVING STANDARDS OF ALL COUNTRIES, WAS OFFERED TO THE PUBLIC TODAY AT A LUNCHEON ATTENDED BY MANY OF BRITAIN'S LABOR AND INDUSTRIAL LEADERS.

SIR EDGAR R.JONES, WELSH-BORN LAWYER AND BUSINESS MAN HAS FATHERED THE PLAN, WHICH HE CALLS A WORLD TRADE ALLIANCE BUILT ON THE PREMISE THAT A FLOURISHING TRADE AMONG THE NATIONS AFTER THE WAR IS ESSENTIAL TO PROSPERITY, AND THAT THE BEST WAY TO ACCOMPLISH THAT IS BY EXPANSION OF CONSUMPTION RATHER THAN CURTAILMENT OF PRODUCTION.

THE WORLD TRADE ALLIANCE AS EXPLAINED BY VISCOUNT DAVIDSON, SPEAKING FOR INDUSTRY; JOHN BROWN, GENERAL SECRETARY OF THE IRON AND STEEL TRADES CONFEDERATION, SPEAKING FOR TRADE UNIONISTS, AND BY SIR EDGAR, HAS THESE THREE PRIMARY AIMS:

(1) FULL CONSUMP

BY SIR EDGAR, HAS THESE THREE PRIMARY AIMS:

(1) FULL CONSUMPTION OF THE OUTPUT OF THE WORLD'S PRINCIPAL EXPORT INDUSTRIES.

(2) PRICE STABILITY FOR THE MAJOR PRODUCTS OF INTERNATIONAL COMMERCE.

(3) AN INCREASED DEMAND FOR THE PRODUCTS OF ALL NATIONS.

(4) A HIGH LEVEL OF EMPLOYMENT AND BETTER LIVING STANDARDS FOR ALL NATIONS.

TO ACCOMPLISH THESE AIMS THE WORLD TRADE ALLIANCE ASSOCIATION PROPOSES THAT THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE UNITED NATIONS BRING TOGETHER THE LEADERS IN THE MAJOR PRODUCTS OF WORLD TRADE TO DRAW UP A SERIES OF INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS.

JONES SAID THAT EACH COUNTRY WOULD BE REQUIRED TO BALANCE AS NEAR AS POSSIBLE ITS EXPORT-IMPORT TRADE. TO ENCOURAGE THIS HE PROPOSED THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A CENTRAL CLEARING BUREAU TO SUPERVISE THE OPERATIONS OF INTERNATIONAL PRODUCT COMMITTEES.

LONDON, JULY 19-(AP)-UNITED STATES ARMY ENGINEERS TURNED OVER ANOTHER HUGE BOMBER BASE TO THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE TODAY JUST 89 DAYS AFTER THEY STARTED THE JOB OF CLEARING THE LAND AND LAYING OUT THE RUNWAYS.

IT WAS THE THIRD FIELD COMPLETED IN TWO MONTHS.

BRIG.GEN.C.R.MOORE OF HARRISONBURG, VA., CHIEF ENGINEER FOR THE EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS OF THE U.S. ARMY, FORMALLY PRESENTED THE BASE TO BRIG.GEN.ROBERT C.CANDEE OF HINSDALE, ILL., CHIEF OF THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE SUPPORT COMMAND.

THE AVIATION ENGINEER UNIT WHICH DID THE JOB WAS COMMANDED BY LIEUT.COL.PAUL C.BROWN OF CHABOT COURT, OAKLAND, CALIF.

THE PROJECT WAS UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF COL.J.E.COLLMER OF ST. LOUIS, MO., WITH CAPT.JOHN G.GABLE OF RAPID CITY, S.D., AS OPERATIONS OFFICER.

THE "SNOWBALL'S" CREW WAS PICKED UP WITHIN AN HOUR AND A HALF AFTER DITCHING ITS BOMBER ON THE WAY HOME FROM SATURDAY'S FORTRESS RAID ON NORTHWEST GERMANY. FOR MOST OF THE CREW IT WAS THE 13TH OPERATION IN THE "SNOWBALL," WHICH WAS FORCED DOWN IN A BATTLE WITH 25 GERMAN FIGHTERS.

ONE OF THEIR DINGHIES WAS SHOT FULL OF HOLES AND WOULDN'T INFLATE, SAID LIEUT.JOSEPH P.SHAMES OF DE KALB, ILL., THE FORTRESS' BOMBARDIER.

"BUT WE HITCHED ONTO THE OTHER DINGHY AND WE ALL MANAGED ON ONE AND A HALF DINGHIES," HE ADDED.

THE TIME BETWEEN HITTING THE WATER AND GETTING RESCUED WENT FAST, EXPLAINED LIEUT.E.H.EASTLUND OF TUSTIN, MICH., THE CO-PILOT, BECAUSE EHY WERE OCCUPIED WITH TRYING TO PUMP UP THE DAMAGED DINGY AND TYING IT UP WITH THE OTHER.

STAFF SERGEANTS ROBERT F.MARTIN OF VELASCO, TEX., RADIO OPERATOR, AND ARTURO CHACON OF DEL RIO, TEX., SAID THEY NEVER SAW ANYTHING AS BEAUTIFUL AS THOSE BLUE-WHITE RESCUE BOATS.

THEY WERE ALL IN THE WATER SUCH A SHORT TIME THAT FIVE OF THEM FOUND THEIR WRIST WATCHES STILL KEEPING TIME.

THREE OF THE "SNOWBALL'Z ENGINES WERE KNOCKED OUT AND BOTH WINGS WERE DAMAGED, SAID TECH.SERGT.THOMAS B.DYE OF STEUBENVILLE, O., BALL TURRET GUNNER.

"IN FACT THERE WASN'T A PIECE OF THAT SHIP THAT WAS NOT HIT," ADDED STAFF SERGT.WILLARD HUNTER OF BLOOMFIELD, ILL.

SURVEYING A BLACK EYE AND ASSORTED OTHER DAMAGE TO MEMBERS OF HIS CREW, LIEUT.WILLIAM E.PETERS OF HIGHLAND PARK, ILL., THE PILOT, COMMENTED: "WE LOOK LIKE WE HAVE BEEN ON A 48-HOUR PASS."

BERN, JULY 19-(AP)-GERMAN OCCUPATION TROOPS, AIDED BY VICHY AUTHORITIES, WERE REPORTED TODAY TO BE CARRYING OUT SWEEPING RAIDS IN FRANCE IN AN EFFORT TO ROUND UP ENEMIES OF PIERRE LAVAL'S GOVERNMENT BELIEVED LIKELY TO JOIN A POPULAR UPRISING IN EVENT OF AN ALLIED INVASION.

DISPATCHES TO THE NEWSPAPER LA SUISSE SAID THAT 200 PERSONS ALREADY HAD BEEN ARRESTED IN A DRIVE IN HAUTE SAVOIE PROVINCE OPPOSITE THE SWISS FRONTIER. THOSE ARRESTED WERE DESCRIBED AS SUSPECTED DE GAULLISTS, SOCIALISTS AND COMMUNISTS.

"THE OPERATIONS ARE CAUSING CONSIDERABLE COMMOTION AMONG THE PEOPLE," LA SUISSE SAID.

THE ROME RADIO BROADCAST A MUSICAL PROGRAM AFTER THE COMMUNIQUE.

POPE SEPARATE

JUL 20 1943

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 19-(AP)-THE SWISS TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY, IN A ROME DISPATCH WHICH WAS ALMOST WORD-FOR-WORD THAT OF THE ITALIAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY STEFANI, SAID TONIGHT THAT POPE PIUS XII HAD SPENT 70 MINUTES TODAY VISITING LOCALITIES DAMAGED BY THE AMERICAN BOMBER RAID ON ROME.

BUT NONE OF THE ACCOUNTS REACHING HERE FROM ROME SAID A WORD ABOUT DAMAGE TO MILITARY INSTALLATIONS IN THE CONGESTED CAPITAL.

HIS HOLINESS INSPECTED "IMPORTANT DAMAGE TO ANCIENT STRUCTURES WHICH ENJOYED EXTRATERRITORIAL RIGHTS," SAID THE AGENCY.

"THE VATICAN INFORMED US THAT THE POPE REMAINED 'CALMLY IN HIS APARTMENT DURING THE THREE-HOUR ALERT AND DURING THE TERRIBLE BOMBARDMENT,'" THE REPORT CONTINUED.

"IMMEDIATELY WHEN THE ALL-CLEAR SOUNDED HE REQUESTED THAT HE BE INFORMED OF THE DAMAGE. HE 'SHOWED PROFOUND SADNESS' WHEN TOLD THAT THE BASILICA OF SAN LORENZO WAS HIT ALONG WITH SOME DWELLINGS.

"HE DECIDED ON AN INSPECTION TOUR, WE WERE INFORMED. UNDERSECRETARY OF STATE MONTINI WAS HIS SOLE COMPANION ON THE TRIP, MADE 'WITHOUT CORTEGE AND CARRIAGES, AND WITHOUT THE CUSTOMARY SUITE OF PERSONS OF THE PONTIFICAL COURT.'

"'ARRIVING NEAR THE CEMETERY OF CAMPO VERANO, THE POPE COULD TAKE ACCOUNT OF THE FIRST EFFECT OF THE BOMBARDMENT. SEVERAL BUILDINGS WERE CRUMBLED, SOME OF THOSE IN THE UNIVERSITY CITY'.

"THE POPE LEFT HIS AUTOMOBILE BEFORE THE BASILICA AND 'WAS THE OBJECT OF MANIFESTATIONS AND RESPECT BY PERSONS RECOGNIZING HIM. THE POPE REMAINED SOME MOMENTS, PROFOUNDLY MOVED BEFORE THE RUINS OF THE CELEBRATED BASILICA'. THE POPE DID NOT RETURN DIRECTLY TO THE VATICAN, BUT VISITED OTHER SECTIONS THAT WERE HIT, 'WHERE SEVERAL TIMES HE GAVE HIS BENEDICTION TO THE CROWDS WHICH RECOGNIZED HIM'."

THE STEFANI AGENCY SAID THAT FIRST EXAMINATION INDICATED THE "BASILICA WAS HIT BY SEVERAL BOMBS AT DIFFERENT TIMES. THE POPE PERSONALLY TOOK ACCOUNT OF THE DAMAGES AND GAVE THE APOSTOLIC BLESSING TO THE KNEELING CROWDS."

VATICAN CIRCLES IN BERN SAID THEY HAD NOT YET RECEIVED ANY WORD OF THE REACTION OF THE HOLY SEE TO THE BOMBING OF ROME.

(BERLIN BROADCAST A "VATICAN CITY" STORY SAYING THAT THE POPE VERY LIKELY WOULD REPLY SOON TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S RECENT MESSAGE ASSURING HIM THAT ALLIED AIRMEN WOULD ENDEAVOR TO RESPECT THE VATICAN CITY AND ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH PROPERTY IN THEIR ATTACKS ON ITALY).

WHILE DETAILS OF THE DAMAGE INFLICTED ON MILITARY INSTALLATIONS HAD NOT YET BEEN RECEIVED HERE, THOSE ACQUAINTED WITH THE SITUATION IN ROME SAID THEY BELIEVED A TELLING BLOW HAD BEEN STRUCK AT THE BACKBONE OF AXIS COMMUNICATIONS.

EVEN MORE DRASTIC RESULTS IN SNAPPING ITALIAN MORALE WERE LIKELY, THEY SAID, SINCE MILLIONS BELIEVED THAT ROME NEVER WOULD BE ATTACKED.

THE ITALIAN PRESS HAS BEEN HAVING DIFFICULTY EXPLAINING WHY GERMAN AID IS LACKING IN THE DEFENSE OF ITA

Y, AND MANY ITALIANS PROBABLY ALSO RECALL PREMIER MUSSOLINI'S BOAST BEFORE THE SICILIAN INVASION THAT ANY INVADERS OF ITALIAN SOIL WOULD BE PLACED IN "PERMANENT HORIZONTAL POSITIONS."

MADE IN BROAD DAYLIGHT, THE RAID EMPHASIZED THE SERIOUSNESS OF THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL WARNING THAT ITALIANS MUST OVERTHROW THEIR FASCIST LEADERS OR BE BOMBED OUT OF THE WAR.

THE ATTACK ON RAIL TARGETS IN ROME STRUCK AT THE VITAL LINES OVER WHICH THE BULK OF NAZI MEN AND MATERIALS, AS WELL AS ITALIAN TROOPS, IS BEING SHIFTED SOUTHWARD.

ITALIAN TROOPS WHO HAVE BEEN OCCUPYING THE HAUTE SAVOIE REGION OF FRANCE STILL ARE BEING RUSHED BACK HOME TO PROTECT THEIR NATIVE SOIL, DISPATCHES FROM FRANCE SAID. A LYON REPORT TO THE TRIBUNE DE GENEVE SAID THAT GERMAN TROOP MOVEMENTS TOWARD SOUTHERN FRANCE WERE CONTINUING, TOO.

IN ITALY BLACKSHIRT LEADERS STILL WERE CIRCULATING THEIR OWN HANDBILL ANSWERS TO THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL MESSAGE WHEN THE BLOW AT ROME OCCURRED.

STOCKHOLM--FIRST ADD ROME RAID X X X PRESS SAID.

THE ATTACK WAS CENTERED ON THE DISTRICTS OF SAN LORENZO AND TIBURTINA, WHERE IMPORTANT RAILWAY STATIONS AND YARDS ARE LOCATED, THE ROME CORRESPONDENT OF THE SWEDISH NEWSPAPER DAGENS NYHETER REPORTED.

"THERE WAS AN UNINTERRUPTED SERIES OF HEAVY EXPLOSIONS AND SMOKE AND FLAMES BILLOWED HIGH INTO THE SKY, MAKING IT CLEAR THE RAID WAS A HEAVY ONE," HE WROTE.

JUL 20 1943

JUL 20 1943

THE CORRESPONDENT SAID THE STREETS WERE CROWDED WHEN THE AIR RAID ALARMS SOUNDED IN THE ITALIAN CAPITAL ABOUT 10 A.M. AFTER "AN AGITATED NIGHT" DURING WHICH THE PUBLIC HAD EXPECTED A RAID. A FEW MINUTES LATER ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES OPENED FIRE AND A GREAT FORMATION OF AMERICAN BOMBERS COULD BE SEEN, HE DECLARED.

THE CENTER OF ROME WAS SPARED, THE DISPATCH DECLARED, AND ALL WELL KNOWN STREETS, MONUMENTS AND ANCIENT RUINS KNOWN TO TOURISTS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD WERE LEFT "AS PEACEFUL AS EVER," IT ADDED.

THE SAN LORENZO AND TIBURTINA DISTRICTS WERE HARD HIT, HOWEVER, THE CORRESPONDENT ASSERTED. BUILDINGS WERE STILL ABLAZE AND THE STREETS FILLED WITH DEBRIS AT THE TIME THE DISPATCH WAS FILED, HE SAID.

EVERYWHERE IN THE BOMBED AREA, HE REPORTED, THERE WAS "A PICTURE OF LAMENTATION AND MISERY", WITH FAMILIES WHICH HAD BEEN BOMBED OUT SITTING IN THE STREETS WITH THEIR BELONGINGS.

ON THE OTHER HAND, THE DISPATCH WENT ON, THE POPULATION AS A WHOLE "MET THE BLOW WITHOUT LOSING SELF CONTROL." IN GENERAL, THE CORRESPONDENT DECLARED, THE PUBLIC TOOK THE RAID AS "THE FIRST REAL WARNING" AND HE SAID EVERYONE KNOWS ROME IS NOW IN THE FRONT LINE.

THE ROME PRESS WAS SAID TO HAVE APPEALED TO ALL CITIZENS NOT FORCED BY THEIR WORK TO REMAIN IN THE CITY TO DEPART AT ONCE. WARNINGS ALSO WERE PUBLISHED AGAINST UNEXPLODED BOMBS.

THE DAGENS NYHETER CORRESPONDENT SAID THAT ONLY THE OUTER PARTS OF THE CITY HAD BEEN HIT. CENSORSHIP FORBADE THE WRITER TO FILE ANY REPORT FROM ROME ON DAMAGE OF A MILITARY NATURE. HE SAID THAT NO ANNOUNCEMENT CONCERNING CASUALTIES HAD BEEN ISSUED, BUT THAT DEAD STILL WERE BEING REMOVED FROM THE DEBRIS AND FATALITIES WERE REPORTED HIGH.

LATE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON, THE CORRESPONDENT REPORTED, POPE PIUS XII LEFT THE VATICAN TO VISIT THE FOURTH CENTURY BASILICA OF SAN LORENZO, WHICH THE DISPATCH SAID HAD BEEN BADLY DAMAGED.

FOLLOWING THE RAID, TAXIS, TRUCKS AND EVEN MOTORCYCLES WERE PRESSED INTO SERVICE TO HELP CARRY WOUNDED TO HOSPITALS OR REMOVE THE HOMELESS TO "MORE OR LESS IMPROVISED QUARTERS", THE CORRESPONDENT WROTE.

THIS WOULD SEEM, HE SAID, TO INDICATE THAT AUTHORITIES HAD FAILED TO MAKE PROPER PREPARATIONS.

CALTAGIRONE, BLITZED INTO A LONDON EAST END BY RAF BOMBINGS. I DROVE INTO CALTAGIRONE IN THE WAKE OF A BRENCARRIER PATROL A FEW HOURS AFTER THE TROOPS MARCHED INTO THE TOWN WITHOUT MEETING ANY OPPOSITION. CANADIANS WERE PATROLLING THE STREETS, WATCHING FOR SNIPERS AND BOOBY TRAPS, AND CHECKING ON CIVILIANS.

CALTAGIRONE IS THE LARGEST TOWN THE CANADIANS HAVE OCCUPIED. IT IS A RAMBLING MASS OF GREY STONE HOUSES, WITH DIRTY RED TILE ROOFS PILED ON A HILL AND TOPPED BY A BEAUTIFUL CHURCH.

THE DIRTY, DUST-CHOKED NARROW STREETS WERE STREWN WITH CONCRETE AND STONE RUBBLE. BUILDINGS HAD BEEN SMASHED AND GUTTED BY FIRE AND BOMBS RAINED DOWN BY THE RAF IN THE SICILIAN BLITZ AHEAD OF THE ADVANCING TROOPS.

CIVILIANS WAVED US ON HERE AS THEY HAVE IN OTHER TOWNS, GIVING THE "V" SIGN.

THE LIGHTNING SPEED OF THE ADVANCE WAS BEYOND ALL MY EXPECTATIONS. IT IS DIFFICULT AT TIMES TO KEEP CONTACT. HEADQUARTERS MOVES AHEAD SOMETIMES SEVERAL TIMES A DAY.

WHILE THE OPERATIONS ARE GATHERING MOMENTUM FEW OF US GET MORE THAN A FEW HOURS SLEEP A NIGHT, BIVOUACKING AT DARK, THEN SPEEDING FORWARD IN PURSUIT OF INFANTRY AND TANKS AT CRACK OF DAWN.

THERE IS A TREMENDOUS CONCENTRATION OF FIGHTING POWER BEING DRIVEN INTO THE HEART OF SICILY. THE 8TH ARMY REALLY IS ROLLING. IN SEVEN DAYS THE CANADIANS ADVANCED MORE THAN 70 MILES FROM THEIR LANDINGS ON THE PACHINO PENINSULA.

JUL 20 1943

I AM WRITING THIS BY THE ROADSIDE NEAR CALTAGIRONE AND A CONSTANT STREAM OF ARMY TRAFFIC IS POURING PAST IN A SCREEN OF DUST. TRUCKS LOADED WITH INFANTRY, BREN CARRIERS STACKED WITH TROOPS, AND TANKS ARE CHURNING SPECIAL BILLOWS OF DUST. THERE ARE ANTI-TANK GUNS, FIELD GUNS AND JEEPS BY THE SCORE.

I BIVOUACKED IN A FIELD ON THE ROAD TO CALTAGIRONE. IT IS COOL UP IN THESE HILLS OF CENTRAL SICILY AT NIGHT AND THE TROOPS FIND THE ONE BLANKET THEY CARRY HARDLY ENOUGH TO KEEP THEM WARM.

BUT THE COOLNESS OF THE NIGHT IS A RELIEF FROM THE HEAT OF THE DAY, AND MOST OF THE TROOPS MOVE PRACTICALLY ALL THE TIME ANYWAY.

AN ENEMY FORCE WAS REPORTED AHEAD AND THE CANADIAN COMMANDER MADE A RECONNAISSANCE OVER HIGH GROUND BEFORE DUSK. HE COULD SEE AXIS FIRES FLICKERING IN THE VALLEY BEYOND.

THE CANADIAN ATTACK WAS SCHEDULED TO START DURING DARKNESS BUT WHEN A REGIMENT WENT UP THE STEEP ROADS TO THE TOWN THERE WAS NO ENEMY THERE. THESE CANADIANS WHO SO FAR HAVE MADE A LONG MARCH IN PURSUIT OF THE ENEMY WERE DISAPPOINTED THAT CALTAGIRONE WAS ANOTHER PUSHOVER OCCUPATION.

BUT THEY SYSTEMATICALLY WENT THROUGH THE TOWN AND KEPT IT IN ORDER. THE COMMANDER, PUSHING HIS TROOPS ALONG THE FASTEST HE CAN, HAS RECEIVED A CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE FROM THE BRITISH COMMANDER, GEN.SIR BERNARD MONTGOMERY, WHICH ALSO URGED THE CANADIANS TO KEEP IT UP.

EN ROUTE TO THE FRONT I DROVE INTO GRAMMICHELE AND WHILE OUR JEEP WAS BEING REPAIRED I HEARD THE STORY OF THE FIGHT THERE. THIS WAS THE FIRST REAL ENGAGEMENT THE CANADIANS HAVE HAD SINCE LANDING,

APART FROM A FEW SKIRMISHES COMING UP THE LINE AND CONSTANT DIFFICULTIES WITH SNIPERS.

THE FIRST BLOWN-UP ROADS I HAVE SEEN ARE IN THIS AREA. ALL THE WAY FROM THE BEACHES THERE HAD BEEN NO OBSTACLES APART FROM OCCASIONAL POOR ROADBLOCKS IN THE PATH OF THE CANADIANS.

NEAR GRAMMICHELE ATTEMPTS HAD BEEN MADE TO PUT CRATERS IN THE ROADS WITH EXPLOSIVES, BUT THE ROYAL CANADIAN ENGINEERS FILLED UP THE HOLES IN SHORT ORDER.

BURNED-OUT ITALIAN TRUCKS ARE LYING LIKE SKELETONS EVERY MILE OR SO. SOME OF OUR TROOPS ARE DRIVING IN A FEW CAPTURED GERMAN VEHICLES.

THE "TEMPLE OF CONCORDA," A YELLOW PILLARED RUIN REPRESENTING ONE OF THE FINEST EXAMPLES OF CLASSIC ARCHITECTURE, STANDS IN THE MIDDLE OF A FEW SCATTERED STONE BUILDINGS ON A HILL EAST OF AGRIGENTO WHERE THE ANCIENT CITY ONCE FLOURISHED.

THE ITALIANS HAD CONVERTED THIS RUIN INTO A VERITABLE "TEMPLE OF DISCORD" BY PLACING A CLEVERLY CONCEALED PILLBOX AND GUN EMPLACEMENT A FEW FEET OFF THE ROAD LEADING TO IT.

A GROUP OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS, APPROACHING THE RUINS AFTER THE FALL OF AGRIGENTO, WAS MORE IMPRESSED, HOWEVER, BY A LONG MARBLE BURIAL CRYPT SUNK IN THE GROUND.

"SAY," SAID ONE, "THEY EVEN HAD FOX HOLES IN THOSE DAYS."

BROKEN STONES, PLASTER AND DEBRIS LITTERED MANY OF THE STREETS OF AGRIGENTO AS THE AMERICAN TROOPS ENTERED THE CITY. THERE WERE FEW WINDOW PANES INTACT ANYWHERE, AND ONE WHOLE SIDE OF A BANK BUILDING HAD BEEN BLOWN AWAY. DESPITE THESE EVIDENCES OF DAMAGE, HOWEVER, POLICE SAID RELATIVELY FEW LIVES HAD BEEN LOST.

ITALIAN SOLDIERS STILL WERE WALKING THROUGH THE TOWN CARRYING THEIR RIFLES AND LOOKING FOR A PLACE TO GIVE THEMSELVES UP -- AND GET A SQUARE MEAL.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 19-(AP)-A SQUADRON OF AMERICAN LIGHTNING FIGHTERS SPED OUT OVER THE TYRRHENIAN SEA YESTERDAY TO ASSIST IN THE RESCUE OF AN AMERICAN BOMBER CREW AND REMAINED TO WIPE OUT AN ENTIRE FORMATION OF GERMAN JUNKERS-52 TRANSPORT PLANES APPARENTLY CARRYING TROOPS AND SUPPLIES TO SICILY.

THE P-38S WERE ESCORTING A GROUP OF RAF SUNDERLAND FLYING BOATS ON A HUNT FOR SIX MEMBERS OF AN AMERICAN MARAUDER CREW WHO CRASH-LANDED IN THE SEA 30 MILES OFF THE ITALIAN COAST WHILE RETURNING FROM SATURDAY'S RAID ON NAPLES.

ONE OF THE FLYING BOATS SIGHTED THE SIX FLIERS AND RESCUED THEM AFTER THEY HAD FLOATED IN A TWO-MAN DINGHY FOR 18 HOURS. THEN THE LIGHTNINGS WENT BACK TO SEARCH FOR OTHER CREWS.

INSTEAD OF FINDING WRECKED AIRMEN THEY SPOTTED THE FORMATION OF JU-52S BETWEEN SARDINIA AND THE ISLAND OF USTICA AND IN A MATTER OF MINUTES THEY SENT ALL 15 OF THEM CRASHING INTO THE SEA.

THE SPECTACULAR DESTRUCTION OF THE TROOP-CARRYING TRANSPORTS WAS SIMILAR TO AERIAL BATTLES OFF CAP BON LAST MAY WHEN ALLIED FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN AS MANY AS 80 OF THE BIG GERMAN SHIPS AT ONE TIME.

LIEUT.MORRIS THOMASON, PILOT OF THE STRICKEN AMERICAN BOMBER, TOLD OF THE MISHAP ON THE NAPLES RAID AND THE RESCUE OF HIMSELF AND HIS CREW. HE SAID ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE KNOCKED OUT THE RIGHT ENGINE OVER NAPLES. IT CAUGHT FIRE AND THE PLANE IMMEDIATELY BEGAN DROPPING 1,000 FEET A MINUTE.

(EDS: THOMASON'S HOME TOWN UNAVAILABLE.)

JUL 20 1943

THE MARAUDER REACHED THE SEA UNDER THE PROTECTION OF ANOTHER B-26 WHICH BRAVED THE HEAVIEST FLAK TO COVER THE FALLING PLANE. THOMASON CRASH-LANDED NEATLY IN THE WATER AND THE BOMBER SANK WITHIN 45 SECONDS BUT THE SIX CREWMEN WERE SAFELY AWAY BY THAT TIME.

FLIGHT OFFICER L.H.TARRINGTON, HOUSTON, TEX., OF THE SECOND MARAUDER, RADIOED THE LOCATION TO THE AIR-SEA RESCUE SERVICE AND DROPPED A LIFE RAFT.

"THE BRITISH BOYS DID A WONDERFUL JOB OF FINDING THE TINY SPOT IN THE SEA WHERE WE WERE," THOMASON SAID. "THREE OF OUR CREW WERE INJURED WHEN WE HIT THE WATER BUT WE MANAGED TO DRAG EVERYBODY ON THE DINGHY.

"DURING THE NIGHT A BRITISH AIRCRAFT CIRCLED, DROPPING FLARES, BUT A JUNKERS-88 CAME ALONG AND SPOILED THINGS. WE WERE PLENTY GLAD TO SEE THE SUNDERLAND COME OVER THE NEXT DAY."

LIEUT.IRWIN STUHR OF 507 WINONA BLVD., ROCHESTER, N.Y., SUMMED IT UP WITH: "WE WERE LUCKY TO BE PICKED UP."

FIRES WERE RAGING AFTER THE FIRST FORTRESS ASSAULT. SUCCEEDING WAVES WENT IN TO SPREAD AND INCREASE THE FIRES.

FORTRESSES CAME IN FOUR SEPARATE WAVES FROM 10 TO 15 MINUTES APART. THE FIRST BOMB FELL FROM A SHIP PILOTED BY COLONEL SAM GORMLEY, 112 ALHAMBRA STREET, ALHAMBRA, CALIF. THE FIRST WAVE SKIRTED THE EASTERN EDGE OF THE CITY COMING UP FROM CIVITA VECCHIA.

A SICILIAN-BORN AMERICAN BOMBARDIER WAS ONE OF THOSE WHO RELEASED HIS PROJECTILES ON THE TARGET.

HE WAS SECOND LIEUTENANT ANTHONY S.MASTROPALO OF 1858 HAMBLIN STREET, TYRONE, PENN., AND HE SAID HE FELT NO CONSCIENTOUS SCRUPLES IN BOMBING ROME.

"IN FACT I WAS VERY MUCH DISAPPOINTED WHEN I FOUND MY NAME HAD BEEN LEFT OFF THE LIST AT FIRST," MASTROPALO SAID. "LATER THAT WAS CHANGED. I CONSIDER ROME AS MUCH A MILITARY TARGET AS ANY OF THE CITIES WE'VE BEEN KICKING AROUND. WHY SHOULDN'T WE BOMB IT?"

SERGEANT EDWARD DOOLAN OF 2126 SOUTH 11TH STREET, ST.JOSEPH, MO., SAID: "RIGHT ON THE TARGET. NO TROUBLE AT ALL. FLAK AND ENEMY FIGHTERS ALMOST NIL."

THAT SUMMARIZED THE REACTION OF MOST OF THE AMERICAN AIRMEN.

SERGT. ORVILLE WEST OF 2222 SPENCER STREET, OMAHA, NEB., DECLARED: "I WAS SURPRISED HOW LITTLE TROUBLE WE HAD. MOST OF US EXPECTED ROME TO BE WELL PROTECTED WITH FLAK AND FIGHTERS. THE FLAK WAS WEAK AND ONLY THREE FIGHTERS SHOWED UP, BUT THEY LEFT QUICKLY."

A95 JUL 20 1943

TWO AMERICAN FLIERS FINISHED THEIR 50TH MISSION WITH THE ROME RAID, AND ARE READY FOR A TRIP HOME NOW. THEY WERE LIEUT. JOHN M. KELSO, 201 COLLEGE STREET, MONTGOMERY, ALA., AND LIEUT. MARION D. JONES OF 15 BARKSDALE STREET, MEMPHIS, TENN.

KELSO SAID: "THIS MISSION WAS A 'BEAUT' TO WIND UP WITH. ONE GROUP OF FORTS WAS JUST AHEAD OF US ON THE BOMB RUN. THEIR BOMBS MUSHROOMED ALL OVER THE AREA SO WE JUST LET OUR PILLS ROLL ON TOP OF THEIRS. AS WE WERE LEAVING THE COAST WE SAW SOME B-24'S LUGGING THEIR LOADS IN. THE PANNING WE GAVE THEM WAS PITIFUL."

JONES ADDED: "WE THOUGHT WE'D HAVE TO BE VERY CAREFUL TO HIT ONLY MILITARY OBJECTIVES BUT THERE WAS NOTHING TO IT. WE SAW VATICAN CITY ABOUT FIVE MILES ACROSS THE RIVER FROM THE RAILROADS AND INDUSTRIAL REGIONS."

SERGT. JOHN ANDERSON, 30 ROCKLAND STREET, ROXBURY, MASS., SAID "OUR BOMBS DIDN'T COME ANYWHERE NEAR THE VATICAN."

AND LIEUT. S.D. MCFADDEN, LONG BEACH, CALIF., DECLARED: "FRANKLY IT WAS MUCH BETTER THAN I EXPECTED. IT WAS A GOOD RAID. IT SEEMS THERE NEVER HAD BEEN MUCH PROTECTION FOR ROME. THE RESISTANCE WAS NEGLIGIBLE."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA--SECOND ADD ROME BOMBING BY RELMAN MORING XXX THAT WAY.

"WE HAD BEEN CAREFULLY BRIEFED AND I KNEW I COULD DEPEND ON THE NAVIGATOR TO PINPOINT OUR TARGET AND THE BOMBARDIER TO SMACK IT ON THE NOSE.

"BESIDES MY SECOND IN COMMAND, BOB ELLIOT, IS A DEVOUT CATHOLIC

AND HE FELT GOOD ABOUT GOING SO WHEN I SAW THAT I JUST STOPPED WORRYING."

AFTER THAT, SAID THE MAJOR, IT WAS JUST A BREEZE.

HE WAS ABLE TO SPOT HIS TARGET THROUGH THE CRYSTAL-CLEAR WEATHER WHEN STILL 25 MILES AWAY. THE FIGHTERS THEY EXPECTED SIMPLY DID NOT MATERIALIZE AND "SOMETHING MUST HAVE GONE AWFULLY WRONG WITH THEIR DEFENSES," HE CONTINUED. "I SAW TWO FIGHTERS BUT THEY WERE TOO FAR AWAY TO IDENTIFY. WE DON'T OFTEN FIND ANY TWO FIGHTERS WILLING TO STICK THEIR NECKS OUT BY THEMSELVES AND ATTACK A FORMATION OF FORTS."

THE BIG SHIPS CAME INTO THEIR BOMBING RANGE WITH 500 POUNDS OF "EGGS" POISED IN THE BOMB BAYS BENEATH EACH SHIP.

THEN THE FLAK BEGAN COMING UP "BUT IT WAS ITALIAN FLAK--IF YOU KNOW WHAT I MEAN," SAID THE MAJOR.

HE MEANT IT WAS ANYTHING BUT ACCURATE.

FIRES ALREADY WERE BLAZING IN THE SAN LORENZO MARSHALLING YARDS, WHICH WERE HIS TARGET. OTHER WAVES OF FORTRESSES ALREADY HAD BEEN OVER. THE MAJOR SAID HE WOULD BET HIS LAST DOLLAR THE "EGGS" THAT FELL FROM HIS PLANE WENT RIGHT INTO THE MIDDLE OF THOSE SAME FIRES.

HE SAID THANKS TO THE MAPS, THE BRIEFING AND THE CLEAR WEATHER, HE WAS ABLE TO IDENTIFY EASILY NOT ONLY THE BOMBING TARGETS BUT THE RELIGIOUS AND CULTURAL STRUCTURES HE HAD RECEIVED IRON-CLAD ORDERS TO AVOID.

"BUT I DIDN'T STICK AROUND SIGHTSEEING," HE DECLARED. "THE ONLY IDEA THAT I HAD WAS TO PLASTER THE TARGET AND GET AWAY. THAT'S WHAT I DID. THAT'S WHAT ALL THE BOYS DID."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 19-(AP)-SICILY'S PRINCIPAL EASTERN PORT OF CATANIA, ROCKED BY ALLIED AERIAL BOMBS AND NAVAL SHELLS AND THREATENED WITH IMMINENT CAPTURE BY THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, WAS DESCRIBED BY AN AMERICAN FLIER TODAY AS "COLOGNE ON A SMALL SCALE."

THE FLIER, LIEUT.SANFORD BLOOM OF 32 SPRUCE ST., MINNEAPOLIS, PARTICIPATED IN SATURDAY NIGHT'S CRUSHING ATTACK WHEN AMERICAN MITCHELLS AND RAF BOSTONS RAINED MORE THAN 85 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES ON THE DOOMED CITY, STARTING NEW BLAZES IN THE FIRE-GUTTED OBJECTIVE.

NO ENEMY FIGHTERS CAME UP TO CHALLENGE THE THUNDERING BOMBERS BUT THEY ENCOUNTERED A MODERATE BARRAGE OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

"WHEN WE FIRST SAW CATANIA IT WAS DARK AND TIRED LOOKING," SAID BLOOM, A 22-YEAR-OLD OBSERVER. "JUST SOUTH OF THE TOWN AN ARTILLERY DUEL LIT UP PATCHES OF THE SKY. JUST BEFORE REACHING THE TOWN ALL HELL BROKE LOOSE BELOW US AS OTHER OF OUR AIRCRAFT LET GO WITH THEIR LOADS.

"THREE LONG ROWS OF INCENDIARIES APPEARED AND THEN FLASHES FROM EXPLOSIVES WERE VISIBLE AROUND US. WHEN WE WERE DROPPING OUR BOMBS ANOTHER FLOOD OF INCENDIARIES FELL. SUDDENLY THERE WERE MORE FIRES THAN THE NEW YORK CITY FIRE DEPARTMENT COULD HANDLE."

THE FACT THAT THE FLIERS SPOTTED AN ARTILLERY DUEL RAGING "JUST SOUTH" OF CATANIA INDICATED THAT THE BRITISH TROOPS WERE VERY CLOSE TO THE SUBURBS OF THE VITAL PORT.

MEANWHILE RAF AND SOUTH AFRICAN BOSTONS AND BALTIMORES PATROLLED THE ROADS CONNECTING ENNA, PALERMO, MESSINA AND RANDAZZO AND BOMBED AND SHOT UP SEVERAL LARGE CONCENTRATIONS OF VEHICLES.

A GROUP OF AMERICAN-FLOWN BOSTONS WORKING OVER THE NETWORK OF ROADS LEADING NORTH FROM THE CAPTURED TOWN OF AGRIGENTO SHOT UP A CONVOY OF 150 VEHICLES. THIS ACTION WAS ALONG THE LINE OF THE DEEP AMERICAN PENETRATION OF CENTRAL SICILY FROM AGRIGENTO.

AMERICAN MITCHELLS BLASTED RANDAZZO WITH 24 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES AND PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWED NUMEROUS DIRECT HITS ON A RAIL SIDING ON THE SOUTHWEST CORNER OF THE TOWN. RANDAZZO IS THE KEY POINT OF ENEMY COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN CATANIA AND WESTERN SICILY.

LIEUT.J.P.SMITH OF WENATCHEE, WASH., SAID: "I SAW A STICK OF BOMBS EXPLODE RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF THE RAILROAD SIDING." LIEUT. WALTER L.MATES OF 156 WALNUT ST., SOMERVILLE, MASS., ADDED: "OUR BOMB PATTERN WAS PERFECT."

"THERE WERE JUST FOUR OF US WHO HAD BEEN TOLD WHERE WE WERE GOING AND WHAT WE HAD TO DO," SAID MAJOR WARREN WHITMORE.

THE MAJOR, A BIG BLOND MAN OF 816 GARRY STREET, JACKSONVILLE, FLA.,

FLEW THE LEAD SHIP IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SECOND WAVE OF FORTRESSES THAT WENT OVER ROME.

HE KNEW THE DESTINATION AND SO DID CAPT. BOB ELLIOT OF LOS ANGELES, WHOSE SECOND IN COMMAND, THE NAVIGATOR, AND THE BOMBARDIER WERE THE OTHER TWO WHO WERE IN ON THE SECRET.

BEFORE THEY TOOK OFF THE MAJOR TOLD THE REST OF THE CREW ABOUT THEIR MISSION.

"WE WERE DARNED UNEASY," HE SAID. "WE FIGURED IT WAS A CINCH WE WOULD GET SHOT UP PRETTY BADLY BECAUSE WE THOUGHT THEY WOULD BE EXPECTING US AND THERE WOULD BE LOTS OF FIGHTERS AND LOTS OF FLAK AROUND.

"AT LEAST THAT'S WHAT I WAS WORRYING ABOUT.

"THE OTHER BOYS WERE MORE CONCERNED ABOUT THE RELIGIOUS ANGLES. THEY DIDN'T WANT ANY PART OF THAT TARGET. PERSONALLY, I DIDN'T FEEL THAT WAY.

THEIR ACTIVITY WAS SO RUINOUS THAT THE FIELD WAS COMPLETELY UNUSABLE BEFORE THE LANDING DAY, AND THE AXIS HAD BEEN FORCED TO BASE ITS DWINDLING AERIAL STRENGTH ON SICILIAN AND MAINLAND BASES FARTHER REMOVED FROM THE LANDING AREA.

THE FIRST AMERICAN TROOPS TO REACH THE COMISO FIELD FOUND IT STREWN WITH THE BODIES OF GERMAN SOLDIERS, POCK-MARKED WITH HUGE BOMB CRATERS AND LITTERED WITH THE WRECKAGE OF FROM 75 TO 100 AXIS PLANES.

THE LATEST ADDITIONS TO THIS TOLL WERE TWO GERMAN STUKAS FLOWN BY ITALIANS WHO APPROACHED THE FIELD FOR EMERGENCY LANDINGS IN THE MISTAKEN BELIEF THAT IT STILL WAS HELD BY THE AXIS. AMERICAN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNNERS SENT THEM SMASHING TO EARTH.

THE MOST UNHAPPY SOLDIERS IN SICILY ARE NOT THE DEFEATED AXIS TROOPS, BUT THOUSANDS OF VICTORIOUS CANADIANS, BROKEN-HEARTED BECAUSE THEY HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO GET THE FLEEING ENEMY TO STOP AND FIGHT.

THEY HAD SHEARED THROUGH COAASTAL FORTIFICATIONS AND MARCHED THROUGH ISPICA, MODICA AND RAGUSA, THE LATTER A TOWN OF 40,000 POPULATION, AND CAPTURED MORE THAN 3,000 PRISONERS, BUT THEIR SUCCESS ONLY AGGRAVATED THEIR DISCONTENT. EIGHTH U.S. AIR FORCE ORIENTATION CENTER, JULY 19-(AP)-PRETTY PRIVATE MARION KING, OF WEST HARTFORD, CONN., FORMER SECRETARY TO AN INSURANCE EXECUTIVE, NOW ENROUTE TO BRITAIN WITH THE WAAC EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, HAS PARODIED SEVERAL POPULAR SONGS.

AND HERE'S THE FIRST VERSE OF WHAT WAACS ARE SINGING TO THE TUNE OF "WHEN YOU WORE A TULIP:"

"WHEN WE WERE CIVILIANS OUR NAILS WERE VERMILION,

"OUR THOUGHTS WERE ON PROMS AND BEAUX.

"WITH LONG FLOWING TRESSES AND BRIGHT COLORED DRESSES,

"HOW WE LOVED OUR NYLON HOSE.

"AND NOW WE'RE IN KHAKI BUT WHEN WE COME BACK,

"WE WILL POWDER OUR SHINY NOSE---

"LET'S GET ON NOW TO DOVER AND HELP GET THIS OVER AND COME BACK TO FEMININE CLOTHES."

"I FOUND OUT THAT THE BEST WAY TO HANDLE A SITUATION IN THE ARMY IS TO WRITE A SONG ABOUT IT," SAID MARION.

WAACS COMING OVER HAD A TOUGH SITUATION TO HANDLE, TOO. THE SHIP'S CAPTAIN AND TROOP COMMANDER WERE DUBIOUS ABOUT WAACS ABOARD AND HAD THE WOMEN QUARTERED ON ONE DECK WITH THE MEN SOLDIERS ON THE DECK ABOVE AND DECK BELOW THEM. BUT NEVER WERE THEY DESTINED TO MEET.

TO THE TUNE OF "BELL BOTTOM TROUSERS," MARION TOLD THE STORY. ONE VERSE SAID:

"BUT LOVE WILL FIND AN ANSWER TO EVERY HINDRANCE.

"AND OBSTACLES WILL ONLY ADD FLAVOR TO ROMANCE,

"SOON BOYS WERE FISHING; THEY TOOK THE SPORT EN MASSE---

"AND WHAT BOYS WERE CATCHING WAS NEITHER TROUT NOR BASS."

THE SONG TOLD THAT MEN ON THE UPPER DECK WERE DROPPING NOTES BY FISHING LINES TO GIRLS ON THE LOWER DECK AND THEY IN TURN TO MEN ON THE DECK BELOW THEM WAS SUNG BY WAACS AT SHIP ENTERTAINMENTS.

"THE CAPTAIN SENT FOR ME AND ASKED FOR A COPY OF THE SONG," SAID MARION. "HE ALSO ASKED FOR A PERFORMANCE BY THE WAAC TRIO. SHORTLY AFTERWARD THE MEN AND GIRLS WERE PERMITTED TO MEET IN THE LOUNGE WHERE THEY COULD PLAY CARDS AND GET SOFT DRINKS FOR A FEW HOURS IN THE EVENINGS."

"I'M HAPPY, I'M HAPPY," PVT. MAURICE GATELY OF NEW YORK EXPLAINED. "I JUST SAW A GIRL--RUTH HAVENS, OF HORNELL, N.Y.---I USED TO GO WITH BACK IN THE STATES. AND IS SHE CUTE."

"YOU'VE GOT NOTHING ON ME," SHOUTED ANOTHER M.P., SGT. GILBERT BURTON, ANDERSON, S.C. "I'VE JUST SEEN A GIRL I KNOW--BETTY HAMILTON OF WEST PALM BEACH, FLA."

WITH THE DRUM MAJOR, SGT. THURMAN WILSON OF NEWBURN, N.C., SWINGING HIS BATON, THE BAND, ITS BRASS SHINING LIKE MIRRORS, MET THE WAACS AND LED THEM TO THE BARRACKS. THEN THE BAND STOOD OUTSIDE AND UNDER THE DIRECTION OF CORP. PETER BUONCONSIGLIO, NEW BRUNSWICK, CHAPLIN C.G.STRIPPLY, WOOLASTON, MASS., STOOD BY WATCHING GRINNING SOLDIERS UNLOAD THE WAACS BARRACKS BAGS FROM A TRUCK. "FIRST TIME I EVER SAW SOLDIERS DOING THAT AND NOT GRUMBLING," HE SAID.

THE ORIENTATION CENTER GOT ALL POLISHED UP FOR A RECEPTION FOR THE GIRLS. SOME PLOTS OF GROUND HAD JUST BEEN SODDED. SAID MAJOR ROBERT W. GREEN, BIRMINGHAM, ALA., IN CHARGE OF ARRANGEMENTS:

"WE HAVEN'T DONE ANYTHING FOR THESE GIRLS THAT WE DON'T DO FOR THE MEN."

"OH, YEAH? SINCE WHEN HAS THE U.S. ARMY PUT FLOWERS IN BIG VASES AND LITTLE VASES ON THE TABLES, MANTLE, AND WINDOW SILLS OF THE OFFICERS' SITTING ROOM?" HE WAS ASKED.

THAT QUESTION WAS ANSWERED BY HIS ADMISSION THAT THE SITTING ROOM WAS JUST FURNISHED THE DAY BEFORE.

THE GIRLS HAD A WIDE VARIETY OF FORMER OCCUPATIONS. SGT. FLORENCE IRWIN, NORTH HOLLYWOOD, CALIF., WAS A CAKE DECORATOR AND PVT. NINA PORTRIDGE A DRESS DESIGNER AT LOS ANGELES. PVT. JENNIE G. JOHNSON, MIAMI, FLA., WHOSE HUSBAND IS A MAJOR, IS A RETIRED OPERA SINGER. MANY HAVE BEEN TEACHERS, LIKE CAPT. HALLAREN. PVT. MILDRED H. ALLEN, ROANOKE, VA., WAS A HOSTESS IN A COFFEE SHOP. SOME, LIKE PVT. ELIZABETH B. GABLE, PHILADELPHIA, HAD NOT WORKED BEFORE. PVT. JEANETTE LECLAIR, WOLSEY, S.D., WAS A LINOTYPE OPERATOR. THERE ARE NUMEROUS TELEPHONE OPERATORS LIKE CORP. LOIS C. JONES, SAN ANTONIO, TEX. OTHERS CAME FROM SECRETARIAL JOBS AND FACTORIES.

A FEW, LIKE PFC. BONETA F. PAULMAMUS, WHO WAS AT PEARL HARBOR DURING THE JAPANESE ATTACK, ONCE OWNED THEIR OWN BUSINESSES.

EVERY STATE IS REPRESENTED. OHIO, WITH 62, HAS THE LARGEST NUMBER, NEW YORK NEXT WITH 54 AND PENNSYLVANIA THIRD WITH 46. FROM ILLINOIS THERE ARE 36, CALIFORNIA 35, TEXAS 19. PFC. SYLVIA GILBERTSON OF GRAND FORKS, N.D., KEPT HER STATE FROM BEING LEFT OUT.

"THE WAACS DRILL LIKE A PICKED BUNCH," SAID COL. HOLLAND, "BUT CAPT. WILSON AND CAPT. DIXON INSIST THEY ARE NOT." CAPT. DIXON, ITHACA, N.Y., AT 25 IS THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE BATTALIONS.

MANY, LIKE PFC. PAULMAMUS, ARE MARRIED TO MEN IN THE SERVICES. OTHERS, LIKE PFC. ROSALIE JONES, 23, BALTIMORE, MD., HAVE BOTH HUSBANDS AND BROTHERS IN THE SERVICE.

IN THE GIRLS' BARRACKS THE NEXT MORNING THERE WERE ALREADY NUMEROUS PHOTOGRAPHS OF FIANCES AND BOY FRIENDS IN UNIFORM.

IN THE BATTALION THERE ARE TWO SISTERS--PFC. NANCY S. LOVELL, 28, AND PFC. MYRTICE SMITH, 30, ATLANTA, GA. SINCE HER DAUGHTERS WENT OFF TO WAR, THEIR MOTHER, MRS. J.P. SMITH, HAS CLOSED HER HOME AND LIVES WITH A SISTER IN CEDARTOWN, GA.

PFC. NANCY WATT, 22, PITTSBURGH, PA., YOUNGEST OF 10 CHILDREN, JOINED THE WAACS BECAUSE SHE THOUGHT THAT WITH ONLY ONE BROTHER, CORP. WILLIAM S. WATT, IN THE SERVICE, THAT WAS NOT ENOUGH REPRESENTATION FOR THE FAMILY.

"NOW I HAVE A SISTER LAURA IN THE WAACS," SAID PFC. VIVIAN HARRIS, 21, OF CHICAGO, ILL., AND HOUSTON, TEX., BELIEVED TO BE THE YOUNGEST

IN THE BATTALION.

JUL 20 1943

"GRANDMA" CONKLIN--PFC. MARGARET CONKLIN OF SUSANVILLE, CALIF.--AT 43 IS AMONG THE OLDEST BUT DECIDEDLY ONE OF THE YOUNGEST GRANDMOTHERS ANYWHERE. SHE HAS SIX CHILDREN AND SIX GRANDCHILDREN.

THE WAACS HAD A SAFE JOURNEY OVER. CAPT. HALLAREN SAID THE TRANSPORT COMMANDER LOOKED WITH A JAUNDICED EYE WHEN THE WAACS BOARDED THE SHIP. HE FEARED THE WOMEN WOULD BE A LOT OF TROUBLE. BUT WHEN THE WAACS MANNED THE SHIP'S SWITCHBOARD, HELPED WITH STENOGRAPHIC WORK AND AIDED IN GETTING THE PAYROLL OUT, HE BECAME A CONVERT TO THE VALUE OF WOMEN SOLDIERS.

FEW GOT SEASICK. THEY LIVED EIGHT TO EIGHTEEN IN A CABIN. THEY MANAGED TO HAVE A LIVELY TIME. GIRLS WERE QUARTERED ON ONE DECK WITH MEN SOLDIERS ON THE DECK ABOVE AND THE DECK BELOW.

"WE CALLED OURSELVES THE WAAC SANDWICH," LAUGHED PVT. MARION KING, 29, HARTFORD, CONN., WHO WROTE WAAC PARODIES ON TWO SONGS TO THE TUNES OF "WHEN YOU WORE A TULIP" AND "BELL BOTTOM TROUSERS."

THE LATTER SONG KIDDED THE SHIP'S CAPTAIN FOR KEEPING NAUGHTY SOLDIER BOYS AWAY FROM THE TANTALIZING WAACS, BUT DISCLOSED THAT ROMANCE WAS BLOOMING JUST THE SAME AS BOYS FROM THE UPPER DECKS RIGGED UP FISHING LINES AND DROPPED OVER NOTES AND THE WAACS DID THE SAME. THE WAACS SANG IT AT ENTERTAINMENTS ABOARD SHIP AND THE CAPTAIN AND TROOP COMMANDER FINALLY ARRANGED FOR THE GIRLS AND MEN TO HAVE PARTIES.

WHILE IN THE STAGING AREA THE WAACS USED PAINT LEFT OVER FROM STENCILING NUMBERS ON THE BARRACKS BAGS TO PAINT NICKNAMES ON THE BACK OF THEIR "ZOOT SUITS"--ARMY FATIGUE SUITS. THEN THEY SNEAKED THEIR OFFICERS' "ZOOT SUITS" AND LABELLED THEM. CAPT. HALLAREN'S SAYS "CAPT. PEE-WEE."

AS SOON AS THE WAACS REACHED ORIENTATION, THEY WERE GIVEN A HOT SUPPER OF PORK CHOP, AMERICAN FRIEND POTATOES, STEWED TOMATOES, BEET RELISH, RYE BREAD, BUTTER, STEWED PEACHES AND COFFEE. THEIR APPETITES MADE THREE CHAPS WHO HAD WORKED ESPECIALLY HARD PREPARING FOOD BEAM. THEY PVT. CHESTER CLEM, COALGOOD, KY., FORMER COAL MINER, PVT. JACK ETHERIDGE, WINONA, MISS., AND PVT. LOUIS DEL MONICO, TROY, N. Y., WHO HAD WORKED IN HIS UNCLE'S RESTAURANT.

THE WAACS WERE UP AT 6:40. THEY HAD IMPORTANT JOBS TO DO--WASH THEIR HAIR, THEIR CLOTHES, GET THEIR SUITS PRESSED. AND IMMEDIATELY THEY STARTED WRITING LETTERS.

WHILE IN ORIENTATION THE WAACS, LIKE INCOMING MEN, ARE GIVEN TALKS ON SECURITY AND IN THEIR CASE SPECIAL TRAINING IN CERTAIN PHASES OF COMMUNICATIONS AND OTHER WORK THEY WILL DO. COL. HOLLAND OPENED THE COURSE BY TELLING THE WAACS THEY HAD MADE A SPLENDID IMPRESSION.

CAPT. W.E. SEAMAN, CHICAGO, SECURITY OFFICER, REMINDED THEM THEY WERE BUT A FEW MINUTES FROM THE FRONT LINES BY BOMBER. HE STRESSED THAT THEY WERE NOT TO DISCUSS MILITARY INFORMATION.

HE WARNED THERE ARE GERMAN AGENTS PICKING UP BITS OF MILITARY INFORMATION. "WE PICKED UP TWO--AND", HE SAID IT SLOWLY AND EMPHATICALLY, "THEY CONFESSED THEY WERE GETTING INFORMATION ON

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE WRENS AND WAAFS STATIONED IN THE VICINITY AND BRITISH NAVAL AND AIR FORCE OFFICERS CAME IN FOR RETREAT. IT WAS THE FIRST TIME THAT AMERICAN WOMEN SOLDIERS FORMALLY TOOK PART IN CEREMONIES ATTENDING THE LOWERING OF THE STARS AND STRIPES AT SUNDOWN IN BRITAIN.

THE WAAF BAND MARCHED SIDE BY SIDE WITH THE AMERICAN BAND THAT HAD MET THE WAACS. IT WAS HIGHLY AMUSING TO SPECTATORS TO WATCH THE AMERICAN DRUM MAJOR, SGT. WILSON, STRUT AND TWIRL HIS BATON TO KEEP THE TALL, LOVELY BLONDE WAAF DRUM MAJOR, SGT. JOYCE GREEN, FROM STEALING HONORS AMONG THE WAAFS.

PRESENT WAS FLIGHT OFFICER DAPHNE PEARSON, FIRST BRITISH WOMAN TO RECEIVE THE GEORGE CROSS. THE BRITISH WOMEN COMPLIMENTED THE WAACS ON THEIR MARCHING AND THE WAACS KNEW, AS ONLY WOMEN KNOW, THAT THEY WERE BEING WATCHED BY CRITICAL THOUGH FRIENDLY FEMININE EYES AFTER SEVERAL WAAFS AND WRENS SAID:

"HOW WE ENVY YOU YOUR RAYON STOCKINGS."

THAT NIGHT ORIENTATION HAD ITS FIRST GIRL-BOY SOLDIER DANCE IN THE AUDITORIUM. LIEUT. VICTOR H. DEROUX-DAUPHIN, NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y., WHO HAD HIS OWN ORCHESTRA BACK HOME, DIRECTED THE ORCHESTRA. PVT. GERTRUDE BLUE, ORLANDO, FLA., SANG SOLOS.

THE DANCERS, ESPECIALLY PVT. LAURETTA BAPTISTA, 24, PETALUMA, CALIF., AND PVT. PHILIP GUIDO, CHICAGO, WERE GIVING AN EXHIBITION OF THE VERY LATEST JITTERBUG STEPS. WATCHING WISTFULLY FROM THE SIDELINES WERE PFC. ROBERT RAUSCH, 21, PITTSBURGH, PA., AND PFC. PAUL EGBERT, 27, MARIETTA, OKLA. THEY WERE ON DUTY AS M.P.'S, AND PAUL HAD SEEN A GIRL, PVT. JANETTE BALTHROP, FROM HIS HOME TOWN.

THE DANCE BROKE UP, AS MILITARY DANCES DO HERE, WITH THE PLAYING OF "GOD SAVE THE KING" AND THE "STAR SPANGLED BANNER." STANDING SIDE BY SIDE AND BEAUTIFULLY AT ATTENTION WERE PFC. FRANK FEKETE, 23, ELYRIA, O., AND PVT. LYDIA WEIMER, 23--BOY AND GIRL SOLDIERS OVERSEAS.

CAIRO, JULY 19-(AP)-UP TO A LATE HOUR TONIGHT NO AIRCRAFT WHICH BOMBED ROME FROM THIS AREA WERE REPORTED LOST ON THE MISSION, ALTHOUGH SEVERAL LANDED AND REFUELLED AT BASES OTHER THAN THEIR OWN.

CAIRO--SECOND ADD NIGHT LEAD ROME BOMBERS X X X AIR FORCES.

THE ELEMENT OF THE BOMBING FORMATION LED BY MC CAIN AND ONE LED BY FIRST LIEUT. BRIAN I.W. FLAVELLE OF WEST CALDWELL, N.J., FLYING THE SHIP "ZERO ZERO," REACHED THE ITALIAN CAPITAL NECK AND NECK.

AS THEY ARRIVED OVER ROME THEY SAW THE LAST OF THE FLYING FORTRESSES OF THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN STRATEGICAL AIR FORCE WINGING TOWARDS TUNIS.

FIRE UPON FIRE DOTTED THE TARGET AREA AND ROME WAS BILLOWING SMOKE, THEY SAID.

"WE HAD BEEN SO CAREFULLY BRIEFED THAT WE COULD MAKE OUT OUR OWN TARGETS AND OTHER MILITARY OBJECTIVES FROM QUITE A DISTANCE," SAID FLAVELLE. "THE FORTS HAD ALREADY PLASTERED THEIR TARGETS AND WE TOOK CARE OF OUR OWN. SO FAR AS I COULD TELL NOT A SINGLE BOMB FELL ON ANY PLACE WE HAD BEEN TOLD NOT TO LET THEM FALL."

FIRST LIEUT. DON N.GEKAS OF LOWELL, MASS., BOMBARDIER, SAID HIS

FIRST LIEUT. D.LEAR OF HOUSTON, TEX., SAID THAT WHEN HIS SECTION LEFT ITS TARGET ROME WAS "REALLY BURNING."

THE "LARGE FORCE" OF LIBERATORS WHICH CONCENTRATED ON THE LITTORIO RAILWAY YARDS ARRIVED OVER THEIR TARGET SHORTLY AFTER NOON WHEN THE RAID HAD BEEN IN PROGRESS ABOUT AN HOUR, A COMMUNIQUE FROM MAJOR GEN. LEWIS H.BRERETON'S HEADQUARTERS SAID. THEY BOMBED THE YARDS FOR NEARLY 75 MINUTES.

"THE FIRST 12 PLANES TO RETURN TO THEIR LIBYAN BASE REPORTED A CONCENTRATION OF DIRECT HITS ON THE MARSHALLING YARDS AND PETROL-BEARING TRAINS AND WIDESPREAD DAMAGE THROUGHOUT TO RAIL COMMUNICATIONS," THE COMMUNIQUE ADDED.

THE FACT THAT NO CHALLENGING AXIS PLANES HAD ARISEN AFTER ROME HAD BEEN UNDER ATTACK FOR AN HOUR ATTESTED TO THE EFFECTIVENESS OF OTHER AMERICAN RAIDERS PUMMELING THE BIG CAIMPINO AIRDROME IN THE ROME ENVIRONS. 4

LIEUT. DONALD B. HURD OF THE "LIBERANDOS GROUP," VETERAN HEAVY BOMBARDMENT FORMATION WHICH LED THE MID-EAST SECTION OF THE RAID, PILOTING THE "PEGGIE ANNE," RETURNED TO ANOTHER BASE TO RE-FUEL AND THUS WAS NOT WITH OTHERS WHO SAT DOWN FIRST TO TEA AT A LIBYAN BASE.

THE FIRST SIX PLANES AND PILOTS TO LAND AT THE BASE AND THEIR PILOTS WERE: "WASH TUB," (CORRECT) LIEUT. MCCAIN; "PERDIEM TWO," LIEUT. ROBERT H. STOZ OF OMAHA, NEB.; "ZERO ZERO," LIEUT. FLAVELLE; "THE GREMLIN," LIEUT MYROUR CONN, COLONGA, CALIF; "PATCHES," PILOTED BY LIEUT. DON O'SULLIVAN OF MEDFORD, CALIF, AND "BENGASI EXPRESS," LIEUT. LYLE T. RYAN OF CHICAGO, ILL.

THE RAID WAS THE 53RD SUCCESSFUL MISSION OVER ENEMY TERRITORY FOR THE "PATCHES."

THE "PEGGIE ANNE," WHICH WAS NAMED AFTER THE DAUGHTER OF COLONEL KEITH COMPTOM, THE GROUP'S COMMANDING OFFICER, HAD LIEUT. FRANK E. WRIGHT OF MELROSE, MASS., AS CO-PILOT, AND LIEUT. KERMIT HANSEN OF HARTLEY, IOWA, AS BOMBARDIER.

THE HONOR OF MAKING THE FIRST REPORT OF THE SUCCESS OF THE MISSION WENT TO TECHNICAL SERGEANT STEPHEN S. SEVICK, PITTSBURGH, PA., RADIO OPERATOR ON THE LEADING SHIP.

HE WIRELESSED BACK, "BOMBS GONE 1355 O'CLOCK," (1:55 P.M.).

LIEUT. CHARLES MACKENZIE OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., NAVIGATOR ON A LIBERATOR, SAID "I SAW BOMBS GO IN DIAGONALLY ACROSS THE TARGET. ENGINE REPAIR SHIPS, YARDS AND HANGARS AT A NEARBY AIRFIELD ALL SEEMED TO ERUPT. I SAW A ROUND HOUSE BLOW UP ALL OVER THE PLACE. THEY'LL NEVER USE THAT AGAIN. JUST THEN AN ENEMY PURSUIT PLANE CAME UP AND I HAD WORK TO DO."

FEW ENEMY FIGHTERS WERE SPOTTED ON THE WHOLE MISSION AND THE RETURNING CREWS SAID THE FIGHTERS "SEEMED UNWILLING TO COME IN."

LIEUT. FRANK D. SLOUGH OF NEBRASKA, WAS FORCED TO TURN BACK WHEN ONLY 45 MINUTES FROM THE TARGET.. HE SAID HE WAS DISAPPOINTED, THAT HE MANAGED TO FIND A USEFUL TARGET NEAR PALERMO WHERE HE DROPPED HIS BOMB LOAD ON A RAILWAY BRIDGE.

COLONEL WILLIS BEIGHTAL OF WEBSTER CITY, IOWA, REPORTED ON HIS RETURN THAT THERE WAS A DAZZLING DISPLAY OF ACK-ACK AS THE LIBERATORS WINGED THEIR WAY FROM THE COAST TO ROME AND BACK.

"IT JUST CAME UP ALL AROUND US, EXPLODED AND SPARKLED IN THE SUNLIGHT," HE SAID. "IT LOOKED LIKE SILVER LEAFLETS ALL AROUND US."

MAJOR JOHN A. BROOKS, WHOSE FATHER HEADS THE SEIRRA ORDNANCE DEPOT AT HURLONG, CALIF., PILOTED THE LAST MID-EAST LIBERATOR OVER THE ROME TARGET.

"I TOOK ALL PRECAUTIONS," MAJOR BROOKS SAID," TO MAKE SURE OUR BOMBS HIT THE TARGET. "I HAD TO. FOR A WEEK I'D BEEN TELLING THE BOYS HOW TO DO IT. I HAD TO MAKE AN EXAMPLE."

MAJOR BROOKS REPORTED HIS CREWMEN COULD SEE FLAMES AS FAR AS 60 MILES OUT TO SEA ON THE HOMEWARD JOURNEY.

AN AMERICAN WIRELESS OPERATOR FLYING OVER ROME TUNED IN TO A BRITISH BROADCASTING CORPORATION STATION AND HEARD AN OFFICIAL COMMENTATOR SAYING THAT ROME WAS BEING BOMBED. HE WAS STAFF SERGEANT HEARNE, 25, OF TEXAS. AFTER LISTENING TO THE BBC, HEARNE TUNED INTO A GERMAN NEWS BROADCAST IN ENGLISH AND HEARD THE ANNOUNCER SAY THAT THE VATICAN WAS IN RUINS AND THAT ALL ROME'S TREASURES WERE RAZED TO THE GROUND. AS HE LISTENED HE GAVE A RUNNING COMMENTARY TO THE REST OF THE CREW.

HEARNE SAID LATER THE TRIP TOOK TEN HOURS IN PERFECT FLYING WEATHER.

ALTOGETHER, THE MISSION TOOK THE MID-EAST LIBERATORS 2,000 MILES. CREWMEN WORE OXYGEN MASKS FOR LONGER THAN ON ANY PREVIOUS MISSION IN THIS THEATER, FLYING AT HIGH ALTITUDES ALL THE WAY EXCEPT FOR THE TARGET RUNS.

CAPTAIN R. H. PHILIPS, 23, OF EVANSVILLE, IND., WHO LED ONE AMERICAN GROUP, PREVIOUSLY HAD FLOWN 14 TIMES OVER GERMANY FROM ENGLAND. THE ROME RAID WAS "SWEET," HE SAID, WITH FLAK INACCURATE AND FIGHTERS MAKING NO ATTEMPT TO INTERCEPT.

ONE NAVIGATOR SAID "IT'S ABOUT TIME MUSSOLINI BROUGHT HIS FIDDLE AND STARTED TO PLAY."

A SENIOR OFFICER OF THE USAAF WHO TOOK PART IN THE RECENT NAPLES RAID SAID "I HOPE AMERICA IS NEVER BOMBED THE WAY WE'VE BEEN BOMBING ITALY."

THE NAVIGATOR-PHOTOGRAPHER ON THE LAST AIRCRAFT TO LEAVE THE TARGET LAY FLAT ON HIS STOMACH AND PHOTOGRAPHED THE AREA THROUGH THE OPEN BOMB BAY. HE MADE 20 PICTURES.

"THE AXIS CAN'T LIE ABOUT THIS ONE," HE SAID. "THESE PICTURES WILL PROVE OUR BOMBING WAS ACCURATE AND THAT ONLY MILITARY TARGETS WERE HIT."

UP TO A LATE HOUR MONDAY NIGHT NO LIBERATORS WERE REPORTED MISSING FROM THE ROME OPERATION, ALTHOUGH SOME AIRCRAFT HAD LANDED AT OTHER THAN THEIR HOME BASE TO REFUEL.

FORMATIONS OF HURRICANES SANK OR DESTROYED 34 JAPANESE SAMPANS AND DAMAGED MANY OTHER CRAFT IN LOW LEVEL ATTACKS ON SHIPPING ON THE KALADAN RIVER, WHILE BEAUFIGHTERS ON OFFENSIVE PATROL BLASTED ROLLING STOCK BETWEEN MENYWA AND SAIGAING, LEAVING MANY LOCOMOTIVES AND FREIGHT CARS DAMAGED.

TROOP POSITIONS NEAR MAUNGDAW AND AT KALEMYO IN THE CHIN HILLS AREA WERE ALSO BOMBED. ALL BRITISH PLANES RETURNED SAFELY TO THEIR BASES.

HE PADDLED ALL ONE DAY AND NIGHT IN AN ATTEMPT TO REACH KOLOMBANGARA, BUT TIDES AND CURRENT PUSHED HIM AND HIS COMPANIONS STEADILY AWAY AND FINALLY OUT OF SIGHT OF THE BIG ISLAND TO THE NORTHWEST OF KULA GULF.

HE AND BOLES SAID THAT WHAT RAFTS THE PARTY HAD WERE QUICKLY WATERLOGGED.

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

- - - JUL 20 1943

THIS 202ND WEEK OF THE HITLERIAN ATTEMPT TO CONQUER THE WORLD FINDS THE UNITED NATIONS HOLDING A VICTORIOUS INITIATIVE RIGHT AROUND THE GLOBE, AND TAKING SO WELL FOR THEM THAT BRITISH PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL ADMITS HE IS "ALMOST AFRAID TO SAY HOW WELL."

THE BOMBING OF MILITARY OBJECTIVES IN THE ETERNAL CITY OF ROME IS A SIGNAL OF ALLIED DETERMINATION, AND A GRIM WARNING TO SUPPORTERS OF MUSSOLINI AND HIS GANGSTER ILK THAT "ALL THEY THAT TAKE THE SWORD SHALL PERISH WITH THE SWORD."

THE INVASION OF SICILY PROCEEDS LIKE THE TICKING OF A CLOCK, AND THE ALLIES HAVE ESTABLISHED A SECURE LINE ACROSS THE SOUTHEASTERN THIRD OF THE ISLAND.

THE AMAZING RUSSIANS, HAVING STOPPED THE NAZI OFFENSIVE, ARE CONTINUING TO SURGE FORWARD IN A COUNTER DRIVE WHICH ALREADY IS THREATENING THE MAIN ENEMY BASE IN THE STRATEGIC CITY OF OREL ON THE CENTRAL FRONT BELOW MOSCOW.

IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC WE HAVE CONTINUED TO WEAKEN THE JAP AIR AND NAVAL POWER. OUR TROOPS ARE DRAWING IN ABOUT THE STRONG BASE OF MUNDA. WE ARE GETTING AHEAD WITH THE JOB OF LOOSENING THE ENEMY HOLD ON THAT WHOLE VAST ISLAND AREA.

IT'S A HIGHLY INTERESTING CIRCUMSTANCE THAT HITLER AND HIS ILLUSTRIOUS PREDECESSOR IN WORLD-BEATING, KAISER (ME UND GOTT") WILHELM, ARRIVED AT CRUCIAL DEFENSIVE POSITIONS AT ABOUT THE SAME PERIOD IN THEIR CAMPAIGNS. ACTUALLY ADOLF IS A BIT BEHIND THE EMPEROR'S SCHEDULE.

WORLD WAR ONE LASTED 4 YEARS, 3 MONTHS AND 2 WEEKS. THE FUEHRER HAS ABOUT FIVE MONTHS TO RUN TO EQUAL THAT.

ANOTHER NOTABLE POINT FOR THE NAZI CHIEF'S CONSIDERATION IS THAT THE OLD KAISER CAME WITHIN A SPLIT HAIR OF WINNING THE WAR IN HIS GREAT OFFENSIVE ON THE WESTERN FRONT IN MARCH OF 1918. THAT WAET CV

ID2,

JUL 20 1943

GREAT OFFENSIVE ON THE WESTERN FRONT IN MARCH OF 1918. THAT WAE ABOUT NINE MONTHS BEFORE GERMANY YELLED "KAMERAD". IT CORRESPONDS ROUGHLY TO THE ALL-OUT OFFENSIVE WHICH HITLER PLANNED TO LAUNCH AGAINST RUSSIA THIS SPRING, AND FINALLY GOT AROUND TO SOME THREE WEEKS AGO--WITH UNPLEASANT RESULTS FOR HIM.

HAVING BEEN ALL BUT KNOCKED OUT, THE ALLIES OF WORLD WAR ONE MADE A MIRACULOUS COMEBACK WITH AN OFFENSIVE WHICH IN THREE MONTHS BEAT THE BOCHE.

NOW PLEASE DON'T GET THE IDEA THAT I'M TRYING TO DEMONSTRATE THAT HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF. I JUST FIND THESE COMPARISONS RATHER FASCINATING.

HITLER AT THIS JUNCTURE WOULD SEEM TO BE IN A POSITION SIMILAR TO THAT OF THE KAISER IN THE LATTER'S FINAL FEW MONTHS OF THE WAR. THAT IS TO SAY, THE EMPEROR WAS TERRIBLY SHORT OF RESOURCES OF ALL SORTS, AND HE WAS BEING COMPELLED TO FIGHT ON TOO MANY FRONTS.

MANY PEOPLE REGARD HITLER AS ENGAGED ON ONLY ONE FRONT--THE RUSSIAN. ACTUALLY, HOWEVER, HE IS BATTLING ON SEVERAL "FRONTS" WHICH ARE BEGINNING TO SQUEEZE HIM HARD. HE HAS, OF COURSE, JUST BEEN DEFEATED IN ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT THEATRES OF THE WHOLE WAR--NORTH AFRICA.

SICILY ISN'T A "SECOND FRONT" IN THE GENERALLY ACCEPTED SENSE OF THAT EXPRESSION, BUT IT'S PROVIDING A DRAIN ON GERMAN RESOURCES AND

(7)

JUL 20 1943

ACTING AS A BRAKE ON THE NAZI RUSSIAN OPERATIONS. ONE OF THE MOST SERIOUS FRONTS WHICH THE FUEHRER HAS TO FACE IS THE VIOLENT ANGLO-AMERICAN AERIAL BOMBARDMENT OF HIS WAR INDUSTRIES AND COMMUNICATIONS. THE CUMULATIVE EFFECT OF THAT IS GOING TO BE MOUNTAINOUS--AND BEFORE LONGJ

THE KAISER NEVER HAD TO ENDURE SUCH LOSSES. HIS BETE NOIR WAS THE NAVAL BLOCKADE--THAT SILENT RING OF STEEL WHICH SLOWLY GARROTED GERMANY. HE ALMOST BROKE IT WITH HIS UNRESTRICTED SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN, BUT HAD TO BOW TO THE MIGHT OF THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH NAVIES.

THE NAVAL BLOCKADE ALSO IS ONE OF HITLER'S HEART-BREAKS. PROFITING BY THE KAISER'S MISTAKES, THE FUEHRER HAS TRIED TO BEST THE ALLIES ON THE SEA--AND HAS GIVEN US A TOUGH MANHANDLING--ONLY TO FIND HIMSELF BEING SWEPT FROM THE OCEANS.

THE ALLIES IN THE LAST WAR BEGAN THEIR FINAL GREAT OFFENSIVE FOUR MONTHS BEFORE THE ENEMY COLLAPSED. THE UNITED NATIONS NOW HAVE GOT UNDER WAY THE GRAND OFFENSIVE WHICH OUR PRESIDENT HAS DESCRIBED AS THE "BEGINNING OF THE END." HOW LONG WILL IT TAKE US TO TURN THE TRICK? WE CAN TELL BETTER LATER IN THE SUMMER WHEN WE FIND WHAT SORT OF CONTINENTAL INVASION THE ALLIES ARE ABLE TO INAUGURATE.

Demoralized Italian Troops Rebel Against German Officers, Non-Coms.

ENEMY TANKS BLASTED

British Take Heavy Toll of Axis Armored Units on Catania Plains.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 20.—(AP) With some Italian troops reported in mutinies against German officers and surrendering in great batches, American forces are spearing deeper inland in a mighty drive to chop Sicily in two and are fanning swiftly along the southern coast, Allied headquarters announced today.

In the east near strategic Catania, British troops shattered German tank attacks with bloody losses and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery was gathering strength for a blow to topple that seaport and perhaps carry the offensive fully sustained to Messina to seal off Sicily from the mainland.

The situation clearly was critical for the Axis.

Many Indications

"There are many indications of mutinies among Italian troops commanded by German officers," today's war bulletin declared.

German officers have been threatened or killed by Italians seeking to surrender, official reports said, and the cleavage between the bitterly-resisting Nazis and war-weary Fascists has become an inter-Axis struggle.

Germany's manpower shortage induced the Axis high command to make what now appears to have been the mistake of using Italian troops under German officers and non-coms without sufficient German privates in the same units to dominate their morale, observers said.

This was the over-all picture of invasion:

Western (American) sector: U. S. Seventh Army troops have dashed 10 miles west along the coast from Agrigento, front dispatches said.

Other units already about 30 miles inland bore a more dangerous threat, aiming at Sicily's central lifelines. From captured Caltanissetta, U. S. troops with Canadian forces are throwing a pincers upon Enna, key of the island's inner defense astride main highways and railroads east and west. The Americans also may be thrusting northwest, toward Palermo only 60 airline miles distant on the northwest coast.

Hundreds of Prisoners

"United States troops continue to push forward in the central and western sectors," headquarters said, taking prisoners by the hundreds and meeting "almost total lack of resistance."

Central (Canadian) sector: Driving north of Piazza Armerina upon Enna, Canadian troops struck strong opposition from the German 15th Armored division, but "continue to fight their way forward."

Eastern (British) sector: Outside the very gates to Catania, waves of desperate German tank attacks were blasted on the rolling plains with heavy losses to the Nazi units, including the Goering Grenadier regiment, parachute troops and infantry.

The famous British Eighth army is "gathering strength and armored patrols are probing the defenses," said headquarters ,and observers here said General Montgomery apparently was getting a firm grip on Catania plain as a springboard for a gigantic jump against Messina.

Crusher Attack is Readied

The communique's wording indicated that the methodical, thorough General Montgomery was readying a typical crusher assault by tanks, artillery and infantry. His objective would be not only the battered seaport of Catania only three miles ahead of him, but a pell-mell rush 50 miles up the coast to Messina, some military quarters said.

The Germans were fighting as though with the realization that on this battle depended the fate of Sicily. Catania is the last great natural stronghold below Messina.

(Berlin reported fierce ,battles outside Catania in which great numbers of British parachutists were said to have been wiped out.)

Allied headquarters said the Axis forces "continued their desperate efforts to save Catania where their positions to the south of the town are protected by rivers flowing from the west across Catania plain."

The British themselves hold a strong line westward from the sea toward Ramacca.

Fourth General Seized

Prison pens swelled with more than 35,000 Axis captives to date, and a fourth Italian divisional commander has fallen into Allied hands. He is General Giulio Cesare Gotti Porcinari, leader of the 54th Napoli division. A failure in North Africa, he was sent to Sicily.

Not a single development in the first 10 days of the Sicilian campaign could be seized upon by the Italians to buoy up their morale, and they became prisoners willingly. The reports of mutinies were the clearest sign foreshadowing collapse.

It was reported that at least half of the prisoners so far taken were natives of Sicily, a fact possibly explaining the wholesale surren-

British Take Heavy Toll of Axis Armored Units on Catania Plains.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 20.—(AP) With some Italian troops reported in mutinies against German officers and surrendering in great batches, American forces are spearing deeper inland in a mighty drive to chop Sicily in two and are fanning swiftly along the southern coast, Allied headquarters announced today.

In the east near strategic Catania, British troops shattered German tank attacks with bloody losses and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery was gathering strength for a blow to topple that seaport and perhaps carry the offensive fully sustained to Messina to seal off Sicily from the mainland.

The situation clearly was critical for the Axis.

Many Indications

"There are many indications of mutinies among Italian troops commanded by German officers," today's war bulletin declared.

German officers have been threatened or killed by Italians seeking to surrender, official reports said, and the cleavage between the bitterly-resisting Nazis and war-weary Fascists has become an inter-Axis struggle.

Germany's manpower shortage induced the Axis high command to make what now appears to have been the mistake of using Italian troops under German officers and non-coms without sufficient German privates in the same units to dominate their morale, observers said.

This was the over-all picture of invasion:

Western (American) sector: U. S. Seventh Army troops have dashed 10 miles west along the coast from Agrigento, front dispatches said.

Germans Fight Bitterly

The Germans still were fighting with most determined resistance, similar to their dogged stand in April in Tunisia before the Allied offensive of overwhelming power battered through and suddenly collapsed the German will to fight.

Whether the same performance would be repeated in Sicily remained to be determined.

The German garrison in Sicily at first numbered 60,000 troops, and they are known to have suffered heavy losses.

Today's Allied communique announced the fall of Caltanissetta and Porto Empedocle. The first was captured Saturday by Americans and Porto Empedocle fell on Friday. Official announcements already had been made concerning both victories.

Italians Reported Mutinying Against Nazi Officers

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 20.—American troops are stabbing deeper into Western and Central Sicily against weakening Axis resistance by Italians reported mutinying against German officers, and British forces in the vital battale for Catania have smashed back desperate counterattacks by German tanks, it was announced today.

Allied troops were within artillery range of Enna—central Sicily stronghold commanding main roads and railroads east and west—and pounding at the gates of Catania, the prop of all eastern coast defenses.

Front dispatches said American troops had advanced 10 miles west of Agrigento on the southwest coast.

"There are many indications of mutinies by Italian troops commanded by German officers" and hundreds of Italians are surrendering to American troops striking ahead westward, the Allied communique said.

On the smoke-covered Catania Plain British, 8th Army advance guards shattered a series of Nazi tank assaults launched in desperate defense of the great seaport.

Heavy Axis Losses.

With several bridgeheads established over the network of three rivers in the Catania Plain the British stolidly held a line running from the sea westward in the direction of Ramacca. They were within at least 3 miles of Catania.

The German Goering Grenadier Regiment and Nazi parachute troops used with infantry were thrown into the continuing battle and suffered heavily, it was reported.

Some headquarters observers did not view the British pause outside Catania as a temporary check, but as a buildup for a knockout blow to carry through that port to Messina, 50 miles up the coast.

Possibly explaining the wholesale Italian surrenders and reports of mutinies, it was stated that at least half the 35,000 Axis prisoners so far captured were born in Sicily.

The United States 7th Army of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., was within 60 miles of Palermo, the leading north coast port of Sicily, and was cutting a wide swath through the heart of the enemy line, encountering "almost total lack of resistance" by Italians, an official statement said.

Sign of Ultimate Collapse.

Mutinies among the Italian units led by German officers was one of the gravest signs yet reported of ultimate Axis collapse in Sicily.

Some Italian units already reportedly have killed German commanders who tried to prevent their surrender.

Gen. Giulio Cessara Gotti Porcinari, commander of the 54th Napoli Division, has been captured, the fourth divisional commander to be taken. Gen. Porcinari had been sent back to Sicily as a failure as a field commander in Libya.

Canadian forces advancing north of Piazza Arminera were confronted by units of the resuscitated German 15th Armored Division in strong opposition, but they "continue to fight their way forward."

At Catania, Gen. B. L. Montgomery's 8th Army troops "are gathering strength, and armored patrols are probing the defenses" of Axis troops strongly established at the foot of Mount Etna to bar the narrow coastal route.

Thus in preparation was a mighty push which some observers said might reach to the Messina Strait almost as quickly as the 8th Army advanced from Cape Passero to the gates of Catania. Once Catania falls, there is no strong place for an Axis stand short of Messina. (Fierce battles in which great numbers of British parachutists were wiped out were reported by the German radio.)

Catania Bombed Again.

Catania was bombed again with one raid starting fires over a square block. Randozzo, northwest of Mount Etna and an enemy concentration point were heavily pounded by 46 tons of bombs.

Lagging at least three days behind the actual events—and from one to three days behind first official announcements—today's Allied communique reported the fall of Caltanissetta, taken on Saturday, and Porto Empedocle, which American Rangers occupied last Friday.

Nowhere on the American sector was the enemy making a determined stand and Gen. Patton's tanks and troops poured steadily ahead beyond Porto Empedocle at a pace beyond the ability of the official communique to report.

The Americans and Canadians have formed a junction after the capture of Caltanissetta, 28 miles inland, and Piazza Armerina, 15 miles east, and apparently are closing in on Enna, about 10 miles farther north, dubbed the foundation of defense of all Central Sicily.

(An unconfirmed report by the Morocco radio said these forces already had driven into Enna, and Radio France at Algiers said a general Axis retreat toward Messina in the northeastern tip of Sicily was underway.

(The Morocco radio also reported that several airfields at Gerbini, 12 miles west of Catania, had been seized by the British.

(It put the British at less than two miles from Catania.)

Try to Save Catania.

"The enemy continued their desperate efforts to save Catania where their positions to the south of the town are protected by rivers flowing from the west across Catania Plain," the war bulletin declared.

The mention of patrols stabbing into Axis defense lines indicated that Gen. Montgomery was preparing for another of his famous artillery, tank and infantry assaults which battered down so many determined Axis stands in North Africa.

The shabby record of Italian leadership in the Sicilian invasion, it was reported, probably would continue, since among Italy's commanders still directing forces in the field were Gens. Zaglio and Chirieleison, both failures in the African war.

But the Germans were fighting with backs-to-the-wall fury and for the present at least were disputing every inch of the Allied advance in their vicinities.

This performance is akin to their fiery resistance in April in Tunisia before the Allies suddenly broke through and transformed them into a retreating rabble. The original German garrison of 60,000 troops has been seriously depleted in men and armor in the 10 days of battle.

The Germans are the backbone of the determined resistance to Gen. Montgomery.

Division Breaks in Panic.

An example of Italian capitulation was witnessed by Jack Barnett, veteran movietone news cameraman, who wrote in an article for the Associated Press that an Italian division broke in panic before the American drive into Caltanisetta.

The Italians simply could not face the smashing combined infantry-artillery assault, Mr. Barnett wrote. He said he saw hundreds of Italian soldiers streaming down from hillside villages and vineyards where they had been hiding, waving their arms frantically in surrender.

In a tour of the front, Mr. Barnett reported, he encountered thousands of the surrendering enemy at road junctions, all trying to be friendly and asking for rations and cigarettes.

The Italians want to live, he wrote, and have no desire to die either for Mussolini or Germany.

Agrigento, another town stormed by the Americans, was considered by the Axis to have been impregnable, Mr. Barnett added. The city was ringed for miles by tank traps, machine-gun nests and mines imbedded in concrete. But 4,000 Italian soldiers surrendered there when the Americans hit it with everything they had—naval guns and concentrated field artillery and finally an infantry charge.

ROME RAIL YARDS IN SMOKING RUINS

Vast Littoria Center Completely Destroyed, Photographs Reveal.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 20.—(AP) Reconnaissance photographs today showed vast sections of Rome's great railway yards in twisted, smoking ruins from the terrific blasting dealt yesterday by hundreds of American bombers and the initial raid on the Italian capital was officially labeled an "outstandingly successful operation."

While more than 500 heavy and medium bombers struck the city in wave upon wave beneath a bright, midday sun, Allied communiques disclosed today that the entire two-and-a-half hour assault was carried out with the loss of only five planes.

All of the losses were suffered by Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's strategic air force, for 9th U. S. Air Force headquarters in Cairo announced that every one of the Liberator bombers participating in the raid returned safely to bases in the Middle East.

Rail Yards Destroyed

The 9th Air Force formations alone dumped nearly 330 tons of high explosives on Rome, the Cairo communique said, declaring that the Littoria railway yards were "completely destroyed."

"String after string of bombs criss-crossed the yards and photographs indicate that an area 400 yards by two miles long is a mass of twisted steel rails, gaping bomb craters and wreckage of rolling stock and buildings," said the war bulletin from the Middle East.

"An ammunition train moving through the yards received several direct hits and exploded, contributing to the destruction."

An Allied headquarters communique, which described the attack as an "outstandingly successful operation," said "very severe damage" was caused to all the targets, including the Littoria and San Lorenzo rail yards, both within the limits of the ancient city, and nearby airdromes and industrial plants.

Allied aerial chieftains, apparently pleased that the outcome of the attack surpassed expectations, were lavish in their praise of the airmen responsible for its execution.

Spaatz Lauds Performance

Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the Northwest African Air Forces, sent congratulations to General Doolittle for the success of the raid, saying:

"It is one of the many accurate attacks which your forces have carried on during the present battle, all of which had a marked significance in their successful outcome."

(Cairo dispatches quoted General Ent as saying after studying photographs of the raid:

("Photographic reconnaissance shows that the 9th Bomber Command's target at the Littoria railway yards was completely covered by our bomb pattern. Extreme damage was caused to railroad tracks, rolling stock and machine shops and particularly the marshalling hump in the center of the yards.

("It will take two years to repair the damage to the electrical system in the marshalling hump.

All Bombs in Target Areas

("The photographs also indicate two enormous explosions in the center of the yards. All bombs fell in the target areas, which included the eastern edge of the Littoria airdrome. There were no bomb bursts in the city of Rome and no damage to any civilian property other than that included within the military objectives.")

The North African communique said both ground and fighter defenses over Rome were slight, but it reported that the escorting Lightnings shot down two Axis planes. The Liberators, however, ran into intense anti-aircraft fire, the Middle East bulletin asserted. It also described the fighter opposition as feeble, however.

In addition to the devastation created in the railway yards, photographs showed that the Tabonelli steel plant and a large chemical works were blasted, that grounded aircraft and hangars were destroyed at the Ciampino airport and that the Littoria airdrome, near the rail yards, was hit hard.

While the Americans showered hundreds of tons of bombs on the Italian capital, other Allied airmen continued their support of the invading ground armies in Sicily with attacks on the enemy's dwindling defenses, believed to have been reinforced with German air units from Russia.

An authoritative source disclosed that notebooks, letters and documents found in Sicily indicated that a large number of German airmen had been withdrawn recently from the eastern front to combat the Allies, who hold almost complete mastery of the Mediterranean skies.

Catania Pounded Again

Allied bombers struck again at Catania, dropping a heavy load of explosives to soften enemy defenses ahead of the advancing British Eighth army.

American Mitchells dumped 46 tons of bombs on Randazzo, enemy communications center across Mt. Etna from Catania, and scored two direct hits on a road bridge.

Eisenhower's Pledge to Italy Of Free Nation

Invasion Message Says Nazi and Fascist Yokes Will Be Lifted From People

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 20 (AP).—General Dwight D. Eisenhower's invasion message to the people of Sicily, described by observers here as one of the most effective verbal weapons of the war, was made public officially today.

In it the Allied commander in chief promised that Italy would be restored as a free nation. The Allies were occupying Italian soil as an "inevitable part of their war to destroy the German overlordship of Europe," the message said, and pledged further that the Allies "will take the necessary steps . . . to eliminate the Fascist system in whatever territory they occupy."

The message was posted immediately after Allied landings on Sicily.

The text of the proclamation follows:

"To the people of Sicily: As commander in chief of the Allied forces I transmit this message on behalf of the governments of the United States and Great Britain.

"Allied forces are occupying Italian territory. They are doing this not as enemies of the Italian people but as an inevitable part of their war to destroy the German overlordship of Europe.

"To Restore a Free Nation"

"Their aim is to deliver the people of Italy from a Fascist regime which led them into the war, and when that has been accomplished, to restore Italy as a free nation.

"Allied forces have no intention of changing or undermining the traditional laws and customs of the Italian people. They will take necessary steps, however, to eliminate the Fascist system in whatever territory they occupy.

"Accordingly, the Fascist organization will be dissolved and its appendages, such as the Fascist militia and the so-called Youth Organization, will be abolished. Fascist doctrines and propaganda in any form will be prohibited. No political activity whatsoever shall be countenanced during the period of military government.

"In furtherance of the policies of the Allied governments proper steps will forthwith be taken to stop the operation of all laws which discriminate on the basis of race, color or creed. Freedom of religious worship will be upheld, and to the extent that military interests are not prejudiced freedom of speech and of the press will be instituted.

Tribunal Is Abolished

"Measures will be taken for the prompt release of political prisoners. The Special Tribunal for the Defense of the State will be abolished.

"The military governor of the occupied territory will take action by proclamation or otherwise to carry into effect the foregoing measures as military conditions may permit.

"These evidence the principles to which the Allies are attached and for the re-establishment of which they will relentlessly fight. They are the principles to which the Axis leaders under German domination are opposed. You will be the beneficiaries of their defeat. It is therefore to your interests as men whose fathers fought for freedom not to resist the Allied arms but to facilitate their mission—the lifting of the Nazi yoke by quick and total victory."

NAZIS IN RUSSIA SHIFTED TO SICILY

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 20 (A. P.).—An authoritative informant said today that notebooks, letters and documents found in Sicily indicate that a large number of German airmen have been drawn from the Russian front to the Mediterranean theater. He disclosed that a Royal Air Force officer found notebooks with Russian letters on their covers and some Russian dictionaries in a building previously used by German flyers as a mess-hall.

Letters left there indicate that some German pilots arrived only recently from the Eastern Front, it was said.

RAILWAY YARDS IN ROME ARE TOTAL WRECKS

ONLY FIVE BOMBERS LOST

Targets Included Steel Works and Chemical Plant— Both Damaged.

MORIN

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 20 (A. P.).—Allied headquarters described yesterday's shattering aerial assault on Rome as an "outstandingly successful operation" today and disclosed officially that more than 500 American bombers carried out the raid with a loss of five planes.

Aerial reconnaissance showed heavy damage to all targets and a Ninth United States Air Force communique from Cairo said the Littoria railroad yards "were completely destroyed.

Very severe damage was caused to the vital San Lorenzo rail yards, also within the limits of the Imperial City, while grounded aircraft and hangars were destroyed at the Rome airdrome.

The Tabonelli steel plant and a large chemical works were battered by the waves of American raiders which swept over Rome for two and a half hours, challenged by what was described officially as only slight opposition from enemy fighter planes. Two enemy interceptors were blasted out of the air by Lightning fighters which escorted the heavy and medium bombers on the war's first aerial attack on the Italian capital.

Lieut.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the Northwest African Air Forces, sent congratulations today to Major-Gen. James H. Doolittle, commander of the Strategic Air Force, for the success of the attack.

"It is one of the many accurate attacks which your forces have carried on during the present battle, all of which had a marked significance in their successful outcome," Gen. Spaatz said.

The Middle East communique said Liberators of the Ninth United States Air Force alone dumped nearly 330 tons of high explosives for their part in the mammoth assault.

"String after string of bombs crisscrossed yards, and photographs indicate that an area of 400 yards by two miles long is a mass of twisted steel rails, gaping bomb craters and wreckage of rolling stock and buildings," the bulletin declared.

Pictures Show Havoc.

The official pictures of the havoc created by the bombers showed hangars blasted or set afire and a large number of parked aircraft near by hit by fragmentation bombs. The Littoria airport, near the railway yards, also was hit hard. More than fifty of the accurately placed 500-pound bombs showered on the rail installations were said officially to have struck the Littoria rail switching yards. Roundhouses in both the Littoria and San Lorenzo yards were hit.

"An ammunition train moving through the yards received several direct hits and exploded, contributing to the destruction," said an Allied headquarters communique. It added that "a great deal of rolling stock and many railroad installations were destroyed."

The five planes lost in the attack were from the squadrons which struck from North Africa.

The Cairo communique said not a single plane was lost from the Middle East formations participating in the raid.

Rome Raiders Tell of Attack.

American flyers and observers who took part in the raid on Rome agreed today that heavy damage had been inflicted on military targets and expressed belief that few if any historic landmarks in the Eternal City had been harmed.

Thanks to perfect weather and explicit directions given the crews, the objectives were easily spotted and the bomb loads were dropped with deadly accuracy, the returning airmen said.

A graphic description of the raid was given by Associated Press Correspondent Joseph Morton, who rode in a Martin Marauder bomber with two veterans of Major-Gen. James H. Doolittle's Tokio raid. Morton's plane was near the tail end of the last echelon, he reported, and went in at an uncomfortably low altitude, giving him a chance to observe the results of the raid closely.

Saw Vatican in Sunlight.

"I could see fires coming from three legitimate military targets —two railway switching yards and an airport," Morton said. "If the Axis can produce proof that our bombers destroyed anything but military objectives, I shall be very much surprised."

"With a specially prepared target chart in front of me it was very easy to locate Littorio, San Lorenzo, the marshaling yards and other objectives," Morton said. "I could also look across the Tiber River where the Vatican basked under the warm afternoon sun, well out of the danger zone."

Lieut. Marion D. Jones of Memphis, Tenn., flying his fiftieth mission, said his formation found no difficulty in keeping away from the forbidden points.

"We thought we'd have to be very careful to hit only military objectives," he said, "but there was nothing to it. We saw Vatican City about five miles across the river from the railroads and the industrial regions."

Many of the airmen who participated were members of the Catholic faith. Some acknowledged they were worried about the religious angle, but others saw the city as a perfectly legitimate target.

Major Warren Whitmore of Jacksonville, Fla., said he was worried more about possible anti-aircraft defense than by the problem of spotting his target.

"We had been very carefully briefed, and I knew I could depend on the navigator to pinpoint our target and the bombardier to smack it on the nose," he said.

"Besides, my second in command, Bob Elliiot, is a devout Catholic, and he felt good about going, so when I saw that I just stopped worrying."

The successive waves of bombers swept inland over the capital following the snake-like Tiber River. The morning was clear and sunny, and the pilots said they had little difficulty in picking out landmarks on the way in.

On one plane over Rome the radio operator heard the British announcement of the bombing. He then tuned in on the German stations and heard an announcement in English that the Vatican had been destroyed.

No Italian Opposition.

What surprised the American flyers most was the absence of Italian aerial opposition. Some of the crews reported the presence of a few fighter planes but said that none of them attempted to intercept the raiders. Anti-aircraft fire was moderate to heavy, pilots said, but inaccurate.

"It just came up all around us, exploded and sparkled in the sunlight," said Col. Willis Beightal of Webster City, Iowa. "It looked like silver leaflets all around us."

Capt. R. H. Phillips of Evansville, Ind., veteran of fourteen flights over Germany, called the raid "sweet" with the anti-aircraft fire inaccurate, and the fighters making no effort to intercept.

HITLER SEES DUCE ON ITALIAN CRISIS

TAIT

Fuehrer Flies Across Alps in Effort to Bolster Partner's Morale.

LONDON, July 20.—(AP) Adolf Hitler flew into Italy Monday for a conference with Premier Mussolini, the Axis announced tonight, indicating the Nazis are gravely concerned over the fate of their junior partner, trembling under Allied attack.

London sources said the conference, held at an unnamed town in northern Italy, apparently was a last-minute attempt to whip up the flagging spirits of Italy, whose empire has been lost, her European soil invaded and her capital bombed.

Choice of yesterday as the meeting day was a curious one for Mussolini. While the dictators were discussing "military questions," Rome was being pounded by more than 500 bombers in the biggest raid to come Il Duce's way.

The meeting—first since the dictators conferred at Salzburg April 7-10 while the position of Tunisia was becoming serious—was not unexpected in view of recent Allied successes.

Mussolini Holds Whip Hand

The fact that Hitler went into Italy was interpreted in some quarters here as an indication that Mussolini is holding the whip hand at the moment—and the only whip Mussolini could hold over Hitler would be a threat to make a separate peace.

"If Mussolini wanted to beg for German tanks, guns and airplanes, one would have thought he would have to run to the Fuehrer's headquarters for them," one observer said. He pointed out that of their five meetings since Italy entered the war, two were held at Salzburg, in German territory, one at the Russian front and two at Brenner Pass on the German-Italian frontier.

British observers said they believed the announcements of similar German and Italian communiques that "military questions" were discussed, but then doubted whether Germany was in a position to send much help to Italy.

As soon as the terse Rome and Berlin communiques were broadcast simultaneously, Berlin commentators began threatening dire consequences for the Allies. For the moment Rome confined itself to the communique.

The DNB (German news agency) commentator in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said the dictators discussed the military situation resulting from "the desperate onslaught of huge Soviet masses against the European defensive front in the east and the Anglo-American landing attempt in the Mediterranean area."

Effects of the decisions, he said, "will be seen soon."

Military Chiefs Present

The international information bureau, a Nazi propaganda agency, said the meeting was attended by chiefs of both high commands, important military personalities and experts from both countries on the common prosecution of the war.

The bureau said Hitler flew Monday morning to the northern Italian town "accompanied by his closest military staff" and Il Duce was waiting for him and "welcomed him cordially."

The discussions, described as taking place "in a building very suited for that purpose near the town," lasted until afternoon, the broadcast said. It added that after a cordial farewell from Mussolini, Hitler returned by plane to his headquarters.

The German radio said Wednesday morning's German newspapers published the communique on the meeting without any comment.

Transocean (German) news agency's diplomatic correspondent Rudolf Fischer said vaguely:

"The brief announcement of the conference of Der Fuehrer and Il Duce in an upper Italian town emphasizes the activity of the Axis and its uniform reaction in the military and political field at a moment when such emphasis is taken by Berlin quarters as particularly significant and is recognized with the same emphatic satisfaction as the attitude of the Italian population under the Anglo-American bombing raids.

"Comprehensive Answer"

"Competent quarters x x x with particular emphasis point out that x x x the Hitler-Mussolini conference is a comprehensive answer to Anglo-American attempts at shaking the structure of the Axis and at anticipating military successes which Italy's opponents still have a long way to go to attain.

"This crisp formulation confirms the fact that all measures planned and taken against attacks on Europe have been carried through a complete agreement between Berlin and Rome. From the personal meeting of the two chiefs of state, an intensification of war efforts is expected which always has been following a meeting of the two Axis statesmen."

HITLER AND DUCE CONFER IN ITALY

JUL 21 1943

Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini "met in a north Italian city for discussion of military matters," the Berlin radio announced tonight in a Berlin dispatch recorded by the Associated Press. The meeting occurred yesterday.

A communique issued from Hitler's headquarters today said:

"The Fuehrer and Il Duce met Monday, July 19, in a city in upper Italy. Military questions were discussed."

The two Axis leaders last met April 7 to 10 at Hitler's headquarters, where, it was announced they reached "complete agreement on all measures to be taken in any respect."

Both Hitler and Mussolini have remained silent as new disasters came upon their people—the fall of Tunisia, the bombing of the Ruhr and the invasion of Sicily. But the increasing portents of doom clearly forced a new meeting.

After a brief official announcement of the meeting, the political correspondent of DNB, official German news agency, declared it could be assumed that developments in the Mediterranean area must have been "in the forefront" of the discussions. He also said that the "desperate onslaught" of Russian troops and the British and American landings in the Mediterranean must have been examined,

166 Persons Killed, 1,659 Hurt in Raid, Italians Announce

Nazi Propagandists 'Open All Stops' to Create Indignation

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 20.—While Axis propaganda beat the drums of indignation today over the American bombing of Rome, the official Italian communique acknowledged "very great damage" in yesterday's attack and placed the toll of victims at 166 killed and 1,659 injured.

"Eleven buildings sacred to faith and science are reported heavily hit and some of them partly destroyed, as well as workers' dwellings in the Prenestina and Latina districts," the communique said, but it made no mention of the damage to military objectives.

The bulletin, broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by the Associated Press, declared that the attack by "American formations of hundreds of four-engined planes" lasted three hours and that seven of the raiders were downed by anti-aircraft fire and one by Italian fight-

Berlin Reports Protest.

Among the places partly destroyed, the communique said, were the San Lorenzo Basilica, Verano Cemetery, University City and hospitals of the Polyclinic Institute.

A German broadcast recorded by the Associated Press quoted a correspondent of the Transocean propaganda agency as saying that time bombs dropped by the American flyers in the outskirts of Rome have "exploded one by one since Monday night."

Another broadcast by the Berlin radio, which reported previously that Pope Pius XII had visited the Basilica immediately after the raid, said that Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, Vatican Undersecretary of State, had interviewed American Charge d'Affaires Harold Tittman in the Vatican. It quoted DNB, German news agency, as assuming that a protest had been handed to Mr. Tittman. The report of the conference was not confirmed elsewhere.

One German broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press in London, said Pope Pius XII already had forwarded protests to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill—a statement that was not immediately confirmed by any other source.

Propaganda Rampage.

Axis propaganda, which apparently was caught flat-footed by the Allied methods in yesterday's assault, began pulling out all stops today in attempts to stir indignation against the Allies in neutral and Catholic quarters.

One typical outburst came from a German radio commentator, Otto Krieg, who said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press: "Throughout the world today there is but one theme on the cry of indignation. Rome has been bombed by terror raiders, crooks and gangsters."

Il Popola di Roma was quoted in another broadcast as declaring: "All Manhattan and its skyscrapers, the whole of the United States and its towns, factories and harbors cannot compare in beauty and tradition with the Basilica or San Lorenzo."

Automobiles Mobilized.

The Berlin radio, broadcasting a DNB dispatch from Rome, said that "leading personalities of the Vatican followed the raid from the highest points of Vatican buildings and observed with great sorrow the widespread destruction and heavy fires."

The Rome radio said the Pope suspended all but the most urgent audiences for some days, but received Cardinal Fossati of Turin, who gave a report on damage done to churches in that town. The broadcast said the Pope told the cardinal that the bombing of Rome was "one of the most painful trials" of his life.

Another German broadcast of a DNB dispatch said Rome police had ordered all automobiles put into use evacuating civilians from the city, even though owners held no licenses for the vehicles.

DNB also reported that pictures of the damage appeared widely in morning newspapers along with detailed stories of the raid.

The Berlin radio reported that the supreme commander of Italian military police and his chief deputy had been killed during the raid.

They were identified in the broadcast as a Gen. Hazon and a Col. Barenco.

Naples Blasted Again.

Oft-bombed Naples, Italy's largest port, was blasted again last night by Allied bombers, which also carried the destruction of Italy's war supplies and industries into other localities in Campania, the Italians said.

Both German and Italian propagandists dwelt heavily on damage which they said had been done to the Fourth Century Basilica of San Lorenzo Fuori le Mura—situated on the Via Tiburtino near the San Lorenzo yards and on the same street where military barracks are located.

Advices from Stockholm quoting a dispatch filed through Italian censorship by the Rome correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter also told of damage to the ancient edifice.

The Swedish correspondent failed, however, to substantiate sweeping German and Italian claims that the bombing was indiscriminate. Damage, he declared, was limited to the San Lorenzo and Tiburtino districts, adding that the center of Rome had been spared and that well known monuments and historic ruins had been left "as peaceful as ever."

His report contrasted with the bitter declarations of the Rome radio, which described the raid as having "the impetus worthy of a wild beast" and said that the university and other nonmilitary targets had been hard hit.

"Buildings of the medical clinic, orthopedic clinic and Institute of Public Health either were damaged or destroyed by bombs," said a Rome broadcast heard in London. "Devastation caused by the enemy in workers' quarters in San Lorenzo, Tiburtina and Prenestino is horrible."

The Office of War Information quoted a Berlin broadcast today as saying that 21 Italian provinces have been declard war zons, but that "Rome is not contained in this list and therefore is not regarded as a war zone for the time being."

Veteran of Sicily Fight Safe—Until Return Home

By the Associated Press.

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 19 (Delayed).—Roderick MacDonald, war correspondent of the Sydney (Australia) Morning Serial, landed in Sicily with British glider troops, went through battles with them, was captured and later freed when British patrols shot up the Axis guards, and finally flew back to North Africa—all without injury.

Today Mr. MacDonald went for a casual auto ride. The car was hit by a United States Army three-ton truck and he suffered painful head injuries, cuts and bruises and landed in an RAF base hospital.

Canadian Cites Sicily Drive As Proof Of Striking Power

McNaughton Believes All Axis Morale, Including Japs', Will Falter Before Allied Success

JUL 21 1943

By JOHN [illegible]NTHER
(American War [illegible]rrespondent)
(Distributed by the [illegible]ssociated Press)

Headquarters of Fifteenth Army Group (Delayed)—Lieut. Gen. Andrew McNaughton, commander in chief of the Canadian Army, visiting here today, told me the chief lesson of the Sicilian landings is the evidence they provide that the Allies are now capable of striking with tremendous efficiency and force on any front.

[It was announced officially at Allied headquarters in North Africa Tuesday night that General McNaughton had been to the Sicilian front and had returned to North Africa. Gunther's dispatch carried not date.]

This correspondent, who is the only American newspaperman attached to this advance headquarters, got a sharp impression that the veteran Canadian general spoke with Japan in mind.

Will Hurt Jap Morale

In fact, McNaughton said our invasion of Europe, begun so auspiciously by the Sicilian operation, is certain to damage the morale of the Japanese as well as the Germans and Italians, since the Japs now know we can marshal overwhelming pressure to bear on any place, at any time, from the four corners of the earth.

McNaughton is naturally proud of the part played in Sicily by his Canadians, whom he has carefully nurtured and expertly trained for several years in England.

Just as there is an undefended and unfortified boundary for 3,000 miles between the United States and Canada, so in Sicily today there is a common front between Americans and Canadians fighting side by side. McNaughton, a decisive man, fluent, energetic and factual, talked as both Generals Eisenhower and Alexander have talked to me at this headquarters.

Praises 'Remarkable Feat'

The first impression was that everybody seems to be delighted at the way things are moving and satisfied that everything is according to plan and, if anything, ahead of schedule. Speaking particularly of the Canadians, McNaughton said:

"It was a pretty remarkable feat. We assembled our force on plans worked out in England and Africa. Very few officials had any personal contact and there was very little conversation.

"When plans were transmitted to us in England, we went to work. Landings had to be scheduled, various craft waterproofed and everything loaded so the right stuff would be on top and come out first. The ships were marshaled in perfect order, they made the correct rendezvous to the minute, they carried out intricate maneuvers as planned and they landed on the right beaches at the right time.

"I call it a marvelous achievement."

Example Of Coordination

The operation as a whole, McNaughton said, was the most perfect example of combined operations the world had ever seen. Coordination and cooperation started with Eisenhower and his staff, went down through the various commands of the land, sea, and air forces, and reached every man in every theater.

"What a wonderful augury for the future," the general exclaimed.

What's more, he proceeded, correlation had been remarkable. Canadians never served in this theater before, but there has been no difficulty whatever in fitting them into the general picture.

System Proves Flexible

The whole system has proved most flexible when "our troops were complete strangers to Africa, yet there was no friction, no slip-up, no difficulty in the staff organization or system of command."

The general, asked to summarize his impressions, said he had three things in mind:

"First, the operation gave me a sense of the tremendous power we have—that plus disciplined nerves. That's the chief thing to say.

Credits Research Council

"Second, I want to pay tribute to the quality and equipment. Some of us remember the early phases of the war when equipment was most notable for its absence or the fact it was out of date. Now that former situation is well behind us. Keen new minds in the United States and Canada have been at work on new methods of fighting the war. Much credit is due to the National Research Council at Washington."

McNaughton mentioned in detail two items of equipment which are still secret, then talked of one weapon that may be mentioned—the Sherman M-4 tank. This, he said, was produced in the United States with the cooperation of Canada and includes the British type turret. It is now universally acclaimed as the best tank ever seen.

"The unending struggle for equipment is being won not only in quantity and quality, but as regards the factor of time. It's one thing to have a perfect weapon, but we must have mass production, too. For this we must look to and rely on the great American continent."

Emphasizes Youth Factor

Third, the general wanted to emphasize the factor of youth. Modern war, fought with mechanized weapons on a wide variety of fronts, demands field officers picked for physical fitness and endurance. This means that it is a young man's war.

The general concluded we should recognize that this great combined operation in Sicily represents the coordination of four forces, not merely three—land, sea and air. The fourth is the civil administration which follows the invasion and makes the occupation work.

"I hope that's enough," the general concluded. "I'm a factual sort of bird. I don't suppose I'm breaking any state secrets, but if so the censor can cut 'em out."

Our amiable and totally efficient censor—in the room with us—winked.

Survivor of Hospital Ship Bombing Says Nazis Tied and Shot Captives

JUL 21 1943

3 Officers and Non-com Prisoners Are Reported Victims in Sicily.

VESSEL HIT BY LONE ITALIAN

Was Fully Lighted and 5 Miles From Beach When Sunk —400 Aboard Saved.

By GEORGE TUCKER.

Cairo, July 19 (Delayed) (A. P.).—An American parachute trooper furnished an eyewitness account today of the bombing of the hospital ship Talamba five miles off the beaches of Sicily. The hospital ship was attacked although brilliantly lighted and clearly marked, Private Jack Flynn of Detroit, reported. Another paratrooper told of Americans being tied and shot when captured in Sicily.

[Allied headquarters on July 12 announced that an Allied hospital ship, fully lighted, was sunk the previous night off the Sicilian coast. Four hundred wounded aboard were transferred successfully, it added.]

The wounded were brought first to the African mainland, where they received additional medical care, then flown 1,500 miles east to Cairo.

Private Flynn broke a leg when his parachute caught as he descended into a ravine during the invasion of Sicily. Two fellow troopers helped him to a dressing station on the beach.

"That night they put me aboard the hospital ship Talamba," he said. "I had just had dinner and gone to bed when a lone Italian bomber came over and attacked. It scored a hit, circled away, came back and scored another hit. This was at 10 o'clock at night. The ship blazed with lights from stem to stern. It couldn't have been mistaken for anything else."

Feels Fine Now.

Private Flynn described how a British nurse moved among the wounded men, calmly telling them: "All who can walk should come up on deck and have a look around."

"I hobbled on deck as the ship began to list badly," he continued. "We were about five miles off shore. I got into a lifeboat and we started to lower away, but the rope broke and we fell into the sea. Everybody sank, but bobbed to the surface again, as our life belts were on.

"I climbed into another boat which had been hastily lowered, but it sank at once as somebody had neglected to put the rain plugs in. We climbed into a third lifeboat and it also sank. By that time I had swallowed plenty of water and didn't want to try any more lifeboats, so I swam over to a destroyer which had just come up and was hauled on deck.

"They transferred me to another hospital ship, then put me on a troop transport and evacuated me to the mainland for the flight down here. I feel fine getting plenty of good sleep and rest."

In the same ward with Private Flynn were five other parachute troopers whose legs were broken on the jump from paratroop planes.

Evidence of Killing Captives.

Private Dock L. Allison, of Charlotte, N. C., who used to be a refigeration engineer, related: "I was number five in a stick of eighteen men in my plane. I made an effort to fall in the clear, but as luck would have it my 'chute caught in a tree and this caused me to break a leg. I cut myself free and started to look for bundles of equipment.

"In a few minutes an Italian soldier came walking toward me. I could identify him plainly in the bright moonlight and I let him have it.

"At dawn I ran into more parachute troopers, who helped me improvise splints, after which an ambulance transferred me to a hospital ship."

Private Allison said that he had been aboard only five minutes when the first bomb hit the vessel.

Private Leonard J. Webster, of Goodman, Wis., and Private Perry Lee Roberts, of Odessa, Tex., also suffered broken legs in jumps. Pricate Roberts told of finding evidence which indicated that American prisoners had been killed by Axis officers.

"Tracers were flying in all directions when I jumped," he said. "The wind caught me and I hit a tree and was dragged across another tree before reaching the ground. An American lieutenant came up, saw I was injured and told me to hide under the bank, which I did for a while. Later we found two American officers and one noncom who had been tied and shot in the back of the head."

Private Webster broke his leg in a landing on a limestone road. "Some of my buddies came up with a group of weeping Italian civilians," he recounted. "They made a bed for me out of hay, produced water, fruit and cakes, and even offered to taste the food first to prove it wasn't poisoned.

"We asked the Italians why they were weeping and they said because they were frightened and afraid of the Germans."

Mutiny Reports Raise Hopes for Sicily Collapse

JUL 21 1943

By LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, July 20—(AP) Official news of mutinies among Italian troops in Sicily raised hopes in American quarters in London today for collapse of the defense in at least the western and central portions of the island.

Meanwhile, the Italian communique, admitting "very great damage," said the Allied raid on Rome yesterday had killed 166 persons, injured 1,659 and hit "11 buildings sacred to faith and science," and a Rome broadcast termed the bombing a "psychological error" that would boost Italian fighting spirit.

A Rome broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy had placed 1,000,000 lire (nominally $52,600) at the disposal of Rome's governor for the aid of impoverished families "that have remained victims of the enemy's air raid."

No Overconfidence

While no informed source in London was willing to make an unqualified prediction that the Sicilian campaign was heading for a swift close—within a week or so—great interest was aroused by the Allied communique's statement that "there are many indications of mutinies among Italians commanded by German officers."

"That's most unusual language for an official communique and there must be much behind it or it wouldn't have been included," one officer said.

Observers pointed out that the Nazi Hermann Goering division centered about Catania has been fighting bravely and smartly, and that other German units fighting inland might have been withdrawn with hopes of forming a defensive line across the northwestern tip of Sicily.

American and Canadian troops are advancing on Enna and may already be in that central town. When it falls, Italians in the western part of Sicily — perhaps two or more divisions — must attack, retreat along the northern route, or be cut off with dwindling supplies.

Several Tactics Possible

Weak Italian resistance opens several tactical possibilities to the Allies, including a new center drive northward while flanking forces fanned out against the Italians in the west and the Germans about Catania. More landings on Sicily or even the mainland also are possible.

"Violent action is in progress south of Enna," the German radio military commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius said, with U. S. Seventh army troops advancing "in several columns." American and Canadian losses have been heavy, said this broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

Catania still is the main focal point and the battle there is flaring again "with great fierceness," Captain Sertorius said, with the British throwing in reserves seeking to take the city. The Germans, he added, have adopted in Sicily "elastic methods" of defense.

Another broadcast asserted that many British parachutists were annihilated near Catania.

Grows More Intense

A Rome commentator likewise heard by the Associated Press said only that the Sicilian fighting grows more savage daily, and then termed the bombing of Rome a "psychological error" by the Allies.

"Every inch of Italian soil will be drenched with the blood of British, Canadian and American soldiers if they are to invade the Italian mainland," he said. "Italy will resist the Allies' threat with the last breath of her people."

Dispatches from Bern, quoting Swiss Telegraphic agency reports from Rome, said that a vast multitude gathered at St. Peter's forum yesterday had remained there during the three-hour attack. Pope Pius, they added, had suspended all his most important audiences for the next several days and had contributed a large sum for the victims.

The Axis capitals did not mention damage to industrial objectives.

Churchill in Commons Ignores Raid on Rome

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 20.—Prime Minister Churchill appeared before the House of Commons today to answer a series of minor questions from members, but made no statement on the Sicilian campaign or the bombing of Rome.

The opening of a debate on pensions by Sir John Anderson suggested there would be no statement from the Prime Minister today.

He told Commons that despite some possible security objections Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had agreed to a Canadian request that official reference would be made to the Canadian forces taking part in the invasion of Sicily. Since then, Mr. Churchill said, "the fullest tribute has been paid in all public statements here and elsewhere to the valiant and successful part the Canadian 1st Division is taking in this enterprise."

Query Raised in Parliament

London, July 20 (A. P.).—The bombing of Rome was projected into Parliament for the first time today when Viscount Fitzalan, one of Great Britain's leading Catholic noblemen, asked in the House of Lords whether the bombing had been necessary and whether any damage had been done to cultural or religious buildings.

Viscount Cranborne, leader of the Lords, replied only that no detailed information had been received.

Maltese Say Thanks For Bombing of Rome

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 20—London morning papers said today that under signs "Bomb Rome" which have been chalked on the walls of buildings on the much-bombed island of Malta, the Maltese yesterday wrote "Thanks."

ROME ORDERS EVACUATION

JUL 21 1943

Fires Still Burning—Pope Suspends Audience.

Berne, July 20 A. P.).—All persons not compelled to remain in Rome to carry on essential war work have been warned to get out immediately by the Fascist Government, Swiss Telegraphic Agency dispatches reported today.

Rome, the dispatches said, is without adequate air raid shelters, and last year's population of 1,250,000 has been virtually doubled because of the belief that the city would not be bombed owing to the presence of Vatican City.

Crews Working In Ruins.

Meanwhile excavation crews continued work in the ruins of the bombed districts of the city with "a great number of dead and wounded" already removed from the debris. Hardest hit, according to the agency dispatches, were the San Lorenzo, Prenestina and Tiburting sections, where the damage was described as "enormous," especially among workers' homes. Tiburtino avenue runs between one of the biggest artillery practice fields in Italy and the vast Ferdinand of Savoia barracks adjoining the Termini railroad station in the heart of Rome.

University City was reported to have been one of the most heavily damaged sections of Rome, with many large scientific buildings being destroyed during Monday's raid. The number of casualties in this area, however, was believed to be small, although a Rome dispatch to the Gazette de Lausanne said that three bombs had demolished the quarters used by foreign students.

Pope Pays Visit To Bombed-Out Area of Rome

Vatican Radio Discloses Tour, Says He Consoled Victims of Air Pounding

LONDON, July 20 (AP).—A partial text of a Vatican radio announcement saying Pope Pius XII visited damaged areas of Rome soon after the American bombing raid yesterday was issued today by the Ministry of Information.

The ministry recorded the broadcast, which it said was made in English for Great Britain and Ireland.

"This afternoon after the bombardment of Rome the Holy Father went to visit and console the victims, part of the flock of his own diocese," the broadcast said.

"Accompanied solely by Monsignor Montini (Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, Vatican Under Secretary of State) without any escort or cortege, his holiness left the Vatican about 5 p. m., Rome time, and went directly to the Basilica of San Lorenzo, one of seven churches of the Eternal City which had been hit.

"There before the ruins of the Church of the Basilica, so famous for its old frescoes, he prayed for some moments. He was at once recognized by the people, who made him the object of a great demonstration of gratitude and affection.

"The Holy Father then went on foot through the bombed district, one of the most populated of Rome, consoling and blessing the people." . . .

De Valera's Journal Wants Rome Classed As an 'Open City'

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, July 20.—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's newspaper, the Irish Press, declared today the bombing of Rome by American planes "willl sadden many in Britain, the United States and in other nations."

"It is for us grievous tidings indeed," the newspaper said. "Surely it is possible even now to have Rome classed an open city."

The Irish Times and other Dublin papers suggested that De Valera ask the Italian government to declare Rome an open city and approach the British and American governments at the same time with requests to cease raids on the city pending a reply.

Russians Welcome Bombing.

Moscow, July 20 (A. P.).—The Russian people welcomed the American bombing of Rome which was reported fully in the Soviet press this morning.

Various Russians said they were particularly impressed that the Allies were able to send 500 planes over Rome after deliberately warning the Italians that they were coming.

DEPLORES ROME RAID

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 20.—(AP) Archbishop Jose Maria Caro of Santiago said today he "deplored" the bombing of Rome although "we recognize the bombing was executed with care x x x that churches, and religious and artistic monument would not be damaged."

Mussolini Scurries For Shelter in Raid, Swiss Report Says

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 20.—BBC today broadcast a Swiss dispatch on the American bombing of Rome saying that Premier Mussolini "spent the entire raid in a shelter constructed specially for him."

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, recalled that the Italian radio had said that Pope Pius XII had refused to go to his shelter during the raid.

Rome Raiders Rejected Chance to Decline Task

By The Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 20—Liberator crewmen who took part in the bombing of Rome revealed here today that participants in the historic raid received an opportunity to back out if they wished to do so for religious or other reasons.

They said that not a single man accepted.

Lieut. John F. Keilt of Jersey City, N. J., who is on leave in Cairo with ten other Liberator crewmen who blasted the Eternal City, said:

"I'm a pretty good Catholic and the chance to see Rome, even this way, suited me. All of the fifteen or twenty minutes we were over the target I was hunting around for the Vatican—but missed it. That would happen to me!"

The others were: Tech. Sgt. Tauno S. Metsa of Dearborn, Mich.; Lieut. Herbert M. Light of Ames, Iowa; Lieut. Donaldson B. Hurd of Indianapolis, Ind.; Lieut. George H. Wilson of Bristol, R. I.; Capt. Tom Bennett Jr. of Lake Wales, Fla.; Lieut. Jack M. Ramsey of San Diego, Calif.; Sgt. Samuel N. Greenlee of Sandy Lake, Pa.; Sgt. Roy L. Wells, Spokane, Wash.; Sgt. J. Movellar of Los Angeles, Calif., and Sgt. Harry W. Crampton, Lebanon, N. J.

Bern, Switzerland, Wednesday, July 21 (AP)—Italy's war area has been expanded by an Italian royal decree to twenty-one new provinces stretching from Naples in central Italy north to the port of Genoa and including the Adriatic frontier, the Swiss Telegraphic Agency reported in a dispatch from Rome today.

Axis Flyers Bomb Malta In Concentrated Attack

Meet Heavy Barrage, Cause Some Civilian Damage

VALLETTA, Malta, July 20 (AP).—Axis aircraft made a "concentrated attack" on Malta last night, it was announced today.

Bombs fell in widespread areas, causing civilian damage. Heavy and light ack-ack sent up a formidable barrage against the enemy planes. Malta has been relatively free of air attacks since before the fall of Tunisia.

Cruiser Shoots Roof Off Catania Station

Aboard a British Cruiser Shelling Catania, July 18 (Delayed) (A. P.).—This cruiser took the roof off the Catania main railway station today with six bull's-eye shots. The target was cleverly selected, as it was a point where the highway and the railroad intersect and a route along which the Axis must move troops, either south as reinforcements or north in retreat.

Intermittent bombardments of such Axis key points and batteries continued throughout the day. Meanwhile, artillery fighting again was visible ashore as the Eighth Army pushed into a zone of Catania, only three miles from the city.

French [illegible] Lowers Age Limit

Algiers, July [illegible] (AP)—The French Committee of National Liberation provisionally adopted today an ordinance lowering the age limit for French officers which, if made effective, would make possible the discharge of forty generals and nearly 500 other officers above captain's rank.

The step was taken in connection with the rejuvenation of the army which Gen. Charles de Gaulle long has sought on the grounds that many of the present high officers were incapable of commanding a modern type army.

Front line dispatches declared Soviet troops were sweeping everything before them, although they acknowledged that the Germans were resisting bitterly and said the terrain made operations difficult in some sectors.

The Soviet midnight communique said the Germans were rushing reinforcements into the battle and were counterattacking the advancing Russians as many as 12 times within a single day in some sectors without success.

The Russians announced the capture of Ilinskoye, 30 miles west of Orel. This represents the most westerly advance in the area north of Orel. From here the Russian line swings back east and then cuts south around Orel and runs west along the old line to Sevsk.

Ilinskoye is only 8 miles north of the important Orel-Bryansk Railway and only 18 miles northeast of Karachev, an important railway junction which has been heavily bombed in the past, the Russians said.

The Russians also reported the capture of Lgovo near Ilinskoye on the east bank of the Vytebet River and 30 miles northwest of Orel. Kudriavets, another town taken by the Red Army, is 12 miles northwest of Ilinskoye, the Russians reported.

Russian dispatches indicated that their forces have "considerably expanded" their breach in the German lines although they admitted that the Nazis were giving them considerable troulble at several points. One particularly fierce engagement was fought on the outskirts of Frest, where German artillery had [illegible] the advance for a time until Russian guardsmen filtered through in small detachments until they had outflanked the garrison.

East of Orel, the bulletin said, the Russian Army advanced over hilly country across ditches and water lines to recapture 40 towns. In one action it was reported that Russians forced their way into a town and ousted the Germans only after a bitter hand-to-hand struggle.

70 Villages Regained.

To the north Red Army men were said to have regained 70 villages, while from the south came word that the Nazis had withdrawn from 20 towns.

The Russian communique said counterattacks were costing the Germans heavy losses. An additional 72 German tanks and 96 planes were reported to have been knocked out in the fighting yesterday, bringing the 15-day total to 3,516 tanks and 2,094 planes.

The Russian drive around Orel was being assisted by guerrilla activity. The irregulars, the communique said, launched a surprise attack on one German garrison and captured a large village. A company of Germans was annihilated in the fighting and the guerrillas seized a number of guns and other war material, the bulletin added.

The bulletin also credited Soviet engineering units with playing a large part in the present advance. The detachments have blown up hundreds of tanks and about 200 motor trucks in the Orel section since July 5, it said.

The communique reported continuation of light scouting activity in the Belgorod sector at the southern end of the 165-mile battle line. The sector was the scene of some of the heaviest fighting when the Germans first launched their offensive on July 5, and it was here alone that they were able to hack out a few small gains before the Red Army counterattacked.

Northeast of Novorossisk in the Caucasus the Russians said they blocked a German counterassault launched in an attempt to gain a hill captured by the Red Army. One German battalion involved in the battle lost 300 men in machine gun and hand-to-hand fighting, the bulletin said.

On the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow the communique reported that reconnaissance detachments attacked German positions after artillery preparation, ousting the Germans from several strong points and capturing prisoners and war materiel.

The Russians said that action on the Leningrad front was confined to artillery and mortar fire, resulting in the destruction of German guns and blockhouses. The bulletin added that Red Army snipers killed 73 Germans.

No Vatican Protest Received.

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—The Government had received no protest from the Vatican against the bombardment of Rome, up to noon today. Nothing had been received to confirm that Mgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, official of the Vatican Secretary of State's office, had conferred with Harold H. Tittman, the United States representative at Vatican City, as reported by the Germans.

Soviet Forces Move Inexorably To Crush Orel From Three Sides

Red Army Takes 130 Villages in Advance; 20 Nazi Counterattacks Repulsed in Day

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 20.—The Red Army, moving closer to its goal of encirclement of Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge's forces in the Orel area, has captured 130 villages in an advance on three sides of that Nazi bastion on the central front 200 miles south of Moscow, the Russians announced today.

Front line dispatches declared Soviet troops were sweeping everything before them, although they acknowledged that the Germans were resisting bitterly and said the terrain made operations difficult in some sectors.

The Soviet midnight communique said the Germans were rushing reinforcements into the battle and were counterattacking the advancing Russians as many as 12 times within a single day in some sectors without success.

The communique reported continuation of light scouting activity in the Belgorod sector at the southern end of the 165-mile battle line. The sector was the scene of some of the heaviest fighting when the Germans first launched their offensive on July 5, and it was here alone that they were able to hack out a few small gains before the Red Army counterattacked.

Northeast of Novorossisk in the Caucasus the Russians said they blocked a German counterassault launched in an attempt to gain a hill captured by the Red Army. One German battalion involved in the battle lost 300 men in machine gun and hand-to-hand fighting, the bulletin said.

On the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow the communique reported that reconnaissance detachments attacked German positions after artillery preparation, ousting the Germans from several strong points and capturing prisoners and war materiel.

The Russians said that action on the Leningrad front was confined to artillery and mortar fire, resulting in the destruction of German guns and blockhouses. The bulletin added that Red Army snipers killed 73 Germans.

RUSSIANS DRIVE TOWARD HEART OF DONETS BASIN

Offensive Near Orel Continuing Without Let-Up; Germans Lose Heavily.

50 TOWNS RECAPTURED

Many Prisoners Taken, War Materials Seized by Soviet Forces.

LONDON, July 20 — (AP) The great Russian summer offensive broke out over a 450-mile front Tuesday, extending from the Orel sector, where that vital Axis-held "hinge" city was threatened with encirclement, to the Mius river, where Red army troops breached German defenses in front of Taganrog, it was announced in a special Soviet communique tonight.

The Russians said their troops had broken across the Mius river and also the northern Donets river south of Izyum and southwest of Voroshilovgrad, in an area about 300 miles south of Orel, apparently aiming at the heart of the Donets basin. Here strong German forces had thrust back deep into the rich industrial territory last Spring to recapture Slavyansk and other steel and rail centers as part of their offensive that reclaimed Kharkov.

50 Towns Recaptured

At least 50 more towns were recaptured by the Soviet forces driving on Orel, including Mtsensk, 31 miles northeast of Orel on the railroad to Moscow, and Bolkhow, 32 miles north of Orel, the Soviet special war bulletin declared. It was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet radio monitor here.

The Soviet midnight communique, broadcast by the Moscow radio several hours after the special war bulletin detailed the new successes, said the offensive about Orel was continuing without let-up despite spirited German resistance which was costing the enemy heavily.

Another Moscow broadcast disclosed that in a prelude to Tuesday's smashing land offensive, large forces of Russian heavy bombers blasted at German concentrations and airdromes southeast of Orel late Monday night, destroying a "considerable number" of Nazi air force planes caught on the ground.

Heavy Toll Reported

Moscow's midnight communique listed more than 4,700 of the enemy killed in engagements about Orel and Belgorod, with another 1,000 declared to have been killed or wounded and 140 tanks disabled or destroyed, in addition to 53 artillery, mortar and self-propelling gun batteries put out of action.

Numbers of war prisoners and large stores of munitions were taken in the Russian advance, it was said.

An unspecified number of towns was taken in an advance north of Orel which saw 2,000 Germans killed and 39 enemy tanks disabled, the midnight communique said, and the harried Germans were driven out of several strongly-fortified towns east of Orel after the Red army forces smashed across a stream to hammer at the Nazi positions.

The Russians said they destroyed about a regiment of enemy infantry, destroyed or disabled 37 German tanks and captured large quantities of war materials from the Germans on one flank east of Orel, and killed at least 1,500 Germans, destroyed 13 tanks and 32 guns, and took a great number of prisoners in another section.

"South of Orel, our troops, overcoming stubborn enemy resistance, continued to advance," the war bulletin declared, with the Germans losing more than 1,000 officers and men killed and wounded in futile counter-attacks.

Other Successes Below Orel

Another 34 German tanks and 18 gun batteries were destroyed and more prisoners were taken in the fighting south of Orel, it was said.

Offering more detail on the Soviet thrust in the Belgorod area, Moscow said 400 Germans were killed and 17 tanks and three large guns were disabled.

Advances of four to six miles were recorded in the north Orel sector, it was declared, bringing the Russian land gains to 36 1-2 to 66 miles since the beginning of the Red Army offensive.

German resistance was heavy, the Russians said, with 10 German counter-attacks beaten off during the day as the Soviet troops swept into 30 cities and villages on an arc north of Orel.

East of Orel some 20 villages were recaptured, including the railway station of Voroshilov, and Russian troops continued to advance in the encirclement drive despite German infantry and tank counter-attacks south of the city.

The last big city south of Orel that was announced recaptured was Malo-Arkhangelski, 39 miles away.

Belgorod Front Boiling

About 160 miles south of Orel, another front continued boiling as the Russians counter-attacked in the Belgorod area and scored advances of six to eight miles, the war bulletin said.

Hinting at intensification of the offensive on the sprawling front, the communique declared that "In the southern Donets basin south of Izyum and southwest of Voroshilovgrad, engagements of local character broke out. They have the tendency to grow into serious battles."

Without declaring specifically where the breach occurred, the war bulletin said that Red army forces had stormed across the northern Donets river and the river Mius, "considerably improving their positions."

In the Donets basin the Germans last spring drove deep back into the rich industrial area to take Slavyansk and Kharkov and set up strong defense lines along the west bank of the river.

Scores of efforts to probe the Russian defenses along that line, however, were futile. The Russians held, making occasional forays of their own across the stream but never atttempting to gain more than bridgeheads for reconnaissance.

New Taganrog Threat

The reference to the Mius river front, dormant for some time except for recent German reports of Russian activity in the sector, promised that Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov, was being threatened anew.

The temper of the German defenses in the Orel sector was gauged in part by the communique's assertion that in fighting yesterday 143 German tanks were disabled or destroyed and that 117 German planes were brought down.

The special communique accounted, by its latest report, for 180 towns recaptured on the Orel front in two days and 290 since the Russians began their summer offensive eight days ago.

Previously, the Russians had penetrated to Illinskoye, 30 miles offensive arc and also to pose a new menace to Bryansk, only 45 west of Orel to round out their miles west of Illinskoye.

The newest gains, therefare, put the Red army 30 miles west of Orel, 30 miles east of the city of Vorkshilov, within 31 miles northeast at Nisensk, 32 miles north of Bolkhov, and within 39 miles south presuming the advance had carried northward from Malo-Arkhangelski.

The German military correspondent for the Transocean propaganda agency, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, declared in a Berlin radio broadcast recorded yesterday by the Associated Press that "the big defensive battle in the central and southern sector continues with unabating violence."

Climax Not Reached

"It has," he said, "by no means reached its climax." He assayed the Russian drive as an effort to break through toward Bryansk, an important German communications and supply center.

In Stockholm, the Moscow radio reported in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, it was said that Albert Speer, Reich Minister of Munitions, had been summoned to Hitler's headquarters to discuss the heavy German armaments losses in the Orel, Kursk and Belgorod areas.

The German communique said again that the Red army was on the offensive for 700 air-line miles between Sukhinichi at the top of the Orel front to Novorossisk in the western Caucasus, and Berlin propaganda agencies said the Russians were on the move farther north to Leningrad and in the Arctic as well.

Called Soviet Onrush

The high command spoke of the Russian attacks as the "Soviets' onrush," new terminology which suggested Soviet gains. The Nazis asserted they knocked out 562 tanks Monday around Novorossisk, on the Mius river west of Rostov, on the Middle Donets southeast of Kharkov, north of Belgorod and in the whole Orel sector.

Another Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press asserted that an amphibious Russian expedition had been repelled in an attempted landing on Norway's Varanger fjord above the Arctic Circle near Fisher peninsula.

REPORT ATTACK ON NORWAY

Nazis Say Amphibious Assault Is Repulsed, Including Attempted Landing.

JUL 21 1943

London, July 20 (A. P.).—Mtsensk, a strategic town about thirty-six miles northeast of Orel, has fallen along with scores of other localities around Orel as the Red Army drive from three directions continued today against the vital Axis hinge fortifications in Central Russia, a special Soviet communique announced tonight.

The newest Russian drive represented an advance of from four to six miles, the Russians said in a Moscow broadcast recorded by the Soviet radio monitor here.

Stubborn enemy resistance was overcame in the advance in that sector, with ten German counter-attacks thrown back during the day, it was declared.

The communique asserted that some thirty localities were taken in the area north of Orel, that twenty places, including the railway station of Voroshilov, were recaptured east of Orel, and that an advance continuing south of Orel had resulted in gains of from six to eight miles.

The Russian war bulletin also recounted that Red Army troops had forced crossings of the northern Donets River, apparently south of Izyum and southwest of Voroshilovgrad, and that the Mius River, west of Rostov on the road to Tanganrog, also had been forced.

Norway Attack Reported.

The Berlin radio said that a Russian amphibious force had attacked the coast of Varanger Fjord in extreme northern Norway. The broadcast said that the Russians had attempted a landing on the coast south of Vardoe, on the peninsula which juts out into the Barents Sea toward Fisher Peninsula, the most northwesternly point of the Soviet Union.

The attack was beaten off, the Berlin account said, after Soviet landing craft were shelled by shore batteries which sank or damaged many of the vessels.

The Germans previously had reported the presence of Russian planes over the peninsula, which arcs eastward into the Barents just north of the Finnish border.

Now 19 Miles From Orel.

The Russian Army now is only about nineteen miles east of Orel in a three-way drive to nip off this German salient and produce another Stalingrad encirclement, observers estimated today.

Several dozen more populated places have been captured on the Orel front where Russian armies are advancing on the German base from three sides, the Moscow radio said early tonight.

The Germans still were bringing up fresh forces and resisting stubbornly, the broadcast said. The dispatch was recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Less than twenty-four hours earlier, the Russians said officially they had overrun 130 populated places in sweeps on Orel from the north, east and south. The base is 200 miles south of Moscow and just north of the Kursk salient where the Germans were frustrated in an offensive they launched July 5.

BRITAIN TO DRAFT BOYS FOR MINES

Labor Minister Bevin Tells Federation Those 16 To 18 Years Old Will Be Called

JUL 21 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 20—Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, told a meeting of the Blackpool Mine Workers Federation today that 16 to 18-year-old boys must go into the mines to maintain war-essential coal production.

His surprise announcement that Britain must call the youths to the pits just as though drafting them for armed service appeared to be the newest phase of a Government solution of the urgent wartime problem of lagging coal production and an increasing shortage of miners.

Federation Seeks Details

A few hours after Bevin stated the urgency in calling from 30,000 to 60,000 youths to the mines, the federation's executive committee decided to send a delegation to inquire into the details of the plan.

Bevin disclosed that although 47,000 former miners had gone back to the pits from other higher-paid jobs, the number of miners had fallen to 690,000. He placed the industry's absolute need at 720,000 to 750,000.

Preferred Army To Mines

Heretofore British boys reaching the call-up age have been given their choice of entering the armed services or the mines, but Bevin said that so far only 3,000 had expressed a preference for mining to 50 cents a day in the forces.

Britain's coal industry already is under Government control, the same as other war-essential industries.

Britain Enjoys Fourth Night Free of Raids

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 20.—Britain last night enjoyed its fourth successive raid-free night and the RAF's heavy bombers also apparently remained grounded.

The latest night raid on Britain was on July 15 when a few German planes appeared over East Anglia and one penetrated as far as the Greater London area. No enemy plane has appeared over England in daylight in 10 days.

RAF activity yesterday was confined to sweeps over Northern France by Spitfires and attacks on German shipping off the Dutch coast. The French targets were not named, but coastal watchers saw fighter planes heading toward Calais and Boulogne and heavy explosions were heard.

Nazis Warn French Workers

Will Brand as Outlaws Those Who Refuse to Work for Reich

LONDON, July 20 (AP).—The Vichy radio in a broadcast recorded by Reuters, made a "last minute appeal" to French workers today to report for work in Germany or be branded as outlaws.

"Today is your last chance," said the radio, referring to the last of the four days grace granted by Chief of Government Pierre Laval for French workers to report for wor. "If you don't report, you will be outlaws and both you and your families will suffer heavily," Frenchmen were warned.

Gen. K. A. N. Anderson Promoted

LONDON, July 20 (AP)—The official London Gazette announced today that Maj. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson, commander of the British First Army, had been promoted to the rank of lieutenant general, dating from Jan. 22, 1943. He has been acting with a rank of temporary lieutenant general.

Turkey Gets Nazi Trucks

Germans Also Report Shipment of 15 Locomotives to Istanbul

LONDON, July 20 (AP).—The German-controlled Paris radio reported today that Germany recently delivered to Turkey fifteen railway locomotives and 150 trucks under terms of a trade agreement. A similar delivery will be made within a few days, said the broadcast, which was recorded by The Associated Press. It also reported that 4,000 tons of machinery and 10,000 tons of other products—including chemicals—recently were shipped to Turkey from Germany.

Swiss Hear Action Is Taken In Reprisal For Shooting Of German Lieutenant

[By the Associated Press]

At the German-Swiss Frontier, July 20—Fifty French citizens were executed in Paris last week in retaliation for the shooting of a German lieutenant, trustworthy information reaching this Swiss area from the former French capital revealed today.

One of the fifty escaped while marching to the shooting ground. He immediately was replaced by a man picked from the crowd of spectators, it was reported.

Hostage executions were said to have been carried out at regular intervals in an effort to offset sabotage, but since the Axis occupation of the entire country they rarely are announced.

Nazis Keep Hungary On Job

Bern, Switzerland, July 20 (AP)—Nazi pressure is keeping Hungary half way on the job for the Axis despite the Hungarian Government's effort to follow its new policy of non-belligerency until the end of the war, Balkan quarters said today.

While Hungarian combat troops were withdrawn from the eastern front last winter after heavy losses, other Hungarian units still are maintaining guard along railways stretching from the frontier into Poland and toward the East.

Communiques published in the press of occupied eastern areas sometimes speak also of Hungarian parachute units but these apparently are small in number.

Nazi Troops Reported Bound For Dodecanese

Izmir, Turkey, July 20 (AP)—A new German brigade was reported today moving down the Ægean Sea in the direction of the Dodecanese islands.

The first units of the brigade, which was reported to include all battle elements, were said to have reached Rhodes in the Dodecanese on July 10 and the remainder was said to be following steadily.

Strike at Enemy's Rear in Heavy Fighting in Taihang Mountains

CHUNKING, July 20 (AP).—A Chinese communique reported today that heavy fighting had been in progress for ten days in the Taihang Mountains from which the Japanese launched their Abortive offensive this spring along the Yangtse River toward Chungking.

The Japanese, backed by planes and "superior armament," were said to have been repulsed, and the Chinese said they now were striking at the enemy's rear.

Chinese Catholic Paper Advises Italian Surrender

CHUNGKING, July 20 (AP).—The Chinese Catholic newspaper Social Welfare today expressed the hope that the bombing of Rome would stimulate the Italian people to "wake up and live for Italy and Roman civilization."

The paper urged that the Italians heed the call of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill for an honorable capitulation. It regarded the bombing of Rome as a forerunner of the invasion of the Italian mainland.

The Army Journal Sao Tang Pao, said most of the Italian people would prefer to live for Italy and civilization, but that the Fascists have chosen the "unfortunate alternative of death."

"The only language that Mussolini and his followers understand," it said, "is that of might. The Allies have, therefore, let their bombs talk."

U. S. FLYERS BOMB FRENCH INDO-CHINA

By Associated Press.

The Tokio radio reported in a Hanoi dispatch today that the United States Air Force in China had bombed the Tonking area of French Indo-China on Sunday and Monday. No details were given except that the French Indo-China administration had announced that ten persons were killed and forty wounded.

3 JAP WARSHIPS SUNK BY BOMBERS OFF NEW GEORGIA

JUL 21 1943

Latest Attempt to Relieve Munda Smashed by Allied Air Power.

BLOCKADE TIGHTENED

Overwhelming Pressure Is Maintained to Seal Fate of Jap Base.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Wednesday, July 21—(AP) Three more Japanese warships sank to a coral-fringed graveyard in waters around New Georgia in the Solomons early yesterday morning — victims of American bombs — as air, land and sea forces maintained overwhelming pressure to seal the doom of the beleaguered enemy at Munda.

American Liberators, Mitchells and Avenger bombers thus beat off the latest attempt by the Japanese navy to bring assistance through to their hard-pressed comrades on Munda, General Douglas MacArthur said in today's communique.que:

"The tightening investment of Munda has now rendered supply or reinforcement of the enemy dangerous and difficult. A slow but constant deterioration of his beleaguered garrison can be expected unless our blockaded ring can be broken."

22 Jap Ships Sunk

Repulse of the fourth Japanese naval attempt to run the steadily-tightening American sea and air gauntlet into Munda brought the official toll of enemy military shipping losses in Solomons waters to:

Sunk — Three cruisers, 13 destroyers, one submarine chaser, five cargo vessels and one tanker.

Probably sunk—Five destroyers.

Damaged — Five destroyers and five cargo vessels.

Catalina flying boats picked up the Japanese force of three light cruisers, six destroyers and two transports in the gulf between Vella Lavella and Kolombangara Islands shortly after midnight yesterday, and shadowed the enemy convoy until strong formations of Avengers, Mitchells and Liberators arrived on the scene.

Apparently realizing that darkness failed to conceal their movements, two transports under the protection of three destroyers headed for Vila, Japanese base across Kula gulf from the main island of New Georgia, while the cruisers and remaining destroyers steamed farther offshore to give a flanking cover.

Details of the American air attack were lacking, but the communique declared that surviving ships of the convoy withdrew without reaching its objectives, after losing three warships and probably a fourth.

Four Planes Lost

Two Avengers and two Mitchells failed to return from the smashing attack.

A strong formation of Dauntless dive-bombers ,in close support of ground troops closing the trap on Munda, again battered Japanese gun positions along a defense perimeter about two miles east of the big air base.

Ranging farther from the battle area, but in direct support of the Munda drive, Liberator bombers dropped 42 tons of bombs on the enemy in the Buin-Faisi area.

A spokesman at Allied Headquarters disclosed, meantime, that the Japanese had launched nine counter-attacks since the Allies captured Mubo, south of Salamaua on New Guinea, July 16, and all had been repulsed.

Advancing Australians and Americans in that sector, he said, found 300 fresh graves which were believed to contain the bodies of Japanese killed during the concentrated air assault which preceded occupation of Mubo.

Jap Macassar Base Struck by Liberators; Factories, Docks Hit

Planes Range 2,000 Miles to Strike City In Celebes Islands

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 20.—For the second time since the Japanese overran the Netherlands Indies, Allied bombers have made a daring, long-distance attack on the enemy's major base at Macassar.

A great fleet of Liberators flew 2,000 miles, round trip, Sunday night and left mnay fires towering above the big harbor city on Celebes. There was no report on the extent of damage done, but some of the fires, started along the waterfront, in the factory area, and on the airdrome, could be seen 80 miles away.

At the other end of the long Southwest Pacific battlefront, American troops enlarged their beachhead with a limited advance at Lilio, about three miles east of the Japanese key Central Solomons airdrome at Munda. The communique said 179 Japanese were killed. American losses were described as light.

Avenger and Dauntless bombers pounded Japanese positions north of Munda airdrome and at Bairoko on Kula Gulf, while Mitchells machine-gunned the enemy on the beaches between Munda and Lambeti.

On New Guinea Allied ground forces cleaned out another Jap strongpoint on the slopes of Mount Tambu, near Salamaua, wiping out 82 Japanese. Allied ground troops were supported by aircraft.

Heavy and medium bombers again pounded the Kahili and Ballale airdromes in the Buin-Faisi area, starting three large fires. Latest reports on the heavy blow struck there Sunday said 21 enemy fighters were shot down against a loss of 10 planes. First accounts listed enemy losses at 13, the Americans' at four. One American plane was missing after the latest raid.

The Liberator assault on Macassar caught the Japanese flatfooted. The town was well lighted and there was no antiaircraft fire as the first flight of four-engined bombers swept over the target.

How many planes participated in the mission was not disclosed, but the number was great enough to keep bombers over the taregt for five hours. Their base also was not mentioned, but Darwin, Australia, is about 1,000 miles from Macassar. The communique reported no losses.

The first raid on Macassar was made in daylight June 23. Thirty-eight tons of bombs were dropped and the Japanese radio, as heard later in Australia, implied heavy damage had been done.

A medium bomber on reconnaissance duty yesterday blasted a 40-foot section out of a bridge over the Francisco River. The bridge connected Salamaua with its airdrome.

Here's a War Story That Should Make Gene Tunney Happy

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 20 (A. P.).—Forced down in the jungle far from any Allied base, Fighter Pilot Fred Burley applied the technic he used as track coach at Upsala College, Orange, N. J., to win over the natives who came to his rescue.

Lieut. Burley returned yesterday from a week in the jungle with a fantastic story of teaching his black-skinned friends modern setting-up exercises.

On a mission to Salamaua July 11, Burley's P-39 developed trouble and Burley crash-landed on the beach without injury.

The pilot feared he was near the Japanese and became alarmed when small natives came running to the spot. They turned out to be friendly small boys, who soon brought friendly big boys who asked Burley to teach them games.

During the four-day stay with the natives, he taught them calisthenics and they showed appreciation. They helped Burley dismantle the guns and other plane equipment and carry them thirty miles on foot to an Australian patrol, which arranged the American's return to his base.

Burley said:

"I tried to teach them real games but what they wanted and enjoyed most was calisthenics. So it was up and down, up and down, day after day."

P. S.—Gene Tunney, foremost advocate of calisthenics in preference to sports as physical training, should be glad to know about this.

Investigator Comes Smiling Through Alaskan Initiation

By WILLIAM L. WORDEN,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND.—His job was serious enough to keep him for more than a month on bloody Attu Island, but Lt. Robert D. Orr, of Evansville, Ind., has about given up hope of being taken seriously by anybody in Alaska or—if his reputatio ngets out—back in Washington, D. C.

The reasons are simple: He spent all his time on Attu collecting souvenirs and he tests sleeping bags.

Lt. Orr, with a Yale diploma, a lieutenant's commission in the Quartermaster General's office in Washington and a winning grin, arrived in Alaska months ago. Alaska has been investigated by experts for years, and civilians and Army alike have developed a definite feeling on the subject.

Two systems generally are accepted: (1) Show the investigator nothing and send him back on the first transportation, or (2) show him so much, so roughly and so fast, that he will immediately begin crying to be put on the first transportation away from this land of mosquitos, bogs and fog.

Given No. 2 Course.

Lt. Orr's credentials arrived before he did, and System Two was immediately decided on. Transportation officers routed him immediately to Amchitka, one of the most-weathered of the weathered Aleutian Islands. In addition, a message was sent ahead to this effect: "This is another investigator. Make sure he is assigned to quarters which will give him an idea of what Amchitka is really like. We suggest a pup tent."

So Lt. Orr lived in a pup tent on Amchitka in March. Some mornings he got up without difficulties, and other mornings he had to shovel snow away from the door of the tent. A few officers had quonset huts, many had winterized pyramidal tents with floors—but Lt. Orr had a pup tent.

He fooled the Amchitka garrison not only by thriving but by coming up smiling every morning to the mess hall half a mile away across the snowy tundra, even when the wind was 60 or 70 miles an hour.

Loses Greenhorn Rating.

After a couple of weeks the officers stationed there took Lt. Orr off their greenhorn list, dubbed him the "pup tent man" and put him down as "rugged," which is Alaskan for an approved soldier.

Then he was assigned to go to Attu—to collect, of all things, complaints and souvenirs. The complaint assignment was clear: He was to solicit and evaluate complaints about American equipment.

To a man, the forces attacking Attu rubbed thehir collective hands. Nothing so delights an American soldier or officer as to complain endlessly about the muckleheads who designed the things he takes into battle. Here was an opportunity not likely to be repeated in a lifetime of soldiering.

So for weeks, whenever a new unit returned from the front some one in it yelled for Lt. Orr. Their greeting to him was almost uniform: "Hey, Orr, let me tell you about this blankety-blank, misbegotten, half-baked, miserable——" (here they filled in anything and everything from boots to tractors).

Lt. Orr took it and grinned. Grinned and wrote down the complaint if it seemed to have any justification.

Sought Jap Equipment.

His third and most important assignment was, of course, the collection of Japanese equipment—insofar as possible, at least one each of everything the Japanese soldier ate, wore or used in battle. Just the simple collecting involved poking into hundreds of grenaded Japanese dugouts, pawing over endless piles of moldy Japanese stores, digging through heaps of discarded and filthy Japanese clothing.

He might have expected that this could be done behind the lines, but Lt. Orr had not reckoned with the American soldier, of whom somebody said, "the German fights for the Fuehrer, the Jap for the Emperor and the American for souvenirs."

"I had to get up there first," Lt. Orr said, "or a couple of hundred soldiers would beat me to everything useful."

But in the end he collected piles of everything—soy bean cakes, bayonets, rifles, fur-lined leggings, even the thousand stitch belts most Japanese soldiers wear as a sort of luck charm around their stomachs. Some of the things he got easily enough, and some things could be found only on the bodies of Japanese dead. Lt. Orr spent a month at the job, only to return to headquarters and be greeted as a souvenir hunter.

Was Tester En Route.

But even this did not compare to his already-established reputation as a sleeping-bag tester. Before leaving Washington, he was equipped with a number of items which have been offered to the Army but not yet included in general issue to troops. Among these were special shoe pacs, a waterproofed tent of a new type—and a special cold-weather sleeping bag which the Quartermaster General's department was considering.

On the way to Attu, like a number of other junior officers and observers, Lt. Orr was assigned a cot on the hatch cover of an Army transport. There was nothing for any of them to do en route, nowhere to go in the cold, foggy weather except below decks to the hatch cover. Once there, no one had any place to sit or lie except on a cot.

For most of the occupants this was no great hardship. But Lt. Orr made the mistake of telling some of his hatch-cover roommates that the sleeping bag was being tested. And never again did he have a chance even to sit down without being asked, "Going to do some more testing, eh, Orr?"

It was just the sort of a joke that flowers on a transport. Lt. Orr was accused of sleeping 24 hours a day just to give the bag a good test. Reports were demanded of him and whenever he left for a breath of air his roommates insisted he was neglecting his duty.

"It followed me off the ship, too," Lt. Orr says. "I've been over half of Alaska since then and everywhere I go the first people I meet say, 'Oh, you're Orr, the bag tester, aren't you?' If it ever gets back to Washington I'll never live it down."

It would be a shame if it got back—or the companion fact that observers on the transport organized the Sad Sack Club, its motto, "Run for your lives." The vice president? Well, who else but a sack tester?

JAP LAND IS BOMBED IN PARAMUSHIRO RAID

JUL 21 1943

First Blow at Kurile Group Starts Fires on Shore, Wrecks Buildings and Scores Near Misses on Harbor Shipping.

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—The Navy announced today that Liberator heavy bombers, winging over the Japanese side of the North Pacific, had bombed the enemy base of Paramushiro Monday, starting fires and scoring near hits on shipping.

The big Army planes were described as a formation, which may have been a dozen or so. They apparently operated from the American base of Amchitka in the western Aleutians. It is 861 nautical miles from Amchitka to Paramushiro.

This is the first raid in which bombers of the American North Pacific Force have struck so closely to Japan proper. Paramushiro is at the northern end of the Kurile chain, which runs south like an arrow pointing to Tokio, about 1,200 miles away. The attack puts pressure on Japan's northern defense positions in co-ordination with the offensive against New Guinea positions far to the south.

There were reports here last week that American planes had delivered their long expected attack on Paramushiro and Secretary Knox was asked at a press conference whether he could comment. He declined to affirm or deny the reports.

The communique announcing the precedent-setting raid also disclosed that in the central area of the South Pacific Japanese planes bombed Canton Island Sunday without causing personnel casualties or material damage.

Canton had previously been attacked in a night raid March 25. It is in the Phoenix group southwest of Pearl Harbor and about 650 nautical miles north of Samoa.

Also on Tuesday a formation of Army heavy and medium bombers attacked the Japanese positions on Kiska Island in the Aleutians, directly northwest of Amchitka. The blows were directed at the enemy's main camp area and his defenses about Gertrude Cove. Due to overcast, results were not observed.

A spokesman, discussing the Paramushiro raid, said that the flyers got a great break in the clear weather. They were able to pour destruction on their targets with precision. Paramushiro, like the Aleutian islands in the north central Pacific, is fog-bound. The spokesman also said there were some indications that wooden buildings at the base were knocked down as part of the damage accomplished.

The northernmost of the Kurile Islands of any importance is about twelve miles wide by fifty-five miles long. It is rugged and dotted with mountain peaks going up nearly 6,000 feet. The military positions are reported to be on the northern tip of the island where a strait separates Paramushiro from Shumushu Island, which at its northern end is but a few miles from the Russian Peninsula of Kamchatka.

Psychological Value, Too.

What the Japanese have at Paramushiro has never been reported. Presumably they have installed airfield facilities, since during the battle of Attu their planes twice showed up to attack American shipping and must have come from the vicinity of the northern Kuriles.

Equally as important as any direct military damage, in the opinion of observers here, is the psychological value of not only threatening, but actively attacking the Japanese along the northern arch of their defenses as well as in the south.

Navy Court Convicts U. S. Sailor Bandits

Perth, Australia, July 20 (AP)—Conviction by a general court-martial of two United States Navy sailors who turned bush bandits was announced today.

Last May the young sailors—Henry A. Newling, 18, and Merle G. Wells, 19—stole rifles and horses and became the objects of one of the most intense manhunts of the western Australia bush country. They threatened police who attempted to arrest them but surrendered when shots were fired over their heads.

Newling was sentenced to fifteen years in prison at Portsmouth, N. H., and Wells to nine years. Both were dishonorably discharged.

SIX YEARS OF WAR SEEN IN PACIFIC

JUL 21 1943

Navy Projecting Plans for Victory by 1949, Says Admiral, Bomb Jap Outpost.

WASHINGTON, July 20 — (AP) The Navy publicly projected six more years of war against Japan today, and within the hour announced that great Liberator bombers, striking far beyond their Aleutians base on the short route to Tokyo, had damaged heavily the strategic enemy outpost of Paramushiro.

This bastion is on the northernmost of the Kurile islands which stretch south 700 miles like a dagger pointing to the Japanese mainland. To raid Paramushiro, American planes of the North Pacific command made their first announced attack mission over the enemy side of the Pacific.

Issuance of the battle report so soon after a press conference set up by Secretary Knox to knock down false optimism in this country suggested that if there are to be six more years of Pacific fighting, as Vice Admiral Frederick J. Horne intimated to the conference, they will be spent largely in Japan's own waters.

Admiral Horne, stressing this prospect, said that from here on the American Navy would be working all over the ocean while Japan would be fighting on steadily shortening interior lines. Moreover, the admiral, who is vice chief of naval operations, said the United States must build island bases from the ground up as it advances, and it must be prepared for the heavy fleet losses always expected in offensive operations.

Four Outline Situation

Admiral Horne was one of four persons who discussed the war situation and its relation to munitions production at Secretary Knox's press conference. The others were Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the War Production board; James V. Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy; and Mr. Knox.

Secretary Knox himself declared that we are "already feeling the effects" of overoptimism about the war's end. He said that these effects are apparent in a drop in production.

Tonight in a broadcast speech over C.B.S., Secretary Knox strongly emphasized the same point.

He reported "a steady loss of production in war plants, now in its third month" and "a steady rising wave of optimism, based on an almost criminally careless belief that the war has already been won."

"I can tell you, with the utmost sincerity at my command, that these two factors will bring about the cruel and unnecessary deaths of many thousands of Americans in uniform if they are not checked in time," he said.

Asserting that "our best naval and military brains are now planning for battles which may have to be fought in 1949," Secretary Knox asserted "we can win before that time," but added:

"But we can assure ourselves that this war will last even longer if our efforts to win it are sabotaged by those who carelessly believe it already has been won."

Complacency Blamed

At the press conference complacency was blamed for production lags.

Mr. Wilson reported that the aircraft industry should produce 8,500 planes in July because it had the facilities, materials and manpower to reach that scheduled peak. However, he said, there is every prospect that it will fail to achieve the goal. Secretary Knox blamed this on complacency which he said robbed workers of their "will to produce."

Sevenfold Increase

Mr. Forrestal said that, in line with plans for a long and costly war in the Pacific, the Navy has laid out on paper and started in production a fleet with a tonnage about seven times that of the huge naval force already afloat.

Admiral Horne said that the fleet expansion program had been laid down for completion in 1947 but that the Navy had projected its plans two years beyond that time to provide for replacements and repairs.

The communique telling of the attack on Paramushiro gave few details. It said that a number of fires were observed and that Japanese ships in nearby Paramushiro straits suffered a number of near hits.

12 Planes in Raid

The Liberators taking part in the raid, which was delivered 860 nautical miles west of the American base on Amchitka in the Aleutians, were described officially as "a formation." Naval spokesmen did not state the number of planes but such a group was otherwise interpreted authoritatively to mean probably about 12 bombers.

The spokesman did report that the attacking planes had an unusually lucky break in getting clear weather over their targets so that precision bombing was possible. He said there was some indication that wooden buildings ashore were knocked down.

The day before the Paramushiro attack a group of Liberators teamed with Mitchell and Ventura medium bombers to blast the Japanese main camp area and Gertrude cove on Kiska island, only a short distance northwest of Amchitka. Overcast weather prevented observation of results in that attack.

Start of New Pressure

From these two actions it was evident that American forces would not have to wait upon conquest of Kiska to take advantage of their position in the western Aleutians to bring pressure on Japan's northern flank. In fact the attack on Paramushiro gave every evidence of marking the beginning of such pressure, to be applied through a campaign of bombings and possibly surface ship raids coordinated with the offensive conducted by General Douglas MacArthur and Admiral William F. Halsey against Japanese positions in the southwest Pacific.

The Kiska raid was carried out Tuesday. Also on Tuesday, in the south central Pacific, several Japanese planes attacked Canton island, American outpost southwest of Pearl Harbor and about 650 nautical miles north of Samoa. Canton was raided previously on the night of March 25. The Navy said that in this second attack several planes dropped bombs but did not cause damage either to personnel or materiel.

Burma Road a Long Project

The communique, covering fighting over such scattered areas, served to emphasize Admiral Horne's insistence that the longer the war goes on the greater will be Japan's advantage insofar as relative distances are concerned. The admiral was asked about the possibility of attacking the Japanese through China with munitions and men moved in over the Burma road. There has been considerable "wishful thinking" about the Burma road, he said, declaring that first the road has to be opened by driving the Japanese out of Burma and after that troops and supplies have to be delivered to Burma and dispatched into China.

Admiral Horne said victory over Japan would be complete only when American troops marched into Tokyo. He implied clearly that the Navy phase of the fight would be a base-by-base advance with progress determined to some extent at least by the speed with which each new advance position could be built up for the next push.

Secretary Knox said that because of the Sicily operations and other favorable developments there has been an awful lot of very foolishly optimistic talk on the early ending of the war."

"Nothing could be worse for ultimate victory," he said, "than to promote the idea that the war is completely over because we are having minor successes in the early stages."

Just Silly Talk

Informed military opinion, the secretary declared, is that we have not yet even started to dig into the enemy's main fortresses and that it is "just silly" to talk about winning in Iurope when Hitler still possesses probably the best trained army in the world and has reserves of manpower and materials.

Admiral Horne said there could be only guesses on how long the European war would last. He declared there had been a good deal of wishful thinking in expectation of a collapse of Germany and expressed the opinion that because of indoctrination with Hitlerism there would be no such breakdown of morale among German youth as in 1918.

Admiral Horne did not actually estimate how long the war in the Pacific would last but said that "we're planning on needs for materials and ships for a war that will last at least until 1949." The emphasis was on readiness to carry on no matter how long it might be necessary.

The admiral said that this country, in his opinion, already has a larger fleet in the Pacific than the Japanese but he said it would have to be twice as big with airpower twice as strong before it can slash a path right to Japan.

Idea War's Already Won 'Almost Criminal'—Knox

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Secretary Knox in a broadcast tonight reported "a steady loss of production in war plants now in its third month" and "a steadily rising wave of optimism, based on an almost criminally careless belief that the war has already been won."

"I can tell you, with the utmost sincerity at my command," the naval chief continued, that these two factors will bring about the cruel and unnecessary deaths of many thousands of Americans in uniform if they are not checked in time."

Liberators Raid Paramushiro

Earlier in the day the navy projected six more years of war against Japan and within an hour announced that great Liberator bombers, striking far beyond their Aleutians base on the short route to Tokyo, had damaged heavily the strategic enemy outpost of Paramushire.

This bastion is on the northernmost of the Kurile islands which stretch south 700 miles like a dagger pointing to the Japanese mainland. To raid Paramushiro, American planes of the North Pacific command made their first announced attack mission over the enemy side of the Pacific.

Asserting that "our best naval and military brains are now planning for battles which may have to be fought in 1949, Knox, in his broadcast, asserted "we can win before that time," but added:

"But we can assure ourselves that this war will last even longer if our efforts to win it are sabotaged by those who carelessly believe it already has been won."

Lags Laid To Complacency

At the afternoon press conference, complacency was blamed for production lags.

Issuance of the battle report so soon after a press conference set up by Secretary Knox to knock down false optimism in this country suggested that if there are to be six more years of Pacific fighting, as Vice-Admiral Frederick J. Horne intimated to the conference, they will be spent largely in Japan's own waters.

However, he said, there is every prospect that it will fail to achieve the goal. Knox blamed this on complacency which he said robbed workers of their "will to produce."

To Expand Fleet Sevenfold

Forrestal said that in line with plans for a long and costly war in the Pacific, the navy has laid out on paper and started in production, a fleet with a tonnage about seven times that of the huge naval force already afloat.

Admiral Horne said that the fleet expansion program had been laid down for completion in 1947, but that the navy had projected its plans two years beyond that time to provide for replacements and repairs.

The spokesman did report that the attacking planes had an unusually lucky break in getting clear weather over their targets so that precision bombing was possible. He said there was some indication that wooden buildings ashore were knocked down.

Preceded By Attack On Kiska

The day before the Paramushiro attack a group of Liberators teamed with Mitchell and Ventura medium bombers to blast the Japanese main-camp area and Gertrude Cove on Kiska Island, only a short distance northwest of Amchitka. Overcast weather prevented observation of results in that attack.

From these two actions, it was evident that American forces would not have to wait upon conquest of Kiska to take advantage of their position in the western Aleutians to bring pressure on Japan's northern flank.

Japs Attack Canton Island

The Kiska raid was carried out Tuesday. Also on Tuesday, in the South Central Pacific, several Japanese planes attacked Canton Island, American outpost southwest of Pearl Harbor and about 650 nautical miles north of Samoa. PIERCE GETS NAVY CROSS

Commander of Submarine Argonaut Honored While Missing

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—The Navy Cross has been awarded by Secretary Knox to Lieut. Commdr. John R. Pierce, who was commander of the lost submarine Argonaut.

Commander Pierce, 36, is listed as missing in action. His wife lives at the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn. The loss of the submarine was announced by the Navy several months ago after the vessel had gone down in battle with a Japanese surface force.

"Upon sighting a hostile convoy escorted by destroyers and aircraft," his citation said, "Lieutenant Commander Pierce, while maneuvering his ship to a striking position, discovered that the Argo-

"Fighting desperately to extricate his ship and her crew from a critical encounter, he pressed home an aggressive counter-attack on the surface, severely damaging a Japanese destroyer before his own vessel, her guns still blazing defiantly, eventually went down under a deadly concentration of enemy fire."

Canadian Chosen Head Of Food Commission

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—L. B. Pearson, minister counselor of the Canadian legation here, today was chosen permanent chairman of the United Nations Interim Commission on food and agriculture.

The commission, representing forty-four countries, was formally organized today to draft plans for a post-war world freed from hunger.

It was recommended by the recent United States food conference. Pavel I. Tchegula of the Soviet Union and Tsou Ting-wen of China were named vice-chairmen.

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—The War Department made public today the names of 155 United States soldiers wounded in action in the Aleutian, European, Middle Eastern, North African, Pacific and southwest Pacific areas. The list includes the names of New York and New Jersey men, with their next of kin:

A.F.L.-C.I.O. UNION DRAWS CLOSER AFTER LONG TALK

JUL 21 1943

Lewis Confers for Three Hours with Federation Leaders.

WASHINGTON, July 20 — (AP) Reaffiliation of the United Mine Workers of America with the American Federation of Labor appeared a step nearer today following a three-hour conference between John L. Lewis and executives of the A.F.L.

Mr. Lewis and his United Mine Workers left the A.F.L. more than five years ago, when the mine union leader started the C.I.O. His recently-filed application for reaffiliation is to be acted on by the A.F.L. executive council when it meets next month in Chicago.

Daniel J. Tobin, A.F.L. vice-president who heads a three-man committee studying the Lewis application, told reporters the outlook for reaffiliation "looks somewhat better" after today's meeting.

Asked what he thought about the outlook," Mr. Lewis handed reporters a brief statement asserting that "in the interest of unifying the policies of organized labor" the U.M.W. "has proposed reaffiliation" and "in doing so it accepts the American Federation of Labor as it now exists, and expects the American Federation of Labor to accept the United Mine Workers of America as it now exists."

Silent on Jurisdiction

Neither Mr. Lewis nor Mr. Tobin would say whether jurisdictional obstacles had been settled, or even discussed, or whether another meeting would be necessary before the Chicago session.

The U.M.W. Mr. Lewis said in his statement, "under present conditions has no interest in questions of hypothetical jurisdiction," and "after the fact of reaffiliation, any and all questions of jurisdiction having a factual or realistic premise can be considered procedurally" by the A.F.L.

Principal jurisdictional problems are understood to revolve around the A.F.L progressive Miners' union, now a U.M.W. rival, and the disposition of non-mining unions in District 50 of Mr. Lewis' organization.

A reporter's question about whether Mr. Lewis' insistence that the A.F.L. accept the U.M.W. "as it now exists" meant that the A.F.L. would have to recognize the right of the U.M.W. to break labor's no-strike pledge brought from Mr. Tobin a terse reply that the conferees "didn't go into the question of strikes."

Anyhow, the A.F.L. spokesman added, the U.M.W., not being a member of the A.F.L. at the time of the coal strike, was not bound by the A.F.L. no-strike pledge.

Detroit Prelate Voices Regret At Rome Raid

But Archbishop Mooney Says Italy Could Have Avoided It by Declaring City Open

DETROIT, July 20 (AP).—Asserting that the war must be won in the hearts and minds of men as well as on land, on sea and in the air, the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit, expressed "surprise and regret" today that Allied military authorities had taken the moral risk involved in bombing Rome.

At the same time the Archbishop, who is chairman of the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said the Italian government could have prevented the danger to Rome's "priceless monuments of religion and culture" had it declared Rome an open city and acted "in sincere conformity with that declaration."

Archbishop Mooney's Statement

The text of Archbishop Mooney's statement:

"In a broad view of the war and its issues, it is a matter of surprise and regret that our military authorities felt constrained to take the moral risk involved in the bombing of military objectives in Rome. No one, of course, will take seriously the crocodile tears of Fascist propaganda. The Fascist government could have given absolute and unfailing protection to the priceless monuments of religion and culture which make the capital of modern Italy a city unique in all the world; it could have declared Rome an open city and acted in sincere conformity with that declaration.

"On the other hand, no one can fail to be impressed by the elaborate precautions which our military authorities took to avoid damaging what all men of culture hold dear and hundreds of millions of Christians hold sacred.

"But with full weight given to these considerations, the sense of surprise and regret remains. The city of Rome is the episcopal see of one who, more than any other man on earth, worked and prayed and pleaded to save mankind from war's desolation and destruction; who preached more insistently than any other man on earth the principles of justice and charity that would have insured peace with honor to all nations.

Cites Pope's Links to City

"Vatican City is, indeed, the symbol of his moral independence and supra-national status; but Rome, and not merely Vatican City, is his diocese; St. John's in the Lateran, not St. Peter's in the Vatican, is his cathedral; the agencies of his world-wide spiritual administration are not concentrated in the Vatican but scattered throughout the city of Rome, which for centuries was his city as well as his see; the shrines of Christian Rome are his special care, the historic monuments of ancient Rome, the treasures of art which make almost every street a museum have come down to us through the custody of his predecessors.

"He has pleaded insistently for the preservation of this unique heritage from the dangers of war. Millions have prayed that his plea would prevail. His plea was flagrantly disregarded by those who made the environs of Rome an apparently safe arsenal. It has, indeed, been literally respected in the detailed instructions which governed the precision bombing of military objectives in the immediate vicinity of the Eternal City.

"But one shudders to think of the moral risks which have been taken. This war will not be won merely on land or sea or in the air; it must be won in the hearts and minds of men. A stray bomb released by mistake over Rome may do moral harm to our cause that far outweighs the military value of the most accurate destruction of enemy supplies.

"May we not hope at least that, having shown the ineffectiveness of enemy strategy in hiding supplies under the cover of sanctity and culture, we will not subject to further risk the moral idealism that distinguishes and ennobles our cause?"

AXIS SMUGGLER IS SEIZED BY FBI

British Subject Sent Platinum to Enemies, Says Hoover

JUL 21 1943

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20 — (AP) Harold Ebury, accused by the FBI of heading a platinum smuggling ring for the Axis, was indicted by the Federal grand jury today on a charge of violating censorship rules.

The 45-year-old native of England, who recently lived with his wife and son in an elaborately-furnished home on the Monterey peninsula, is held in jail in Salinas, Calif.

His arrest was reported in Washington by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who said Ebury's detention plugged a leak through which the Axis was believed to have obtained more than 7,000 grams of platinum.

Mr. Hoover said Ebury, formerly a sergeant in the Royal Air Force and still a British subject, had admitted violating censorship by using code in communications regarding alleged smuggling of platinum purportedly purchased illegally in Colombia and sent to Buenos Aires for shipment.

Ebury also was engaged in "black market" dealings in the American dollar in South America, the FBI said. Restrictions in some countries prohibit the possession or spending of such dollars to prevent the Axis from unloading those seized in European countries.

His bail was fixed at $10,000 and a hearing set for Saturday.

No Objection To Rome Raid Is Seen By Bishop

Lincoln, Neb., July 20 (AP)—The Most Rev. Louis Kucera, bishop of the Lincoln Catholic diocese, said today he believes there can be no objection to the Allied bombing of military objectives wherever they are found.

"Rome, after all, does not belong to the Catholics alone," the bishop commented. "Its great treasures belong to the entire world—to all humanity.

"Everybody regrets the bombing of Rome. Everybody regrets the bombing of any city. But it becomes necessary in time of war."

Mrs. Roosevelt Recounts Narrow Escapes of Elliott

Reveals Son Had Two Close Calls on Plane Trips

SEATTLE, July 20 (AP).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt told wounded sailors and marines today of two close calls her son, Colonel Elliott Roosevelt has undergone.

With her daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, she toured the Seattle Naval Hospital and stopped to chat with nineteen-year-old R. L. Carmine, of San Antonio, Tex., an aviation radioman, third class. He escaped injury in an Aleutians plane crash but broke his hand three days later.

"I am very interested in wartime's curious coincidences," she said.

"My son, Elliott, wrote me only recently of two such coincidences. Only fifteen minutes after he landed in England the tail dropped off his plane. And, on the return trip to Africa, the wind blew the plane into a transport ship, completely demolishing it, but my son was not injured. More than ever, I say, it's all luck."

Mrs. Roosevelt had a word of encouragement and a handshake for every sailor and marine in each of the seven wards.

Duke of Windsor Visits Miami on Business

ICKES ACQUITS BRAIN TRUST

JUL 21 1943

Any Breakdown In Running Of War Chargeable To Drafted Businessmen, He Says

Tells N. Y. Club New Dealers Aren't Responsible For Badly Oiled Machinery

(By the Associated Press)

New York, July 20—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, said today that drafted businessmen were running the war, and "if the war program has broken down at any point . . . it hasn't been chargeable to the 'brain trusters,' to the 'New Dealers' or to the 'bureaucrats.'"

"It isn't the New Dealers who have been running this war," he said in an address before the Sales Executive Club. "I challenge anyone to name names and fix responsibilities. If I know anything about Washington it is that businessmen who have been drafted have been running the war—men like Knudsen, Nelson, Stettinius and many others whom I might mention. And while you are pondering this fact, consider also that many of the most influential and busiest executives in this Administration were never New Dealers. Nor are they now."

Great Names Called

Ickes said the "toughest job" of converting to war purposes fell to the Federal Government, and commented that the President "did not turn the job of conversion over to a New Dealer 'bureaucrat' such as myself."

"He summoned to Washington some of the greatest names in industry and put the owners of them to work. I have sometimes ventured to think—all by myself, of course—that this sudden and great influx of men, who, while highly competent in their own fields, were inexperienced and untrained in and unsympathetic wtih Government procedures, was not as well advised as it appeared to be.

"The clankings, the screechings, of badly oiled machinery, the clashings of one war endeavor against another may have at least somewhat been due to the fact that new hands were undertaking work that they did not know too much about.

Absolves New Dealers

If the war program has broken down at any point, if it has failed to keep the pace that had been hoped for, it hasn't been chargable to the "brain trustees," to the "New Dealers," or to the 'bureaucrats.'"

Ickes asserted that many of the large corporations were bureaucracies and said "they would rattle themselves to pieces if they were not."

"I not only deprecate, I deplore, monkeyshines in Congress and the miscalling of signals by public officials that disturb the peace of mind of the people and lead them to suspect that a revolutionary outburst may be in the making," he continued, adding:

"We believe this fight is worth the making, but it is only worth the making in that degree that we shall desist from uncritical criticism, if we shall cease from assailing the Government, without which we cannot hope to win the war, with words of defamation, with phrases of discredit, with jeers at those who are working day and night, wisely or stupidly, up to the very limit of their physical strength and their nervous energy."

Scores Gag

Ickes, asked during a question period about conflicting governmental announcements concerning the gasoline situation, said that as Petroleum Administrator he should make announcements on gasoline and oil supplies.

"If I am not competent to advise the country, the President should fire me," he said. "So long as I am Petroleum Administrator I ought to give out information on gasoline. Then you would not have one thing today and another tomorrow."

In response to another question, Ickes said he would continue to collect union dues as administrator of coal mines involved in contract wage disputes between operators and the United Mine Workers. He said a provision in the administrative order turning the mines over to him called for the continued collection of dues.

He also asserted, in reply to another question, that he did not favor Government ownership and control of the country's basic fuel resources.

Synthetic Fuels

Steps have been taken, he said, to further plans for the manufacture of synthetic gas from coal and shale. Ickes predicted, when questioned on opinions that the nation had only a visible oil supply for thirteen or fourteen years, that the United States was on the threshold of becoming an oil-importing nation rather than an oil-exporting one.

He further said that the New York barge canal had been used "to its full capacity" in bringing oil to the East.

GOP Post-War Policy Group Names Committee

New York, July 20 (AP)—The Eastern conference of the Republican Post-War Policy Association today appointed a committee to urge Harrison E. Spangler, National Republican Chairman, to have the committee of forty-nine formulate a statement of international post-war cooperation.

Mayo A. Shattuck, of Boston, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, was named chairman of the association's committee. Other members are Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, of New York, Eastern vice-president of the association; Mrs. Frances Burke Redick, of Newington, Conn., secretary of State for Connecticut, and Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa.

Earlier the association had adopted resolutions urging present planning for "an organization of nations to assume full responsibility in maintaining world peace," and action by Republican Congressmen "to sponsor and support Congressional action pledging cooperation by the United States in world affairs."

Lady Halifax Sponsors Aircraft Escort Vessel

Ambassador Praises Work of Craft in U-Boat War

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20 (AP).—Lady Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador, sponsors the aircraft escort vessel Natoma Bay today at Henry J. Kaiser's Vancouver shipyard.

It was one of three launchings in honor of the visit of Viscount and Lady Halifax. A tanker and a Liberty ship were launched at other Kaiser yards.

Speaking at the Vancouver launching the Ambassador said "When the history of this war is written the history of the seaways will rank among the epics of all time."

Lord Halifax showed great interest in the carrier, one of a new type recently appraised by the Navy as highly successful in convoy escort work. The Ambassador remarked that such new weapons contributed importantly toward cracking the Axis submarine offensive in May, when thirty U-boats officially were reported sunk in the Atlantic.

Launching in Maine

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., July 20 (AP).—The Liberty freighter Nelson Dingley, named for the former owner of the "Lewiston Journal," who served Maine as Governor and Congressman, was launched today at the yard of the New England Shipbuilding Corporation. Mrs. Elinore Bye Smith, widow of Ellstad Smith, a former yard employee, who died while serving with the Army at Fort Knox, Ky., sponsored the 10,500-ton craft.

AXIS THREATENS TO AVENGE ROME

Dr. Paul Schmidt, German Foreign Office spokesman, was quoted by the Berlin radio today as threatening Axis retaliation for yesterday's bombing of Rome and saying:

"The enemy will then appeal in vain to the conscience of the world or to humanity—as he will also point in vain to cultural monuments and institutions of Washington, New York or London."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, quoted Dr. Schmidt as saying: "The day will come for which every one in Germany and Italy is waiting—the day which we are determine will come; the day of revengeful retaliation when the cup of hatred will finally overflow."

Dr. Schmidt explained that his declarations "should not be regarded as an appeal to world opinion but as an expression of iron determination to retaliate," the broadcast concluded.

HEADS JAP AIR FORCE

Lieut.-Gen. Prince Gin Ri, head of the former Royal House of Korea, has been appointed commander of the Japanese Army's Air Force, according to a War Ministry announcement broadcast today by the Tokio radio and recorded by the Associated Press. He succeeds Lieut.-Gen. Kumaichi Teramoto, whose new assignment was not announced.

Prince Ri is the first Korean to rise so high in the Japanese military service and his promotion appears to some observers to be a gesture seeking Korean support for the Japanese war effort.

After Japan annexed Korea in 1910 the Korean Royal House was given the status of a collateral branch of the Japanese Imperial Family and Prince Gin Ri, then heir to leadership of the House, was married to a Japanese princess.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The canker of dissatisfaction is gnawing so ravenously at Italy that Anglo-American strategic directives for the Mediterranean front may already be outmoded by events.

It would cause no surprise if Allied military staffs should hold a meeting in the near future to reshape and speed up the attack plans. The campaign that has all but pried Sicily loose from the Axis grip and shaken mainland Italy has taken a matter of days instead of weeks. It was mapped before Tunisia started to blow up in a sudden collapse of Axis resistance.

The underside of the Axis has proved far softer at the first test than Prime Minister Churchill possibly could have foreseen last November when he coined the phrase to epitomize Allied strategy in seizure of French African bases. If it leads quickly to internal Italian disintegration, further revision of Anglo-American battle plans to take prompt advantage of that break would seem indicated.

And the chances that it will are reflected in Italian troop mutinies in Sicily and wholesale surrenders.

There is every reason to believe that the Allies are already busy with schemes to cut the time lag further in pushing the attack on the foe promptly, in conjunction with the widening Russian offensive. These plans probably deal not only with Europe but more distant war theaters upon which current events in the Mediterranean have an important bearing.

Jap Trends Significant

The fast-paced rush of larger actions in Europe has tended to obscure the hardly less significant developments in the far Pacific. A no less critical Japanese weakness in materiel, if not in morale or fighting stamina, is being proven there.

A reshaping and acceleration of the MacArthur-led sea-air-ground attack, now spreading over a 1,000-mile long east-west front from the Strait of Macassar between Borneo and the Celebes to the northern Solomons, seems likely to take advantage of that development.

The American-Australian offensive in the Solomons-New Guinea area appears to be primarily an attrition maneuver and if that is true it has already been startlingly successful. The enemy has lost a score or more warcraft and many score planes as against relatively inconsequential American losses in either category. Yet he has not dared risk his main fleet strength in a sea action that could be decisive.

Rejects Challenge

Tokyo has refused what Mr. Churchill called "the supreme challenge" of sea power, which argues that Japanese war lords know it could mean only defeat.

The Japanese island perimeter now being probed discloses the lack also of adequate plane strength. There has been much evidence of enemy air establishments set up in many places. But when the test came the planes were not there. They could not be spared from other fronts including Japan itself, or from Burma where by every sign a massive British sea-air-ground offensive is brewing for the post wet-monsoon period in fall.

The pinch of the tragic "too little and too late" shoe is on the other foot now in the far Pacific. Tokyo has thus far sent small boys to market by sea and air, endeavoring to sneak reinforcements or supplies to beleaguered garrisons at Munda or in New Guinea, or trying to disrupt the Allied atttack by inadequate air formations.

It has paid a heavy price for that in ships and lives—and there is every indication Japan cannot replace her air and sea losses. As she dare not risk her main fleet. The only alternative is to shorten her defense lines. That would mean retreat, and the beginning of the end for Japan, as an Italian collapse must mean the beginning of the end for Nazi Germany.

FIRST LEAD CHURCHILL

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL TOLD COMMONS TODAY THAT DESPITE SOME POSSIBLE SECURITY OBJECTIONS GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER HAD AGREED TO A CANADIAN REQUEST THAT OFFICIAL REFERENCE WOULD BE MADE TO THE CANADIAN FORCES TAKING PART IN THE INVASION OF SICILY.

SINCE THEN, CHURCHILL SAID, "THE FULLEST TRIBUTE HAS BEEN PAID IN ALL PUBLIC STATEMENTS HERE AND ELSEWHERE TO THE VALIANT AND SUCCESSFUL PART THE CANADIAN 1ST DIVISION IS TAKING IN THIS ENTERPRISE."

THE PRIME MINISTER REPLIED TO A QUESTION BY F.C.R.DOUGLAS, LABORITE, WHO ASKED, "WHETHER HIS ATTENTION HAS BEEN DRAWN TO THE STATEMENT BY PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING OF CANADA ON THE LACK OF RECOGNITION OF THE PART PLAYED BY CANADIAN TROOPS IN THE SICILIAN

CHURCHILL SAID HE HAD HAD A "VERY AGREEABLE EXCHANGE OF TELEGRAMS" WITH THE CANADIAN PRIME MINISTER ON THE SUBJECT "AND THE MISUNDER-STANDING FOR WHICH NO ONE IS TO BLAME CAN NOW BE REGARDED AS CLOSED." HE PAID TRIBUTE TO "THE REST OF THE POWERFUL CANADIAN ARMY IN THIS COUNTRY WHO FOR MORE THAN THREE YEARS HAVE GUARDED THE CENTER OF THE EMPIRE FROM INVASION."

(MACKENZIE KING ANNOUNCED IN OTTAWA LAST WEEK THAT HE HAD APPEALED TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO MAKE SURE THAT CANADIANS WERE TO BE MENTION-ED IN THE EARLY COMMUNIQUES ON THE SICILIAN LANDING.

(MR.ROOSEVELT AGREED AND THE FIRST COMMUNIQUE FROM GEN. EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS ON THE MORNING OF JULY 10 SHORTLY AFTER THE INVASION BEGAN MADE IT CLEAR THAT TROOPS OF THREE COUNTRIES, BRITAIN, CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES, HAD DEBARKED ON SICILY'S BEACHES.)

(NO PICKUP)

BY E.C.DANIEL

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-SIGNS OF MUTINIES AMONG THE ITALIAN TROOPS IN SICILY, AS ANNOUNCED IN AN ALLIED NORTH AFRICA HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE, TODAY GAVE THE FIRST STRONG OFFICIAL INDICATION THAT THE INTENSIVE ALLIED MILITARY AND PROPAGANDA OFFENSIVE AGAINST ITALIAN MORALE IS BEGINNING TO TAKE EFFECT.

JUL 21 1943

EVIDENCE OF A SHARP INCREASE IN THE LONG-RUMORED ITALIAN RESENTMENT AGAINST GERMAN OVERLORDS APPEARED IN AN ANNOUNCEMENT THAT "THERE ARE MANY INDICATIONS OF MUTINIES BY ITALIAN TROOPS COMMANDED BY GERMAN OFFICERS." PRESENT IN ITALY FROM THE BEGINNING, THIS FEELING FIRST BECAME PLAINLY NOTICEABLE WHEN GERMANS BEGAN DESERTING ITALIAN TROOPS

30.24-6353

AT THE EL ALAMEIN LINE IN EGYPT LAST NOVEMBER.

THERE WERE REPORTS FROM NORTH AFRICA TODAY THAT AT LEAST ONE ITALIAN COMPANY HAD SHOT ITS GERMAN OFFICER, WHO TRIED TO DISSUADE THEM FROM SURRENDERING, AND CAPITULATED IN A BODY.

UNITED STATES TROOPS HAVE SAID THAT HUNDREDS OF THE ENEMY HAVE BEEN GIVING THEMSELVES UP IN WESTERN SICILY, AND SOME LONDON QUARTERS ESTIMATED THAT THE NUMBER OF PRISONERS ALREADY WAS TOTALLED 45,000, EXCLUSIVE OF DEAD AND WOUNDED.

BY COMPARISON, ITALIAN TROOPS IN TUNISIA WERE REPORTED IN FIELD DISPATCHES TO HAVE PUT UP A MUCH BETTER FIGHT, AT LEAST UNTIL THEIR ORGANIZATION WAS DISRUPTED, THEIR AIR COVER GONE, THEIR COMMUNICATIONS CUT AND FURTHER RETREAT PRECLUDED.

JUL 21 1943

ALL REPORTS REACHING LONDON TODAY INDICATED THAT THESE CONDITIONS OF DEFEAT WERE RAPIDLY BEING FULFILLED IN SICILY. AMERICANS ALREADY HAVE CUT THE MAIN EAST-WEST RAILWAY AT CALTANISSETTA, AND WERE REPORTED, WITHOUT OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION, TO HAVE PIERCED THROUGH TO ENNA, WHICH WOULD SEVER THE MAIN EAST-WEST ROAD, ALSO.

A PARIS RADIO BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS PRESENTED A POSSIBILITY THAT THE AMERICANS MIGHT THRUST THROUGH QUICKLY TO THE TYRRHENIAN SEA, THUS CUTTING OFF THE GERMANS, WHO HAVE BEEN FIERCELY RESISTING THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN THE EAST, FROM THE ITALIANS IN THE WEST.

THE CAPTURE OF PORTO EMPEDOCLE, FROM WHICH ROADS AND RAILWAYS LEAD TO MARSALA, TRAPANI AND PALERMO, CLOSED ANOTHER AVENUE OF REINFORCEMENT AND ESCAPE TO THE AXIS FORCES. THE FACT THAT ALLIED

WARSHIPS HAVE BEEN SHELLING SHORE INSTALLATIONS WITH VIRTUAL IMPUNITY ALSO SUGGESTED, AS IN TUNISIA, THE IMPOSSIBILITY OF ANY DUNKERQUE.

BY LYNN HEINZERLING

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-THE FALL OF TUNISIA, THE GREAT ALLIED AIR ASSAULT ON THE RUHR IN JUNE, AND NOW THE FIRST AIR ATTACK ON ROME HAVE BROUGHT THE VOICE OF DOOM TO AXIS PEOPLES--BUT NOT A WORD OF COMFORT FROM ADOLF HITLER OR BENITO MUSSOLINI.

NEITHER OF THESE AXIS LEADERS HAS APPEARED PUBLICLY TO REASSURE FOLLOWERS SINCE THE HARASSED DUCE APPEARED BRIEFLY AS TUNISIA TOTTERED MAY 5. THEN HE DECLARED: "GOD IS JUST. ITALY IS IMMORTAL. WE WILL CONQUER."

JUL 21 1943

NEWS CONCERNING THE TWO LEADERS WHO ONCE BOASTED SO VOLUBLY OF VICTORY TO COME HAS BEEN SO COMPLETELY BLACKED OUT FOR WEEKS THAT THEY COULD HAVE DISAPPEARED FROM THE EARTH.

MOST SURPRISING OF ALL, MUSSOLINI NEGLECTED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE ROME BOMBING FOR ONE OF HIS USUAL ATTACKS ON THE "DECADENT, LAWLESS DEMOCRACIES." ALMOST EVERY BRITISH NEWSPAPER ASKED, "WHERE IS MUSSOLINI?"

THE EVENING NEWS PARODIED THE "DON'T TALK" POSTERS AROUND TOWN WITH ONE DEPICTING HITLER AND MUSSOLINI WITH THEIR FINGERS ON LIPS AND UNDERLINED, "BE LIKE HITLER AND MUSSO AND KEEP MUM."

ABSENCE OF NEWS OF THE FUEHRER AND IL DUCE LED TO SPECULATION IN SOME QUARTERS THAT THEY MIGHT BE MEETING SOMEWHERE TO CONSIDER THE DISASTROUS TURN THE WAR HAS TAKEN FOR THEIR ARMIES. HOWEVER, NEITHER THE FALL OF TUNISIA NOR THE SUCCESSFUL LAUNCHING OF THE ALLIED ATTACK ON SICILY BROUGHT THEM FROM SECLUSION.

THEY LAST MET APRUL 7-10. AT THAT TIME A COMMUNIQUE FROM THE FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, WHERE THE CONFERENCE WAS HELD, SAID THEY HAD REACHED "COMPLETE AGREEMENT ON ALL MEASURES TO BE TAKEN IN ANY RESPECT." THIS PRESUMABLY WOULD INCLUDE THE DARK DAYS FACING ITALY.

THEIR CONTINUED ABSENCE CONTRADICTS FIRM ASSURANCES FREQUENTLY GIVEN BY BOTH HITLER AND MUSSOLINI THAT SHOULD LEAN DAYS COME THERE WOULD BE NO WEAKNESS ON THE PART OF THE LEADERS. THERE IS NO REPORT THAT HITLER VISITED THE DEVASTATED RUHR DISTRICTS AFTER THE AERIAL OFFENSIVE.

HITLER-MUSSOLINI (SUBS FOR UNDATED IN AMS BUDGET)

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-ADOLF HITLER AND BENITO MUSSOLINI, PRODDED BY THE SPECTER OF AN ACTUAL LAND INVASION OF EUROPE AS ALLIED TROOPS STORMED THROUGH SICILY, HAVE HELD THEIR FIRST ANNOUNCED MEETING SINCE LAST APRIL, THE GERMAN RADIO SAID TONIGHT.

BESIDES THE DISCLOSURE THAT THE CONFERENCE WAS HELD YESTERDAY IN A NORTH ITALIAN CITY, A GERMAN HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID "MILITARY QUESTIONS WERE DISCUSSED."

JUL 21 1943

A POLITICAL COMMENTATOR FOR DNB, THE OFFICIAL GERMAN NEWS AGENCY, DISCUSSED THE COMMUNIQUE IN TERMS OF PROBABILITY THAT EVENTS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AREA AND THE "DESPERATE ONSLAUGHT" OF THE RUSSIANS IN THE EAST MUST HAVE BEEN REVIEWED

THE AXIS LEADERS LONG HAVE BEEN SILENT ON THE TURN OF THE WAR, EVEN THE FALL OF TUNISIA, THE DEVASTATION OF THE RUHR AND THE BOMBING OF ROME FINDING THEM STRANGELY QUIET FOR AXIS LEADERS WHO HAD BEEN QUICK TO UNLEASH FLOODS OF ORATORY WHEN THE WAR HAD A DIFFERENT ASPECT.

THE GERMAN RADIO COMMENTATOR, WHOSE BROADCAST WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, ADVISED HIS LISTENERS, HOWEVER, THAT "HITLER

3024-6355

AND MUSSOLINI, IN THEIR CAPACITY AS SUPREME COMMANDERS OF THEIR ARMED FORCES, WILL HAVE DECIDED ALL COUNTERMEASURES" TO EVENTS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

"THE EFFECTS OF THE DECISIONS MADE BY HITLER AND MUSSOLINI," HE PROMISED, "WILL BE SEEN SOON. THEY WERE MADE BY THE TWO MEN RESPONSIBLE FOR THE FATE OF EUROPE."

JUL 21 1943

WHEN THE TWO AXIS CHIEFTAINS MET FROM LAST APRIL 7 TO 10 AT HITLER'S HEADQUARTERS, IT WAS ANNOUNCED THEN THEY HAD REACHED "COMPLETE AGREEMENT ON ALL MEASURES TO BE TAKEN IN ANY RESPECT."

BUT CONTINUING MILITARY DISASTER FOUND THEM SILENT.

AS TUNISIA TREMBLED BEFORE ITS FALL, MUSSOLINI MADE A BRIEF APPEARANCE MAY 5. "GOD IS JUST," HE TOLD HIS PEOPLE. "ITALY IS IMMORTAL. WE WILL CONQUER."

TWO DAYS AFTERWARD, IN A QUASI-STATE OCCASION FURNISHED BY THE FUNERAL FOR VIKTOR LUTZE, STORM TROOP CHIEF OF STAFF WHO WAS FATALLY INJURED IN AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT, HITLER SPOKE DOLEFULLY OF THE NAZI PARTY LOSSES IN THE WAR BUT DECLARED GERMANY HAD "ACHIEVED WHAT WE FOUGHT FOR --- A REICH MADE SECURE AGAINST ITS ENEMIES X X X."

THE BRITISH PRESS, EXPRESSING WONDERMENT AT WHAT HAD BECOME OF THE AXIS LEADERS, HAD TAKEN TO POKING FUN AT THEM.

THE LATEST WAS A CARTOON POSTER PARODYING THE "DON'T TALK, THE ENEMY IS LISTENING" PLACARDS. IT DEPICTED HITLER AND MUSSOLINI WITH THEIR FINGERS TO THEIR LIPS. THE POSTER CARRIED THE PRINTED ADMONITION: "BE LIKE HITLER AND MUSSO AND KEEP MUM."

THE POSTER STILL HAD ITS POINT. DESPITE THE COMMUNIQUE, HITLER AND MUSSOLINI THEMSELVES REMAINED MUM MORE THAN 24 HOURS AFTER THE MEETING.

SECURITIES RISE (NEW)

BY JAMES B.KING

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-ALLIED VICTORIES ARE BRINGING A CURIOUS TWIST TO THE LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE WITH A MARKED RISE IN PRICES OF SECURITIES OF ENEMY AND OCCUPIED COUNTRIES WHICH COULD NOT BE SOLD AT ANY PRICE A FEW YEARS AGO.

FINANCIAL CIRCLES SAID TODAY BUYERS APPARENTLY WERE BANKING ON QUICK DEFEAT OF THE AXIS--HOPING EUROPEAN COUNTRIES STILL WOULD HAVE ENOUGH MONEY IN THE "KITTY" TO MEET OBLIGATIONS OF THEIR BONDHOLDERS.

ACTUAL TRANSACTIONS IN THE MARKET, HOWEVER, HAVE NOT BEEN VERY LARGE, PROBABLY BECAUSE OF THE WARTIME LIMITATION THAT DEALINGS BE ON A STRICTLY CASH BASIS.

TYPICAL EXAMPLES OF THE TREND ARE:

ITALIAN CREDIT 7 PER CENT STERLING BONDS HAVE JUMPED FROM 18 TO 42 1/2;

GERMAN 5 PER CENT STERLING BONDS HAVE RISEN RECENTLY FROM 3 3/4 TO 12 1/2;

JAPANESE 4 PER CENT 1889 BONDS NOW ARE 17--FOUR TIMES THEIR WORTH A YEAR AGO;

JUL 21 1943

GREEK 7 PER CENT 1924 BONDS WHICH HAVE BEEN AS LOW AS EIGHT, NOW ARE 29.

CREDIT IN A FEW OCCUPIED COUNTRIES SINCE THE START OF WAR HAS BEEN MAINTAINED AT A FAIRLY HIGH LEVEL--ESPECIALLY IN NORWAY, WHICH WAS ABLE TO SAVE ITS TREASURY.

THE STOCK MARKET RECEIVED CALMLY YESTERDAY NEWS OF THE BOMBING OF ROME AND REPORTS OF CONTINUED ALLIED ADVANCES IN SICILY AND RUSSIAN PROGRESS ON THE EASTERN FRONT. DEMAND WAS GOOD FOR SOME INDUSTRIALS AND TEXTILES ADVANCED, BUT NO EXCEPTIONAL MOVEMENTS WERE REPORTED.

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-AXIS PROPAGANDA BROADCASTS SAID TODAY THAT POPE PIUS XII HAD PROTESTED TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AGAINST THE AMERICAN RAID ON ROME YESTERDAY.

A BERLIN BROADCAST SAID MONSIGNOR GIOVANNI BATTISTA MONTINI, VATICAN UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE, HAD AN INTERVIEW WITH AMERICAN CHARGE D'AFFAIRES Harold Tittman IN THE VATICAN A FEW HOURS AFTER THE RAID. THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE CONFIRMATION FROM ANY OTHER SOURCE.

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-A NEW GERMAN GUN OF EXCEPTIONAL RANGE HAS SHELLED THE ENGLISH SOUTHEAST COAST THREE TIMES RECENTLY FROM THE FRENCH COAST ACROSS THE CHANNEL, IT WAS LEARNED TODAY.

THE GUN IS REPORTED TO HAVE A GREATER RANGE THAN ANY THE GERMANS ARE KNOWN TO HAVE CONCENTRATED NEAR CALAIS--THE NEAREST POINT TO ENGLAND.

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-THE BERLIN RADIO REPORTED TODAY THAT THE SUPREME COMMANDER OF ITALIAN MILITARY POLICE AND HIS CHIEF DEPUTY HAD BEEN KILLED DURING YESTERDAY'S AIR RAID ON ROME.

THEY WERE IDENTIFIED IN THE BROADCAST AS A GENERAL HAZON AND A COLONEL BARENCO.

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-GEN.HENRI GIRAUD, CO-CHAIRMAN OF THE FRENCH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION, ARRIVED IN GREAT BRITAIN TODAY FROM CANADA.

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-THE BERLIN RADIO SAID TODAY THAT A RUSSIAN EMPHIBIOUS FORCE HAD ATTACKED THE COAST OF VARANGER FJORD IN EXTREME NORTHERN NORWAY.

THE BROADCAST SAID THE RUSSIANS HAD ATTEMPTED A LANDING ON THE COAST SOUTH OF CARDOE ON THE PENINSULA WHICH JUTS OUT INTO THE BARENTS SEA TOWARD FISHER PENINSULA, THE MOST NORTHWESTERNLY POINT OF THE SOVIET UNION.

THE ATTACK WAS BEATEN OFF, THE BERLIN ACCOUNT SAID, , AFTER SOVIET LANDING CRAFT WERE SHELLED BY SHORE BATTERIES WHICH SANK OR DAMAGED MANY OF THE VESSELS.

THE GERMANS PREVIOUSLY HAD REPORTED THE PRESENCE OF RUSSIAN PLANES OVER THE PENINSULA, WHICH ARCS EASTWARD INTO THE BARENTS JUST NORTH OF THE FINNISH BORDER.

RAILWAY GUARDS ARE ARMED BUT ARE NOT OFFICIALLY REGULAR GROUPS. THE PARACHUTISTS APPARENTLY ARE VOLUNTEERS, THUS PERMITTING PREMIER NICOLAS KALLAY TO STATE THAT HAVING BROUGHT BACK THE REGULAR COMBAT UNITS OF THE ARMY FROM THE EAST, THE NATION HAD BECOME NON-BELLIGERENT.

TO MAKE THIS POLICY MORE NEARLY COMPLETE, EFFORTS HAVE BEEN MADE TO WIN RELEASE FROM THE GUARDING TASK BUT WITHOUT SUCCESS. NEVERTHELESS, HUNGARIAN QUARTERS SAY THE GOVERNMENT IS TAKING WHAT STEPS IT CAN TO KEEP AWAY FROM ANY ACTUAL FIGHTING.

A GOOD MANY JEWS STILL HOLD JOBS. SOME OTHERS ARE IN LABOR CAMPS, HOWEVER, AND THE GOVERNMENT POLICY STILL IS OFFICIALLY ANTI-SEMITIC BUT WITH MODERATION IN EXECUTION.

MOST BALKAN OBSERVERS CONTINUE TO BELIEVE THAT HUNGARY WOULD GET COMPLETELY OUT OF THE WAR TOMORROW IF SHE COULD BUT THAT SHE FEELS HERSELF HELPLESS TO DO ANYTHING AT THE MOMENT.

THESE OBSERVERS BELIEVE INVASION OF THE BALKANS OR COLLAPSE OF ITALY WOULD ENCOURAGE MORE DIRECT HUNGARIAN ACTION TO GET OUT OF THE WAR.

MOSCOW, JULY 20-(AP)-RUSSIAN SIEGE GUNS WERE BLASTING THE PIVOTAL NAZI BASTION OF OREL FROM THREE SIDES TODAY AS THE RED ARMY TIGHTENED ITS SEMI-CIRCLE AROUND THE FORTRESS, DISPATCHES FROM THE FRONT SAID TODAY.

WEST OF OREL A POWERFUL SOVIET COLUMN PENETRATED 30 MILES INTO THE GERMAN REAR AS FAR AS ILINSKOYE, SCOOPING IN 130 MORE VILLAGES, BRINGING TO 240 THE TOTAL TAKEN SINCE THE RUSSIAN COUNTER OFFENSIVE BEGAN.

JUL 2 43

WHILE THE SOVIET COMMUNIQUE REPORTED ONLY A MODEST ADVANCE OF FROM FOUR TO SIX MILES, IT INDICATED HOW FURIOUSLY THE GERMANS ARE RESISTING WITH THE DISCLOSURE THAT THE RUSSIANS REBUFFED 12 ENEMY COUNTER ATTACKS DURING THE DAY.

(THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE SAID THE RUSSIANS WERE BEATEN BACK IN HEAVY FIGHTING YESTERDAY, WITH 562 TANKS DESTROYED BY NAZI LAND TROOPS SUPPORTED BY UNITS OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE.

(HEAVY SOVIET ATTACKS ON THE KUBAN BRIDGEHEAD WEST OF KRIMSKAYA WERE FRUSTRATED, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, ADDING THAT OTHER DRIVES ON THE MIUS RIVER AND MIDDLE DONETS SECTORS WERE ALSO HALTED AFTER HARD FIGHTING. HEAVY DEFENSIVE FIGHTING CONTINUED IN THE OREL SECTOR, BUT THE NAZIS WERE ABLE TO BEAT BACK THE HEAVIEST TANK AND INFANTRY ATTACKS LAUNCHED BY THE RED ARMIES, THE COMMUNIQUE ASSERTED.

(THE GERMAN NEWS AGENCY, DNB, ESTIMATING RUSSIAN LOSSES SINCE JULY 5, SAID THE NAZIS HAVE DESTROYED 4,800 TA... 1,018

MOSCOW, JULY 20-(AP)-TASS REPORTED FROM GENEVA TODAY THAT THE GREATER PART OF ITALIAN OCCUPATION TROOPS STATIONED IN THE HAUTE-SAVOIE DEPARTMENT OF FRANCE ADJOINING SWITZERLAND HAVE BEEN TRANSFERRED TO ITALY.

LARGE ITALIAN INFANTRY UNITS, ARTILLERY AND TANK DETACHMENTS WERE SAID TO HAVE POURED THROUGH ANNECY STATION BEGINNING TWO DAYS AGO EN ROUTE TO THE ITALIAN FRONTIER.

TASS SAID IT WAS INFORMED THAT THE ITALIAN COMMAND SHIFTED THE GARRISONS FROM FRANCE TO ITALY EVEN THOUGH THE GERMANS INFORMED THEIR ALLY THAT THEY WOULD BE UNABLE TO INCREASE THEIR OWN OCCUPATION FORCES IN THE HAUTE-SAVOIE.

IN THE ATTACK ON FONDACO, LIEUT.J.P.FERNANDEZ OF FAYETTEVILLE, ARK., LITERALLY BOMBED HIMSELF OUT OF THE SKY WHILE DIVE-BOMBING TWO TRAINS IN A SIDING. HE WAS LAST IN A FORMATION OF FOUR A-36S AND AS HE PULLED OUT OF HIS DIVE A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION OCCURRED WHICH BLEW THE TAIL OFF HIS SHIP AND STARTED THE MOTOR OVERHEATING.

FERNANDEZ MANAGED TO GET HIS PLANE BACK TO WITHIN 20 MILES OF THE ISLAND OF PANTELLERIA WHERE HE HAD TO BAIL OUT. HE WAS PICKED UP 15 MINUTES LATER BY AN RAF SEA RESCUE PLANE.

"I SAW THE BOMBS LAND," FERNANDEZ SAID, "AND A SECOND LATER THERE WAS THE BIGGEST EXPLOSION I HAD EVER SEEN. THOSE TWO TRAINS WERE SIMPLY SPLINTERED AND DISAPPEARED. BUILDINGS NEARBY WENT UP TOO. SO DID I."

THESE NEW TYPES OF FIGHTER-BOMBERS HAD A BZMITAR BUT LESS SERIOUS EXPERIENCE OVER NINFA, A TOWN 25 MILES EAST OF MARSALA ON THE WESTERN COAST. THE AMEGICAN A-36 PILOTS, NOTING CONSIDERABLE ACTIVITY AROUND A LARGE BUILDING, DIVED AND LET GO WITH THEIR BOMBS. WHEN THEY WERE NEARLY TWO MILES AWAH AND A MILE HIGH IN THE AIR, THE BUILDING SUDDENLY EXPLODED. THE AMERICAN FORMATION WAS BUFFETED AND TOSSED AROUND BY THE DISTANT BLAST.

THE BOMB-CARRYING MUSTANGS ALSO HIT A RAILWAY BRIDGE AT PORTOTOLO AND ATTACKED RAILWAY YARDS NEAR TRAPANI. THEY SHOT UP A TRUCK CONVOY NEAR ALCAMO AND A PILOT SAID HE SAW ONE VEHICLE VE[illegible] SIDEWAYS AND PLUNGE OVER A CLIFF.

MITCHELLS UNLOADED 46 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES ON R[illegible]AZZO, VITAL ENEMY COMMUNICATIONS CENTER JUST ACROSS MT.ETNA FROM CATANIA, AND SCORED TWO DIRECT HITS ON A ROAD BRIDGE THERE. THEIR BOMB PATTERN PASSED SQUARELY THROUGH THE CENTER OF THE TOWN AND C[illegible] SAW HUGE SMOKE SCREENS WHICH THEY BELIEVED WERE RISING FROM AN OIL OR GASOLINE DUMP.

CAPT. CLYDE L.GROW OF ARKANSAS CITY, KAS., SAID: "YOU COULD SEE FIRES IN THE MARSHALLING YARDS 15 MILES AWAY."

"ONE OF THE FIRES WAS THE BIGGEST I EVER SAW," SAID LIEUT. HENRY A. MCENROE OF 221 GREEN ST., LOCKPORT, N.Y.

LIEUT. ROY BROWN OF 3179 E. 130TH ST., CLEVELAND, O., AN OBSERVER ABOARD A MARAUDER BOMBER, SAID: "OUR BOMBS ON AN AIRDROME LOOKED JUST LIKE PATCHES OF CAULIFLOWER. I SAW FIVE TWIN-ENGINED PLANES CATCH FIRE AND EXPLODE ON THE GROUND."

THE YOUNGEST PILOT ON THE RAID WAS LIEUT. ROSCOE NEMER OF 637 REIS AVE., EVANSVILLE, IND. HE IS 19 YEARS OLD. JUL 21 1943

THE LONE VICTORY FOR MITCHELL BOMBERS WAS CREDITED TO SERGT. J.B.SMITH OF 923 MAIN ST., WOBURN, MASS., A TURRET GUNNER. HE SHOT DOWN A MACCHI 202.

FLYING HIS FIRST MISSION WAS PRIVATE JACK A.PICOZZI OF PALMDALE, CALIF., WHOSE FATHER WAS BORN IN ROME.

"I ALWAYS WANTED TO SEE THOSE ROMAN RUINS," PICOZZI SAID. "I FINALLY SAW THEM, PLUS SOME NEW ONES WE MADE."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 20-(AP)-THE IDENTITY OF THE EIGHT AMERICAN AIRMEN WHO DESTROYED AN ENTIRE FORMATION OF 15 JUNKERS-52 TRANSPORTS OFF THE COAST OF SARDINIA WAS MADE KNOWN TODAY.

THE SHARP-SHOOTING PILOTS DOWNED THE FORMATION SUNDAY WHILE PROTECTING BRITISH SEA RESCUE WORK.

THEY WERE SECOND LIEUT. LLOYD O.HENDRIZ, 2432 QUINCY AVE., KANSAS CITY, MO., WHO DESTROYED FOUR OF THE JUNKERS; CAPT. HERBERT E.ROSS, STOCKTON, CAL.; FLYING OFFICER PAUL H.WILKINS, BILLINGS, MONT.; FIRST LIEUT. SYDNEY W.WEATHERFORD, SAN MARCO, TEXAS; FLYING OFFICER JACK HOMAN, VENTURA, CAL., EACH OF WHOM DOWNED TWO; AND FIRST LIEUT. DONALD M.LIEGHTON, WELLS, NEV., FIRST LIEUT. ORSON T. SMITH, 3800 CENTRAL AVE., KANSAS CITY, MO., AND SECOND LIEUT. RICHARD E. JENNINGS, 122 GUTHRIE ST., DALLAS, EACH CREDITED WITH A SINGLE PLANE.

THE AXIS EVIDENTLY WAS THROWING A LARGE FORCE INTO CATANIA AND LEFT [illegible] DEFENSE OF THE CATANIA AREA, AS IT IS THE BEST-DEFENDED CITY BETWEEN AUGUSTA AND MESSINA.

FARTHER NORTH, THE RUGGED MOUNTAIN COUNTRY CROWNED BY MT.ETNA, WAS CONSIDERED LIKELY MORE FORMIDABLE THAN ANY FIXED DEFENSE.

THE CONQUEST OF CATANIAN AIRFIELDS SHOULD GIVE COVER FO. ADVANCE IN THAT SECTOR. JUL 21 1943

TODAY I WENT ASHORE AT AUGUSTA, SICILY, WHERE I FOUND THAT THE MORE THAN 20,000 INHABITANTS WHO DESERTED THE ANCIENT CITY HURRIEDLY, JUST BEFORE BRITISH FORCES ENTERED, NOW ARE CLAMORING FOR PERMISSION TO RETURN AND ARE BEGGING FOR FOOD.

THEY WILL BE PERMITTED TO RETURN AS SOON AS THE WATER SYSTEM IS REPAIRED. AUGUSTA PRESENTLY IS WITHOUT WATER.

IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT 2,000 PERSONS RECEIVED FREE MEALS YESTERDAY BUT THAT 5,000 MORE HAD TO GO WITHOUT FOOD AS THE STOCKS SIMPLY WERE INSUFFICIENT TO FEED SUCH A MULTITUDE.

THE POPULATION APPARENTLY FLED INTO THE HILLS IN THE MOMENTS

BEFORE FLEET AND ASSAULT FORCES ENTERED THE TOWN LAST WEEK.

IN NUMEROUS HOMES HALF-EATEN MEALS REMAINED ON THE TABLES AND MOST HOUSEHOLD EFFECTS AND CLOTHING WERE LEFT BEHIND.

IN ONE DESERTED HARBOR PICKET BOAT A DINNER WAS COOKING ON THE STOVE WHEN THE BRITISH MOTOR GUNBOAT CREW BOARDED IT.

ONLY FOUR DECREPIT AUTOMOBILES WERE FOUND IN THE TOWN, THE OTHERS APPARENTLY HAVING BEEN USED FOR THE EVACUATION.

NUMEROUS AUGUSTA STREETS WERE BLOCKED WITH DEBRIS FROM THE BOMBARDMENT BUT THE TOWN QUICKLY WAS BEING CLEARED BY OCCUPATION FORCES.

JUL 21 1943

HARBOR BOATS HAD BEEN IMMOBILIZED BY THE REMOVAL OF SMALL VITAL ENGINE PARTS. THE HARBOR MASTER'S BOAT HAD BEEN SCUTTLED BUT IN WATER SO SHALLOW THAT BRITISH NAVAL MEN WERE ABLE TO ENTER THE CABIN WHERE THEY FOUND THE KEYS TO THE CAPTAIN'S SAFE LYING ON THE TABLE.

SURPRISINGLY, NO BOOBY TRAPS WERE FOUND IN THE TOWN, INDICATING THAT ENTRY WAS SO SPEEDY THAT THE USUAL ELABORATE AXIS EXPLOSIVE DEVICES COULD NOT BE PLANTED.

ONE STRANGE FACT DISCOVERED BY INVESTIGATING OFFICERS WAS THE QUANTITY OF COCAINE AND HEROIN FOUND IN MANY PERSONAL KITS LEFT BEHIND BY ITALIAN OFFICERS, AND THE FINDING OF SIMILAR STOCKS IN NUMEROUS HOMES. APPARENTLY THEY WERE NOT INTENDED FOR FIRST AID HOSPITAL USE BUT FOR PERSONAL USE.

AUGUSTA NOW IS A STRANGE AND PICTURESQUE COLLECTION OF ANCIENT HOVELS AND FINE MODERN FASCIST-BUILT STRUCTURES SET AMID FLOWERING SHRUBS ON A MALL OF PALMS AND LEMON TREES.

THE CITY PROVIDES AN EXTREMELY USEFUL ALLIED PORT. MANY REINFORCEMENTS OF MEN, TANKS, GUNS AND MUNITIONS WERE RUSHED 10 MILES NORTHWARD TO THE FRONT LINES THROUGH THIS PORT.

GOOD NAVAL AND SHORE ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSES MINIZED REPEATED GERMAN ATTEMPTS TO HIT AT THE TOWN AND HARBOR IN AERIAL COUNTERATTACKS.

WITH THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 19-(DELAYED)-(AP)-WITH AT LEAST A THIRD OF SICILY IN ALLIED HANDS, THE CAMPAIGN TO OCCUPY THE STRATEGIC MEDITERRANEAN ISLAND CONTINUES WITHOUT LETUP AS AMERICAN TROOPS IN A STEADY ADVANCE TRIED TO BRING TO BATTLE REMNANTS OF FLEEING ITALIAN LEGIONS.

FAST-MOVING AMERICAN FORCES ARE PUSHING NORTHEASTWARD FROM CALTANISSETTA, PROVINCIAL CAPITAL AND ONE OF THE ISLAND'S MOST STRATEGIC CITIES, IN A DRIVE WHICH IS CHOPPING THE ISLAND IN HALF.

AT THE OTHER END OF THE VAST ADVANCE, THE YANKS ARE SMASHING THROUGH FADING ITALIAN RESISTANCE AS THEY ADVANCE WEST OF AGRIGENTO ON THE SOUTHERN COAST.

AHEAD OF THE AMERICAN FRONT LAY SOME OF THE KEY CITIES OF SICILY, INCLUDING BOMB-RUINED PALERMO, TRAPANI AND MARSALA AND CASTELVETRANO AIRPORT, WHICH WAS ONE OF THE PRIME BASES OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE BEFORE THE ALLIED AIR FORCE BEGAN ITS DEVASTATING ATTACKS.

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN SICILY, JULY 20---SIX AMERICAN SOLDIERS TOO TIRED TO CARE ABOUT ANYTHING ELSE BUT SLEEP, RETURNED FROM GERMAN CAPTIVITY IN SICILY TODAY.

PRIVATE JOHN GORT, OF ROSELAND, MINN., SAID THE ADVENTURE STARTED

AT AN OUTPOST WHEN A FLOCK OF GERMANS SURROUNDED THE LITTLE YANKEE SQUAD.

"ALL DAY WE HAD BEEN WATCHING A TENNIS GAME. THE ARTILLERY SHELLS WERE THE TENNIS BALLS AND ALL SIX OF US WERE RIGHT ON TOP OF THE NET," EXPLAINED SERGT.ROBERT LOWERY OF BEGGS, OKLA.

THE PRISONERS WERE KEPT AT A POINT WHERE THE GERMANS WERE LOADING SUPPLIES, SMALL GUNS AND AMMUNITION ON WAITING TRUCKS.

THEIR ONLY CHOW FOR THE DAY WAS A SINGLE SKINNY SAUSAGE, ONE ORANGE AND SOME BREAD AND WATER.

AFTERWARDS THE TRUCKS PULLED OUT AND THE AMERICANS WERE TAKEN ALONG, ONLY TO BE HANDED OVER HOURS LATER TO A GERMAN CAPTAIN, WHO EXPRESSED IN GOOD ENGLIGH, "THE AMERICAN SOLDIERS HAVE BEEN VERY FAIR."

JUL 21 1943

THE GROUP SEIZED A CHANCE TO RUN AWAY, AND PRIVATE FRED PATTERSON OF INDIANA, PA., GRINNED AT THE RECOLLECTION, "WE DIDN'T BOTHER WASTING ANY TIME ASKING ANY FOOLISH QUESTIONS, THE SETUP WAS SO CRAZY."

AS THE SEXTET STARTED OUT, THEY TOOK THE WRONG WAY TO THE AMERICAN LINES. LUCKILY, PRIVATE PAUL FERRARO, OF WORCESTER,MASS., SPOKE FLUENT ITALIAN AND WHEN THEY STOPPED AT A SMALL TOWN THEY GOT CORRECT DIRECTIONS.

THEY ALSO GOT FOOD AND WINE, HUGS AND KISSES.

"THESE SICILIANS HATED THE GERMANS," SAID FERRARO." THEY BLAMED THE HEINIES FOR BEING THE CAUSE OF THE WAR AND SAID IT WAS THE FAULT OF THE GERMANS THAT THE AMERICANS BOMBED SICILY SO MUCH. THEY HATED MUSSOLINI WORSE THAN ANYBODY. WHEN THEY BADE GOODBYE TO US, THEY SAID ONE THING THAT IMPRESSED ME VERY MUCH. THEY SAID, 'NOW THAT YOU AMERICANS ARE HERE--PEACE WILL COME VERY SOON.'"

WITH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 17-(DELAYED)-(AP)-FOUR LADS WHO LANDED ON SICILY ONLY TWO DAYS AGO--CAPT.JOHN MULLEN OF 512 SOUTH THOMAS, FOREST PARK, ILL., AND HIS TANK CREW--HAVE BEEN BUSIER HERE THAN MUSSOLINI'S LEGIONS THROWING DOWN ARMS WHEN CORNERED BY YANKES.

MULLEN AND HIS CREW LANDED SATURDAY, FOUGHT A TANK BATTLE SUNDAY AND THEN CAPTURED TWO TOWNS TODAY, BEING PART OF THE FIRST TANK REGIMENT TO ENTER BARRAFRANCA AND PIETRAPERZIA. AND THEY TOOK SOME PRISONERS, TOO.

"WE WERE INTENDING TO CAPTURE BARRAFRANCA YESTERDAY AND WERE GETTING READY TO ATTACK ENEMY POSITIONS WHEN MORTARS AND ARTILLERY OPENED UP ON US," SAID MULLEN. "I WAS IN AN ARMORED CAR DIRECTING A TANK PLATOON ASSEMBLED FOR A COUNTER-ATTACK.

"I ORDERED THE TANKS TO TAKE POSITIONS BEHIND A HILL. THE GERMANS ATTACKED US WITH 16 MARK FOUR SPECIALS. MY TANKS KNOCKED OUT THREE MARK FOURS AND ARTILLERY GOT TWO MORE. THE ENEMY RETREATED AND WE ASSEMBLED FOR ANOTHER ATTACK. THAT'S WHEN WE WENT INTO BARRAFRANCA."

JUL 21 1943

THE ENEMY KEPT RETREATING, SO MULLEN AND HIS MEN KEPT AFTER THEM AND TODAY THEY ROLLED INTO PIETRAPERZIA, TO BE GREETED BY WILDLY CHEERING THRONGS.

PRIVATE WILLIAM T.SCHOONOVER OF BINGHAMTON, N.Y., GOT HIS FIRST GERMAN TANK IN YESTERDAY'S BATTLE. OTHER MEMBERS OF MULLEN'S CREW ARE SERGEANT DEAN VAN DONGE OF WALLA WALLA, WASH., AND CORPORAL ANTHONY ZAMPIELLO OF 292 NORTH PASADENA STREET, PASADENA, CALIF.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 21-(AP)-WITHIN 24 HOURS AFTER THEY REACHED A CERTAIN SOUTHEASTERN SICILY WHEAT FIELD, 75 U.S. ENGINEERS TRANSFORMED IT INTO A READY-FOR-USE AIRFIELD, STARS AND STRIPES, AMERICAN SOLDIER NEWSPAPER, REPORTED TODAY.

THE ENGINEERS, UNDER LIEUT.EDWIN MONROE OF TALLADEGA, ALA., BUILT A 5,000-FOOT RUNWAY AND A TAXI TRAIL COMPLETELY ENCIRCLING THE FIELD -- AND PLENTY OF GASOLINE AND AMMUNITION WERE READY AND WAITING.

THE FIELD'S FIRST CUSTOMER WAS A P-40 MAKING A FORCED LANDING BECAUSE OF MOTOR TROUBLE. NEXT CAME A P-38 PILOT WHO HAD BEEN SHOT IN THE ARM BY A MESSERSCHMITT GUN. TWO P-38'S CAME DOWN JUST TO MAKE SURE THEIR WOUNDED BUDDY WAS TAKEN CARE OF. THEN THEY RETURNED TO THE FIGHT.

CAIRO, JULY 20-(AP)-STAFF SERGT. JACK P.SHEPHERD OF BENTON, ILL., WAS CREDITED TODAY WITH SHOOTING DOWN AN ITALIAN TRANSPORT PLANE ON SATURDAY FROM THE LIBERATOR BOMBER IN WHICH HE HAD TAKEN PART IN THE HEAVY RAID ON NAPLES.

THE PLANE WAS PILOTED BY LIEUT. EDWARD MITCHELL OF SIOUX FALLS, IA.

THE TRANSPORT, FLYING AT 14,000 FEET, WAS SIGHTED WHEN THE LIBERATOR WAS ON ITS HOMEWARD RUN. IT WAS SEEN TO CRASH INTO THE BEACH AFTER SHEPHERD'S GUNS HAD BLAZED.

FIRST LEAD BOMBERS

CAIRO, JULY 20-(AP)-AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHS INDICATED TODAY THAT THE LITTORIA MARSHALLING YARDS "WERE COMPLETELY DESTROYED" IN YESTERDAY'S BOMBING OF ROME, A UNITED STATES COMMUNIQUE SAID TODAY.

IT SAID THAT A LARGE FORCE OF LIBERATOR HEAVY BOMBERS OF THE U.S. NINTH AIR FORCE, BASED IN THE MIDDLE EAST, DROPPED NEARLY 330 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVE FOR ITS PART IN THE WAR'S FIRST RAID ON THE ETERNAL CITY.

"A LOCOMOTIVE SHED AND REPAIR SHOPS WERE SHATTERED BY DIRECT HITS WHILE OTHERS POUNDED A RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION BUILDING, SETTING IT ON FIRE."

JUL 21 1943

THIS WAS THE SECOND COMMUNIQUE TODAY ISSUED HERE ON THE RAID.

A BRITISH MIDDLE EAST HEADQUARTERS WAR BULLETIN, THE FIRST TO BE ISSUED, SAID AN AMMUNITION TRAIN IN THE LITTORIA YARDS EXPLODED DURING THE RAID.

THE AMERICAN COMMUNIQUE ALSO MENTIONED THIS INCIDENT, SAYING:

"AN AMMUNITION TRAIN MOVING THROUGH THE YARDS RECEIVED SEVERAL DIRECT HITS AND EXPLODED, CONTRIBUTING TO THE DESTRUCTION."

IT ANNOUNCED THAT AN AIRDROME SEPARATING THE RAILROAD YARDS FROM THE RIVER TIBER ALSO WAS ATTACKED, DIRECT HITS SETTING AFIRE A LARGE HANGAR. AT LEAST TEN OTHER FIRES WERE STARTED IN THE HANGAR AREA WHILE THREE LARGE ENEMY AIRCRAFT ON THE GROUND WERE DESTROYED BY BURSTS, THE WAR BULLETIN ADDED.

"ALTHOUGH ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS INTENSE, ENEMY FIGHTER OPPOSITION WAS FEEBLE, ALL OUR AIRCRAFT RETURNING SAFELY," IT CONCLUDED.

30.24-6363

ON SUNDAY, RAF BEAUFIGHTERS ATTACKED THE SEAPLANE BASE OF PREVEZA IN GREECE, HEADQUARTERS REPORTED.

CAIRO-SECOND ADD BOMBING XXX HEADQUARTERS REPORTED.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID NONE OF THE PLANES FROM MIDDLE EAST BASES WAS LOST IN THE ROME ATTACK. THOSE PARTICIPATING IN THE PREVEZA RAID ALSO RETURNED WITHOUT A LOSS.

AT PREVEZA THE AMERICAN FLIERS SET FIRE TO THREE ENEMY AIRCRAFT ON THE GROUND AND DAMAGED OTHERS WITH CANNON AND MACHINE-GUN FIRE. SLIPWAYS AND PERSONNEL QUARTERS WERE BOMBED AND AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT POST WAS SILENCED, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

JUL 21 1943

CAIRO--THIRD ADD FIRST LEAD BOMBING X X IT CONCLUDED.

BRIG.GEN.UZAL G.ENT, NINTH AIR FORCE BOMBER COMMANDER, SAID AFTER STUDYING PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE ROME RAID:

"PHOTOGRAPHIC RECONNAISSANCE SHOWS THAT THE NINTH BOMBER COMMAND'S TARGET AT THE LITTORIO RAILWAY YARDS WAS COMPLETELY COVERED BY OUR BOMB PATTERN. EXTREME DAMAGE WAS CAUSED TO RAILROAD TRACKS, ROLLING STOCK AND MACHINE SHOPS AND PARTICULARLY THE MARSHALLING HUMP IN THE CENTER OF THE YARDS.

"IT WILL TAKE TWO YEARS TO REPAIR THE DAMAGE TO THE ELECTRICAL SYSTEM IN THE MARSHALLING HUMP.

"THE PHOTOGRAPHS ALSO INDICATE TWO ENORMOUS EXPLOSIONS IN THE CENTER OF THE YARDS. ALL BOMBS FELL IN THE TARGET AREAS, WHICH INCLUDED THE EASTERN EDGE OF THE LITTORIO AIRDROME. THERE WERE NO BOMB BURSTS IN THE CITY OF ROME AND NO DAMAGE TO ANY CIVILIAN PROPERTY OTHER THAN THAT INCLUDED WITHIN THE MILITARY OBJECTIVES.

"I CONSIDER THIS ONE OF THE FINEST EXAMPLES OF HIGH ALTITUDE PRECISION BOMBING ACCOMPLISHED BY AN UNPRECEDENTED NUMBER OF HEAVY BOMBER AIRCRAFT."

ON SUNDAY X X X ETC AS BEFORE.

Cairo (Cedd Tuckers) x. Sermons.

"A YEAR AGO I WAS DRIFTING DOWN TO THE PORK CELLAR OF THE DAVID DAVIES PACKING HOUSE IN COLUMBUS EVERY MORNING, NEVER DREAMING I'D BE DRIFTING DOWN OVER SICILY," CPL. RUSSELL A.NOBLE REMARKED. HE COMES FROM PLAIN CITY, OHIO.

"WE WERE UNDER FIRE FOR NEARLY 15 MINUTES BEFORE WE JUMPED AND I COULD FEEL THE ACK-ACK RATTLING AGAINST THE SHIP AS IF SOME ONE WAS TOSSING BASKETS OF GRAVEL AT US. IT WAS EXACTLY MIDNIGHT WHEN THE JUMP MASTER YELLED, "LET'S GO, BOYS."

NOBLE REACHED THE BEACH ABOUT THE SAME WAY FLYNN DID. "I JUST WROTE A LONG LETTER TO MY OTHER, WHOSE EMPLOYED IN THE HARDING SANITARIUM AT WORTHINGTON, OHIO, TELLING HER ALL ABOUT IT AND NOT TO WORRY," HE SAID.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA,JULY 17-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIRTY-ONE OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN, SOME OF WHOM HAVE FOUGHT THE JAPANESE SINCE THE FIRST DAY OF THE WAR, HAVE BEEN AWARDED THE AIR MEDAL FOR MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT IN MORE THAN 100 HOURS OF OPERATIONAL FLIGHT MISSIONS.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA,JULY 19-(DELAYED)-(AP)-GREATLY OUTNUMBERED AMERICAN P-38 LIGHTNINGS CHASED 25 JAPANESE BOMBERS AND AT LEAST 25 ZEROS AWAY FROM THE SALAMAUA BATTLE SECTOR SUNDAY AFTERNOON AND DESTROYED AT LEAST TWO AND PROBABLY SIX ENEMY PLANES IN DOING SO.

IT WAS THE SECOND IMPRESSIVE AERIAL TRIUMPH IN A WEEK OVER THE FOE AT SALAMAUA. A FORMATION OF P-39 AIRACOBRAS ON JULY 11 SMASHED INTO SEVEN RAIDING PLANES, DESTROYING FIVE AND PROBABLY ACCOUNTING FOR THE OTHER TWO.

JUL 21 1943

SUNDAY'S ATTACK BY LIGHTNINGS DISPERSED THE JAPANESE AIR THREAT AGAINST ALLIED TROOPS SOUTH OF SALAMAUA. IT RELIEVED THE SKY MENACE HANGING OVER AUSTRALIAN GROUND TROOPS WHO SWEPT UP JAPANESE PATROLS AND CLASHED WITH THE ENEMY ON THE SLOPES OF MOUNT TIMBU, SOUTH OF KOMIATUM.

CREDITED WITH ONE PROBABLE EACH IN SUNDAYS' ATTACK, WERE LTS. LLOYD SHIPLEY, DAWSON,PA., AND WALTER C.BAKER, HARVEY,ILL.

THE P-39 FORMATION WAS ESCORTING U.S. B-25 MEDIUM BOMBERS ON A SALAMAUA RAID ONE WEEK AGO WHEN SEVEN JAPANESE FIGHTERS ATTACKED.

CAPT.ROBERT C.SMITH, MADISON,FLA., ATTACKED ONE PLANE AND SAW IT CRASH INTO THE GROUND. ANOTHER PILOT, LT.ORVILLE ERDMANN, OAKFIELD,WIS., CONFIRMED ITS DESTRUCTION.

SMITH ALSO SAW LT.JAMES MCLAUGHLIN, NASHVILLE,TENN., DESTROY AN ENEMY PLANE. MCLAUGHLIN CLOSED HEADON WITH THE ENEMY AND FOLLOWED THE PLANE TO MAKE SURE IT CRASHED.

LT.EUGENE ZIELINSKI, (6645 FIELD AVE.) DETROIT, SHOT DOWN A PLANE WHICH CRASHED ON A RIVER BANK AND LATER WAS FOUND BY AUSTRALIAN PATROLS. HE ALSO WAS CREDITED WITH THE PROBABLE DESTRUCTION OF ONE OTHER PLANE.

LT.RALPH TUURI, PAINESVILLE,OHIO, SENT CRASHING INTO FLAMES THE ONLY CAMOUFLAGED PLANE IN THE JAPANESE FORMATION. THE OTHER ENEMY AIRCRAFT WERE BRIGHTLY SILVERED.

FAR-RANGING BOMBERS OF THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC COMMAND BOMBED A JAPANESE DESTROYER AT ANCHOR IN THE HARBOR OF SORONG, DUTCH NEW GUINEA, AND A MEDIUM SIZED CARGO VESSEL OFF THAT COAST. RESULTS OF BOTH ATTACKS WERE NOT OBSERVED.

FIRES WERE STARTED IN THE TOWN AND BARRACKS AREA OF KOEPANG AND THE AIRDROME AT CAPE CHATER, BOTH ON TIMOR. AT THE LATTER BASE, MORE THAN 30 FIRES WHICH FOLLOWED THE BOMBING "MERGED INTO ONE LARGE CONFLAGRATION", THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

THE AIRDROME AT ALEXISHAFEN, NEW GUINEA, WAS BOMBED AND STRAFED. THE FUEL DUMP WAS IGNITED AND FIRES WERE STARTED IN DISPERSAL AREAS. LARGE SPREADING FIRES WERE SET AMONG ENEMY SUPPLY DUMPS AND INSTALLATIONS T MADANG, NEW GUINEA.

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS,JULY 20 (AP)-SKIPPERS OF TWO UNITED STATES WARSHIPS SUNK IN THE RECENT KULA GULF ACTIONS IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS HAVE BEEN AWARDED MEDALS, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

CAPTAIN CHARLES P.CECIL, FLAT ROCK, N.C., OF THE LIGHT CRUISER HELENA, RECEIVED A GOLD STAR MEDAL. HE ALREADY HELD THE NAVY CROSS. COMMANDER JOSEPH H.WELLINGS OF BOSTON, MASS., CAPTAIN OF THE DESTROYER STRONG, WAS GIVEN THE SILVER STAR MEDAL.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA,JULY 20-(AP)-BRIG.GEN.ROGER RAMEY, COMMANDER OF NEW GUINEA BOMBARDMENT FORCES, CONGRATULATING THE B-24 CREW WHICH KNOCKED OUT A HUGE ENEMY AMMUNITION DUMP AT SALAMAUA SUNDAY, DESCRIBED IT AS THE "LIBERATOR CREW OF THE WEEK."

THE LIBERATOR, ON LONE RECONNAISSANCE OVER SALAMAUA, DROPPED THREE 500-POUND BOMBS DIRECTLY ON THE AMMUNITION DUMP, THEN MADE A SECOND SWEEP, DROPPING THREE MORE BOMBS IN THE SAME AREA.

DESTRUCTION OF THE DUMP WAS BELIEVED A SERIOUS BLOW TO THE SALAMAUA BASE, WHICH HAS BEEN NOTICEABLY CONSERVING ITS ANTI-AIRCRAFT AMMUNITION RECENTLY.

"I'VE GOT THE MIMEOGRAPH MACHINE BUT NO PAPER," SAID HE.

"WE CAN'T DECIDE WHETHER TO CALL THE PAPER, WHEN IT DOES COME OUT, THE TROBRIAND TRUTH OR THE KIRIWINA CHRONICLE."

WHEN THE NEWSPAPER DOES GET GOING, SOME OF THE LOCAL ITEMS IN IT MAY WELL BE THESE:

PFC. JOHN J.WEICHART, PONTIAC, MICH., MANS A GUN EMPLACEMENT MADE OF WRECKAGE OF JAPANESE SHIPS WHICH DRIFTED IN TO KIRIWINA ISLAND AFTER THE BATTLE OF THE CORAL SEA MORE THAN A YEAR AGO.

MELANESIAN NATIVES TAUGHT STAFF SERGEANT ROBERT A.MAYRA, ALSO OF PONTIAC, HOW TO WEAVE A MAT OUT OF THE SPLIT BRANCH OF A COCONUT PALM.

BY LEIF ERICKSON

GUADALCANAL,JULY 18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A YOUNG AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOT, SHOT DOWN BEHIND THE ENEMY'S LINES IN NEW GEORGIA, STRUGGLED FIVE DAYS IN THE JUNGLE AND AIDED BY A LIFE-JACKET SWAM SIXTEEN HOURS TO ESCAPE THE JAPANESE WHO SOMETIMES WERE SO CLOSE HE COULD HEAR THEM TALKING.

THROUGH PHENOMENAL LUCK AND TENACIOUS COURAGE, FIRST LIEUT.EDWARD WHITMAN,JR., 25, GARRISON,MD., AT LAST NEARED A MARINE OUTPOST.

THE MARINES SIGHTED WHITMAN AND TWO SAILOR-SURVIVORS OF THE DESTROYER STRONG, THE ONLY AMERICAN WARSHIP LOST IN THE EARLY PHASES OF LANDING OPERATIONS IN THE NEW GEORGIA GROUP. THE THREE MEN, WEAKENED BY EXPOSURE AND WORN BY STRAIN, WERE DRIFTING IN A SMALL BOAT WHEN THEY WERE RESCUED.

WITH POISE AND MATTER OF FACT ASSURANCE, WHITMAN TOLD THE STORY OF HIS EXPERIENCE TONIGHT AT THE QUARTERS OF THE GENERAL COMMANDING ARMY FIGHTER PLANE UNITS IN THE SOLOMONS. HIS BROKEN LEFT ARM WAS BRACED IN A CASE. HIS RIGHT CHEEKBONE WAS FRACTURED AND HIS RIGHT EYE BLACKENED.

THE P-39 FIGHTER PILOT GRINNED WITH ENTHUSIASM WHEN HE TOLD OF HIS RESCUE.

"I'LL NEVER FORGET SEEING THAT MARINE'S RED HEAD STICKING OUT OF THE PATROL BOAT WHEN THEY CAME TO PICK US UP," HE SAID.

UNTIL HE COULD SEE THE MARINE'S RED HAIR, HE AND HIS TWO SAILOR COMPANIONS FEARED THAT THE PATROL BOAT PUTTING OUT FROM SHORE MIGHT HAVE BEEN JAPANESE.

"WE'D DECIDED WE WERE GOING TO FIGHT IT OUT," THE INJURED PILOT ADDED. "WE WEREN'T GOING TO BE TAKEN PRISONER. WE HAD OUR RIFLES READY."

JUL 21 1943

FLYING IN A FIGHTER PATROL COVERING AMERICAN INVASION TROOPS ON RENDOVA ISLAND, WHITMAN WAS SHOT DOWN THE AFTERNOON OF JULY 11 AFTER KNOCKING OUT A JAPANESE ZERO IN HIS FIRST AIR COMBAT.

"I SAW THE ZERO I HAD HIT FALLING AWAY SMOKING," HE RELATED. "THEN MY PLANE SHUDDERED JUST AS IF I WERE SHOOTING, BUT I WASN'T. THE SEAT GOT HOT AS HELL, AND I COULD SEE MY PLANE START SMOKING."

WHITMAN DIDN'T KNOW WHAT HAD HIT HIS PLANE, BUT LATER HE LEARNED THAT THREE ZEROS HAD CLOSED IN BEHIND HIM. HE BAILED OUT AT 10,000 FEET BUT DIDN'T OPEN HIS PARACHUTE UNTIL HE REACHED ABOUT 1,000 FEET BECAUSE HE DIDN'T WANT TO GIVE THE JAPANESE A CHANCE TO STRAFE HIM.

HUNG UP IN TREES BY HIS 'CHUTE, WHITMAN CUT HIMSELF LOOSE WITH A JUNGLE KNIFE. THE VINES HE CLUNG TO BROKE AND HE FELL 20 FEET TO THE GROUND, BREAKING HIS ARM. A CHEEKBONE PREVIOUSLY HAD BEEN FRACTURED AND AN EYE BRUISED BY THE SHROUDS WHEN HIS PARACHUTE JERKED OPEN AFTER THE DROP OF SEVERAL THOUSAND FEET.

THE PILOT ESTIMAED HE HAD LANDED FIVE OR SIX MILES SOUTH OF BAIROKO HARBOR, A JAPANESE-HELD INLET ON THE NORTH COAST OF NEW GEORGIA ISLAND. HE STARTED WALKING THROUGH THE ROOT AND VINE TANGLED JUNGLE AND PROGRESSED TWO TORTUOUS MILES BEFORE REACHING A NARROW TRAIL.

ON THE TRAIL WHITMAN OFTEN HAD TO STOP TO REST. WHEN HE RESTED HE COULD CRAWL A LITTLE WAY INTO THE THICK GROWTH AND LIE DOWN.

JUL 21 1943

"IT WAS LUCKY I DID THAT," HE SAID. "ONE TIME WHILE I WAS LYING DOWN, TWO JAPS CAME DOWN THE TRAIL. I LAY AS STILL AS POSSIBLE. THEY WENT ON."

WHITMAN SLEPT THAT NIGHT IN THE JUNGLE. THE NEXT AFTERNOON, JULY 12, HE REACHED THE EAST SHORE OF BAIROKO HARBOR.

"I GOT MH DIRECTIONS MIXED," HE SAID. "I THOUGHT THE AMERICAN TROOPS WOULD HAVE BAIROKO CLEANED UP, AND I DECIDED TO SWIM WEST."

INFLATING HIS LIFE JACKET, THE FLIER STARTED OUT DIRECTLY TOWARD THE JAPANESE JUNGLE POSITIONS. BARGES PASSED NEARBY AND HE COULD HEAR "JAPANESE JABBERING." HE CRAWLED ASHORE INTO DENSE UNDERGROWTH AND SLEPT THERE A SECOND NIGHT. HE THEN MADE A DECISION TO STAY NOT IN THE JUNGLE BUT ON WATER IN THE HOPE HE MIGHT BE PICKED UP BY

NAVY PBY RESCUE PLANES.

"ANYHOW, IT WAS EASIER ON MY BROKEN ARM IN THE WATER," HE SAID. "WHENEVER I GOT TIRED, I WOULD LIKE IN THE LIFEBELT UNTIL I WAS RESTED.

B29KX (E S)

"THE ONLY THING THAT GOT ME," HE EXPLAINED, "WAS THAT I DIDN'T HAVE ANY WATER TO DRINK. THE SALT WATER SPLASHING IN MY MOUTH MADE ME ALL THE THIRSTIER.

JUL 21 1943

"IN THE LATER AFTERNOON I SAW A BOAT AHEAD WITH TWO MEN IN IT. I HELLED. BY THAT TIME I DIDN'T CARE WHETHER JAPS OR AMERICANS WERE IN THE BOAT. THE TWO MEN PADDLED AWAY OUT OF SIGHT AROUND A POINT.

"I KEPT SWIMMING IN THAT DIRECTION. FROM THE SHORE I COULD HEAR TWO VOICES SPEAKING ENGLISH. I WALKED IN AND FOUND THESE TWO SAILORS, SURVIVORS FROM THE STRONG. WHEN THEY HAD HEARD ME YELL, THEY THOUGHT I WAS A JAP."

THE STRONG WAS TORPEDOED AND SUNK IN KULA GULF, NORTH OF NEW GEORGIA, THE MORNING OF JULY 5 AFTER A U.S.NAVY TASK FORCE HAD SHELLED VILA AIRDROME ON KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND.

ONE OF THE SAILORS WHO HAD REACHED THE NEW GEORGIA SHORE WAS RADIOMAN SIGMUND F.BUTLER OF (109 SOUTH MADISON STREET) WHITEVILLE, S.C. THE OTHER SAILOR, WHO WAS SUFFERING SEVERELY FROM THE FUEL OIL HE HAD SWALLOWED, WAS KNOWN TO WHITMAN ONLY AS MCGEE.

THE TWO SEAMEN REACHED SHORE WITHOUT CLOTHING BUT HAD FOUND A [illegible]ING BOAT CONTAINING PROVISIONS, UNIFORMS AND RIFLES.

THEY MADE WHITMAN LIE DOWN AND MCGEE PUT A SPLINT ON HIS ARM. BUTLER FIXED A CUP OF BOUILLON, THE FIRST FOOD OF ANY KIND WHITMAN HAD HAD IN THREE DAYS. ONCE THEY TRIED TO BREAK OPEN A COCONUT, BUT COULDN'T.

FIRMLY BELIEVING THAT AMERICAN TROOPS CONTROLLED THE SECTOR TO THE WEST, WHITMAN INDUCED THE OTHER TWO TO PADDLE THEIR BOAT IN THAT DIRECTION AFTER DARK.

"WE PADDLED ABOUT THREE HOURS," WHITMAN SAID. "WE COULD HEAR A BARGE BEING LOADED. WE WERE JUST ABOUT READY TO GIVE A YELL BUT DECIDED TO GO IN CLOSER AND MAKE SURE.

"THEN WE HEARD JAPS IN THE BARGE JABBERING TO BEAT HELL. WE TURNED ABOUT, PADDLED ALL THE WAY BACK AND SLEPT THAT NIGHT IN A JAPANESE CAMP VERY RECENTLY DESERTED."

THE THREE MEN RESTED ALL THE NEXT DAY, JULY 14. AT DAWN JULY 15 THEY STARTED OUT AGAIN IN THE BOAT. SICK AND WEAKENED, MCGEE COLLAPSED AFTER ABOUT TWO HOURS.

JUL 21 1943

"BUTLER JUST WOULDN'T QUIT," WHITMAN SAID. "HE KEPT PADDLING. I TRIED TO TIE AN OAR TO MY ARM IN THE SPLINT, BUT IT WOULDN'T WORK. BUTLER HAD TO PADDLE ALONE."

THAT AFTERNOON THREE PBYS CAME OVER. BUTLER PADDLED TOWARD THEM WHEN HE SAW THEY HAD LANDED OUT OF SIGHT A SHORT DISTANCE AWAY. A HALF-HOUR LATER THE PBYS FLEW OVER AGAIN.

PVSH A MARINE CORPS PLANE SWOOPING DOWN TO STRAFE THE VILA SHORE ACROSS THE GULF SAW THE THREE WAVING FROM THEIR BOAT AS IT SWEPT

ACROSS THE NEW GEORGIA COAST. THE PILOT SIGNALLED BACK RECOGNITION.

"WE KNEW WE HAD BEEN SPOTTED THEN. OUR HOPES WERE HIGH," WHITMAN SAID.

SOON AFTER THE THREE MEN SAW A BOAT PUT OUT FROM SHORE.

"WE WERE PRETTY SURE FOR A WHILE THEY MUST BE JAPANESE," HE WENT ON. "WE GOT OUT OUR RIFLES. BUT WHEN THE BOAT DREW CLOSE, THE FIRST THING I SAW WAS A BRILLIANT RED HEAD. I'LL NEVER FORGET THAT REDHEAD AS LONG AS I LIVE."

WHITMAN, BUTLER AND MCGEE WERE TAKEN ASHORE BY THE MARINE DETAIL CLOTHED, AND TREATED BY A DOCTOR.

"THAT NIGHT THE JAPS BOMBED OUR MARINE POST THE WHOLE NIGHT THROUGH. IT WAS JUST NUISANCE STUFF AND DIDN'T DO MUCH HARM.
BUT WE DIDN'T GET MUCH SLEEP," WHITMAN RECALLED.

ON THE AFTERNOON OF JULY 17 A NAVY PBY PATROL PLANE CAME TO THE POST AND TOOK THE THREE MEN BACK TO GUADALCANAL.

"THOSE MARINES ARE TOUGH GUYS," WHITMAN CONCLUDED. "BUT THEY HAVE GREAT FEELING FOR OUR PLANES. WHEN THEY COULD SEE THEY WERE OURS, THEY WOULD COME OUT OF THEIR SHELTERS SAYING 'GOD BLESS OUR PLANES.' I TELL YOU IT GAVE ME, A FLIER, QUITE A FEELING, INSIDE."

BOMBER CREW DROPPED A RECORD 5,000 POUND BOMB LOAD ACCURATELY ON ITS TARGET WHILE ONE OF THE THREE REMAINING ENGINES VIBRATED LIKE A HULA DANCER, THE CREW RECOUNTED TODAY AFTER SURVIVING A CRASH LANDING AT SEA.

JUL 21 1943

ALL ESCAPED UNSCATHED ALTHOUGH THE PLANE SANK WITHIN 40 SECONDS WHEN SHE WAS FORCED DOWN ON THE OCEAN, OUT OF GAS AFTER BOUNCING THROUGH TWO VIOLENT STORMS.

FIRST LIEUT.RALPH DE LOACH, THE PILOT FROM (815 SEVENTEENTH NORTH ST.) ST.PETERSBURG, FLA., SAID THE GYROCOMPASS FAILED HALF AN HOUR AFTER HE TOOK OFF ON THE BOMBING MISSION. THEN ONE ENGINE DIED AND ANOTHER VIBRATED BADLY. NEXT THE PLANE HIT A VIOLENT STORM. THE SHIP DROPPED LIKE A PLUMMET FROM 14,000 TO 10,000 FEET IN A DOWN DRAFT.

NEVERTHELESS, THE PLANE CONTINUED ON ITS MISSION AND THE BOMBARDIER, LIEUTENANT HERMAN DIAS OF GREENVILLE, S.C., DROPPED 5,000 POUNDS OF BOMBS UPON THE TARGET. DE LOACH SAID THIS WAS THE HEAVIEST BOMB LOAD EVER CARRIED BY A PLANE OUT OF HIS BASE.

ON THE RETURN TRIP, THE PLANE RAN ALMOST INTO A WATERSPOUT, WHICH COULD BE HEARD ROARING LIKE A GREAT WATERFALL. THEN, FOR TWO HOURS LT.DE LOACH FLEW BARELY 50 FEET ABOVE THE WATER, UNABLE TO SEE MORE THAN 20 FEET THROUGH THE BLINDING RAIN.

"WE SIGHTED A SMALL ISLAND," THE PILOT SAID. "WE SAW A WHITE

FLAG WITH A RED BALL IN THE CENTER. THERE WERE A NUMBER OF NATIVES ON THE BEACH.

"WE WERE AFRAID THIS WAS A JAPANESE-HELD ISLAND BUT WE HAD ONLY FIVE MINUTES FUEL LEFT; SO WE DECIDED TO LAND IN THE WATER. THE PLANE SANK WITHIN 40 SECONDS BUT ALL TEN OF US MANAGED TO GET OUT. WE CLUNG TO OUR RUBBER BOAT UNTIL THE NATIVES PICKED US UP.

"THE CHIEF SOON ALLAYED OUR FEARS BY SAYING 'YOU AMERICANS? WE LIKE.'"

DE LOACH SAID THEY WERE TOLD THE JAPANESE HAD INVADED THE ISLAND ONC AND HAD MISTREATED THE NATIVES, RAPING WOMEN AND KILLING MEN. AN AUSTRALIAN ON THE ISLAND TOLD THEM THEY WERE THE FIRST AMERICANS EVER TO VISIT THE PLACE.

FIRST LEAD BURMA

NEW DELHI, JULY 20-(AP)-JAPANESE TROOP CONCENTRATIONS AND MILITARY ESTABLISHMENTS IN OCCUPIED BURMA WERE STRAFED CONTINUOUSLY YESTERDAY BY AMERICAN AND BRITISH BOMBERS, COMMUNIQUES FROM THE USAAF AND THE RAF ANNOUNCED TODAY.

B-25 MEDIUM BOMBERS AND P-40 BOMB-CARRYING FIGHTERS OF THE 10TH U.S.AIR FORCE ATTACKED OBJECTIVES IN NORTHERN BUAMA AND NEAR THE YUNNAN BORDER, WHILE THE BRITISH CONCENTRATED THEIR ATTENTION ON TARGETS IN ARAKAN AND ALONG THE CHINDWIN RIVER.

THE SHWELI BRIDGE NEAR THE YUNNAN BORDER WAS BLASTED BY THE B-25S.

SUMPRABUM, IN NORTHERN BURMA, WAS STRAFED BY P-40S AND MEDIUM BOMBERS AND TWO BUILDINGS WERE DESTROYED. PILOTS REPORTED EXTENSIVE DESTRUCTION FROM PREVIOUS RAIDS.

LITTLE OPPOSITION WAS ENCOUNTERED BY THE AMERICAN PLANES AND ALL RETURNED SAFELY TO THEIR BASES.

BEAUFIGHTERS OPERATING ALONG THE CHINDWIN RIVER SET FIRE TO AN OIL STORAGE TANK OPPOSITE ALON, THE COMMUNIQUE DECLARED. RETURNING RAIDERS SAID THE SMOKE COULD BE SEEN RISING TO A HEIGHT OF 5,000 FEET. THE FLIERS ALSO ATTACKED SUPPLY SAMPANS ALONG THE RIVER.

KALEMYO WAS ATTACKED BY MOHAWKS WHICH DROPPED LIGHT BOMBS AND RAKED JAPANESE POSITIONS WITH MACHINEGUN FIRE. HURRICANES OPERATING ALONG THE IRRAWADDY RIVER DAMAGED AN OIL BARGE AND OTHER SHIPPING.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT BLENHEIMS BOMBED RATHEDAUNG AND MINBYA IN ARAKAN AND HURRICANES MADE LOW LEVEL ATTACKS ON JAPANESE ARMY BARRACKS ALONG THE MAYU PENINSULA. FURTHER SOUTH OTHER HURRICANES SANK A 70-FOOT BOAT AND SEVERAL SAMPANS.

ONE PLANE WAS REPORTED LOST DURING THE OPERATIONS.

BALBOA, C.Z., JULY 20-(AP)-SEVENTEEN HIGH-RANKING U.S. ARMY OFFICERS CREDITED WITH PLACING THE PANAMA CANAL DEFENSES ON A WAR FOOTING AND INSURING THE SECURITY OF THIS STRATEGIC WATERWAY IN THE TRYING PEARL HARBOR DAYS WERE AWARDED THE LEGION OF MERIT TODAY HEADQUARTERS OF THE PANAMA CANAL DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCED.

IN A PRECEDENT-SHATTERING ORDER, LT.-GEN.GEORGE H.BRETT, COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE CARIBBEAN DEFENSE COMMAND, ANNOUNCED THE AWARDS. IT WAS THE FIRST TIME THE DECORATION WENT TO SUCH A LARGE GROUP IN THIS THEATER.

RECIPIENTS WERE (INCLUDING NAMES OF STATES FROM WHICH THEY WERE APPOINTED TO WEST POINT):

MAJ.GENS.WILLIAM E.SHEDD (ILLINOIS), DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THIS DEPARTMENT, ROBERT S.LEWIS (NEW YORK), HORACE L.MCBRIDE (NEBRASKA),

MAJ.CRESSON H.KEARNY (TEXAS).

LIMA,PERU, JULY 20-(AP)-A NEW PERU-AMERICAN AGREEMENT ESTABLISHING MINIMUM PRICES FOR PERUVIAN MINERAL PRODUCTS WAS SIGNED THIS AFTERNOON BY FINANCE MINISTER JULIO EAST AND AMERICAN AMBASSADOR HENRY R.NORWEB.

IT FOLLOWS A SIMILAR AGREEMENT CALLED THE "OVERALL METALS AND MINERALS AGREEMENT" WHICH WAS SIGNED IN 1942.

BUENOS AIRES, JULY 20-(AP)-THE ARGENTINE SHIP MEJICO WAS REPORTED TODAY TO HAVE PICKED UP 26 SURVIVORS OF A TORPEDOED MERCHANT VESSEL ABOUT 65 MILES OFF THE BRAZILIAN PORT OF SANTOS.

JUL 21 1943

THE IDENTITY OF THE SUNKEN VESSEL WAS NOT IMMEDIATELY DISCLOSED.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., JULY 20-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER PETER FRASER ANNOUNCED TODAY THE PROMOTION OF AIR COMMODORE LEONARD MONK ISITT TO TEMPORARY AIR VICE-MARSHAL AND ISITT'S APPOINTMENT AS CHIEF OF THE AIR STAFF.

ISITT SUCCEEDS VICE-AIR MARSHAL ROBERT GODDARD WHO RETURNS TO THE ROYAL AIR FORCE AFTER HAVING BEEN "LOANDED" TO NEW ZEALAND.

UNDATED ROME

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AXIS PROPAGANDISTS PULLED OUT ALL STOPS TODAY AND PROCLAIMED LOUDLY THAT AMERICAN AIR RAIDERS HAD INDISCRIMINATELY BOMBED CHURCH PROPERTY, HISTORIC LANDMARKS AND EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS IN ROME YESTERDAY, BUT THEIR CHARGES WERE LARGELY BELIED BY REPORTS FROM NEUTRAL SOURCES.

THE BERLIN RADIO TOOK THE LEAD IN PAINTING A BLACK PICTURE OF THE DESTRUCTION WROUGHT IN THE ETERNAL CITY, DESCRIBING THE ATTACK AS "CRIMINAL" AND LACKING IN MILITARY PURPOSE, IGNORING THE FACT THAT THE SAN LORENZO RAILWAY YARDS--ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL OBJECTIVES--IS A VITAL COG IN THE AXIS WAR MACHINERY.

ONE GERMAN BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS IN LONDON, SAID THAT POPE PIUS XII ALREADY HAD FORWARDED PROTESTS TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL--A STATEMENT THAT WAS NOT IMMEDIATELY CONFIRMED BY ANY OTHER SOURCE.

BOTH GERMAN AND ITALIAN PROPAGANDISTS DWELT HEAVILY ON DAMAGE WHICH THEY SAID HAD BEEN DONE TO THE FOURTH CENTURY BASILICA OF SAN LORENZO FUORI LE MURA--SITUATED ON THE VIA TIBURTINO NEAR THE SAN LORENZO YARDS AND ON THE SAME STREET WHERE MILITARY BARRACKS ARE LOCATED.

AXIS REPORTS OF DAMAGE SUFFERED BY THIS ANCIENT EDIFICE WERE CONFIRMED BY ADVICES FROM STOCKHOLM QUOTING A DISPATCH FILED THROUGH ITALIAN CENSORSHIP BY THE ROME CORRESPONDENT OF THE SWEDISH NEWSPAPER DAGENS NYHETER.

THE SWEDISH CORRESPONDENT FAILED, HOWEVER, TO SUBSTANTIATE SWEEPING GERMAN AND ITALIAN CLAIMS THAT THE BOMBING WAS INDISCRIMINATE. DAMAGE, HE DECLARED, WAS LIMITED TO THE SAN LORENZO AND TIBURTINO DISTRICTS, ADDING THAT THE CENTER OF ROME HAD BEEN SPARED AND THAT WELL KNOWN MONUMENTS AND HISTORIC RUINS HAD BEEN LEFT "AS PEACEFUL AS EVER."

DESTRUCTION IN THE BOMBED AREAS WAS DESCRIBED BY THE SWEDISH WRITER AS HEAVY, AND HE SAID THAT ALL RESIDENTS OF THE ITALIAN CAPITAL NOT ENGAGED IN ESSENTIAL OCCUPATIONS HAD BEEN URGED TO LEAVE THE CITY AS

3024-6373

SOON AS POSSIBLE.

CASUALTIES, THE CORRESPONDENT ADDED, WERE BELIEVED TO BE HIGH, ALTHOUGH NO OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF THEIR NUMBER HAD YET BEEN ISSUED.

HIS REPORT CONCONTRASTED WITH THE BITTER DECLARATIONS OF THE ROME RADIO, WHICH DESCRIBED THE RAID AS HAVING "THE IMPETUS WORTHY OF A WILD BEAST" AND SAID THAT THE UNIVERSITY AND OTHER NON-MILITARY TARGETS HAD BEEN HARD HIT.

JUL 21 1943

"BUILDINGS OF THE MEDICAL CLINIC, ORTHOPEDIC CLINIC AND INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC HEALTH EITHER WERE DAMAGED OR DESTROYED BY BOMBS," SAID A ROME BROADCAST HEARD IN LONDON. "DEVASTATION CAUSED BY THE ENEMY IN WORKERS' QUARTERS IN SAN LORENZO, TIBURTINA AND PRENESTINO IS HORRIBLE."

A SWISS TELEGRAPH AGENCY DISPATCH FROM ROME SAID THE POPE SPENT 70 MINUTES YESTERDAY VISITING DAMAGED LOCALITIES, INCLUDING "IMPORTANT DAMAGE TO ANCIENT STRUCTURES WHICH ENJOYED EXTRA-TERRITORIAL RIGHTS."

THE DISPATCH FOLLOWED ALMOST WORD-FOR-WORD AN ACCOUNT BY STEFANI, ITALIAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY, OF THE POPE'S TOUR OF THE DAMAGED AREA.

THE DAGENS NYHETER CORRESPONDENT IN ROME ALSO REPORTED THAT THE POPE HAD VISITED THE BASILICA OF SAN LORENZO.

THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION QUOTED A BERLIN BROADCAST TODAY AS SAYING THAT 21 ITALIAN PROVINCES HAVE BEEN DECLARED WAR ZONES BUT THAT "ROME IS NOT CONTAINED IN THIS LIST AND THEREFORE IS NOT REGARDED AS A WAR ZONE FOR THE TIME BEING."

UNDATED ROME ROUNDUP

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALLIED AIR CHIEFS, STUDYING THE PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE FIRST RAID ON ROME, ANNOUNCED TUESDAY THAT IMPORTANT ITALIAN MILITARY OBJECTIVES WERE SMASHED IN THE CAPITAL WHILE FROM THE AXIS, AUTHORS OF TOTAL WAR, CAME PROTESTS THAT CHURCH, SCIENTIFIC AND WORKERS' RESIDENCE BUILDINGS WERE HIT, WITH 166 PERSONS KILLED AND 1,659 INJURED.

JUL 21 1943

AN AMERICAN COMMUNIQUE FROM CAIRO SAID THE RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWED THE LITTORIA MARSHALLING YARDS WERE COMPLETELY DESTROYED AND AN AMMUNITION TRAIN BLOWN UP. A LARGE HANGAR AT A NEARBY AIRDROME WAS BLOWN UP AND PLANES ON THE GROUND DESTROYED.

THAT THE RAIDS SPREAD "VERY GREAT DAMAGE" WAS ADMITTED BY THE ROME AND BERLIN RADIOS, BUT THEY SPENT THEIR TIME ANNOUNCING THAT SAN LORENZO BASILICA, VERANO CEMETERY, UNIVERSITY CITY AND HOSPITALS OF THE POLYCLINIC INSTITUTE WERE HIT AS WELL AS WORKERS DWELLINGS IN THE PRENESTINA AND LATINA DISTRICTS.

THE SUPREME COMMANDER OF THE ITALIAN MILITARY POLICE AND HIS CHIEF DEPUTY WERE REPORTED KILLED BY THE RAID IN A BERLIN BROADCAST.

ADVICES FROM SWITZERLAND SAID ALL PERSONS NOT COMPELLED TO STAY IN ROME WERE WARNED TO LEAVE IMMEDIATELY BY THE FASCIST GOVERNMENT. THE CITY, ALTHOUGH WITHOUT ADEQUATE AIR RAID SHELTERS, HAS BEEN FILLED WITH EVACUEES FROM OTHER CITIES BOMBED MORE FREQUENTLY.

GERMAN REACTION WAS TYPIFIED IN A BROADCAST BY A GERMAN FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN WHO HINTED THAT RETALIATION MIGHT BE TRIED AND THE ALLIES WILL "POINT IN VAIN TO CULTURAL MONUMENTS AND INSTITUTIONS OF WASHINGTON, NEW YORK OR LONDON."

CATHOLICS IN ALLIED OR NEUTRAL COUNTRIES TOOK A SERIOUS VIEW OF THE BOMBING. SOME OF THE STATEMENTS WERE:

EIRE--PRIME MINISTER EAMON DE VALERA'S NEWSPAPER, THE IRISH PRESS, CALLED THE NEWS "GRIEVOUS TIDINGS INDEED" AND SUGGESTED THAT EFFORTS BE MADE TO HAVE ROME DECLARED AN OPEN CITY.

7485-8,--VISCOUNT FITZALAN, CATHOLIC NOBLEMAN, ASKED IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS WHETHER THE BOMBING HAD BEEN NECESSARY AND WHETHER DAMAGE

ORTS BE MADE TO HAVE ROME DECLARED AN OPEN CITY.

BRITAIN--VISCOUNT FITZALAN, CATHOLIC NOBLEMAN, ASKED IN THE HOUSE LORDS WHETHER THE BOMBING HAD BEEN NECESSARY AND WHETHER DAMAGE D BEEN DONE TO CULTURAL OR RELIGIOUS BUILDINGS. THE LEADER OF THE SE, VISCOUNT CRANBORNE, REPLIED ONLY THAT NO DETAILED INFORMATION WAS POSSIBLE.

JUL 21 1943

UNITED STATES--THE MOST REV. EDWARD MOONEY, ARCHBISHOP OF DETROIT AND CHAIRMAN OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE BOARD OF THE NATIONAL CATHOLIC WELFARE CONFERENCE, EXPRESSED "SURPRISE AND REGRET" BUT SAID THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT COULD HAVE MADE THE BOMBING UNNECESSARY.

BUT FROM BOMB-POCKED MALTA CAME ANOTHER TYPE OF COMMENT. UNDER CHALKED SIGNS OF "BOMB ROME" ON THE WALLS OF BUILDINGS OF THIS MUCH BOMBED ISLAND APPEARED A POSTSCRIPT:

"THANKS."

UNDATED DE VECCHI

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GEN.COUNT CESARE MARIA DE VECCHI DI VAL CISMON, ONE OF THE ORIGINAL BIG FOUR OF FASCISM WITH MUSSOLINI AND A LEADER IN THE MARCH ON ROME IN 1922, "HAS TAKEN OVER COMMAND OF A DIVISION IN THE FIGHTING AREA," A GERMAN BROADCAST REPORTED TODAY.

THE BROADCAST, UNDER A MILAN, ITALY, DATELINE, WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. IT GAVE NO OTHER DETAILS.

JUL 21 1943

COUNT DE VECCHI, AS ONE OF THE KINGPINS OF ITALIAN FASCISM, HELD VARIOUS GOVERNMENTAL POSTS AND WAS THE FIRST AMBASSADOR TO THE HOLY SEE IN 1929 FOLLOWING THE RESUMPTION OF RELATIONS BETWEEN THE VATICAN AND THE ITALIAN STATE.

HE BECAME MINISTER OF EDUCATION IN 1935, GOVERNOR OF ROME IN OCTOBER, 1936 AND GOVERNOR OF ITALY'S ISLANDS IN THE AEGEAN SEA IN NOVEMBER, 1936, RESIGNING IN DECEMBER, 1940, "ON HIS OWN REQUEST."

LITTLE HAS BEEN HEARD OF DE VECCHI SINCE THEN, BUT IN APRIL 1942, LONDON REPORTS SAID HE WAS AMONG 30 HIGHLY-PLACED ITALIAN OFFICERS WHO HAD BEEN DISCIPLINED OR REBUKED BY MUSSOLINI FOR ATTEMPTING TO FOSTER A MOVEMENT FOR SEPARATE PEACE BETWEEN BRITAIN AND ITALY.

A PERMANENT MEMBER OF THE FASCIST COUNCIL, DE VECCHI WAS AWARDED THE TITLE OF COUNT DI VAL CISMON IN 1929.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE MEETING CAME AS THE WORLD HAD BEGUN TO WONDER WHAT HAD BECOME OF THE AXIS LEADERS. MUSSOLINI'S LAST PUBLIC APPEARANCE WAS MAY 5 WHEN, AS TUNISIA TOTTERED, HE TOLD HIS PEOPLE "ITALY IS IMMORTAL, WE WILL CONQUER."

BRITISH NEWSPAPERS, COMMENTING ON THE DISAPPEARANCE OF HITLER AND

MUSSOLINI FROM THE SCENE, HAD BEEN PUBLISHING SARDONIC POSTERS DEPICTING THEM WITH THEIR FINGERS TO THEIR LIPS, AND WITH THE PRINTED ADMONITION "BE LIKE HITLER AND MUSSO AND KEEP MUM."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE MEETING, HOWEVER, STILL HAD NOT TRAILED IN ITS WAKE THE USUAL PRONOUNCEMENTS THAT HITLER AND MUSSOLINI USUALLY RESERVE FOR DECRYING ALLIED GAINS.

EVEN THE BOMBING OF ROME HAD NOT BROUGHT FORTH FROM MUSSOLINI HIS USUAL BRAND OF PERFERVID ORATORY.

NEW YORK, JULY 20-(AP)-THE JAPANESE NO LONGER ARE SO SURE THAT THEIR FLIERS ARE MORE THAN ABLE TO MATCH AMERICAN PILOTS IN SKILL AND DARING, A TOKYO BROADCAST REPORTED BY THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION INDICATED TODAY. THE BROADCAST, THE OWI SAID, ACKNOWLEDGED THAT THE AMERICANS NOT ONLY POSSESSED "EXCELLENT MORALE" BUT ARE "ENEMIES WHO NEVER CAN BE HELD IN CONTEMPT."

THE COMMENT WAS MADE IN THE COURSE OF A DISCUSSION OF "STUDENT MOBILIZATION IN BELLIGERENT COUNTRIES," AND DESCRIBED THE STUDENT TRAINING PROGRAM IN AMERICAN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

JUL 21 1943

"IT IS SAID THAT 80 PER CENT OF THE ENEMY PLANE PILOTS WHO COUNTERATTACK OUR IMPERIAL FORCES WERE FORMERLY STUDENTS," THE ANNOUNCER SAID. "FURTHERMORE, THE MORALE OF THESE STUDENTS IS EXCELLENT AND WE REALIZE THEY ARE ENEMIES WHO CAN NEVER BE HELD IN CONTEMPT."

IN VIEW OF THESE FACTS, THE BROADCAST ADDED, "IT IS NATURAL THAT IDLENESS ON THE PART OF JAPANESE STUDENTS CANNOT BE TOLERATED."

THE BROADCAST WAS MADE IN THE JAPANESE LANGUAGE FOR DOMESTIC AUDIENCES.

OTTAWA, JULY 20-(AP)-A CANADIAN AIR FORCE CASUALTY LIST TONIGHT CONTAINED THE NAMES OF THREE AMERICANS MISSING ON ACTIVE SERVICE AFTER AIR OPERATIONS OVERSEAS AND ANOTHER KILLED.

THE MISSING WERE:

SGT.DERRY GATES BIRD OF MARIETTA, O., WHOSE MOTHER, MRS.D.G. BIRD, LIVES AT 311 WOOSTER ST., MARIETTA.

SGT.JAMES BURNS TF PITTSBURGH, PA., WHOSE FATHER, B.J.BURNS, LIVES AT 1620 CHIDELL ST., PITTSBURGH.

SGT.JOHN DETRICK HALVORSEN OF CHICAGO, WHOSE FATHER, J.D. HALVORSEN, LIVES AT 4517 LYNDALE ST., CHICAGO.

JUL 21 1943

LEADING AIRCRAFTMAN JAMES HAROLD WOODILL OF LONGVIEW, WASH., WAS LISTED AS KILLED IN ACTIVE SERVICE IN CANADA. DETAILS IN CONNECTION WITH HIS DEATH WERE NOT INDICATED IN THE CASUALTY LIST. WOODILL'S FATHER, A.R.WODILL, LIVES AT 1614 22ND AVE., LONGVIEW.

NEW YORK, JULY 20-(AP)-A BERLIN BROADCAST, RECORDED BY U.S GOVERNMENT MONITORS, REPORTED TODAY THAT AIR-RAID WARNINGS WERE SOUNDED IN ROME AGAIN LAST NIGHT BUT SAID THE CITY ITSELF WAS NOT ATTACKED.

THE BROADCAST DECLARED IT HAD NOT BEEN ASCERTAINED, HOWEVER, WHETHER ANY TARGETS IN THE VICINITY OF THE ITALIAN CAPITAL WERE BOMBED.

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

NOTWITHSTANDING THE "WILD BEAST" PROPAGANDA TWIST THE AXIS IS TRYING TO GIVE TO THE BOMBING OF MILITARY OBJECTIVES IN ROME, THE FACT REMAINS THAT THE HIGHEST HUMANITARIAN MOTIVES INSPIRED THIS

FIRST RAID WHICH THE ETERNAL CITY HAS EXPERIENCED.

THE ALLIED OBJECT WAS TO PREVENT UNNE[illegible]Y SUFFERING FROM PROTRACTION OF THE CONFLICT. A QUICK SURR[illegible]R WOULD SHORTEN THE TRIALS OF THE ITALIAN PEOPLE THEMSELVES. IT WOULD PUT A TOURNIQUET ON THE CASUALTY LIST OF ALLIED AND ITALI[illegible]BOYS WHO MUST DIE BY THOUSANDS IF THE BATTLE FOR ITA[illegible]ACTED.

HAD MUSSOLINI SEEN FIT TO REMO[illegible]E MILITARY OBJECTIVES FROM ROME AND DECLARE IT AN OPEN CITY, THE BOMBING COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED. HE HAD FAIR WARNING. BUT HE HAS CHOSEN TO USE IT AS A SANCTUARY TO PROTECT HIMSELF AND HIS MAIN SUPPORTERS FROM DANGER.

HAVING CRINGED IN FEAR OF GUNFIRE UNTIL HITLER HAD CRUSHED FRANCE, THE DUCE STABBED HIS FALLEN NEIGHBOR IN THE BACK AND THEN SENT HIS WARPLANES TO HELP FINISH OFF ENGLAND. IT MAY HAVE BEEN HIS BOMBS WHICH TORE AT SOME OF THE WORLD'S MOST HISTORIC AND HALLOWED PLACES--WESTMINSTER ABBEY, OLD ST.PAUL'S, ANCIENT CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL AND OTHERS.

EACH TIME HE HAS COMMITTED ANOTHER CRIME AGAINST CIVILIZATION HE HAS CRAWLED TO SECURITY WITHIN THE WALLS OF ROME. THERE, TOO, HE HAS SHIELDED HIS POLITICAL ORGANIZATION OF GANGSTERS, MARCHED HIS TROOPS, MAINTAINED THE CENTRAL MACHINERY OF HIS TRANSPORT SYSTEM AND CREATED SINEWS OF WAR.

THE IMMUNITY OF ROME WAS ACCEPTED AS A CERTAINTY BY MANY, DESPITE WARNINGS FROM THE ALLIES. A MILLION ITALIANS FROM OTHER PARTS OF THE COUNTRY ARE SAID TO HAVE MOVED TO THE CAPITAL TO AVOID BOMBING OF THEIR HOME CITIES.

PROBABLY NEVER BEFORE HAS SO GREAT CARE BEEN EXERCISED BY BOMBERS AS IN THE RAID OVER ROME. THE PILOTS, NAVIGATORS AND BOMBARDIERS WERE CAREFULLY SELECTED FROM AMONG THOUSANDS OF PROSPECTS. THEY WERE CHOSEN NOT ONLY FOR THEIR MILITARY EXPERTNESS BUT FOR STERLING QUALITIES WHICH WOULD GUARANTEE THAT ONLY MILITARY OBJECTIVES WOULD BE BOMBED. TO MAKE THEM LETTER PERFECT, THEY WERE TRAINED FOR MONTHS AND MEMORIZED THE MAP OF THE ITALIAN CAPITAL. THE RAID WAS IN BROAD DAYLIGHT SO THAT MISTAKES WOULDN'T BE MADE.

THE ASSIGNMENT OF BOMBING ROME SURELY WAS ONE OF THE MOST TRYING WHICH COULD BE GIVEN TO AIRMEN. THE SKULKING MUSSOLINI HAD BUILT PARTS OF HIS WAR MACHINE CLOSE TO VATICAN CITY. IT WAS UNTHINKABLE THAT A BOMB SHOULD FALL WITHIN THE POPE'S DOMAINS--AND NONE DID. THE BOMBERS APPEAR TO HAVE DONE AS SKILLFUL A JOB AS EVER HAS BEEN RECORDED.

IT'S TO BE HOPED THAT THE PEOPLE OF ITALY WILL UNDERSTAND WHAT HAS HAPPENED, AND ACT ACCORDINGLY TO EASE THEMSELVES OUT OF THE PLIGHT INTO WICH MUSSOLINI HAS THRUST THEM. JUDGING FROM

INTO WHICH MUSSOLINI HAS THRUST THEM. JUDGING FROM THE ENTHUSIASM WITH WHICH THE FOLK OF SICILY ARE WELCOMING THE INVADING ALLIES, THERE'S A CHANCE THAT THE INHABITANTS OF THE MAINLAND WILL FOLLOW SUIT.

IN WRITING ABOUT THE COWARDICE OF THE ITALIAN DICTATOR ONE IS REMINDED OF THE PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCE THAT MANY WOULD-BE WORLD CONQUERORS, WHO ARE WILLING TO RIDE TO GLORY OVER THE BODIES OF THEIR FOLLOWERS, HAVE BEEN OF THE SAME ILK. THE LAST WAR PRODUCED SOME FINE EXAMPLES OF THAT.

THE OLD KAISER RAN LIKE A RABBIT WHEN TROUBLE FINALLY BROKE NEAR THE

3024-6377

CLOSE OF THE WAR. THE FAMOUS FIELD MARSHAL HINDENBURG HAD A HEADQUARTERS AT SPA, IN BELGIUM, FAR BEHIND THE FIGHTING FRONT AND THERE HE HAD BUILT FOR HIS OWN SECURITY, AND THAT OF VISITORS LIKE THE KAISER, A DUGOUT OF CONCRETE TWENTY FEET UNDER THE LAWN OF THE CHATEAU WHICH HE USED. I WAS WITH THE BRITISH WHEN THEY ENTERED SPA AFTER THE ARMISTICE AND THERE WE FOUND THIS AMAZING HIDE-OUT INTACT.

THE HIDE-OUT WAS CONNECTED WITH THE CHATEAU BY A LONG CONCRETE TUNNEL. THE SHELTER ACTUALLY WAS A LARGE ROOM WHICH WAS FITTED WITH ANTIQUE FURNITURE, ORIENTAL RUGS, ELECTRIC LIGHTS, ELECTRIC FANS AND ELECTRIC HEAT. THEY SAID HINDENBURG USED TO SCURRY FOR HIS DUGOUT EVERY TIME THE AIRPLANE DETECTORS IN HIS HEADQUARTERS REGISTERED THE APPROACH OF A MACHINE.

CAPTURE OF ENNA CUTS ENEMY'S HIGHWAY LINK ACROSS CENTRAL SICILY

JUL 22 1943

Armored Columns Seize Road Hub And Pursue Withdrawing Enemy—Eighth Army Presses Germans Back To Suburbs Of Catania

MORIN

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 21—American and Canadian troops have captured the central road hub of Enna to control half of Sicily, and tonight demoralized Axis troops had begun a general retreat toward the escape port of Messina, two miles opposite the Italian mainland.

Enna also is the "back door" to Catania, forty miles to the east, where the British Eighth Army had pressed back a stubborn German foe to the southern suburbs of that port.

British warships still were pumping shells into the city, whose fall would pave the way for an Axis rout similar to the Cap Bon disaster in North Africa.

Of the struggle around Catania, key to eastern Sicily, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, said:

"The Germans had attempted to establish a very strong line, including Mount Etna, on the east and to do so brought certain formations from the Italian mainland."

Press beyond Enna After Foe

American and Canadian armored columns seized the mountain fortress of Enna yesterday and pounded on after an enemy whom Allied observers said was withdrawing northeastward apparently for a last stand in the Messina area or below there on the fifty-five-mile road leading to Catania.

The fall of Enna, a war prize through the centuries, isolated large numbers of Axis troops in western Sicily whose only effective means of escape is along a northern coastal road thirty miles above the advancing Americans and Canadians.

Catania's defenders also were cut off from inland Sicily except for that circuitous northern road, and presumably some of the Canadians have turned eastward to outflank the Germans on the coast who were fighting one of the most ferocious battles since their unsuccessful stand at the Mareth Line in southern Tunisia.

Gerbini 30 Miles To East

Gerbini and its neighboring airdromes are thirty miles east of Enna, and the Germans apparently had withdrawn most of their units from central Sicily to defend the Catania area.

General Eisenhower, in his interview, said that the Americans were meeting weaker resistance in their rapid advance, "thus over-running substantial portions of the island and confining the enemy to progressively smaller areas."

The general expressed confidence in a complete Allied victory on the island, but said the British and Canadian forces faced bitter fighting and the prospect of a generally slow advance.

Strafe Road Of Retreat

Ahead of the Allied columns, plitting Sicily in half, raced airmen strafing the enemy's road of retreat. But the targets were becoming so slim in Sicily for the Allied airmen they were raising their sights generally to attack Sardinia, island above Sicily, and airports on the southern Italian mainland.

Italian prisoners captured in central Sicily also declared that German forces had sped eastward. They complained that the Nazis were deserting them, grabbing all transport and leaving them afoot, but it was likely that the Germans were concentrating their forces in the vital Catania sector.

The Italians also bitterly denounced their own Governmnet, saying the Fascists had given them insufficient guns and food to withstand the Allies.

JUL 22 1943

Toll Of Prisoners Rising

The toll of prisoners apparently was well beyond 35,000, the figure announced two days ago, as the Americans and Canadians quickly reduced Enna which in ancient times held out against the Saracens for thirty-one years.

Enna was a rich prize because it controls the main highway and railroad lines radiating to all corners of the mountainous island. The Americans first had taken Caltanisetta to the southwest, and the Canadians had toppled Piazza Armerina to the southeast. Both towns are 10 to 12 miles from Enna.

Goums in Action

Today's official bulletin noted that "French Moroccan troops, the Goums, famous guerrilla fighters, have been in action," presumably in the central surge through Sicily.

Of the eastern theater, the communique said: "South of Catania British forces continued to meet strong German resistance but steady progress is being made and the enemy has suffered very heavy casualties in his efforts to retain his hold on the vital Catania area."

Dispatches from correspondents

Allies Capture Enna, Hold Half of Sicily; Pope Deplores Raid. Basilica Damaged: Reds 9 Miles From Orel, Take 90 Villages with the British fleet told of day-long naval bombardments of Catania and German concentrations west of the city. The plain below the city was strewn with Axis dead and wrecked tanks as the British pressed their assaults.

(Rome announced the evacuation of Enna, and Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Berlin radio commentator, said it was in line with an Axis plan of "disengaging movements"—the customary AAxis term of retreat.)

All Axis defenses in western Sicily were threatened with the fall of Enna in the center. American troops driving up the southwestern coast to envelop the western end of the island last were reported 10 miles beyond Agrigento, but there were few details of their movement beyond an official communique which said:

"The advance on the western section continued to be rapid."

Allied airmen struck powerful blows amid signs of decay in Axis resistance. Medium bombers pounded "the focal communication point of Randazzo" northwest of Catania, and light bombers attacked enemy road communications elsewhere during Monday night and yesterday.

Sweeps also were made over southern Italy where airfields and road and rail communications were bombed. American Liberators and RAF Halifaxes from the Middle East joined in these forays for a heavy blow at Vibo Valentia airfield. All the Middle Eastern bombers returned safely.

Five enemy fighters were shot down during an attack on Decimomannu airfield in Sardinia above Sicily, and a sixth Axis plane was shot down during a routine patrol sweep. Six aircraft from the northwest African command were lost during these widespread operations.

Rome, Berlin Picture Retreat As Orderly

London, July 21 (AP)—Official Axis communiques acknowledged today the fall of Enna and indicated the grave plight of their fortunes in Sicily with the same phrases used to cover earlier reverses in Africa and Russia.

Rome said that Enna had been evacuated, but that "Axis troops now have taken up new positions," and Berlin said that German and Italian troops "unmolested by the enemy, executed ordered movements according to plan."

Report British Repulsed

The Germans also stated that at Catania, British attacks were repulsed "and local penetrations were straightened out by immediate counter-attacks," while the Vichy radio said the British Eighth Army, hurling powerful forces into battle, "at some points succeeded in breaking Axis lines." The breaches "soon were sealed off," it added.

An apparent sudden silencing of most semi-official radio commentators indicated Axis propagandists were being most cautious, but Transocean's military correspondent, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, took to the air as usual and said there was "further stiffening of German and Italian resistance in the coastal sector."

He asserted heavy casualties had been inflicted on the British, and said that in central and western Sicily fighting "now as before is determined by elastic defense tactics."

Permit Escape From Trap

Such tactics, he added, permitted the bulk of Axis troops to escape a trap when Americans attempted a breakthrough in the central area.

"Fighting in Sicily still has some surprises in store for the enemy," said Sertorius.

All the broadcasts were recorded by the Associated Press.

The Axis commands claimed new successes, with the Italians declaring that 228 Allied tanks had been destroyed between July 10 and 20, with hundreds more damaged recently. Seven ships were reported hit in a raid on Malta, with two sunk. German torpedo boats were said to have destroyed two destroyers and a steamer at Syracuse.

British Repulse New Attacks in Catania Area

By the Associated Press. MORN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 21.—American and Canadian troops have seized Enna—defense prop of all Central Sicily—cutting off large numbers of Axis forces and forcing a general withdrawal as resistance on the island weakened almost to the point of collapse.

To the east, British 8th Army units hammered at the doors of Catania, shattering another Nazi counterassault with heavy casualties and advancing on the seaport, it was officially announced.

Half of Sicily now is in Allied hands, for air tactical purposes.

Enna's fall cut off Catania from Western Sicily except for one long, rough northern coastal road.

Allied observers reported a general retreat along all roads leading up from the center of Sicily, and Italian prisoners declared bitterly that German forces in the central sectors were speeding eastward for a quick getaway.

Italians Hit Own Government.

The withdrawal appeared intended for a last stand or possible evacuation in the Messina area of Northeastern Sicily, or between Catania and Messina.

Italians complained against their own government as well as the Germans. The Nazis, they declared, were repeating their African tactics of abandoning them every time the situation became hopeless, fleeing in all available transport.

They asserted their own Fascist government had given them too few guns and food and issued obsolete transports, armor and ammunition.

The American and Canadian troops were spearing deeper into Sicily beyond Enna in a swift, powerful advance. They are only about 40 miles from the north coast of Sicily and are rapidly splitting the island in two.

(The Italian communique announced earlier that Enna had been evacuated and the German war bulletin said that "in the western sector of the Sicilian front German and Italian forces, unmolested by the enemy, executed ordered movements according to plan." British attacks at Catania were repulsed, it said.)

Entire System in Jeopardy.

The fall of Enna, 45 miles west of Catania, threw the whole Axis communication system in Sicily in jeopardy.

The town controls the main highway and railroad lines running east and west across the mountainous island, and it thus cuts the German defenders of Catania off from contact with Italian forces in the west.

These Italian troops have been yielding ground rapidly and surrendering in huge numbers. Most of the German troops apparently are concentrated in the Catania area, battling desperately to hold the 8th Army from sealing off the entire east coast of Sicily by plunging through Catania up toward Messina.

With Enna's fall, the only contact between Catania and Western Sicily is by a single, roundabout road from Palermo and Termini on the north coast down around Mount Etna through Paterno, or by a still longer way along the coast to Messina and down the coastal road through Taormina.

Paterno itself is reported already threatened by British troops, and the entire Messina-Catania coastal road is vulnerable to aerial and sea bombardment.

The American and Canadian troops had thrown a powerful pincers on the town by advancing from Caltanissetta, taken by the United States 7th Army units, and from Piazza Armerina, which fell to the Canadians.

Large numbers of both German and Italian troops cut off in the Enna area were being rounded up, indicating that the Americans and Canadians had swept in too fast to permit them to escape. The total number of prisoners was not stated.

Prior to announcement of Enna's fall the Allied communique declared only that Canadian troops had continued their plunge northward in the direction of Enna despite strong enemy resistance and "many demolitions."

American troops, it added, continued to advance rapidly in the western sector.

JUL 22 1943

Aerial War Continues.

The great aerial war continued to strike at weakening Axis communication lines, raining bombs particularly on airfields and hitting road transport.

Decimomannu airfield in Sardinia was attacked in daylight by fighter-bombers which downed five Axis planes, and on Monday night medium bombers struck at the communications center of Randazzo, northwest of Catania. Six Allied aircraft were listed as lost.

Italian soldiers, choosing between surrender and continuation of resistance which could serve only to lay more of the island in ruins, were reported officially to be mutinying against their German officers and giving up in droves.

Rearguard Operations.

Only the Germans, thrown into the Eastern coastal area in an attempt to halt the Allied tide, were fighting fiercely, but these battles were regarded as little more than rearguard delaying operations.

No Axis propagandist now dared a public prediction that Sicily would be spared from conquest and the alibi of defeat—by superior forces on land and sea and in the air—already had been prepared by Fascist leaders in Rome, who gloomily spoke of the prospects of an Allied invasion of the Italian peninsula itself.

Italian Airfields Hit By Allied Bombers From North Africa

American Marauders

Blast Vibo Valentia; Hangars Destroyed

By the Associated Press. DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 21.—Allied air attacks were on a somewhat reduced scale yesterday after the previous day's giant blasting of Rome by more than 500 planes, but there still was enough reserve power to leave vital enemy airfields in Southern Italy and Sardinia strewn with flaming wreckage.

Six enemy planes were destroyed and six Allied craft were missing from widespread attacks against the air bases of Vibo Valentia and Monte Corvino, at the toe of the Italian boot; Aquino and Capodichino, near Naples, and Decimomannu, in Sardina.

Two waves of American Marauder bombers struck Vibo Valentia, studding hangars and blanketing a number of parked aircraft with hot steel. RAF bombers from the Middle East had attacked the same airdrome the previous night.

American Mitchells repeatedly raided Monte Corvino, setting at least 12 enemy planes ablaze on the ground. Crewmen said fragmentation bombs splintered among 20 to 40 Axis aircraft in the dispersal areas and that numerous fires broke out in hangars. Lightning fighters escorted both American missions.

Canadian and RAF Wellington bombers from North Africa heavily attacked Aquino Monday night, starting at least 30 fires, of which 6 or 8 were of huge proportions. After getting their bombs away the Wellingtons returned to shoot up the field and damaged a number of grounded planes. Returning crewmen said enemy night fighters and ground batteries offered little opposition.

American Warhawk fighter-bombers attacking Sardinian targets destroyed five enemy planes. Capt. Ralph G. Taylor, jr., Durham, N. C., shot down a Messerschmitt 109 and a Macchi 202 for his fourth and fifth victories, becoming the first ace of his group.

A.E.F. Beat GoeringUnit In Hard Battle at Biscari

Tanks, Guns and Maps Make Up Americans' Booty

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 21 (AP).—American troops storming the Biscari air base, on a 3,000-foot plateau in southeastern Sicily, fought one of the fiercest battles of the campaign last week, delayed reports said today.

The American soldiers smashed a counter-attack by the tanks and armored cars of Hermann Goering Division, leaving many enemy dead on the mountain road.

Royal Air Force field officers who were within a mile of the field while tanks still were fighting attested the fierceness of the fray.

Overturned enemy armored vehicles and guns marked the entrance to the landing ground, which once was used by many of the German air force's fighter and bomber squadrons operating against Malta. Stacks of maps of Malta were found in the enemy flight control headquarters, where the operation board had been abandoned undisturbed.

EISENHOWER SURE OF SICILY'S FALL

JUL 22 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 21 (A. P.)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared today that he was confident of a complete Allied victory in Sicily.

"Due to the nature of the terrain and the location of the enemy forces, the task facing the (British) Eighth Army, including Canadian forces, is one of bitter fighting with a generally slow advance," the Allied Commander in Chief warned. However, "the (American) Seventh Army is making a more or less rapid advance through weaker resistance, thus over-running substantial portions of the island and confining the enemy to progressively smaller areas.

"The German has attempted to establish a very strong line, including Mount Etna on the east and to do so brought certain formations from the Italian mainland," he said.

BRITISH NAVY GUNS AID CATANIA FIGHT

Cruiser Closes In to Within 2-Mile Range to Demolish Targets Chosen by Army

SHELLS LAND NEAR SHIP

Enemy Shore Batteries Expose Positions — 'Thanks; Good Shooting,' Invaders Signal

By PAUL KERN LEE

Associated Press Correspondent.

ABOARD A BRITISH CRUISER OFF CATANIA, Sicily, July 20 (Delayed)—The fight for Catania has developed into the biggest Sicilian battle for the Allies, who are throwing in the weight of naval artillery along with reinforcements of men and guns against the stubborn Hermann Goering Division and other German and Italian troops.

The fighting line, as visible from the bridge of this cruiser, runs just north of the Simeto River mouth.

As this cruiser moved to bombardment position this morning the constant thunder of field artillery ashore made a loud and insistent undertone to all ship's noises.

Artillery flashes ashore were easily visible and the never-ending rumble seemed to make the ship quiver, even at a distance of five miles.

A misty haze of battle smoke covered the whole coast and drifted seaward, increasing steadily as the day wore on. At an army request this ship, accompanied by British destroyers and Netherland gunboats, shelled German infantry and artillery concentrations miles inland southwest of Catania.

Planes Blast Coast Road

Simultaneously, planes out of sight heavily bombed the Germans along the coastal road about a mile south of Catania. The smoke of bombs could be clearly seen.

Two gigantic explosions indicated that enemy munitions dumps had been destroyed.

With several units ashore eager to have our supporting fire, the cruiser moved in less than two miles from shore. As we swung north of Catania toward a little inlet the shore batteries suddenly opened up on us.

The shells, mostly 4-inch, splashed so close that fragments rained as high as the bridge, but we were not harmed. The batteries put up persistent, excited fire.

Shells splashed with an explosive "whoosh" all around the ship. Twisting and turning at high speed, which nevertheless seemed like the pace of a tortoise, the cruiser replied at point blank range with all her heavy armament.

The two nearest shore batteries of four guns each ceased to fire, but due to the great smoke it was impossible to tell whether they had been hit or merely feared to disclose their positions to us. The others continued to shell us closely, their muzzle flashes stabbing out like bright, dangerous daggers. Destroyers engaged them as we pulled out of range.

Army Targets Come First

The Navy's instructions were to shell indicated army targets first and to ignore shore batteries if possible—a sort of business before pleasure motto. The captain of the destroyer flotilla signalled inquiring about the batteries' accuracy. Our captain gave this cricketer's reply:

"Their bowling was varied with one or two inside swings."

Translated into baseball terms, this might read: "In and out pitching with some right over the plate."

As evidence that one was almost a "beanball," I have a small fragment in my pocket for a souvenir.

Keeping clear of this point, which Navigator Lieut. Commdr. Peter Charles Moseley of Newcastle named "Windy Corner," we resumed shelling inshore for eight hours steadily.

Most of the targets were enemy infantry and artillery. A rising pall of smoke make observation difficult even when we were aiming at target areas almost on the beach. The Army, however, repeatedly signalled: "Thanks, good shooting," and once when the gunner commander thought our shots were widely scattered the Army replied: "Good shooting; all salvos damaging enemy, stopping the music of his mortars, guns, etc."

To a layman's ear, however, the rumble of guns ashore never ceased as the enemy was making his toughest stand in an airdrome area and southern suburbs of Catania.

BRIDGES RULE CATANIA FIGHT

JUL 22 1943

Correspondent Says Struggle On Plain Centers On River Crossings

By NED RUSSELL

[American War Correspondent]

[Distributed by the Associated Press]

With the British Eighth Army on the Catania Plain, July 20 (Delayed)—The strench of shell-torn bodies mingled with dust and smoke here today as the battle for the Catania plain rose to a new pitch of fury.

Sweating, battle-weary troops of Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's spearhead were slowly and relentlessly wearing down the tough German defenders.

The British held the bridgeheads on the northern side of the vital Simeto river slashing across the middle of the plain in a crazy, zigzag line. Thus they occupy over half the plain, including a couple of landing grounds.

Guns On Etna Foothills

However, the whole plain is still a battlefield for infantry, artillery and tanks—not a base for the Allied air force — because German guns concealed in the rocky, sloping foothills of Mount Etna to the north are pounding British positions steadily.

The fierce, ceaseless struggle for the northern half of the plain became a battle for bridges and river crossings.

Montgomery has a numerical superiority of men, guns, tanks and transport over a half dozen German parachute battalions which are fighting savagely for every yard of ground.

Four British crossings of the river were made from a single bridgehead, a 420-foot-long steel girder bridge on the coastal road. It is a big, secure bridgehead for the most part but the whole of it is under fire.

Battlefield Mainly Flat

I toured the battlefield today with its sickening stench from the corpses of men, horses and donkeys and the swirling dust and smoke of flashing guns and bursting shells.

The battlefield, for the most part, is as flat as a table top, with creeks, rivers and canals intersecting it and forming hazards for infantry.

The big fields of yellow grain and tall grass make excellent hiding places for German infantry as the British slowly overrun their positions. After each skirmish there are intricate, nerve-wracking mopping-up operations as the British beat through the grass, routing out snipers who are holding out to the last.

Creek Bids As Hiding Places

Besides the grain and grass there are dried-up creeks and river beds which also are excellent hiding places. There are tiny clusters of half a dozen to a dozen tall, thick green trees wherein the Germans conceal their forward guns and mortars. They are hard to get at because the approaches are flat and open and the British are compelled to watch them and pound them with their own artillery.

The battle here is raging so violently night and day that there has been little time to bury the dead. The bodies, mostly of Germans, lie in the grotesque positions of last agonizing pain. In daylight it is too dangerous for the troops to stand up to dig graves and in night time the infantry is too busy fighting in close-quarter struggles.

The searing heat of the sun beating down on the battlefield is intensified by the stench of death. I drove over the last crest and headed down a coastal road into the plain. The stench seemed to rise along the slope, engulfing the whole plain from the southern ridge, probably to the northern rim.

Warships Unleash Salvos

I saw the British navy join the battle, too. Lying offshore, warships with white ensigns waving in the light breeze suddenly unleashed a series of salvos on German gun positions in the northern hills. The guns flashed spectacularly. Smoke billowed from the gun muzzles as the ships rolled gently under the impact in the glistening, smooth Mediterranean. After a few salvos the ships hoisted a colorful display of flags and steamed proudly away.

Montgomery's slow, persistent offensive across the plain is continuing.

The Axis apparently feared that the Allied landing might strike the steep sandy beaches near the coastal road and the whole area north of the bridge is bristling with all sorts of guns. Although they originally established positions for meeting the assault from the sea the Germans only had to turn them from east to south—ninety degrees—to face the threat from the biggest sector of the British bridgehead.

Attack, Counterattack, Attack —That's Invasion, Writer Finds

By DON WHITEHEAD,

Associated Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE UNITED STATES 7th ARMY IN SICILY, July 17 (delayed).—The bell steeple on the gray crurch flung a long shaft of shadow over Mazzarino as we bounced over the cobbled streets in a jeep and turned down the steep road to the plains stretching below.

For a moment the grandeur of the scene made you forget the wretched poverty of the people on this island and the dull look in their eyes. We forgot for a moment about the war, the sight of blood spilled on streets, the bullet-riddled bodies lying in side roads and the stench of death that clings to a land cut by war.

This plan below was a lovely place, stretching to the hills beyond. The fields were tinted with that peculiar yellow brightness which sunsets sometimes paint on the landscape. White roads wound lazily through the valley and disappeared into the dark, serious-looking mountains.

But the illusion of a peaceful countryside lasted only a moment. There was the thunder of cannon and clouds of smoke billowed up where the shells landed.

Fight Seems Incessant.

This was a battlefield out there today. A tank battle had been fought and the enemy repulsed. Now it was our turn to attack.

Attack, counterattack, attack. It seemed this had been going on for weeks instead of only seven days. But then, time has become meaningless, except to the generals in headquarters, whose thoughts are on the broad mirror of war and not fixed on the miniature battleground below Mazzerino.

They can juggle time and mark the calendars as good generals must do. But for the men in the front line the hours run into days, the days into weeks. The thoughts are on the next bridge, the next valley, the next town.

Outlined against the sky on the ridge across the plain was the next town, Barrafranca, and still farther across the ridges was Caltanisetta, one of the key island cities of Sicily. That's where our drive from the beaches was leading us.

(The capture of Caltanisetta was announced officially by Allied headquarters on Monday.)

Major Won't Rest.

In the valley the jeep turned off the main road and came to a stop under a grove of trees gray with the dust which billowed up from each passing vehicle.

"Where's the major?" some one asked.

JUL 22 1943

"He's getting things lined up. He'll be here soon."

A jeep rolled up and a young mustached major with lines of worry and weariness in his face walked over. He introduced himself—Maj. Charles T. Horner of Doylestown, Pa. But he was off again in a few minutes.

"Chuck is wearing himself out," an officer said. "He won't rest."

We followed Maj. Horner across the fields to the foot of the slope where he gathered his officers around him to review the night's operations. He pointed out the objective—the high ground around Barrafranca—and studied the contours of the terrain on a map.

"We've got to watch our left flank," he said. "It's wide open. Everything will be all right if we can get on the high ground of Cozza di Manganaro."

Artillery to Follow.

"Yeah," said Capt. Kimball Richmond of Windsor, Vt. "But if there's any one on that hill we're going to get the hell shot out of us."

Maj. Horner shrugged. "The heavy weapons and mortars will follow behind us. They can't fire at night."

"Those were big babies they were throwing over today," said Capt. Emil Edmond of Pawling, N. Y. "They say it's a mortar that fires five 210-mm. shells simultaneously. That's about an eight-inch shell and they sound like a bomber coming in. They've got a terrific whack."

"We'll start moving about 7:30," Maj. Horner said.

Across the wheat fields came the troops, getting into line for the march. They looked tired and walked like men in a dream. The heavy woolen uniforms were dark with perspiration. They had the heavy, springless tread of old men.

Troops Were Tired.

"The boys are tired," Maj. Horner said. "They marched all last night after a fight and they couldn't sleep much because of the heat today.

"Then at 2:30 we received our orders to attack again. They had no supper and very little water."

"What about rations?" asked Capt. Albert H. Smith of Baltimore.

"We'll have to go without rations until they catch up with us," Maj. Horner said. Then he turned to Capt. Robert A. Peterman of Hicksville, N. Y., medical officer, and said: "How does it look, doc?"

Capt. Peterman crossed his fingers and said:

"I can't tell, but I don't like the evacuation setup in this tough country."

He watched the troops slogging up the slopes to their assembly point.

Colonel Arrives.

The regiment's colonel drove up for a conference.

"The tanks already have entered Barrafranca," an officer reported. "They say the enemy has withdrawn from the town."

"All right," said the colonel. "We'll go through the town to the high ground beyond, but let's have a reconnaissance."

This sudden development threw the plans out of kilter and the time of the march was delayed until midnight.

Second Lt. John Walker of Mahanoy City, Pa., drew the assignment to reconnoiter the terrain immediately behind Barrafranca and I accompanied him. We drove slowly down the road, wary of mines. Ahead of us was a hulk of a burning tank which had gone up on an enemy mine. We detoured around a haystack and came back into the road.

We drove into Barrafranca, which our troops had entered only a few minutes before. People stood on the narrow sidewalks and doorways applauding each soldier and vehicle that passed. They seemed genuine in their welcome to the troops. Several ran alongside the vehicles begging for cigarettes.

We drove slowly down the narrow main street to the edge of the town where a few troops lounged on the roadside.

Asked for Cigarettes.

"What's ahead?" Lt. Walker asked.

"This is as far as any one has been," said Lt. Allen Ferry of Alton Bay, N. H. Lt. Ferry led the first infantry troops into Barrafranca behind the tanks. "The people gave us quite a welcome."

"They were applauding us as though we were conquerors," laughed Staff Sergt. Frank A. Rizzo of New York City. "You should have seen us. Any they just about went crazy when we gave them cigarettes and some of our rations."

"This tops off a full day," said Sergt. Alton B. Baired of Mount Pleasant, Tex. "We had a fight yesterday. We marched all last night, then this morning. Our company was caught in a tank battle and we got a shelling along with it. We were right between the tanks and that's no place for the infantry to be."

We got in the jeep and began looking for a road leading to the northwest of the town. Lt. Walker drove up a narrow lane to the crest of a ridge where we left the jeep and went ahead on foot. We had the light of a full moon.

Hear Woman's Voice.

We walked ahead steadily. We heard voices and dropped to our knees. Lt. Walker had the Tommy gun poised. Then a woman spoke.

"It must be Sicilians civilians," Lt. Walker said. We continued down the slope into a little valley and passed a new high wall into a dry stream bed where the trail ran out. Vehicles could not travel this way.

We drove back through the dark town to our encampment. The troops lay on the hillsides sleeping. Some were wrapped in blankets. Others slept with no covering, looking as though they had fallen asleep as soon as they sank to the ground.

I picked a soft looking spot, moved a few rocks and fell asleep. It was midnight when I awoke, cold and shivering. The company on the next hill was having hot supper, but our food and water had not arrived for some reason. The men had to be content with boxed "K" rations.

Maj. Horner gave me a blanket.

"The plans now are that we march at 3 a.m.," he said. "We get through Barrafranca and push off from there."

Enter Barrafranca.

Shortly before 3 o'clock, the troops began to swarm out of the wheat fields and off the ridges where they had been sleeping. Slopes that appeared bare were alive with dark forms forming into columns for the march into Barrafranca.

They poured into the town in a long brown column and their hot coffee was waiting for them. They gulped great cups full and came back for more.

At 6 a.m. the column began moving again, this time into no-man's land where no one knew what to expect, although reconnaissance had encountered no resistance.

The few hours of rest had helped the men. They walked with vigor in the cool morning air. They no longer moved like automatons.

"We don't have to walk too damned fast," one soldier said to another. "The sooner we get there the quicker the fight will be over," was the retort.

Crowds Cheered Troops.

Before long we reached a crossroads, one fork leading to Caltanisetta and the other to Pietraperzia. I jumped onto a jeep with Lt. Col. Richard O'Connor of Long Beach, N. Y., and we drove behind an armored car into the town, which was just beginning to stir.

Within a few minutes crowds were cheering in the streets, cheering frantically. A hastily organized band began playing. Men, women and children clung to our vehicles. They tried to shake our hands. Hundreds milled about in the main square in one great jamboree.

Suddenly a soldier jumped from the armored car and ran down a side street. He came back with two Italian soldiers. One of them grabbed the soldier and kissed him on both cheeks. Obviously both of them were pleased to be captured. And the people cheered again. I still don't know whether they were cheering the soldiers for capturing the Italians or the Italians for being captured. It didn't matter.

We managed to get our jeep through the mob and started back to the troops when Col. O'Connor pulled his pistol. Ahead of us was a German truck and three soldiers were scrambling out of it and trying to get into another.

Col. O'Connor hauled them out and put them in his jeep while I towed the captured vehicle back to battalion headquarters.

They were more pleased with the trucks than the prisoners, for transportation is a valuable commodity in Italy.

Across the fields we could see the troops marching toward a ridge looking across another valley on Caltanisetta.

Another ridge . . . another valley . . . another town.

That's invasion.

Nazi General's Order Reveals Panic in Sicily

Goering Panzer Division's Commander Threatens Death if Men Flee Again

By Ross Munro

Canadian Press Correspondent

Distributed by The Associated Press

SOMEWHERE IN CENTRAL SICILY, July 18 (Delayed).—The morale of the German forces in Sicily is low and there has been panic among some of the troops, according to a captured Nazi order signed by General Conrath, commander of the Hermann Goering Panzer Division which is fighting here.

The order said:

"I had the bitter experience of watching scenes during these last days which are not worthy of a German soldier, particularly not soldiers of the Panzer Division of Hermann Goering.

"Persons came running to the rear hysterically crying because they had heard the detonation of a single shot fired somewhere on the landscape. Others, believing in false rumors, moved a whole column to the rear. In one instance supplies were senselessly distributed to soldiers and civilians by a supply unit that had fallen victim to a rumor.

"I want to state in these instances that these facts were committed not only by the youngest soldiers, but also by commissioned officers and warrant officers. Fear of enemy tanks and spreading of rumors are to be eliminated by the severest measures.

"Withdrawal without orders and cowardice are to be punished on the spot and, if necessary, by the use of weapons.

"I shall apply the severest measures of court martial against such saboteurs of the fight for the freedom of our nation and shall not hesitate to give the death sentence in serious cases. I expect all officers will use their influence to suppress such an undignified attitude in the Panzer Division of Hermann Goering."

RAID ON ROME DEPLORED BY POPE PIUS XII

Hope That City Would Be Spared Disappointed, Pontiff Writes

Letter To Vicar General Urges All Catholics To Pray For Peace

JUL 22 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 21—The Vatican radio broadcast today the text of a letter from Pope Pius XII to his vicar general for the district of Rome, Francesco Cardinal Marchetti-Salvaggiani, deploring Monday's bombing of the Italian capital and calling upon Catholics the world over to pray for a speedy peace.

In the letter, broadcast in English and recorded here by the Associated Press, the Pontiff said he had thought that "the horrors and destruction of bombing could be spared to our dear Rome." Citing the historical, cultural and religious importance of Rome, the Pope then said:

"All that we put before competent authorities on several occasions in clear terms, recommending to them in the name of human dignity and of Christian civilization the inviolability of Rome."

Justified In Hope

The Pope then stated he had felt justified in hoping that the papal authority and its impartiality would have secured us the consolation, among such bitterness, of finding a reception by the contending parties of our intervention in favor of Rome."

The text of the letter follows:

"To you who have such an intimate share in our Government and pastoral care of the Diocese of Rome, center and head of the Catholic world and of Christian thought and belief, we wish to address ourselves at the moment when our soul is touched with unusual affliction.

Spectacle Of Ruin

"You know well how the sad spectacle of ever greater slaughter and ruin, the unhappy record of this present war being hurled on unarmed and innocent populations, has driven us right from the outset of the conflict to do all we could to prevent the sentiment and laws of humanity from being completely drowned and suffocated by passion in the clash of arms.

"Accordingly in our messages to all the peoples we called upon the belligerents on both sides that if they want to hold the dignity of their country high, and the honor of their arms, they should respect the inviolability of peaceful citizens and monuments of faith and civilization.

"Ponder, we said to them, how severe will be the judgment of future generations on those who have destroyed that part of human progress which should have been jealously guarded as a treasure and glory of all mankind.

"Remember that hate never engendered peace and that resentment occasioned by vast and unnecessary destruction retards the day of peaceful reunion and makes it less certain and less serene.

"A peaceful reunion cannot be got from the humiliation of the conquered, but rests and is strengthened only by the feeling of brotherly understanding which draws souls together free of passion and rancour.

"As bishop of this, our city, we have thought with all our heart and you, My Lord Cardinal, have known of all our efforts that the horrors and destruction of bombing could be spared our dear Rome. Not to mention that the immense historical importance of the ancient city of Rome is that for us it is the holy city of Catholicism exalted to new and more brilliant glory in the name of Christ.

"It is rich in wonderful religious and artistic monuments, guardian of the most precious documents and relics.

First Sanctuary

"Rome, whose underground passages in the times of the ruthless persecution were the first sanctuary of the Christian people and of the martyrs who sanctified the amphitheaters and stadia and at whose tombs men gather to pray as at the cradle of Christianity.

"Rome, within whose limits are dispersed departments of the Roman curia, numerous pontifical institutes and works of international bodies and colleges dependent upon us; furthermore, so many sanctuaries, leaving out of account our glorious patriarchal basilicas, so many libraries and masterpieces of the fine art by the most famous artists.

"Rome is where men foregather from all parts of the world to learn not only religion but also the faith and wisdom to which men look as to a beacon of civilization founded on Christian virtues.

Vatican City Exposed

"But beside this, almost at the center of the city and hence exposed to the dangers of aerial attacks, is our Vatican City, an independent and neutral state which contains immeasurable treasures of religion and art, the sacred heritage not only of the apostolic See but of the entire Catholic world.

"All that we put before competent authorities on several occasions in clear terms, recommending to them in the name of human dignity and of Christian civilization the inviolability of Rome. We thought ourselves justified in hoping that in the face of such evident reasons the authority with which, however unworthily, we are endowed, the universal recognition of our completely impartial stand above the conflict and of the right and constant charity activity which we have exercised on behalf of all without distinction of nationality or religious belief—that all those considerations would have secured us the consolation among such bitterness of finding a reception by the contending parties of our intervention in favor of Rome. But alas this so reasonable hope of ours has been disappointed.

"And now what we apprehended has come to pass. That which in our fears we foresaw is a very sad reality. For one of the most famous Roman basilicas, that of San Lorenzo outside the walls, consecrated to the veneration of all Catholics by its ancient associations and by the venerable tomb of our revered predecessor Pius IX, is now in very great part destroyed. As we contemplated the ruins of that famous temple the words of the prophet Jeremiah returned to our mind:

"'Quomodo obscuratum est aurum, mutatus est color optimus, dispersi sunt lapides sanctuarii.' (How is the gold become dim, the finest color is changed, the stones of the sanctuary are scattered in the top of every street.)

"The sad reality of experience once again proves that in spite of precautions that men wish to take it is almost impossible to avoid in this holy soil the destruction of the things of the highest values that adorn human and Christian thinking. For it is our fixed intention and our heart's dictate to safeguard and protect before the judgment of posterity the deposit which we have been commissioned to keep.

Not Incentive To Hate

"Our words which come from a torn heart are not meant as an incentive to vengeance or hate but as an insistent reminder, and we will hope effectively so, to a sense of high-minded appreciation of Rome's sacred destiny no less than of Christian community and charity.

"We have striven to bring quick succor by all the means at our disposal to our people of the Roman Diocese, so severely tried, whose piteous lot we have been able to behold with our own eyes in the midst of the ruins.

"To them we say, show now as never before the intensity of the proof of that hope for which the Apostle of the Gentiles once wrote to your forefather.

"May Christian resignation make sorrow and privation acceptable to you, may disaster before you serve to purify your soul, to expiate your sins and to return or to draw closer to Our Lord.

Invitation To Pray

"To all our sons whose eyes are turned to Rome and to the Vicar of Christ who as its bishop is its own loving father, to all our sons wherever they be, and in a special way to all those throughout the world whose experience of personal suffering and suffering in others makes them more sympathetic toward every form of misery, we address with fatherly insistence our invitation asking them to raise such good prayers to Our Lord that he may hasten the hour of lightness when men will lay down their arms, their souls will be calm and the lights and joys of a true peace will come back to brighten this convulsed world.

"With this hope in our hearts we impart to you, Lord Cardinal, to our beloved clergy, and the people of Rome the apostolic benediction.

Pope's Letter on the Raid on Rome

LONDON, July 21 (AP)—Following is the text of a letter from Pope Pius XII to his vicar general for the district of Rome, Francesco Cardinal Marchetti - Salvaggiani, deploring Monday's bombing of the Italian capital, as broadcast by the Vatican radio:

My Dear Lord Cardinal:

To you who have such an intimate share in our government and pastoral care of the Diocese of Rome, center and head of the Catholic world and of Christian thought and belief, we wish to address ourselves at the moment when our soul is touched with unusual affliction.

You know well how the sad spectacle of ever greater slaughter and ruin, the unhappy record of this present war being hurled on unarmed and innocent populations, has driven us right from the outset of the conflict to do all we could to prevent the sentiment and laws of humanity from being completely drowned and suffocated by passion in the clash of arms.

Accordingly, in our messages to all the peoples we called upon the belligerents on both sides, if they wanted to hold the dignity of their countries high and the honor of their arms, to respect the inviolability of peaceful citizens and monuments of faith and civilization.

Ponder, we said to them, how severe will be the judgment of future generations on those who have destroyed that part of human progress which should have been jealously guarded as a treasure and glory of all mankind.

Remember that hate never engendered peace and that resentment occasioned by vast and unnecessary destruction retards the day of peaceful reunion and makes it less certain and less serene.

A peaceful reunion cannot be got from the humiliation of the conquered but rests and is strengthened only by the feeling of brotherly understanding, which draws souls together free of passion and rancor.

Holy City of Catholicism

As Bishop of this, our city, we have thought with all our heart and you, my Lord Cardinal, have known of all our efforts that the horrors and destruction of bombing should be spared our dear Rome. Not to mention the immense historical importance of the ancient city of Rome, it is the holy city of Catholicism, exalted to new and more brilliant glory in the name of Christ.

It is rich in wonderful religious and artistic monuments, guardian of the most precious documents and relics.

Rome, whose underground passages in the times of the ruthless persecution were the first sanctuary of the Christian people and of the martyrs who sanctified the amphitheatres and stadia and at whose tombs men gather to pray as at the cradle of Christianity.

Rome, within whose limits are dispersed departments of the Roman Curia, numerous pontifical institutes and works of international bodies and colleges dependent upon us; furthermore, so many sanctuaries, leaving out of account our glorious patriarchal basilicas, so many libraries and masterpieces of the fine art by the most famous artists.

Rome is where men foregather from all parts of the world to learn not only religion but also the faith and wisdom to which men look as to a beacon of civilization founded on Christian virtues.

But beside this, almost at the center of the city and hence exposed to the dangers of aerial attacks, is our Vatican City, an independent and neutral State, which contains immeasurable treasures of religion and art, the sacred heritage not only of the Apostolic See but of the entire Catholic world.

Hope Is Disappointed

All that we put before competent authorities on several occasions in clear terms, recommending to them in the name of human dignity and of Christian civilization the inviolability of Rome. We thought ourselves justified in hoping that in the face of such evident reasons the authority with which, however unworthily, we are endowed, the universal recognition of our completely impartial stand above the conflict and of the right and constant charity activity which we have exercised on behalf of all without distinction of nationality or religious belief, that all those considerations would have secured us the consolation among such bitterness of finding a reception by the contending parties of our revered predecessor, Pius Rome. But, alas, 'his so reasonable hope of ours has been disappointed.

And now what we apprehended has come to pass. That which in our fears we foresaw is a very sad reality. For one of the most famous Roman basilicas, that of San Lorenzo fuori le mura, consecrated to the veneration of all Catholics by its ancient associations and by the venerable tomb of our revered predecessor Pius IX, is now in very great part destroyed. As we contemplated the ruins of that famous temple the words of the Prophet Jeremiah returned to our mind:

"Quomodo obscuratum est aurum, mutatus est color optimus,

dispersi sunt lapides sanctuarii." [How is the gold become dim, the finest color is changed, the stones of the sanctuary are scattered.]

The sad reality of experience once again proves that in spite of precautions that men wish to take it is almost impossible to avoid in this holy soil the destruction of things of the highest values that adorn human and Christian thinking. For it is our fixed intention and our heart's dictate to safeguard and protect before the judgment of posterity the deposit which we have been commissioned to keep.

Our words, which come from a torn heart, are not meant as an incentive to vengeance or hate but as an insistent reminder, and we will hope effectively so, to a sense of high minded appreciation of Rome's sacred destiny no less than of Christian community and charity.

We have striven to bring quick succor by all the means at our disposal to our people of the Roman diocese, so severely tried, whose piteous lot we have been able to behold with our own eyes in the midst of the ruins.

To them we say, show now as never before the intensity of the proof of that hope for which the Apostle of the Gentiles once wrote to your forefathers.

May Christian resignation make sorrow and privation acceptable to you, may disaster before you serve to purify your soul, to expiate your sins and to return or to draw closer to our Lord.

Urges Prayer for Peace

To all our sons whose eyes are turned to Rome and to the Vicar of Christ who as its Bishop is its own loving father, to all our sons wherever they be, and in a special way to all those throughout the world whose experience of personal suffering and suffering in others makes them more sympathetic toward every form of misery, we address with fatherly insistence our invitation asking them to raise such good prayers to our Lord that He may hasten the hour of lightness when men will lay down their arms, their souls will be calm and the lights and joys of a true peace will come back to brighten this convulsed world.

With this hope in our hearts we impart to you, Lord Cardinal, to our beloved clergy and the people of Rome the Apostolic Benediction.

Given at St. Peter's, Rome, on twentieth day of July in the year 1943, the fifth of our pontificate.

Statement Stresses Duty to Safeguard Relics of Ancient Civilization and Calls on People to Pray for Peace.

The Rome radio broadcast today what it described as a letter written by Pope Pius XII to Francesco Cardinal Marchetti-Salvaggiani, his Vicar-General for the district of Rome, deploring Monday's bombing of Rome.

The broadcast, in French, was picked up by the Associated Press. It gave as its authority a Vatican City dispatch of Stefani, the Italian official news agency.

At London the British Ministry of Information recorded a Vatican radio broadcast giving the text of a letter from the Pope to Cardinal Marchetti-Salvaggiani which appeared to be the same as that broadcast by Rome, and Rome also broadcast a Stefani dispatch asserting that the Pontiff's letter was given the place of honor in L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican City newspaper.

Text of Letter.

The Rome radio broadcast the letter as follows:

"Reflect upon the severe judgment that future generations will pronounce upon those who destroy all that which should be safeguarded and jealously preserved because it constitutes the riches and glory of all humanity and the progress of peoples. Consider that hate never was the mother of peace and that resentment provoked by hate and unnecessary destruction postpones and makes less certain and less serene the day of a peaceful meeting which cannot come out of the humiliation of the conquered, but must be based upon and show itself solely in fraternal concord, which reconciles spirits and moderates passions and rancor.

"In our character as Bishop of this sublime city and we did everything possible—and you, Cardinal, have followed all our actions—that our well-beloved Rome might be spared the horrors and the wreckage of bombings. Without wishing to recall the great historic importance of this ancient city, Rome for us is the Holy City of Catholicism, to which Christ gave a new and more sublime glory, marked by marvelous religious and artistic monuments, guardian of precious relics and documents.

"Rome in the days of persecution had the catacombs, the first shelters of Christian martyrs, who sanctified the ampitheaters and circuses and whose sepulchers are still places of prayer. Rome's territory is filled with churches and numerous Papal institutions and works, international institutions and colleges sponsored by us, innumerable sanctuaries, without counting our magnificent patriarchal basilicas, libraries and works of the great geniuses of the arts. Rome is where so many people come from over the world to study not only faith, but ancient wisdom, and these consider this city as a beacon of civilization founded on Christian virtues.

Sacred to All Catholics.

"Rome is sacred not only to the Holy See but to the whole Catholic world.

"We spoke clearly and several times to the proper persons, recommending the safety of Rome, in the name of human dignity and Christian civilization. It seemed proper to hope that the reasons given, the authority which we exercise, general recognition of our impartiality and benevolence visited upon all without distinction of nationality or religion, would have gained for us the comfort among so many troubles of finding our efforts for Rome favorably received by the belligerents.

"But alas our hope was vain. And now that which we feared has happened. That which we foresaw is now sad reality for one of the noted Roman basilicas, that of San Lorenzo—Outside the Walls, venerated by all Catholics for its antique memories, is now in great part destroyed. Upon seeing the ruins of this noted temple the words of the Prophet Jeremiah come to mind: 'How is the gold become dim, the finest color is changed, the stones of the sanctuary are scattered in the top of every street.'

"The painful experience of the facts demonstrated once again that no matter what precautions one wishes to exercise, it is almost impossible on this sacred soil of Rome to avoid the destruction of venerable structures. That is why we believe it is our duty again to raise our voice in defense of the great values which are ornaments of human and Christian greatness. It is our sacred intention dictated by our heart to safeguard and protect before all right thinking people, and before the judgment of future generations, the spiritual treasures which have been confided to us to be guarded and handed on.

Resentment Disavowed.

"Our word which springs from a wounded heart does not wish to excite to resentment or to hate, but is an insistent call and, we hope, an effective one to the sentiments of noble understanding of the sacred destiny of Rome and to sentiments of humanity and Christian charity.

"We have sought with all the means at our disposal to go immediately to the aid of our people of Rome who are suffering so cruelly and whose miserable condition in the midst of recent ruins we have seen with our eyes. We say to them: Give proof today more than ever of that ardent faith for which the Apostle of the World praised your ancestors. Let Christian resignation cause you to accept pain and privations. May misfortune be for you a spur to purify your souls, to expiate your sins, to brink you back, or bring you nearer to God.

"To all our children who turn their eyes toward Rome and to the Vicar of Christ who, in his office of bishop, is the special and affectionate father, wherever they may be, and especially those who suffer and those who are sympathetic to the many human miseries, we address insistently an invitation to direct their prayers with confidence to God so that He may speed the hour of His mercy when arms are laid down, souls pacified and the light and joy of true peace shall shine again on a troubled world.

"It is with this hope in our heart that we give to you, Cardinal, and to our dear clergy and the people of Rome the apostolic benediction.

"Done at Rome, at St. Peter's, July 20 of the year 1943, the fifth of our pontificate,

"PIUS XII."

Bishop Hurley Condemns Raid.

St. Augustine, Fla., July 21 (A. P.).—The Most Rev. Joseph P. Hurley, Bishop of St. Augustine and formerly attached to the Vatican as aid to the Papal Secretary of State, declared today that the bombing of Rome was a tragic error "in higher moral strategy of this just war."

Bishop Hurley, now at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., issued his statement through the chancery here.

"The news of the bombing of Rome—by our own soldiers—has pained me beyond expression," he said. "I realize very well that the Fascist government of Italy has sought with craven cunning to protect some of its military activities by carrying them on within the shadow of the sacred shrines of Christendom. I appreciate, too, the meticulous care with which our airmen endeavored, though vainly, to avoid hitting churches and historic monuments in the Eternal City. But every decent Christian thought and sentiment within me cries out that we have made a tragically mistaken decision in the higher moral strategy of this just war.

"I am convinced, too, that the raid on Rome has darkened our prospects for the sort of peace so ardently desired by all of us."

MADRID, July 21 (AP)—A Spanish correspondent who was in Vatican City Monday during the bombing of Rome said today that the Pope remained alone in his private office praying, meditating and studying through the two-hour bombing in the distance.

The Rome correspondent of the newspaper Ya said he drove his automobile through the gates of Vatican City just as the first alarm sounded and Swiss Guards closed the gates. The first bombs fell on Rome while he stood in the San Damaso courtyard.

The upper galleries of the courtyard were filled with groups of dignitaries and employes of the Papal court, some of whom went to the bomb shelter, which is capable of holding the entire population of Vatican City.

Others, including the correspondent, sought safety under the archways and staircases, while many rushed to towers and windows to watch the bombs.

All the curtains of the Pope's private office, where the Pontiff was working when the bombing began, were drawn save one which was opened that morning. Through it, the correspondent said, the Pope was able to watch the bombing.

Pope May Consider Moving Residence, Nazi Radio Says

By the Associated Press.

The Berlin radio, quoting what it said was "competent Vatican circles," reported today that in the event of further air raids on Rome Pope Pius XII would consider the removal of his residence from Vatican City to one of the papal palaces within Rome.

The broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, said the Pope "wants to express that he is not only the head of the Catholic Church but also is the Bishop of Rome, and that he therefore is determined to share the dangers and fate of the city's population."

The broadcast added that "it is not only of importance to the Pope that Vatican City be spared from enemy air raids but also that Rome itself will not be exposed to enemy attacks."

The broadcast was in line with the attempts of Axis propagandists to arouse agitation abroad against further bombing of Rome.

LONDON July 21 (AP)—The Berlin radio reported today that Rome had been raided again last night by Allied planes. The broadcast, recorded by Reuter, was not confirmed by any other sources.

The German announcer said details of the reported raid were not yet known.

Nothing was known of such a raid here and observers considered a night attack on the Eternal City as highly unlikely, pointing out that leaflets dropped by American airmen during Monday's raid said specifically that the attack was being made by daylight to guarantee accuracy.

Observers also pointed out that the leaflets mentioned the possibility that Axis planes might be used to drop bombs and lend credibility to propaganda claims that the Allies were deliberately destroying cultural monuments.

French Leader Tells His Countrymen Moment Is Approaching

Army Not Bent On Conquest Or Defense, But Rescue, He Says

London, July 21—Indicating that an Allied invasion of France is not far off, Gen. Henri Giraud, co-leader of the French Committee of National Liberation, told his occupied homeland in a broadcast today that "the moment is approaching with clockwork precision—the moment which you and I have so long waited for."

In his broadcast, over the BBC, Giraud told the French that soon they will hear the clatter of tanks again, but it will be the Germans

Giraud has just reached London after a visit to Washington and Ottawa.

Reminding his listeners of "the horrible clatter of tanks which overflowed our roads like a devastating avalanche," Giraud said, "You will hear this clatter again, but more gladly when the last old German tank retraces its route."

The French army, the general told his listeners, is "bent not on conquest or even defense, but on rescue and deliverance.

LIBERATION PLANS GIVEN TO BELGIANS

Exiled Premier Broadcasts Steps to Follow Arrival of Allied Armies

FOOD AND ORDER ARE FIRST

Pierlot, in National Day Talk, Pledges Constitutional Rule, Punishment for Traitors

LONDON, July 21 (AP)—Hubert Pierlot, Prime Minister of the Belgian Government-in-Exile, said today in a radio address directed at occupied Belgium on the 112th anniversary of its independence that "victory is on the march," and presented a plan for liberating Belgians after the arrival of Allied armies.

These liberation steps, he said, would be taken, accompanied by Belgian military civil missions to act as intermediaries:

Food supplies will be distributed with the arrival of the armies;

Contact will be made with Belgians "above reproach from the national point of view," with others sidetracked or arrested;

The government will be transferred to the liberated zone as soon as possible to maintain order;

Food supply services of the army will be coordinated with distributing agencies existing in Belgium;

Public administrations will be cleaned of traitors and collaborators, with swift, exemplary punishment for all who have given criminal help to the enemy;

The King, now "a prisoner among his people," will again exercise constitutional powers;

Parliament will meet again;

The government will submit for approval reports to the King and Parliament on actions taken since the occupation, and Ministers will submit resignations to facilitate formation of the new government, including in it men who lived through the occupation.

Polish Pilot Spends 'Holiday' in France After Plane Is Felled

By the Associated Press. LANDSTROM

LONDON.—A young Polish pilot, forced to bail out of his fighter over France, spent nine days there on what he calls a "holiday" and then came home to fight some more.

He hiked for 100 miles through areas well covered by German troops, visited favorite restaurants, went to the movies, and registered at popular hotels.

When he rejoined his squadron he was awarded the British Distinguished Flying Cross, the decoration being pinned upon him by Air Vice Marshal H. W. L. Saunders.

This pilot, Flight Lt. Tadeusz Biedrzycki, 29, already has made several sweeps over Naziland since his return unharmed. Here is his story:

JUL 22 1943

Attacked by 10 Nazis.

"Our formation went out as an escort to an Allied bombing expedition and over a certain French locality we were attacked by 10 Focke Wulfs. I spotted a German plane coming from behind to attack our bombers. I dived to intercept him. I hit him and the plane spiraled down in black smoke and out of control.

"While I was getting that one, however, another enemy plane took after me. His guns blasted a hole four feet wide in one of my wings. My engine was hit and burst into flames. I bailed out.

"I landed in a field and promptly went into hiding for several hours while Germans scoured the area for me. Their search started within 15 minutes after I hit the ground. I could even hear some of them swear heavily when they could not find me, they were that close to me.

"At sundown I headed for a big French city—I cannot, of course, say precisely where I went—nor how the details of disguise and escape were accomplished—and spent two days there strolling about the streets, eating in the best restaurants, visiting the sights, including many of my old haunts, and saw two film programs.

"I had to leave my hotel very suddenly, though, when the German proprietress learned I was a Pole. I just kept walking and occasionally took a train ride.

"When talking with Germans, I spoke French, although I have only an academic knowledge of the language. But somehow I got by with it.

Suffered From Hunger.

"I suffered from hunger some of the time I was in hiding. At one time I went without food for three days."

The morale of the German troops he saw in Occupied France was, he asserted, "very poor," adding that "most of the Nazi troops stationed there were older men, poorly clothed and equipped."

"The French," he said, "are 100 per cent on the side of the Allies. They speak quiet blessings to God every time our planes go over on a mission. They wait patiently for the invasion to start."

Military secrecy naturally prohibits also any disclosures of how the pilot made his way to England.

Lt. Biedrzycki already held the Polish Cross of Valor and two bars for destroying two German planes and sharing in the destruction of a third. He also is credited with three probables. He took part in the Dieppe raid last August, and has made a total of 63 sweeps over enemy-occupied areas.

INVASION SECRET WAS WELL KEPT

Correspondents Protected Allied Plans for Sicily Attack, Says Churchill.

LONDON, July 21.—(AP) Prime Minister Churchill informed Commons today he was not aware that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower gave newsmen in North Africa advance information about the invasion of Sicily, but implied that, if it were true, he thought the secret was well kept.

The statement was made in a written reply to Thomas Naylor, Laborite member of Parliament, who asked July 16 if the prime minister was aware such a vital military secret had been entrusted to Allied correspondents nearly a month in advance and if British commanders would be warned against making such disclosures in future.

"I have no information in regard to the first part of the question," Mr. Churchill's reply said. "As regards the second part, full and precise instructions are already in force.

"In view of the tactical surprise effected and of the results achieved in the present operation, no addition to these instructions appears to be necessary."

(Relman Morin, Associated Press correspondent(disclosed in a dispatch from North Africa that Gen. Eisenhower told the assembled Allied press in mid-June that Sicily would be the object of the next Allied offensive.)

Nazi Ability to Aid Italy Is Doubted in London

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—Military and diplomatic circles today expressed the view that if the purpose of the Hitler-Mussolini meeting Monday was an Italian plea for additional help, Il Duce probably did not get very far.

Since Germany's war resources are strained already, these sources said they doubted that Hitler could rush very strong reinforcements into Italy even if he wished.

They also noted that Axis communiques reporting the meeting made no mention of decisions being reached and failed to sound the usual note on "cordiality" of discussions and "unanimity" of decisions.

It was considered significant, too, that Hitler flew to the meeting—indicating perhaps that it was called hurriedly.

The conference coincided with reports from Sicily that Italian troops were revolting against their German commanders and with rumors of increased uneasiness in the Balkans.

The Moscow radio, in a broadcast by the Soviet monitor here, said the Bulgarian Parliament met in extraordinary session yesterday and that all army leaves had been canceled and soldiers already on leave had been ordered to report to their units immediately.

The Moscow radio also reported that the governor of the Banja Luka region in Yugoslavia had been killed by guerrillas, and Tass, official Soviet news agency, quoted an Istanbul dispatch as saying that the assassination had resulted in the declaration of a state of emergency in the area.

The German radio reported from Budapest that the Hungarian government had authorized the minister of the interior to establish an auxiliary police force to protect public security as a supplement to the regular service.

Exile Belgian Regime Plans To Restore King

London, July 21 (AP)—The Belgian Government-in-exile will call back its King, now a prisoner in occupied Belgium, to head the country when the Allied armies arrive, Hubert Pierlot, Prime Minister, said today in a broadcast address.

King Leopold III, who was assailed by France and Britain when he surrendered to the Germans in 1940, will again exercise constitutional powers, Pierlot said.

Pierlot's address, directed at occupied Belgium on the one hundred and twelfth anniversary of its independence, promised Belgians that victory is on the way and outlined the Government's plan to supply food and eliminate traitors when liberation comes.

Reich Junker Clique Expected to Dictate Erasure of Hitler

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 21.—The German general staff can be expected to eliminate Hitler when Germany's complete collapse appears inevitable—that prediction came today from a high source whose job inside Germany for years was to keep tabs on the Reich military.

But getting rid of Hitler, this observer said, would be only the beginning in breaking Germany as a war maker forever.

The big job—and big danger, if it fails, he said—would be wiping out the legend of the "undefeated German Army"—a legend that the German military clique—the Junkers—sold to the German people. The theme was that the German Army never surrendered in 1918—it was the German government which quit.

The army, the Junkers argued, was "stabbed in the back" by Communists and Social Democrats in and outside the government.

The Junkers won't give up easily, this source said, even though beaten in battle. They will try to find a way again to keep the door open for them to retire behind the smokescreen of gentlemen officers while they plot another war.

Military Chiefs to Call Quits.

When the time comes, he added, the German general staff—not Hitler—will decide to call it quits. They may be already playing with the idea of writing off this war, he thinks, even though there's long and bitter fighting ahead.

Two things, he said, would lead to the final decision—when the bombing reaches a point where the German people are beginning to develop a horror of war they'll never forget; when fighting on German soil becomes inevitable.

Then watch out for their campaign to maintain the myth of the "undefeated German Army."

This observer said they would probably operate this way:

First, eliminate Hitler—even at the risk of civil war with the Fuehrer's own SS troops and the Gestapo.

Secondly, begin a campaign to win sympathy, arguing they were forced into waging war.

Would Sing Tune Anew.

Later, if the chance came to sow the seeds for another war, they would revive the same old tune—invincibility of the German Army.

In beating the drums, they would try to bury their second failure with a new cry—that they called a halt because of "inhuman warfare." They would play up the Allied bombings in an attempt to blind the short-memoried German people to the fact that the Luftwaffe invented wholesale bombing and "total warfare."

The German military clique has run the Reich since the Franco-German War in 1870, in the opinion of this observer. When Hitler first appeared in the German political picture, he said, they faced the decision of crushing him or using him. They chose to use him.

As long as Hitler's "intuition" worked or fell in line with their plans, he said, his direction of the war was not challenged.

But now it is approaching the time for the Junkers to think of saving themselves in the same way they did before—holding up the German Army as invincible in the eyes of the German people while they threw others off guard with a pose as gentlemen officers.

Churchill to Hold Office Until Final Defeat of Axis

By E. C. DANIEL

LONDON, July 21.—(AP Britain will have no Willkies, Brickers, or Deweys waiting at the gate of 10 Downing street in 1944. Britain plans no general election until Germany is defeated. Prime Minister Churchill is in for the duration.

The prime minister himself has suggested 1945 as the probable year of victory in Europe and the nation's first parliamentary election since 1935. But any Churchill aspirations for continued authority have already been rejected by some of his most loyal wartime supporters, including sections of his own party, the Conservatives. Neither they nor the principal opposition, the Laborites, have chosen a candidate to succeed him, but three men stand in the forefront of prospects, Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, Laborite Herbert Stanley Morrison, and Sir Stafford Cripps, an independent.

Food supply services of the army will be coordinated with distributing agencies existing in Belgium;

Public administrations will be cleaned of traitors and collaborators, with swift, exemplary punishment for all who have given criminal help to the enemy;

The King, now "a prisoner among his people," will again exercise constitutional powers;

Parliament will meet again;

The government will submit for approval reports to the King and Parliament on actions taken since the occupation, and Ministers will submit resignations to facilitate formation of the new government, including in it men who lived through the occupation.

Polish Pilot Spends 'Holiday' in France After Plane Is Felled

By the Associated Press. LANDSTROM

LONDON.—A young Polish pilot, forced to bail out of his fighter over France, spent nine days there on what he calls a "holiday" and then came home to fight some more.

He hiked for 100 miles through areas well covered by German troops, visited favorite restaurants, went to the movies, and registered at popular hotels.

When he rejoined his squadron he was awarded the British Distinguished Flying Cross, the decoration being pinned upon him by Air Vice Marshal H. W. L. Saunders.

This pilot, Flight Lt. Tadeusz Biedrzycki, 29, already has made several sweeps over Nazi-land since his return unharmed. Here is his story:

JUL 22 1943

Attacked by 10 Nazis.

"Our formation went out as an escort to an Allied bombing expedition and over a certain French locality we were attacked by 10 Focke Wulfs. I spotted a German plane coming from behind to attack our bombers. I dived to intercept him. I hit him and the plane spiraled down in black smoke and out of control.

"While I was getting that one, however, another enemy plane took after me. His guns blasted a hole four feet wide in one of my wings. My engine was hit and burst into flames. I bailed out.

"I landed in a field and promptly went into hiding for several hours while Germans scoured the area for me. Their search started within 15 minutes after I hit the ground. I could even hear some of them swear heavily when they could not find me, they were that close to me.

"At sundown I headed for a big French city—I cannot, of course, say precisely where I went—nor how the details of disguise and escape were accomplished—and spent two days there strolling about the streets, eating in the best restaurants, visiting the sights, including many of my old haunts, and saw two film programs.

"I had to leave my hotel very suddenly, though, when the German proprietress learned I was a Pole. I just kept walking and occasionally took a train ride.

"When talking with Germans, I spoke French, although I have only an academic knowledge of the language. But somehow I got by with it.

Suffered From Hunger.

"I suffered from hunger some of the time I was in hiding. At one time I went without food for three days."

The morale of the German troops he saw in Occupied France was, he asserted, "very poor," adding that "most of the Nazi troops stationed there were older men, poorly clothed and equipped."

"The French," he said, "are 100 per cent on the side of the Allies. They speak quiet blessings to God every time our planes go over on a mission. They wait patiently for the invasion to start."

Military secrecy naturally prohibits also any disclosures of how the pilot made his way to England.

Lt. Biedrzycki already held the Polish Cross of Valor and two bars for destroying two German planes and sharing in the destruction of a third. He also is credited with three probables. He took part in the Dieppe raid last August, and has made a total of 63 sweeps over enemy-occupied areas.

INVASION SECRET WAS WELL KEPT

Correspondents Protected Allied Plans for Sicily Attack, Says Churchill.

LONDON, July 21.—(AP) Prime Minister Churchill informed Commons today he was not aware that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower gave newsmen in North Africa advance information about the invasion of Sicily, but implied that, if it were true, he thought the secret was well kept.

The statement was made in a written reply to Thomas Naylor, Laborite member of Parliament, who asked July 16 if the prime minister was aware such a vital military secret had been entrusted to Allied correspondents nearly a month in advance and if British commanders would be warned against making such disclosures in future.

"I have no information in regard to the first part of the question," Mr. Churchill's reply said. "As regards the second part, full and precise instructions are already in force.

"In view of the tactical surprise effected and of the results achieved in the present operation, no addition to these instructions appears to be necessary."

(Relman Morin, Associated Press correspondent(disclosed in a dispatch from North Africa that Gen. Eisenhower told the assembled Allied press in mid-June that Sicily would be the object of the next Allied offensive.)

Nazi Ability to Aid Italy Is Doubted in London

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—Military and diplomatic circles today expressed the view that if the purpose of the Hitler-Mussolini meeting Monday was an Italian plea for additional help, Il Duce probably did not get very far.

Since Germany's war resources are strained already, these sources said they doubted that Hitler could rush very strong reinforcements into Italy even if he wished.

They also noted that Axis communiques reporting the meeting made no mention of decisions being reached and failed to sound the usual note on "cordiality" of discussions and "unanimity" of decisions.

It was considered significant, too, that Hitler flew to the meeting—indicating perhaps that it was called hurriedly.

The conference coincided with reports from Sicily that Italian troops were revolting against their German commanders and with rumors of increased uneasiness in the Balkans.

The Moscow radio, in a broadcast by the Soviet monitor here, said the Bulgarian Parliament met in extraordinary session yesterday and that all army leaves had been canceled and soldiers already on leave had been ordered to report to their units immediately.

The Moscow radio also reported that the governor of the Banja Luka region in Yugoslavia had been killed by guerrillas, and Tass, official Soviet news agency, quoted an Istanbul dispatch as saying that the assassination had resulted in the declaration of a state of emergency in the area.

The German radio reported from Budapest that the Hungarian government had authorized the minister of the interior to establish an auxiliary police force to protect public security as a supplement to the regular service.

Britain Has 5th Quiet Night

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—Britain enjoyed another raid-free night last night—the fifth successive night to pass without the sounding of an alert anywhere in the United Kingdom.

JUL 22 1943

Exile Belgian Regime Plans To Restore King

London, July 21 (AP)—The Belgian Government-in-exile will call back its King, now a prisoner in occupied Belgium, to head the country when the Allied armies arrive, Hubert Pierlot, Prime Minister, said today in a broadcast address.

King Leopold III, who was assailed by France and Britain when he surrendered to the Germans in 1940, will again exercise constitutional powers, Pierlot said.

Pierlot's address, directed at occupied Belgium on the one hundred and twelfth anniversary of its independence, promised Belgians that victory is on the way and outlined the Government's plan to supply food and eliminate traitors when liberation comes.

Britain to Draft Boys for Mines.

London, July 21 (A. P.).—British boys from 16 to 18 years of age must be drafted for work in English coal mines to boost the lagging production of coal for the nation's fuel-hungry war industries, Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, told the Blackpool Mine Workers Federation yesterday.

Gen. Giraud Is Luncheon Guest of Churchill

London, July 21 (? P.).—Gen. Henri Giraud had lunch today with Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill after a visit to the former Fighting French headquarters now being moved to Algiers. Gen. Giraud arrived yesterday from Canada.

Reich Junker Clique Expected to Dictate Erasure of Hitler

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 21.—The German general staff can be expected to eliminate Hitler when Germany's complete collapse appears inevitable—that prediction came today from a high source whose job inside Germany for years was to keep tabs on the Reich military.

But getting rid of Hitler, this observer said, would be only the beginning in breaking Germany as a war maker forever.

The big job—and big danger, if it fails, he said—would be wiping out the legend of the "undefeated German Army"—a legend that the German military clique—the Junkers—sold to the German people. The theme was that the German Army never surrendered in 1918—it was the German government which quit.

The army, the Junkers argued, was "stabbed in the back" by Communists and Social Democrats in and outside the government.

The Junkers won't give up easily, this source said, even though beaten in battle. They will try to find a way again to keep the door open for them to retire behind the smokescreen of gentlemen officers while they plot another war.

Military Chiefs to Call Quits.

When the time comes, he added, the German general staff—not Hitler—will decide to call it quits. They may be already playing with the idea of writing off this war, he thinks, even though there's long and bitter fighting ahead.

Two things, he said, would lead to the final decision—when the bombing reaches a point where the German people are beginning to develop a horror of war they'll never forget; when fighting on German soil becomes inevitable.

Then watch out for their campaign to maintain the myth of the "undefeated German Army."

This observer said they would probably operate this way:

First, eliminate Hitler—even at the risk of civil war with the Fuehrer's own SS troops and the Gestapo.

Secondly, begin a campaign to win sympathy, arguing they were forced into waging war.

Would Sing Tune Anew.

Later, if the chance came to sow the seeds for another war, they would revive the same old tune—invincibility of the German Army.

In beating the drums, they would try to bury their second failure with a new cry—that they called a halt because of "inhuman warfare." They would play up the Allied bombings in an attempt to blind the short-memoried German people to the fact that the Luftwaffe invented wholesale bombing and "total warfare."

The German military clique has run the Reich since the Franco-German War in 1870, in the opinion of this observer. When Hitler first appeared in the German political picture, he said, they faced the decision of crushing him or using him. They chose to use him.

As long as Hitler's "intuition" worked or fell in line with their plans, he said, his direction of the war was not challenged.

But now it is approaching the time for the Junkers to think of saving themselves in the same way they did before—holding up the German Army as invincible in the eyes of the German people while they threw others off guard with a pose as gentlemen officers.

Churchill to Hold Office Until Final Defeat of Axis

By E. C. DANIEL

LONDON, July 21.—(AP Britain will have no Willkies, Brickers, or Deweys waiting at the gate of 10 Downing street in 1944. Britain plans no general election until Germany is defeated. Prime Minister Churchill is in for the duration.

The prime minister himself has suggested 1945 as the probable year of victory in Europe and the nation's first parliamentary election since 1935. But any Churchill aspirations for continued authority have already been rejected by some of his most loyal wartime supporters, including sections of his own party, the Conservatives. Neither they nor the principal opposition, the Laborites, have chosen a candidate to succeed him, but three men stand in the forefront of prospects, Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, Laborite Herbert Stanley Morrison, and Sir Stafford Cripps, an independent.

Eden Looms as Successor

Mr. Eden, a Conservative, has been called by the left labor weekly "Tribune" the "leader designate of the tory party and h' designate to Mr. Churchill's prime ministership." His presence at the final strategy conference at Algiers before the Sicilian invasion spotlighted this position as second man in the British government.

3024-6305

Mr. Morrison, at the moment without official position in his own party, still is recognized as the chief spokesman for Socialist ideas of post-war planning.

Sir Stafford, who for a brief hour early in 1942 was the symbol of all Britain's discontent with the conduct of the war, has gone from the policy-making War cabinet but has not been forg tten as a "reformed revolutionary" and progressive thinker.

Beyond favoring Mr. Eden with a choice of assignments as foreign minister and leader of the House of Commons, Mr. Churchill has shown no inclination toward any successor.

Similar to Roosevelt Position

His own future prospects remarkably resemble those of President Roosevelt. Both men have an indisputable majority of public opinion behind their military and foreign policies but there is noticeably less enthusiasm for their domestic administrations.

It is commonplace in Britain to hear Mr. Churchill praised in one breath as a dashing generalissimo and dismissed in the next as too temperamental for tasks of peace. Words used are virtually the same as those of a visiting editor of an anti-New Deal newspaper who begins: "Of course we support Roosevelt's foreign policy but . . ."

Absorbed in world strategy, Mr. Churchill has delegated home front administration to subordinates like Ernest Bevin, Hugh Dalton, Baron Woolton of Liverpool and Sir Stafford.

Through nearly three years of rousing, incomparable rhetoric he made only one major speech on home affairs, and the belief spread that Mr. Churchill is blind to domestic problems, particularly those of peace. Popular enthusiasm for the Beveridge universal social security plan contrasted with the government's penny-counting caution brought complaints of inattention to peace problems into focus.

But Mr. Churchill sat down at the microphone one Sunday night in March and outlined for the nation a four-year plan for transition between war and peace—a plan for compulsory insurance, national health service, expansion of agriculture, broader education opportunities and maintenance of employment.

"There was no longer any nonsense about the premier retiring at the end of the war," said one statesman. "On the contrary, he outlined x x x tactics by which he intended to maintain power at home."

Will Hold Office Until Peace

There is little doubt now that Mr. Churchill will be continued in command until Japan also is defeated. Further extension of his premiership will depend on many unpredictable factors such as:

His own inclinations after passing the age of 70 and serving in the government off and on since 1905.

The ability of his party to maintain its majority in Parliament. (It must be remembered that prime ministers are not chosen by popular vote as are American Presidents but are designated by the majority party or a combination of parties in Parliament.)

The willingness of other parties to join the Conservatives in a coalition in case a Conservative majority is not clear-cut.

The willingness of Conservatives, who many times before 1940 rejected him as prime minister, to follow his leadership in peacetime.

Next to Mr. Churchill, Mr. Eden is easily the outstanding Conservative at the moment. The United States knows him well. He is handsome, boyish, shy, diffident, quiet-spoken, with none of Mr. Churchill's sputtering pungency.

He is popular without being spectacular. This popularity began when he quit the cabinet in protest against the Hoare-Laval treaty, which would have sanctioned Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia.

He is the only prominent survivor of the Munich period who still is not suspected of being an appeaser. Many a man in the street likes him for that alone.

Negotiated Soviet Alliance

He negotiated the 20-year treaty of alliance with Russia which has undoubted popular support. He was entrusted this year with the first of the purely foreign policy discussions with the United States.

In a nation which is beginning to suspect that its future may be determined as much by the actions of the United States and Russia as by its own efforts, the choice of a foreign affairs expert for prime minister, particularly in the immediate post-war period, would not be surprising.

The choice equally well might be made, however, on domestic issues and political alignments. Seymour Cocks, Labor member of Parliament, declared recently that "public opinion is moving steadily to the left." That is a disputable opinion. The trend is not yet positive.

But if it turns toward Socialism, Mr. Morrison may be its leader. He is an experienced domestic administrator, a one-time errand boy who became leader of the London County council—London's La Guardia and Robert Moses rolled into one.

An advocate of preparing the Labor party to govern after the war, he has developed a complete post-war plan of practical Socialism in a recent series of speeches. His policy has been defined as against sectionalism, monopoly and restriction and for full employment, productive efficiency and wide, fair distribution.

Rejected by Own Party

Despite the popular reception of his program and his position as a member of the War cabinet, the Labor party turned him out of party office at its June conference, at least partly because Mr. Morrison spoke up for the government's position on the Beveridge plan in opposition to his own party's parliamentary delegation.

The influence of personality behind his dropping black forelock and spectacles is still strong in party councils, however.

Sir Stafford was long ago read out of the Labor party for proposing a popular front against Fascism. His principal handicap as a candidate is lack of support of an organized party machine. A lean, sober, pipe-sucking vegetarian, he speaks with extraordinary logic and clarity—a capacity that for years earned him Britain's highest legal fees—but without brilliance.

His main assets are unquestioned sincerity of belief and proven competence as an administrator. Another moment like that of 1942 which made him leader of the House overnight might project him to the top again. At that moment, as retiring ambassador to Moscow, he was the symbol of the popular desire for aid to and collaboration with Russia.

Outside of these three are numerous prospects, most of them dark horses:

Major Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Labor party in Commons and deputy prime minister; Mr. Bevin, trade union spokesman in the cabinet; Sir Archibald Sinclair, outstanding minister of L'yd George's depleted Liberal party.

Duce Thought Urging Hitler to Rush Aid for Defense of Homeland

Saving of Sicily Already Considered Lost Cause, Observers Believe

By the Associated Press. HAWKINS

BERN, July 21. — Informed diplomatic circles expressed belief today that Premier Mussolini had made an urgent appeal to Adolf Hitler for more help in the defense of his gravely-threatened country when the Axis partners met Monday somewhere in Northern Italy—perhaps Verona.

(London circles expressed belief that if Mussolini asked Hitler for more aid he did not get very far. They doubted that the Germans could rush very strong reinforcements into Italy even if they wished.)

Bern sources agreed that immediate events in the battle of Sicily had prompted the conference, which apparently was held as American bombers pounded Rome, but most of them felt that the situation in Italy itself was the main topic of discussion.

Considered Lost Cause.

In reaching this conclusion they pointed to recent Axis statements hinting that both Germany and Italy already regard the defense of Sicily as a lost cause.

The observers reasoned that if the Axis has given up hope of holding the island the next line of defense must be on the Italian mainland and that ways and means must be found of withdrawing the remnants of the Sicilian force and reorganizing to resist an Allied landing.

Obviously, informed sources said, one of the big problems of effective resistance to the Allies is air power. They pointed out that even the Axis has acknowledged Allied air superiority in the Sicilian theater, while the Allies have reported only negligible resistance to their aerial assaults.

Military observers estimate the Axis has 5,000 to 6,000 planes in combat on all European fronts. Of these approximately 1,800 to 2,100 are said to be fighter planes, backed up by a reserve of unknown quantity.

Many Vexing Problems.

They agreed that if the Allies are to be quarantined on Sicily and the Italian mainland saved by an effective delaying action on the island this reserve must be thrown into the battle.

They pointed out, however, that the question is a tough one for Hitler, since it is on the German Air Force, which is larger and better trained than the Italian, that the brunt of the fighting would fall.

There were two sides to the question confronting Hitler, observers believed. First: Would German commitments in Russia, the Balkans, in Occupied France and Norway, and at home be endangered, and, second, is bomb-blasted Italy a good risk?

They pictured Hitler as asking Mussolini several questions. Hitler would want to know, they thought, just how much of an impression the Roosevelt-Churchill surrender appeal has made on the rank and file in Italy. They considered it unlikely that Germany would squander her air reserves in an effort to protect a nation on the verge of cracking up internally.

Large-Scale Desertions.

If Mussolini could convince Hitler that the Fascist party was successfully counteracting Allied propaganda and was likely to keep the Army and the civilian population in hand, then the latter might consider greater aid, they felt.

The sources pointed out, however, that there were definite rumors of a growing underground movement in Italy in addition to widespread reports of large-scale desertions in the Italian Army.

They also felt that Hitler probably would want to know what measures Italy was taking in her own behalf. There was, for instance, the question of the Italian Navy, which did not venture out of its mainland bases to oppose Allied landings on Sicily. They reasoned that Hitler probably would want an explanation for that.

Observers said the Fascist press has explained that the Italian Navy was being saved for a bigger task when the attempt to invade the continent arrives, but they noted that the German press has commented on its failure to go to sea.

Germans Flee Eastward From Bombed Districts

Stockholm, July 21 (A. P.).—Berlin dispatches to the Swedish press today described a great stream of Germans flowing through the German capital to places of greater safety farther east from the bomb-blasted cities of the west and northwest. Their ultimate destination was not stated.

Empty stores near railway stations were being utilized as resting places for the refugees, the dispatches said, and the zoo in Berlin's West End also has been converted to this purpose.

Bell Ringing to Signalize Invasion of Italy

Berne, July 21 (A. P.).—The Italian Fifth Army Command, whose headquarters are at Rome, has prepared the Italian populace for a "state of emergency" in the event of an Allied landing within its zone on the Italian mainland, a Swiss Telegraphic Agency dispatch from Rome reported today.

Notices posted on walls in Rome and elsewhere tell the people that invasion would be signaled by bells, after which they would be compelled to remain day and night in their homes or air raid shelters, the dispatch said.

Submarine Sinks Nazi Trawler

STOCKHOLM, July 21 (AP).—The crew of a Swedish fishing vessel reported today that they saw an unidentified submarine torpedo and sink a German trawler fishing off the southwest coast of Sweden.

Rumania Refuses Nazis Armed Aid, Report Says

By the Associated Press.

ISTANBUL, July 10 (Delayed).—Diplomatic sources said today that Premier Ion Antonescu of Rumania has flatly refused German demands that Rumania participate in the fighting this summer against Russia.

Premier Antonescu was reported to have told Nazi representatives two weeks ago that Rumania already had made great sacrifices and henceforth would defend only her own borders.

The sources also said the Germans, in reprisal for this refusal, had threatened to turn pro-Nazi Iron Guardists loose in Rumania to continue anti-Semitic activity and terrorist campaigns which Premier Antonescu suppressed late in 1941.

FIRST THROUGH MEDITERRANEAN

Izmir, Turkey, July 19 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The first Allied shipping to reach Turkey directly through the Mediterranean from the United States since the North African campaign has arrived in this southern Turkish port without incident.

The vessels were three medium-sized freighters which sailed from the Atlantic seaboard with military and civilian supplies for Turkey, mostly lease-lend goods.

The ships sailed together and passed through the Sicilian channel on the last day of the Bombardment of Pantelleria, close enough to see bombs bursting.

BOSNIA WAR RAGES

Cairo, July 21 (A. P.).—A new wave of guerrilla fighting is reported here to have broken out in the Balkans, with patriot fighters taking full advantage of softened Italian morale to strike at occupation troops.

News from Yugoslavia told of severe fighting in eastern and central Bosnia between Axis troops and guerrilla forces of Josip Broz, the Montenegrin insurgent also known as Tito, whose band was reported to have taken the offensive and to have captured a number of towns and villages from Axis garrisons. The renewal of resistance in Yugoslavia was reported to have been closely linked with the Allied invasion of Sicily through close British military liaison with Gen. Draja Mihailovic.

According to figures released here, nearly 250 Axis supply trains passing over Croatian railroads had been attacked and destroyed since the spring of 1942.

Red-Nazi Battle Is Raging Along 400-Mile Front

Russians Continue To Tighten Circle Around Orel Base

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 21.—Fighting along the Russian front spread to the southern Donets and Mius River sectors yesterday as Red Army troops recaptured town after town in their drive to encircle the Germans at Orel on the central front, the Russians reported today.

Russian armies thus were on the move on a front extending some 400 miles south from Orel to a point southwest of Voroshilovgrad, where the Soviet midnight communique said Russian forces had crossed the Mius River, improving their positions.

Heaviest fighting still raged, however, in the vicinity of Orel, where the Soviet Army was closing in around the German supply base. Advances of from four to six miles were reported during the day's fighting which saw the Germans make 10 counterattacks in a futile effort to halt the Russian advance.

(Today's German communique acknowledged that Nazi forces were engaged in "fierce battles of defense" . . .)

defense, especially east and north of Orel. It said that Russian attacks south of Orel were "bloodily repulsed" and that 133 Soviet tanks were destroyed during the day. Soviet attempts to break through Nazi lines of the Mius River and in the middle Donets were declared to have been repulsed.

(The Germans reported that from July 5 to 19 they captured 45,172 prisoners and destroyed 4,827 tanks and 2,344 planes on the eastern front.)

Mtsensk Falls.

Among the towns captured by the Russians, a special bulletin said, was Mtsensk, 31 miles northeast of Orel. The same Russian column that took this town was reported pushing on to the west.

Meanwhile, the bulletin said, the Red Army force operating directly east of Orel captured 20 villages in the day's fighting, including the railway station town of Voroshilov. On the southern flank a Soviet force took the city of Malo Arkhangelsk, 39 miles from Orel, the communique said.

Russian advances were met by stubborn resistance all along the line, the war bulletin declared. Nazi counterattacks were launched constantly. Soviet troops routed one only to have the Germans reform their shattered tank units and infantry for another, the communique said.

Russians reported the desperate Nazi thrusts were accompanied by the same heavy loss of life and armored equipment which has marked the battle on the central front since its beginning 16 days ago.

The Russians also reported action at the southern end of the Kursk salient, in the vicinity of Belgorod. Here the Red Army has been busily engaged erasing the gains which the German Army made in the opening days of the battle.

Leningrad Area Static.

The Germans were hurling armored forces at the Russians, and the communique said that in one engagement Soviet troops killed 400 Germans and disabled 17 tanks and 3 self-propelling guns.

The Russians gave only meager details on the fighting in the Donets and Mius River areas. The midnight communique minimized the significance of the battles and referred to them as "engagements of local character," adding, however, that "they have a tendency to grow into serious battles."

(The Germans previously had reported heavy fighting south of the Orel front. In a radio broadcast Monday Berlin reported that the Russian Army had launched offensives on four fronts. They were: (1) The north flank of Volkhov-Leningrad front; (2) the Demidof-Velizh area, 40 miles southwest of Smolensk; (3) the 300-mile front from Suckhinichi north to Belgorod; (4) the Mius River sector of the Kuban.)

The Russian communique indicated that the Leningrad area was comparatively static, with engagements limited to forays by reconnaissance groups and shelling by artillery and mortar batteries.

occupied forty villages during the day.

Soviet heavy artillery apparently now was being hauled into position to shell Orel.

Thundering down from the north upon Orel, which is threatened with encirclement, a Russian army was said to have seized forty populated places "including three railway stations, one of them fifteen kilometers (nine miles) northeast of Orel." The station was not named, but probably was Optukha, which is at the location named.

Another Column Nears Stronghold From East

More Than 90 Villages Overrun And 5,800 Germans Killed In Fighting Ranging South To Azov Sea

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, July 22—The Red army captured Optukha, only nine miles northeast of Orel, and also toppled Zolotarevo, eleven miles east of the gravely menaced German stronghold, yesterday in an offensive of rising power which smashed new German reserves hurled into action after forced marches, Moscow announced officially early today.

The Russians overran more than ninety villages on the fringes of Orel, whose fall would unhinge the entire Nazi southern front; killed more than 5,800 Germans in fighting raging as far south as the sea of Azov, and knocked out more than 77 tanks and 131 enemy planes, and scored gains of four to nine miles.

[Adolf Hitler has ordered Orel held "at all costs," the London radio said in a broadcast recorded by CBS.]

Counter-Attacks Mount

German tank and infantry counter-attacks mounted in fury, but failed to halt the Russians who had launched their first successful summer counter-offensive after absorbing the full shock of a German attack launched July 5 below Orel.

One Red army column advancing on Orel from the northeast struck straight down the railway from fallen Mtsensk, seizing Dumchina, Otrada and Optukha in that order, a special communique announced. This column and other units striking cross-country to outflank Orel

Second And Third Red Armies

A second army driving in frontally from the east "occupied over fifty populated places," said the communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor. These included the district center and railway station of Mokhovaya, and the railway station of Zolotarevo, eleven miles east of Orel. Five of the captured localities were described as large.

The third Russian army driving up from the south was meeting the toughest German opposition.

"In the face of heavy fire, enemy resistance and counter attacks, our troops forged ahead," the Russians said.

The threat was most imminent to Orel but an equally important German base and rail hub at Bryansk was also imperiled. A Russian column had captured Buky and was within thirty-five miles of Bryansk and within five miles of the railway linking Bryansk to Orel. Buky is about forty miles to the west of Orel.

Specific Advances Recited

The Soviet midnight communique amplified with many incidents of specific advances the gains already announced in the special buletin.

The Russian radio in a separate dispatch recorded by the Soviet monitor said Soviet bombers had concentrated on German-held railway junctions and airfields Wednesday night, blasting Orel, Lozovaya, Kramatorskaya, Karachev and Khartuk.

Large fires were observed and a number of German planes were destroyed. Four Soviet planes failed to return.

Germans Rushing In Reserves

The midnight communique, which was recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the Germans were hastily throwing into the line their reserves of infantry and tanks as soon as they arrived. Fighting was described as fierce. War material, tanks and guns were being captured as the Germans were decimated, and prisoners were captured in many areas by the advancing Soviet men.

A large number of German soldiers were reported to have been jailed at Bryansk for refusing to fight, the communique said.

Some military observers, noting the speed of the Russian advance from north of Orel, guessed that the Red army had cut the Bryansk-Orel railway which for days has been under effective command of their cannon.

The Germans were hard-pressed to hit upon a satisfactory propaganda line to account for the Russian gains.

Claims Attrition Plan

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, a leading commentator for Berlin, said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press:

"The large-scale Russian offensive is in full swing. Even if the enemy would like to stop it, he no longer would be able to do so. He has thrown in far too large forces and his shock troops are already too deeply engaged in battle. This battle, according to plans of the German high command, is intended to wear out Russian offensive strength."

Along all the 520 sweltering miles from Sukhinichi to Taganrog, German anchor base on the Sea of Azov, fighting was reported growing more bitter. The hardest fighting was around Orel.

Nazis Cite Red Losses

The Germans in vocal efforts to hide their plight and obscure Russian gains spoke of tremendous losses inflicted on the charging Red armies. The propaganda agency, Transocean, offered this new line of explanation attributed to "a German militiary speaker:"

"The goal of the defense battle German troops are carrying out on the eastern front against attacking Soviet troops is to bring all the offensive powers of the enemy to a rolling movement. The actual battles may be considered battles of attrition where the goal is not to gain ground but to force the enemy to the greatest use and abuse of his forces.

"That is why the possibility exists that, maybe on this or any part of the front, the German high command is giving up certain areas."

REDS CAPTURE RAIL STATION OUTSIDE OREL

Declare Ninety Towns Are Taken in Three-way Push on Vital Nazi Base.

TELL OF SEVERE FIGHTING

Moscow Reports 77 German Tanks and 131 Warplanes Destroyed in Day.

London, July 21 (A. P.).—Russian troops captured a railway station within nine miles of Orel in a continued advance on three sides of that central German base, a special Russian communique said tonight.

Sweeping in from the north, the Russians overran forty populated places. Another fifty were captured in a drive from the east, including the railway station of Zolotarevo, eleven miles from Orel. Yet another Army driving up from the south advanced "in the face of heavy fire, enemy resistance and counterattacks," according to the communique which was by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor here.

Fighting of local importance was reported in the Donets Basin where the Russians were said to have improved their positions south of Izyum and southwest of Voroshilovgrad. Nothing further was reported on the engagements along the Sea of Azov where the Russians forced the Mius River which protects the strong German base of Taganrog, forty miles west of Rostov.

Claim 77 Nazi Tanks.

In their advance on Orel the Russians were meeting the most determined German resistance from tanks and infantry. In this region alone, the Russians said, they disabled or destroyed seventy-seven tanks and shot down 131 planes. Thus since the start of the great summer battle on July 5 the Russians by official statements have claimed the destruction of 3,593 tanks, 2,342 planes and upward of 70,000 Germans.

[In a broadcast picked up at New York this afternoon by CBS, the British radio said that the Russian forces striking toward Orel from the east were today reported less than seven miles from the city, and that another Russian force is advancing from the north. A Russian tank column is reported to have driven to within five miles of the railway leading back from Orel to Bryansk, London continued, adding: "At one point Russian troops are only thirty-five miles from Bryansk itself."]

FREE REICH GROUP SET UP IN MOSCOW

Moscow, July 21 (A. P.).—The formation of a committee of German prisoners of war and refugees to work for a "Free Germany" was announced in a manifesto published here today. Signed by thirty-three persons including five described as former members of the Reichstag, the manifesto was addressed to the German Army and people.

President of the group is the German poet, Erich Weinert. Other officers include Major Karl Hetz, first vice-president, and Lieut. Heinrich Count von Einzidel, second vice-president. Former members of the Reichstag said to have attended the session in Moscow a week ago are Martha Arendzee, Edwin Hoernle, Walter Ulbricht, Wilhelm Florin and William Pieck, the former Comintern leader in Berlin.

"Facts prove relentlessly that the war is lost," the manifesto said. "If the German people will find enough courage at the proper time, and prove by their actions that they want to remain a free nation and are determined to free Germany of Hitler, then they will win the right to decide for themselves their fate, and other nations will recognize them."

It said further that no one would negotiate with Adolf Hitler, and that the immediate German need, therefore, was to create a national government to render the Nazis harmless and to obtain peace, for which, it said, the Germans hunger. The army, it declared, "must play an important and decisive part" in bringing this about.

German Exiles And Captives In Russia Urge Nazi Revolt

Manifesto Calls For Abolition Of All Hitler Laws And Establishment Of A Democracy

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, July 21—A manifesto published here today said that a group of German refugees and prisoners of war in Russia have banded together into "the national committee for a free Germany" and have urged the German people and the Nazi army to revolt and halt the war "before it's too late."

The committee called for abolition of all Hitler laws and the establishment of a democracy. The thirty-three Germans who signed the manifesto said they are convinced that the war is lost.

Other points demanded by the manifesto were the reestablishment and widening of the political rights and social gains of the working people, freedoms of speech, the press, conscience and religion, and freedom to acquire property lawfully. It also demanded the return of confiscated property to its lawful owners and the confiscation of the property of those who are to blame for starting the war.

The manifesto proposed the "awful and unmerciful trial of those responsible for the war," but at the same time urged an amnesty for those of Hitler's followers who "denounce him and join the movement for a free Germany."

The manifesto concluded with an appeal for action to insure the gaining of an "immediate peace."

Chinese Official Hails Bombing of Paramushiro

Chungking, July 21 (A. P.).—Chang Tao-fan, Chinese Minister of Information, expressed "great gratification" today over the news that American planes had bombed the Japanese Island of Paramushiro, but said China wanted to see the bombing of Japanese territory reach the same scale and intensity as the air attacks against the Axis in Europe.

"The bombing . . . is not comparable with the bombings of Japan's Axis partners both in scale and intensity. It is hoped that as time goes on the bombings will increase . . . in order to penalize all Axis people, regardless of whether they are in the West or in the East," he said.

Chinese Raid Jap-held Isle Off Fukien Coast

Chungking, July 21 (A. P.).—Chinese troops made a successful raid on the Japanese-occupied island of Huangkua off the Fukien coast some sixty miles south of Foochow, killing many enemy troops, taking several prisoners and capturing a boatload of supplies, a High Command communique announced today. In Chekiang province, Japanese troops attacking Chinese positions south of Linghu were repulsed and lost a large quantity of military supplies, it added.

AMERICANS BOMB BRIDGES IN BURMA

New Delhi, July 21 (A. P.).—Heavy and medium bombers of the United States Tenth Air Force yesterday attacked the Myitnge railway bridge on the important Jap-held Mandalay-Rangoon rail line in south central Burma, a United States headquarters communique said today.

Almost thirty tons of bombs were dropped on the bridge during the concentrated attack. One formation reported that bombs were seen to straddle the 150-foot span for the entire length. Other formations reported hits on the north approach and in the center, and additional possible hits.

The Mu River railroad bridge was attacked by Mitchells, with both direct and near hits reported.

R. A. F. fighters on offensive patrol over the Irrawaddy River north of Myingyan in Burma damaged several river vessels yesterday, the British communique announced.

Bombers also attacked enemy troops positions in the Kalemyo area and struck at the towns of Taungup and Kyaukpyu. Wellingtons attacked objectives at Atungup and Akyab.

133 TONS OF BOMBS HIT BAIROKO BASE

Over 150 Allied Bombers Join In Heaviest Raid Of Southwest Pacific War

JUL 22 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Thursday, July 22—Allied bombers dropped 133 tons of bombs upon Bairoko harbor on New Georgia yesterday in the heaviest air raid of the Southwest Pacific war, while American troops repulsed a Japanese counter-attack at Munda.

More than 150 bombers—Dauntlesses and Avengers—with a strong fighter cover participated in the assault on Bairoko, which lasted throughout the day.

The communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said it was the heaviest raid ever made by either the Allies or the Japanese in the war theater.

Ground Troops Supported

The communique said the raid was made in support of our ground forces, indicating American troops on the northern tip of New Georgia were advancing against Bairoko harbor which lies about eight miles north of the Japanese base at Munda.

The Japanese also received another setback in dogfights over Madang, New Guinea. A comparatively small force of swift Lightning fighters destroyed nineteen Japanese Zeros and probably shot down eleven more at a cost of only two of our planes. The pilot of one of these two was reported safe.

There were no details of the land fighting in the Bairoko-Munda sector. The communique said merely that "enemy ground forces launched a strong counter-attack and were repulsed with heavy losses."

New Guinea Fighting

Latest position reports from the area placed the Americans well within the Japanese perimeter of defense covering the Munda airdrome, and the counter-attack was believed to have taken place there.

At the other end of the 700-mile battle front, sharp fighting was reported in the heavily wooded hills along the Komiatum track south of Salamaua, one of the Japanese bases on the coast of New Guinea.

282 Japanese Dead

Allied bombers were busy all along the New Guinea coast from Salamaua to Madang, about 300 miles up the coast. Military installations, buildings and bivouac areas were bombed and strafed, with a particularly intensive attack against Madang.

Australians who captured Mount Tambu positions near Komiatum, seven miles from Salamaua, counted 282 Japanese dead piled up along the slope of the hill which the enemy had attempted to recapture in a series of nine counter-attacks.

Delayed dispatches from the Fifth Air Force told of additional heavy attacks against the Madang area on Tuesday during which one Liberator shot down two Zeros but was itself shot down.

These dispatches also related that Mitchells bombed the bridges over the Gum, Gogol and Gori rivers and near-by construction camps and supply dumps. The bridge over the Gogol was destroyed. It was an important link in the Madang-Lae supply route.

Crashed In Hills

The Liberator which was lost apparently was bombing the Madang area about the same time a strong force of Japanese bombers and fighters were attacking Bena Bena. The Liberators met the enemy as both were homeward bound and nine Zeros were detached to engage the big four-engined bomber. The Liberator shot down two Zeros and probably destroyed another before it caught fire and crashed in the hills.

Oil Barges Set Afire

In other action yesterday our fighters set fire to two Japanese oil barges in Pakoi bay at the northwest tip of Vella Lavella island. A Liberator on night reconnaissance started fires in the town area of Rabaul, while a Beaufort bomber over Cape St. George, New Ireland, drove off four Zeros and probably destroyed one. Medium bombers made a night raid on Penfoei airdrome on Timor. Results were not reported.

For the first time in nearly a week no new Japanese ship losses were reported. Already the enemy has lost at least 17 warships in his futile attempt to reinforce the besieged garrison at Munda airbase.

Japs Lose Three Ships in Effort To Aid Munda

JUL 22 1943

Cruiser, 2 Destroyers Sunk by U. S. Planes; Fourth Probably Lost

By the Associated Press. MCDANIEL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 21.—American bombers were credited today with sinking a cruiser and two destroyers of a Japanese convoy attempting vainly to run the Allied sea and air blockade around the big Munda air base in the Solomons.

A force of three light cruisers, six destroyers and two transports, undoubtedly seeking to aid the hard-pressed garrison at Munda, was spotted by Catalina flying boats shortly after midnight yesterday in Vella Gulf just west of Kolombangara Island.

The Catalinas followed the convoy until strong formations of Liberators, Mitchells and Avenger bombers arrived with bombs which blasted at least three warships to the bottom and sent the remainder fleeing or limping northward.

Destroyer Probably Sunk.

A third destroyer was listed as probably sunk, and a transport and yet another destroyer were damaged.

Four bombers were lost—two Mitchells and two Avengers.

The action, described in today's communique from the headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, served to maintain steady pressure on Munda, big airbase on New Georgia Island, which has been hit by land, sea and air attack since the Southwest Pacific offensive started on July 1.

Supply or reinforcement of Munda has been rendered "dangerous and difficult," the communique said, and "a slow but constant deterioration of his (the enemy's) beleaguered garrison can be expected unless our blockaded ring can be broken."

This fourth attempt to crack the Munda blockade brought to 17 the number of Japanese warships listed officially as having been sunk in the fast-spreading Allied offensive in the Solomons. Five more are considered probably lost.

Many Bases Attacked.

Allied ground forces moving slowly in on Munda were aided yesterday by Dauntless dive bombers which dropped 18 tons of bombs on Japanese gun positions along a perimeter about two miles east of the airdrome.

An enemy destroyer at anchor in the harbor of Sarong, Dutch New Guinea, and a medium-sized cargo ship off the coast there were bombed with unobserved results by wide-ranging bombers which also:

Attacked the Kahili airdrome on Bougainville Island, starting numerous fires and explosions with 42 tons of bombs;

Set ablaze the fuel dump at the Alexishafen airdrome on New Guinea;

Started large fires among supply dumps and installations at Madang, New Guinea;

Bombed the airdrome at Cape Chater on Timor Island, setting more than 30 fires which "merged into one large conflagration" and Struck the town and barracks area of Koepang on Timor at night, starting seven large and numerous small fires.

Jap New Guinea Base Hit With 500-Ton Bombs

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, July 21 (AP). — Mitchell bombers blasted the air strip, ammunition dumps and installations over the Madang sector yesterday with one of the largest loads of 500-pound bombs ever showered on that Japanese base. HAUGLAND

A heavy fighter escort screened the medium bombers on the mission 170 miles up New Guinea's coast line from Salamaua. The Japanese put up slight antiaircraft defense, but attempted no aerial interception whatever.

All the American planes returned.

Meanwhile, another B-25, on reconnaissance, dropped a 500-pound bomb from an altitude of 50 feet within 15 feet of a foot bridge across the San Francisco River south of Salamaua. Much of the narrow suspension structure was blasted to bits.

The bridge was the principal means of getting ammunition and supplies on foot into the Komiatum sector, where Australian troops are advancing against enemy patrols. Three main Japanese trails from Salamaua into Komiatum and Nassau Bay converge at this little span.

Queens Flyer Shot Down, but—

JUL 22 1943

He First Blasted Three Zeros Out of Sky—Jerked Aboard Speeding Destroyer.

ERICKSON

Guadalcanal, July 19 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Two daring Marine Corps fighter pilots were shot down on July 11 while attempting to break up a Japanese bombing attack on American-held Rendova Island, but both escaped vicious enemy attempts to finish them off. Capt. James E. Swett of San Mateo, Cal., and First Lieut. Harold Segal of Long Island City, N. Y., made crash landings in the water because they feared they would be machine-gunned by the Japs if they parachuted.

Even after Capt. Swett's plane hit the water, the Japanese strafed the wreck and the water around it for fifteen minutes. During all that time, Capt. Swett, who is the highest scoring American ace now in action in the South Pacific with twelve enemy planes to his credit, kept diving under the water. He escaped being hit, and drifted ashore, luckily, on a friendly island, whence he was rescued next day.

Four Zeros chased Lieut. Segal's burning Corsair fighter down to the very surface of the water, steadily pumping bullets into its tail. Lieut. Segal was not hit by the bullets, but smashed his face against the instrument panel as the plane struck the water, breaking his nose and two teeth and blackening both his eyes. He was picked up the next morning by an American destroyer.

Before they were shot down themselves, Capt. Swett had shot down one Zero and one bomber, and Lieut. Segal had blown up three Zeros.

As the story was relayed to air headquarters here, Capt. Swett and Lieut. Segal were out alone when they sighted the Japanese squadron, which they attacked though they were hopelessly outnumbered. From his wing position, lieut. Segal blew up a Zero coming in on Capt. Swett's tail. Later the lieutenant came out over a flight of six eZros. He picked off two straglers, both of which blew up.

Then Lieut. Segal's Corsair was hit. Oil streamed from shattered lines, and the plane started smoking. He put her into a dive for the water. The four remaining Zeros wove back and forth, and he could hear the bullets bouncing behind him. He hit the water at about 100 miles an hour, and as he got into his liferaft, he saw that nothing was left of his plane but the skeleton girders.

Having no paddles, Lieut. Segal lay down to rest, and fell asleep. An albatross landed on his legs and wakened him. "Right away I named the bird Rickenbacker Jr., and grabbed him by the neck," the flyer said. As he squeezed the neck, out of itts mouth plopped four small fish. Lieut Segal then stowed the dead bird away to eat if he got really hungry.

He awoke again in the darkness, at 2 A. M., to see a group of ships passing his raft. He stood up, waved a tarpaulin and shouted himself hoarse, but the destroyers sped past. In the morning they headed again in his direction. This time they saw him, and one ship pulled toward him and tossed out a line, but did not slow down. Lieut. Segal was jerked out of hih boat and was under water for a half a minute Then he was dragged aboard, sputtering but safe.

No Losses at Paramushiro

HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND, July 20 (AP) (Delayed).—Aleutians-based bombers returned today without the loss of a plane from the first bombing of Paramushiro, Japan's northernmost military base, and reported the mission was no more difficult than flights against Japanese bases on American islands in the Aleutians.

The flyers came out of the overcast into clear skies above Paramushiro and looked down on a square mile of military installations. They saw some Japanese planes, but none that wanted to fight. Only light anti-aircraft fire was met. Bombs were dropped near ships in the harbor. They saw what appeared to be an ancient fort, built long before bombers were ever made. Near by was a mile-long airplane landing strip. Several large buildings were set afire.

Hindered by Weather

The raiders, who were in the air more than nine hours, were over the target at least forty minutes, climbing and circling before dropping their bomb loads. Bad weather areas forced them to take a circuitous route to Paramushiro, and clouds prevented the contemplated deck-level bombing when they were over the target.

The big bombers carried no special equipment except life rafts for possible forced landings in the sea. All agreed that the thing to do if their planes were crippled was to try to reach Russian territory.

The pilots, all veterans of raids on Attu or Kiska, knew they were making a dangerous survey flight in preparation for future attacks which will eventually hit all of the Kuriles and extend to the more thickly populated islands of Japan proper.

Captain James L. Hudelson of Benton, Ill., who holds the Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal for his achievements in Aleutian combat flying, led the flight. One of the crew men was First Lieutenant Seymour Gansberg, of 815 West End Avenue, New York, a navigator.

NO BOMBERS LOST IN BIG U.S. RAID ON PARAMUSHIRO

Alaska Command Pilots Tell of Yesterday's Attack on Japanese Soil.

Headquarters, Alaska Defense Command, July 20 (A. P.) (Delayed).—Bombers of the Eleventh United States Air Force today carried out the first successful raid on Japanese territory since the bombing of Tokio. They returned without the loss of a plane from a long-distance bombing of Paramushiro, Japan's most northerly military base.

The raid, viewed here as a logical development of the American occupation of Attu, had long been expected and prepared for, while Japanese shipping was being swept from the northern seas by American naval vessels.

The returning pilots reported that they came out of the overcast into clear skies above Paramushiro and looked down upon a square mile of military installations. They saw some Japanese planes but none that wanted to fight. Only a light anti-aircraft fire was met. Bombs were dropped near ships in the harbor, and the Americans saw what appeared to be an ancient fort, built long before bombers ever were.

JAP GUNS SILENT AS U.S. WARSHIPS SHELL KISKA ISLE

Two Vessels Bombard Enemy in Main Camp and Gertrude Cove.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP) For the sixth time this month American warships poured shells into Japanese defenses on Kiska island Tuesday, the Navy reported today, and once more enemy guns made no reply.

The Navy communique said the targets of the latest bombardment, which was carried out by two light units, presumably destroyers or cruisers, were the enemy's main camp on Kiska and the Gertrude cove area.

Authorities here assume that Japanese guns withheld their fire in order not to disclose their positions and lay themselves open to direct attack.

Kiska has also been bombed 17 times during July in a continuing sea—air offensive apparently designed to soften the island for conquest.

The communique also reported that on Tuesday morning three Japanese bombers dropped "several bombs" on Funafuti island in the Ellice group in the south central Pacific. "No damage was reported and no personnel injuries were sustained," the Navy said.

Only once before has a raid on Funafuti been reported. That was on April 26, and the report then constituted a disclosure that American forces had occupied the island as an advance outpost guarding the lines of supply between Hawaii and Australia. An American air base was established there.

BERMUDA'S DEFENSES NEARING COMPLETION

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 21.—(AP) Rear Admiral Ingram C. Sowell, commanding the U. S. naval operating base and the combined local defense forces, announced today completion by the Allies of military installations on the Bermuda islands "with which we can at a moment's notice offer an adequate defense in case of attack."

In addition, he said at a press conference, a U. S. naval operating base and a U. S. naval air station, the construction of which has proceeded for more than two years, are nearing completion.

Admiral Sowell said that for many months the Navy "by air and sea has been vigorously fighting German submarines in the Atlantic waters contiguous to these islands. x x x. I can assure you x x x that our constant 24-hour-a-day search for the enemy has not gone unrewarded."

65,058 AXIS HELD IN CAMPS IN U. S.

Germans And Italian Prisoners Distributed—Some At Fort George G. Meade

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 21 — Announcing that 65,058 Axis prisoners are now interned in the United States, the War Department disclosed today that additional camps will be built and existing camps expanded to handle a large proportion of the 267,000 prisoners held by the Allies in North Africa.

Capacity of camps already built is 139,164, the War Department said, adding that many of the prisoners now held in North Africa "will be removed to this country as quickly as possible."

Of the total already interned the department said 45,355 are Germans, 19,641 are Italians and sixty-two Japanese. The Japanese are interned at Camp McCoy, Wis. The others in thirty-seven camps in twenty States. The report showed an increase of 28,000 in Axis prisoners in this country since June 4.

Where Germans Are Held

Germans are held at Aliceville, Ala.; Camp Breckinridge, Kentucky; Camp Carson, Colorado; Concordia, Kan.; Camp Chaffee, Arkansas; Crossville, Tenn.; Camp Forrest, Tennessee (Crossville and Camp Forrest also contain Italians in segregated stockades); Camp McKain, Mississippi; Fort McClellan, Alabama; Mexia, Texas; Opelika, Ala.; Camp Phillips, Kansas; Camp Polk, Louisiana; Camp Bruber, Oklahoma; Herne, Texas; Camp Hood, Texas; Huntsville, Texas; Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri; Camp Livingston, Louisiana; McAlester, Okla.; Fort Reno, Oklahoma; Roswell, N. M.; Stringtown, Okla.; Camp Swift, Texas; Trinidad, Col., and Fort George G. Meade, Maryland (Italians are held also at Fort Meade).

U.S. Is Leading England 200 of Its Liberty Ships

British Will Operate Them, Return Them After War

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP).—American Liberty ships are being transferred regularly to Great Britain under lend-lease, the Lend-Lease Administration said today.

The ships are being transferred to British registry for operation by the British, but actual ownership will be retained by the United States and the ships will be returned to this country after the war.

No exact figure on the number of ships or tonnage involved in the transfers was available, but Lend-Lease gave an informal estimate of 200 ships aggregating 2,000,000 deadweight tons.

The company transferred the foreman to its Highland Park plant and then discharged the committeemen.

Soong Says War's Length Can Be 'Anybody's Guess'

Comments on Navy Plan to Fight Japan Until '49

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP).—T. V. Soong, Chinese Foreign Minister, said after a meeting of the Pacific War Council today that it is "anybody's guess" how long the war against Japan will last.

He made this reply to a reporter's request for comment on the remark yesterday by Vice-Admiral Frederick Horne that the Navy is planning for a war in the Pacific "at least until 1949."

Today's council meeting was the first with President Roosevelt in several weeks. Dr. Soong said Mr. Roosevelt reviewed Pacific operation, particularly the number of ships lost by Japan. He added that the President told about the attack by Army Liberator bombers on Paramushiro in the Kurile Islands north of Japan proper.

James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization, also was asked about Admiral Horne's statement.

"If any one else is planning on that basis I do not know who they are," Mr. Byrnes told his press conference.

USE OF FACTORIES IN POST-WAR ERA MAY OPEN DISPUTE

Jones Warns U. S. Must Plan Disposition of Federally-Owned Plants.

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones said tonight that the government had spent $25,000,000,000 in the last three years to build industrial plants and other facilities and asserted that the disposition and utilization of the properties will be one of the nation's greatest problems after the war.

For his own part Secretary Jones said, he had no fear "but that government will deal fairly with industry, because I believe that the people of our own country want to maintain the principle of private initiative and private enterprise xxx." His address was prepared for the Washington Evening Star forum on the Blue Network.

Cannot Be Written Off

Asserting that the war expansion cannot and should not be written off as a total loss, the secretary said:

"How much of it we can use to advantage, and how much can be used for rehabilitation of other countries and on what basis are matters about which we should be thinking now."

Secretary Jones foresaw differing opinions on the use of the plants. Some, he said, will want the government to stay in business and operate on federal funds while others will advocate scrapping a large portion of the plants to eliminate "undue competition." Still others, he said, will be looking for bargains, hoping to buy at government sacrifice prices.

The nation must be on guard against "undue pressure" from any of those groups, he said, adding:

"Where any industry is able to absorb government facilities in its line, on a bases fair to government, that policy should be adopted, the government selling or leasing the facilities on fair and reasonable terms. In those industries where government facilities approximate or far exceed those in private hands, the solutions will be more difficult."

Could Control Aviation

For example, he said the government—because of its heavy investments in the aviation industry—"could destroy private investments but certainly we should not and will not."

The government, he said, will own all of the synthetic rubber industry and Congress must determine how much of it will be kept in operation.

"Certainly," he added, "we should never again be entirely dependent upon foreign sources of rubber."

Listing some of the government's other big undertakings, Secretary Jones said that it had built and holds title to three big steel plants and 120 smaller steel plants and additions. Thus, he said, the government will own about 10 per cent of the total steel capacity of the country.

With an investment of approximately $430,000,000 in magnesium plants, he said, the government will own about 92 per cent of the total production. It has built and owns nine plants for aluminum production and 45 plants for fabricating aluminum, he said, with a total investment of $760,000,000.

"So obviously, the government will be in a position to smother private industry in the manufacture of magnesium, and also to dominate the aluminum industry, because government alone will have more than enough capacity to supply the entire peacetime needs for aluminum," he said. "These situations will require wisdom, and fairness by government otherwise private investments in these industries would be destroyed."

Turning to "immediate problems," Secretary Jones warned against over confidence because of the current military successes and declared that "our sacrifices, insignificant as they are," may have to last a long time.

He endorsed subsidies as a means of holding down the cost of living, asserting they will help the lower income groups and the cost will be "relatively small."

15 Billion Dollars Set as Goal For Third War Loan Campaign

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) A $15,000,000,000 goal for the Third War Loan drive was announced tonight by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, who said only non-banking sources will participate.

The goal for the largest financing program in world history is $2,000,000,000 above that of the Second War Loan drive in April, which brougt in a total of $18,500,000,000, but of that amount banks bought more than $5,000,000,000.

The Third War loan drive will open Sept. 9, and Secretary Morgenthau said the securities, to be essentially the same types as those sold in the Second War Loan, will be offered only to individuals, corporations, insurance companies and other non-banking sources.

"This goal and the third war loan program," he said, "was determined by Treasury officials after receiving recommendations from chairmen of the state war finance committees and officials of the Federal Reserve system and the American Bankers association. Getting this amount of money will be a huge task and will represent the largest financing program in the history of the world.

"The job of raising this $15,000,000,000 will be handled by war finance committees of each state, and the bonds will be sold largely by hundreds of thousands of patriotic volunteers salesmen, who already have made plans to concentrate on house-to-house selling, since a major consideration is increasing the number of people who are buying war bonds."

Compulsory Military Training, Single Command Urged in Peace

WASHINGTON, July 21. — (AP) Two proposals for post-war American military policy that have had the private attention of officials—universal compulsory military training, and in effect a single defense department combining Army, Navy and Air forces—were advanced publicly today by a distinguished Army officer.

Writing in the semi-official Infantry Journal, Brig. Gen. John McAuley Palmer says that while plans for the permanent military establishment cannot be fixed until our post-war commitments are known, "it is clear that there can be no sound military organization that does not rest upon the principle that, in his youth, every able-bodied American should be trained to defend his country."

A single defense department is not mentioned as such by Gen. Palmer, but he proposes a civilian commission with authority to correlate the interests and proposals of all the armed services into a coordinated policy.

While little has been said publicly about it, there is a strong belief among some high officials that a single defense department with a combined military staff will emerge after the war.

Congress has always appropriated for the Army and Navy without prior scientific settlement of the joint relations and missions of the forces, Gen. Palmer writes, with one committee working strictly on the basis of Navy testimony, another purely on Army advice.

"This situation was bad enough when only the land forces and the sea forces were concerned," writes Gen. Palmer. "With the tremendous new importance of the air forces, all of our accepted conceptions of world strategy must be reappraised."

Washington, July 21 (A. P.).—More German legions for defense of Italy was believed here today to be the purpose of the meeting between Mussolini and Hitler. Mussolini, his power hanging by a thread, was thought in diplomatic quarters to have asked Hitler to reinforce the peninsula's defenses with German divisions. Whether Hitler agreed remains to be seen.

It is now thought that the Fuehrer must realize the surrender of Italy would be a tremendous blow to the morale on his own front—if not in Germany—at least in the occupied and satellite countries. The Americans and British then would be able to March across Italy into Jugoslavia and establish the dreaded Balkan front. Furthermore, Allied bombers could use northern Italy bases for assault against the war industries, communication lines and supply routes in southern Germany, Austria and Hungary.

May Declare Rome Open City.

For these reasons, it was felt that the two dictators may have decided to make a stand in industrial northern Italy, stringing a defensive line through the Po Valley. Assuming this, it was considered not unlikely that Rome would be declared an open city, as was Paris when the Germans pressed on the French capital and the Government fled to Bordeaux in 1940. Rome presumably would be as hard to defend as Paris.

A declaration of Rome as an open city was regarded as unlikely until the Allies have cleaned up Sicily and are poised to invade the mainland of Italy, or even until American and British troops actually set foot on the mainland coast. Such a move by the Axis would surely show desperation. It would mean the abandonment of not only Rome but all of Italy to the south of the capital. Supplies to keep the Italians fighting in southern Italy must pass through Rome which would make its railroad yards a military objective so long as they were in use.

SPAIN IN PROTEST

Washington, July 21 (A. P.).—The Spanish Ambassador has protested against a Government-sponsored broadcast, in which the Mexican Ambassador called Generalissimo Francisco Franco a "traitor" and "puppet." A diplomatic source said today the protest has been filed with the State Department.

The broadcast by Francisco Castillo Najera was arranged by the Office of War Information and made to France on Bastille Day. The Mexican envoy attacked both Franco and Mussolini.

Committee today. He gave no hint of the contents of the report, the first of a series he has asked from various war agencies, to be submitted on a continuing basis.

Mr. Byrnes said that he has appointed John Hancock, New York banker, to take charge of the progress reports of the various agencies and keep them up to date.

Hull Takes Over Economic War

Byrnes Discloses That State Department Has Supreme Control Now.

Washington, July 21 (A. P.).—James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization, said today that the State Department has emerged in supreme control of foreign economic activities as a result of the recent shake-up which followed the dispute over foreign purchases between Vice-President Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jones.

Mr. Byrnes said at a press conference that Leo T. Crowley, new Director of Economic Warfare—a new office combining the former activities of both Mr. Wallace's Board of Economic Warfare and Mr. Jones's foreign purchase corporations—"must consult the State Department in every field to determine what is the foreign policy of the United States."

Co-ordinators Are Named.

Mr. Byrnes also stated that the State Department is appointing co-ordinators in various foreign areas to correlate the work of the various civilian agencies operating in those areas. Mr. Byrnes said that he knew that three such co-ordinators already had been designated by the department, including one in North Africa, but he did not know their names.

Mr. Byrnes announced that a special survey of America's wartime man-power problems has been completed and will be presented to the War Mobilization

Hurley Says We Should Not Be Deceived by 'Obscene Chorus' in 'Regimented Press'

STRESSES ARMS IN ROME

Asserts Fascists With 'Craven Cunning' Put War Activities Near Sacred Shrines

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., July 21 (AP)—The Most Rev. Joseph P. Hurley, Bishop of St. Augustine and formerly attached to the Vatican as aide to the Papal Secretary of State, declared today that "every decent Christian thought and sentiment within me cries out that we have made a tragically mistaken decision" in the bombing of Rome.

Bishop Hurley, now at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., issued his statement through the chancery here.

The text of the statement follows:

The news of the bombing of Rome by our own soldiers has pained me beyond expression.

I realize very well that the Fascist Government of Italy has sought with craven cunning to protect some of its military activities by carrying them on within the shadow of the sacred shrines of Christendom. I appreciate, too, the meticulous care with which our airmen endeavored, though vainly, to avoid hitting churches and historic monuments in the Eternal City. But every decent Christian thought and sentiment within me cries out that we have made a tragically mistaken decision in the higher moral strategy of this just war.

Perhaps to the narrow military vision of our generals it seemed "convenient and useful" (the callous phrase is of Anthony Eden) to rain down bombs on the city which is home to the vicar of the Prince of Peace. Perhaps.

I think we should have taken the larger, the Christian view. It would have been so much better if we had put aside questionable considerations of "military necessity" in favor of the loftier and more enduring considerations of Christian reverence toward the irreplaceable things of the spirit. In the long run it would have been more "useful," too, for we should not have lowered our moral prestige in the minds of countless millions of Christians throughout the world.

In spite of the all too plausible unanimity of the American press, I know that it will be long before we can calm the storm of indignation in the hearts of many loyal Americans at what they consider to be a sacrilege; and we shall have difficulty in restoring their complete confidence in the fundamental justice of our purposes in the war.

I am convinced, too, that the raid on Rome has darkened our prospects for the sort of peace so ardently desired by all of us. The bombs which fell on San Lorenzo did much more than destroy an ancient sanctuary of faith and of beauty; they did damage which we cannot yet calculate to the brightening promise of a Christian order in the post-war world.

Whatever the professionals of war may say about "military necessity," good men the world over will earnestly pray that the Eternal City be spared further air raids. Such raids would only serve to imperil our hopes for a future of Christian peace even as they blast from the earth the venerated monuments of our Christian past.

As time goes on and the deep moral resentments aroused by the bombardment of the sacred city rise to the surface, it will be seen that with San Lorenzo much of our national unity, much of the respect we had abroad, now lie in ruins.

Let Washington not be deceived by the obscene chorus of approval which is registered in the regimented press. Our Government will show wisdom and virtue if with sincere contrition it addresses itself at once to rebuilding these ruins.

American Catholics will not stand aside from this patriotic duty of reconstituting a shattered unity; in spite of the anguish in their hearts they will give to this task their loyal best.

From the depths of our hearts, the clergy and laity of this diocese send our reverent salutation and our affectionate sympathy to His Holiness Pope Pius XII as he looks out in voiceless grief over the new ruins of his and our beloved Rome. More than ever before we see in the stricken Pontiff, Bishop of that city of the soul, the hope of humanity and the guarantee that the spiritual and the supernatural still live on in a world of violence and passion. May God keep him and the Eternal City from harm.

DALLAS, Tex., July 21 (AP)—The Right Rev. Joseph P. Lynch, presiding Bishop of the North Texas Catholic diocese, today deplored Premier Mussolini's failure to declare Rome an open city.

"He left our air force no alternative," Bishop Lynch said. "There was nothing to do but destroy the military installations that were contributing to the Axis war effort.

"I can only pray that some thoughtless American or British youth will not deviate from his course and carelessly destroy some landmark of historic importance."

Bishop Glennon Hopes Basilica Is Undamaged

ST. LOUIS, July 21 (AP).—Concern over whether the Basilica of San Lorenzo was hit during the Allied bombing of Rome was expressed last night by the Most Rev. John J. Glennon, Archbishop of St. Louis.

Archbishop Glennon deplored the need of attacking the Italian capital but reminded that the raid was planned to avoid destruction of church property.

In a statement he said: "I very much regret the attack by our forces on the city of Rome * * *.

"We are awaiting information concerning the fate of the beautiful Basilica of San Lorenzo. It is one of the churches of Rome that visitors found most attractive. There is buried the much-beloved and saintly pontiff, Pius IX.

"We hope it remains intact. If it is damaged, it was, I feel, unintentional. But if it be, it becomes a blessed privilege for us American Catholics promptly to restore it."

ROME BOMBERS HAILED AS MODERN CRUSADERS

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 21. — (AP) Dr. Francis E. McMahon, president of the Catholic Association for International Peace and professor of philosophy at the University of Notre Dame, said tonight that "as the crusaders once stormed Jerusalem to rescue the Holy Land from the infidel, so American fliers bombed Rome to drive out the Fascists."

"This grave action has meaning only if we are crusaders engaged in bringing a better world into being—better spiritually, economically, socially," he said in a statement. "If these are not our purposes—if we are fighting merely for the old status quo of national selfishness, economic injustice, and spiritual blight—then we are indeed men of misery."

10 Flyers Die as Planes Collide in Air in Florida

Brooklyn Sergeant Is Among Victims in Bomber Crash

TAMPA, Fla., July 21 (AP).—Ten flyers from MacDill Field were killed today when two medium bombers collided near Boyett. One plane burst into flames after crashing, the base public relations office reported. There were five men aboard each.

Names of seven of the flyers were released tonight by the public relations office, the other three being withheld pending notification of relatives. Those listed, with the next of kin were:

First Lieutenant Frank E. Wadell, pilot of the plane; wife, 143 Forest Hill, Jefferson City, Mo.

Second Lieutenant Jim Williams, co-pilot of the other bomber; Mrs. Eustace Williams, mother, Megarel, Tex.

Staff Sergeant Howard F. Haas; Mrs. Carolyn Aures, sister, Buffalo.

Sergeant Frank Zaffina; Mrs. Amelia Zaffina, mother, Winchester, Mass.

Sergeant Albert J. Cozens Jr.; Albert J. Cozens, father, Sand Point, Idaho.

Sergeant John R. Apfel; Mrs. Elizabeth Apfel, mother, Brooklyn.

Sergeant Herbert H. Keller; Mrs. Emma Keller, mother, 311 Matthews Avenue, Pittsburgh.

U.S. Warship to Get Name Of Negro Killed in Battle

Mother to Sponsor Destroyer Escort Harmon Sunday

BOSTON, July 21 (AP).—The first United States warship named in honor of a Negro, the Destroyer Escort Harmon, will be launched next Sunday at the Fore River yard of the Bethlehem Steel Company, Quincy.

Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, assigned the name to honor the late Roy Harmon, mess attendant, first class, U. S. N., to whom the Navy Cross was awarded posthumously for "extraordinary heroism" while serving aboard the U. S. S. San Francisco.

Harmon was twenty-six years old and the son of Mrs. Naunita Harmon Carroll, of Cuero, Tex., who will sponsor the new vessel. He was killed in action in the Battle of Guadalcanal on Nov. 12 and 13, 1942.

DR. HAMBRO'S SON TELLS OF ESCAPE

Cato Habro, the 31-year-old son of Dr. C. J. Hambro, former president of the Norwegian Parliament and of the League of Nations, arrived in New York today and, in telling of his escape from Norway last April, asserted that the stream of refugees escaping from that country is constant.

"My own escape wasn't very exciting," the slim, blond young man said with a noticeable English inflection, in an interview at the office of the Royal Norwegian Information Service, at 30 Rockefeller Plaza. "I heard the German police were looking for me, so I started out at 4:30 A. M. I bicycled for two hours, and after walking for four hours in the forest, I was in Sweden. That's all there was to it."

In describing conditions in present-day Norway, Mr. Hambro said that his countrymen are still refusing to mingle with the occupation forces, that the food situation is bad, although the people are not starving, and that the Norwegians, who have never lost hope that the Germans will be run out of their country, are now beginning to fear that Great Britain and the United States may want to do all the planning of Norway's post-war fate. This, he said, will meet with strong Norwegian opposition.

On the subjects of Russia and Finland he was more evasive. Asked if the Norwegians would co-operate with Russians landing on their shores, he paused and then said that "the feeling is to co-operate with anybody who is opposed to Germany." He said the attitude of Norwegians toward the Finns is one of "antagonistic sympathy."

"There is some inflation because of the scarcity of goods," he said. "The Germans pay high wages but you can't buy anything. A pound of butter costs $3.50 and a pound of tea $175."

Mr. Hambro will go to Princeton, where he will serve as secretary to his father.

What's Behind The War News

JUL 22 1943

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

An Axis, or at least a Nazi, attempt to flee from Sicily appears brewing with Anglo-American capture of the Enna communication key in the Catania plain.

Surrender of that central base to the invaders, announced from Rome before it was Allied-claimed, can have no other meaning. It places American and Canadian troops astride four main road and rail approaches to the central north coast of the island, only 30-odd miles from Enna as the crow flies.

Ahead lie the Peloritan mountains fringing the Sicilian north coast. They are steep, rising to 4,000-foot peaks in spots, but not impassable, with half a dozen important, hard-surfaced north-south highways passing through them between Palermo on the west and the base of the Messina peninsula on the east.

Axis rear-guard action in the passes may delay Allied debouchement to the north coast to cut the single enemy-held east-west railway connecting the northeastern and western sections of the island. The whole western section already virtually is cut off.

Italian or German forces in the west face the alternative of being trapped by an Allied break-through to the coast, or escape by sea. Their refuge could be Sardinia, as certainly doomed as Sicily, or the Italian mainland. In either case they would have 200 miles to go by sea under blasting Allied air attack.

There is every evidence that western Sicily is garrisoned almost exclusively by Italian troops. German forces are massed eastward, desperately trying to hold open escape routes to the Messina peninsula and the extreme northeastern tip of Sicily only two miles from the toe of the Italian mainland boot.

The few and perilous escape routes from the center to Messina lie west and north of Mount Etna, which makes Nazi deployment appear already only rear guard actions to facilitate escape of as many German comrades as possible. Italians in west Sicily are being left to their fate.

General Eisenhower's warning that hard fighting still lies ahead, particularly for British General Montgomery's men on the right flank before Catania, is typical of military caution. The fact seems to be that once Catania falls, the Nazi forces east of the Mount Etna bastion could be walled off in the sloping, difficult and narrow terrain north of Catania, while the main British effort was diverted west and north about the base of the towering volcano. Etna is encircled by inland road and rail systems from Catania through Randazzo, on the northwest slope.

That interior route around Etna has always seemed more practicable than the short push up the narrow and formidable eastern coastal slope. It would allow British forces of the right and center to approach the Messina peninsula from the west rather than the south, to take the Nazi defenders of the coastal shelf above Catania in the rear.

Messina peninsula itself has the makings of another Bataan in reverse. It is rugged and mountainous in the center and without road or rail service except along the north and southeast coasts.

A good, two-way highway runs north from Randazzo to Cape D'Orlando on the north coast at the base of the Messina peninsula. A secondary highway parallels it farther to the east, from Francaville to San Biagio. There is no other practical route connecting the north and southeast coasts of the peninsula except the coastal railways and highways meeting at Messina itself. And those coastal routes on both sides are not only under close range Allied air bombardment now, but open to naval gunfire through their whole length.

There is the stuff not of another Dunkerque, but another Cape Bon at Messina for the Axis.

Japan Reports Raising Singapore Floating Dock

Domei Says Salvage Operation Took Three Months

A Domei dispatch from Shanghai, broadcast by the Tokio radio and recorded by The Associated Press, said yesterday that Japanese naval salvage experts have succeeded in raising the King George floating dock, said to be the world's largest, in Singapore Harbor.

Terming it "one of the greatest salvaging feats in history," Domei said the giant dock was raised in three months from the time work was undertaken last May.

The dock, which could accommodate ships up to 50,000 tons, was built in England in 1928 and towed in sections to Singapore the following year. Its installation in Singapore Harbor, Domei said, was intended to make that port Great Britain's "Gibraltar of the East."

According to Domei, British naval authorities in Singapore, anticipating the fall of the port, ordered the drydock scuttled in December, 1941.

Il Duce Pays Tribute to Victim.

The Rome radio reported today that Premier Mussolini paid tribute to Gen. Hazon, supreme commander of Italian military police, who was killed Monday in the bombing of Rome, by going to the mortuary chapel where the body rested. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press. It said that Gen. Hazon was "killed by enemy bombs at the moment he was going to bombed zones."

This was the first mention of Il Duce in connection with the Rome bombing which occurred at a time when, according to a German communique yesterday, he was conferring with Adolf Hitler in northern Italy.

Mussolini Back in Rome.

Mussolini has returned to Rome, after his conference with Hitler, according to a dispatch issued by the Italian news agency and quoted by the British radio in a broadcast monitored by N[illegible] in New York.

BY GLADWIN HILL

U.S.EIGHTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN BRITAIN, JULY 21-(AP)-AFTER SIX MONTHS OF VAIN ATTEMPTS, THE GERMANS STILL ARE TRYING TO STOP AMERICAN HIGH ALTITUDE BOMBING BY FLYING ABOVE OUR FORMATIONS AND DROPPING A VARIETY OF BOMBS ON OUR PLANES.

THESE EFFORTS HAVE BEEN CONSPICUOUSLY FUTILE, BUT FLIERS' ACCOUNTS OF RECENT RAIDS INDICATE THEY ATTEMPT HAVE NOT LESSENED IN FREQUENCY OR NOVELTY.

JUL 22 1943

THE FIRST TECHNIQUE REPORTED LAST WINTER INVOLVED THE USE OF BOMBS SLUNG FROM SMALL PARACHUTES. SINCE THEN THE NAZIS HAVE TRIED AT LEAST THREE OTHER TYPES OF BOMBS, INCLUDING SMALL ROUND ONES ABOUT THE SIZE OF BASEBALLS, TORPEDO-LIKE OBJECTS 10 OR 15 FEET LONG AND BIG FRAMEWORK CONTRAPTIONS WITH EXPLOSIVES APPARENTLY ATTACHED AT VARIOUS POINTS.

SOME OF THE BOMBS ARE DESIGNED TO EXPLODE ON CONTACT AND OTHERS AT A CERTAIN ALTITUDE--OR AFTER FALLING A CERTAIN DISTANCE.

BOTH TYPES WERE SAID TO HAVE DISADVANTAGES. EVEN THOUGH THE AMERICAN FORMATIONS ARE VERY TIGHT, THERE STILL IS SUFFICIENT SPACE BETWEEN PLANES TO MAKE A DIRECT HIT DIFFICULT. THERE IS NO RECORD OF ANY AMERICAN PLANE HAVING BEEN DOWNED BY ANY OF THESE CONTACT BOMBS.

THE DRAWBACK OF THE TIME-FUSE BOMB IS THAT UNLESS IT EXPLODES AT THE EXACT LEVEL OF THE ATTACKING BOMBERS MOST OF ITS EFFECTIVENESS IS LOST.

FLIERS SAY THERE IS SMALL CHANCE OF EITHER TYPE OF BOMB BEING DROPPED WITH ANY DEGREE OF ACCURACY FROM A HEIGHT OF MORE THAN 1,000

FEET ABOVE THE AMERICAN FORMATIONS.

WHEN THE GERMANS COME THAT CLOSE, THEY POINT OUT, THEY ARE IN DEADLY DANGER FROM THE BOMBERS' 50-CALIBER MACHINEGUNS.

ALTOGETHER THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE IS UNDERSTOOD UNOFFICIALLY TO BE CHEERED RATHER THAN CONCERNED BY THE GERMANS' PERSISTENCE IN EMPLOYING THEIR PRESENT TACTICS, WHICH ARE TAKEN TO INDICATE THAT THE AMERICAN HIGH ALTITUDE BOMBINGS HAVE THEM BAFFLED.

MADRID, JULY 21-(AP)-DISPATCHES FROM LA LINEA SAID TODAY A LINER WAS WAITING IN GIBRALTAR HARBOR TO TAKE AUTHORIZED CIVILIAN WORKERS, MERCHANTS AND BUSINESSMEN FROM GIBRALTAR TO VISIT THEIR EVACUATED FAMILIES IN BRITAIN.

JUL 22 1943

THEY SAID 25 MERCHANT SHIPS WERE LANDING SUPPLIES AND WAR MATERIAL IN THE HARBOR, AND THAT 10 OTHER MERCHANTMEN AND TWO MINELAYERS WERE BEING REPAIRED OR AWAITING REPAIRS TO WAR DAMAGES.

THE ARRIVAL OF FOUR FLYING AMBULANCES FROM NORTH AFRICA WITH 40 WOUNDED, SOME FROM THE SICILIAN ZONE, ALSO WAS REPORTED.

OTHERS, INCLUDING THE CORRESPONDENT, SOUGHT COMPARATIVE SAFETY UNDER THE ARCHWAYS AND STAIRCASES WHILE MANY RUSHED TO TOWERS AND WINDOWS TO WATCH THE PUFFS OF SMOKE "IN THE DISTANT PANORAMA OF THE CITY."

ALL THE CURTAINS OF THE POPE'S PRIVATE OFFICE WHERE THE PONTIFF WAS WORKING WHEN THE BOMBING BEGAN WERE DRAWN SAVE ONE WHICH WAS OPENED THAT MORNING. THROUGH IT, THE CORRESPONDENT SAID, THE POPE WAS ABLE TO WATCH THE BOMBING.

INVASION

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 21-WITH ITALIAN DEFENSES FADING AND THE GERMANS FIGHTING ONLY A DESPERATE DELAYING ACTION, THE AXIS POSITION IN SICILY APPEARED TO BE ENTERING A CRITICAL PHASE TODAY.

ITALIAN SOLDIERS, CHOOSING BETWEEN SURRENDER AND CONTINUATION OF RESISTANCE WHICH COULD SERVE ONLY TO LAY MORE OF THE ISLAND IN RUINS, WERE REPORTED OFFICIALLY TO BE MUTINYING AGAINST THEIR GERMAN OFFICERS AND GIVING THEMSELVES UP IN DROVES.

ONLY THE GERMANS, THROWN INTO THE EASTERN COASTAL AREA IN AN ATTEMPT TO HALT THE ALLIED TIDE ROLLING ON TOWARD THE MAINLAND, WERE FIGHTING FIERCELY, BUT THESE BATTLES WERE REGARDED AS LITTLE MORE THAN REARGUARD DELAYING OPERATIONS.

JUL 22 1943

NO AXIS PROPAGANDIST NOW DARED A PUBLIC PREDICTION THAT SICILY WOULD BE SPARED FROM CONQUEST AND THE ALIBI OF DEFEAT--BY SUPERIOR FORCES ON LAND AND SEA AND IN THE AIR--ALREADY HAD BEEN PREPARED BY FASCIST LEADERS IN ROME, WHO GLOOMILY SPOKE OF THE PROSPECTS OF AN ALLIED INVASION OF THE ITALIAN PENINSULA ITSELF.

THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY, WHICH ADVANCED 10 MILES WEST FROM AGRIGENTO YESTERDAY, APPEARED TO BE DELAYED IN ITS NORTHWARD ADVANCE AIMED AT CUTTING THE ISLAND IN HALF ONLY BY THE DIFFICULT MOUNTAINOUS TERRAIN AND THE TIME REQUIRED TO ROUND UP SURRENDERING ITALIANS AND ESTABLISH MILITARY GOVERNMENTS IN OCCUPIED TOWNS.

LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S FORCES HAD PUSHED ABOUT 30 MILES NORTHWARD INTO THE CENTER OF THE ISLAND, WHERE THEY WERE JOINED BY CANADIAN FORCES AND WERE THROWING A PINCERS ABOUT ENNA, WHICH LIES ASTRIDE THE ISLAND'S LATERAL SUPPLY AND COMMUNICATIONS ROUTES.

THE MAIN CANADIAN FORCES, ADVANCING PARALLEL TO AND SLIGHTLY EASTWARD OF THE AMERICAN COLUMN FORGING NORTHWARD, MET STRONG RESISTANCE FROM UNITS OF THE 15TH GERMAN ARMORED DIVISION BUT CONTINUED TO BATTER FORWARD WITH THE AMERICANS.

LIEUT.-GEN.A.G.L.MCNAUGHTON, CANADIAN COMMANDER WHO HAS BEEN STATIONED IN ENGLAND, IS NOW IN NORTH AFRICA INSPECTING THE DOMINION'S FORCES, IT WAS ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY LAST NIGHT.

JUL 22 1943

THE EASTERN COAST, WHERE THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WAS DRIVING ON THE IMPORTANT PORT CITY OF CATANIA, CONTINUED TO BE THE SCENE OF THE BITTEREST FIGHTING.

GERMAN ARMORED UNITS HAVE CHECKED MOMENTARILY THE BRITISH DRIVE AT THE CITY'S ENVIRONS, BUT NAZI TANK ATTACKS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SHATTERED WITH BLOODY ENEMY LOSSES AND GEN.SIR BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY'S FORCES WERE GATHERING STRENGTH TO SHATTER THAT KEY CITY'S DEFENSES AND CONTINUE ON TOWARD MESSINA, 50 MILES AWAY AT THE EXTREME NORTHEASTERN TIP OF THE ISLAND.

MORE THAN 35,000 AXIS PRISONERS HAD BEEN ROUNDED UP IN THE ALLIED DRIVE AND EVIDENCE OF THE HATRED THE ITALIANS HOLD FOR THE GERMANS WAS MOUNTING.

IN SOME INSTANCES CROWDS HAD TO BE RESTRAINED FROM ATTACKING GERMAN PRISONERS AS THEY WERE MARCHED THROUGH THE STREETS AND THE INHABITANTS HABITUALLY BROKE INTO CAT-CALLS AT THE SIGHT OF CAPTURED NAZIS.

IN AN INTERVIEW WITH JOHN GUNTHER, REPRESENTING THE COMBINED AMERICAN PRESS, GEN.MCNAUGHTON SPOKE OF THE EFFECT THE INVASION OF SICILY WAS SURE TO HAVE ON AXIS MORALE, AND SAID THAT OF THE JAPANESE, AS WELL AS GERMAN AND ITALIAN, WOULD BE DAMAGED.

THE CHIEF LESSON OF SICILY, HE TOLD GUNTHER, IS THE EVIDENCE THAT THE ALLIES ARE NOW CAPABLE OF STRIKING WITH TREMENDOUS EFFICIENCY AND FORCE ON ANY FRONT.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA--FIRST ADD SICILIAN AERIAL (BY DELUCE) X X X HIS GROUP.

JUL 22 1943

THE COLLAPSING ENEMY FRONT IN SICILY OFFERED A CONTINUALLY DIMINISHING NUMBER OF OBJECTIVES ON THAT ISLAND, BUT THE WARHAWKS IN SWEEPING OVER SARDINIA FOR THE FIRST TIME IN SEVERAL DAYS NOT ONLY FOUND GOOD TARGETS ON DECIMOMANNU AIRFIELD BUT ALSO ATTACKED FACTORIES, A RESERVOIR DAM AND AN AMMUNITION DUMP.

LIEUT.H.H.BRUNDYGE OF MISHAWAKA, IND., SENT AN ENEMY PLANE CRASHING IN FLAMES AFTER A HEDGEHOPPING DOGFIGHT. OTHER AXIS CRAFT WERE DESTROYED BY LIEUT.EDWIN P.JONES OF REYNOLD, GA., AND LIEUT. GEORGE P.NOVOTNY OF 1968 KILSEY AVE., TOLEDO, OHIO.

TWO WARHAWK PILOTS STARRED IN A STRAFING FORAY WHICH DESTROYED FOUR TANK CARS ON A SICILIAN RAILWAY SIDING AND A RADIO TOWER. THEY WERE FLIGHT OFFICERS ALSIE D.DONOVAN OF CLAY, KY., AND CLIFFORD HUNTINGTON, OF ASHLAND, KY.

NIGHT-RAIDING AMERICAN MITCHELLS BLASTED THE RANDAZZO AREA WEST OF CATANIA, STARTING BIG FIRES AND TOUCHING OFF ONE MONSTROUS EXPLOSION. RAF AND SOUTH AFRICAN BOSTONS AND BALTIMORES STABBED AT NUMEROUS NIGHT TARGETS THROUGHOUT ENEMY-HELD PARTS OF SICILY. THEY ENCOUNTERED VIRTUALLY NO RESISTANCE ANYWHERE.

BY DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 17-(DELAYED)-(AP)-"DIRTY GIRTY," FROM SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AFRICA, WAS THE FIRST FLYING FORTRESS TO LAND ON SICILY --BUT IT WAS AN UNSCHEDULED STOP WHICH HAD THE CREW THINKING THAT MAYBE "GIRTY'S" SIXTY-THIRD BOMBING MISSION OVER ENEMY TERRITORY WOULD BE HER LAST.

THE BOMBER WAS IN PLENTY OF TROUBLE WHEN FIRST LIEUT.EARL HAMMOND OF EAU CLAIRE, WIS., SET HER DOWN ON AN EMERGENCY LANDING STRIP THAT INVASION TROOPS CAPTURED SEVERAL DAYS AGO.

JUL 22 1943

"I'M CERTAINLY GLAD YOU BOYS TOOK THIS STRIP OF LAND," HAMMOND TOLD A CHEERING CROWD OF SOLDIERS WHICH GATHERED AROUND THE BATTERED PLANE. "IF YOU HADN'T, I'D BE FLOATING AROUND IN THE MEDITERRANEAN SOMEWHERE."

"DIRTY GIRTY" WAS ONE OF A LARGE FLIGHT OF FORTRESSES WHICH WENT OVER THE TOE OF ITALY THIS MORNING TO BOMB SAN GIOVANNI. THE RAID WAS DIRECTED AT THE HARBOR, FROM WHICH SMALL BOATS AND FERRIES HAVE BEEN PLAYING THE STRAIT TO SICILY.

"WHEN WE WENT IN FOR OUR BOMBING RUN THEY THREW EVERYTHING BUT THE KITCHEN STOVE AT US," HAMMOND SAID. "THERE WAS AMPLE FLAK AND PLENTY ACCURATE."

"YEAH," ADDED LIEUT.JOSEPH PEARSON OF GOLDSBORO, N.C., THE CO-PILOT, "WE WERE JUST LEAVING THE TARGET WHEN THE NO.2 ENGINE WENT OUT. THEN NO.4 WENT OUT. WE MANAGED TO GET NO.2 STARTED UP AGAIN, RUNNING HALFPOWER, WHEN NO.3 CONKED OUT. IT LOOKED LIKE ALL OF THEM WERE GOING OUT AT ONE TIME.

"BUT OUR SQUAD STAYED WITH US UNTIL THEY SAW THAT ENEMY FIGHTERS WEREN'T GOING TO JUMP US."

FIRST LIEUT.HARRY MC ADAMS OF LORENA, TEXAS, THE BOMBARDIER, SAID HE "COVERED THE TARGET PRETTY WELL" AND THAT THE HARBOR WAS AFIRE WHEN THEY LEFT.

ONE OF THE HAPPIEST MEMBERS OF THE CREW WAS TECHNICAL SERGT.WALTER PARCELLS OF KINGSTON, WASH., THE RADIO OPERATOR, BECAUSE IT WAS HIS LAST FLIGHT BEFORE GOING HOME FOR A WELL-EARNED REST. PARCELLS HAS FLOWN ON 50 MISSIONS OVEJ EPEMKITRYITORY XV..VVPLMVKVVVVMKOGOGGVOMMCQ

LAST FLIGHT BEFORE GOING HOME FOR A WELL-EARNED REST. PARCELLS HAS FLOWN ON 50 MISSIONS OVER ENEMY TERRITORY AND THUS QUALIFIES FOR HOME LEAVE.

OTHER CREWS MEMBERS WERE STAFF SERGT.EDWARD GRAHAM OF 69 N.BROADWAY, YONKERS, N.Y., TAIL-GUNNER ON 42 BOMBING MISSIONS; STAFF SERGT.JOHN WHITE, 919 ERATO ST., NEW ORLEANS, THE WAIST GUNNER; STAFF SERGT.T.N.CROSS, TILLAMOOK, ORE., ENGINEER; SERGT.NICK KIZLER, MINERVA, OHIO, ARMOR GUNNER.

SOLDIERS ON THE GROUND WORKED JUST AS HARD AS THE FORTRESS CREW TO BRING HER IN SAFELY. LIEUT.SIDNEY L.GEORGE OF SAVANNAH, GA., AND 23 ENLISTED MEN HAD JUST FILLED THE DITCHES ON THE LANDING STRIP WHEN

THE SHIP CAME DOWN.

"WE ALL SAW HIM COMING IN AND WE REALLY WERE PULLING FOR HIM," GEORGE SAID.

(EDITORS: THE FOLLOWING EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT OF THE AMERICAN LANDING AT GELA, SICILY, WAS WRITTEN BY CHIEF PHOTOGRAPHER'S MATE BILL FORSYTHE, U.S.COAST GUARD RESERVE, FORMERLY AN ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTOGRAPHER IN WASHINGTON. (WX)..ABOARD A UNITED STATES TRANSPORT IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, JULY 13 (DELAYED)--WITH SNIPERS AND ENEMY PLANES ON THE LOOSE, I DID NOT HAVE TIME TO WRITE JUST AFTER THE INVASION HAPPENED; OR I MIGHT HAVE BEEN TOO EXCITED; SO HERE GOES NOW, THREE DAYS AFTER THE INVASION.

I LANDED ON THE BEACH WITH SOME COMBAT ENGINEERS. COMING INTO THE BEACH IN THE DARK, WE HIT A SANDBAR ABOUT FIFTY YARDS FROM THE BEACH. THE LCI BOAT I WAS IN, OPERATED BY COAST GUARDSMEN, GOT STUCK ON IT; SO WE BAILED OUT. LUCKILY, I HAD ENOUGH FORESIGHT TO WATER-PROOF MY EQUIPMENT. WITH A .45 IN ONE HAND A CAMERA IN THE OTHER I STARTED FOR THE BEACH. OUR COAST GUARD GUNNERS OPENED FIRE WITH TWO 30 CALIBER MACHINE GUNS TO GIVE US A COVERING FIRE. I NEVER RAN SO FAST IN ALL MY LIFE, BUT IT SEEMED VERY SLOW--WATER-SOAKED CLOTHING CERTAINLY DRAGS ONE DOWN.

THE ENEMY FIRE WAS INTENSE. ON MY RIGHT ABOUT 300 YARDS, AN LCI WAS ON THE BEACH AND WAS UNABLE TO GET OFF; AND ON MY LEFT, AT A DISTANCE OF ABOUT 500 YARDS WAS AN ITALIAN FORT THAT KEPT FIRING ON THE LCI AND SHELLING THE LANDING BOATS AND KEEPING THE BEACH UNDER FIRE, WITH ME IN THE MIDDLE. THE BEACH WAS MINED, BUT THIS WAS UNKNOWN TO US AT THE TIME AND THERE WE WERE DIGGING FOR DEAR LIFE--AND I DO MEAN LIFE.

DAWN WAS JUST BREAKING, SO I GOT MY BEARINGS AND RAN FOR SOME FISHING SHACKS ON THE BEACH TO GET AWAY FROM THE CROSS FIRE OF THE LCI AND THE FORT. U.S.RANGERS, WHO MADE THE FIRST ASSAULT WERE BRINGING IN THE FIRST PRISONERS AND THE WOUNDED.

THEN CAME DAYLIGHT, AND OUR CRUISERS GOT THE RANGE ON ENEMY GUN EMPLACEMENTS AND COMMENCED SHELLING, WHICH WAS A RELIEF. INVASION BARGES MANNED BY COAST GUARDSMEN BROUGHT ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT AND TROOPS ASHORE. IT WAS THEN LIGHT ENOUGH TO GET SOME SHOTS OF THE BEACH, SCENES OF TROOPS IN THE TOWN OF GELA, AND AXIS PRISONERS GUARDED BY AMERICAN RANGERS AND COAST GUARDSMEN.

THE TOWN OF GELA IS LOCATED ON A HIGH BLUFF AND LEVELS OFF ON A PLATEAU. TWO AND THREE STORY HOUSES MAKE UP THE DWELLINGS. ON TOP ARE SEVERAL FIVE-STORY BUILDINGS, AND THE SNIPERS LODGED THEMSELVES IN A NUMBER OF THESE HOUSES. THEY REALLY MADE IT HOT AND KEPT EVERYBODY OUT OF THE MIDDLE OF THE STREETS AND CLOSE TO THE BUILDINGS.

AN ITALIAN CIVILIAN WALKED OVER AND OFFERED ME A DRY PAIR OF SOCKS WHICH I GLADLY ACCEPTED. HE OFFERED TO WASH MY CLOTHES, BUT I TOLD HIM I DID NOT EXPECT TO STAY, AND I GAVE HIM SOME SUGAR AND COFFEE FROM MY CANNED RATIONS. I DON'T THINK I COULD HAVE GIVEN HIM ANYTHING ELSE THAT WOULD HAVE PLEASED HIM MORE.

MORE WOUNDED AND PRISONERS WERE COMING IN SO I STARTED ON THE MOVE

3024-6397

AGAIN. GERMAN TANKS ATTACKED THE TOWN, AND ALL HANDS TOOK COVER. THE CRUISER AND DESTROYER KEIT THEM BOTTLED UP IN ONE SECTOR SO IT WASN'T TOO BAD. WE MET A COUPLE OF ITALIANS COMING IN SO WE RELIEVED THEM OF THEIR RIFLES AND HELMETS. IT IS NOW ABOUT 1100 AND I AM ABOUT WHIPPED, SO BACK TO THE SHIP FOR SOME HOT COFFEE AND FRESH CLOTHES.

JUL 22 1943

THE COAST GUARDSMEN WHO MANNED THE BOATS CERTAINLY DID A WONDERFUL JOB, ESPECIALLY THE COXSWAINS WHO WERE UNABLE TO TAKE COVER WHILE MAKING THE APPROACH. BACK ABOARD, I FOUND I LOST TWO PACKS OF FILM--TO SAY I WAS UPSET IS PUTTING IT MILDLY. AFTER RISKING MY LIFE, THAT TOPPED IT ALL.

JUL 43

EVERYONE ON THE TRANSPORT DID A WONDERFUL JOB, FROM THE CAPTAIN DOWN. THERE WAS NO REST FOR ANYONE ALL DURING THE OPERATION. EVERYBODY REALLY PUT OUT; THEY HAD A JOB TO DO AND THEY DID IT BETTER THAN WELL. IT CERTAINLY MAKES A MAN PROUD TO BE ABLE TO SAY THAT HE SHIPPED WITH THESE BOYS. THE ARMY MEN WHO WERE WITH US CERTAINLY HAVE HIGH PRAISE FOR THE COAST GUARD.

BEFORE ENNA, SICILY, JULY 18-(DELAYED)-APPROACHING ENNA, KEY CITY OF CENTRAL SICILY, CANADIANS BATTLED THE GERMANS IN AN ALL-DAY ACTION, FINALLY SMASHING THROUGH THE ENEMY'S FORWARD LINE WITH HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE AND CLIMAXING THE ONSLAUGHT WITH AN INFANTRY ASSAULT AT BAYONET POINT.

(ENNA FELL TO AMERICAN AND CANADIAN FORCES JULY 20, IT WAS ANNOUNCED AT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA.)

FIGHTING STILL IS GOING ON IN NEARBY HILLS AND VALLEYS BUT IT SEEMS LIKELY THE CANADIANS ARE TRAPPING THE GERMAN BATTLE GROUP WHICH HAS HELD UP THEIR ADVANCE FOR 24 HOURS. THIS IS THE CANADIANS' FIRST MAJOR ACTION IN THEIR 100-MILE ADVANCE FROM PACHINO PENINSULA.

THROUGHOUT THE DAY I WATCHED THE BATTLE FROM HILL-TOP VANTAGE POINTS. TONIGHT BATCHES OF 20 TO 30 GERMAN PRISONERS ARE COMING DOWN THE DUSTY ROADS UNDER GUARD.

JUL 22 1943

THE CANUCKS' ADVANCE SLOWED TO A WALK YESTERDAY AS THE GERMANS BLEW UP ROADS AND THEN WITHDREW TO STRONG POSITIONS BEFORE ENNA.

LAST NIGHT THE CANADIAN ATTACK MOUNTED. DURING THE NIGHT A CANADIAN REGIMENT PRODDED FORWARD AND HELD THE GERMANS ENGAGED UNTIL MID-MORNING. ANOTHER REGIMENT WENT AROUND AN ENEMY WESTERN FLANK, AND THEN ANOTHER MADE READY FOR A FRONTAL ATTACK. MEANWHILE, THE ONTARIO REGIMENTS ADVANCED ON THE ENEMY'S EASTERN FLANK.

THE GERMANS WERE DUG IN STRONGLY AND KEPT MORTARING OUR TROOPS WHEN THEY TRIED TO MOVE FORWARD DURING THE MORNING.

BUT THE ENEMY APPARENTLY DIDN'T KNOW WHAT WAS COMING. IN SEVERAL DUST-UPS BEFORE THIS THEY SKIRMISHED IN DELAYING ACTIONS, THEN WITHDREW BUT THIS TIME THE CANADIANS BROUGHT THEM TO BATTLE AND BEFORE THEY COULD CLEAR OUT, OUR ARTILLERY AND INFANTRY WERE UPON THEM.

AT 1 O'CLOCK THE BATTLE FOR ENNA REALLY STARTED. SCORES OF GUNS

BELCHED SALVOES TOGETHER.

AS THE SHELLS HIT, GRAY SMOKE BILLOWS FLOWERED OUT AND FLOATED OFF IN A GENTLE WIND, VEILING THE HILL.

IT WAS THE NOISIEST ARTILLERY DIN I EVER HEARD. FOR 35 MINUTES IT KEPT UP. WITH THE DEEP BOOM OF MEDIUM GUNS AND THE SHARP CRACK OF FIELD ARTILLERY, THE SWISH AND SCREECH OF SHELLS GOING OVERHEAD AND THE RESOUNDING EXPLOSIONS WHERE THE GERMANS WERE LOCATED.

THE BARRAGE MOVED SLOWLY FROM HILL TO HILL AND EVERY PART OF THE TERRAIN WAS PLASTERED.

AT 1:35 THE BARRAGE LIFTED. THE INFANTRY WENT FORWARD. THERE WAS THE CLATTER OF CANADIAN MEDIUM MACHINE GUNS. BREN CARRIERS WHISKED ALONG THE ROAD, AND MORE TANKS ROLLED UP.

ONE INFANTRY REGIMENT WENT IN ON THE GERMANS' WEST FLANK AND ANOTHER FROM THE FRONT, MOVING UP DEFILES AND THROUGH VINEYARDS TO ATTACK

PI

XES, FO

JUL 22 1943

ONE INFANTRY REGIMENT WENT IN ON THE GERMANS' WEST FLANK AND ANOTHER FROM THE FRONT, MOVING UP DEFILES AND THROUGH VINEYARDS TO ATTACK PILLBOXES, FORTIFIED HOUSES, STRONG POINTS AND TRENCHES. THERE WAS PLENTY OF WORK WITH BRENS, TOMMY GUNS AND RIFLES AND SOME BAYONET WORK.

IN ONE HOUSE THE GERMANS FOUGHT FOR A WHILE, THEN FLEW THE WHITE FLAG AND CAME OUT TO BE CAPTURED. OTHERS DIED FIGHTING IN TRENCHES AND PILLBOXES. A NUMBER OF GERMANS TRIED TO RUN BUT WERE SHOT.

LATER, I SAW 20 GERMAN PRISONERS, MOSTLY AGED 19 TO 22. THEY LOOKED TIRED AND SHAKEN. SOME WERE CONSCRIPTS FROM OCCUPIED COUNTRIES.

A LONE ITALIAN FOLLOWED THEM AT TEN FEET, AND A GUARD SAID, "GOTTA KEEP THIS GUY BEHIND THE JERRIES OR THEY'D KILL HIM."

WITH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 17-(DELAYED)-(AP)- FOUR LADS WHO LANDED ON SICILY ONLY TWO DAYS AGO--CAPT.JOHN MULLEN OF 512 SOUTH THOMAS, FOREST PARK, ILL., AND HIS TANK CREW-- HAVE BEEN BUSIER HERE THAN MUSSOLINI'S LEGIONS THROWING DOWN ARMS WHEN CORNERED BY YANKEES.

MULLEN AND HIS CREW LANDED SATURDAY, FOUGHT A TANK BATTLE SUNDAY AND THEN CAPTURED TWO TOWNS TODAY, BEING PART OF THE FIRST TANK REGIMENT TO ENTER BARRAFRANCA AND PIETRAPERZIA. AND THEY TOOK SOME PRISONERS, TOO.

JUL 22 1943

"WE WERE INTENDING TO CAPTURE BARRAFRANCA YESTERDAY AND WERE GETTING READY TO ATTACK ENEMY POSITIONS WHEN MORTARS AND ARTILLERY OPENED UP ON US," SAID MULLEN. "I WAS IN AN ARMORED CAR DIRECTING A TANK PLATOON ASSEMBLED FOR A COUNTER-ATTACK.

"I ORDERED THE TANKS TO TAKE POSITIONS BEHIND A HILL. THE GERMANS ATTACKED US WITH 16 MARK FOUR SPECIALS. MY TANKS KNOCKED OUT THREE MARK FOURS AND ARTILLERY GOT TWO MORE. THE ENEMY RETREATED AND WE ASSEMBLED FOR ANOTHER ATTACK. THAT'S WHEN WE WENT INTO BARRAFRANCA."

THE ENEMY KEPT RETREATING, SO MULLEN AND HIS MEN KEPT AFTER THEM AND TODAY THEY ROLLED INTO PIETRAPERZIA, TO BE GREETED BY WILDLY CHEERING THRONGS.

PRIVATE WILLIAM T.SCHOONOVER OF BINGHAMTON, N.Y., GOT HIS FIRST GERMAN TANK IN YESTERDAY'S BATTLE. OTHER MEMBERS OF MULLEN'S CREW ARE SERGEANT DEAN VAN BONGE OF WALLA WALLA, WASH., AND CORPORAL ANTHONY ZAMPIELLO OF 292 NORTH PASADENA STREET, PASADENA, CALIF.

ALLIED EVACUATION HOSPITAL IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-PARATROOPER WESLEY C. HINES, 73 SAMPSON ST., BELLE VERNON, PA., LYING IN A HOSPITAL BED HERE WITH A FLESH WOUND UNDER HIS ARM, IS PINCHING HIMSELF TO SEE IF HE BE IS REALLY ALIVE. WHAT HAPPENED TO HIM WOULDN'T OCCUR IN A HUNDRED STORY BOOKS.

JUL 221943

SGT. HINES, WAS SENT TO SICILY ON THE THIRD NIGHT OF THE INVASION. AS HIS PLANE NEARED X THE LANDING POINT FIVE MILES INSIDE THE COASTLINE, BURSTS OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT AND MACHINE GUN FIRE CAME UP AROUND IT.

HINES' FIRST LINE MOVED TO OPEN THE DOOR, STOOD POISED WAITING FOR THE GREEN LIGHT SIGNAL TO JUMP. AS IT FLASHED, A X 30-CALIBER BULLET HIT HIM IN THE CHEST ON THE LEFT SIDE, KNOCKING HIM BACKWARD INTO THE PLANE.

IN THE LEFT BREAST POCKET OF HIS JUMP SUIT HINES WAS CARRYING A NEW TESTAMENT WITH A METAL HEART SHIELD SENT HIM MONTHS AGO BY MISS DORIS JONES OF LABELLE, PA., WITH A REQUEST THAT "YOU WEAR IT ALWAYS" THE BULLET HIT THE METAL COVER JUST ABOVE THE INSCRIPTION "MAY THE LORD BE WITH YOU" AND GLANCED OFF UNDER HIS ARM INSTEAD OF PENETRATING HIS CHEST.

HOSPITALIZED, HE RECEIVED THE PURPLE HEART, WHICH HE PROMPTLY SENT ALONG WITH THE EXTRACTED BULLET TO HIS MOTHER, MRS. ISABELLE SCHOENHOLTZ, BELLE VERNON, PA. HE ALSO GOT HIS CHAPLAIN TO WRITE A LETTER TO HIS COMMANDING OFFICER SAYING THAT THE 15 MEN WHO JUMPED OUT OF THE PLANE WITHOUT A SECOND'S DELAY AFTER SEEING HIM KNOCKED BACK DESERVED TO BE DECORATED TOO.

augusta, sicily, x july 17 (delayed)-(ap)-- german bombers twice attacked this naval base early today by moonlight and dawn, but heavy naval anti-aircraft fire sent three down in flames and drove off the remainder.

a ight fighter bagged another raider.

troops pressing less than seven miles from catania itself to the north fought a strenuous artillery duel with germans and italians yesterday afternoon, which i witnessed from the deck of a british cruiser. the powerful naval force g continued to give land fightersgood support, shelling the road along which the axis was endeavoring to bring up reinforcements.

JUL 22 1943

cruisers also shelled the shore batteries ringing the city of catania, and simultaneously four-engined bombers made heavy attacks on the catania factory area and airport south of the city.

the bombing by liberators and flying fortresses and medium bombers continued almost all day and night without interruption. great clouds of smoke and billows of fire were continually visible in those sectors as the big planes dropped their loads from heights of four and five miles.

the planes then swooped low for wave-hopping flights homeward.

one crew which caught some italian AA fire and ditched their plane at sea was picked up by two british destroyers.

but yesterday's top dramatic incident was an artillery and tank battle just north of the simeto river seven miles south of catania. less than half a mile apart, allied field guns and axis tiger tanks and batteries shelled each other over the heads of advancing british troops. spurts of flame from the gun muzzles and smoke after each round were visible from the sea as our ship patrolled close in. we joined the fun by planting six-inch shells at a road junction just west of catania along which the germans were bringing up troops.

the planes were concentrating on the industrial section where scores of smokestacks soon were covered by rising blackand white smoke from the bomb-set fires.

these bombings continued during the night and morning even while junkers 88's were attempting to attack our shipping at augusta.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC,JULY 21 (AP)-

JAPANESE WARSHIP LOSSES IN THE STRUGGLE FOR THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS TOTALED AT LEAST 17 TODAY AFTER ANOTHER FUTILE ATTEMPT TO REINFORCE THE VIRTUALLY TRAPPED ENEMY GARRISON AT MUNDA AIRBASE.

THE OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED TOTAL REACHED 17 WHEN A COMMUNIQUE FROM GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS REPORTED THE SINKING OF A JAPANESE CRUISER AND TWO DESTROYERS BY AMERICAN BOMBING PLANES.

A THIRD DESTROYER WAS PROBABLY SUNK AND ANOTHER DAMAGED IN THE ATTACK ON THE ENEMY CONVOY IN VELLA GULF, NORTH OF KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND AND MUNDA, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID. JUL 22 1943

IT REPORTED A TRANSPORT WAS ALSO PROBABLY DAMAGED AS THE CONVOY, ORIGINALLY CONSISTING OF THREE LIGHT CRUISERS, SIX DESTROYERS AND TWO TRANSPORTS, FLED UNDER THE SHOWER OF BOMBS FROM LIBERATOR, HEAVY MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS AND AVENGER TORPEDO BOMBERS.

.5£3 :9,;96, THE FOURTH THE JAPANESE HAD ATTEMPTED TO SEND THROUGH WITH REINFORCEMENTS FOR CENTRAL SOLOMONS' POSITIONS SINCE JULY 1, WAS SIGHTED BY A NAVY CATALINA FLYING BOAT SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT JULY 20. IT WAS TRACKED BY THE CATALINA UNTIL THE BOMBERS ARRIVED FOR THE ATTACK. FOUR BOMBERS WERE LOST.

ALLIED DIVE BOMBERS ALSO ATTACKED THE JAPANESE AT MUNDA WHILE

ALLIED GROUND FORCES HELD FIRMLY THE SIEGE LINE ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND.

THE MAC ARTHUR COMMUNIQUE SAID "A SLOW BUT CONSTANT DETERIORATION" OF THE JAPANESE GARRISON "CAN BE EXPECTED" UNDER THE AIR, SEA AND LAND BLOCKADE.

ALLIED FORCES ON NEW GUINEA, PUSHING ON SALAMAUA IN ACCOMPANYING PHASE OF THE SOLOMONS OFFENSIVE, WERE REPORTED BY A HEADQUARTERS SPOKESMAN TO HAVE REPULSED NINE COUNTER-ATTACKS SINCE OCCUPYING MUBO JULY 16. MUBO IS JUST SOUTH OF SALAMAUA.

OTHER ALLIED BOMBING ATTACKS WERE REPORTED ON THE HARBOR OF SARONG, DUTCH NEW GUINEA; ON ALEXISHAFEN AIRDROME AND MANDANG SUPPLY DUMPS OF NEW GUINEA; ON TIMOR ISLAND POSITIONS AT CAPE CHATEL AND KOEPANG; AND ON KAHILI AIRDROME, BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND.

GUADALCANAL.JULY 19-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A FRESHMAN SQUADRON OF MARINE CORPS CORSAIR FIGHTER PILOTS WHO CALL THEMSELVES THE "HELL HAWKS" SALUTED ITS COMMANDER LAST NIGHT WITH A PARTY AND A DECORATED CAKE.

THE COMMANDER HAD ACHIEVED ACEDOM BY SHOOTING DOWN FIVE ENEMY PLANES. THUS JOINING FIVE OTHERS OF THE BOYS IN HIS SQUADRON.

JUL 22 1943

STARTING FROM SCRATCH ON JUNE 30 -- THE DAY THE AMERICANS BEGAN THEIR INVASION OF THE CENTRAL SOLOMON ISLANDS -- THE HELLHAWKS HAVE DESTROYED 53 JAPANESE PLANES. SIX OF THE SQUADRON'S 11 PILOTS HAVE SCORED FIVE PLANES OR BETTER.

MAJOR GREGORY WEISSINBERGER OF LACROSSE.WIS., KNOCKED DOWN A ZERO JULY 15 WHILE COVERING A BOMBING STRIKE BY DAUNTLESS DIVE-BOMBERS AND AVENGER TORPEDO BOMBERS AGAINST THE ENEMY AIRBASE OF KAHILI IN THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS. THAT ONE MADE THE MAJOR AN ACE. SO THE BOYS THREW HIM A PARTY.

THE SQUADRON'S FIVE OTHER ACES ARE: FIRST LIEUT.WILBUR (GUS) THOMAS OF ELDORADO.KAS., SEVEN PLANES; FIRST LIEUT.EDWARD O. SHAW. SPOKANE.WASH., SEVEN; FIRST LIEUT.JOHN L.MORGAN. ARLINGTON.TEX.; SIX; CAPT.JAMES CUPP. FAIRFIELD.IA., FIVE; FIRST LIEUT.MILTON VEDDER. LOS ANGELES. FIVE.

"THE OTHER BOYS WILL TELL YOU THAT SHOOTING DOWN JAPS WITH F-4-U'S (CORSAIRS) IS JUST LIKE SHOOTING DUCKS. ONLY DUCKS AREN'T QUITE SO VULNERABLE AND CAN'T SHOOT BACK." SAYS BIG, BLOND SHAW.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA -- FIRST ADD MADANG RAID (A14KX) (BY HAUGLAND) X X X LITTLE SPAN.

THE LARGEST FORMATION OF B-25'S EVER TO STRIKE MADANG ATTACKED THE BRIDGES, JETTIES AND DUMPS IN ADDITION TO THE AIRSTRIP, BOMBING PRINCIPALLY FROM A MEDIUM ALTITUDE.

ONE PILOT, CAPTAIN BERT ROSENBAUM OF FAIRPLAY, KY., SAID HE SAW A BIG COLUMN OF SMOKE ON THE STRIP WHERE TWO PLANES HAD BEEN SIGHTED. LATER PLANES REPORTED ONE JAPANESE PLANE AFIRE, ANOTHER DAMAGED.

ONE B-25 CONTINUED A FEW MILES UP THE COAST TO BOMB ALEXISHAFEN. A FAIR-SIZED FORCE OF MITCHELLS BOMBED THE MOUTHS OF THE MEIRO AND BELAO RIVERS, AND BELAO ISLAND IN THE MADANG AREA FROM AN EXTREMELY LOW ALTITUDE, THEN STRAGED THE REGION HEAVILY.

JUL 22 1943

LEADING PILOTS ON THIS FORMATION WERE MAJOR RALPH CHELI, SAN FRANCISCO; AND CAPTAIN WILLISTON COX, KNOXVILLE, TENN.

THE B-25 WHICH BLASTED THE FRANCISCO RIVER FOOTBRIDGE WAS PILOTED BY LIEUT.JOHN DAVIDSON, PORT ANGELES, WASH., A WEST POINT GRADUATE. HE HAD A CREW OF ONLY TWO -- LIEUTENANTS FLOYD CASSELMAN, MINNEAPOLIS; AND ANTHONY KREGAS, KEENE, N.H.

"WE HAD SEEN JAPS ON THE BRIDGE AND RIVER BANKS THE DAY BEFORE, BUT WERE UNABLE TO OBSERVE IF ANY TROOPS WERE AROUND THIS TIME," SAID CAPTAIN ROSENBAUM. "THE LOSS OF THAT BRIDGE IS GOING TO HOLD UP SUPPLIES BADLY NEEDED BY THE JAPANESE ADVANCE UNITS."

BY LEIF ERICKSON

GUADALCANAL, JULY 19 (DELAYED) (AP)-WHATEVER THE PRESENT WEAKNESS OF HIS EFFORTS AT AIR INTERCEPTION, THE ENEMY IN TENACIOUS DEFENSE OF HIS SOLOMON ISLAND BASES STILL IS THROWING UP A HEAVY WEIGHT OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE AT OUR FLEETS OF RAIDING BOMBERS.

ONE FOUR-ENGINED LIBERATOR RETURNED YESTERDAY FROM AN ATTACK ON ENEMY SHIPPING OFF KAHILI WITH TEN HOLES IN ITS STRUCTURE AS EVIDENCE OF THE FEROCITY OF JAPANESE GROUND FIRE. NONE OF ITS CREW WAS INJURED, HOWEVER.

JUL 22 1943

(OFFICIAL REPORTS FROM SOUTHWEST PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS HAVE DISCLOSED PREVIOUSLY THAT THE AMERICAN RAIDERS CARRIED 90 TONS OF BOMBS AGAINST KAHILI AIRDROME ON BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND AND AGAINST SHIPS IN THE HARBOR THERE ON JULY 18, DEVASTATING THE RUNWAY AND DISPERSAL AREAS AT THE AIRFIELD AND SINKING OR DAMAGING TWO CARGO SHIPS AND TWO DESTROYERS. THIRTEEN AMERICAN PLANES, MOSTLY FIGHTERS, WERE LOST, AGAINST 21 JAPANESE SHOT DOWN.)

LIEUT.WILLIAM NAGERNAN, 22, OF ST.PAUL, MINN., CO-PILOT OF THE DAMAGED LIBERATOR, SAID ONE ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELL FRAGMENT TORE A HOLE IN THE SHIP'S RUDDER "THAT LOOKED LIKE SOME ONE HAD THROWN A BEER BOTTLE THROUGH IT."

LIEUT.PAR WILLIAMS OF EUSTACE, FLA., BOMBARDIER, RECALLED THAT ONE SHELL FRAGMENT WENT STRAIGHT THROUGH THE PLANE. GUNNER MARLOW POWELL (HOME ADDRESS NOT GIVEN) DUCKED BACKWARD AND BUMPED SERGT.LEONARD NINES OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., TO THE FLOOR.

"IF NINES HADN'T BEEN KNOCKED DOWN, HE CERTAINLY WOULD HAVE BEEN HIT, BECAUSE THE HOLE ON THE OTHER SIDE WAS RIGHT WHERE HE HAD BEEN STANDING," NGERNAN SAID.

AFTER THE BOMBER HAD FLOWN CLEAR OF THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, THE PLANE WAS CHASED BY THREE ZEROS. NOSE GUNNER DALE L.SCOTT OF BEND, ORE., HIT ONE. THE ZERO FELL AWAY IN A STEEP DIVE.

SERGT.FRED KING OF PUEBLO, COLO., THE BOMBER'S TAIL GUNNER,

3024-6405

HAD THE CLOSEST ESCAPE OF ALL. OTHER MEMBERS OF THE CREW, WHO CALL THEIR PLANE "HUGGER MUGGER," SAID A FRAGMENT WHICH STRUCK THE TAIL OF THE SHIP RIPPED OFF THE SEAT OF KING'S TROUSERS.

GUADALCANAL--FIRST ADD SWETT-SEGAL

KEY ERICKSON) XX THREE ZEROS:

JUL 22 1943

HERE IS SEGAL'S STORY, AS RELAYED TO SOLOMON ISLAND AIR HEADQUARTERS ON GUADALCANAL FROM THE RUSSELL ISLANDS TO THE NORTHWEST:

SIX OTHER PLANES IN SEGAL'S FLIGHT HAD TO TURN BACK FROM THEIR PATROL STATION OVER RENDOVA. GOING ON ALONE, SEGAL AND SWETT SIGHTED A BIG BUNCH OF ZEROS AND BOMBERS. EVEN THOUGH THEY WERE HOPELESSLY OUTNUMBERED, THE TWO FLIERS CHOSE TO SCRAMBLE WITH THE ENEMY.

FROM HIS WING POSITION, SEGAL SAW A ZERO COMING IN ON SWETT'S TAIL. SEGAL GAVE THE ZERO A BURST, AND THE ENEMY PLANE EXPLODED.

LATER SEGAL, KNOWN TO HIS MATES AS MANNY, CAME OUT OVER A FLIGHT OF SIX ZEROS. HE PICKED OFF TWO STRAGGLERS. BOTH BLEW UP LIKE THE FIRST.

THEN SEGAL'S CORSAIR WAS HIT. OIL STREAMED FROM SHATTERED LINES, AND THE PLANE STARTED SMOKING. SEGAL PUT IT INTO A DIVE FOR THE WATER. THE REMAINING FOUR ZEROS WOVE BACK AND FORTH, AND SEGAL COULD HEAR THE BULLETS BOUNCING BEHIND HIM.

"I LET DOWN THE FLAPS AND HIT THE WATER AT ABOUT 100 MILES AN HOUR," HE SAID. "THE INSTRUMENT BOARD SMASHED ME IN THE FACE, BREAKING MY NOSE AND TWO TEETH AND BLACKING MY EYES."

THE ZEROS FLEW ON. SEGAL GOT INTO HIS LIFERAFT, AND AS HE FLOATED OFF, HE SAW THAT OF HIS PLANE ONLY THE SKELETON GIRDERS REMAINED.

NOT HAVING ANY PADDLES, SEGAL LAY DOWN TO REST AND FELL ASLEEP. AN ALBATROSS LANDED ON HIS LEGS AND WAKENED HIM.

"RIGHT AWAY I NAMED THE BIRD RICKENBACKER, JR., AND GRABBED HIM BY THE NECK," THE FLIER SAID.

AS SEGAL SQUEEZED THE BIRD'S NECK, OUT OF ITS MOUTH PLOPPED FOUR SMALL FISH. SEGAL THEN STOWED THE DEAD BIRD AWAY TO EAT IF HE GOT REALLY HUNGRY.

JUL 22 1943

THE FLIER AWOKE AGAIN IN THE DARKNESS AT 2 A.M. TO SEE A GROUP OF SHIPS PASSING HIS RAFT. HE STOOD UP, WAVED A TARPAULIN AND SHOUTED HIMSELF HOARSE, BUT THE DESTROYERS SPED PAST.

IN THE MORNING THE DESTROYERS HEADED AGAIN IN SEGAL'S DIRECTION. THIS TIME THEY SAW HIM WAVE. ONE SHIP PULLED TOWARD HIM AND TOSSED OUT A LINE, BUT DIDN'T SLOW DOWN. THE LINE JERKED SEGAL OUT OF THE BOAT, AND HE WAS UNDER WATER HALF A MINUTE. THEN HE WAS DRAGGED ABOARD, SPUTTERING BUT SAFE.

HE MISSED THE FIRST BOMBER HE TRIED FOR. THEN HE SAW TWO ZEROS TAILING SEGAL'S BURNING CORSAIR AND ATTACKED ONE OF THEM.

"A LONG BURST FROM MY GUNS SHEARED HIS WING AS NEATLY AS IF IT HAD BEEN CLIPPED WITH SCISSORS," SWETT SAID. THE SECOND ZERO DISAPPEARED. THEN SWETT GAVE THE BOMBER A BURST, BLOWING IT UP.

AT THAT POINT A ZERO SWETT HADN'T SEEN GOT ON TOP OF HIM. SWETT MADE HIS CRASH LANDING IN THE WATER AND THE ZEROS CAME IN STRAFING.

"I DIDN'T EVEN BOTHER TO INFLATE MY MAE WEST (LIFE-JACKET)," SWETT SAID. "I SPENT MOST OF THE TIME DIVING UNDER THE SURFACE, HOLDING MY BREATH UNTIL I THOUGHT MY LUNGS WOULD BURST."

AFTER ABOUT 15 MINUTES, THE ZEROS APPARENTLY RAN OUT OF AMMUNITION AND FLEW OFF. SWETT MADE HIS WAY TO SHORE THAT NIGHT AND SLEPT IN HIS PARACHUTE. THE NEXT MORNING A RESCUE BOAT PICKED HIM UP.

(EDS: ABOVE STORY MAY BE PRECEDED BY FOLLOWING EDITORS NOTE.)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: IN A THEATER OF WAR WHERE AMERICAN FLYING SKILL AND BRAVERY, PUT TO INCESSANT TEST, HAVE REACHED A CONSISTENTLY HIGH LEVEL, THE FEATS AND ADVENTURES OF CAPT.JAMES E.SWETT STILL HAVE BECOME ALMOST A LEGEND. ON APRIL 7 THIS 22-YEAR-OLD MARINE CORPS FIGHTER PILOT SHOT DOWN THE FIRST SEVEN JAPANESE PLANES HE EVER HAD SEEN -- AN UNPRECEDENTED ACCOMPLISHMENT. HIS PLANE DAMAGED IN THE COMBAT, HE ENDED THE DAY IN A CRASH LANDING OFF TULAGI, BUT WAS RESCUED AND AFTER HOSPITAL TREATMENT RETURNED TO ACTION. SINCE THAT TIME HIS NAME HAS APPEARED REPEATEDLY IN DISPATCHES REPORTING CONTINUING AMERICAN SUCCESSES IN THE AIR BATTLE OVER THE SOLOMONS. NOW HE REAPPEARS ONCE AGAIN AS A PRINCIPAL IN A STORY OF COURAGE AND STAMINA UNDER FIRE.)

BY J.NORMAN LODGE

(ADVANCE) WITH THE OCCUPATION FORCES ON NEW GEORGIA-(AP)- EVERYONE HEARS ABOUT THE MARINES, AIR CORPS, THE INFANTRY AND THE ARTILLERY BUT WHO GIVES A THOUGHT TO THE NON-FIGHTING FIGHTING MEN? TAKE THE SIGNAL CORPS OR THE FIELD KITCHEN MEN.

WHEN OUR INFANTRY LEAPED INTO THE WATER, SHORE BOUND DURING THE OCCUPATION OF NEW GEORGIA, LEAPING RIGHT WITH THEM WERE THE SIGNAL CORPS MEN.

AS THE INFANTRY HEROES CRASHED THROUGH THE BRUSH PICKING OFF THE JAPANESE, SEVERAL MEN DONNED LEGIRONS, CLIMBED TREES THROUGH WHICH BULLETS WERE WHIZZING, AND AS THOUGH THEY WERE WORKING ALONG U.S. HIGHWAY 66, STRUNG THE WIRE THAT CONNECTED DIVISIONAL, TASK FORCE AND INDIVIDUAL UNITS.

OCCASIONALLY ONE HOOKED HIS PLIERS TO HIS BELT, YANKED OUT HIS AUTOMATIC, AND, AFTER SENDING A JAPANESE SNIPER HURTLING FROM SOME TREETOP, HOLSTERED THE AUTOMATIC, TOOK UP THE PLIERS AND WENT ON WITH HIS WIRE SPLICING.

THAT TAKES PLAIN GUTS. NO OTHER WORD IS AS EXPRESSIVE.

CAPT.MATHEW MCCORMICK OF CRANSTON, R.I., AND FIRST SERGEANT DAVE HOWARD OF PROVIDENCE MASTERMINDED THE UNIT I WATCHED DISTINGUISH ITSELF IN THIS INVASION.

DURING A RECENT AIR RAID, SIGNAL CORPS MEN MANNED THE SWITCH-BOARDS THROUGHOUT THE HAIL OF BOMBS, AND, WHILE THEIR TENT

3024-6407

WAS RIPPED TO SHREDS, CALLED MEDICAL AID FROM OTHER UNITS, COLLECTED REPORTS OF CASUALTIES, TRANSMITTED MESSAGES AND THEN, WHEN THE RAID WAS OVER, KEPT RIGHT ON THE JOB AFTER TAKING OUT JUST ENOUGH TIME TO SEND FOR COFFEE.

MANY TIMES THEY HAVE STRUNG WIRE BEHIND THE LINES. MANY TIMES THEY HAVE FORAGED INTO JUNGLE UNDERGROWTH AND SHIPPED JAP COMMUNICATIONS. NEXT TIME YOU HEAR OF AN ENEMY ISLAND BEING OCCUPIED BY OUR FIGHTING MEN, THINK OF THE FIELD SIGNAL COMPANIES AND THEIR TASKS.

JUL 22 1943

WITHOUT THE FIELD KITCHEN MEN, THE ARMY WOULD BE A SORRY LOT.

NEVER DID ANYONE WORK UNDER MORE ADVERSE CONDITIONSVH IN THE JUNGLE IT'S BAD ENOUGH, BUT AFTER FIVE DAYS OF TORRENTIAL DOWNPOUR THERE IS LITTLE WITH WHICH TO KEEP THE FIRES BURNING. BUT THE FIELD KITCHEN MEN KEEP THE FIRES BURNING, SHIELDING THEM AT NIGHT SO THEY WON'T GIVE OFF LIGHT AND FURNISHING COFFEE PRACTICALLY EVERY MOMENT OF THE DAY.

AND WHAT COFFEE! CERTAIN CYNICS MAINTAIN THE GENERAL SURROUNDINGS ARE SO BAD THE COFFEE JUST NATURALLY TASTES BETTER HERE, BUT AFTER HAVING TASTED THE BERRY IN MANY COUNTRIES, IN THE NAVY, WITH THE MARINES AND WITH FOREIGN SERVICES, I MAINTAIN THE COFFEE SERVED BY MESS SGT.LLEWELLYN NELSON OF BRIDGEWATER, MAINE, DESERVES THE ACCOLADE.

THE DUTY OF PREPARING THE BREW THAT KEEPS JUNGLE FIGHTERS GOING IS ENTRUSTED BY NELSON TO MAX ESPOSITO, (420 CHAPEL STREET) NEW HAVEN, CONN., A FORMER RADIATOR REPAIR MAN.

NELSON'S AND ESPOSITO'S RECIPE CALLS FOR THREE POUNDS OF COFFEE, THREE OUNCES OF SALT AND 15 GALLONS OF BOILING WATER. WHEN PROPERLY BREWED, ADD FOUR TALL CANS OF EVAPORATED MILK, FIVE POUNDS OF SUGAR, AND SERVE.

SERVING SOMETIMES NECESSITATES AS MUCH BRAVERY AS TRIGGER PULLING.

DURING THE SAME RAID IN WHICH THE SIGNAL MEN MANNED THE SWITCHBOARDS--AND WHEN PRACTICALLY EVERYONE ELSE WAS IN FOXHOLES PUSHING WOODCHUCKS ASIDE TO LET SOME ONE IN WHO KNEW HOW TO DIG--THE BOYS UNDER NELSON WERE FIRST UP FROM THE FLOOR AND WATER WAS STARTED FOR COFFEE.

THE FACT THAT ONE BOMB LANDED DIRECTLY ON A KITCHEN, INJURING SEVERAL IN THAT AREA, DIDN'T HALT THESE BREWMASTERS.

THE KITCHEN BOYS HAVE BEEN SO VALUABLE AS A MORALE BUILDER THAT THE CHIEF OF STAFF CONGRATULATED THEM, DESCRIBING THEIR WORK AS "EXCELLENT."

WHEN THEIR GRANDCHILDREN ASK THEM WHAT THEY DID IN THE GREAT WAR THEY CAN PROUDLY SAY:

"WE PREPARED THE BEST COFFEE EVER SERVED SOUTH OF THE EQUATOR."

BY WILLIAM L.WORDEN

(ADVANCE)...HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND-(AP)-HIS JOB WAS SERIOUS ENOUGH TO KEEP HIM FOR MORE THAN A MONTH ON BLOODY ATTU ISLAND, BUT LIEUTENANT ROBERT D.ORR, OF EVANSVILLE, IND., HAS ABOUT GIVEN UP HOPE OF BEING TAKEN SERIOUSLY BY ANYBODY IN ALASKA OR--IF HIS REPUTATION GETS OUT--BACK IN WASHINGTON, D.C.

THE REASONS ARE SIMPLE: HE SPENT ALL HIS TIME ON ATTU COLLECTING SOUVENIRS; HE TESTS SLEEPING BAGS.

JUL 22 1943

ORR, WITH A YALE DIPLOMA, A LIEUTENANT'S COMMISSION IN THE QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE IN WASHINGTON AND A WINNING GRIN, ARRIVED IN ALASKA MONTHS AGO. NOW ALASKA HAS BEEN INVESTIGATED BY EXPERTS FOR YEARS, AND CIVILIANS AND ARMY ALIKE HAVE DEVELOPED A DEFINITE FEELING ON THE SUBJECT. TWO SYSTEMS ARE GENERALLY ACCEPTED: (1) SHOW THE INVESTIGATOR NOTHING AND SEND HIM BACK ON THE FIRST TRANSPORTATION, OR (2) SHOW HIM SO MUCH, SO ROUGHLY AND SO FAST, THAT HE WILL IMMEDIATELY BEGIN CRYING TO BE PUT ON THE FIRST TRANSPORTATION AWAY FROM THIS LAND OF MOSQUITOS, BOGS AND FOG.

LIEUTENANT ORR'S CREDENTIALS ARRIVED BEFORE HE DID, AND SYSTEM TWO WAS IMMEDIATELY DECIDED UPON. TRANSPORTATION OFFICERS ROUTED HIM IMMEDIATELY TO AMCHITKA, ONE OF THE MOST-WEATHERED OF THE WEATHERED ALEUTIAN ISLANDS. IN ADDITION, A MESSAGE WAS SENT AHEAD TO THIS AFFECT: "THIS IS ANOTHER INVESTIGATOR. MAKE SURE HE IS ASSIGNED TO QUARTERS WHICH WILL GIVE HIM AN IDEA OF WHAT AMCHITKA IS REALLY LIKE. WE SUGGEST A PUP TENT."

SO LIEUTENANT ORR LIVED IN A PUP TENT ON AMCHITKA IN MARCH. SOME MORNINGS HE GOT UP WITHOUT DIFFICULTIES, AND OTHER MORNINGS HE HAD TO SHOVEL SNOW AWAY FROM THE DOOR OF THE TENT. A FEW OFFICERS HAD QUONSET HUTS, MANY HAD WINTERIZED PYRAMIDAL TENTS WITH FLOORS--BUT ORR HAD A PUP TENT.

HE FOOLED THE AMCHITKA GARRISON NOT ONLY BY THRIVING BUT BY COMING UP SMILING EVERY MORNING TO THE MESS HALL HALF A MILE AWAY ACROSS THE SNOWY TUNDRA, EVEN WHEN THE WIND WAS 60 OR 70 MILES AN HOUR.

JUL 22 1943

AFTER A COUPLE OF WEEKS, THE OFFICERS STATIONED THERE TOOK ORR OFF THEIR GREENHORN LIST, DUBBED HIM THE "PUP TENT MAN" AND PUT HIM DOWN AS "RUGGED," WHICH IS ALASKAN FOR AN APPROVED SOLDIER.

THEN HE WAS ASSIGNED TO GO TO ATTU--TO COLLECT, OF ALL THINGS, COMPLAINTS AND SOUVENIRS. THE COMPLAINT ASSIGNMENT WAS CLEAR: HE WAS TO SOLICIT AND EVALUATE COMPLAINTS ABOUT AMERICAN EQUIPMENT.

TO A MAN, THE FORCES ATTACKING ATTU RUBBED THEIR COLLECTIVE HANDS. NOTHING SO DELIGHTS AN AMERICAN SOLDIER OR OFFICER AS TO COMPLAIN ENDLESSLY ABOUT THE MUCKLEHEADS WHO DESIGNED THE THINGS HE TAKES INTO BATTLE. HERE WAS AN OPPORTUNITY NOT LIKELY TO BE REPEATED IN A LIFETIME OF SOLDIERING.

SO FOR WEEKS, WHENEVER A NEW UNIT RETURNED FROM THE FRONT, SOMEONE IN IT YELLED FOR LIEUTENANT ORR. THEIR GREETING TO HIM WAS ALMOST UNIFORM: "HEY, ORR, LET ME TELL YOU ABOUT THIS BLANKETY-BLANK, MISBEGOTTEN, HALF-BAKED, MISERABLE-----" (HERE THEY FILLED IN ANYTHING AND EVERYTHING FROM BOOTS TO TRACTORS).

ORR TOOK IT AND GRINNED. GRINNED AND WROTE DOWN THE COMPLAINT IF IT SEEMED TO HAVE ANY JUSTIFICATION.

HIS THIRD AND MOST IMPORTANT ASSIGNMENT WAS OF COURSE THE COLLECTION OF JAPANESE EQUIPMENT--INSOFAR AS POSSIBLE, AT LEAST ONE EACH OF EVERYTHING THE JAPANESE SOLDIER ATE, WORE OR USED IN BATTLE. JUST THE SIMPLE COLLECTING INVOLVED POKING INTO HUNDREDS OF GRENADED JAPANESE DUGOUTS, PAWING OVER ENDLESS PILES OF MOLDY

JAPANESE STORES, DIGGING THROUGH HEAPS OF DISCARDED AND FILTHY JAPANESE CLOTHING.

HE MIGHT HAVE EXPECTED THAT THIS COULD BE DONE BEHIND THE LINES, BUT ORR HAD NOT RECKONED WITH THE AMERICAN SOLDIER OF WHOM SOMEBODY SAID, "THE GERMAN FIGHTS FOR THE FUEHRER, THE JAP FOR THE EMPEROR AND THE AMERICAN FOR SOUVENIRS."

"I HAD TO GET UP THERE FIRST," ORR SAID, "OR A COUPLE OF HUNDRED SOLDIERS WOULD BEAT ME TO EVERYTHING USEFUL."

BUT IN THE END HE COLLECTED PILES OF EVERYTHING--SOY BEAN CAKES, BAYONETS, RIFLES, FUR-LINED LEGGINGS, EVEN THE THOUSAND STITCH BELTS MOST JAPANESE SOLDIERS WEAR AS A SORT OF LUCK CHARM AROUND THEIR STOMACHS. SOME OF THE THINGS HE GOT EASILY ENOUGH, AND SOME THINGS COULD BE FOUND ONLY ON THE BODIES OF JAPANESE DEAD. ORR SPENT A MONTH AT THE JOB.

ONLY TO RETURN TO HEADQUARTERS AND BE GREETED AS A SOUVENIR HUNTER.

HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND, JULY 20 (AP)-(DELAYED)-ALASKA PILOTS TRAINING IN COMBAT FLYING OVER KISKA CELEBRATED TODAY WITH THE FIRST SUCCESSFUL RAID ON JAPANESE TERRITORY SINCE THE BOMBING OF TOKYO.

ALEUTIANS-BASED BOMBERS RETURNED WITHOUT THE LOSS OF A PLANE FROM A LONG DISTANCE BOMBING OF PARAMUSHIRO, JAPAN'S NORTHERNMOST MILITARY BASE. THE RAID CAME AS A LOGICAL DEVELOPMENT AFTER THE AMERICAN OCCUPATION OF ATTU. IT HAD LONG BEEN EXPECTED AND PREPARED FOR, WITH JAPANESE SHIPPING BEING SWEPT FROM THE NORTHERN SEAS BY

30.24.6409

NAVAL SURFACE VESSELS.

THE BOMBERS WERE FROM THE ARMY'S 11TH AIR FORCE, WHICH HAS DONE THE LION'S SHARE OF ALL FLYING IN THE ALEUTIANS THE LAST YEAR.

RETURNING PILOTS REPORTED THE BOMBING WAS NO MORE DIFFICULT THAN FLIGHTS AGAINST JAPANESE BASES ON AMERICAN ISLANDS IN THE ALEUTIANS. THEY CAME OUT OF THE OVERCAST INTO CLEAR SKIES ABOVE PARAMUSHIRO AND LOOKED DOWN ON A SQUARE MILE OF MILITARY INSTALLATIONS. THEY SAW SOME JAPANESE PLANES BUT NONE THAT WANTED TO FIGHT.

ONLY LIGHT ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS MET. BOMBS WERE DROPPED NEAR SHIPS IN THE HARBOR. THEY SAW WHAT APPEARED TO BE AN ANCIENT FORT, BUILT LONG BEFORE BOMBERS WERE EVER MADE.

NEARBY WAS A MILE-LONG AIRPLANE LANDING STRIP.

SEVERAL LARGE BUILDINGS WERE SET AFIRE.

JUL 221943

THE RAIDERS, WHO WERE IN THE AIR FOR MORE THAN NINE HOURS, SPENT AT LEAST 40 MINUTES OVER THE TARGET, CLIMBING AND CIRCLING BEFORE DROPPING THEIR BOMB LOADS. BAD WEATHER AREAS FORCED THEM TO TAKE A CIRCUITOUS ROUTE TO PARAMUSHIRO, AND CLOUDS PREVENTED THE CONTEMPLATED DECK LEVEL BOMBING WHEN THEY WERE OVER THE TARGET.

THE BIG BOMBERS CARRIED NO SPECIAL EQUIPMENT EXCEPT LIFE RAFTS FOR POSSIBLE FORCED LANDINGS ON THE COLD SEA. BUT ALL AGREED THE THING TO DO IF THEIR PLANES WERE CRIPPLED WAS TO TRY TO REACH RUSSIAN TERRITORY.

THE PILOTS, ALL VETERANS OF RAIDS ON ATTU OR KISKA, KNEW THEY WERE MAKING A DANGEROUS SURVEY FLIGHT IN PREPARATION FOR FUTURE ATTACKS WHICH WILL EVENTUALLY HIT ALL OF THE KURILES AND EXTEND TO THE MORE THICKLY POPULATED ISLANDS OF JAPAN PROPER.

CAPT.JAMES L.HUDELSON, BENTON, ILL., WHO ALREADY HOLDS THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS AND AIR MEDAL FOR HIS ACHIEVEMENTS IN ALEUTIAN COMBAT FLYING, LED THE FLIGHT.

HIS BOMBARDIER WAS LIEUT.JOHN LAROCK, INDEPENDENCE, PA.

THE CREWS OF OTHER PLANES INCLUDED: CAPT.JOSEPH M.JEFFERS, MOUNT VERNON, MO., PILOT; FLYING OFFICER HOWARD W.MARKKENEN, (714 11TH AVE.), TWO HARBORS, MICH., CO-PILOT; A D 1ST LIEUT.M.T.KNECHT, HAYES, S.D., NAVIGATOR.

1ST LIEUT.ALBERT W.BERECZ, (480 EAST WOODROW AVE.) COLUMBUS, O., PILOT; AND SGT.DENVER R.WILLIAMS (242 BIENVILLE ST.), NEW ORLEANS, GUNNER.

1ST LIEUT.DON D(DEAC) WALTERS, RICHTON PARK, ILL., PILOT; AND LIEUT.WAYNE A.(WIENIE) MARRIER, (1648 ALAMEDA ST.) ST.PAUL, MINN., COPILOT.

LIEUT.LEROY R.WALKER, HOSKINS, NEB., CO-PILOT.

FLYING OFFICER PAUL E.WELLIVER, (611 EAST DIAMOND AVE.) AZELTON, PA., COPILOT.

LIEUT.CECIL D.MAY, (99 BROAD ST.) NEWBERN, N.C., COPILOT AND 1ST LIEUT.SEYMOUR GANSBERG, (815 WEST END AVE) NEW YORK CITY, NAVIGATOR.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE PANAMA CANAL DEPARTMENT, JULY 21-(AP)-AWARD OF THE LEGION OF MERIT TO MAJOR-GEN.GLEN EDGERTON OF MANHATTAN, KAS., GOVERNOR OF THE PANAMA CANAL, WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE AWARD WAS FOR SERVICES FROM SEPTEMBER, 1939, TO JULY, 1940, WHEN EDGERTON, AS A MAINTENANCE ENGINEER, DIRECTED THE READJUSTMENT OF CANAL DEPARTMENTS FROM A PEACETIME TO A WARTIME BASIS.

JUL 22 1943

BELEM, BRAZIL, JULY 21-(AP)-BRIG.GEN.HENRI PAUL JACOMY AND HIS CHIEF OF STAFF, COLONEL SERROT, ARRIVED TODAY BY PLANE EN ROUTE FROM ALGIERS TO THE CARIBBEAN ZONE AS REPRESENTATIVES OF THE FRENCH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION.

(GEN.JACOMY RECENTLY WAS NAMED MILITARY COMMANDER OF THE FRENCH ANTILLES AND FRENCH GUIANA BY THE FRENCH COMMITTEE AT ALGIERS TO SUCCEED ADMIRAL GEORGES ROBERT, VICHY APPOINTEE.

(HENRI-ETIENNE HOPPENOT, APPOINTED BY THE FRENCH COMMITTEE TO SUCCEED ADMIRAL ROBERT AS GOVERNOR OF MARTINIQUE AND GUADALOUPE IN THE ANTILLES, ARRIVED IN MARTINIQUE ON JULY 14 AND BEGAN NEGOTIATIONS FOR THE TRANSFER OF AUTHORITY.)

BY CLYDE A.FARNSWORTH

(ADVANCE) TEHERAN,-(AP)-JOSEPH PHILIP SHERIDAN, FORMER NEW YORK REPORTER WHO TOOK TO COMMERCE AND BECAME A DIRECTOR IN SEVERAL MANUFACTURING AND IMPORTING CONCERNS AT CAIRO, HAS BEEN INSTRUMENTAL,

30.24-6411

30.24-6411

AS A WARTIME FOOD ADMINISTRATOR, IN AVERTING FAMINE IN IRAN.

SHERIDAN ESTIMATES THAT IRAN WILL PRODUCE 2,000,000 METRIC TONS (THE METRIC TON IS 2,240 POUNDS) OF WHEAT AND BARLEY THIS YEAR, MORE THAN ENOUGH TO FEED HERSELF NEXT WINTER.

JUL 22 1943

SHERIDAN, 49, ONE-TIME LEGMAN FOR THE OLD NEW YORK CITY NEWS ASSOCIATION, IS ONE OF SEVERAL AMERICAN EXPERTS STATIONED HERE AT IRAN'S REQUEST TO SERVE A NATION WHICH FORMS AN IMPORTANT PART OF THE ALLIED SUPPLY LINE TO RUSSIA.

HE HAS BEEN HERE SINCE SEPTEMBER, 1942, COUNSELING THE IRANIAN MINISTRY OF SUPPLY ON HOW TO KEEP IRANIANS FROM STARVING. HE WAS A NAVAL OFFICER IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

JUL 22 1943

BECAUSE IRAN'S PEASANTS CAN BE COUNTED ON TO TAKE CARE OF THEMSELVES--IN SOME CASES ONLY TOO WELL--SHERIDAN'S TOUGHEST PROBLEM HAS BEEN TO SEE THAT THE CITY POOR GET THEIR DAILY BREAD. IT WAS A JOB FOR A HARD-FISTED BUSINESS MAN. THANKS LARGELY TO HIS EFFORTS FAMINE HAS BEEN AVOIDED. THERE WAS, HOWEVER, A PERIOD OF SHARP DISTRESS.

THERE WERE TIMES LAST WINTER WHEN ONLY NICK-OF-TIME RECEIPTS OF GRAIN---PERHAPS A LOAN FROM THE BRITISH ARMY OR THE RED CROSS OR A HOARD UNCOVERED IN SOME SECRET WAREHOUSE---SAVED THE CITY FROM ACCUTE HUNGER. HE ALWAYS MANAGED SOMEHOW.

HE HELPED FORMULATE AND EXECUTE RATIONING AND PRICE CONTROL PLANS ---NOT ONLY FOR BREAD BUT ALSO FOR SUGAR, TEA, RICE AND CLOTH--- AND WAS AN ENERGETIC IN PROSECUTION OF HOARDERS AND BLACK MARKET DEALERS.

HE WAGED A KNOCK-DOWN-DRAG-OUT BATTLE WITH TEHERAN'S BAKERS, WHO WERE DIVERTING GOVERNMENT-FURNISHED FLOUR INTO THE BLACK MARKET. HE DROVE NEARLY HALF OF THEM OUT OF BUSINESS BY OPENING A MUNICIPAL BAKERY---ONE OF THE LARGEST SUCH ESTABLISHMENTS IN THE ORIENT. HE HELPED SET UP EMERGENCY KITCHENS THAT FED AS MANY AS 75,000 PERSONS DAILY.

JUL 22 1943

MUCH OF THE SHORTAGE WAS THE RESULT OF HOARDING. MOST OF THE 1942 GRAIN CROP HAD GONE INTO HIDING WHEN SHERIDAN WENT TO WORK.

THE BIG HOARDERS WERE INTENT UPON GETTING $14 A BUSHEL. THE LITTLE HOARDERS WERE EXCUSABLY DTERMINED NOT TO GO HUNGRY. SHERIDAN'S ANTI-HOARDING CAMPAIGN, IGNORING THE SMALL FRY, REACHED INTO DISTINGUISHED CIRCLES.

FOLLOWING THE ARREST OF ONE BIG HOARDER, A HIGH OFFICIAL CAME TO SHERIDAN AND URGED HIM NOT TO BE "HARSH WITH THE PEOPLE."

"THE PEOPLE, HELL," SHERIDAN TOLD HIM, "THIS MAN WOULD STARVE THEM TO DEATH."

EVERY BUSHEL THAT IRAN COULD PRODUCE MEANT THAT MUCH MORE SHIPPING SPACE WHICH THE ALLIES COULD DEVOTE TO WAR PURPOSES, FOR THEY HAD IN EFFECT INHERITED FULFILLMENT OF THE DICTUM OF THE ABDICATED SHAH, RIZA KHAN PAHLEVI, THAT THE PEOPLE ALWAYS SHOULD HAVE BREAD. IF IRAN COULD NOT PROVIDE, THE ALLIES WOULD HAVE TO.

IN 1942 THE BRITISH CONSIGNED 70,000 AND THE RUSSIANS 23,000 METRIC TONS OF GRAIN TO IRAN TO MAKE UP FOR THE HOARDING OF THE 1941 CROP. LAST DECEMBER THE UNITED STATES JOINED WITH THE BRITISH IN A COMMITMENT OF 30,000 METRIC TONS OF WHEAT AND 16,000 METRIC TONS OF BARLEY, AND IN APRIL THE RUSSIANS VOLUNTEERED 25,000

METRIC TONS OF WHEAT. THESE DELIVERIES ARE STILL UNDER WAY.

WITH A BUMPER CROP IN PROSPECT, SHERIDAN FEELS THAT NO MORE AID WILL BE NECESSARY.

BUT TO MAKE SURE THAT THIS CROP DOESN'T FADE AWAY TO SHOW UP LATER IN THE BLACK MARKET, SHERIDAN HAS A CORPS OF SUBORDINATES ROVING THE FARMING COUNTRY ARMED WITH CONVINCING MANNERS AND FOUNTAIN PENS, GETTING LANDLORDS TO SIGN ENGAGEMENTS TO DELIVER GRAIN TO GOVERNMENT WAREHOUSES.

SHERIDAN, BORN IN BROOKLYN, HAS SPENT MOST OF HIS LIFE IN THE MIDDLE EAST---HE WAS MARRIED IN CAIRO AND HIS TWO CHILDREN, NOW GROWN, WERE BORN THERE. BUT HE WAS IN PASADENA, CALIF., AND HAD OFFERED HIS SERVICES TO THE WAR DEPARTMENT WHEN THE STATE DEPARTMENT ASKED HIM TO FLY TO IRAN TO BE AN ADVISER.

JUL 221943

SHERIDAN, PROUD OF HIS KNOWLEDGE OF SO-CALLED MIDDLE EAST PSYCHOLOGY, IS A BIG, CIGAR-CHAMPING FELLOW WITH A STRONG VOICE AND THE FAST, PERSUASIVE TALK OF A STAR SALESMAN---A HANDY ASSET FOR HIS SESSIONS WITH THE COUNCIL OF MINISTERS.

HE IS AN ARDENT ADMIRER OF THE 24-YEAR-OLD SHAH, MOHAMMED RIZA PAHLEVI, WHO SUCCEEDED TO THE THRONE IN 1941.

"THERE'S A YOUNG MAN," SAYS SHERIDAN, "WHO WILL DO THINGS FOR THE PEOPLE IF HE GETS A CHANCE."

NEW YORK, JULY 21-(AP)-DAVID EDWARD RICKENBACKER, 18-YEAR-OLD SON OF CAPT.EDDIE RICKENBECKER, IS OFF TO CARRY ON THE FAMILY TRADITIONS IN THIS WAR, BUT HE'LL DO IT IN A MARINE'S UNIFORM -- ON THE GROUND.

YOUNG RICKENBACKER WAS SWORN IN AS A MARINE CORPS PRIVATE YESTERDAY AND WILL REPORT FOR BASIC TRAINING AT PARRIS ISLAND, N.C., IN TWO WEEKS.

HE SAID HE CHOSE THE MARINES BECAUSE "THE MARINES ARE ALWAYS IN ACTION AND IN THE THICK OF THINGS" AND EXPRESSED A WISH TO BE AN AIRPLANE MECHANIC, NOT A PILOT LIKE HIS FAMOUS FATHER.

PARLEY CONCERNED THE INVASION OF SICILY AND THE "DESPERATE ONSLAUGHT" OF THE RUSSIANS ON THE EASTERN FRONT. THAT WOULD SEEM TO BE A CERTAINTY, AND THE ISSUES INVOLVED ARE SO CLEAR THAT ONE CAN ALMOST HEAR THE CONVERSATION.

"I NEED MORE HELP, AND NEED IT QUICK," SAYS MUSSOLINI, TRYING TO SQUARE HIS WABBLY JAW AND PLAY THE STRONG MAN. "THE ALTERNATIVE IS A SEPARATE PEACE."

"I'M MUCH AFRIAD, BENITO," REPLIES THE FUEHRER, "THAT I CAN'T PROVIDE ANY ADDITIONAL AID. THE DAMNABLE BOLSHEVISTS HAVE PRECIPITATED A CRISIS BY THEIR DRIVE ON OREL. AS A MATTER OF FACT THEY'RE ON THE OFFENSIVE FROM THE ARCTIC TO THE BLACK SEA. YOU'LL HAVE TO FIGHT YOUR OWN BATTLE WITH WHAT YOU HAVE."

"BUT ADOLF," QUAVERS THE SOFT UNDERBELLY OF EUROPE, "THE ONLY THING THAT KEEPS MY PEOPLE FROM REVOLTING AGAINST ME NOW AND MAKING PEACE WITH THE ENEMY IS THEIR FEAR OF REPRISALS BY YOU. MY TROOPS ARE IN MUTINY IN SICILY. WITHOUT YOUR HELP I CAN'T STAND OFF DISASTER. SURELY THE MIGHT OF GERMANY HASN'T LOST CONTROL OF THE RUSSIAN FRONT. YOU CAN SPARE ME SOMETHING MORE."

"I CAN SPARE YOU NOTHING, MY FRIEND," REPLIES THE ACE. "STRICTLY OFF THE RECORD MY ARMIES IN THE EAST ARE IN A NASTY HOLE. WHEN WE STARTED OUR BELATED DRIVE AGAINST KURSK ON JULY 5 I THOUGHT WE COULD SMASH THE RED LINES, ENVELOP THEIR GREAT BODY OF RESERVES AND ANNIHILATE THEM. WITH LUCK I COULD KNOCK THE BOLSHEVISTS OUT. THAT WOULD GIVE ME A CHANCE TO HELP YOU AND FACE THE STUPID PIGS OF YANKEES AND BRITISH WHO ARE DESTROYING MY RESOURCES BY BOMBING.

"BUT THE UNSPEAKABLE COMMUNISTS STOPPED US. THEN THEY COUNTER-ATTACKED, AND THE COUNTER-ATTACK HAS DEVELOPED INTO A GREAT OFFENSIVE. OREL MAY FALL AT ANY MOMENT."

"BUT WHY IS OREL SO IMPORTANT, FUEHRER?"

"STUPID! IT'S ONE OF OUR PIVOTAL STRONG POINTS. IT'S AN ANCHOR AT A CRUCIAL PLACE IN OUR LINE, AND AN IMPORTANT RAILWAY CENTER AS WELL. MY WHOLE FRONT SOUTH OF MOSCOW MIGHT HAVE TO BE PULLED BACK IF WE LOST OREL."

JUL 22 1943

"SUPPOSING, ADOLF," WHISPERS MUSSO, AS HE LOOKS OVER HIS SHOULDER, "THE REDS SHOULD BREAK YOUR LINE, AND DRIVE YOU BACK THROUGH POLAND. SUPPOSING THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE IN THE CONQUERED AREAS, AND THE POLES, SHOULD GET OUT OF HAND AND START TO TAKE REVENGE IN BLOOD---."

"STOP IT, YOU FAT OFFSPRING OF A BACHELOR," SCREAMS THE ALL HIGHEST.

"SUPPOSING," INSISTS IL DUCE, "THE RUSSIANS SHOULD BREAK THROUGH AND MAKE A QUICK DRIVE INTO GERMANY. WHAT SORT OF TERMS DO YOU THINK THE AXIS WOULD GET FROM THESE REDS WE'VE BEEN TRYING TO WIPE OUT?

I COULDN'T HEAR THE ANSWER TO THIS QUESTION AND SUSPECT THAT SOMEBODY CLOSED THE WINDOW OF THE CONFERENCE ROOM. THE REPLY WOULD HAVE BEEN INTERESTING.

IN ANY EVENT, THE NAZI CHIEF'S CONCERN ABOUT OREL IS JUSTIFIED. THE REDS ARE BOMBARDING THIS STRATEGIC FORTRESS WITH HEAVY GUNS FROM NORTH, EAST AND SOUTH. A POWERFUL BOLSHEVIST COLUMN HAS DRIVEN THIRTY MILES INTO THE ENEMY REAR AND CAPTURED THE CITY OF ILLINSKOYE.

THUS THE RUSSIANS THREATEN OREL WITH COMPLETE ENCIRCLEMENT, TOGETHER WITH THE FORCES OF FIELD MARSHAL GUENTHER VON KLUGE. THERE ARE THE MAKINGS OF DISASTER IN THE SITUATION.

TODAY WE HEAR THAT THE RUSSIANS HAVE EXTENDED THEIR OFFENSIVE SOUTHWARD CLEAR TO THE BLACK SEA. HITLER'S WHOLE RIGHT FLANK IS IN DANGER--A POSITION OF THE UTMOST ANXIETY TO HIM, IN VIEW OF THE ALLIED THREAT OF INVASION UP THROUGH THE BALKANS AGAINST THE AREA BEHIND THIS RIGHT FLANK.

THE RUSSIANS REPORT THAT SINCE JULY 5, WHEN THE NAZI DRIVE STARTED, THE RED ARMIES HAVE CAPTURED SEVERAL HUNDRED VILLAGES, DESTROYED 3,516 TANKS AND 2,094 WARPLANES, AND TAKEN SOME 65,000 PRISONERS. WHETHER THE RUSSIANS HAVE THE STRIKING POWER TO DEVELOP THEIR ATTACK INTO AN UNLIMITED OFFENSIVE REMAINS TO BE SEEN, BUT SO FAR THEY ARE DISPLAYING GREAT RESERVE STRENGTH.

Reds Liqui[illegible]trongly Fortified Belt North of Orel, Capture Bolkhov

Gain 4 to 5 Miles On 3 Sides of City

Nazis Report Powerful Offensive by Russians on the Leningrad Front

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 23 (Friday).—Russian armies engulfing Orel's defenses have liquidated a strongly fortified belt north of the city in a ten-day non-stop offensive in that area that has cost the Germans more than 50,000 killed and 6,000 captured, Moscow announced early today.

With Russian units fighting less than nine miles from Orel on the northeast and within eleven miles on the east, a special bulletin said that Bolkhov, thirty-five miles north of the city, had fallen to the onrushing Red Army.

Bolkhov already had been bypassed by Red Army units racing to take Orel from the rear. The seizure of the strong point, Moscow said, "finished the liquidation of strongly fortified districts of the enemy north of Orel."

[The United Press reported that the Russians had broken the Orel salient on the north side and stormed into the main defenses before the city.]

Entire Nazi Line in Peril

The fall of Orel, which already is within artillery range, would endanger the entire German line extending from Leningrad in the north to the Sea of Azov. Berlin termed the struggle for the city "the greatest battle of attrition ever fought."

Striking from three sides, the Russian armies seized village after village yesterday in advances of four to five miles, said the special bulletin and the later midnight communique. Successes in the Belgorod sector and the Donets Basin to the south also were reported.

The Red Air Force steadily hammered German troop and supply concentrations at Orel, Karachev and Bryansk, to the northwest, and other points in the area.

More than 2,600 Germans were killed and forty-six enemy tanks destroyed in yesterday's fighting, the Russians said.

In the last ten days, the Russians said, these equipment losses were suffered by the Germans: 1,148 tanks knocked out or captured, 900 planes destroyed, 1,602 guns destroyed or captured and 800 mortars, 1,400 machine-guns and 128 various kinds of dumps captured.

Say Reds Lost 350,000

The German radio, soon after the special Moscow bulletin was issued, countered with an assertion that the Red Army had lost more than 350,000 in dead, wounded and captured since July 15. A Berlin military spokesman, estimating the immensity of the battle raging in Russia, said that a total of 600 divisions—from 7,200,000 to 9,000,000 men—were engaged on both sides.

German propagandists appeared to be concerned with the threatened disaster at Orel, held by them since the fall of 1941 and keystone of Nazi defenses in south-central Russia. They took this line tonight:

"In the tactics of elastic fighting the Germans deliberately refuse to cling to a certain terrain, always adapting operations to the actual situation."

Thirteen-Mile Gain

The capture of Bolkhov represented a thirteen-mile gain after Russian armies overran Telechye. Part of the Red army was swinging wide around Orel to threaten Bryansk, seventy-five miles to the northwest, another German stronghold. Their guns already were reported raking the railway connecting the two points, and their obvious strategy was to trap all the Germans fighting at Orel.

The Germans were hurling reinforcements into battle straight from the march, and also were using great smoke screens in an effort to keep the heavily-gunned Russians from picking off their hedgehog nests protecting Orel.

The Russians began their first successful counter-offensive after Germany's third summer campaign began July 5 on a 165-mile front between Orel and Belgorod to the south.

Leningrad Drive Noted

Since the Russians began their big push Berlin has reported the spread of fighting all along the southern front to the Sea of Azov. Tonight the German radio also announced a powerful Russian drive in the Leningrad sector.

The special bulletin said that fresh gains of three to four miles had been made in the Belgorod area.

Farther south in the Izyum sector and southwest of Voroshilovgrad, in the Donets basin the Russians also were attacking, but these were termed engagements of "local importance." The battles in these areas probably will increase as soon as the Germans divert troops to Orel.

Villages Captured

Moscow earlier today had announced that the Red army had captured several villages, greatly improving their position in the Voroshilovgrad sector.

"Evidently the Soviets in the present big summer battle intend to bring about a decision with immense masses of tanks and other materiel," a Berlin military spokesman said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

The German communique asserted that the Russian attacks everywhere broke down in "defensive fire and hails of bombs" or in bayonet fighting. "Local infiltrations were ironed out by immediate counter-attack," the Germans said.

Farther south in the Izyum sector and southwest of Voroshilovgrad, in the Donets Basin, the Russians also were attacking, but these were termed engagements of "local importance." The battles in these areas probably will increase as soon as the Germans divert any troops to gravely menaced Orel.

Moscow earlier today had announced that the Red Army had captured several villages, greatly improving their positions in the Voroshilovgrad sector.

Although the Russians said the Donets Basin battle still was in preliminary stages, considerable significance was attached to three heavy air attacks on German bases behind their Donets lines. The Red Air Force pounded Khartsyzsk, twenty-five miles northeast of Stalino; Kramatorskaya, thirty-five miles southeast of Izyum, and Lozovaya, forty-eight miles southwest of Izyum, on the Izyum-Kharkov-Crimea railway.

The contradictory Nazi communique asserted that the Russian attacks everywhere broke down in "defensive fire and hails of bombs" or in bayonet fighting. In the next breath, however, the Germans said that "local infiltrations were ironed out by immediate counter-attack."

Soviet D[illegible] Rolls To Within 9 Miles Of Orel Stronghold

Russians Smash Ahead In Spite of Desperate Nazi Counterattacks

JUL 23 1943

By the Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 22.—German reinforcements, rushed into the Orel breaches by forced marches, counterattacked viciously in desperate efforts to halt the Russian onslaught yesterday, but were smashed back as the Soviet offensive rolled on to within 9 miles of the German stronghold, the Russians announced today.

In a battle of increasing violence which raged 200 miles south of Moscow, the Russians said they beat through masses of enemy tanks and infantry for gains of 4 to 9 miles and overran 90 villages.

Nazi Positions Menaced.

(The London radio said Hitler had ordered Orel, hinge of the entire Nazi south-central defense line, held "at all costs.")

The three-pronged Russian drive which threatened to outflank the city of 110,000 from the north and south and menaced it from the east, held these positions:

Driving from the north, the Russians had reached Buky, about 40 miles west of the city and within 5 miles of the crucial Orel-Bryansk Railway at a point 35 miles northeast of Bryansk. Another column from the north had toppled Optukha, 9 miles northeast of Orel on the railway from fallen Mtsensk.

Soviet forces, smashing frontally from the east, had driven into Zolotarevo, 11 miles away.

The southern advance on the city was meeting the toughest German opposition and a Soviet communique said only that the Russians "continued to forge ahead." That column was last reported west of Malo at a point about 30 miles south of Orel.

Toll of 5,800 Germans.

In yesterday's severe battles the Russians said they knocked out more than 77 tanks and 131 Nazi planes in the Orel sector alone, and announced that the day's fighting, which raged as far south as the Donets River basin, had taken a toll of 5,800 Germans.

Yesterday's Nazi losses brought the totals as announced by the Russians since July 5 to 3,393 tanks and 2,342 planes destroyed and more than 75,000 Germans killed.

At Belgorod, 165 miles south of Orel where the Germans gained initial advantages in their summer campaign which were checked when the Russians began to counter-attack on July 12, the Russians said their forces had again advanced.

The Berlin radio, explaining the Nazi retreats as part of the high command's plan "to force the enemy to the greatest use and abuse of his forces" in battles of attrition "where the goal is not to gain ground," said 45,172 Russians had been taken prisoner and 4,827 tanks and 2,344 planes had been destroyed or captured since July 5.

Russians Deny Landing Along Norwegian Fjord

London, Friday, July 23 (AP)—The Moscow radio officially denied tonight a Berlin claim that Russian troops had made a landing on the Norwegian coast July 19.

The radio, recorded by the Soviet monitor, described the German report as "an invention from beginning to end" and said it "once again confirms the correctness of the old Russian proverb, 'fear has large eyes.'"

The broadcast quoted a Tass agency dispatch.

The Berlin radio on July 20 said a Russian amphibious force had attacked the coast of Varanger Fjord in extreme northern Norway but was beaten off by shore batteries which sank or damaged many vessels.

Castelvetrano And Six Other Towns Fall To Yanks In Drive Threatening Marsala—British Army In War Of Position Near Catania

DE LUCE

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 22—American armored columns, sweeping north and west with a break-neck speed, were approaching Palermo, on Sicily's northern coast, through the last mountain range guarding the island capital today after capturing the big air base of Castelvetrano and six other towns.

Withering under lightning war, the Italian armies of northern and western Sicily were falling into a debacle comparable with that suffered at the hands of the British in Libya in 1940 as Allied armies swept over considerably more than half of the island.

[Robert P. Patterson, acting Secretary of War, in Washington, said late reports indicated the American Seventh Army has reached the outskirts of Marsala at the extreme western tip of Sicily.]

[The Morocco radio, in a broadcast heard by Reuters, said that Axis forces had already fled Marsala, indicating that the Americans might already be entering the western port.]

Armies' Roles Reversed

In a week the roles of the British Eighth Army and the American Seventh Army had been completely reversed, with General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces still fighting a war of position at the edge of Catania while Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.'s Americans speedily herded all Axis resistance into the northeastern part of the island around Mount Etna.

Sciacca, San Stefano Quisquina, San Caterina, Menfi, Caltabellotta and Bivona, as well as Castelvetrano, fell to the Americans driving loops westward along the south coast and northward across the island to the north coast, it was announced at Allied headquarters.

Castelvetrano, one of the "big-three" airbases in Sicity, was captured before dawn yesterday by American infantry and a big armored column, after a three-day march of sixty miles which placed General Patton's fighting veterans only about twenty miles from Marsala at Sicily's western tip and less than thirty miles from Trapani on the northwestern coast.

28 Miles From North Coast

The fall of San Caterina to the Americans plunging northward from Caltanissetta placed the vanguard within about twenty-eight miles of the north coast, and the capture of San Stefano Quisquina to the west gave another northward column a position only about thirty miles south of Palermo.

Ramacca, twenty-two miles southwest of Catania, where Canadian troops were driving remnants of the Fifteenth German Armored Division toward Mount Etna, also fell to Allied arms.

General Montgomery's Eighth Army has succeeded in inching forward slightly in fierce fighting, today's communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said.

Goering Division Gets Aid

The battered Hermann Goering Armored Division, reinforced by fresh Nazi units, including a parachute battalion fighting as infantry, resorted to heavy demolitions of bridges and highways and defense mine fields in a desperate effort to impede the progress of Montgomery.

Since last Thursday, when he gained the Primasola bridge only seven miles south of Catania, the British had gained only a few of the intervening miles across the river-traced plain.

Suffering heavy losses, the Germans were battling to hold Catania and the 10,000-foot peak of Mount Etna behind the city as an anchor for a fifty-five-mile line behind which they intended to make their last-ditch stand for Sicily.

Strong Position On Slopes

It was apparent that they had transformed the base of Mount Etna's lava slopes into a formidable position upon which to base a front running northwest to the vicinity of San Stefano di Camastra on the north coast.

The triphammer blows of the American Seventh Army were beating to pieces the last ineffectual remnants of Italian divisions in the north and west and Axis prisoners mounted to more than 40,000.

Engulfed by the twin American waves, the Italian Twenty-sixth Assieta Division was presumed to have disappeared from the action as a result of the wholesale surrender of its units.

Officers Try To Escape

Italian fighting spirit sank almost to zero, with fresh bunches of prisoners telling how their officers were attempting to escape in borrowed civilian clothes. The often resuscitated Tenth Bersaglieri Regiment was wiped out of the action for the third time, it was disclosed, when it surrendered at Agrigento without firing a shot.

The communique of headquarters lagged more than twenty-four hours behind as General Patton's vanguard raced through difficult but poorly defended mountain country toward Palermo and swept on toward Marsala and Trapani.

Large civil and military stores fell into Allied hands in the capture of Caltanissetta, including fourteen locomotives and one hundred railroad cars in good condition, the communique said.

The Americans arrived at Castelvetrano so swiftly that the installations of that city of 25,000 and its big air base fell into Allied hands undamaged by demolitions.

Falls To Pre-Dawn Charge

The city, most populous in southwestern Sicily, was taken in a predawn infantry charge, and a column of tanks and halftracks, moving at a speed which General Patton said he believed was superior to that of the German war machine in 1939 and 1940, hurried on to exploit the gain.

Sciacca, twenty miles east of Castelvetrano; Menfi, midway between the two places; Caltabellotta, where the Sciacca airdrome is located, and Bivona, near San Stefano Quisquina, also were taken in the sweep.

Axis air power appeared to have been virtually knocked out in Sicily.

The Allied communique told of the destruction of only four enemy planes and the loss of two Allied aircraft in a day of operations which included the bombing of Naples railway facilities, Crotone, Grosseto airfield, ninety miles north of Rome, and day-and-night sweeps by fighters, fighter-bombers and intruders against Sicilian roadways, railways and sea lanes.

Pace Slackens In Air

Purely for lack of targets, the terrific pace maintained during the past week by Allied bombers and fighter-bombers appeared to be slackening.

Allied airmen returning from the Crotone raid said they started large fires in one of the hangars and in other buildings, an exploding ammunition dump and seven aircraft set afire.

Flying Fortresses bombing the important Grosseto airfield laid a shattering pattern of explosives across hangars, buildings, runways and dispersal areas and encountered almost no enemy opposition while they bombed at will.

About three-fifths of Sicily was in Allied hands this morning as a result of the spectacular American 7th Army advance in the west and center. A headquarters spokesman said the left anchor was on the west coast of the island, with the Allied line from there running through Castelvetrano, Montevago, Menfi, Sciacca, Caltabellotta, Bivoni, San Stefano Quisquina, Mussolmeli, Marianpoli, Santa Caterina and Enna, and from there almost due east to the southern environs of Catania.

British in East Making Slow, Steady Advance

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 22.—The American 7th Army has captured Castelvetrano and Sciacca on the Sicilian south coast in a swift drive which has placed them but a little over 20 miles from the western tip of Sicily, Allied headquarters reported today.

Besides Castelvetrano and Sciacca, the Americans took these places:

San Stefano Quisquina, about 30 miles south of Palermo, on the north coast, and 40 miles west of Enna.

San Caterina, 7 miles northwest of Caltanissetta and 28 miles south of the north coast.

Menfi, midway between Castelvetrano and Sciacca.

Caltabellotta, the Sciacca airdrome, and the airdrome at Castelvetrano were included in the captures.

The American columns now were approaching Palermo, the capital of Sicily, with a last mountain range guarding that vital seaport.

Prisoners Mount to 40,000.

Castelvetrano is 50 miles west of Agrigento and Porto Empedocle, towns on the south coast captured by the Americans last Saturday and Sunday. Sciacca is about 30 miles west of these two places.

The panicky Italians and their German allies were being pressed into the northeast corner of the island, and the Italian 26th Assieta Division was said to be surrendering almost en masse as Axis prisoners mounted to more than 40,000.

(The Algiers radio said this morning the Axis forces already had evacuated Palermo and Trapani and Marsala on the western tip of Sicily. This broadcast also reported an American-Canadian spearhead striking northwestward from Enna toward Villarosa, 9 miles away.)

Along the east coast fierce fighting continued between the Simeto River and Catania, where the German Hermann Goering Armored Division and fresh Nazi forces, including a parachute infantry battalion, were contesting every inch of ground with Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th Army.

Heavy Axis Casualties.

The 8th Army, however, was making steady, if slow, progress.

Ramacca, 22 miles southwest of Catania, has been taken, Allied headquarters announced.

Fierce fighting was taking place, the communique said, and "heavy casualties are being inflicted on the enemy."

Allied air forces again smashed at Crotone airfield and Naples railway facilities, covering their targets with bomb bursts.

Flying Fortresses again visited Grosseto airfield, 90 miles north of Rome, sprinkling their heavy loads of explosives across the runways and buildings, while fighters, fighter-bombers and intruders continued to sweep the island's railroads, highways and sea appoaches by day and night.

Four enemy planes were destroyed during the operations, compared with the loss of two Allied aircraft.

Division Reported Retreating.

The German 15th Armored Division was reported in retreat toward the northeastern part of the island from the Enna area. The Canadians drove on in the face of determined resistance, but the American sweep was said by the communique to be meeting only light and ineffective opposition.

Reports at headquarters continued to confirm earlier reports that German officers were shooting Italians who attempted to march toward the American lines under white flags, and that in some instances the Italians had shot their German officers.

Booty captured in the American advance at Caltanissetta was officially stated to include 14 locomotives and 100 freight cars, in good condition.

(An NBC broadcast from Algiers said the Americans were believed to be bringing up long-range artillery to pound Palermo, and Termini, on Sicily's north coast, and Marsala on Sicily's west coast, so rapid was their advance.)

Eisenhower Stresses Task.

Gen. Eisenhower said at a press conference yesterday that both the British 8th Army and the middle American-Canadian striking force were "doing exactly the right thing."

"Owing to the nature of the terrain and the location of the enemy forces," the general added, "the task facing the 8th Army is one of bitter fighting with a generally slow advance."

The British and the German forces at Catania were slugging it out in one of the most ferocious battles since the 8th Army broke the Mareth Line. The Germans, undoubtedly supported with strong reinforcements from the center of Sicily and the Italian mainland, were counter-attacking repeatedly, but without success.

Terrain Favors Germany.

Allied observers believe the Germans intend to try to hold the Catania-Messina Line as long as possible, utilizing towering Mount Etna and a cluster of satellite hills.

The enemy is favored not only by the terrain, which is networked with many creeks and three major rivers, but by strong defenses originally erected to protect the ring of airfields around Gerbini to the west.

The 8th Army, however, has broken the crust of this steel and concrete circle and established a big hop-off point around an estuary formed by the confluence of the three rivers. It is this British salient the Germans have been hammering with some of their prize shock troops.

BRITISH WARSHIPS SHELL ITALIAN PORT

Pump Explosives on Crotone, 95 Miles From Naval Base of Taranto, With Impunity

LEW HAWKINS

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 22—A strong force of British warships and planes poured shells and bombs on the coastal rail city of Crotone, only ninety-five miles below the big Italian naval base of Taranto, early yesterday in the first combined operation by the Navy and land-based planes against the Fascist mainland.

The blow set a likely pattern of things to come in an invasion of Italy proper, although its immediate objective was to cut another route whereby Axis reinforcements can be dispatched to wavering Sicily.

Attacked First by Planes

Royal Air Force Wellington bombers first attacked the air fields at Crotone, which is 100 miles up the coast from the tip of Italy.

A communiqué from Allied headquarters in North Africa said the airfield was "well covered by bombs and several fires were started."

Then, the British seat units, with their usual disregard of any Italian naval threat, moved in close to shore and pumped shells into the harbor area.

"A chemical works was hit and a fire was started," said a North African naval communiqué. "There were neither Allied casualties nor damage."

Allied motor gunboats, it was disclosed, also made a thirty-mile round trip through the narrow strait of Messina between Sicily and Italy last Sunday night—"daring shore batteries' fire."

Germans Tell of Ferry

The German radio said today that a day and a night shuttle service using thirty-eight fast motor launches was ferrying Axis troops across the strait to reinforce Sicily.

The Allied gunboats, the communiqué said, sank two of three enemy E-boats engaged in their dash through the strait and reported to headquarters that "no enemy shipping was seen north of Messina."

A Reuters correspondent, with the British fleet said a force of cruisers shelled Crotone for five minutes, starting a number of fires.

The commodore was said to have signaled all his ships: "We can expect E-boats when we round the corner" of Taranto Gulf. "Crack them."

But no E-boats appeared, and only two shore batteries opened fire against the British.

"The Italian gunners' aim was bad, however, and no shells fell near our ships," said the correspondent. "No Axis warships or planes even were seen on the return journey and the whole force returned safely to base."

Crotone is on the southern end of the arch forming the Italian boot. Northward across a wide gulf lies the naval base of Taranto where it is believed half of the remaining Italian Fleet is anchored.

An eastern coastal railway winds through Taranto and down to Crotone. Although a circuitious one, this line has assumed more importance following the heavy air blows on railway yards at Rome and Naples on the western side of the Italian mainland—the more direct route for sending reinforcements to Sicily.

Allied Dominance Shown

The Allies teamed their warships and land planes for the invasion of Sicily, but this was the first time they had joined them in an assault on the mainland. Genoa, far up the western side of Italy, was bombarded Feb. 9, 1941, by warships aided by carrier-based planes. Since then British submarines often have shelled scattered points on the mainland.

London naval circles said that the Crotone bombardment furnished fresh evidence of the complete dominance of the Central Mediterranean by the Allies, and then were pleased by the increasing naval role in the effort to knock out Italy.

Should the Allies invade Italy the Navy undoubtedly would give powerful assistance just as it has done in Sicily.

There seemed to be little expectation here that the thrust at Crotone, insulting as it was to the holed-up Italian Navy, would bring the Fascist fleet into action. British naval men insist they would like nothing better than such a development, but seem generally resigned to the belief they will never have a chance to shoot it out with the Italians.

The Italian Navy has been reported reliably to be under two commands — half anchored at Spezia on the west coast at the top of the Ligurian Sea, and the other half at Taranto above Crotone. With the Allies dominating the intervening Messina Strait it appears almost impossible that the Italians can reunite these forces.

The effective fighting strength of the Italian fleet is estimated to number three battleships of the Littorio class, seven light cruisers and twenty-five destroyers. Competent sources here say that for the Italians to risk battle with the immense sea forces the Allies have mustered in the Mediterranean would be "virtual suicide."

Fires Started at Crotone on Gulf Of Taranto

JUL 23 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 22.—Reuters reported today from Allied headquarters in North Africa that the Royal Navy has bombarded the Italian mainland at Crotone in the Gulf of Taranto, on the sole of the Italian boot.

Crotone is about 95 miles south of the major naval base of Taranto.

(On some maps Crotone appears as Cotrone.)

Desmond Tighe, a Reuters correspondent with the Royal Navy in the Mediterranean, reported that cruisers hurled shells into the harbor area for five minutes early yesterday, causing a number of fires.

Battleships Possibly Involved.

It was possible, however, that some of Britain's newest and largest battleships participated. The Axis has reported the Nelson, Rodney, King George V and Queen Elizabeth in the Mediterranean. The King George V is of a type completed since the start of the war.

The warships suffered no damage in the raid, Mr. Tighe said.

The object of the shelling, which had been foreseen in informed quarters in London, apparently was to cut one of the routes by which the Axis might send reinforcements to the toe of the Italian boot for transshipment to Sicily.

This shipment involves a circuitous route down the eastern coastal railway, and may be used more intensively since the bombing of Rome.

Still Sending Reinforcements.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in a press conference yesterday in North Africa said the Germans were still sending reinforcements to Sicily.

The German radio added today that a day and night shuttle service ferrying Axis troops across Messina Straits was using 38 fast motor launches.

The bombardment of the Italian mainland was the first by Allied surface craft since the invasion of Sicily and the second of the war. The first naval bombardment of the mainland was at Genoa on February 9, 1941.

British submarines have shelled the mainland a number of times.

AXIS SOFT-PEDALS REVERSE IN SICILY

Claims Montgomery Is Halted Before Catania, but Passes Over Retreat in West

JUL 23 1943

SUPPLY PROBLEM IS CITED

Allied Guns Said to Lack Shells —Toll of Invaders' Shipping Off East Coast Reported

LONDON, July 22 (AP)—Axis propagandists claimed today that stiffening resistance was holding up the Allied drives on the Catania front in Sicily, but skipped quickly over the virtual collapse of the defenses on the western end of the island.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, German military commentator, in a broadcast recorded by the British Ministry of Information, asserted that the battle situation had remained unchanged in the twenty-four hours up to noon today.

"Renewed attempts by the British Eighth Army to force the crossing of rivers south of Catania with strong tank and infantry forces have failed," he said. "The enemy even failed to form a bridgehead on the northern banks of the rivers. The British on Wednesday suffered high losses in men and lost numerous prisoners and thirteen more tanks. The day ended for them in marked failure."

"Following his practice in the North African campaign," Captain Sertorius theorized, "Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery appears to be intending to create a strong artillery concentration to prepare his further attacks.

"This may be expected to encounter some difficulty and take a long time. The large quantities of ammunition required for it are by no means yet on this front, but first must be transported from Tunisia across the sea. It can be stated that stiffening German and Italian resistance has compelled Montgomery to mark time."

Meanwhile, DNB, German news agency, in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press, said the present "slackening" in the fighting presumably was only temporary, while the troops under General Montgomery and Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., the American commander, were regrouping and bringing up fresh forces.

"Beyond nine Anglo-American divisions landed in the first few days," DNB said, "another two must have landed in the meantime, so that now five British and six American divisions are on the island."

Earlier an Italian communiqué reported that the Allied forces attempted attacks with infantry and tanks in the central and eastern sectors, but added that "Axis troops were said to have inflicted considerable losses."

The Rome bulletin claimed seven Allied ships had been torpedoed off Syracuse, while a German communiqué claimed Nazi planes had sunk a 10,000-ton tanker and damaged five other ships and a cruiser at Augusta. The German claim added:

"German submarines audaciously entered the port of Syracuse and sank a troop transport of 12,000 tons."

The Italian communiqué said Allied aircraft raided Naples, Grosseto, ninety miles north of Rome, and Salerno, south of Naples.

LEE

Aboard a British Cruiser Off Sicily, July 21 (Delayed) (AP). A single British cruiser fired more than twenty-two tons of high explosives into the enemy's ranks in a single day of the hammer-and-tongs battle for Catania.

Officers said they regarded this as much more damaging than an equal tonnage of air bombs, as the fire was closely directed against "spot" targets and continued hour after hour. Thus the enemy was given no respite, compared to the brief duration of bombing raids.

today that his men now were "outblitzing" the military machine touted for lightning war.

Asked in an interview what he considered the outstanding factors responsible for the rapid advances made by his Army in the Sicilian campaign he replied without hesitation:

"Speed and mobility. The Boche were touted in 1939 and 1940 for moving fast, but I wouldn't be surprised if some historically-minded persons would find that in the last 10 days, considering the rough country and the fact that roads were almost impassable in some areas, we moved a lot faster than the Germans did."

In the 10 days to which Gen. Patton pointed, the enemy suffered 32,423 casualties, of which 25,851 were prisoners and 6572 were killed or wounded.

The Americans knocked out 84 Axis tanks, including 14 huge Mark VI Tigers, captured a least 248 artillery pieces, destroyed 160 aircraft and seized 446 vehicles, 400 tons of fuel stores and 10,500,000 rounds of small arms ammunition.

British Cruiser's Shells Blast Catania Main Railway Station

(From Yesterday's Late Editions.)

By PAUL KERN LEE,
Associated Press Foreign Correspondent.

ABOARD A BRITISH CRUISER SHELLING CATANIA, July 18 (Delayed).—This cruiser took the roof off the Catania main railway station this morning with six bulls-eye shots.

The target was cleverly selected as it was a point where the highway and the railroad intersect, and a route along which the Axis must move troops, either south as reinforcements or north in retreat.

Intermittent bombardments of such Axis key points and batteries continued throughout the day. Meanwhile fighting again was visible ashore as the 8th Army pushed into zone of Catania, only 3 miles from the city.

The Axis evidently was throwing a large force into the defense of the Catania area, as it is the best-defended city between Augusta and Messina.

Augusta Deserted.

Farther north, the rugged mountain country crowned by Mount Etna, was considered likely more formidable than any fixed defenses.

The conquest of Catanian airfields should give cover for an advance in that sector.

Today I went ashore at Augusta, Sicily, where I found that the more than 20,000 inhabitants who deserted the ancient city hurriedly, just before British forces entered, now are clamoring for permission to return and are begging for food.

They will be permitted to return as soon as the water system is repaired. Augusta presently is without water.

It was estimated that 2,000 persons received free meals yesterday but that 5,000 more had to go without food as the stocks simply were insufficient to feed such a multitude.

Fled Into Hills.

The population apparently fled into the hills in the moments before fleet and assault forces entered the town last week.

In numerous homes half-eaten meals remained on the tables and most household effects and clothing were left behind.

In one deserted harbor picket boat a dinner was cooking on the stove when a British motor gunboat crew boarded it.

Only four decrepit automobiles were found in the town, the others apparently having been used for the evacuation.

Numerous Augusta streets were blocked with debris from the bombardment, but the town quickly was being cleared by occupation forces.

Boats Immobilized.

Harbor boats had been immobilized by the removal of small vital engine parts. The harbormaster's boat had been scuttled but in water so shallow that British naval men were able to enter the cabin where they found the keys to the captain's safe lying on the table.

Surprisingly, no booby traps were found in the town, indicating the entry was so speedy that the usual elaborate Axis explosive devices could not be planted.

One strange fact discovered by investigating officers was the quantity of cocaine and heroin found in many personal kits left behind by Italian officers, and the finding of similar stocks in numerous homes. Apparently they were not intended for first aid or hospital use but for personal use.

Augusta now is a strange and picturesque collection of ancient hovels and fine modern Fascist-built structures set amid flowering

BRITISH PLAN FOR POST-WAR VOTE BATTLE

Struggle For Power Seen In Great Political Fence Building

Churchill Is Said To Be Stealing Much Of Labor's Thunder

This is the second and last of a series of dispatches on the political situation in Great Britain.

By E. C. DANIEL

(Associated Press Correspondent)

London, July 22 — Behind the battle scenes, the greatest struggle for power in twenty years has started in British politics.

The outcome will determine not only which parties and men will dictate the domestic reconstruction of Britain but the nature of its foreign comr itments as well. As in the United States, it is a struggle not only between parties but also within them.

Prime Minister Wi on Churchill's Conservative party, with 365 seats in the House of Commons, is the dominant party of the moment in Britain. The laborites hold 166 seats.

Principal Parties United

These two principal parties are united with the Liberal party in a wartime coalition Government, maintained by a political truce.

Under the truce the parties have agreed not to campaign for each other's seats, and thus have frozen representation in Parliament for the duration. No general election has been held since 1935. Nevertheless, there has been a one third turnover in the House of Commons membership as a result of deaths and resignations. It is in the elections for these vacancies that the truce operates.

At the moment, then, there is no direct competition between the major parties for control of Commons—which determines the personnel of the Government and which rules the country.

Conference In June

The Labor party conference in June, although voting seven to one to continue the coalition, gave notice that, if and when the truce is abrogated, it will go to the polls to fight for outright control, which it has not had since 1931, when Ramsay MacDonald formed its first national Government.

Meanwhile, the struggle for power is confined within the parties, and it will be on lines forged in this intra-party strife that the post-war battle for votes will be fought.

Outwardly, the Conservatives appear more united and confident than their competitors. They expect to run as the party which won the war and so deserves to frame the peace.

Cripps Removal Cited

The magazine New Statesman and Nation, which detected "a symptom of renascent Toryism" in the removal last fall of the reformer, Sir Stafford Cripps, from the war cabinet, has declared that conservative obstructionism could be shattered only by Churchill or the Labor party. Its obvious hope was that Labor would strike the blow.

Four months later the New Statesman virtually acknowledged that Churchill had got in the first lick with his four-year plan for transition from war and international collaboration to maintain the peace.

"His tone," said the weekly, "was that of Mr. Morrison" (Herbert Morrison, the Labor party's chief spokesman on post-war reform).

Diagnosis Reinforced

Three months later this diagnosis was strongly reinforced by comparison of the Labor program with Churchill's.

Except for Labor's demands for additional socialization of primary resources, they are remarkably similar. Churchill has employed the tried and true Tory tactic of taking over and toning down socialist ideas. The Torries' intention, said Harold J. Laski, Labor's leading philosopher, was to use Churchill to destroy liberalism.

"A few die-hard Tories find Mr. Churchill's proposals too revolutionary for them," the New Statesman reported. "Labor feels itself trapped."

There had already started what the economist called "a battle for the soul of the Labor party."

Nearly all the Left-Wing British politicians, wishfully thinking or otherwise, were finding a Leftist trend in public thought. With victory at least in prospect they had observed the minds of soldiers and workers turning from the issues of war to the personal problems of peace—jobs, homes, security. They fear the Labor party is not capable of winning the confidence and votes of these people.

Their criticisms include these:

The party is dominated by the elderly leaders of trade unions which make up the bulk of its membership. They make scanty appeal to millions of new voters who will go to the polls in 1945—particularly in contrast to the hundreds of young officers the conservatives are reported to have lined up as candidates.

Party Handicapped

The party has been handicapped by the electoral truce, which restricted its campaigning, and has lost some of its seats to Independents.

The leadership has seemed to lack ambition, vigor and consciousness of Labor destiny. It has operated in the realm of ideas while the Conservatives have appealed to personal interests—such as the desire of businessmen to shake off the heavy hand of bureaucracy.

Various remedies have been proposed. Morrison has a positive program by which he hopes to broaden the appeal of the party beyond that of a mere pressure group for the labor unions.

Founder Of New Party

Outsider Sir Richard Acland, founder of the new Common Wealth party, asserted that labor intended to make a "compromise with capitalism in which the powers of the big unions will be balanced against the power of big business."

Another outsider, Harry Pollitt, secretary of the British Communist party, has proposed the union of nearly all labor by urging affiliation of the Communist party with the Labor party.

Nazis Reported Yielding Idea of Europe as Fort

TOM HAWKINS

Swiss Hear of Plan to Build 'Reduit' in Continent's Heart for a Last Stand

BERN, Switzerland, July 22 (AP).—Nazi dispatches reaching Switzerland today asserted that Germany is retreating from her "European fortress" theory to the idea of basic, final defense deep within the Continent.

Increasingly, since the Allies cracked Sicily, the Nazi press has been referring to the "reduit national" to be held to the last, with the curernt coastal fortifications considered only as outer bastions. (A "reduit" is a small inner fortification, usually at the core of a larger fortress.)

The strategy, as discussed in Nazi publications, takes into consideration the possible loss of Italy, southern Greece and France's Atlantic coastline, leaving Germany in a position to make a stand within her own borders and in the industrially desirable parts of central Europe.

Allied military observers here warn against any optimistic deduction that the Nazis intend a quick, easily forced withdrawal. They say the bitterest fighting must be anticipated, and that the Nazis will let all Europe become a shambles before ending the battle.

Discussing the "reduit national" idea, the Swiss weekly publication "Weltwoche" said: "The bulk of the German troops, especially stationary weapons, are ready to take up an inner line."

Nazi press dispatches indicate that the ultimate "reduit" will concern only Hungary, Rumania, Denmark and Germany, leaving the rest as a sort of no-man's-land.

Published Allied reconnaissance reports corroborate that work on the Atlantic Wall has been virtually discontinued. Sharply cut Nazi cement production figures are another indication of this.

"Weltwoche" said most of the Todt labor battalions have been moved from the Channel to work on new fortifications in the Magi-not-Westwall area. Work is similarly being carried on in the east, and in the Black Sea and Danube areas by Bulgaria and Rumania. The publication described concentrations of important industries within the "reduit," and the hasty construction of food and munition depots for "the long wind which will be needed in the war of attrition."

Elmer Davis Reaches London To Visit OWI Branch Office

JUL 23 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 22.—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, who arrived today to visit the OWI's branch office here, hinted that the propaganda line for the next stage of the Allied offensive already was well in mind, but refused to give details.

He mentioned the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration to the Italians to surrender honorably or suffer the consequences as "an example of what is being done" toward a joint American-British propaganda program.

The OWI director said he intended to confer with Brendan Bracken, British minister of information, and other British as well as American officials. He said he might go on to Africa before returning to the United States.

Commenting on British press reports that his London visit was for the purpose of working out a joint American-British propaganda program to pave the way for the impending invasion of Europe, Mr. Davis said:

"There's nothing to it. We already have been working closely on all phases of propaganda."

An NBC reporter broadcasting from Reykjavik last night said Mr. Davis had stopped over in Iceland Tuesday while en route to Britain.

Because certain things done socially by the Nazi regime gave satisfaction, and because the German mind has the spirit of submission to Nazi discipline.

Denies Political Mission.

Gen. Giraud emphasized that there was no political mission to his trip which took him from Algiers to the United States and Canada before coming here.

"Only inside France can the future of France be determined, and we on the outside can only do our duty to liberate our country," he said.

There was an undertone of hostility in some of the questions asked the general and his eyes flashed when he was asked whether materials sent from America would be given to "De Gaulle's or Giraud's army." Gen. Charles de Gaulle is co-chairman of the French committee with Gen. Giraud.

Only One French Army.

"There is no Giraud or De Gaulle army," he answered. "There is only one army—the French Army."

In response to a question about remarks made in Montreal that he had read an American newspaper saying he was "pro-Nazi," the general said:

"I hope you all are as pro-Nazi as I am." He pointed out that one of his daughters and her children are being held in Berlin because he is fighting the Axis.

Giraud Is 'Certain' Nazis Will Be Beaten With French Help

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 22.—Gen. Henri Giraud, co-chairman of the French Committee of National Liberation, declared at his first press conference here today his "absolute certainty" that the Nazis would be beaten by the Allies, with the united French Army contributing to the liberation of France.

He warned, however, that a breakdown in German morale could not be expected soon, for two reasons:

Churchill Attends Portrait Unveiling

London, July 22 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told members of the National Liberal Club today that "in days to come, and even at the present time, much more exact definitions have to be established about the rights of the individual and the relation of the individual to the great framework of the state."

Churchill attended the unveiling of a portrait of himself, which was damaged in an air raid two years ago and restored. He expressed his gratitude for the compliment of "seeing unveiled a portrait which has survived alike the viscissitudes of politics and the violence of the enemy."

"There will be great tasks of rebuilding to do," he said in discussing the post-war period. "None has a right to abstain except on grounds of intellectual or moral scruple from the task of rebuilding or to content himself with a purely critical attitude taking the form of throwing brickbats at toiling workers."

U. S. Editors Attend Off-The-Record Meeting

London, July 22 (AP)—A group of American editors today attended an off the-record press conference held by Minister of Information Brendan Bracken.

They included L. C. Winship, of the Boston Globe; Oliver S. Keller, of the Fittsburgh Post-Gazette; Ralph McGill, of the Atlanta Constitution; Paul Patterson, of the Baltimore Sunpapers; Ted Weeks, of the Atlantic Monthly; Paul Wooton of the McGraw-Hill publications and Washington correspondent of the New Orleans Times Picayune, and Herbert Plambeck, a farm editor of Des Moines.

London, July 22 (AP)—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson returned to London today for conferences with high American and British officials after a day afield with American troops.

British Take 3 Norwegian Ships

London, July 22 (AP)—The Admiralty announced today that three Norwegian fishing vessels found in prohibited areas of the North Sea had been intercepted and brought into English ports with their crews.

British Vote a Big War Credit

LONDON, July 22 (AP)—The House of Commons voted today a supplementary credit of £1,000,000,000 which Sir. Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said should cover expenditures until early November. Great Britain's total war expenditure has reached £17,000,000,000, and since April the nation has been pouring £13,500,000 a day into the war effort. This was the eighteenth vote of credit of the war.

Allies to Repeat Rome Bombing If Need Is Seen

Requirements of War and Not World Reaction Rule Air Policy, London Says

LONDON, July 22 (AP).—The bombing of military targets in Rome will be repeated if and when military necessity dictates and regardless of the world reaction, it was emphasized here today by a well qualified source which could not be further identified.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower's decision to carry out the initial raid on the Italian capital was made with the full collaboration of the British government and British military leaders, this source declared, pointing out that American bombers were used because they were best suited for daylight precision bombing.

If General Eisenhower decides it is necessary to bomb Rome's railroad yards again, they will be bombed, it was said emphatically.

No Comment at White House

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—No comment was available at the White House today on Pope Pius XII's letter lamenting the bombing of Rome. Asked for comment at a press conference, Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early responded: "I have nothing to say."

De Valera Expresses Sympathy

DUBLIN, July 22 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera has sent a message of sympathy to Pope Pius XII on the bombing of Rome, it was announced today.

Italians Report Raid On Rome Airdrome By British Aircraft

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 22.—The Italian communique recorded by the Associated Press reported that a British twin-engined plane attempted to machine-gun an airdrome in Rome this morning and said casualties from Monday's American raid on the capital were 717 killed and 1,599 injured.

The communique said the invader was shot down by a German plane.

The bulletin said Allied aircraft raided Naples, Crosseto, 90 miles north of Rome, and Salerno, south of Naples, and Cagliari, in Sardinia.

Swiss Press Recognizes Need For Rome Attack

Bern, July 22 (AP)—The neutral Swiss press expressed sorrow today at the civilian casualties and reported wreckage of church property caused by the bombing of Rome but said it recognized the military necessity for the attack which the Berner Tagwacht said the Allies had delayed "three long years."

"Much as we regret the destruction of a beautiful church, we cannot possibly feel so sorry as when we learned that stukas had machine-gunned English children playing in front of a schoolhouse," the newspaper said.

STOCKHOLM, July 22 (AP)—Tw Swedish merchant ships were sun recently, it was announced toda

Nazis Modify Mobilization Order

BERNE, Switzerland, July 22 (AP)—Abandonment of part of the German Government's plan for total mobilization, which closed thousands of retail shops throughout the country, was disclosed in dispatches from Berlin today. The decree had created a middle-class economic revolution, reports here indicated, which forced the Ministry of Economics to modify the order.

Barcelona Dean Sends Condolences to Pope

BARCELONA, July 22 (AP).—The following message was sent yesterday to Pope Pius XII by the acting dean of the University of Barcelona:

"The dean and professors of the University of Barcelona, as fervent Catholics, send the Holy Father their sincere condolences for the victims and the religious and artistic destruction in the bombardment of the Eternal City."

Deep Gloom Reported In Dodecanese Islands

Izmir, Turkey, July 21 (Delayed, AP)—Refugees from the Dodecanese Islands reported today that recent Allied successes in the Mediterranean war have caused deep pessimism and gloom in the Italian garrisons on those Aegean Islands.

The refugees, who spent almost twenty days in rowboats in which they escaped from Samos and Ikaria, said that when the aerial bombardment of the Italian mainland began Italians on the islands were ready to admit that Italy had lost the war.

They said there were approximately 14,000 Italians on Samos and less than 300 on Ikaria along with a scattering of German marines.

Foe's Bases In Chinese Area Are Bombed By U. S. Flyers

Planes Score Hits On Floating Dry Dock And Cement Plant In Three-Day Offensive

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, July 22—Strategic Japanese bases in China and near Haipong and Hongay in French Indo-China were attacked in a three-day offensive by planes of the United States Fourteenth Air Force, a United States communique announced today.

Tengchung, in Yunnan province, used by the Japanese as an advance base on the Salween front, also was pounded. Warhawks dive-bombing and causing extensive damage to a Japanese supply depot and warehouses, it was reported.

In the French Indo-China sweeps, direct hits were scored on a floating dry dock and a cement plant. Warehouse areas and a large concentration of freight barges also were bombed.

Warhawks went after transportation facilities in the Hankow area on July 20, exploding the boilers of three large river tugs, wrecking two water towers and destroying three locomotives.

Bombers of the United States Tenth Air Force dropped twelve tons of bombs on Japanese-operated lead and zinc mines near Lashio, in Burma, yesterday and Tuesday, a United States communique issued in New Delhi said today.

[Mitchells raided a concentration of river boats near Katha, destroying one and damaging two others with direct hits. Near misses crippled others, pilots reported. Troop and supply bases in northern Burma were hammered by Warhawks, which also wrecked the approaches to the railroad bridge at Namti. These operations were carried out without the loss of a single American plane.]

All American planes also returned safely from the Chinese operations.

Americans Smash at Foe's Lead and Zinc Supplies—British Harry Railways

CHUNGKING, China, July 22 (AP)—In three days of offensive action, the United States Fourteenth Air Force attacked targets in the vicinity of Haiphong and Hongay, French Indo-China, made a sweep in the Hankow area of central China and bombed a Japanese advance base at Tengyueh, Yunnan Province, a United States communiqué announced today.

In the attacks on French Indo-China, the war bulletin said, the Americans scored direct hits on a floating dock and "with good results" bombed a cement plant at Haiphong.

All aircraft engaged in the missions returned safely.

On July 20, the communiqué said, American P-40 fighters made a sweep in the Hankow area in which they exploded the boilers of three large river tugs, demolished two water towers and destroyed three locomotives.

Another flight of P-40s was reported to have dive-bombed a Japanese supply depot and warehouses at Tengyueh on the Salween front, causing extensive damage.

Lead, Zinc Mines Strafed

NEW DELHI, India, July 22 (AP)—Japanese-operated lead and zinc mines, railroad bridges, troop concentrations and supply concentrations in Burma were blasted yesterday and Tuesday by American heavy bombers and fighters, a United States communiqué said today.

Bombers of the Tenth Air Force dropped twelve tons of high explosive bombs on mines near Lashio, in an attempt to destroy production of lead, zinc and silver, of which the Japanese are greatly in need. Separation plants were damaged and railroad and housing installations were reported hit.

A large formation of B-25s ripped a concentration of Japanese river boats near Katha, destroying one and damaging two others with direct hits. Near-misses crippled others, pilots believed.

Troop and supply bases in northern Burma were strafed by P-40s on both Tuesday and yesterday. Approaches of the railroad bridge at Namti were wrecked.

The operations were carried out without the loss of a single American plane.

British Blast Locomotives

Meeting practically no opposition, British bombers continued their sweep against Japanese rail and troop positions in Burma yesterday, shooting up locomotives, trucks, water tanks and supply sampans, a British communiqué said today.

Beaufighters in an offensive patrol along the railway in central Burma damaged seven locomotives, about seventy-five trucks and five water tanks. Pilots said an oil tank near Alon which they bombed on July 19 was still burning.

In the Arakan area Blenheim bombers strafed two Japanese-occupied villages while Hurricanes blasted enemy troop positions. Last night Liberators and Wellingtons bombed railway targets at Sebaw and Sagaing, near Mandalay, and at Taungup and Akyab. One British fighter plane was missing.

British troops on patrol activity a few days ago met a numerically superior Japanese force three miles east of Maungdaw and gave it a decisive beating, the communiqué said. One Japanese officer and twenty men were known to have been killed, with at least forty others either killed or wounded. British casualties were very light, the communiqué added.

ALLIED PLANES STRIKE IN JAVA

Soerabaja Base Bombed By Liberators In 2,400-Mile Round Trip

JUL 23 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Friday, July 23—Allied heavy bombers, again extending the range of their operations, have made a successful surprise raid on Soerabaja, the Japanese main base in the Netherlands East Indies.

It was the first time bombs had dropped on this capital of East Java province since the Japanese seized the former Dutch naval base early in 1942.

2,400-Mile Round Trip

The attack involved a round-trip flight of nearly 2,400 miles—some 400 miles more than the previous record, an attack on Macassar, Celebes, for bombers operating in the Southwest Pacific.

"Our heavy bombers carried out a successful surprise raid on the enemy's main base in the Netherlands East Indies, 1,000 miles from Australia," the communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said.

"Direct hits with 500-pound bombs and incendiaries were scored on an oil refinery, resulting in five large fires; a dock and nearby warehouses and railway installations were heavily hit with high explosives and incendiaries.

Fires Visible 140 Miles

"Raging fires were reported by the combat crews as being visible 140 miles."

The raiders apparently took the Japanese completely by surprise. The city was brightly lighted and there was great activity around the docks when the Liberators roared in upon the target area shortly before dawn Thursday.

Japanese ground batteries quickly got into action, however, and threw up an intensive but ineffective anti-aircraft barrage. Their fire had noticeably slackened, however, by the time the Liberators had completed their job.

The unexpected and spectacular assault, from which all our planes returned, overshadowed an intensive raid on the Munda area.

250 Sorties Against Munda

Medium and dive bombers and fighters, the communique said, flew 250 sorties against that key Japanese defense position in the central Solomons. One hundred and thirty-five tons of bombs—two tons more than were dropped on Munda Wednesday—were scattered in the area in operations which were described as in direct support of ground troops. Enemy positions also were machine-gunned from the air.

There was no report on the ground situation at Munda.

[A spokesman at the South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., said yesterday that United States troops were within a few thousand yards of Munda airfield and that its capture "now is in reach." He declared most of the enemy's artillery had been knocked out and that the Japanese were contained within the defenses ringing the airfield. He was unwilling to say, however, when the final break-through and capture could be made.]

Skirmishes On New Guinea

Fierce skirmishes flared among patrols and other forward elements near Namling in the Komiatum sector of New Guinea. The enemy was repulsed with heavy losses, the communique said.

Medium and heavy bombers, operating in support of our ground forces at Komiatum, bombed and machine-gunned Japanese positions and bivouac areas from "minimum altitude." They dropped ninety-three tons of bombs and the target area was covered with bomb bursts, explosions, smoke and fire.

Three unidentified enemy warships were bombed by formations of Flying Fortresses and Liberators in Bougainville strait, between Bougainville and Choiseul islands. Results were not observed.

A small force of Corsair fighters challenged and dispersed a formation of fifteen Zeros and an unreported number of Japanese dive bombers over Rendova Island, just south of the Munda air base. One Corsair was missing after the fight which cost the Japanese two planes. The enemy bombs caused few casualties and minor damage.

Allied Bombers Fly 2400 Miles, Hit Java Port

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Friday, July 23 (AP)—Four-engined Liberator bombers have bombed Soerabaja, Java, a communique from Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters said today.

Soerabaja is a former Dutch naval base. It was captured by the Japanese early in 1942.

The raiding bombers made a round trip of 2400 miles to attack the great seaport. Their bombs started fires which were visible 140 miles away.

It was the first time bombs had dropped on this capital of East Java Province since the Japanese seized the former Dutch naval base early in 1942. The round-trip flight was some 400 miles more than the previous record, an attack on Macassar, Celebes, for bombers operating in the Southwest Pacific.

At the other end of the long Southwest Pacific battle front heavy bombers attacked three enemy warships near Buin at the southern tip of Bougainville Island in the Northern Solomons. Results were not observed.

Another raid on Munda, still heavier than the one of yesterday, also was reported in today's communique. One hundred thirty-five tons of bombs were dropped near the airbase.

In New Guinea Japanese counterattacks near Komiatun, 7 miles inland from Salamaua, were repulsed with heavy losses.

Allied fighters intercepted a superior force of enemy planes over Rendova Island, near New Georgia, and shot down two of them.

Surprise Raid

The communique described the attack on Soerabajo as a "successful surprise raid on the enemy's main base in the Netherlands East Indies."

"Direct hits with 500-pound bombs and incendiaries were scored on an oil refinery, resulting in five large fires," the war bulletin said.

"A dock and nearby warehouses and railway installations were heavily hit with high explosives and incendiaries.

"Raging fires were reported by the combat crews as being visible 140 miles.

"Our planes flew nearly 2400 miles in the operation. All returned."

Three houndred miles north of Darwin, Australia, medium bombers started a number of fires in enemy-held villages on Selaru Island, while a long-range reconnaissance plane shot down two of four intercepting Japanese fighters over Celebes.

Supply Base for Munda Battered in Big Attack

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 22 (AP).—American bombers yesterday shattered Japanese positions at Bairoko harbor, above Munda on the north shore of New Guinea Island, in the heaviest air attack ever made in the Southwest Pacific.

More than 150 Avenger torpedo bombers and Dountless divers, operating under a strong fighter cover, pounded the area in a daylong series of raids. SPENCER

"One hundred thirty-three tons of bombs were dropped and the area was extensively strafed," the daily report from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said. "It was the heaviest air attack that has been executed by the Allied forces in the Southwest Pacific area."

A spokesman added that it also surpassed anything the Japanese ever had done.

The communique said the raid was made "in support of our ground forces." This might indicate American troops were advancing from Enogai Inlet, 2 miles northeast, where last week they destroyed the entire Japanese garrison.

Supply Base for Munda.

Bairoko is the supply base for Munda, key Japanese defense point in the central Solomons, but Allied forces blocked traffic between the two points last week.

Only one sentence was used in reporting the ground action at Munda:

"Enemy ground forces launched a strong counterattack and were repulsed with heavy losses."

Over Madang, New Guinea, twin-engined Lightnings won a smashing victory against a much greater Japanese force. The battle took place during an intensive, low-altitude attack by our bombers.

"Enemy planes in force were engaged by our fighter escort," the communique said. "They were defeated and dispersed, 19 being shot down and destroyed and 11 probably were destroyed. Two Allied planes were lost but one pilot is safe."

Fighting Among Patrols.

Sharp fighting continued among advanced patrols in the Komiatum district 7 miles inland from Salamaua. Japanese forces launched nine counterattacks against Mount Tambu, which Australian jungle fighters captured several days ago. The enemy was hurled back in every attempt and left at least 282 dead on the slopes of the hill.

A delayed dispatch from the 5th Air Force told of heavy bomber attacks last Tuesday on bridges spanning the Gum, Gogol and Gori Rivers in the Madang area. The Gogol Bridge, an important link in the Madang-Lae supply route, was destroyed. One Liberator, intercepted by nine Zeros, was lost after it had shot down two and probably three of its attackers.

Other Allied bombers yesterday attacked Penfoei airdrome on Timor; started fires in Rabaul, New Britain; bombed the Cape Gloucester, New Britain, and the Finschhafen, New Guinea, airdrome areas; bombed and strafed enemy barges and the jetty area at Lae, causing explosions along the water front, and set fire to two Japanese oil barges at Vella Lavella Island.

Nine Japanese bombers raided Bulolo, New Guinea, but no damage was reported.

Munda Closely Invested

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, July 22 (AP)—United States ground troops are within a "few thousand yards" of Munda airfield, which "now is in reach of capture," a spokesman for Admiral William F. Halsey Jr. announced today.

The beleaguered Japanese, clinging tenaciously to the key New Georgia Island position, are situated behind strong defensive positions ringing the field, but the Americans are making "very satisfactory progress," the spokesman said.

The majority of the enemy's artillery has been knocked out and the Japanese are fighting chiefly with mortars, machine guns and small weapons. The spokesman said there was no sign that the enemy could break through our ground, sea and air blockade of Munda and that no important Japanese forces had got through to relieve or reinforce the base.

New Guinea Air Action Described

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, July 22 (AP)—Fifth United States Army Air Force Lightning fighter planes destroyed or damaged at least thirty Japanese fighters, including several Messerschmitts, in a blazing aerial action over northeastern New Guinea today. Two of our planes were lost. MAUG LAND

The Lightnings were covering a bombing and strafing attack by twin-engined Mitchell bombers in the Madang sector, 150 miles northwest of Salamaua. The American fighters not only drove off the enemy force before it could challenge the Allied bombers, but also forced the Japanese planes to jettison their bombs over their own territory. The enemy fighters, which carried a bomb on each wing, dropped these explosives and their belly tanks indiscriminately, possibly upon their own troops.

The Japanese shot down one P-38, then strafed the parachuting pilot. Another Lightning is missing. [A communiqué yesterday from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that one of the pilots was saved.]

Five Japanese twin-engined fighters believed to be Messerschmitt 109s and twelve Zeros definitely were destroyed. Two Messerschmitts and nine Zeros probably were destroyed; one Me 109 and two Zeros were damaged.

The Mitchells' attack on the Madang region set a new record for weight of explosives carried by medium bombers against this target. The raid started a number of fires in the area from Bogadjim, a coastal village twenty miles south of Madang, into the adjoining Yaula Valley.

CRUISER BLOWN TO PIECES

'Brother, Bombers Have Guts,' Says Fighter Pilot, Calling Scene Most Terrible

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Correspondent

GUADALCANAL, July 17 (Delayed)—Nine Japanese ships, including a light cruiser and three destroyers, were blasted and sunk off Kahili today in a raid by 192 United States planes smashing at the key Japanese base in the Solomon Islands with the heaviest air stroke yet delivered in this area.

[A communiqué issued the day after the raid and stories from South Pacific headquarters listed only seven ships sunk and an eighth probably beached.]

The United States air command in the Solomons reported that forty-nine Japanese fighter planes were shot down in futile attempts at interception and that our losses were only five planes—three fighters, a dive bomber and a torpedo plane.

Enthusiastic and excited pilots returning from the attack said the enemy's anchorage at Jakohina Mission, midway between Buin and Kahili on southern Bougainville Island, was filled with flaming, smoking wrecks. In addition to the warships destroyed, three small cargo vessels and two tankers were sent to the bottom.

Cruiser Blown Apart

The light cruiser was blown apart by a direct hit amidships. One of the tankers also was shattered down to the stern by direct hits and resultant explosions.

"If we could give the Japanese the business like this every day he'd soon have his fingernails bitten off to his elbow," the air headquarters spokesman said.

Fellow pilots in a Navy Avenger torpedo plane squadron gave Lieut. William Rowbotham of Long Beach, Calif., credit for the direct hit that blew up the light cruiser. Lieutenant Rowbotham said both he and Lieut. (j.g.) Lewis Sanders of Gordon, Neb., put their heavy bombs into the ship.

"I saw fire and smoke shoot up 2,000 feet," Lieutenant Sanders said. "It was white smoke. That is an ammunition explosion."

The shrewdly planned Kahili attack actually started last night at 9 P. M. From then until 5:30 A. M. today a parade of Army and Navy Liberators and Flying Fortresses one by one unloaded their bombs on Kahili airfield.

"We wanted the Japanese to lose their sleep so they wouldn't feel like going to work this morning," commented an air headquarters officer.

Praises Navy Corsair Plane

Lieut. (jg) Howard Paine, 24, San Francisco torpedo plane pilot, reported he saw very little anti-aircraft fire, "but you can say the F4U [the Navy Corsair] is the best damned fighter plane in the world. One took two Zeros off my tail."

Torpedo plane pilots said Lieut. (jg) Melvin Tegge, 23, of Schwertner, Tex., got a direct hit amidships on a destroyer.

"That big bomb just pushed the sides of the ship—it was a lucky hit," he drawled.

Lieut. (jg) Jack Shong, 25, of Alma, Mich., reported his bomb and two others all hit on the bow of one destroyer.

"The bow was lifted in the water and a geyser covered the whole deck," he said.

Bomber gunners shot down three Zeros. Fighters destroyed forty-one Zeros and five float biplanes. Marine Corsairs accounted for thirty-six, Navy Wildcats for five and Army Lightnings for five.

The Corsair squadron commanded by Maj. Gregory Weissenberger of La Crosse, Wis., bagged eleven Zeros. Lieut. Luther Morgan of Arlington, Tex., and Lieut. Edward O. Shaw of Spokane, Wash., got three each.

Major Weissenberger explained the flight that he led did not get many shots because they stayed close, covering the last group of bombers over the target.

"There was smoke and flame all over," he said. "I never saw anything so terrible.

"I saw a tanker hit. The explosion ripped that thing from stem to stern. In two minutes there wasn't anything there.

"Those bomber boys always say we fighters are great stuff, protecting them. Brother, they've got guts. With Zeros all around them, they go right down to the target without swerving. When we fighters get into trouble, we can run; they can't."

The Japanese retaliated tonight with a few nuisance bombers over Guadalcanal.

Mount Etna Foothills Hide Nazi Guns Firing On Catania Battlefield

By NED RUSSELL,
Representing the Combined American Press.
(Distributed by the Associated Press.)

WITH THE BRITISH 8th ARMY ON THE CATANIA PLAIN, July 20 (Delayed).—The battle for the Catania Plain rose to a new pitch of fury today.

Sweating, battle-weary troops of Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's spearhead were slowly and relentlessly wearing down the tough German defenders.

The British held the bridgeheads on the northern side of the vital Simeto River slashing across the middle of the plain in a crazy, zigzag line. Thus they occupy over half the plain, including a couple of landing grounds.

However, the whole plain still is a battlefield for infantry, artillery and tanks—not a base for the Allied air force—because German guns concealed in the rocky, sloping foothills of Mount Etna to the north are pounding British positions steadily.

Battle for Bridges.

The fierce, ceaseless struggle for the northern half of the plain became a battle for bridges and river crossings.

Gen. Montgomery has a numerical superiority of men, guns, tanks and transport over a half-dozen German parachute battalions which are fighting savagely for every yard of ground.

Four British crossings of the river were made from a single bridgehead, a 420-foot-long steel girder bridge on the coastal road. It is a big, secure bridgehead for the most part, but the whole of it is under fire.

I toured the battlefield today with its sickening odor from the corpses of men, horses and donkeys and the swirling dust and smoke of flashing guns and bursting shells.

The battlefield, for the most part, is as flat as a table top, with creeks, rivers and canals intersecting it and forming hazards for infantry. The big fields of yellow grain and tall grass make excellent hiding places for German infantry as the British overrun their positions. After each skirmish there are intricate mopping-up operations as the British beat through the grass, routing out snipers who are holding out to the last.

Trees Hide Nazi Guns.

Besides the grain and grass there are driedup creeks and river beds which also are excellent hiding places. There are tiny clusters of half a dozen to a dozen tall, thick, green trees wherein the Germans conceal their forward guns and mortars. They are hard to get at because the approaches are flat and open and the British are compelled to watch them and pound them with their own artillery.

The battle here is raging so violently night and day that there has been little time to bury the dead. The bodies, mostly of Germans, lie torn and bloody in the grotesque positions of last agonizing pain. In daylight it is too dangerous for the troops to stand up to dig graves and in night time the infantry is too busy fighting in close-quarter struggles.

The searing heat of the sun beating down on the battlefield is intensified by the stench of death. I drove over the last crest and headed down a coastal road into the plain. The stench seemed to rise along the slope, engulfing the whole plain from the southern ridge, probably to the northern rim.

Navy Joins in Battle.

I saw the British Navy join in the battle, too. Lying offshore, warships with white ensigns waving in the light breeze suddenly unleashed a series of salvos on Germon gun positions in the northern hills. The guns flashed spectacularly. Smoke billowed from the gun muzzles as the ships rolled gently under the impact in the glistening, smooth Mediterranean. After a few salvoes, the ships hoisted a colorful display of flags and steamed proudly away.

Gen. Montgomery's slow, persistent offensive across the plain is continuing.

The Axis apparently feared that the Allied landing might strike the steep sandy beaches near the coastal road and the whole area north of the bridge with all sorts of guns. Although they originally established positions for meeting the assault from the sea the Germans only had to turn them from east to south—90 degrees—to face the threat from the biggest sector of the British bridgehead.

Trobriand Islanders Temper Friendliness With Reservations

By VERN HAUGLAND,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

KIRIWINA, Trobriand Islands, July 8 (Delayed).—The 8,000 or so kinky-haired inhabitants of the Trobriands have been sizing up their uninvited American guests, by whom they virtually are outnumbered, and have decided to accept them as friends—with reservations.

At least, they're thankful they haven't had to flee their villages as they did when warrior tribes staged invasions among the South Sea Islands many years ago.

Their attitude was explained by Lt. Ernest Whitehouse, Australian administrator of the islands since 1919, who said the natives were thankful the Americans were gentle despite their power.

And as for such strange machines as the jeep, the telephone and the radio—which they were seeing and hearing for the first time:

"The white man is an entirely foreign being to the native; therefore, nothing that the white man does surprises him," Lt. Whitehouse said. "He merely accepts the new things without wondering about them."

Concerned Over Trees.

But on the other side of the ledger, more than one chieftain has become upset over destruction by the Americans of his coconut trees or, even more serious, his betel nut trees—the most prized possession of all.

The chieftains have pursed their lips and nodded a bit dubiously when Lt. Whitehouse explained to them that "some of the trees must be cut down to make way for roads and gun positions; the Americans will be careful not to destroy more than they have to."

The betel nut, which the natives chew more habitually than Americans chew gum, is mildly narcotic if used in moderation, stupefying if used to excess. The nut turns the teeth red, then permanently black. But the natives seldom suffer tooth decay and the purgative effect probably prevents harboring of worms or parasites, so Lt. Whitehouse, a physician himself, approves of it.

Torbriand society is matrilineal—folk lore has it that mankind descended from a lone woman who appeared after prolonged rains and flood. The natives are promiscuous until marriage—they see no connection between physical contact and child birth and while usually monogamous after marriage, find nothing strange in the birth of a child to a woman whose husband has been absent for a year or two.

Despot Chiefs Curbed.

Lt. Whitehouse said that before the white administration arrived chieftains ruled despotically, owning all the wealth.

"Commoners—the average native—had only one meal a day. Most of the food went to the chiefs. We managed to put a stop to that. The natives were put to work building roads and planting coconuts along them. With three meals a day, they quickly improved physically and have splendid bodies today."

The roads became grassy lanes due to lack of traffic, however, and when American engineers arrived new surfaces had to be placed to combat mud and heavy rains when the lanes were put in use.

American troops arrived in the Torbriands early in July at the height of the harvest season. The arrival halted the natives' harvest festivals, although yams already were piled high in fields and bins, but it didn't halt their singing.

Many an American was startled to hear them chant songs, taught in mission schools, such as "Clementine" and the "Bells of St. Mary's," or to hear a dark-skinned maiden humming Brahm's "Lullaby" as she pounded wet clothing against a rock in doing her laundry.

Work for Americans Readily.

Mission-trained women and girls wear cloth skirts, and the married women cover their breasts. Other women and girls wear only grass skirts. Men and boys wear skimpy loincloths of betel nut bark. Tots wear nothing.

From the beginning the natives were friendly, bring bananas or papaya to their white visitors. The natives readily worked for Americans, carrying supplies, building huts and improving roads—but it took considerable explaining to get them to help rescue Allied airmen forced down in this area.

"They have a very strong belief," Lt. Whitehouse explained, "that evil spirits fly through the air, and they were afraid to have anything to do with a monster that flies."

CRASH KILLS U. S. GENERAL, TRACK STAR

Upshur, Chief Of Marines In Pacific; Charles Paddock Victims

JUL 23 1943

Plane Fell Near Sitka, Alaska—Four Others Lost; No Survivors

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 22—The fiery crash of a naval plane near Sitka, Alaska, has claimed the lives of Maj. Gen. William P. Upshur, veteran hero of the marines, and Capt. Charles Paddock, Olympic track star of the twenties who once was acclaimed as the "world's fastest human."

The Navy Department reported late today that Upshur and Paddock and four other persons were killed when the plane crashed and burned yesterday. There were no survivors, and the navy said that "the cause of the accident has not yet been determined."

The names of the planes' four other occupants were not disclosed, pending notification of next of kin. The navy said that the bodies of all passengers and members of the crew have been recovered.

Held Medal Of Honor

Upshur, commanding general of the marines for the department of the Pacific and a seasoned campaigner who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for service in Haiti in 1915, had been in charge of supplying personnel in marine units in the Pacific theater since early last year.

Paddock, 42, had joined the Marine Corps as an officer July 10, 1942, and had been on General Upshur's staff since that time, serving both as an aide and as departmental morale officer at the Pacific department headquarters. He also was public relations officer for the department until last March.

As a track star in the early twenties, he established ninety-four records, captured the 100-meter Olympic championship in 1920, and held various national championships for the 100 and 200-meter distances in the period between 1920 and 1929.

Newspaper Executive

In private life, Paddock served as general manager of the Pasadena Star News and Post and business manager of the Long Beach Press Telegram, and contributed to national magazines. A lieutenant in the field artillery in 1918-19, he is survived by his widow and two children.

General Upshur, a native of Richmond, Va., and a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, entered the Marine Corps in 1904 as a second lieutenant and, upon his death, was the senior major general in the corps, under only Lieut. Gen. Thomas A. Holcomb.

In 1904 he married Miss Lucy Munford, of Annapolis, Md., who now lives in San Francisco. There are no children.

He had served in nearly every marine barracks in the country prior to the outbreak of this war, and with forces in Haiti, Cuba, Santo Domingo, China, France and the Philippines, as well as aboard the U. S. S. California, Maine, Kearsarge, Rainbow and Buffalo. In France he saw service first as commander of a military prison at Bordeaux and later as commander of an American guard camp at Bassens.

First Of Rank To Die

General Upshur became the first Marine Corps officer of that rank to die in a plane crash in this war. The navy lost Rear Admiral Robert H. English, commander of submarines in the Pacific, in an air accident off the Pacific Coast, while the army has lost several generals in flying disasters, among them Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, in a crash in Iceland.

Paddock became the "fastest human" in 1921 when he ran the 100-yard dash under the colors of his alma mater, the University of Southern California, in 9⅗ seconds. The feat was performed at Berkeley against the University of California.

He also tied the world's record the same day by winning the 220-yard dash in 20 4-5 seconds. This remains a USC record, although it is shared by Capt. Foy Draper, United States Army pilot who was reported missing several months ago in the North African campaign.

In 3 Olympic Games

Captain Paddock represented the United States in three Olympic games. He won the 100-meter dash and finished second in the 200-meter race at Antwerp in 1920. He scored in the sprints at Paris in 1924 and was a member of the American sprint relay team at Antwerp in 1928.

He frequently was the center of disputes involving officials of the Amateur Athletic Union, chiefly because he was an individualist in his opinions concerning the conduct of amateur athletics, but his record as a sportsman was unblemished.

Coach Dean Cromwell, developer of national championship teams for many years at USC and Paddock's tutor for four years, said of his protege:

"Paddock was one of my first champions. He had brains as well as speed, and many of his victories were scored by his head."

Stepson In Marines

Paddock's stepson Prisk Paddock, 18, joined the marines shortly after his graduation last June from Webb School for Boys in Claremont, Cal., and is in training at the University of Washington, Seattle. Captain Paddock's other son, Charles Paddock, Jr., is 11.

Mrs. Paddock who has been taking her husband's place at the Star-News, and Post, was advised from Washington this morning that the plane was missing, and later was told of her husband's death.

Paddock was only a schoolboy when in 1919 he won the 100 meters in the Inter-Allied meet at Paris. He beat many of the big-name sprinters of the day.

Race With Borah

One of his most sensational races was against Dr. Charley Borah, of the University of California, in mid-twenties. Borah won the event by an eyelash in 9.5 seconds and set a world record in so doing. They later were rematched in a special race in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, but Nate George, an unknown Negro boy of near-by Whittier College contributed a startling surprise by winning the event.

Paddock lately was head of the Citizens' Committee for the Army and Navy in Los Angeles. The organization gathered recreational and sports equipment for servicemen.

U. S. SUB TRITON LOST IN ACTION

Destroyer Of More Than A Dozen Jap War And Merchant Ships Missing

JUL 23 1943

Submersible "Failed To Return From Patrol Operations," Navy Discloses

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 22—The hard-hitting American submarine Triton, credited with destroying more than a dozen Japanese warships and merchant vessels, has been lost. The navy reported tersely today that the undersea raider had "failed to return from patrol operations."

The Triton's total kill included an enemy destroyer leader, a destroyer and a submarine. These, together with eight merchant ships and several smaller craft, were all bagged in the sub's first year of operations. Reports on its accomplishments in recent months are not currently available here but undoubtedly swell the total.

Tenth U. S. Sub Lost

The Triton is the tenth American submersible to be lost since the beginning of the war. The others include seven destroyed or presumed lost as a result of combat actions in the Pacific and two lost from accidents in the Atlantic area.

The 1,475-ton Triton, which joined the fleet in October, 1940, was under command of Lieut. Com. George Kenneth Mackenzie, Jr., at the time it disappeared. Mackenzie

16,556 Americans Lost Lives In First Year and Half of War

Less Than Third of Toll in the Year and a Half the World War Lasted, but Patterson Warns a Higher Casualty Rate Is Inevitable

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 22.—American deaths from battle action in the first year and a half of this war are less than one-third the total for the entire period of the first world war, War and Navy Department casualty lists showed today that since Pearl Harbor 16,556 men have died in action or from wounds. In the entire first world war—about the same length as the time this war has been under way—there were 53,407 deaths in action or from wounds.

But that ratio cannot be expected to continue. Robert P. Patterson, Acting Secretary of War, said: "It is almost certain that the fighting in immediate prospect is likely to be much heavier than we have thus far experienced. With hard fighting our casualties will mount."

Casualty records of the present war include 31,343 men missing in action. Some may be dead and some prisoners. They include 10,267 Navy, Marine and Coast Guard personnel and 21,076 soldiers.

Of the known dead, 8,412 are Navy, marine and Coast Guard men and 8,144 are Army men. In the first world war the deaths included 2,897 Navy and Marine Personnel (Coast Guardsmen are not included in those figures) and 50,510 of the Army.

Over-all casualties of the Army—dead, wounded, missing and prisoners of war—thus far in this war total 65,136, Mr. Patterson said. In the previous war that over-all figure for the Army was approximately four times as large, or 248,589. Similar figures are not available for the Navy for the first world war, but in the current conflict the over-all figure, including wounded, missing and prisoners totals 27,284 for the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

30.24-6421

was awarded the Navy Cross earlier this year, but the citation giving details of his accomplishments has not yet arrived here.

Earlier Commander

The earlier commander was Lieut. Com. Charles C. Kirkpatrick, of Cocoa, Fla., now flag lieutenant to Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet.

As skipper of the Triton, Kirkpatrick became the first submarine officer to be awarded three Navy Crosses, and it was under his leadership that the submarine destroyed the enemy craft with which it is now specifically credited.

Altogether in the war to date, American submarines have successfully attacked 283 Japanese ships, according to the navy, including 200 sunk, 29 probably sunk and 54 damaged.

BROOKLYN MAN LED 'HEAD HUNTER' FLIGHT

Lieutenant C. M. Smith Downed Three Planes in New Guinea

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP) — Second Lieut. Cornelius M. Smith of 10 Seventy-ninth Street, Brooklyn, was leading man of the "head hunter" squadron in a recent fierce engagement in New Guinea, the War Department announced today.

Lieutenant Smith shot down three Japanese planes. Another was listed as a probable.

Another member of the squadron, First Lieut. Elwood C. Krisher, of Conesus, N. Y., was credited with one Japanese plane.

Lieutenant Smith, 24 years old and the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius M. Smith, is a graduate of Manual Training High School. He studied business administration at Roanoke College in Virginia, where he became interested in aviation. Known in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn as "Corky" Smith, he frequently flew neighborhood friends in planes he rented from Floyd Bennett Field.

For a short time after college graduation he worked in the publicity firm of Cappell and McDonald, but left his position in September, 1941, to enlist in the Army Air Force. He received his wings in September, 1942, at Spence Field, Ga., and was soon ordered to Australia.

Mrs. Smith said yesterday that her son had received the Air Medal and a citation for "outstanding courage and achievement for more than twenty-five combat missions between Nov. 25, 1942, and Jan. 1, 1943." She added that she had received a letter from him yesterday describing the recent action as having occurred while on his forty-first combat mission.

Patterson Says Duce Refused To Make Rome Open

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Discussing the bombing of Rome, Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today that Premier Mussolini "resisted all efforts to persuade him to remove military installations from Rome and to preserve its immunity from attack by declaring it an open city."

Patterson said reconnaissance photographs disclosed that heavy damage had been inflicted on two railroad yards, and railroad roundhouses, a steel works, a chemical plant, hangars at air bases and a number of parked airplanes had been delivered on Italy's capital.

JUL 23 1943

Notified of Destroyer Casualties

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—The Navy said today that "next of kin of all casualties aboard the destroyer U. S. S. Strong, whose loss in Kula Gulf on the night of July 4-5 was announced in Navy Department Communique No. 435, have now been notified."

Navy Announces List Of Further Casualties

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—The Navy announced today forty-seven casualties, including six dead, fourteen wounded and twenty-seven missing. Among them were (Navy and non-commissioned personnel unless otherwise specified):

NEW YORK

HALL, JOSEPH CYRIL JR., missing; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cyril Hall, 48-49 Forty-seventh Street, Woodside, Queens.
HARMAN, ELMER LARRY JR., missing; wife, Mrs. Ada Mae Harman, 28 Globe Avenue, Palmer.
KORTLAND, CHARLES JAMES, dead; wife, Mrs. Mary Kortland, 12 Adam Street, Mount Vernon.
LEVAN, CHARLES BUDDY, missing; mother, Mrs. Celia Vesper, 643 William Street, Buffalo.
MONCADA, JOSEPH, missing; wife, Mrs. Lillian Moncada, 399 Sackett Street, Brooklyn.
RABBITT, JOHN HENRY, missing; mother, Mrs. Martha Washington Rabbit, 80 Knickerbocker Avenue, Brooklyn.

NEW JERSEY

HINZ, JOHN WALTER, wounded; mother, Mrs. Olga Hinz, 184 Lincoln Drive, Kenilworth.
HOLLOWELL, CHARLES JOSEPH, missing; father, Charles Edward Hollowell, 53 Stevens Street, Jersey City.
NESS, GEORGE WILLIAM, missing; father, George Arthur Ness, 251 Williamson Avenue, Hillside, Elizabeth.

CONNECTICUT

McKIBBEN, PAUL RALPH, missing; wife, Mrs. Evelyn L. McKibben, 422 Tilly Street, New London.

War-Prisoner Contract Explained by Patterson

Company Wallace Founded Pays U. S. 37 Cents an Hour

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—Financial arrangements under which the Pioneer Hi-Bred Corn Company is employing 400 Italian prisoners of war on Iowa seed-corn farms were disclosed today by Robert P. Patterson, Acting Secretary of War.

The company pays the government 37 cents a working hour for each prisoner and in addition provides subsistence, living quarters and transportation. The prisoners receive 80 cents a day, the regular prisoner-of-war labor rate.

Mr. Patterson said the company's payments to the Federal government eliminate any competitive advantages over other companies employing ordinary labor. The company was founded by Vice-President Henry A. Wallace before he became Secretary of Agriculture in 1933. Hi-Bred's sales manager, Nelson Urban, said Mr. Wallace is no longer connected with it except for owning "a small amount of stock."

Army Lists Wounded In Southwest Pacific

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—The War Department announced today the names of 181 United States soldiers wounded in action, including the following, listed with next of kin, from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, all of whom were wounded in the Southwest Pacific area:

NEW YORK

AMERMAN, ROBERT E., technician fifth grade; sister, Mrs. David H. Walters, 5 Union Spring Street, Union Springs.
BATTERSBY, VINCENT T., private; aunt, Mrs. Lillian Stack, 110 Lynch Street, Brooklyn.

British West Indies Watch Puerto Rico For Hints on Future

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico.—The native populations of the British territories in the Caribbean area are watching Puerto Rico for an indication as to what they may expect from their own home government in the way of greater autonomy.

Puerto Rico is to them the barometer of future American policy toward the underdeveloped regions of the world. They deduce that what America does for the Puerto Ricans, the British will do, or can be persuaded to do, in their case. Britain has already liberalized the governments in Trinidad, Jamaica, and Guiana, and residents of these colonies wonder what they can get next.

Many leaders in British colonies as well as in Puerto Rico, especially those who feel they have been "exploited," regarded the Atlantic Charter and all its pledges, specific or implied, with great seriousness. They foresee an area of more self-determination, more equality for colonial peoples.

See Joint Solution.

In brief, the outstanding impression from any journey into the British colonies of this area, is that the problem of Puerto Rico, which has plagued the United States for more than 40 years, is no isolated question. It is difficult for most politicians in Puerto Rico to realize this, but issues in Puerto Rico, from a new world perspective, must be decided in conjunction with issues of the entire Caribbean.

Many leaders in continental territories feel that their future is bound up with that of Jamaica, Puerto Rico and the Antilles in general. They can make a good case.

They contrast the crowded populations and relatively meager food production of the islands with their own yawning interior, the fertile jungle savannahs, and their ample crops of beans, rice and plantains, which are staples for the islanders. They contrast the islands' overpopulation and unemployed problems with their own urgent need of manpower for proper development of vacant lands and untouched resources of iron, bauxite, timber and gold.

Similarities Stressed.

They point to the similarity of the populations of many of the islands and in the Guinas. In the Guinas, the natives are mostly negroid, mulatto, or Javanese or East Indian, with some Chinese. The population of Trinidad is largely composed of just such elements. Most of the islands are inhabited by persons of Negro stock. In the Guianas already there are many persons whose families emigrated from Martinique, Barbadoes, St. Lucia or Jamaica.

The attitude of these leaders, then, is that these islands and the northern fringe of the South American continent have resources both

1,200 Return to Martinique

Holiday Crowd Welcomes Refugees Who Fled Robert's Rule

FORT-DE-FRANCE, Martinique, July 22 (AP).—Twelve hundred persons who fled the regime of Admiral Georges Robert returned to Martinique yesterday from Dominica, in the British West Indies, aboard a French merchant ship, and a holiday crowd gave them an enthusiastic welcome home.

[A United Press dispatch said the 1,200 persons were French Negroes.]

Earlier, Henri-Etienne Hoppenot, new Governor of the French Caribbean islands, placed a wreath before the statue of Victor Schoelcher, known as the French Lincoln, in ceremonies commemorating the birthday of the French deputy who won the freedom of the French slaves. The ceremony coincides with the first shore leave granted United States sailors from American war vessels in the harbor.

Hoppenot and other officials made a day-long inspection of the island of Guadeloupe on Tuesday.

Canada Hears Of Reaction to Newsprint Rise

Diefenbaker, in Commons, Warns of Antagonism Among U. S. Publishers

OTTAWA, July 22 (AP).—J. G. Diefenbaker, Progressive-Conservative member from Saskatchewan, warned the House of Commons today against what he termed a possibility of building an "adverse" press for Canada in the United States because of the way in which the pulp and paper industry is being handled.

He said antagonism already is apparent among American publishers because of the price increase and the lowered production volume in Canada, which is a main source of supply for American papers. There is a danger that the Americans will believe Canada is taking advantage of them in the matter of price, he said, referring to the $4-a-ton increase in newsprint, effective Sept .1, announced last night.

Resources Minister T. A. Crerar said he did not share Diefenbaker's apprehension. A few newspapers had attacked Canada, but the majority understood "the realities" of the situation, he said.

[The Prices Board at Ottawa and the Office of Price Administration at Washington announced jointly Wednesday night that the price of standard newsprint was being raised to $58 a ton, with similar $4 increases for other grades of newsprint. The Prices Board statement said that it was not thought the proposed increase was sufficient, and that further consultation would be held with American authorities.]

Diefenbaker said the effect of Canada's pulp and paper policy on opinion in the United States was likely to reduce greatly or nullify altogether the value of efforts of the Wartime Information Board in the United States. Not only had the price been increased twice this year by $4 a ton, but no steps were being taken to maintain production through proper allotment of man power, he said.

Diefenbaker said there had been American comment that in the United States pulpwood cutting was an industry for which Army service deferment was allowed, but this was not the case in Canada, to which the United States looked for the bulk of its raw material for paper. He said that failure to ensure sufficient man power for pulpwood cutting had reduced the cut by 1,000,000 cords last season, and there was no apparent hope that this could be improved next season.

"We must not lose this very valuable trade through our failure to arrange the man-power problem," he said. "We must not allow the American newspaper association to get the idea we are trying to take advantage of them in the matter of price or we will get an adverse press."

Crerar said there was no serious curtailment in the size of American or Canadian newspapers. British papers had been forced to reduce to as low as one-quarter their pre-war size, he said.

"You cannot put your hand in a hat and pull out man power," he added. "There is no magic about it."

"No, but you can have a good plan," suggested Gordon Graydon, Progressive - Conservative House leader.

Canadians Seize Escaped Nazi

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., July 22 (AP)—Guenther Krebs, an escaped German prisoner from Petawawa internment camp, was captured today by Canadian National Railways police at Hornepayne. Krebs escaped from the camp July 14 with Heinz Schuch, a Netherlander, who was recaptured in the district near the camp last Friday. Both were merchant seamen.

About 200 Liberty Freighters Have Been Transferred Already

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—The British, with a surplus of experienced seamen, and the United States, with a shortage of them, have decid d to meet the problem by transferring American freighters to British registry.

American-built Liberty ships thus transferred will be operated by British crews under the Union Jack, but ownership will remain with the United States War Shipping Administration. Transfers are being made on a charter basis through the Lend-Lease Administration.

Lend-lease estimated today that about 200 Liberty ships aggregating 2,000,000 dead-weight tons had been transferred, and shifts are continuing on a regular but unspecified rate.

Cardinal Leaves Rome Raid Need Open Question

Boston, July 22 (AP) — William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston and dean of the Catholic hierarchy in the United States, today declared that the bombing of Rome was a "sad event," and added that whether or not it was a military necessity must be left "to the judgment and conscience of those who have been responsible for it."

"The painful news of the bombardment of Rome," the cardinal continued in a statement prepared for use in the Pilot, diocesan newspaper, "must fill the hearts of all Christians with sorrow and sadness.

"The soil of Rome is sacred, made holy by the lives and deaths of the Apostles, confessors and martyrs, not of one but of many races. . . ."

Mrs. Roosevelt Plays Nursemaid For Baby

Port Angeles, Wash., July 22 (AP). Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt took time out between a chamber of commerce luncheon address and a ship launching ceremony to play nursemaid at the Kemper Freeman home here, the Port Angeles Evening News reported.

The Freemans, who have a girl, 2½ months old, took the President's wife home for a brief rest. When it was time to visit the shipyard, Freeman asked a nurse if she had seen Mrs. Roosevelt.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Freeman," she replied, "I not only saw her but she has just finished changing the baby's diapers."

Germans Told To See Cradle Is Never Empty

New York, July 22 (AP)—Das Schwarze Korps, official organ of Nazi Elite Guard, says that "twenty years from now Germany will also need a strong army" and pleads with every Nazi to see that the "cradle in his house is never empty," the Office of War Information reported tonight.

The OWI said the article was adding that the "hundreds of death notices" now appearing in German news[illegible] should remind Nazis that as a result of the "one or two-child habit . . . sixty per cent. of German soldiers are the only sons in their families.

Air Battles Darken Outlook In Pacific, Jap Officer Says

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Tokio radio today broadcast an address by a Japanese air force officer declaring the war situation in the Southwest Pacific is "becoming increasingly dark" as a result of "fierce and tragic air battles," the Office of War Information reported.

The officer, who was not identified, asserted Japan had achieved some "overwhelming victories" in air engagements, but declared the Allies "persistently come back time and again" with seemingly endless replacements, OWI said.

"This illustrates that the enemy, too, is carrying out a counter-offensive with honest effort and with a power that we cannot ignore," the speaker added. "We must recognize that the South Pacific war has now entered a stage where a decisive battle must be fought to determine the victor."

Nazis Put Price on Head Of Montenegrin Guerrilla

Offer 100,000 Marks for 'Tito,' Dead or Alive

The Berlin radio announced yesterday that the German military commander in Yugoslavia had offered a reward of 100,000 marks for information leading to the capture—dead or alive—of Josip Broz, Montenegrin guerrilla leader popularly known as Tito. The broadcast, which was recorded by The Associated Press, acknowleged that Tito's whereabouts are unknown, but said that "Axis military authorities suspect he is now trying to organize partisan resistance in Slovenia."

As a result of mopping up operations last spring, the broadcast declared, Tito was forced to abandon guerrilla activities in northwest Bosnia and fled to Montenegro with remnants of his forces. Axis troops were said to have pursued and annihilated most of his remaining forces in the mountains of Montenegro.

"Tito himself again escaped, however," the broadcast said, "with a few of his followers. He evaded pursuing Axis troops and his present whereabouts are not known."

Japan Appoints Envoy Before 'Freeing' Burma

By the Associated Press.

The Tokio radio announced today that Renzo Sawada, former Japanese Ambassador to France, had been appointed Ambassador and Minister Plenipotentiary to Burma in accordance with plans to grant that occupied land "complete independence."

The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

Sawada was recalled from France in August, 1940, in a sweeping shakeup of the Japanese diplomatic service instituted by Yosuke Matsouka, then foreign minister.

Wife of RAF Flyer Escapes Jap Prison in Gamble With Death

(Frances Long was interned in Manila by the Japanese for five months before she was exchanged. Here she recounts the adventures of Gwen Priestwood, who was interned in Hong Kong and escaped.)

By FRANCES LONG,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Just to look at Mrs. Gwen Priestwood, young, pretty, smiling, you can't imagine her in baggy men's trousers, fleeing from the Japanese in Hong Kong by crawling under the barbed wire around an internment camp. But that's Gwen's story.

The war caught her in Hong Kong after most of the other white women—including her mother—had been removed. But Gwen had taken training in the Auxiliary Nurses' Service and so, during the brief fierce fighting, she drove a truck loaded with food and medicine, picked up wounded soldiers and attended them as best she could.

When the Japs entered Hong Kong, Gwen was staying with a friend but the Japs took over the building and ordered them to leave.

Joined Prisoner Line.

"They didn't seem to care what I did and I was left sitting on the road with my few pieces of luggage," Gwen says.

A Chinese boatman promised to take her part way to Chungking, but he never showed up and, in desperation, she joined the crowd that was being marched by Japanese soldiers to Stanley Prison. "At least I thought I would be fed," she recalls.

Stanley Prison, an ancient place, was crammed with internees, approximately 3,000 of them. Mrs. Priestwood was shoved into a small room with eight other women. She slept on the hard floor because there was no bedding available and the Japanese didn't bother to provide any. As to food, "the Japs allowed us rations of rice—two bowls a day—some lettuce leaves and occasionally we were given some fish, which wasn't always good."

Conditions were desperate. Anything would be better than such a miserable existence, so she began plotting to escape. A former commissioner of the Hong Kong police had approached her several times on the subject, but realizing the danger of trying to reach Chungking, 1,000 miles away, she refused. But the monotony, the misery, of internment life changed her mind.

Elude Guards.

For weeks she and her English friend hoarded all the canned food they could get. One night, just after dusk, they crawled under the barbed wire, while the guard's back was turned, made a wild dash for a nearby bush. They lay tense, until sure no alarm had been raised. Then they started walking rapidly north.

Wearing old ragged trousers and thick sweaters—it was March and the weather was cold—and carrying haversacks, filled with food, a change of shoes and water bottles, they walked at night and hid during the day, generally in some bombed building or under bushes.

When Mrs. Priestwood and the Englishman reached the coast of Hong Kong Island, they found a Chinese boatman who took them to the mainland. "I can't praise this old boatman enough," Mrs. Priestwood recounts. "He was wonderful to us. He gave me Chinese fishergirl clothes so that I wouldn't be easily recognized as a white person."

Aided by Guerrillas.

And by another fortunate chance, they encountered a group of Chinese guerrillas who helped them run the gantlet of the Japanese lines to Chungking.

From the Chinese capital, Mrs. Priestwood flew to India, then came to the United States by freighter and plane.

Now, resting and writing the story of her experiences, she nurses the hope of returning to her native England, to see her husband, who is with the Royal Air Force.

BY LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, JULY 22-(AP)-BY REPULSING GERMAN ARMOR TO PROTECT BEACH LANDINGS, AIRBORNE TROOPS PROVED THEIR WORTH IN SICILY AND WON THE RIGHT TO A STILL MORE PROMINENT PART IN COMING INVASIONS, MAJOR GEN. JOSEPH M. SWING DECLARED TODAY.

AT A PRESS CONFERENCE THE GENERAL DISCLOSED THAT THE AMERICAN AIRBORNE FORCE WHICH DESCENDED ON SICILY WAS LARGER THAN ANY OTHER EVER SET DOWN IN A SINGLE OPERATION. GEN. SWING DID NOT MAKE PUBLIC THE EXACT NUMBER OF TROOPS EMPLOYED, BUT HE INDICATED IT WAS CLOSE TO THE WHOLE PERSONNEL OF THE 82ND AIRBORNE DIVISION.

IN THEIR FIRST TEST UNDER FIRE, THESE YOUNG PARACHUTE AND GLIDER TROOPERS USED ANTI-TANK GUNS AND 75 MILLIMETER FIELD HOWITZERS TO BEAT BACK EFFORTS OF THE 15TH GERMAN ARMORED DIVISION TO SMASH DOWN ON THE

30.24-6423

BEACHES WHERE THE AMERICAN FIRST AND 45TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS WERE COMING ASHORE. THE SOLDIERS FROM THE SKY HELD STAUNCHLY AGAINST THE BEST THE ENEMY COULD THROW AT THEM FROM FRIDAY NIGHT UNTIL THE LAND FORCES REACHED THEM MONDAY, THE GENERAL SAID.

GEN. SWING, WHO IS THE COMMANDER OF ANOTHER AIRBORNE DIVISION IN THE UNITED STATES, WAS SENT TO NORTH AFRICA TO HELP COORDINATE THE SICILIAN INVASION PLANS. HE LEFT SICILY A FEW DAYS AGO AND, AFTER A SERIES OF CONFERENCES WITH LIEUT. GEN. JACOB L.DEVERS, COMMANDING GENERAL OF UNITED STATES FORCES IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER, IS NOW ON HIS WAY BACK TO WASHINGTON TO REPORT ON THE LESSONS LEARNED ON THE ISLAND.

HE REPORTED AT THE PRESS CONFERENCE THAT AIRBORNE TROOPS NOT ONLY PROVED THEIR WORTH TO THEIR OWN COMMANDERS, BUT COMPLETELY SOLD THEMSELVES TO THE GROUND COMMANDERS. "MAJOR GEN. TROY MIDDLETON, COMMANDING THE 45TH DIVISION, WAS SO PLEASED WITH THE WORK OF THE AIRBORNE UNIT THAT HE TRIED TO KEEP THEM," GEN. SWING SAID.

REGARDING BRITISH AIRBORNE OPERATIONS BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES IN THE SYRACUSE AREA, GEN. SWING QUOTED GEN. SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY AS SAYING, "THEY ADVANCED OUR OPERATIONS BY A WEEK."

HE ADDED THAT A SINGLE AIRBORNE COMBAT TEAM WHICH TOOK UP ITS STATION A FEW MILES INLAND FROM GELA CAUGHT THE FULL FORCE OF THE GERMAN EFFORT TO DRIVE DOWN ON THE BEACHES, AND IN NEARLY THREE DAYS OF FIERCE FIGHTING DESTROYED AT LEAST 13 TANKS, INCLUDING SOME MARK VI TIGERS, AND DROVE BACK REPEATED ATTACKS.

"IF THAT LONE COMBAT TEAM HADN'T BEEN ON THE SPOT WHEN THE ATTACK WAS DELIVERED BY THE GERMANS THE WHOLE OPERATION MIGHT WELL HAVE ENDED IN A FATEFUL DELAY," GEN. SWING SAID. "THE GERMANS COULD HAVE ROLLED UP OUR WHOLE LINE IF THEY HAD BEEN ABLE TO DRIVE OUR TROOPS THERE INTO THE SEA."

HE EXPLAINED THIS WAS THE FIRST TIME THE AIRBORNE FORCE WENT INTO BATTLE "AS A SELF-CONTAINED UNIT, COMPLETE WITH ITS OWN ENGINEERS, ARTILLERY AND QUARTERMASTERS." HE SAID SURGEONS AND CHAPLAINS JUMPED ALONG WITH THE FIGHTING MEN.

DESPITE HIGH WINDS, BAD WEATHER AND THE NECESSITY OF FLYING A CIRCUITOUS ROUTE TO AVOID MIXING UP WITH THE AIR COVER FOR NAVAL CONVOYS, GEN. SWING SAID, LANDINGS WERE MADE WITH JUMP LOSSES "NO HIGHER THAN WOULD BE EXPECTED IN PRACTICE OPERATIONS UNDER THE SAME CONDITIONS."

SIMILARLY, LOSSES IN PLANES FROM OPERATIONAL CAUSES WERE LIGHT. GEN. SWING SAID MOST OF THE WACO GLIDERS HAVE BEEN OR WILL BE SALVAGED. HE BRANDED ENEMY REPORTS THAT MANY PLANES AND GLIDERS HAD BEEN SHOT DOWN AS "ABSOLUTELY UNTRUE."

GEN. SWING WAS PARTICULARLY WARM IN PRAISE OF THE SUPPORTING FIRE FROM CRUISERS AND MONITORS. HE EXPRESSED DELIGHT WITH THE SPIRIT SHOWN BY THE YOUNG AIRBORNE SOLDIERS--THEIR AVERAGE AGE IS AROUND 21--WHO HAD NEVER BEFORE BEEN SHOT AT.

"THOSE WHO DIDN'T HAVE ANTI-TANK GUNS DIDN'T HESITATE TO LET THE GREAT TANKS ROLL CLOSE AND THEN USE CARBINES AND RIFLES IN EFFORTS TO SHOOT THROUGH SLITS IN THE ARMOR," HE SAID. "THEY DIDN'T SCARE A BIT.

"WE TOOK VERY LIGHT CASUALTIES. ALL OF US WHO HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THE PLANNING AND EXECUTION OF MOVEMENTS WERE AGREEABLY SURPRISED."

THE GENERAL SAID THAT WHILE THE GERMANS FOUGHT WELL FOR A WHILE, THERE WAS MUCH EVIDENCE THAT "THE AXIS ALLIES DO NOT TRUST EACH OTHER," AND THAT THIS WAS REFLECTED IN THEIR DEFEATS. HE ADDED, "THE GERMAN HAS NOT YET BROKEN. BUT HE WILL, JUST AS HE DID IN TUNISIA."

GEN. SWING EXPRESSED THE CONVICTION THAT ON THE OTHER HAND THE ALLIES WOULD "DRIVE FORWARD WITH COMPLETE CONFIDENCE IN THEMSELVES. EACH AMERICAN KNOWS THAT HIS BRITISH OR CANADIAN OR FRENCH ALLY IS A DAMN GOOD SOLDIER. HE KNOWS HE WON'T BE LET DOWN."

GEN. SWING WAS ACCOMPANIED ON HIS ASSIGNMENT BY LIEUT. COL. D.P. QUANDT OF SAN FRANCISCO.

T HENRY B. JAMESON

eighth air force headquarters in england, july 22-(ap)--resident of the little town of new haven on the southeast coast of england will long remember first lieut. augusta degenaro of new haven, conn., as the courageous american fighter pilot who risked his own life rather than endanger theirs.

with shell splinters in both hands, his right knee and both ankles after a dogfight in which he shot down two german fighters and damaged a third, degenaro parachuted into the channel from his bullet-riddled thunderbolt rather than make a crash landing in the town and possibly injure civilians.

he didn't know at the time that the name of the place was the same as that of his home town, but from the hospital bed where he is recovering from his wounds he said the fact made him all the happier for his decision.

degenaro's success against the nazi airmen tied the former university of connecticut student with col. hubert zemke of tampa, fla., commander of another thunderbolt groups, for the number of enemy aircraft destroyed by an american pilot in one day in the european theater of operations.

degenaro said he was attacked by two focke-wulf 190s that knocked out his instruments and put holes in the right side of his canopy.

"I could hear the hits," he said. "I even started to count them. At first I thought I was going to be killed right away and got scared. Then I got damned mad.

"I dived steeply and found myself between 1,500 and 2,000 feet, surrounded by enemy planes and with no instruments. So I tore into the focke-wulf ahead of me and fired several bursts from 100 yards ~~xxxxx~~ or so and saw him hit the deck.

JUL 23 1943

"then the real dogfight started. I let go a blast at another jerry and he began breaking up. I didn't have much time to watch him crash, for three others buzzed in on me."

by that time degenaro was pretty badly wounded and his plane was full of holes, so he headed for land, flying blind and with his hands virtually useless. degenaro, a drill press operator in civilian life, used the hard muscles of his forearms to pilot the ship over the channel.

As he approached newhaven, down the coast from dover, he decided to crash land. but then he saw people in the streets and changed his mind. Turning out to sea again he punched a hole in his canopy with bleeding hands and bailed out.

He landed near a fishing smack and was hauled from the choppy waters. He said it was lucky, for "I could not use my hands to release myself from the ~~xxx~~ chute and would have drowned."

STOCKHOLM, JULY 22-(AP)-GERMAN AUTHORITIES ARE WITHHOLDING THE RELEASE OF PICTURES OF THE LATEST MEETING OF ADOLF HITLER AND PREMIER MUSSOLINI, WHICH THE AXIS ANNOUNCED OCCURRED LAST MONDAY IN NORTHERN ITALY.

JUL 23 1943

SWEDISH NEWS PICTURE AGENCIES WERE ADVISED THAT NO APPROVAL FOR RELEASING THEM WAS EXPECTED ALTHOUGH, IT WAS SAID, PICTURES WERE OF GOOD QUALITY.

THIS INFORMATION PROMPTED SPECULATION IN SOME SWEDISH CIRCLES AS TO WHETHER THERE ACTUALLY WAS A MEETING.

AT THE SAME TIME DISPATCHES FROM GERMANY TO THE SWEDISH PRESS SAID THAT GERMANS THOUGHT THE COMMUNIQUE ISSUED TUESDAY WAS CURT AND COLD.

THE GAZETTE DE LAUSANNE AGAIN POINTED OUT THAT AXIS REINFORCEMENTS FOR SICILY MUST PASS THROUGH ROME, WHILE BOTH LA SUISSE AND THE JOURNAL DE GENEVE RECALLED THAT ROME HAD NOT BEEN DECLARED AN OPEN CITY.

FROM ROME ITSELF THE CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE DE GENEVE WROTE THAT "WE MUST GUARD AGAINST CONFUSING THE ATTITUDE OF THE VATICAN WITH THE INDIGNATION OF THE FASCIST JOURNALS. THE BOMBING OF ROME HAS IN NO MANNER BROUGHT THE HOLY SEE CLOSER TO THE AXIS POWERS."

JUL 23 1943

GENERAL PATTON EMPHASIZED THAT THESE FIGURES WERE "CONSERVATIVELY ESTIMATED." HE EXPRESSED PARTICULAR PLEASURE AT THE EFFICIENCY WITH WHICH AMERICAN ARMORED UNITS MAINTAINED CONSTANT PRESSURE ON THE SWIFTLY CHANGING FRONT, NEVER ALLOWING THE RETREATING ENEMY A MOMENT'S LETUP.

"THIS WAS DONE WITHOUT OUR TROOPS AT ANY TIME RUNNING OUT OF EITHER FOOD OR AMMUNITION," HE POINTED OUT.

PATTON, WHO HAS BEEN IN FRONT LINE AREAS ALMOST DAILY SINCE LANDING IN SICILY, PRAISED THE ALLIED AIR FORCE FOR KEEPING DOWN AMERICN LOSSES FROM ENEMY PLANES AND PAID TRIBUTE TO ALLIED NAVAL GUNNERY.

HE SAID THAT THE ACCURACY WITH WHICH THE FLEET BATTERIES LAID THEIR FIRE ON TARGETS WHOSE LOCATION WAS RADIOED THEM BY SHORE PARTIES WAS "NOTHING SHORT OF PHENOMENAL."

HE SAID HE WAS DELIGHTED WITH THE FIGHTING QUALITIES DISPLAYED BY HIS MEN AND EXPRESSED PARTICULAR APPRECIATION FOR THE SIGNAL MEN, WHO, HE SAID, OFTEN HAD TO WORK "WITHOUT FOOD, FAVOR OR AFFECTION." HE SAID COMMUNICATIONS HAD BEEN HIGHLY EFFECTIVE.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, JULY 23-(FRIDAY)-(AP)-WHAT WOULD YOU SAY IF YOU WERE A YOUNG BOMBARDIER AND YOUR BIG BOSS, MAJOR GENERAL JIMMIE DOOLITTLE, SAID YOU HAD EARNED YOUR HOME LEAVE WITH 53 MISSIONS AND 250 OPERATIONAL HOURS?

TWENTY-FOUR-YEAR-OLD CAPTAIN WILLIAM C.LEWIS, BIRMINGHAM, ALA., SMILINGLY OFFERED THE ANSWER TODAY. HE SAID: JUL 23 1943

"I'LL HAVE FIFTEEN WHOLE DAYS TO MYSELF BEFORE I HAVE TO GO TO WORK IN THE AIRFORCE AGAIN SO THE FIRST THING I'M GOING TO DO IS GET A HOTEL ROOM IN THE FIRST AMERICAN CITY I LAND IN AND THEN I'M GOING TO PARK ON THAT COMFORTABLE BED AND RING FOR ROOM SERVICE AND ORDER SOME THINGS THEY DON'T HAVE IN ENGLAND OR AFRICA.

"I'M GOING TO ORDER MY FAVORITE SOFT DRINK AND ICE CREAM AND SOME BRAND NEW MAGAZINES AND ALL THE NEWSPAPERS.

"I'M GOING TO LOOK OUT THE WINDOW AND SAY 'THIS IS AMERICA AND I'M A LUCKY GUY'"

"AND THEN I'M GOING ON FAST TO JOIN MY FAMILY AND IF WE CAN GET A CAR AND THE GAS WE'LL MAKE A TRIP THROUGH SOME PART OF THE COUNTRY TOGETHER. I'VE BEEN PLANNING ON THIS LEAVE SO LONG THAT I CAN HARDLY BELIEVE IT'S COMING TRUE."

LEWIS IS A HUSKY WIDE SHOULDERED BLOND WHO FLEW HIS MORE THAN HALF-HUNDRED RAIDS WITH ONLY ONE CRASH LANDING AND ONE FLAK WOUND IN HIS ARM.

HE IS TYPICAL OF MANY AIRMEN WHO STARTED OUT WITH THE FLEDGLING UNITED STATES AIRFORCE IN ENGLAND AND HELPED BUILD AMERICAN

BOMBARDMENT POWER INTO ONE OF THE GREATEST WEAPONS OF THE WAR.

MANY SURVIVED AND, LIKE LEWIS, ARE BEING GIVEN TRANSFER HOME.

HIS FIRST COMBAT MISSION WAS ON THE RAILROAD YARDS AT RAOUEN, FRANCE, THE FIRST AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESS RAID ON EUROPE, AND HIS LAST ON THE SAN LORENZO YARD FIVE MILES FROM VATICAN CITY IN ROME.

"I GUESS I'M A RAILROAD JINX," HE SAID.

IN HIS BOMBING CAREER LEWIS HAS SEEN CONSIDERABLE OF WESTERN EUROPE AND THE MEDITERRANEAN.

"LORIENT WAS OUR LAST JOB IN FRANCE AND DOWN HERE I'VE HAD A CRACK AT PLACES LIKE TUNIS, SOUSSE, GABES, SFAX, PANTELLERIA, PALMERO, CATANIA, MESSINA AND CAGLIARI.

"THESE RAIDS ARE GETTING A LITTLE MONOTONOUS," COMPLAINED SECOND LIEUT.REYNOLDS BAGGIO OF 564 HILLVIEW AVE., LOS ANGELES, CALIF. "WE FLY TO THE TARGET, DROP OUR BOMBS AND THEN COME HOME. THEIR FIGHTERS DIDN'T BOTHER US AND THE FLAK DIDN'T EVEN HAVE MUCH NUISANCE VALUE."

"I CAN'T FIGURE 'EM OUT," SAID PRIVATE WILLIAM J.BOM OF 1112 PRESTON ST., LOUISVILLE, KY. "WE COULD SEE FIGHTERS ALL OVER THE GROUND BUT THEY DIDN'T COME UP. MAYBE THEY ARE OUT OF GAS."

"ANYWAY," COMMENTED SECOND LIEUT. ANTHONY E.LUTKUS OF 179 FOURTH ST., KEARNY, N.J., "AFTER TODAY'S BLASTING THERE'S ONE AIRDROME LESS FOR THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS."

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, NORTH AFRICA, JULY 22--GEN. SIR HAROLD ALEXANDER DECLARED TODAY THAT THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN SICILY ARE "AT LEAST 100 PER CENT BETTER" THAN WHEN THEY FIRST ARRIVED IN NORTH AFRICA.

ASKED AT A RECEPTION IN HIS NORTH AFRICAN HEADQUARTERS WHAT HE THOUGHT OF THE AMERICAN TROOPS, ALEXANDER, SECOND IN COMMAND OF THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN, SAID THAT WHEN THEY ARRIVED IN NORTH AFRICA "THEY WERE BETTER TRAINED IN MODERN WARFARE THAN WE WERE IN FRANCE IN 1940."

JUL 23 1943

"TODAY, AFTER THE FIGHTS THEY HAVE BEEN IN," HE ADDED, "THE AMERICANS ARE VERY FINE TROOPS INDEED. THERE IS NO COMPARISON BETWEEN THE AMERICANS IN SICILY NOW AND THE AMERICANS SIX MONTHS AGO. THEY ARE AT LEAST 100 PER CENT BETTER.

"THE SAME THING HOLDS WITH OUR OWN ARMY. WAS THE BRITISH ARMY GOOD IN FRANCE IN 1940? NO. THEY WERE AMATEURS AGAINST PROFESSIONALS, FOR THE GERMANS HAD THE EXPERIENCE OF POLAND."

THE GENERAL SAID "THE CANADIANS ARE GOOD AND THEY WILL BE JOLLY GOOD," ADDING, "LIKE THE AMERICAN 45TH DIVISION, THEY WENT INTO THE BATTLE UNTRIED, AND HAVE DONE EXCEEDINGLY WELL."

ASKED IF THE CANADIANS HAD BEEN PLACED BETWEEN THE AMERICANS AND THE BRITISH IN SICILY DELIBERATELY, HE REPLIED:

"NO, THE REASON WAS THAT, LIKE THE AMERICAN 45TH DIVISION, THEY HAD COME IN BIG SHIPS AND HAD TO BE TRANSFERRED TO THEIR LANDING CRAFT IN WATER DEEP ENOUGH TO ACCOMODATE LARGE SHIPS."

AN ALLIED EVACUATION HOSPITAL, NORTH AFRICA, JULY 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-TO A NEW TESTAMENT AND TO THE MESSAGE WHICH CAME WITH IT FROM BACK HOME--"WEAR IT ALWAYS"--PARATROOPER WESLEY C.HINES OF 73 SAMPSON STREET, BELLE VERNON, PA., OWED HIS LIFE TODAY.

SERGEANT HINES WAS SENT TO SICILY ON THE THIRD NIGHT OF THE INVASION. AS THE PLANE NEARED THE LANDING POINT FIVE MILES INSIDE THE COASTLINE, BURSTS OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT MACHINE GUN FIRE CAME UP AND AROUND IT. FIRST IN LINE, HINES OPENED THE PLANE DOOR AND STOOD POISED, WAITING FOR THE GREEN LIGHT TO SIGNAL THE PARATROOPERS TO JUMP.

JUST AS IT FLASHED, A 30 CALIBRE BULLET STRUCK HIM ON THE LEFT SIDE OF HIS CHEST, KNOCKING HIM BACKWARD INTO THE PLANE. BUT, IN THE LEFT BREAST POCKET OF HIS JUMPING SUIT, HINES WAS CARRYING THE NEW TESTAMENT WITH A METALHEART SHIELD SENT TO HIM A MONTH AGO BY MISS DORIS JONES OF LABELLE, PA., WITH A REQUEST THAT HE "WEAR IT ALWAYS."

JUL 23 1943

THE BULLET HIT THE METAL COVER, JUST ABOVE THE INSCRIPTION "MAY THE LORD BE WITH YOU," GLANCED OFF, AND INFLICTED A FLESH WOUND INSTEAD OF PENETRATING HIS CHEST.

NOW HOSPITALIZED, HINES RECEIVED THE PURPLE HEART, WHICH HE PROMPTLY SENT ALONG WITH THE EXTRACTED BULLET TO HIS MOTHER, MRS. ISABELLE SCHOENHOLTZ, OF BELLE VERNON. MEANWHILE, HE GOT HIS CHAPLAIN TO WRITE A LETTER TO HIS COMMANDING OFFICER, SAYING THAT THE 15 MEN WHO JUMPED OUT OF THE PLANE WITHOUT A SECOND'S DELAY AFTER SEEING HIM KNOCKED BACK DESERVED A DECORATION, TOO.

ABOARD AN ASSAULT TRANSPORT IN NORTH AFRICAN WATERS, JUNE 19-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A REAR ADMIRAL, THE COMMANDING OFFICER OF ONE AMERICAN TASK FORCE WHICH SMASHED ITS WAY INTO SICILY, CONGRATULATED HIS OFFICERS AND MEN TODAY ON "A FINE JOB VERY WELL DONE BY EVERYBODY IN IT."

MEETING HIS OFFICERS ABOARD THIS SHIP HE REVEALED THAT THE NAVAL LOSSES IN MEN WERE EXCEEDINGLY LIGHT IN OUR TASK FORCE, DESPITE THE HEAVY ENEMY AIR ATTACKS BY NIGHT AND DAY.

THE ADMIRAL PRAISED THE 45TH DIVISION AS "PUTTING THE FINAL TOUCH ON THE PARTY. MAJOR GEN. TROY H. MIDDLETON, ITS COMMANDER, IS A FINE FELLOW AND KNEW HIS STUFF. HE'S A GREAT SOLDIER AND HIS STAFF ARE EXCELLENT OFFICERS."

JUL 23 1943

"THE RECENT OPERATION TOOK PLACE SO RAPIDLY AND WE WERE IN AND OUT SO FAST THAT IT MAY SEEM TO YOU TO HAVE BEEN A RATHER EASY PARTY," THE ADMIRAL DECLARED. "WHEN THE VICTOR IN A BATTLE IS IN GREAT STRENGTH AND KNOWS HOW TO USE THAT STRENGTH, THE VICTORY IS QUICK AND SMASHING. THE ENEMY WAS CAUGHT UNAWARES BY OUR LANDING."

PRAISING THE NAVAL SHORE BOMBARDMENT THAT PRECEDED THE LANDING, THE ADMIRAL SAID "THAT BLAT OF FIRE CAUSE

THE ADMIRAL SAID "THAT BLAST OF FIRE CAUSED THE ITALIANS TO LEAVE THEIR POSITIONS AND RUN LIKE HELL. IN OTHER WORDS WE SHOT OUR WAY TO SHORE. YOU DID WHAT YOU WERE SUPPOSED TO DO AND YOU DID IT UP TO THE HILT. IF YOU GO IN SHOOTING AND SHOOTING HARD YOU'LL GET WHEREVER YOU WANT TO BE."

COMMANDER CHARLES C. HARTMAN SAID HE WAS A LITTLE DISAPPOINTED OVER THE LACK OF OPPOSITION. HE TOLD HOW ONE DESTROYER, MOVING CLOSE INSHORE, FIRED ALMOST 1,000 SHELLS AND RECEIVED CREDIT FOR KNOCKING OUT FOUR TANKS OF THE GOERING DIVISIONS.

NAVY MEN ON SHORE DIRECTED THE GUNFIRE OF THE SHIPS AGAINST THE LAND TARGETS.

THEY RADIOED REPORTS TO THE SHIPS AND THE SHIPS LED THE WAY FOR THE TROOPS.

IN CLOSING THE STIRRING SESSION, CAPT. W.B. PHILLIPS TOLD THE OFFICERS, "LET'S ALL GO HOME AND GET READY TO TAKE ON THE GERMANS IN THE HOMELAND OR IN FRANCE."

THE MEETING WAS PARTICULARLY HEART-WARMING BECAUSE MOST OF THE OFFICERS IN THE INVASION HAD BEEN BROUGHT TOGETHER SINCE THE FIGHTING AND ENTHUSIASM RAN HIGH.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, JULY 23-(FRIDAY)-(AP)-MUNDA, KEY JAPANESE BASE ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, WAS REPORTED IN "REACH OF CAPTURE" BY GROUND FORCES TODAY AFTER THE RECORD-BREAKING BOMBING ON WEDNESDAY OF BAIROKO HARBOR, ENEMY SUPPLY BASE ABOUT TEN AIR MILES NORTH OF MUNDA.

AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT THAT U.S. TROOPS HAD ADVANCED TO WITHIN A FEW THOUSAND YARDS OF THE AIRFIELD WAS MADE DY ADMIRAL WILLIAM F. HALSEY'S SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS. MOST OF THE JAPANESE ARTILLERY HAS BEEN DESTROYED. THE NIPPONESE ARE FIGHTING MAINLY WITH MORTARS,

30.24-6433

MACHINE GUNS AND SMALL WEAPONS.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS REPORTED THAT STRONG COUNTERATTACKS BY THE ENEMY AT MUNDA WERE REPULSED WITH HEAVY LOSSES.

WHILE AMERICAN TROOPS WERE SEEKING TO BREAK DOWN THE RING OF DEFENSES AROUND MUNDA, THE AIR FORCE IN A SUPPORTING ACTION POUNDED BAIROKO IN THE HEAVIEST AERIAL ATTACK EVER MADE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC. OPERATING UNDER STRONG FIGHTER PROTECTION, MORE THAN 150 TORPEDO AND DIVE BOMBERS DROPPED 133 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES AND EXTENSIVELY STRAFED THE AREA.

JUL 23 1943

ALLIED BOMBERS, IN ANOTHER INTENSIVE ATTACK, SMASHED AT THE JAPANESE OVER MANDANG, NEW GUINEA, 700 MILES WEST OF THE SOLOMONS. A MUCH LARGER ENEMY AIR FORCE WAS REPORTED DEFEATED DURING THE RAID. HEADQUARTERS HERE SAID 19 JAPANESE PLANES WERE DESTROYED AND 11 PROBABLY SHOT DOWN AGAINST A LOSS OF TWO ALLIED SHIPS.

ON THE GROUND IN NEW GUINEA ALLIED PATROLS REPULSED NINE COUNTERATTACKS AGAINST MOUNT TAMBU, WHICH AUSTRALIAN JUNGLE FIGHTERS CAPTURED SEVERAL DAYS AGO. THE ENEMY LEFT AT LEAST 282 DEAD ON THE SLOPES OF THE HILL NEAR SALAMAUA, LARGE BASE AND A MAIN OBJECT OF THE ALLIED OFFENSIVE.

LAE, ANOTHER AIR BASE LESS THAN 20 MILES FROM SALAMAUA, WAS RAIDED BY ALLIED PLANES. EXPLOSIONS WERE SEEN ALONG THE WATER FRONT AND AMONG ENEMY BARGES. FIRES ALSO WERE STARTED BY ALLIED BOMBERS AT RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, NORTH OF NEW GUINEA AND MOST POWERFUL ENEMY BASE IN THE AREA.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JULY 22-(AP)-AWARD OF THE AIR MEDAL TO A GROUP OF AIRMEN WERE ANNOUNCED BY LT. GENERAL GEORGE C. KENNEY FOR "MERITOUS ACHIEVEMENT" DURING 100 HOURS OF BOMBING MISSIONS AND RECONNAISSANCE FLIGHTS AGAINST THE JAPANESE.

ONE MITCHELL PILOT ON RETURNING SAID "THE JAPS NEVER INTERCEPTED US -- WE DIDN'T SEE A SINGLE ENEMY PLANE." HIS MATES EXPLAINED: "OUR INTERCEPTORS INTERCEPTED THE INTERCEPTORS BEFORE THEY COULD INTERCEPT YOU."

MAJOR EDWARD CRAGG OF GREENWICH,CONN., LED A FORMATION OF LIGHTNINGS COVERING THE B-25'S WHICH CARRIED OUT THE STRAFING OPERATION.

"AS WE LEFT THE TARGET," HE SAID, "THE P-38'S AHEAD OF US REPORTED ENEMY AIRCRAFT. FIVE MINUTES LATER, I SAW THE SKY FILLED WITH FIGHTING PLANES, INCLUDING ENEMY AIRCRAFT, BETWEEN THE RAMU RIVER AND THE FINISTERRE RANGE -- OVER WHAT WE REGARD AS JAPANESE TERRITORY.

"THE FIGHTING RANGED FROM 14,000 FEET TO GROUND LEVEL, WITH MOST OF THE COMBAT AROUND 8,000 FEET.

"THE FIRST ENEMY FORMATION I SAW WAS TOO HIGH. SO I LET THE FOLLOWING FLIGHT ATTACK THEM. I CIRCLED AND SAW A P-38 IN A STEEP DIVE FIRING ON AN OSCAR. THE JAP PLANE DID A COUPLE OF ROLLS AND THE PILOT BAILED OUT. I SAW HIS PARACHUTE OPEN.

"THEN I STARTED GETTING PASSES AT FOUR DIFFERENT JAP SHIPS. I GOT THE SECOND ONE, AND SAW HIM BADLY SHOT UP. FIRST LIEUT. GEORGE MORGAN (1808 WEST PARKWAY, MEMPHIS,TENN.) FLYING ON MY WING, SAW A BIG HOLE IN THE JAP'S WING. I SAW THE PILOT BAIL OUT.

"I ALSO SAW MY BULLETS HITTING ANOTHER PLANE, BUT DIDN'T SEE IT CRASH, SO MY SCORE WAS ONE DESTROYED AND ONE DAMAGED. THE FIGHT LASTED 25 MINUTES."

JUL 23 1943

CRAGG SAID THAT, AT ONE POINT IN THE COMBAT, HE WENT INTO A DIVE TO MAKE A PASS AT THREE ZEROS AND THAT, AS HE CAME OUT OF THE DIVE, HE SAW HIS WINGMAN PARACHUTE.

CAPT.CHARLES KING OF (556 CITY PARK AVENUE) COLUMBUS,OHIO, WHO WAS CREDITED WITH TWO ENEMY PLANES, AND 14 LIEUTENANTS SHARED WITH CRAGG IN THE SCORING.

PAUL STANCH, (44 NORTH HAVILAND AVENUE) AUDUBON,N.J., DESTROYED TWO OSCARS TO BRING HIS TOTAL SINCE THE WAR STARTED TO FIVE. STANCH THUS JOINED THE RANKS OF FIGHTER PILOT ACES. HE ALSO DAMAGED ONE OSCAR.

STANCH'S SQUADRON NOW HAS ACCOUNTED FOR MORE THAN 100 JAPANESE PLANES. HIS TEAMMATES AND THEIR SCORES TODAY, INCLUDE:

RICHARD SMITH, (10145 HARLAN AVENUE) EVANSVILLE,IND., TWO MESSERSCHMITTS DESTROYED; GORDON BROWN PRENTICE, CLEVELAND,OHIO

(NO STREET ADDRESS GIVEN). MESSERSCHMITT PROBABLE; WILLIAM METTLER, EVERETT,OHIO, ZERO PROBABLE.

OTHER SCORING PILOTS BELONGED TO THE FAMOUS HEAD HUNTER SQUADRON. SECOND LIEUT.DON HANOVER,JR., OF FOSTORIA,OHIO, DOWNED A TWIN-ENGINED FIGHTER. ALL THE OTHER SCORERS IN HIS SQUADRON GOT ZEROS. THEY INCLUDED:

SECOND LIEUT.ELWOOD KRISMER,ICONESUS,N.Y., ONE CERTAIN AND ONE PROBABLE, AND FIRST LIEUT.JOHN JONES, PATTERSON,N.J., TWO CERTAINS.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JULY 17-(AP)-(DELAYED)-STAFF SGT. VICTOR MOSKOWITZ IS TALL, LEAN, BROAD SHOULDERED, WITH BROWN HAIR THAT HE WEARS QUITE LONG AND A BODY THAT HAS BEEN TURNED A SMOOTH BROWN BY THE--OCCASIONAL--NEW GUINEA SUN. HE ALSO IS RESOURCEFUL.

JUL 23 1943

HE MISSED THE EARLY STAGES OF THE NASSAU BAY LANDING OPERATION BECAUSE THE HIGGINS BOAT OF WHICH HE IS COXSWAIN WAS HUNG UP ON A REEF MILES BELOW THAT BEACH, AND JUST OFF ANOTHER ISLAND. DURING THE NINE DAYS AND 10 NIGHTS THAT HE WAS STRANDED THERE WITH NINE OTHER MEN, THIS NEWARK (N.J.) YOUNGSTER PROVED HIMSELF A GOOD LEADER.

THREE OF THE MEN WERE IN HIS BOAT CREW--SGT.CECIL LINSCOT OF SLOAN, IA.; CPL. TOM WILLIAMS, OF JACKSONVILLE, ILL., AND PFC. REUBEN PETERSON OF WINDHAM, MINN. THE SIX OTHERS WERE INFANTRYMEN.

MOSKOWITZ APPOINTED HIMSELF C.O., WITH LINSCOT AS HIS EXECUTIVE OFFICER. HE MADE SURE THEIR CAMP WAS WELL-CAMOUFLAGED UNDER THE TREES AND HAD THE MEN DIG SLIT TRENCHES.

WHEN ONE OF THE INFANTRYMEN, AFTER FOUR DAYS ON THE ISLAND, STARTED TO GET NERVOUS BECAUSE HE COULDN'T SWIM, MOSKOWITZ CALMED HIM DOWN BY SAYING:

"SO WHAT? NEITHER CAN I."

WHEN A RISING SEA LIFTED THE HIGGINS BOAT OFF THE REEF AND LANDED IT UP ON THE ISLAND'S BEACH, MOSKOWITZ AND HIS MEN BUILT A REVETMENT AROUND IT, AS PROTECTION FROM BOMBING.

JUL 23 1943

MEANWHILE, THE CREW WORKED ON THE BOAT. ALL THREE BLADES HAD SNAPPED OFF ITS PROPELLER. THEY FITTED A NEW ONE ONTO HER.

FINALLY THE BOAT WAS READY. DURING THE DAY THE MEN MANHANDLED IT DOWN THE SLOPE OF THE BEACH AS FAR AS THEY COULD. THAT NIGHT MOSKOWITZ ORDERED EVERYONE TO SLEEP ABOARD. BEFORE DAWN HE FELT THE BOAT SHIFT SLIGHTLY. THE TIDE HAD COME IN.

HE WAITED UNTIL IT WAS FULL, THEN REVERSED THE ENGINES. THE BOAT INCHED BACK, THEN SLID FASTER, FINALLY WAS CLEAR. IT BOUNCED ONCE, ON A CORAL REEF, THEN WAS OUT IN OPEN WATER AGAIN.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA-(AP)-THE ARMY'S AMPHIBIAN ENGINEERS BECAME FRONT LINE FIGHTING TROOPS DURING THE LANDING AT NASSAU BAY ON THE STORMY MIDNIGHT OF JULY 1.

SOME OF THEIR BOATS WERE UPSET IN THE SURF, BUT THE ENGINEERS SALVAGED 20-CALIBRE MACHINE GUNS, DUG FOXHOLES AND SOON WERE LEARNING TO SHOOT JAPANESE.

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE INCIDENTS:

30.24-6437

A TECHNICAL SERGEANT, STRAPPING BOWATER PEARSON FROM ATTICA, IND., WAS THE .50-CALIBER GUNNER ON A TANK LIGHTER THAT COULDN'T GET OFF THE BEACH. HE GOT ASHORE DRESSED ONLY IN SHOES AND SHORTS, SALVAGED A GREEN-SPOTTED COVERALL, AND WHEN REINFORCEMENTS WERE CALLED FOR ON THE RIGHT FLANK, HE WAS READY. HE TOOK TWO TOMMYGUNNERS AND NINE RIFLEMEN 300 YARDS UP THE BEACH AND ABOUT 100 YARDS INLAND.

FOR FIVE HOURS PEARSON'S MEN WERE LESS THAN 100 YARDS AWAY FROM A JAPANESE MACHINE GUN, ALTHOUGH PEARSON DECLARED, "SOME TIMES IT FELT LIKE IT WAS ONLY 25." HE TOLD, TOO, OF A JAPANESE WHO ALMOST SUCCEEDED IN SIGNALING A LANDING BARGE TO AN AMBUSH.

JUL 23 1943

"ABOUT 150 MEN CAME OFF THOSE BOATS AND A SINGLE JAP SNIPER FIRED ON THEM," PEARSON RELATED. "NOBODY PROBABLY EVER WAS HIT AS MANY TIMES AS THAT LITTLE SUCKER."

THEN THERE WAS SGT.WILLARD J.BARLOW, SOFT-SPOKEN BARGE COXSWAIN FROM ORANGE, TEX., WHO DELIBERATELY EXPOSED HIMSELF SO HIS MATES COULD LOCATE AND ELIMINATE A JAPANESE MACHINE GUN. HE ALSO HAD A COUPLE OF JAPANESE TO HIS CREDIT.

STAFF SGT.FRANCIS M.LOISELLE OF NILFORD, N.H., AND CPL. GEORGE R.LIVINGSTON OF WHITE HALL, ILL., WERE HAULING A WOUNDED MAN TO SAFETY, UNAWARE THAT THEY WERE BEING STALKED BY TWO JAPANESE. PFC.DALLAS N.MOREAU OF SAN DIEGO, IALIF., HAULED OUT HIS HUNTING KNIFE AND KILLED ONE OF THE ENEMY IN HAND-TO-HAND COMBAT. LANKY LIVINGSTON DROPPED THE OTHER WITH A BULLET AFTER BEING NICKED BY A SHOT WHICH PIERCED THE SIDE OF HIS HEIMET AND PUNCTURED HIS EAR LOBE.

TWO OF THE TORPEDOES FOUND THE MARK.

THE 25-(YEAR-OLD PILOT ENLISTED IN 1940, AFTER GRADUATION FROM NOTRE DAME. HE RECEIVED HIS WINGS IN SEPTEMBER, 1941, BECAME A FIRST LIEUTENANT LAST EPTEMBER AND A CAPTAIN IN DECEMBER.

A UNITED STATES FIGHTER BASE IN EASTERN CHINA, JULY 20--(DELAYED)-(AP)-SIX P-40 PILOTS WHOSE TRIGGER FINGERS WERE ITCHY AFTER A LONG LAY-OFF DUE TO BAD WEATHER, MADE UP FOR LOST TIME IN A BIG WAY TODAY BY SETTING FIRE TO TWO LARGE JAPANESE FREIGHTERS, SHOOTING UP SEVERAL SMALLER YANGTZE RIVER VESSELS AND THEN STRAFING THREE LOCOMOTIVES ON THE ENEMY-HELD HANKOW-CANTON RAILWAY.

THE RAID WAS LED BY COL. BRUCE K. HOLLOWAY OF KNOXVILLE, TENN., WHO PERSONALLY ACCOUNTED FOR THE THREE LOCOMOTIVES.

"BELIEVE ME, IT WAS A THRILLING SIGHT TO SEE WATER AND STEAM SPOUTING EVERY WHICH WAY WHEN I OPENED UP WITH EVERYTHING I HAD FROM ALTITUDES RANGING FROM ZERO TO 25 FEET," HOLLOWAY SAID.

THE ATTACKS ON YANGTZE SHIPPING WERE LED BY LIEUTENANTS JAMES WILLIAMS OF GEORGETOWN, TEX., AND JOHN S. STEWART OF WORLAND, WYO.

THE FIRST FREIGHTER ATTACKED WAS A 150-FOOTER. HER BOILER EXPLODED AND THE WHOLE VESSEL WAS AFLAME WHEN THE P-40'S ROARED AWAY. WHEN THE FIGHTERS STRAFED THE SECOND FREIGHTER, A 100-FOOTER, SHE STEAMED FULL SPEED INTO THE BANK AND OVERTURNED.

HOLLOWAY POINTED OUT THAT THE LOSS OF THE THREE LOCOMOTIVES WAS A HARD BLOW TO THE JAPANESE AS THEY ARE DIFFICULT TO REPLACE OR REPAIR. ONE OF THE LOCOMOTIVES WAS PULLING EIGHT TO 10 CARS WHICH HOLLOWAY AND HIS COMPANIONS SPRINKLED GENEROUSLY WITH INCENDIARIES.

THE RAIDS WERE THE FIRST FOR LIEUT. EDWARD W. BURBANK OF DALLAS, TEX., AND LIEUT. RICHARD J. TEMPLETON OF STEINAUER, NEB.

LIEUT. DALE BELL OF SAN LUIS OBISPO, CALIF., WAS THE SIXTH PILOT.

JUL 23 1943

HONOLULU, JULY 22-(AP)-LIEUT.GEN. ROBERT C.RICHARDSON JR., MILITARY GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER OF THE ARMY'S HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT, DECLARED TODAY THAT AMERICANS OF JAPANESE EXTRACTION "ARE JUST AS MUCH AMERICAN CITIZENS AS I AM."

THE STATEMENT, MADE BEFORE A STUDENT ASSEMBLY AT THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII, FORECAST A POLICY BY GENERAL RICHARDSON PATTERNED AFTER THATOF HIS PREDECESSOR, LIEUT. GEN. DELOS C.EMMONS, WHOM HE SUCCEEDED JUNE 1.

EMMONS ADOPTED A TOLERANT POLICY TOWARD THE JAPANESE-AMERICANS, WHO ARE URGENTLY NEEDED AS LABORERS.

"YOU ARE NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR WHAT YOUR ANCESTORS DID ANY MORE THAN I AM FOR WHAT THE ENGLISH DID 300 YEARS AGO--AND THEY DID SOME PRETTY BAD THINGS," GENERAL RICHARDSON TOLD HIS AUDIENCE, WHICHN

INCLUDED SOME JAPANESE-AMERICAN STUDENTS.

"YOU AMERICANS OF JAPANESE ANCESTRY MUST NOT BE TOO SENSITIVE," HE ADDED. "I KNOW IT IS VERY HARD NOT TO BE."

CHUNGKING, JULY 22-(AP)--CHINA AND MEXICO HAVE DECIDED TO ELEVATE THEIR RESPECTIVE LEGATIONS TO THE STATUS OF EMBASSIES, THE FOREIGN OFFICE ANNOUNCED TODAY.

MEXICO CITY, JULY 22-(AP)-GEN. MAXIMINO AVILA CAMACHO, IN CHARGE OF ROAD BUILDING IN MEXICO, ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT IT WOULD BE POSSIBLE TO DRIVE AN AUTOMOBILE COMFORTABLY BETWEEN EL PASO, TEXAS, AND MEXICO "IN THE VERY NEAR FUTURE" AND OVER AN ALL-PAVED HIGHWAY 18 MONTHS HENCE.

JUL 23 1943

THE INFORMATION WAS GIVEN TO A DELEGATION OF UNITED STATES AND MEXICAN ROAD BOOSTERS, HEADED BY U.S. SENATOR DENNIS CHAVEZ OF NEW MEXICO.

PADILLA TELLS MEETING U.S.
FOR ALL (500)
BY JOHN LLOYD

MEXICO CITY, JULY 22-(AP)-A STATEMENT BY MEXICO'S FOREIGN MINISTER EZEQUIEL PADILLA THAT LATIN AMERICAN ARMED HELP WILL BE FORTHCOMING IF IT IS NEEDED TO DEFEAT THE AXIS DREW ROUNDS OF APPLAUSE FROM EMINENT LATIN AMERICAN STATESMEN MEETING HERE IN SUPPORT OF THE WAR EFFORT.

THE SUBJECT OF LATIN AMERICAN PARTICIPATION ON THE BATTLE FRONTS HAS BEEN ONE OF CONSIDERABLE DEBATE AND OF CONFLICTING REPORTS. PADILLA MADE AN IMPORTANT POINT OF IT IN A SPEECH HE DELIVERED TO THE EMERGENCY CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE FOR CONTINENTAL DEFENSE, WHICH WAS WIDELY PUBLISHED HERE TODAY.

JUL 23 1943

HE DID NOT INSIST THAT LATIN AMERICAN ARMED HELP BE CALLED UPON AT THIS TIME, BUT SAID TRADITION AND BELIEF IN THE ALLIED CAUSE SHOULD CERTAINLY PROMPT LATIN AMERICA TO THROW TROOPS INTO THE STRUGGLE IF THE SITUATION DEMANDED IT AND NECESSARY EQUIPMENT COULD BE OBTAINEDM

CADILLA WAS ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING LEADERS AT THE MEETING OF AMERICAN FOREIGN MINISTERS IN RIO DE JANEIRO IN 1942. IT WAS AT THAT MEETING THAT THE COMMITTEE NOW MEETING HERE WAS ORGANIZED. ITS PURPOSE BEING TO STUDY AXIS SABOTAGE, ESPIONAGE AND PROPAGANDA AND DEVISE MEASURES TO COUNTERACT THEM.

HIS STANDING AMONG THE REST OF THE LATIN AMERICANS WAS SUMMED UP BY MARIO PIMENTEL BRANDAO, VICE PRESIDENT OF THE COMMITTEE AND FORMER

FOREIGN MINISTER OF BRAZIL. PADILLA'S VOICE, BRANDAO SAID, "CONVOKED THE PEOPLES OF AMERICA TO A CRUSADE."

POINTING OUT THAT THE BURDEN OF THE MILITARY DEFENSE OF THE AMERICAS HAS FALLEN UPON THE UNITED STATES, PADILLA PAID SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO THE WAY THAT COUNTRY IS CARRYING ON THE FIGHT.

"ITS IMMENSE RESOURCES, MARVELOUS TECHNICAL ORGANIZATION AND AMAZING POSSIBILITIES FOR ORGANIZING MODERN ARMIES HAVE MADE OF IT A GREAT MILITARY POWER WHICH IS FIGHTING WITH EXEMPLARY HEROISM AND DEVOTION TO THE CAUSES OF LIBERTY AND JUSTICE," HE SAID.

"THESE ARE VIRTUES WHICH CONSTITUTE -- AS OUR PRESIDENT MANUEL AVILA CAMACHO (OF MEXICO) HAS SAID -- A MATTER OF PRIDE FOR THE WHOLE CONTINENT."

JUL 23 1943

PADILLA POINTED OUT THAT THE NATIONS OF LATIN AMERICA HAD LACKED THE RESOURCES AND EQUIPMENT NEEDED FOR MODERN WARFARE. "THIS FACT," HE WARNED, "WILL CONTINUE AS A LESSON DURING THE UNCERTAINTIES OF THE FUTURE."

LATIN AMERICA, WHILE NOT REPRESENTED AT THE BATTLE FRONT, HE ADDED, IS FULLY EMBARKED UPON A "VERVID AND CONSCIENTIOUS" PRODUCTION CAMPAIGN TO BACK UP THE WAR EFFORT.

EACH OF THE LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRIES, HE DECLARED, "IS A BULWARK OF SECURITY AGAINST ANY POSSIBLE USE OF AMERICAN SOIL FOR ATTACK AGAINST ANY OF OUR BROTHER PEOPLES."

THE COMMITTEE PREVIOUSLY MET AT MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, AND IS TO HOLD FURTHER MEETINGS IN WASHINGTON.

AT THE MEETINGS HERE SPOKESMEN TALKED AGAINST THE ISOLATION IN WHICH AMERICAN COUNTRIES HAVE LIVED IN THE PAST.

VICTORY, PADILLA STATED, "WILL OPEN TO US CLEAR HORIZONS OF INTERNATIONAL DIGNITY, COLLECTIVE SECURITY AND A STEADY CLIMB TO THE FRUITFUL PRACTICES OF LIBERTY.

"ALTHOUGH THE GREAT MAJORITY OF OUR AMERICAN PEOPLES HAVE BEEN ABLE UNTIL NOW TO LIVE IN ISOLATION, THIS WILL NOT AGAIN HAPPEN IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD. X X X ISOLATION IN THE FUTURE, FOR GREAT OR SMALL PEOPLES, WILL BE MERELY A SENSELESS FORM OF RETROCESSION OR SUICIDE.

"WE ARE, IN THE ALLIED CAUSE, DEFENDING A UNITED AMERICA. WE ARE DOING THIS NOT BECAUSE OF GEOGRAPHICAL FATALISM, DIPLOMATIC OPPORTUNISM OR BECAUSE THE ROAD IS CLOSED TO ANY OTHER ATTITUDE. WE ARE -- ALL OF AMERICA -- FOR THE DEMOCRATIC CAUSE BECAUSE THUS WE ARE DEFENDING THE INVIOLABILITY OF OUR HISTORICAL DESTINY, OUR INTERNATIONAL SECURITY AND OUR VERY FREEDOM.

'JIM CROW-ISM'

JUL 23 1943

BY JOSEPH E.BYRNAN

(ADVANCE) SAN JUAN, P.R.--(AP)-AS UNCLE SAM PUSHES HIS EFFORTS TO ACHIEVE CLOSER RELATIONS WITH HIS NEIGHBORS TO THE SOUTH, BOTH FOR THE WAR EFFORT AND THE POSTWAR ERA, HE IS FINDING ONE HURDLE IN AN

30.24-6441

UNEXPECTED QUARTER--THE RACE QUESTION.

WHILE AMERICANS ARE BEING GENERALLY WELCOMED BY THE DARKER PEOPLES TO THE SOUTH, THERE ARE SOME AMONG THE COLORED POPULATIONS WHO DO SO WITH MISGIVINGS. THE AMERICAN ATTITUDE ON THE RACIAL QUESTION, EXPLOITED AMONG THESE PEOPLE BY CLEVER ENEMY PROPAGANDISTS, IS SIPHONING OFF SOME OF THE "RESERVOIR OF GOODWILL" WHICH WENDELL WILLKIE DISCOVERED ON HIS GLOBE-CIRCLING TRIP.

JUL 23 1943

SUCH INCIDENTS AS THE LOS ANGELES ZOOT SUIT WARS CAN ONLY DEEPEN THESE MISGIVINGS, WHICH ARE GRADUALLY SPREADING AMONG NEGRO AND MULATTO PEOPLES OF THE WEST INDIES AND THE NORTH SHORES OF SOUTH AMERICA WHERE THE ATLANTIC CHARTER IS TAKEN VERY SERIOUSLY. TO MOST OF THEM, THE IMPLICIT PLEDGES MADE BY THE UNITED NATIONS FOR RACIAL EQUALITY HAVE AN IMPORTANCE UNREALIZED IN THE UNITED STATES.

IN THESE ISLANDS, IN THE GUIANAS, AND IN MOST PARTS OF 1943
BRAZIL, THE COLOR LINE, AS "JIM CROW" STATES KNOW IT, IS NON-EXISTENT, OR IS BEING EFFACED BY THE HETEROGENIOUS NATURE OF THEIR POPULATIONS. IN THESE REGIONS, A NEGRO HAS A PLACE VIRTUALLY AT PAR. DISCRIMINATION, SUCH AS IT, IS ON A CLASS BASIS RATHER THAN COLOR.

IF A NEGRO QUALIFIES HIMSELF FOR ACCEPTANCE INTO THE BEST SOCIEETY, HE IS ACCEPTED THERE. IF HE ACTS AS A GENTLEMAN, HE IS TREATED AS ONE. OF COURSE, THE CYNICAL SAY IT IS DIFFICULT FOR A NEGRO TO BE QUALIFIED FOR THE BEST SOCIETY, AND PERHAPS THIS IS SO. BUT THE FACT REMAINS, HE IS CONVINCED THAT IF HE IS QUALIFIED HE WILL BE ACCEPTED, AND THIS IS TRUE.

ENOUGH OF THEM MAKE THE GRADE FOR THE NEGRO TO BE REASONABLY SATISFIED WITH THE PRESENT SYSTEM WHICH HE FEARS THE YANKEES, WITH THEIR JIM CROW IDEAS, MAY DISRUPT.

BUT THESE PEOPLE WELCOME AMERICAN ENTRY INTO THEIR ISLANDS AND COLONIES. THEY FEEL IT BRINGS CAPITAL, INITIATIVE AND AGGRESSIVENESS. THEY FEEL THE INFLUX WILL LEAD TO BETTER DEVELOPMENT OF THEIR RESOURCES.

MOST OF THESE PEOPLE FEEL AMERICAN IN A HEMISPHERE SENSE, TOO. AS ONE RESIDENT OF CAYENNE, IN COMMENTING ON PROSPECTS IN FRENCH GUIANA DURING THE UNCERTAIN DAYS OF VICHY RULE, SAID:

"WE NATURALLY FELT WE WERE FRENCH. BUT AFTER THAT WE ARE GOOD AMERICANS. IF WE WEREN'T ABLE TO CONTINUE AS FRENCH, WE CERTAINLY WERE NOT GOING TO BE GERMAN."

ONE LEADER IN ONE OF THE COLONES COMMENTED IN THIS FASHIN:

"WE ADMIRE THE AMERICANS FOR THEIR ABILITY OF ACHIEVEMENT AND WE THINK THIS WILL BE GOOD FOR THE COLONY. BUT THERE'S ONE THING WE DO NOT WANT INTRODUCED HERE, AND THAT IS THE AMERICAN SOCIAL SYSTEM AS REGARDS THE NEGRO. WE FEEL THAT WILL DAMAGE OUR PRESENT STATUS.

"WE UNDERSTAND SOMETHING OF CONDITIONS THERE, AND FEEL THAT IS YOUR AFFAIR. BUT WE DO NOT WANT THAT ATTITUDE INJECTED HER WHERE WE HAVE ANOTHE

JUL 23 1943

YOUR AFFAIR. BUT WE DO NOT WANT THAT ATTITUDE INJECTED HERE WHERE WE HAVE ANOTHER, AND FOR US A BETTER, ATTITUDE," HE SAID.

ONE INSTANCE OF SUCH AN INJECTION WAS POINTED OUT. THIS, HE SAID, WAS AT THE UNITED STATES ENGINEERS CAMP ESTABLISHED FOR CONSTRUCTION WORKERS RECRUITED AMONG THE NATIVE POPULATION. THE WORKERS WERE SURPRISED, AND THE NEGROES AMONG THEM WERE FILLED WITH CONSTERNATION,

TO FIND THE USED HAD BUILT SEPARATE CAMPS FOR NEGROES AND WHITES, THE FIRST TIME, SO THIS LEADER SAID, THAT JIM CROW HAD EVER BEEN HEARD OF IN THE COLONY.

MOST OF THE WHITES, TANS AND BLACKS WHO ORDINARILY LIVE SIDE BY SIDE IN MIXED NEIGHBORHOODS, THOUGHT IT STRANGE, BUT CONCLUDED THEY WOULD HAVE TO ABIDE BY THE RULE IN ORDER TO KEEP THEIR JOBS. NEGROES FELT THAT IF THE WHITES DID NOT WANT TO LIVE NEAR THEM AT CAMP, IT WAS ALL RIGHT WITH THEM. THEY HAD NO PARTICULAR DESIRE TO GO WHERE THEY WERE NOT WANTED.

AT LEAST, SUCH WAS THE ATTITUDE AS REPORTED BY LEADING NEGRO AND MULATTO CITIZENS OF THE COLONY.

JUL 23 1943

THIS, THEY CONCLUDED, WAS AN INDICATION OF AN ATTITUDE WHICH MIGHT PREJUDICE THEM IN ALL PHASES OF COLONIAL LIFE, AND THEY RESOLVED TO PREVENT ITS SPREAD IF POSSIBLE. NEGROES IN MOST OF THESE COMMUNITIES HAVE LEADING POSITIONS IN POLITICAL AND COMMUNAL LIFE, SUCH AS ALBERT DARNAL, FORMER MAYOR OF CAYENNE AND NOW PRESIDENT OF THE FRENCH GUIANA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

THE TWO LEADING LABOR EXECUTIVES ARE A NEGRO AND AN EAST INDIAN, HEADS OF THE STEVEDORES AND FARM LABOR UNIONS RSPECTIVELY. THESE REFLECT A STANDING WHICH NEGROES FEAR MAY BE TAKEN AWAY FROM THEM IF THE AMERICAN WAY IS TO PREVAIL.

ALL OF WHICH MAKES EXCELLENT PROPAGANDA FOR THE JAPANESE, NOT ONLY IN THIS SECTOR BUT PARTICULARLY IN EAST ASIA WHERE RADIO TOKYO CAN HAVE AND PROBABLY DOES HAVE A REGULAR /IELD DAY WITH THIS SORT OF MATERIAL. THE NAZIS, ON THE OTHER HAND, ARI WORSE OFF IN THIS MATTER BECAUSE NAZI RACIAL THEORIES ARI WELL-KNOWN TO NATIVES IN THESE REGIONS. MANY NATIVES OF THESE ISLANDS AND SOUTH AMERICAN COLONIES ARE DESCENDANTS OF EAST ASIATIC--JAVANESE, CHINESE, HINDUS, ETC.--AND JAPAN, ESTABLISHED IN THE HOMELANDS OF THESE PEOPLE, IS MAKING EVERY EFFORT TO REACH THE SECOND AND THIRD GENERATIONS OVERSEAS.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NE
BY KIRKE L.SIMPSON

THE DEADLY ANGLO-AMERICAN TRAP DEVELOPING IN SICILY IS OMINOUS ENOUGH FOR THE AXIS, BUT HITLER IS THREATENED WITH AN EVEN GREATER DISASTER IN CENTRAL RUSSIA, WHERE RED ARMIES ARE TIGHTENING A NOOSE ABOUT OREL.

WITH THE INDICATED EARLY FALL OF THAT VITAL LINK BETWEEN THE SOUTH

30.24-6445

AND CENTRAL GERMAN FRONTS IN RUSSIA, THE WHOLE LINE FROM VITEBSK IN THE NORTH TO TAGANROG IN THE SOUTH WOULD BEGIN TO BUCKLE. THE COLLAPSE OF THE OREL REDOUBT WOULD EXPOSE THE BRYANSK PIVOT TO THE SAME TRIPLE ATTACK TECHNIQUE THAT HAS ALL BUT NIPPED A QUARTER MILLION ENEMY TROOPS IN THE OREL TRAP.

AND WITH BRYANSK TOTTERING OR EVEN CLOSELY INVESTED THE WHOLE LINE SOUTH OF THE LOVAT AND EAST OF THE DNIEPER MUST BEGIN TO TOTTER. HITLER IS THAT CLOSE TO HIS GREATEST DEFEAT AND HIS MOST RISKY RETREAT AT THE VERY MOMENT THAT THE SOUTHERN WALLS OF HIS EUROPEAN FORTRESS ARE STARTING TO CRUMBLE IN SICILY.

CURRENT REPORTS FROM MOSCOW PLACE RUSSIAN FORCES ONLY FIVE MILES NORTH OF THE DOUBLE RAIL LINK CONNECTING BRYANSK AND OREL AT A POINT ABO MID-WAY BETWEEN THOSE TWIN BASTIONS OF THE GERMAN FRONT. RUS" HEAVY GUNS HAVE CERTAINLY HAD THAT SUPPLY LINE OF THE OREL SA DER DEVASTATING FIRE FOR SEVERAL DAYS. THE ADVANCE DOWN TH RIVER VALLEY FROM THE CREST OF THE OKA WATERSHED HAS BR TROOPS ALMOST WITHIN SIGHT OF KERACHEV. THAT TOWN L: MILES EAST OF BRYANSK AND THROUGH IT PASS THE RAIL ROUTES BE N BRYANSK AND OREL. HEAVY AIR BOMBING OF KERACHEV TO SUPPLE-ME THE GROUND ATTACK IS REPORTED.

OUTHWEST OF OREL, ON THE UPPER PERIMETER OF THE KURSK BULGE WHICH THE NAZIS FAILED DISMALLY TO SMASH, OTHER RED LEGIONS ARE FORGING SLOWLY NORTHEASTWARD, OBVIOUSLY AIMED AT A JUNCTION WITH COMRADES DRIVING DOWN ON KERACHEV TO SNAP SHUT THE OREL TRAP. THEY ARE ASTRIDE BOTH SOUTH RAIL OUTLETS FROM OREL TO KURSK AND KHARKOV. FORMERLY THESE OUTLETS, TOGETHER WITH THE OREL-BRYANSK CONNECTIONS, MADE OREL A MAIN STATION OF THE GERMAN FRONT LINE FEEDER SYSTEM.

JUL 23 1943

IT HAS LOST THAT VALUE NOW. THE OREL GARRISON HAS NO ADEQUATE ROAD OR RAIL SUPPLY LINE WHICH IS NOT CLOSELY THREATENED BY ADVANCING RUSSIAN FORCES.

IN THE LIGHT OF THIS INDICATED SITUATION ON THE NORTH AND SOUTH FACES OF THE SALIENT, DEVELOPMENTS IN THE CENTER, EAST AND NORTHEAST OF OREL ITSELF, TAKE ON A SIGNIFICANT MEANING. THE MOST NOTABLE RUSSIAN ADVANCES YESTERDAY WERE RECORDED THERE. THEY TOOK OPTUKHA, ON THE OREL-TULA RAILROAD, ONLY FIVE MILES FROM THE OUTSKIRTS OF OREL ITSELF, AND ZOLOTAREVO, ON THE OREL-YELETS LINE TO THE SOUTH, ONLY 11 MILES FROM OREL, IN A TWIN THRUST AT THE APEX OF THE SALIENT.

THE NAZI SURRENDER OF THOSE TWO EASTERN OUTPOSTS FOR OREL HINTS THAT AN ATTEMPTED RETREAT FROM THE WHOLE SALIENT MAY BE IMPENDING OR IN PROGRESS. AS AT STALINGRAD AND IN EVERY OTHER RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE, THE DIRECT FRONTAL PUSH IN THE CENTER IS OBVIOUSLY A HOLDING OPERATION. IT IS DESIGNED TO PIN THE OREL GARRISON TO ITS APEX DEFENSES WHILE THE NORTH AND SOUTH JAWS OF THE TRAP CLOSE IN BEHIND IT. THAT WAS WHAT HAPPENED AT STALINGRAD, TO MAKE IT THE GREATEST GERMAN DISASTER OF THE WAR TO DATE.

LT339PEW

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

IT CERTAINLY GIVES ONE A GRATEFUL FEELING OF SECURITY TO HEAR VICE-ADMIRAL FREDERICK HORNE, VICE-CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS, SAY THE NAVY IS PLANNING FOR A PACIFIC WAR "THAT WILL LAST AT LEAST UNTIL 1949," BUT IT'S EQUALLY GOOD TO NOTE THAT HE DOESN'T SPECIFICALLY STATE HE BELIEVES THE CONFLICT NECESSARILY WILL RUN THAT LONG.

SIX MORE YEARS MIGHT NOT MEAN MUCH TO A TORTOISE WHICH HAS AN EXPECTANCY OF 200 YEARS OF LIFE, BUT IT'S AN AWFULLY LONG TIME TO THE AVERAGE CITIZEN WHO IS LOOKING FORWARD TO THE DAY WHEN HE CAN TAKE HIS CAR OUT OF STORAGE AND DRIVE INTO THE COUNTRYSIDE FOR A STEAK SMOTHERED WITH ONIONS.

JUL 23 1943

WHEN JAMES F.BYRNES, DIRECTOR OF WAR MOBILIZATION, WAS ASKED ABOUT THE ADMIRAL'S STATEMENT HE REPLIED: "IF ANYONE ELSE IS PLANNING ON THAT BASIS, I DO NOT KNOW THAT THEY ARE." T.V.SOONG, CHINA'S ASTUTE FOREIGN MINISTER WHO IS NOW IN WASHINGTON, REMARKED THAT IT'S "ANYBODY'S GUESS" HOW LONG THE FIGHT WITH JAPAN WILL LAST--AND THAT SEEMS TO BE A FAIR ASSAY OF THE SITUATION.

ONE THING WE'RE SURE OF IS THAT WHATEVER THE DURATION OF THE WAR, IT WILL BE PLENTY LONG AND PAINFUL. ITS LENGTH AND BLOODSHED AND PRIVATIONS WILL DEPEND MAINLY ON CIVILIAN EFFORTS IN PRODUCING SINEWS OF VICTORY. WE MUST NEITHER ALLOW OURSELVES TO GROW SLACK BECAUSE OF OVER-CONFIDENCE, NOR BECOME DESPONDENT--AND THEREFORE INEFFICIENT--FOR FEAR OF A LONG WAR.

UNFORTUNATELY THE AMOUNT OF STRIKING POWER THE ALLIES COULD TURN AGAINST JAPAN HAS BEEN LARGELY DEPENDENT ON THE DEMANDS OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT. HOWEVER, THINGS ARE LOOKING DECIDEDLY BRIGHTER IN THE PACIFIC AS OUR INDUSTRIAL EFFORTS BEGIN TO PYRAMID. IT'S ENCOURAGING--THOUGH SURELY NOTHING TO CAUSE COMPLACENCE--TO SEE THE UNITED NATIONS GO ON THE OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE MIKADO'S FORCES AT THE SAME TIME AS THE ALLIES LAUNCH THEIR "BEGINNING OF THE END" DRIVES IN EUROPE.

AS WITNESS TO OUR PROGRESS WE HAVE YESTERDAY'S GREAT ALLIED AIRRAID ON BAIROKO HARBOR, NEW GEORGIA, WHEN 150 BOMBERS DUMPED 133 TONS OF GRIEF ON THE JAPS. THIS WAS A COMPANION PIECE TO LAST SATURDAY'S HUGE AERIAL ATTACK BY 192 OF OUR WARPLANES ON KAHILI, JAPAN'S KEY BASE IN THE SOLOMONS, WHEN NINE ENEMY SHIPS, INCLUDING A CRUISER AND THREE DESTROYERS WERE SUNK.

JUL 23 1943

THE FIELD OF ALLIED AGGRESSIVENESS COVERS THE WHOLE VAST PACIFIC AREA. OUR WARSHIPS AGAIN HAVE BLASTED THE NIPPONESE DEFENSES ON KISKA ISLAND, UP IN THE ALEUTIANS, IN PREPARATION FOR INVASION. THE TIME MUST BE NEAR FOR THE AMPHIBIOUS ASSAULT WHICH WILL RETURN KISKA TO AMERICAN HANDS. THAT WILL LESSEN THE JAP THREAT TO ALASKA AND GIVE US ANOTHER IMPORTANT AIR-BASE WITHIN REACH OF ENEMY TERRITORY.

ALMOST COINCIDENT WITH THE KISKA ASSAULT, AMERICAN BOMBERS MADE THE FIRST RAID ON JAPAN'S NORTHERNMOST ISLAND BASE--PARAMUSHIRO, ON THE TIP OF THE KURILE CHAIN. WE APPARENTLY WERE OPERATING FROM AMCHITKA, IN THE WESTERN ALEUTIANS, DEMONSTRATING THE FACT THAT WE CAN REACH OUT TO JAP TERRITORY FROM OUR OWN BASES.

AT THE SAME TIME AMERICAN LIBERATORS FROM AUSTRALIA BLASTED CELEBES. THESE TWO RAIDS, EACH OF WHICH REPRESENTED A ROUND TRIP OF ABOUT 2,000 MILES, ARE AMONG THE LONGEST BOMBING FLIGHTS ON RECORD. THAT'S SOMETHING FOR THE JAPS TO WORRY ABOUT.

SO IT GOES--A STORY OF STEADY ALLIED PROGRESS. DAILY WE ARE TEARING AT THE VITAL SINEWS OF THE JAP OCTOPUS. IN HIS EFFORTS TO CLING TO THE VAST EXPANSE OF ISLANDS WHICH HE GRASPED, HE IS EXPENDING RESOURCES WHICH HE CAN'T REPLACE AND CAN'T AFFORD TO LOSE.

SINCE PEARL HARBOR THE ALLIES HAVE DESTROYED CLOSE TO 650 JAPANESE SHIPS OF ALL TYPES, INCLUDING SOME 230 WAR VESSELS. THE ENEMY AIR LOSSES HAVE BEEN GRAVE. FIGURES CHANGE ALMOST HOURLY, BUT THE TREND CAN BE SEEN IN THE FACT THAT SINCE WE BEGAN OUR OFFENSIVE IN THE NEW GEORGIA AREA THE FIRST OF THIS MONTH, WE HAVE DESTROYED MORE THAN 300 JAP WARPLANES.

THE CUMULATIVE EFFECT OF THIS WILL BE GREAT, WHEN FINALLY ANGLO-AMERICAN SEA AND AIR POWER IS RELEASED FROM THE EUROPEAN THEATRE AND CAN BE HURLED AT THE MIKADO.

WASHINGTON, JULY 22-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT EXPRESSED ADMIRATION FOR THE SUFFERING BELGIANS TODAY IN A MESSAGE SENT TO PRIME MINISTER HUBERT PIERLOT OF THE BELGIUM GOVERNMENT IN EXILE AT LONDON ON BELGIUM'S NATIONAL HOLIDAY.

JUL 23 1943

THE MESSAGE SAID:

"ON THE ANNIVERSARY OF YOUR COUNTRY'S NATIONAL INDEPENDENCE, THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES WISH TO RENEW THE EXPRESSIONS OF THEIR FRIENDSHIP AND ADMIRATION FOR THE PEOPLE OF BELGIUM. THE SUFFERING WHICH THEY HAVE ENDURED FOR MORE THAN THREE YEARS UNDER NAZI OCCUPATION INSPIRES AWE AND HUMILITY IN THE WORLD STILL FREE.

"THERE IS LIKEWISE APPRECIATION OF THE RESOURCES OF THE BELGIAN CONGO WHICH HAVE BEEN POOLED IN THE COMMON STRUGGLE. I TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO EXTEND TO YOUR EXCELLENCY AND TO THE MEMBERS OF YOUR GOVERNMENT MY BEST PERSONAL WISHES AND TO EXPRESS MY CONFIDENCE IN THE EARLY LIBERATION OF YOUR COUNTRY."

30.24-6447

ALASKA — WORDEN —

[redacted] IT IS STILL POSSIBLE BOMBERS MIGHT BE FLOWN FROM PARAMUSHIRO, THE JAPANESE BASE AT THE NORTH END OF THE KURILE ISLANDS WHICH WAS RAIDED RECENTLY BY AMERICAN FLIERS FROM THE ALEUTIANS, OR FROM CARRIERS WHICH COULD VENTURE A SHORT DISTANCE INTO NORTHERN WATERS AND RETREAT AS SOON AS ITS PLANES TAKE OFF.

USE OF THE RUNWAY STILL IS MADE DIFFICULT, TOO, BY THE CONTINUAL AMERICAN AIR RAIDS ON KISKA, WHICH STILL ARE PROCEEDING DAILY, WHEN THE WEATHER PERMITS. THESE AMERICAN RAIDERS IN THE PAST SEVERAL WEEKS HAVE BEEN USING DELAYED ACTION BOMBS ALONG WITH REGULAR BOMBS. THE VALUE OF THE DELAYED ACTION MISSILES IS PRINCIPALLY THAT THEY PREVENT RECONSTRUCTION OF THE RUNWAY FOR A LONGER PERIOD. THE JAPANESE MUST NOT ONLY WATCH FOR NEW RAIDS, BUT MUST USE EXTREME CARE IN HANDLING WHAT APPEARS TO BE DUDS BUT PROBABLY ARE NOT.

JUL 23 1943

COMPLETION OF THE RUNWAY IS VIEWED AS FURTHER INDICATION THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE NO INTENTION OF ABANDONING KISKA WITHOUT A VICIOUS BATTLE TO THE END.

Americans Seize Palermo, Trap 45,000; Russians Storm Forts 5 Miles From Orel

RETREAT NEAR CATANIA BY AXIS HINTED; BRITISH PIERCE MAIN ENEMY LINE

In Balkans Reported Following Capture Of Sicilian Capital By U. S. Seventh Army

Wave Of Strikes And Sabotage In Italy, Rebellion

London, Saturday, July 24 (AP)—A Reuters Stockholm report said today that Axis forces had begun evacuating Sicily.

Reuters said the source of the report was a Bern (Switzerland) dispatch to the Svenska Dagbladet.

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 23 — An American armored column striking swiftly to the north coast has captured Palermo, capital of Sicily, to trap 45,000 or more Axis troops and apparently end Axis resistance in four fifths of the island.

The United States Seventh Army tanks and cars which thundered into the sixth largest Italian city from three sides already had begun fanning out to mop up thousands of Axis troops.

[A Rome radio broadcast recorded by NBC implied another Axis reverse on the eastern coast at Catania. "Our forces have readjusted their positions around Catania to the rear," said the broadcast, referring to the area where crack German troops have put up a stubborn defense against the British Eighth Army.

[Earlier the German radio said the British had temporarily pierced the main Axis line.]

The blow caused consternation among the surprised defenders and spread demoralization throughout the Axis camp.

Tank And Plane Tactics Used

An official announcement tonight said the Americans had applied their modern tank and plane tactics to capture the big city, which is the political and cultural center of Sicily.

One armored column hooked into the Sicilian capital from the southwest, another hit from the south and southeast, and a third cut northward to intercept enemy forces withdrawing from Palermo toward the east.

It is estimated that approximately three divisions, 45,000 men, now are cut off in western Sicily.

Up to last midnight the American Seventh Army had captured 27,000 prisoners, 250 guns, 500 vehicles and 10,000,000 rounds of ammunition, and had destroyed 84 tanks, of which 14 were 60-ton Mark VI Tigers. This was a conservative count.

Italian Crowds Cry "Peace"

Repercussions of the lightning seizure came from all over Italy and the Balkans.

Madrid dispatches said Italians demonstrated in the streets of Rome, Venice, Milan, Turin, Florence and Trieste, shouting "peace."

Strikes and sabotage were reported sweeping the country, and the Balkans was rumbling with reports of rebellion. Rome already was the scene of a large-scale civilian evacuation movement.

Falling Into Tunisia Pattern

The battle for Sicily appeared to be falling rapidly into the same pattern as the battle for Tunisia in its closing stages.

The capture of Palermo with its extensive shipping, naval and air facilities gave to the Allies a dominating port on the Tyrrhenian Sea approach to Rome, and reports at Allied headquarters tonight indicated that all Allied armies were converging swiftly toward the one remaining active battle line in northeastern Sicily.

Axis resistance was now compressed in the northeastern tip, in an area but little larger than Cap Bon, where Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim's army met catastrophe in Tunisia.

Defending Catania, the southern gateway to the escape port of Messina on this tip, the Nazi Hermann Goering Division fought with unabated tenacity in a battle which had held Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army veterans to a yard-by-yard progress for eight days.

Canadians Swing Around Flank

But the Canadians, on Montgomery's west wing, were reported swinging around the German's flank, meeting fierce resistance but driving the Fifteenth German Armored Division before them.

And the main American force, despite the sweep of its units over most of western Sicily, was reported to be in the area northeast of Enna where it could bear directly upon the Nazi's western flank.

[The situation appeared to be similar to that in Tunisia before the American break-through at Mateur. Then Montgomery's powerful drive up the Tunisian east coast caused the Axis commanders to shift a large part of their forces to meet it, expecting the main offensive to come from that direction. Instead the main blow came from the west.

[Again in Sicily, Montgomery's rapid advances in the early stages caused the Axis to rush its best forces to stop him. Mount Etna's 10,000-foot slope has been turned into a formidable stronghold, barring the way from the south except for a narrow, easily defended pathway between it and the sea.]

Exceeded Patton's Expectations

The capture of Palermo was the feat of an American division which exceeded even the expectations of the American commander, the speed specialist, Lieut. Gen. [illegible] S. Patton, Jr., by rompin[illegible] tance of more than sixty [illegible] fifty-eight hours from Enna i[illegible] central Sicily.

The advance elements penetrated the city at 10 A. M. yesterday, so paralyzing the large defense forces who had believed their enemy at least fifteen miles away that there was virtually no resistance when the main body of the invaders arrived. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's communique said the capture was completed by evening.

Italians Caught By Surprise

The Italians were so surprised that they had no time to carry out elaborate preparations to blow up docks and other military installations and these fell into Allied hands without damage except for that done by their own bombs.

This can be quickly repaired, it was said, and the Allies will then have a most advantageous springboard for naval and air action over Sardinia and Italy and their sea approaches.

The city's population of more than 300,000 makes it the largest in Sicily.

Complaint Over Italian Navy

Italian defenders complained that they had been given no assistance by their navy except for the sending of a fast speedboat to remove a number of high naval officers at the last moment.

There was no word today of the progress of the American columns thrusting along Sicily's southwestern coast and last reported at Castelvetrano. They were believed far beyond that point, however.

Capture of Marsala and Trapani per cent of the island undefended.

Extent Of American Line

Spreading over a huge area of the island like a flood, American forces had now established an "L"-shaped line running from Palermo to Mezzoiuso, fifteen miles to the south, on the west coast would leave eighty then west through Carleone, Campofiorito, Contessa Entellina, Santa Margherita Di Belice, Montevago, Castelvetrano and beyond.

[This line leaves an area of only about 1,250 square miles in Western Sicily outside the zone of Allied occupation.]

The liquidation of resistance in that sector may be only a matter of days and then, it was assumed, the full weight of the American army may be turned against the Mount Etna line, where the decisive battle will be fought.

There the Germans were still piling in reinforcements and enjoying the advantages of high ground in the center of their line and a system of rivers and streams for defense on their left.

Alexander Lauds Americans

Praising the Americans, who had slashed nearly 200 miles across Sicily from Gela in twelve days and captured 27,000 prisoners, and lauding their Canadian allies, General Sir Harold Alexander, Allied ground troops commander, declared both armies were destined to become the finest in the world.

"The Americans are very fine fighting troops indeed," he said, declaring they had improved one hundred per cent. since they gained their first experience in actual combat in Tunisia.

Allied Air Attack Kept Up

Allied air forces maintained their rounds of devastating attacks, aiming particularly at the Italian mainland's battered and vulnerable rail network for the fifth time in six days and nights.

Flying Fortresses laid explosive strings across the tracks at Foggia in southwestern Italy. Medium bombers scored many direct hits on similar targets at Salerno and Battapaglia, south of Naples, light bombers raided the airfields at Salerno and Capodichino near Naples, and Canadian Wellingtons also struck at Capodichino and other targets near Naples.

[The Italian communique said Allied raiders caused considerable damage at Foggia and Salerno, and some damage at small centers in Lazio and Campagna Romanna, near Rome.]

RAF Bostons and Baltimores, turning a withering spray upon the twisting roads near Mount Etna, reported the destruction of sixty-five trucks at one point and damage to 300 more in the Troina, Aderno, Paterno and Misterbianco areas.

Italy and the Balkans.

Madrid dispatches said Italians demonstrated in the streets of Rome, Venice, Milan, Turin, Florence and Trieste, shouting "Peace!" These reports also said that a wave of strikes and sabotage swept the country.

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 23—An American armored division, overrunning a collapsed Italian resistance, has captured Palermo, capital and largest city of Sicily, thereby isolating the whole western end of the island, Allied headquarters announced today.

The fast-striking units of the American Seventh Army surpassed the expectations of even their veteran taskmaster, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., by racing from Enna in central Sicily to the north coast port in fifty-eight hours.

Thousands of Italian forces were trapped by the emergence of the Allied spearhead upon the north Sicilian coast.

By the capture of Palermo, Italy's sixth largest city, the Allies gained dominance of the Tyrrhenian Sea, the water approach to the western coast of Italy.

Pressed Into Small Area

The Axis was now being compressed into an area of northeastern Sicily little larger than Cap Bon, where their Tunisian forces were destroyed last May.

The main American forces, despite the sweep over western Sicily, were about thirty miles south of San Stefano di Camastra, on the north shore, where they could be brought to bear upon this remaining battle line.

San Stefano di Camastra, north of Enna, is connected by a major highway with the Leonforte area northeast of Enna.

Advanced elements entered Palermo at 10 A. M. yesterday, and the Allied headquarters communique said the capture of the city with its two major harbors was completed by evening.

British Still Edge Ahead

Meanwhile, however, the battle for Catania and control of the Mount Etna area on the northeastern tip of the island entered its second week of undiminished fury, with Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army edging closer to the key city and inflicting heavy losses on the Germans but still unable to score a knockout of Nazi defenses.

Today's communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said the Canadians were making progress against fierce resistance to the southwest of Catania.

(A DNB broadcast from Berlin, recorded by Reuters in London, said the Eighth Army had succeeded in making a temporary break through the German main defenses at the edge of the mountains.

("In a successful counter-attack the enemy suffered considerable losses," the broadcast added.

Marsala Abandoned, Report Says

(The Algiers radio reported that fresh waves of Allied parachute troops were attacking the Germans north of Catania.

(Shortly before Allied headquarters announced the capture of Palermo the Morocco radio in a broadcast recorded in London said it was reported that the Italians also had abandoned Marsala and Trapani, the other two principal cities of western Sicily.

(The German radio commentator, Ludwig Sertorius, said in a broadcast recorded by Reuters in London that Axis forces had withdrawn from Palermo, Marsala and Trapani in western Sicily. He said the withdrawal was in conformity with plans.)

JUL 24 1943

(The Italian communique admitted that Axis defense forces had withdrawn in western Sicily in the face of "powerful armored formations" but gave no clue as to the extent of the withdrawal.)

Major Highways Cut Off

The capture of Palermo not only split Sicily but gave the Allies possession of shipping accommodations of the greatest value. There is more than a mile of wharf space which has been damaged by repeated Allied bombings but which can be restored.

At the same time the slice to Palermo chopped off the last major road arteries leading laterally across the island and trapped any Axis troops which had not escaped toward Messina and Catania.

The capture of the city was the greatest victory of the Sicilian campaign to date and apparently was achieved with insignificant losses to the Americans.

Tribute Paid U. S. Troops

Official reports said Italian resistance tended to evaporate as tanks and armored cars roared across the roads on all sides of the enemy positions, overwhelming them before they could be solidified.

As Patton's men achieved to the full his demand for lightning speed, General Sir Harold Alexander, commander of all Allied ground forces, paid high tribute to their feat.

"Today, after the fighting they have done, the Americans are very fine fighting troops indeed," he said. "There is no comparison between the Americans in Sicily today and the Americans six months ago. They are one hundred per cent. better today."

He also paid high praise to Canadians fighting on their right flank, pointing out that they, like some of the Americans, had entered the Sicilian campaign untried by actual combat.

He said both armies were destined to become the finest fighting troops in the world.

The capture of Palermo completed a run of nearly 200 miles (by road) across from Gela, where the Americans landed twelve days before.

Axis Breach Widened

Meanwhile, other American columns had been thrown out along the southwestern perimeter of Sicily, where they had reached Castelvetrano two days ago, and the mopping-up operations in the entire area west of the line running from Enna to Palermo had already begun.

The collapse of the Italian front tended to widen the breach between the Axis partners, whose relations have been steadily deteriorating ever since the Allied landings in Sicily, according to headquarters reports.

The Italians, who have consistently complained that the Germans abandoned them in front-line positions whenever the situation became hopeless and escaped in the available transport, now could be blamed by the Germans for failing to hold up their end.

Italian Prestige Damaged

At headquarters it was expected that the greatest repercussions were likely to result in the Balkans and other areas policed by the Italians. The damage to Italian prestige in the eyes of turbulent occupied countries was believed to be of the greatest importance.

Meanwhile, heavy and medium bombers and other warplanes maintained their damaging attacks on Italy's vulnerable railroad networks and other targets in Sicily and Sardinia. Important communication targets on the Italian mainland thus had been hard hit in five of the last six days and nights.

Forts Hammer Foggia

Flying Fortresses hammered anew at the freight yards of Foggia, in southwestern Italy, and medium bombers smashed at similar targets at Battapaglia and Salerno, both south of Naples.

Light bombers also attacked Salerno airdrome and the airfield at Capodichino, near Naples,

Wednesday night.

24 Planes Bagged

A total of twenty-four enemy planes were destroyed yesterday, including seventeen shot down in a brilliant victory by American Warhawks in a sweep over Sardinia. The Allies lost six in the day's battles.

In the first week of the invasion Allied air forces shot down 175 enemy aircraft and dropped nearly 8,000,000 pounds of bombs on the island's targets, air forces tabulations showed.

Three enemy ships were sunk, two probably sunk, and seven damaged.

(Allied warplanes also struck at the Rome vicinity again, causing "considerable damage" in small villages of Lazio, a compartment of Italy near Rome, and slight damage in Campagna Romana, the Italian communique said today.)

The Naples area was hit for the fiftl. time in six days and nights when Canadian Wellingtons flew through bad weather Wednesday night to score direct hits at Capodichino. It was the third successive night raid by the Canadians in the Naples area. The Canadians also bombed Salerno.

RAF Bostons and Baltimores strafed motor transport in the northeast corner of Sicily where Axis forces were being pinched, and destroyed sixty-five trucks at one point and damaged 300 more in the area of Troina-Aderno-Paterno-Misterbianco.

Opposition Fades

The American Seventh Army up to last midnight had captured 27,000 prisoners, 250 guns, 500 vehicles and 10,000,000 rounds of ammunition, and destroyed 84 tanks, of which 14 were 60-ton Tigers.

Italian forces in Palermo were stunned by the swift arrival of American armor, which had been last reported fifteen miles distant.

When the big port was first hit by highly mobile forces which broke into the outer areas and paralyzed resistance, panic was said to have spread throughout the city, and when the main elements came up they met virtually no opposition.

Italian Admiral Seized

The Italians had planned large-scale demolitions of the port works and other installations but had no time to carry them out.

The defenders complained that their own navy had liimted its assistance to the sending of a single small speedboat which was rushed in at the last hour to transport a number of high-ranking Italian naval officers out of the area.

Among high Italian officers in Allied hands, it was announced today, is Admiral Priato Leonard, who was commandant of the Augusta naval base on the Sicilian east coast.

JUL 24 1943

(Dispatches from London said the remainder of the Italian forces defending western Sicily could be expected to give up quickly in the face of the American sweep. It was estimated Axis forces there might have totaled 100,000 or more at the start of the invasion, including two army divisions, three coastal divisions, and many thousands of other troops.

(A report that the Germans had brought in some reinforcements was interpreted in London as possibly a sign of determination to hold a bridgehead in northeastern Sicily as long as possible.)

Retreat Admitted

(In its daily communique, Rome reported a withdrawal of Italian forces in western Sicily, saying:

("In the western sector after fierce fighting against powerful armor formations, the defense was compelled to move to positions in the rear."

(The communique, recorded by the Associated Press, asserted attacks by Allied forces on the central sector and in the Catania plain were repulsed.

Ship Fired, Rome Says

(Allied air raids against the Italian mainland caused "considerable damage" at Foggia and Salerno, the communique said. The Rome bulletin said an Allied merchantman was set afire by a torpedo plane east of Cape Passero, off southeastern Sicily.)

(A Berlin broadcast gave support to the belef that great enemy forces were previously rushed eastward to the last-stand positions north of Catania.

("Axis troops operating on the west wing," DNB said, "have disengaged themselves north and northwest of Enna, thus frustrating a large scale outflanking movement by the Americans."

(Berlin first trotted out the term "disengaged" last winter during the German retreats on the Russian and North African fronts.)

Palermo, which has a normal peacetime population of about 411,000 is fifty miles from the western tip of the island and is the principal seaport.

Sicily Cut in Two.

By driving through to the north coast to capture the city the American forces effectively cut Sicily into two, sealing the avenue of escape for Axis troops trapped in the west.

The fall of the city was accompanied by the surrender of a large section of the Italian garrison, according to an Algiers radio broadcast heard by the Associated Press.

The broadcast said the whole Italian Twenty-sixth Division had surrendered. It added that the Eighth Army still was engaged in a bitter battle for Catania. In another broadcast, Algiers relayed what it called unconfirmed reports at Allied headquarters that Allied parachute forces had been landed north of Catania, while the Germans rushed up reinforcements by air.

The Americans met only slight resistance in their northward sweep and moved forward very rapidly.

As the Americans fanned out, bringing home three-fifths of Sicily under Allied control, the Eighth Army continued to make steady gains against stubborn German-Italian defenses on the battle-littered plain south of Catania. North of Catania the enemy was digging in among the foothills of Mount Etna for a last-ditch stand.

The Americans in the west moved with astonishing speed—some sixty miles in the three days ending Wednesday. Their commander, Gen. Patton, called it better than the Nazis ever had done in their most favored moment.

The wilting Italians saw their front lashed to ribbons by the bayonets of charging American infantry. Break-throughs were widened and deepened with amazing rapidity by thundering squadrons of tanks and lighter armor.

Before Catania, the battered Hermann Goering armored division has been reinforced by fresh Nazi units, including a parachute battalion now fighting as infantry. Behind the eastern port, the enemy has established anchor on the slopes of Etna in a final front running northwest to the vicinity of San Stefano di Camastra on the north coast.

Breakthrough Near Catania.

London, July 23 (A. P.).—Reuters recorded a Berlin radio report today that British troops had broken through the main German lines west of the Catania plain.

It said that the Eighth Army had "temporarily succeeded in breaking through German main defenses" at the edge of mountains west of the Catania plain.

"In a successful counter-attack, considerable losses were inflicted on the enemy," it added.

Rome reported in its daily communique that Italian forces in western Sicily had withdrawn.

The German radio commentator, Ludwig Sertorius, said in a broadcast recorded by Reuters that Axis forces had withdrawn from Palermo, Marsala and Trapani in western Sicily. He said the withdrawal was in conformity with plans.

PALERMO OLD BATTLEFIELD

Capital of Sicily Occupied by Numerous Armies.

By Associated Press.

Palermo, Sicily's capital, largest city and principal seaport, has been a battle prize since the Carthagenians wrested it from the Phoenicians, who founded it in the dawn of Mediterranean history.

The city is built on an inlet on the north shore of the island and the semi-circle of mountains and hills which partly surround it to the south make it a natural stronghold. Its name means "surrounded by rocky cliffs."

Palermo was captured by the Romans in 254 B. C. Subsequently it passed into the hands of the Goths, the Byzantines, the Saracens, the Normans and the Hohenstaufens.

It was the scene, in 1282, of the massacre of the French rulers and under Spanish rule it was the residence of a viceroy and a place of magnificence.

Palermo and Sicily became a part of the Italian Empire after Garibaldi overthrew the Bourbon Government in 1860.

The city also witnessed a series of revolutions, the last in 1866, which was quelled in its beginning.

As a part of the Italian empire it was built into a naval base, and its active part in the present war began in January, 1941, when it was bombed by waves of British planes.

Its harbor installations and shipping were raided several times between then and early 1943 when the Allied invasion of North Africa brought the city within the range of British and American planes operating from African airports. American Flying Fortresses made their first devastating raid on the harbor in February of 1943.

The harbor was bombed frequently after Allied victories cleared all of North Africa and freed great fleets of British and American bombers for the attacks on Italy's islands, and well before Sicily was invaded the harbor was shattered and rendered practically useless to the Axis.

Italy admitted on July 3 that the Palermo naval base was useless.

ASSAULTS ON MAINLAND

Foggia and Salerno Are Struck by Americans and Heavy Damage Is Admitted.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 23 (A. P.).—Allied air units struck new blows at Axis communications and supply lines in Italy, Sicily and Sardinia yesterday and destroyed a total of twenty-four enemy planes while losing six aircraft of their own.

American Warhawks accounted for seventeen of the Axis planes in a battle with an enemy squadron of twenty-five fighters over Sardinia. Flying Fortresses hit the freight yards at Foggia in southwestern Italy while medium bombers battered rail installations at Battapaglia and Salerno, both south of Naples.

Railroad Tracks Hit.

Light bombers attacked Salerno Airdrome and the air field at Capodichini, near Naples, the previous night. American Marauders, escorted by Lightnings, smashed up railroad tracks, a cement plant and a railroad workshop in the daylight raid on Salerno.

Lightnings also escorted American Mitchells in their attack on the railroad yards at Battapaglia.

ALLIES MASS FOR CATANIA PAY-OFF BLOW

Decisive All-Out Battle Brewing On Sicilian Coastal Plain

More Than Three German Divisions Strongly Intrenched In Area

By PAUL KERN LEE

(Associated Press Correspondent)

Augusta, Sicily, July 23—The Allies are massing more power around Catania for the payoff blow against the hordes of Germans dug in there and in the foothills of Mount Etna north of the city.

The number of Nazis is estimated at more than three divisions, including the tough Hermann Goering Division.

Across the ditches, marshy fields, uneven hills and citrus groves of Catania Plain—scene of savage fighting the past week—must be fought the greatest and probably most decisive battle of the entire Sicilian campaign.

Germans Well Entrenched

The Germans are especially well-

entrenched about a mile and a quarter north of the Simeto river, which is below Catania, with defenses stretching back to a depth of several miles and with thinner but fairly strong defenses facing the northwest and west.

As the Allied invasion completes the second week the situation rapidly is shaping into one in which the Allies soon will control the entire island, with the exception of the hard, sharp northeast corner extending from the Catanian plains on the south to some yet indefinite point on the north coast. German resistance in the corner has been stiff.

All-Out Battle Impending

The British Eighth Army now is holding firm positions north of the Simeto river, not far from the strong Nazi defenses.

The Germans, with slight success but dogged persistence, are trying to bomb our recently won bases. I have experienced German bombings twelve of the last fourteen nights and most of the days, usually by fighter bombers.

The Allied fleet, in a broad sense, can enfilade German artillery positions. The Eighth Army already has praised this sort of support. But a battle of all arms can be expected before combined naval, land and air might can destroy the Nazis on the spot or squeeze them out of cunningly chosen positions.

Italians Caught Napping

The initial Axis shore defenses admittedly were beautifully designed and possibly could have withstood heavy assault, but the Italians were caught napping, manning them only lightly, mainly with Sicilian home forces.

This is on the word of Italian Admiral Priato Leonardi, who was captured by British forces after roaming the hills behind Augusta for several days—dressed in full uniform. Leonardi, who had been stationed at Augusta, said the attack was expected about July 3—seven days before it happened—during the dark moon.

At first coastal guns caused little trouble to Allied warships. But the Germans have taken them over and also dug in with 75's and some 88-mm. guns commanding the plains. Their height, range and position were such that it is difficult for opposing field guns to reach.

Coast Guns' Range Amazing

I had a sample of a different quality of shooting yesterday when a ship on which I was a passenger was repeatedly straddled. The range of the biggest coast guns is amazing. Once we were being overshot—at a distance of more than fifteen miles from the nearest point of land.

The navy is continuing its harassing fire inland wherever targets offer. Observers ashore say this is forcing the Germans to shift their field-gun positions almost nightly.

'Chutist Tells Ordeal in Sicily

He Landed Among Italian Troops and Captor Shot Him Seven Times.

JUL 24 1943

By STEPHEN BARBER.

Cairo, July 23 (A. P.).—A story of how he was captured by the Italians in Sicily, shot seven times and left for dead, but escaped to the American lines was told today by Private Michael Scambulluri of Albany, N. Y., a parachute trooper recovering in an Allied base hospital in the Middle East.

He landed in an area alive with enemy troops and was surrounded and captured before he could join his mates.

"The Italians took me to town and stripped me of everything I had, including food," he said. "I was led to a captain's office in the troop barracks and asked a lot of questions about how many soldiers had been landed and what kind of arms we carried.

"I told them only my name, grade and serial number and refused all other information.

Captive Spoke Italian.

"When I spoke to the captain in Italian, asking the name of the town, he became enraged and accused me of being a spy. He ordered my hands tied behind my back and I was led out of the barracks and stood against a wall in the court yard.

"It looked as if they were going to begin some rough stuff. I wasn't far wrong. The captain walked about twenty feet away from me, took out his revolver and fired one shot at me.

"All hell seemed to burn inside of me and I collapsed. The captain continued firing at me, pouring six more shots into me as I lay there on the ground. I was moaning and did not know what to do, but did know that I was not hurt in any vital spot."

Private Scambulluri said that a soldier, apparently dissatisfied with his captain's work, lobbed two hand grenades in his direction, the force of which spun him around completely. He added, however, that he was still conscious when he heard the captain give orders for his burial the following morning.

Flight Through Brush.

"I heard the group walk away," he continued, "and when it got quiet I wiggled to a tree about twenty feet away and worked myself to my feet. I don't know where I got the strength, but I managed to get out of the place and across the fields into some nearby woods.

"I half walked, half crawled through the brush until I came across an old, deserted cemetery. I stopped and sawed through the ropes binding my hands, using the edge of a sharp gravestone."

He said that he tore his wrists so badly in getting free that he collapsed. When he recovered consciousness he made his way through the woods and at dawn was found by a group of civilians, who ran to him crying: "Peace! Peace!"

They helped him to where the American soldiers were advancing, and he was given first aid and taken to a field hospital.

But that wasn't the end of Private Scambulluri's story. After he was placed aboard a hospital ship it was bombed and sunk at its moorings. Later another hospital ship brought him to safety.

Allied headquarters in North Africa announced last week that a hospital ship, brightly illuminated and clearly marked, had been bombed and sunk off the Sicilian coast during the early days of the invasion.

Caltanissetta's Capture Planned In Old House

By Don Whitehead

[Associated Press Correspondent]

JUL 24 1943

Caltanissetta, Sicily, July 21 (Delayed)—The battalion colonel and his company commanders huddled about a lamp in an old house not far from Caltanissetta, a key city in the enemy's defense of Sicily. There was a terrain map on the table.

The light revealed the lines of fatigue in their faces, for they and their troops had been fighting for eight days, with an average of not more than two hours' sleep in each twenty-four. They had fought their way across the beaches of Sicily, across the ridges and valleys by day and night, and and now they were before the strategic city of Caltanissetta.

2 O'Clock Zero Hour

"We must be ready to attack at 2 o'clock," the colonel said. "It's now fourteen minutes to 11 and you must get your men into the line by 11.30.

"Our objective is here to the east of Caltanissetta. We have to cross this river bed, move across this table land and then seize this hill. We hit them from three sides.

"A bridge is blown at this point and the engineers already are working on a crossing for our vehicles. When you get to the tableland move across fast. We must take our objective by daybreak."

March In Moonlight

A few minutes later the troops were on the march in the bright moonlight. The Canadians were attacking on our right and an American division to our left. The Allies were closing in on the Caltanissetta and Enna area, which was the key to the defense of Sicily.

"With all of us pushing, something's got to fall," the colonel said.

We walked through an orchard and down through a wheatfield to the road leading to the valley below Caltanissetta. Troops carrying Tommy guns, machine guns and heavy boxes of ammunition were moving on the road.

"Out To Wade In"

"I wonder," said First Lieutenant Robert Dutt, of Akron, Ohio, "how many more fights we are going to have on this damned island. This may be the last big one. We are out to wade in and kick hell out of them."

On the hills ahead of us fires were burning in the wheat straw ignited by bursting shells which bonged over our heads from our artillery.

Some Resistance

From the hills to our right came bursts of machine-gun fire and the crackle of small arms fire. Our troops had run into an enemy strong point and had set about reducing it with rocket guns, grenades and machine-gun fire. Along most of the front the enemy had withdrawn.

It was dawn when the first American troops marched into Caltanissetta. Their faces were grey with dirt as they marched through the rubble and wreckage and kept marching to the north in pursuit of the enemy.

Gutted By Explosives

The city was gutted by bombs and artillery. Days before we had landed Allied bombers had swept over to pound enemy storage dumps, troop concentrations and communications. The frightened inhabitants had fled to caves in the mountains or flocked into the homes of friends in the country.

Caribinieri in khaki and blue uniforms patroled the streets while slim, miserable looking people straggled back into the city.

Restaurant Wrecked

With two other correspondents I went into the Roma Restaurant. Once it had been a show place. Now the floors were deep with debris. Tables still covered with cloth were scattered about the place and in the middle of the wreckage stood Roman Carmelo, the proprietor.

"Da beega boss," one of the men whispered.

Carmelo brought us wine and seemed to bear no resentment that American bombers had helped wreck his restaurant. He gave us a warm welcome and he and his friends all spoke of relatives they had in America.

Formerly In U. S.

"I gotta two brothers in Lowell, Mass.," said Giano Ariangelo. "Me, I work in Lawrence, Mass., woodmill and six months in South Portland. Some day I go back."

Carmelo refused payment for his wine.

In an old amusement park where two or three hundred Italian prisoners were lounging about on merry-go-round swings and carnival riders, Private Frank Pinto, of the Bronx, stood guard. He had arrived with the first occupation troops.

Some Sniping

"I marched about ten miles last night," Pinto said. "There was some sniping in our sector, but we did not have much trouble."

Pinto said the prisoners told him they were glad the Americans had arrived and they hoped the war would soon be over.

"What do they think will happen to Mussolini?" he was asked.

"They say Mussolini will shoot himself," Pinto replied.

Disorganized By Bombs

Corp. McClain C. Sullivan, of Burns, Tenn., took two rifles from the prisoners and broke the stocks against the wall.

"These guys were bombed so much they could not get organized," he said. "Most of them think they will go to the United States if they surrender. When we came in we found them waiting for us. They just stood there quivering."

All day long the tramp of marching feet echoed in the shattered streets of Caltanissetta. The war had passed over.

Flyer Goes On Wrong Raid, Scores A 'Kill'

By Joseph Morton

[Associated Press Correspondent]

An Advanced Air Base in North Africa, July 23 — An American fighter pilot flew over Italy without permission yesterday and shot down a German Messerschmitt that intercepted a formation of Flying Fortresses he had met on the way.

His air buddies said they thought the flyer, Second Lieut. John T. Hanton, of South Minneapolis, ought to get a decoration for his volunteer feat. And Air Force higherups indicated they weren't taking too seriously the fact that Hanton did the job without an official assignment.

Couldn't Find Companions

He was supposed to go with his squadron of Lightnings to escort a group of American Marauders on a different mission, but engine trouble delayed his takeoff and in the hazy sky he couldn't find the other fighters.

He knew the approximate course, however, and struck out over a layer of clouds toward Italy. Half way there and still alone, he was about to turn back when he encountered a big formation of B-17s flying on a bombing mission to Foggia without a fighter escort.

He Tags Along

Wagging his wings to identify himself, he took over a protective position and tagged along. Over the island of Capri Hanton noticed heavy anti-aircraft fire bursting underneath the formation, and then he spotted an ME 109 diving out of the blue.

30.24-6.451

Hanton dropped his auxiliary "belly tank" and started fighting. His guns cut across the Messerschmitt's left wing. The German fell off with a lurch and dived straight down.

After the bombing of Foggia was completed, Hanton hovered over the Fortresses all the way back to Africa. As they approached their home bases he skipped over to his own field to explain where he had been most of the day.

Cigarettes Preferred To Food By Sicilians

By NED RUSSELL

[American War Correspondent]

Syracuse, Sicily, July 21 (Delayed)—The people of this island for the most part are hungry but this is mainly attributable to the disruption of island communications under the impact of war.

The Allies are requisitioning many civilian trucks, automobiles and even donkey carts. However, AMGOT (Allied Military Government in Occupied Territory) officials arranged with the military not to seize vehicles normally used for food transport.

In my daily drives around the front through squalid villages, I am constantly begged for biscuits and cigarettes. The people, especially children, want cigarettes in preference to food. The country as a whole is heavily diseased, which also accounts for the languid behavior.

The Normal Sicilian Diet

The Sicilians normally live on pasta—a sort of spaghetti-macaroni—with tomato sauce and a little meat, sardines, tuna fish, cheese and olive oil. All these are plentiful but the Italians bungled the distribution to the main villages and cities. There are also thousands of lemons and oranges from the vineyards.

When the Allies discovered the seriousness of the food situation the soldiers were ordered not to buy local food.

News Writer In Sicily Hit By Enemy Shell

With the American Seventh Army in Sicily, July 20 (Delayed, A.P.)—Michael Chinigo, of International News Service, suffered a broken wrist and cut arm when an enemy shell blew a hole in a landing craft, killing two soldiers and wounding two others, in the Sicilian invasion.

Chinigo had the arm set and stayed on the job, using the hunt-and-peck system to pound out his news articles.

Correspondents from the North African theater have been phenomenally lucky. Several have been injured, but none has been killed.

French Honor General Clark

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 23 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark was made a commander of the French Legion of Honor today in a colorful ceremony in the French military camp near the headquarters of the American Fifth Army here.

The award was made in the name of Gen. Henri Giraud by Gen. Georges Beucler, who first touched Clark on both shoulders with his sword and placed the decoration around the neck of the American general as both American and French troops stood at attention.

General Clark played a key role in the planning and the execution of the American invasion of North Africa last November.

Gens. Allen and Roosevelt Get Croix de Guerre

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 23 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Terry Allen, commander of the "Fighting First" division of United States infantry; his deputy commander, Brig.-Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, and his aid, Major Kenneth Downs, former war correspondent, have received the French Croix de Guerre from Gen. Louis Koeltz, of the French Nineteenth Corps, it was announced today. The First Division, now fighting in Sicily, participated in numerous engagements at the side of Gen. Koeltz's French troops in Tunisia.

ALEXANDER LAUDS U. S. TROOPS HIGHLY

By WILLIAM STEWART.

Canadian Press War Correspondent. (Distributed by the Associated Press.)

An Allied Force Command Post, North Africa, July 23.—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander declared today that the American troops in Sicily are "at least 100 per cent better" than when they first arrived in North Africa.

Asked at a reception in his North African headquarters what he thought of the American troops Gen. Alexander, second in command of the Sicilian campaign, said that when they arrived in North Africa "they were better trained in modern warfare than we were in France in 1940."

"Today after the fights they have been in," he added, "the Americans are very fine troops indeed. There's is no comparison between the Americans in Sicily now and the Americans six months ago. They are at least 100 per cent better.

"The same thing holds with our own Army. Was the British Army good in France in 1940? No. They were amateurs against professionals for the Germans had the experience of Poland."

The general said "the Canadians are good and they will be jolly good," adding "like the American Forty-fifth Division, they went into the battle untried, and have done exceedingly well."

A. E. F. Full of Steganographists But Censors Detect Their Codes

JUL 24 1943

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 23.—Army doctors may have a different idea, but Army censors say the most common ailment among American troops overseas is "code in the head."

As soon as he gets abroad the average doughboy is beset with an overwhelming desire to tell the folks back home exactly where he is. That is strictly against Army regulations, because it might disclose the location of an entire Army unit. So the soldier sets about outfiguring the censors with a home-made code designed to impart that information.

There have been some fairly ingenious codes, according to the men who scan the letters. One lad tried to spell out "Tunis" by writing five consecutive letters to his mother and giving her five different middle initials.

The trouble was the five letters arrived out of sequence. The five initials spelled "Nutsi," and somewhat bewildered parents wrote: "We cannot find that place anywhere in North Africa."

A variation of this method was tried by another soldier, who openly notified his parents in his initial letter home that the first letter of the first word of each subsequent letter would spell the name of the place where he was. The censors punished him by eliminating the opening sentence of every letter, then told him not to do it any more.

Hundreds of soldiers tried referring to the titles of recent movies, such as "Casablanca" and "Road to Morocco," as means of getting information across. One, who was slightly more subtle, referred to the theme song of "Casablanca," telling his parents that for months he had been whistling "As Time Goes By."

His folks did not tumble. His mother replied: "That's a long time to sing the same song. Should I send you some new phonograph records"

Now that the doughboys are in Sicily, the censors expect to find letters freighted with cryptic references to fiery sweethearts named Etna.

And they are willing to bet that the first letters from the Italian capital will tell folks home, "I have been roaming around quite a bit."

RUSSIANS GAIN 2 TO 4 MILES TOWARD OREL

Forces Cross River Directly East Of City And Kill 2,000 Germans

JUL 24 1943

Nazis Report New Soviet Offensive South Of Leningrad

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, July 24—Russian forces crossed a river directly east of Orel, killing 2,000 Germans massed on the west bank, and scored fresh gains of two to four miles on the north and south sides of the German central front base, Moscow announced early today.

German broadcasts said eighteen Soviet divisions had begun a powerful offensive south of Leningrad, but official Russian dispatches were silent on developments there.

The river crossing at Orel appeared to have put the Red army within eight miles of the city after a three-mile drive from Zolotarevo, the last village to fall in that area. Another Russian column was less than nine miles northeast of Orel.

Several Villages Taken

Several more villages fell to the Russians who knocked out scores of German tanks and killed thousands of enemy troops yesterday in fighting raging down to the Sea of Azov, the midnight bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor said.

North of Orel the Russians beat back several fierce German counter-attacks near Bolkhov, wiping out a regiment of enemy infantry. Bolkhov, thirty-five miles above Orel, fell to the Russians Thursday.

The Soviet drive on the north also was wheeling behind Orel, endangering the railway running northwest of Bryansk. One dispatch said Karachev, midway between the two cities on the railway, already was threatened.

112 Planes Downed

A special communique said 92 German tanks were knocked out and 112 planes shot down during Thursday, and the midnight bulletin said that 5,400 enemy troops were killed and 85 tanks destroyed yesterday on three sides of the city.

The Germans also lost heavily in the Belgorod sector and the Donets basin to the south, and Russian forces again were attacking the Germans in the northwestern Caucasus.

After standing firm against German attacks in the Belgorod area the Russians resumed their offensive and captured a number of populated places, killing about 1,000 Germans, the communique said.

Described As Local

South of Izyum in the Donets basin fighting still was described by the Russians as "of local importance" despite German accounts which called it part of a general offensive. "The enemy attempted to regain positions which he lost during the previous day but achieved no success," the communique said.

Several thousand Germans have been killed in four days of fighting southwest of Voroshilovgrad where active operations were continuing as the Soviet forces captured several "advantageous positions." The Germans were counter-attacking repeatedly in this area.

Gains Near Belgorod

Around Belgorod the Russians said they advanced from three and a half to five miles. It was the fourth successive gain in this area where the Germans made their lone penetration in their offensive against Kursk.

Attacking the stubborn German bridgehead thinly spread along the Black Sea littoral around Novorossisk, the Russians said they improved their positions southwest of Krasnodar. The naval base of Novorissick is their objective.

Berlin said violent new Russian attacks in the Donets basin had pierced their lines near Kuibishevo.

German Communique

The German communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said:

"The enemy has extended his large-scale attacks against the eastern front to further sectors. . . . The enemy started his attack after violent artillery preparation and with the support of tanks and battle planes. All enemy attacks were frustrated. The Soviets continued their onslaught against German positions on a front from the Sea of Azov to Belgorod.

"A group of Soviet tanks which succeeded in breaking through northwest of Kuibishevo was almost annihilated, with the loss of fifty tanks. In the Orel sector, the Soviets threw into action strong and partly fresh infantry and tank forces. These reinforcements, too, were repulsed in fluctuating fighting."

Although admitting broken lines and "fluctuating fighting," the Germans asserted their "armies on the eastern front are standing firm and unshaken." They said 566 tanks and 105 Russian planes were destroyed yesterday.

Reds Clamp Pincers Tighter Around Orel

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, July 23—Russian forces crashed through the last strongly-fortified link in Orel's northern defenses yesterday on the tenth day of an offensive that has cost the Germans 50,000 killed and 6,000 captured, and closed their pincers tighter about that city despite desperate Nazi counter-attacks, a Soviet announcement said today.

Bolkhov, thirty-five miles above the city, by-passed by a Red army column racing down from the north while driving to within nine miles northeast of Orel, fell before the attackers. The Red army thus "completed the liquidation of strongly fortified districts" in that direction, the Russians said.

4-To-5-Mile Gains

Another Russian column pounding to within eleven miles of the key German defense city from the east, and a southern column moving up to complete the three-headed drive, beat back Nazi tanks and infantry to continue a steady advance, according to the Soviet announcement.

Altogether, the Russians said gains of four to five miles were registered in the Orel sector yesterday while the Germans lost 2,500 killed and thirty-nine tanks destroyed or captured. Prisoners and supplies also were taken, the Russians declared.

German Communique

(Today's German communique said the Russians had extended their large scale attacks to new sections of the front but insisted that Soviet attempts to effect a breakthrough had been in vain.

(The bulletin, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said the Russians had moved infantry and armored reinforcements into the Orel sector.

(Russian losses yesterday were set by the Germans at 566 tanks and 105 planes.)

Losses Tabulated

The Russian midnight communique, which disclosed the losses in manpower to Hitler's army during the 10-day Soviet offensive, placed German losses in material destroyed or captured during the same period at:

Nine hundred planes, 1,148 tanks, 1,602 guns of various calibre, 800 mortars, and 1,400 machine-guns.

(The German radio countered with the assertion that the Red army had lost more than 350,000 in dead, wounded or captured since July 15.

Greatest Battle

(Terming the struggle "the greatest battle of attrition ever fought," German sources pictured the immensity of the armies facing each other along the Russian front by saying they were made up of 600 divisions—from 7,200,000 to 9,000,000 men "presently engaged" there.)

GOEBBELS POINTS TO "ACTS OF GOD"

JUL 24 1943

Berlin Masks Sicilian Losses As "Systematic Evacuation According To Plan"

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 23—The Axis reported today the triple loss of Palermo, Marsala and Trapani, but sought to mask defeat by presenting movements of their forces as planned concentration in the northeastern part of Sicily.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, German military commentator said in a broadcast over the German overseas radio, recorded by the British Ministry of Information, that the "systematic evacuation" of western Sicily was "according to plan" and that Allied moves attempting to hamper the Axis "disengagement" action and to trap large forces have been "successfully repelled."

Goebbels Blames "Acts Of God"

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, in his weekly article in Das Reich, blamed "acts of God" for recent Axis reversals, but at the same time endeavored to assure the German people that victory was guaranteed.

Goebbels belittled the importance of the Allied thrust through Sicily, classing the invasion as a "modest first installment" on an Allied second front.

So far, he said, "the enemy has not achieved any victories of real size and presumably will not do so in the further course of the war. And nothing will come of any Anglo-American promenade through Europe."

Goebbels said the Allies had "little more reason now for their noisy propaganda" than they had after the retreat from Dunkerque.

Fighting In Central Sicily

Sertorius, like the German and Italian communiques, spoke of "heavy fighting" in the central Sicilian sector, where he asserted, the Americans have been unable to reach the sea in a northerly direction.

The battle he spoke of also possibly involved Canadian troops, who apparently are swinging around on the flank of Axis forces defending Catania. In the area of the western Catania plain the German news agency DNB reported that the British Eighth Army had "temporarily" broken through the main German defense line.

Allied Losses Called "Enormous"

Sertorius, declaring the Axis defense concentration in northeastern Sicily "had long been foreseen in the operational plans of the military command," said this "methodical consolidation of defense will soon have its effect on the German-Italian capacity to resist." He also said the Allies would need many troops to occupy the conquered part of the island and that in the battles to date they had suffered "enormous losses in men and material."

Balkan repercussions to the Allied advance in Sicily were acknowledged by the Berlin radio, which said fresh disturbances had broken out and that Axis troops had fought a violent battle with Yugoslav partisans in Montenegro, resulting in 10,000 guerrillas being killed.

Unrest was also mounting in Greece, a Reuters dispatch from Ankara reported. Many Greek officials and police have abandoned their posts, the dispatch said, and German occupation authorities have listed these men as saboteurs.

Italian radio commentators remained silent on the prospects for the Axis in the Sicilian battle, but extracts from Italian newspapers, as reported to London, indicated the Fascists still were emphasizing that Germany had been able to send only limited help to Sicily.

London, July 23 — Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels told the German people in his weekly article in Das Reich that "Europe is entering a decisive battle," but declared that although there may be reverses "here and there" for the Axis the Germans "can look to future developments in the east as well as in the south with calm and composure."

The Goebbels article, which was broadcast today from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, said the Allies "really had not scored any large-scale victories and presumably will not score any during the future course of the war."

"Enemy Desperate"

"No insoluble dilemna faces the high command of the Axis forces," he wrote. "The enemy is desperately trying to catch up and make up, by successes at the fringe, what we have scored in the first three years of the war in successes which will be decisive for victory."

The Nazi propaganda chief claimed that in contrast to German operations in Russia in the past two summers, which he said were aimed at gaining territory, this year's operations were directed toward "exhausting the Russians."

"That has been the case already to a considerable extent and will continue to be to a very considerable extent," he added. "Present big battles in the east therefore are a prelude to the coming winter."

Nothing Changed

Goebbels told the Germans that the Allies "had succeeded in gaining ground psychologically" through propaganda, but argued that in a military sense nothing much had changed.

He said the Allies were happy that with their invasion of Sicily they could make the "first modest installment payment" on their promise of a second front, but that more was necessary "than to invade Sicily with the joint strength of two empires."

Rome Calls Up All Men Of 1907 to 1922 Classes

London, July 23 (A. P.).—The Rome radio announced tonight in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that all Italian officers and men of the 1907 to 1922 classes who are liable for service and are not yet with the colors must enter military service by August 15.

'Decisive Battle' Ahead, Says Propaganda Chief

[By the Associated Press]

Transport Chief Removed by Duce

London, July 23 (AP).—Another Italian government shakeup was announced today by the Berlin radio, which said in a Rome dispatch that "Minister of Transport Senator Vittorio Cini has been released from his office by Il Duce for reasons of health." The broadcast said National Councillor Guiseppe Peverelli, Undersecretary of the Ministry, had been appointed Minister of Transport.

Madrid Feels Rome May Yet Be Open City

London, July 23 (AP)—The Daily Mail said in a dispatch from Madrid today that belief was growing in the Spanish capital that Rome may yet be declared an open city.

"Particular attention is paid to a passage in the Pope's letter . . . in which his Holiness referred to his negotiations on behalf of the Italian capital," the dispatch said.

The Daily Mail correspondent wrote that Adolf Hitler was reported to be urging the Italian Government to move and that there was talk in Rome of transferring the government and military staffs to Verona, 250 miles to the north.

Germans Report Violent Battle

JUL 24 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 23—The Berlin radio, acknowledging that Allied successes in Sicily had touched off fresh disturbances in the Balkans, reported today that Axis troops had fought a violent battle with Yugoslav partisans in Montenegro, in which 10,000 of the guerrillas were said to have been killed.

The fiercest fighting, said the German news agency, DNB, was in the vicinity of the Komarnica Valley, fifty or sixty miles southeast of Sarajevo.

A Reuters dispatch from Ankara, meanwhile, said that growing unrest also was evident in Greece, where many Greek officials and police were reported to have abandoned their posts. The dispatch said German occupation authorities had issued a proclamation listing such men as saboteurs subject to immediate execution.

CZECH EXECUTIONS NOW TOTAL 50,000

London, July 23 (A. P.).—Dr. Hubert Ripka, Minister of State in the Czech Government in Exile, said today that 50,000 Czech citizens have been executed by the Nazis since the occupation of Czecho-Slovakia began in March, 1939.

"During the same period about 200,000 Czechs were sent to German concentration camps and more than 500,000 to forced labor in Germany and other Nazi-occupied countries," Dr. Ripka added. He said his figures did not include thousands of Czech Jews killed, imprisoned or deported.

Planes Raid Rome's Environs.

London, July 23 (A. P.).—Allied warplanes struck at the Rome vicinity again, causing considerable damage in small villages of Lazio, a compartment of Italy near Rome, and slight damage in the Campagna Romana, the Italian communique said today.

Italian Cabinet Change Reported

London, July 23 (AP)—Another Italian Government shakeup was announced today by the Berlin radio, which said in a Rome dispatch that "Minister of Transport Senator Vittorio Cini has been released from his office by il Duce for reasons of health."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said National Councillor Guiseppe Peverelli, Under Secretary of the Ministry, had been appointed Minister of Transport."

Power Stations In Belgium Hit In R. A. F. Sweep

Bostons Level Off at Height of Only Fifty Feet, Drop Delayed-Action Bombs

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—Two power stations in Belgium were attacked today by R. A. F. Bostons which dropped delayed - action bombs from a height of only fifty feet. The Air Ministry News Service quoted the returning flyers as saying the bombs "completely destroyed" the main buildings at one power station. The attack was carried out in ideal weather.

Enemy planes were reported over southwest England and Wales last night, their first appearance over Britain in a week, but a communique said no bombs were dropped.

Typhoons, Mustangs, Spitfires and Hurricanes of the Fighter Command made daylight sweeps over occupied Europe today, attacking enemy transport. Four Hurricane pilots reported they destroyed two locomotives and damage three others, and shot up barges and motor trucks, the Air Ministry News Service said.

LONDON, July 23 (AP)—The Berlin radio reported today that British motor torpedo boats had attacked a German convoy in the English Channel off Ijmuiden, Holland, last night and that one ship had been damaged and one British boat set afire.

Stimson Spends Day With Negro Engineer Unit

London, July 23 (A. P.).—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson spent most of today visiting a Negro engineer battalion in rural England.

World Trade Unions' Committee Discussed

London, July 23 (AP)—A world committee of trade unions to exchange information for increasing production was discussed today at the third session of the conference of British and Soviet union labor leaders meeting in Moscow.

The Moscow radio, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said that under the plan unions in North and South America and in European countries fighting with the United Nations would meet to organize for direct contact.

Dr. Soong Arrives in Britain

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—Dr. T. V. Soong, Chinese Foreign Minister, arrived in Britain today on a visit at the invitation of the government.

German Mark Slumps 50% on Bern Exchange

BERN, Switzerland, July 23 (AP). — The German mark has dropped 50 per cent in value here in the last two weeks. It now is quoted at 8 Swiss francs for 100 marks (giving it a value of 1.86 United States cents, since the Swiss franc is quoted at 23.30 United States cents in New York.

The British Exchange rate of 100 lire to the pound sterling reportedly is better than the rate many Italians are willing to accept to get Swiss currency —about 55 lire to one Swiss franc. (New York foreign exchange sources explained that this made the lira—on the basis of the British rate—worth 1 cent in United States money, while the lira was 7/16 of a cent on the basis of the Swiss rate.

Nazis Complete Mid-Norway Line

Stockholm, July 23 (AP)—German press reports received here today said that fortification work on Norway's middle coast, begun three years ago in anticipation of a possible Allied invasion, was completed recently when the last large battery of guns was put into place.

The reports presumably referred to the Trondheim area, vital to any defense of Norway and frequently described as "the Gibraltar of the North."

Smoke Tanks Reported

"Trained artillerists are awaiting the enemy in order to give him a hot welcome," the Voelkischer Beobachter was quoted as saying.

Norwegian reports said the Germans had installed tanks throughout the Trondheim area containing a substance which generates dense smoke when it comes into contact with the air.

Shifts Spanish Legion Control

MADRID, July 23 (AP).—General Esteban Infantes, commander of the Spanish Blue Legion fighting with the Axis on the Russian front, has been placed under direct orders of the Spanish Ministry of War, a ministry bulletin announced today. The order did not say whether the move concerned a transfer or not.

Turkey Expecting Drive In Balkans

JUL 24 1943

Istanbul, Turkey, July 23 (AP)—A growing conviction here today is that the Allies are about to strike in the eastern Mediterranean to link up with the Soviet offensive in Russia.

Balkan unrest appeared to be increasing steadily and it was learned the Germans are taking over complete command of all Greek ports and the Corinth canal region.

From Rumania Marshal Ion Antonescu, leader of the state, sent two divisions to reinforce garrisons in Bucovina, Bessarabia and Odessa.

Gen. Giraud Returns To North Africa

Algiers, July 23 (A. P.).—Gen. Henri Giraud has arrived in North Africa following his trip to the United States, Canada and England. He was expected to reach Algiers late today.

U. S. FLYERS BOMB WIDELY IN BURMA

New Delhi, July 23 (A. P.).—American P-40 Warhawks carrying medium and fragmentation bombs attacked Japanese installations in northern Burma yesterday and a United States Tenth Air Force communique said they created "much damage." The attackers destroyed a high level road bridge at Nsopzup with direct hits, bombed a new barracks area near the air field at Myitkyina, leaving at least two buildings in flames, and shot up buildings and motor vehicles at Manywet.

At the same time, Mitchell medium bombers attacked cotton mills at Myingyan and rail installations at Alon. They scored many direct hits on mill buildings and started large fires among installations north of the mills. Heavy Librator bombers attacked Wuntho, twenty-five miles south of Katha, Wednesday and scored five hits in the enemy-occupied town.

All the American planes and crews returned safely from the various operations, the communique announced.

The RAF concentrated on Japanese transport, hitting sixty-five boats on the middle Irrawaddy river between Prome and Zibyubin, a British communique said. A factory building was damaged, storage tanks and some larger river boats were attacked. A sampan was sunk and sixteen were damaged in the Hunters Bay sector. The Japanese, holed up in the Arakan swamps for the monsoon season, were strafed and one of their villages was destroyed.

800 Japs Die as Mine Sinks Gunboat in China

Chungking, July 23 (A. P.).—More than 800 Japanese perished when an enemy gunboat laden with explosives struck a mine and sank near the Yangtze River port of Matang below Kiukiang July 8, the Chinese Central News reported today.

PACIFIC STEPS EXPLAINED

Davis of OWI Says We Need Airfields Before Big Push

LONDON, July 23 (AP)—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, told newspaper men today that the tactics in the Pacific did not mean that the Allies were committed to a policy of regaining lost ground island by island.

The campaign hinges upon obtaining airfields, he said, adding that the time would come when the Allies would pass beyond the present stage of operations.

He said there was close cooperation between British and American propaganda, but referring to Russia said, "We have not always found it easy to coordinate."

BOMBERS SINK A JAP TENDER, HIT DESTROYER

Allied HQ. in the Southwest Pacific, Saturday, July 24 (AP). —Allied bombers smashed a Japanese attempt to run supplies to their strong base at Buin on Bougainville Island Thursday night, sinking a 9,000 - ton enemy seaplane tender and damaging one of four escorting destroyers.

The seaplane tender, was sighted off the coast of Bougainville Island just at dusk. Heavy torpedo and dive bombers, protected by a strong force of fighters, sped to the attack and sent the tender to the bottom. Jap Zeros in force attempted to ward off the attack but they were driven away by our fighters. Five of the enemy planes were shot down. Three of ours are missing.

Bombers Rake Japs.

Two-engined bombers and fighters found good hunting in heavy bombing and strafing sweeps along the coasts of New Guinea and New Britain, destroying 12 enemy barges between Hanisch Harbor, just east of Lae, and Cape Bushing, near the western tip of New Britain. At least 13 other barges were destroyed or seriously damaged.

Today's communication from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters contained no information on the progress of American troops closing in on the Jap air base at Munda, New Georgia. It said merely that "dive bombers attacked enemy gun positions in support of ground troops" in that area.

A surprise attack on enemy installations at Rekata Bay on Santa Isabel Island, northeast of New Guinea, was carried out by our fighters and bombers.

In Vella Gulf, between Kolombangara and Vella Lavella islands. Allied light surface units intercepted four Jap barges attempting to run supplies to Kolombangara. Two of the barges were set afire.

A strong force of four-engined bombers, escorted by fighters, dropped 61 tons of bombs on Bogadjim, a village 20 miles south of the big Jap base at Madang, New Guinea. Many direct hits were scored on buildings and installations and large fires resulted.

Jap Raiders Dispersed.

Approximately 60 Jap fighters rose to offer battle to the Allied raiders. They were "decisively defeated and dispersed," the communication said. At least 13, and probably 18, of the enemy fighters were destroyed, and five others were shot out of combat. Two of our fighters were lost.

In other New Guinea sorties, Allied warplanes bombed or machine-gunned Ginschhafen, Voco Point, near Lae, Salamaua, and Malolo village.

leaguered Japanese airbase there, dropping 135 tons of explosives. Wildcat fighters covered the bombers in 250 sorties, made in direct support of our ground troops.

Clashes Near Namling

(Japanese forces at Munda are contained within the defenses ringing the field, a spokesman at the South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., said yesterday.)

Maintaining heavy pressure on the Japanese in the sector south of Salamau, Australian and American ground forces took a heavy toll of the e[illegible]in clashes near Namling. Li[illegible]rs and Mitchells concentrated ninety-three tons of bombs and Japanese positions near Komiatum, seven miles inland from Salamaua.

On the coast, forward elements made contact with the enemy at Tambu Bay. No details were given.

In the northern Solomons, Flying Fortresses and Liberators bombed three Japanese warships, but results were not observed.

U. S. Bombs Jap Base in Java

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 23 (A. P.).—American airmen sprang a surprise on the Japanese yesterday with a destructive raid on the enemy's main Netherlands East Indies base at Surabaya.

It was the first raid on the once great Dutch naval base on Java since the Japanese captured it in March, 1942, and the longest mission ever flown in the southwest Pacific.

Lights were burning brightly in the city and the dock area was a scene of bustling activity as the first Liberator bombers raced in and began planting 500-pound bombs and incendiaries in the target area. Japanese ground batteries quickly came to life, however, and raised a heavy but ineffective barrage. All our bombers returned.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today said the incendiaries and high explosives hit an oil refinery, warehouses, railway installations and a dock. Towering fires, some of them visible 140 miles away, were started.

Hits probably were made also on anti-aircraft batteries because the defensive fire had fallen off noticeably by the time the bombers had completed their work.

The four-engined warplanes flew nearly 2,400 miles in the operation, made before dawn Thursday. The previous record of 2,000 miles was made on raids against Makassar on Celebes Island.

The spectacular attack on Surabaja captured immediate attention from the Solomons area, but there was no easing of the daily battering given Munda on New Georgia. Bombers continued to rain bombs upon the bechuting pilot. The other [illegible]son, simply disappeared for long.

Larson halted his volley-ball match in front of his operation tent this afternoon to relate calmly how three Japanese planes pursued him almost an hour and how he eluded them although one engine faltered.

Two Laudable Feats

He finally crash-landed, without injury, in the water—an operation which brought words of admiration from fellow-flyers. Keeping a Lightning in the air with one engine was a great feat in itself, they said; putting it down in the water without injury was an even greater one.

Larson told how it happened:

"As I made a pass at one Jap Zero, my left engine started backfiring. I shot up another Zero—saw pieces of his plane fly out.

Starts For Home

"My cockpit was filling with smoke; so to prevent fire, I feathered one engine and because I didn't want to bail out over enemy territory, I quit the fight and started home with at least thirty fighters still tangling there.

"As I feared, three planes came down on me, and, with only one engine, I had to use cloud-skipping tactics and dodge around a great deal.

Plane Crippled, Yank Flyer Eludes 3 Japs

JUL 24 1943

By Stern Haugland

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 22 (Delayed)—Members of a P-38 squadron with 102 enemy planes to its credit hailed the return today of First Lieutenant Paul Larson, of Chicago, who was almost given up for lost in yesterday's dramatic battle with Japanese fighters.

That Larson managed to limp back put an extra nice touch to the encounter in which our pilots destroyed nineteen enemy planes and probably finished off eleven others, for the loss of two P-38s.

Larson Just Disappeared

The American flyers saw the Japanese planes strafe one parachute type made three passes each before I found the first cloud. When I came out, they made eight more passes before two Zeros gave up.

"The remaining plane made about eighteen passes at me over a half-hour stretch. I dived every time he came at me, it seemed like. Toward the last, he tried new stunts of climbing above me, rolling over me and diving. Finally, I found a cloud big enough to escape him, and reached the coast line.

In Three Feet Of Water

"With my right propeller shot and electrical system cut, I put her down on the beach in three feet of water because the jungle is too thick for landing."

Natives carried him by canoe to an Allied outpost, where he was picked up today.

Incidentally, the P-33 unit's bag of 102 planes is believed to be the record for a fighter unit in any theater.

U. S. Lensman's Plane Downed

[By the Associated Press]

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 20 (Delayed) — Carl Thusgaard Danish-born war photographer for Acme Photos, officially was posted as missing today after the Liberator in which he was making his first bombing flight was seen to crash in flames near Madang, on the northeastern coast of New Guinea, early this morning.

Australian ground watchers said the Liberator went down after destroying two or possibly three of nine Zeros which attacked the lone bomber.

No Parachutes Sighted

The Australian post Benabena, seventy miles inland from Madang, reported a patrol was sent into the remote area where the Liberator crashed, but that no parachutes were seen to leave the stricken plane.

Thusgaard may be the third American war correspondent lost in action in the Southwest Pacific theater.

The Time magazine reporter, Melville Jacoby, was killed on an Australian airfield last year shortly after escaping from Corregidor. Byron Darnton, the New York Times correspondent, was killed late last year when moving toward the Buna battle area.

Went On Practice Run

Three months ago, Thusgaard's young son died. Thusgaard was at an advanced New Guinea base at the time and couldn't be reached for two weeks.

The day before making what may have been his last flight, Thusgaard went out on a partice bombing run with the Liberator "just to get the feel of it."

Flyer Couldn't Waste Bombs

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 2 (AP)—Somehow it doesn't seem right to First Lieutenant Mark Martin, of Fitzgerald, Ga., to come back with the bomb racks full.

A Liberator pilot, Martin, while on a mission last night, was unable to find the Japanese target. He returned to his forward base in the morning, refueled and took off again with the remark:

"It's a pity to waste these bombs."

On his own initiative, he flew to Salamaua and bombed the town just as other bombers started a blistering attack in the Komiatum sector in which ninety-three tons of bombs were unloaded.

Brazil Bans Use Of Motor Cycles

JUL 24 1943

Rio de Janeiro, July 23 (AP)—On recommendation of the National Petroleum Council, the Government today banned the use of private motor cycles through out Brazil to conserve gasoline needed for war purposes.

The use of gasoline-powered private automobiles had been prohibited last year.

Argentina Decrees Wheat Fuel

BUENOS AIRES, July 23 (U.P.)—A Government decree last night authorized the sale of 2,000,000 tons of wheat between now and Dec. 31 to be used for fuel instead of coal. The decree also authorized the sale of 500,000 tons of wheat for forage. Argentina, with a huge grain surplus, has virtually no timber, coal or oil. Fuel imports have been cut off by the war.

ARGENTINE REGIME DISAVOWS FASCISM

Buneos Aires, July 23 (A. P.).—A Government spokesman told United States correspondents today that the Argentine Government headed by Gen. Pedro Ramirez is neither Fascist nor totalitarian and has no intention of becoming either. This statement followed publication yesterday of a cryptic communique denying reports said to have been published abroad that the Government is planning "political reforms" of a Fascist character.

The spokesman insisted that the pro-democratic press of Argentina was under no restraint in expressing "constructive criticism" of Government policies. He added that the fact that disciplinary measures had been taken against a number of publications did not mean that "excesses" in the pro-Axis press, such as El Pampero, had escaped notice of the authorities. These, he said, already had brought warnings from the Government, which was prepared to take more severe measures against these publications if it should become necessary.

He asserted that it was the desire of the Government to give foreign correspondents the widest possible latitude in reporting the truth about Argentina.

PARAGUAYAN OPTIMISTIC

President Morinigo, Home, Says U. S. Effort Is 'Fabulous'

ASUNCION, Paraguay, July 23 (AP)—President Higinio Morinigo, returning home from a visit to the United States, said last night that the American war effort was "really fabulous."

"The spectacle I saw causes me to reaffirm my faith in final victory," the President said.

He said he expected that a new commercial treaty with the United States, which he discussed while in Washington, would be signed as soon as a few details were settled. In general, he said, the treaty under consideration provides for mutual preferential tariffs, especially with a view to exporting to the United States hides and wood products.

First Flight Sets Record

Montreal, July 23 (AP)—The first transatlantic flight of a Trans-Canada Air Line transport plane in the Canadian Government's new wartime transocean service was completed today, establishing what the official announcement said was a new record for a nonstop flight from Montreal to Britain.

The plane took off from here last night and arrived in Britain this morning, covering the distance in 12 hours and 26 minutes. The previous record, the announcement said, was 12 hours and 51 minutes.

Sofia Has Third Alarm In 5 Days

New York, July 23 (AP)—Planes cominig from the southeast gave Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, its third air raid alarm in five days, the Hungarian radio said tonight in a broadcast which added that Bulgarian officials were ready to move their offices from the pro-Axis capital in case of a bombing.

The broadcast, recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, said that reports of plans to declare Sofia an open city were "premature."

The unidentified planes which caused the latest alert today never reached Sofia, but air raid precaution measures were taken.

New evidence of Bulgaria's questionable morale came in the radio's statement that "in official quarters it has been stated that no parachute troops have landed in Bulgaria and such rumors are unfounded."

Turkey Expects Balkan Thrust To Link Up With Russ Offensive

[By the Associated Press]

New York, July 23 — The Berlin radio said toinght that "strong forces of Allied bombers have attacked German airfields in Crete," the large Greek island south of the Balkans. NBC recorded the broadcast.

The Germans said ten Allied planes were brought down by anti- aircraft guns alone.

The attack was reported to have been directed against German air bases and the three largest towns in Crete. The damage was called "insignificant."

Regarded As A Feeler

The Germans said this was the first enemy action against Crete since the beginning of the Sicilian campaign, and said "it obviously was made for the main purpose of probing Axis defenses in Crete."

What Duce Must Do To Save Rome Is Told

JUL 24 1943

By Dewitt Mackenzie

New York, July 23—From many countries is coming the renewed appeal that Mussolini remove all military objectives from Rome and declare it an "open city" which, under international law, would put it outside the war zone.

This move has been urged on the Fascist chief ever since Italy entered the war, but he has never given any indication that he would comply. Obviously his reasons are that Rome has provided him not only with an essential military base but a place of security for his headquarters. His reluctance can be understood when one is given the definition of "open city."

"Open City" Requirements

In checking on this matter I turned to authorities in both Washington and London. My understanding is that an "open city" is one from which have been removed all troops, defenses, military installations (including headquarters and headquarters staff), military production (which means any kind of war factory), and transportation facilities which are used for the movement of military supplies or personnel. When all this has been done, the power in possession then declares the city "open."

Since Mussolini not only is head of the Government but commander in chief of the army and navy, he obviously would be barred from Rome.

Italy's Railway Center

From an authoritative source in London I further understand that the procedure of creating the "open city" would be initiated by Italy through a third party, asking for Allied conditions. Moreover, the Allies wouldn't rely on the enemy's word that all conditions had been fulfilled, but would take steps to see that they had been.

Just how the Allies would satisfy themselves on this point isn't stated. That would be laid down when their conditions were asked for by Mussolini. They would either have to rely on a third party, or send their own representatives to investigate. It naturally would be sufficient if the Vatican, for instance, should find it possible to give assurances that conditions had been carried out.

Obviously it would be a heavy blow to il Duce to lose Rome not only as a military base but as a bombproof shelter for himself and Government. But the thing cuts a lot deeper than that. Rome is the heart of Italy's railroads. Most of the country's war industries are in the north, and in order to get munitions from the supply centers to southern Italy—to Sicily, for example—they are poured through Rome. True, there is a railway which runs along the eastern coast, close to the Adriatic, but that is a roundabout way for the movement of military traffic.

Thus far Mussolini has given no sign that he intends to relinquish his sanctuary. Still, circumstances have put him in a position where he certainly must consider making Rome an "open city." In this connection the London Daily Mail reports from Madrid that Hitler is said to be urging the Duce to transfer the government and military staffs to Verona.

Undoubtedly he also is in the uncomfortable spot of having to debate whether after all he hadn't better sue for peace forthwith, since it's obvious that he will be knocked out soon, anyway. The Americans' capture of Palermo, political and cultural center of Sicily, certainly is a harsh reminder of the approaching end.

TOJO TAKES HIGH COUNSEL

Confers With 7 Ex-Admirals or War Developments

Seven senior Japanese statesmen, all former premiers, and Dr. Kodo Hara, president of the Privy Council, conferred with government leaders at the official residence of Premier Hideki Tojo last night, the Tokio radio disclosed in the broadcast of an information board announcement recorded in New York by The Associated Press.

The broadcast quoted the announcement as saying that Premier Tojo explained recent war developments in detail as well as the international situation in general to the gathering. It was understood, the broadcast said, that the main topic of the conference was Premier Tojo's report on his recent trip to southern regions.

Enemy Reports

The enemy often puts out statements intended only to elicit denials that may expressly or by implication reveal facts of military value. The statements below are not confirmed; are therefore suspect.

In a broadcast recorded at New York today by the Associated Press, the Tokio radio declared that Japanese bombers smashed runways and other installations at a base of the Fourteenth United States Air Force at Hengyang, in south-central Hunan Province, China. The Japanese lost only one plane, and shot down three out of six American Warhawk fighters that challenged them.

PACIFIC TASK FORCE SHELLS KISKA HEAVILY

Enemy Coastal Defense Guns Return Fire On U. S. Warships

30.24-6455

Action Follows Bombing Raid Aimed At Newly Finished Runway

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 23—A Pacific fleet task force heavily bombarded Japanese positions on Kiska island yesterday, the navy announced today. Enemy coast-defense guns returned the fire, but failed to damage any of the warships.

The shelling, seventh of a series, followed by twenty-four hours an American bomber raid aimed at the newly completed air strip on the island. Numerous hits were scored on the runway and camp area and several fires were started, a communique said.

Meanwhile, in the South Pacific the Japanese for the second time in two days bombed the American base on Funafuti island, in the Ellice group. The second raid apparently was heavier than the first, in which only three bombers participated and which resulted in no damage or injuries to personnel.

Two Shot Down

In yesterday's attack two of the Japanese bombers were shot down and the navy communique said that while damage to American installations has not been reported here, there were some personnel casualties.

The strategy behind the Japanese air attack on Funafuti was a subject of speculation. Some regarded it as the beginning of an enemy counter-thrust directed at the center of the supply route between the Hawaiian Islands and the Solomons-Australian area. By such an attack the Japanese might hope to tie up American forces in a new battle zone and relieve the pressure on their positions in the Solomon islands and the New Guinea area.

Others considered the possibility that the Japanese might fear an American offensive move from Funafuti toward their base on Tarawa in the Gilbert Islands, several hundred miles to the northwest. In American hands, Tarawa could be turned into an outpost which would permit the movement of shipping between Hawaii and Australia along a much more direct route.

Action In Afternoon

Both the air action and the naval action off Kiska occurred in the afternoon. On Wednesday army Liberators attacked the Japanese runway and main camp area. An Associated Press dispatch from headquarters of the Alaska Defense command said today that aerial reconnaissance indicates that the Japanese finally have completed their 3,700-foot airplane runway, which they have been working on for more than six months.

Opinion in Alaska was, however, that the enemy would have great difficulty in delivering planes to Kiska for aerial operations unless he is willing to risk one or two carriers to ferry them close enough for a landing on the new field. The nearest enemy land base is on the island of Paramushiro, more than 800 nautical miles to the west.

Yesterday afternoon, the navy said, American "heavy and light surface units" shelled enemy positions on Kiska. This indicated that either battleships or cruisers, or possibly both, were among the attacking vessels.

While these actions were going on in the North Pacific, the Japanese threw a force of bombers, the number not reported, against the American base on Funafuti in the Ellice Islands, in the South Central Pacific. The navy said two bombers were shot down, but that, while material damage had not been reported, there were some personnel casualties among American forces.

Supply Route Outpost

Funafuti is an outpost guarding part of the central sector of the supply route between Pearl Harbor and the Solomons-Australian area. The enemy might be attacking it in preparation for some heavy action designed to knock out the base and endanger supply lines—a sort of counter-offensive against the American campaign in the Solomons-New Guinea front. Or the raid could be merely designed to keep American forces tied up in the Central Pacific in anticipation of an offensive.

Funafuti was first attacked April 26. The Japs hit it again July 20 and the last raid was July 22.

ROME AS OPEN CITY IS STILL F. D. R.'S HOPE

President Says Allies Tried For Year To Have Capital Demilitarized

Emphasizes Monday's Bombing Was Dictated By Necessity

New York, July 23 (AP)—A British broadcast, quoting the Swedish newspaper Nya Dagligt Allenhanda, said tonight that Italy, Hungary and Rumania recently asked the Vatican to mediate for a separate peace, but the Vatican refused to negotiate.

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, said "this report has not yet been confirmed in London."

The newspaper said the peace feelers were made by Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Ambassador to the Holy See; Nicolas Kallay, Hungarian Prime Minister, and Mihail Antonescu, Rumanian Foreign Minister.

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 23—Still hopeful that Rome will be declared an open city, President Roosevelt emphasized today that Monday's bombing of the Italian capital's munitions and railway facilities was dictated by military necessity to save the lives of Allied fighting men—and not for retaliation.

The Chief Executive offered no assurance that the Allies would not again bomb Rome; to the contrary he declared that the more the Allies could keep military traffic from operating between Rome and the south the better it would be for the Allies.

He told his press conference that the Allies for more than a year had sought without success to have the Italian Fascist leaders declare Rome an open city, a move which would free it from attack, and added that he still hoped it would be so made.

An open city is one which contains no troops, defenses, military installations, military factories, or transportation facilities utilized for the movement of military supplies or personnel. The power in possession, having thus demilitarized the city, then could declare "open," probably subject to an inspection by a third party to see whether the conditions have been met.

Rome A Military City

In discussing the raid on Rome, Mr. Roosevelt described the city as an important military center with airports, munitions factories and immense marshalling yards for the transport of troops and guns to southern Italy.

The bombing, he said, was to protect American and British lives. He termed it very succesfsul, and said he would not go into the quid pro quo of the question, meaning retaliation for similar raids on Allied cities on the ground that he believed that was not the essentfal thing.

Recalls Nazi Vandalism

At the same time, however, he said the Germans had destroyed about 4,000 churches, hospitals and libraries in Britain, and commented that there was no compunction there. He reiterated then that it was not a question of retaliation in bombing Rome, and said that sometimes it becomes necessary to save lives and that such raids are inevitable and necessary.

The President declined to comment on the letter of Pope Pius XII to his vicar general in Rome deploring the bombing. He said he had received no communication from the Pope.

Upshur and Paddock Killed

Major-General and the Former Champion Runner Die in Alaska Plane Crash.

Washington, July 23 (A. P.).—The fiery crash of a naval plane near Sitka, Alaska, claimed the lives of Major-Gen. William P. Upshur, veteran hero of the Marines, and Capt. Charles Paddock, better known as Charlie Paddock, the Olympic track star of the 20s, who once was acclaimed as the "world's fastest human." Gen. Upshur was 61 years old. Capt. Paddock was 42.

The Navy Department reported late yesterday that Gen. Upshur, Capt. Paddock and four other persons were killed when the plane crashed and burned. There were no survivors, and the Navy said that the cause of the accident has not yet been determined."

The names of the plane's four other occupants were not disclosed pending notification of next of kin. The Navy said that the bodies of all passengers and members of the crew have been recovered.

General a Medalist.

Gen. Upshur, commanding general of the Marines for the Department of the Pacific, and a seasoned campaigner who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for service in Haiti in 1915, had been in charge of supplying personnel in Marine units in the Pacific theater since early last year.

He was the first Marine Corps general officer to die in a plane crash in this war. The Navy lost Rear Admiral Robert H. English, commander of submarines in the Pacific, in an air accident off the Pacific Coast, and the Army has lost several generals in flying disasters, among them Lieut.-Gen. Frank M. Andrews in a crash in Iceland.

A native of Richmond, Va., and a graduate of Virginia Military Institute, Gen. Upshur entered the Marine Corps in 1904 as a second lieutenant and, upon his death, was the senior major general in the corps, under only Lieutenant Gen. Thomas A. Holcomb.

Paddock in Journalism.

Capt. Paddock joined the Marine Corps as an officer July 10, 1942, and had been on Gen. Upshur's staff since that time, serving both as an aid and as departmental morale officer at the Pacific department headquarters. He was also public relations officer for the department until last March.

In private life Capt. Paddock was general manager of the Pasadena Star News and Post and business manager of the Long Beach Press Telegram, and contributed to national magazines. He was a lieutenant in the field artillery in 1918-1919. His wife and two children survive.

Gen. Upshur, a seasoned campaigner, had served in nearly every Marine barracks in the country, and with forces in Haiti, Cuba, Santo Domingo, China, France and the Philippines, as well as aboard the U. S. S. California, Maine, Kearsarge, Rainbow and Buffalo.

ROOSEVELT SILENT ON NAZIS' FUTURE

Washington, July 23 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt had nothing to say at his press-radio conference today when a reporter tried to draw him out on the post-war disposition of Germany.

After saying there was nothing on that he added a lot of suggestions had been made on that question in the last two or three years.

He also declined to express himself on the formation in Moscow of the National Committee of Free Germany, which is calling on the German people to overthrow Nazism. He said he had received nothing official on this organization.

The committee, with obvious Soviet inspiration, appealed in a manifesto for the formation of a "genuine national German government," which would immediately cease military operations, recall the troops to the Reich's original frontiers and embark on peace negotiations.

Washington officials shared the reported view in London that the manifesto showed Russia's pre-eminent interest in the peace conditions to be imposed on Germany.

It undoubtedly was intended, it was said, as a propaganda weapon to help the Red Army's counter-offensive by weakening the German home front, since it was broadcast to Germany by the Moscow radio.

The Moscow committee also could be a tentative nucleus for a pro-Soviet organization to take over authority in Germany, some persons believe.

U. S. Smuggles Contraband to Underground

Printing Presses and Food Supplied to Anti-Nazis, Sometimes by Parachute

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—By air and by underground channels the enslaved peoples of Europe are getting regular reminders—in a form more substantial than leaflets—that the United States aims to do something about their plight.

Sewing kits, seeds, soap and packets of tea, bouillon and chocolate are being dropped by parachute or smuggled past Nazi barriers, each gift carrying a message of encouragement to the downtrodden for whom such things are scarce, costly or unobtainable.

Office of War Information officials lifted today some of the secrecy surrounding these deliveries into occupied lands and even enemy countries. They are sent to neutral lands as well, but are distributed openly there, as visual representations of a friendly United States.

Ingenuity went into the designing of printing and duplicating devices to help the underground movements of Europe in waging their own propaganda warfare against the Axis overlords.

Compact and Light

These are built compact and light, for greater ease in spiriting them to remote spots or new hideouts. They are quickly assembled and taken apart without tools—an advantage in places where the Gestapo may drop in unexpectedly. They are easy to operate, for the benefit of amateurs.

They include:

An all-aluminum printing press, set up in four minutes. Hand operated, it can produce in an hour 1,200 copies of a clandestine news-leaflet. It weighs 23½ pounds in its suitcase container.

A miniature typesetting outfit, also suitcase-size, to go with the press. Even the printing types are of aluminum, to save weight, and alphabets are in several languages. Weight, twenty-five pounds.

A 12½-ounce mimeograph machine which can turn out 700 copies an hour. It comes in a container the size of a shoe box and can be set up in one minute. The complete kit with paper, ink, stencils and other equipment weighs less than three pounds.

A substantial flatbed mimeograph which weighs twenty-two pounds but can be carried in a briefcase.

Get Into Right Hands

Even O. W. I. officials don't know much about how they get into the right hands. That is a well guarded secret, but it is known that governments in exile handle the distribution to their own peoples.

The presses, of course, are useful to O. W. I. men in remote outposts and to the armed forces in the field, while many of the lesser items are distributed openly in neutral areas and in countries occupied by the Allies. Quantities of them, with texts in Arabic, went into North Africa.

On each gift is the American flag, a brief, friendly greeting from this country, or a picture symbolizing American armed might. In subjugated lands the flag and the message are concealed inside the cellophane jacket.

"Heil Hitler. . . . Heil Hunger" is the message on a tiny, self-inking rubber stamp which can be hidden in a man's hand while he stamps the slogan on cafe menus, paper money—or even on a Gauleiter's shirt front when it comes back from the laundry. "Mort aux Traitres" ("Death to Traitors"), another reads. These have been widely used in occupied Europe.

Nazis Warn of Poisoning

Axis leaders have sought to prevent people from picking up the packets of powdered bouillon by announcing that they are poisoned. The O. W. I. has heard, but cannot verify, that in some cases the Nazis have actually gathered up the envelopes, poisoned the contents and redistributed them as a grim object lesson.

The envelopes of seeds—lettuce, tomatoes, turnips and other foods chosen for their suitability to growing conditions in the target country—carry an American flag and the suggestion that the envelope be used as a garden marker.

Pencils that look like the familiar rolled-paper type are sent into occupied countries. A message will be found printed on the paper ribbon when it is unwound.

"Wash Off the Nazi Dirt"

"Soap paper," an impregnated paper which lathers quickly, has the added advantage of being a fine vehicle for printed propaganda in French, Italian and other languages. The not-too-subtle text reads: "From your friends the United Nations. Dip in water—use like soap. Wash off the Nazi dirt."

Sewing kits contain three needles, five pins and forty yards of thread, packaged with a leaflet headed "to the women of France—a small remembrance from the United States of America."

Two-ounce chocolate bars, highly prized in hungry Europe, are made to the Army's Ration D formula, fortified with vitamin B. They have a high melting point, for hot countries. On the red, white and blue wrapper is the legend: "The American soldier carries chocolate bars like this as an energy ration . . . all over the globe, wherever he goes to fight for the four freedoms."

Russ 'Free Germany' Plea Held Trial Balloon

JUL 24 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 23—Moscow's appeal to the Germans to overthrow Hitler and make an immediate peace, launched through a new "National Committee of Free Germany," was viewed here today as a trial balloon of more than ordinary importance.

The committee, with obvious Soviet inspiration, appealed in a manifesto for the formation of a "genuine national German Government," which would immediately cease military operations, recall the troops to the Reich's original frontiers and embark on peace negotiations.

Propaganda Weapon

Washington officialdom shared the reported view in London that the manifesto showed Russia's preeminent interest in the peace conditions to be imposed on Germany.

It undobutedly was intended, it was said, as a propaganda weapon to help the Red army's counter-offensive by weakening the German home front, since it was broadcast to Germany by the Moscow radio.

The Moscow committee also could be a tentative nucleus for a pro-Soviet organization to take over authority in Germany, some quarters believe.

No Public Commitment

The Soviet Government can sit back and watch the reaction among the other United Nations without embarrassment since it has made no public commitment nor has it officially indorsed the Freies Deutschland (Free Germany) movement.

The manifesto, in the Washington view, did not necessarily imply that Marshal Stalin was abandoning the unconditional surrender policy of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Unconditional surrender does not mean the refusal to make terms for the enemy's surrender but only that the enemy must accept the terms of the victor.

Washington authorities, on the other hand, were inclined to dismiss the manifesto's assertion that if Hitler is overthrown only by the force of Allied armies and not at home, this "will signify the end of (German) national independence and of (Germany's) state existence, the dismemberment of (the) fatherland."

Some apprehension was expressed privately here that such a statement might stiffen German resistance out of fear that the Soviets intend to dominate Germany.

The Moscow committee is composed of twelve Communist refugees from Germany, who have lived in the Soviet Union since Hitler came to power, plus a score of German war prisoners.

Headed By Poet

Erich Weinert, president of the committee, is a German Communist poet who has lived in Russia since 1933.

Another member, Wilhelm Pieck, former Reichstag Deputy, addressed the Comintern Congress of 1935 in Moscow, recommending dissolution of the Communist International. He argued then that it was no longer needed because the National Communist parties were so organized and trustworthy that they would carry on the work without the international organization. The Comintern was disbanded from Moscow only recently.

A meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Stalin might clear the atmosphere regarding the future of a conquered Germany.

Tour Of Fronts Begins Soon

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 23—The next grumbling doughboy in a foxhole who gets brushed off in the time-honored way—"Go tell it to your Senator!"—is liable to do just that, on the spot.

With their ears tuned to catch soldierly gripes and their eyes open for any signposts pointing the direction of the post-war world, five uniformed Senators will board an army plane in the next few days for an official closeup of Americans and their equipment at the fighting fronts.

Led by Senator Russell (Dem., Ga.), chairman, the group will take off from an unannounced place at an equally secret time for a precedent breaking trip that will take them to England, Africa (maybe Sicily), the Middle East, India, China, the Southwest Pacific and back home.

Other members of the committee are Senators Chandler (D., Ky.), Lodge (R., Mass.), Mead (D., N. Y.) and Brewster (R., Maine). All are going in army uniforms, without insignia and wearing arm bands that will mark them as noncombatants.

"We want to see how our men in uniform are faring, how they like their equipment and what they are thinking," Russell said today.

"We want to see what has been done with the money that Congress has appropriated, how things are being handled and, in short, how the war is going in the battle zones."

To Study Facilities

Without looking for any complaints, Russell said it would be a part of the committee's business to listen to any grumbles the ordinary soldier may have.

He said that obviously the committee intends to interest itself in learning, too, what arrangements have been made for the ownership and use after the war of railroads, docks, wharves, repair shops, parts factories and airfields in which the United States now has a stake.

"We want to find out what rights we are going to have in these facilities, particularly the airfields," Russell said.

"Air transportation is going to be one of the most important activities after the war and this country ought to be in position to take a leading part in it."

FINNISH VOLUNTEERS LEAVE GERMAN ARMY

Government Refused to Allow Farther Fighting for Nazis

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—Dissolution of a battalion of Finnish volunteers who had served in the German Army was reported in diplomatic dispatches from Helsinki, Finland, today.

The battalion was formally disbanded July 11, the reports said. Men fit for military service were transferred to the Finnish Army. The action was interpreted as indicating Finland's desire to disassociate herself from Germany, while remaining at war with Russia.

Two years ago more than 1,000 Finns volunteered for service in the German Army. On the expiration of the two-year contract last spring the Germans tried to keep them under arms, the reports said, but the volunteers returned to Finland, where the Government refused to allow any to rejoin the Germans.

WLB TO KEEP LITTLE STEEL PAY FORMULA

JUL 24 1943

Agency Declares It Will Adhere to Standard Despite Pressure.

FIGHT ON INFLATION STRESSED

Roosevelt Discloses New Plans for Price Control Are Under Study Now.

Washington, July 23 (A. P.).—The War Labor Board served notice today that it does not intend to scrap the Little Steel wage formula even though "other divisions of the anti-inflation army may weaken."

This statement came today after President Roosevelt had said that the administration is considering new plans for price control and general economic stabilization, but that no ideas have yet been agreed upon. The WLB told organized labor that "before making wage demands that cannot be granted under the board's stabilization program, labor should look to what is likely to happen if that program is broken down."

Comment From Roosevelt.

The WLB's position, coming after William Green, president of the A. F. of L., and Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, had demanded lifting of the Little Steel formula unless prices were rolled back to last September 15 levels, was presented in an opinion denying wage increases to Los Angeles transit workers who went on strike yesterday for a twenty-four-hour period. The opinion, written by Wayne L. Morse, public member of the WLB, stated that "the time has come for labor to realize that if we are going to stop inflation, we cannot continue to raise wages in the wage brackets which are not substandard."

"The command is to hold the line against inflation and the board proposes to hold it in so far as demands for inflationary wage increases are concerned," the opinion added.

"The present-day problems of our domestic economy are becoming so serious and critical that delivered an ultimatum. He added that labor, as well as other groups, are in a predicament because food prices generally have not been rolled back to levels of the board must hold the lid on wages and, at least for the time being, must insist that labor make wage sacrifices. However, having made sacrifices in the form of unrealized wage increases and decreased purchasing power, labor is in an excellent position to voice the demand that prices be rolled back to reasonable levels and that the cost of living be strictly controlled.

Protecting Workers' Dollars.

"All groups in America must recognize that we cannot maintain a sound war economy if we are to permit wages, prices and profits to run rampant. It is essential that the War Labor Board should do everything within its power to protect the purchasing power of the working man's dollar. In carrying out this duty, the board must perform the unpleasant task of telling American employees that it cannot honestly permit any general wage increase which does not conform with national wage stabilization policies."

The WLB said that the Los Angeles transit workers involved in the current controversy have received cost-of-living increases ranging from 15 to 26½ per cent under the Little Steel formula, which permits a 15 per cent increase above January 1, 1941, wage rates. At President Roosevelt's press-radio conference, earlier today, Mr. Roosevelt was asked to comment on labor's demand that prices be rolled back if it was to go along with the stabilization program.

The President said the reporter put it badly, that labor had not last September 15, as called for by Congress.

The President then disclosed the administration is working on new plans and that whatever plan is agreed on would have to be put up to Congress because it will cost money.

30-24-6457

Will Welcome Suggestions.

If any one has any bright suggestions as to how the rollback of prices can be carried out under the present law, he will welcome them, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Recalling that his combined Labor War Board had suggested yesterday that prices as well as wages be stabilized, he said labor is in a predicament—as well as some of those in the room who had not had their salaries raised. He went on to say that food prices generally have not been put back to September 1942 levels, but that some essential foods have been held fairly level.

When a reporter mentioned that the War Food Administration had reported plenty of eggs on hand and the Office of Price Administrator said an egg shortage existed, the President said it depends on where one lives.

Warning Against Generalities.

Warning against using generalities in such matters, the President said for example that he had lots of eggs at his Hyde Park, N. Y., farm and that he was actually selling some.

He then recalled how a cry went up several months ago about a shortage of potatoes and said by the end of the week there were more potatoes than could be used.

The C. I. O.-A. F. of L. demands came yesterday coincident with impending labor shortages which brought hints of labor policy shifts on the part of the War Manpower Commission.

TUGWELL REPORTS PUERTO RICO GAINS

Food Conditions on Island Are Better, He Tells President

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—Rexford G. Tugwell said after a White House visit today that President Roosevelt's committee now considering revision of the island organic act would limit its efforts to changing the method of electing a Governor and related questions.

Gov. Tugwell accompanied Secretary Ickes, chairman, and other members of the committee in a call upon the Chief Executive, but stayed for a personal discussion of island affairs with Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Ickes told reporters that he merely presented the committee members to the President and did not discuss the group's work, which he said would not be finished for another week.

Asked whether the committee had noticed various suggestions for Puerto Rican independence, Gov. Tugwell said he had seen several of them but that they had no place on the committee's agenda as the President, in creating the group, limited its study to changes in the organic law.

The Governor said that the food situation in the island now is "very good, due primarily to work of the Food Distribution Administration and Lewis W. Douglas, a deputy administrator of the War Shipping Administration.

"The situation now as to food is as good as he hoped to make it," Gov. Tugwell declared.

Commenting on the stop-gap relief appropriations of $7,000,000 which Congress voted to last through November, Gov. Tugwell said that if more money is not forthcoming "I don't know what we are going to do."

POST-WAR AIR PACTS

Washington, July 23 (A. P.).—Senator Clark (D.-Mo.) said today he had received State Department assurances that this Government will make no international commitments on post-war aviation developments without first consulting Congress.

Senator Clark recently discussed the aviation situation with both President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull. The Missouri Senator said he had been informed that the interdepartmental committee headed by Assistant Secretary of State Adolph A. Berle Jr., would consult with a special Senate Commerce sub-committee, of which Mr. Clark is chairman, before making any decisions on aviation questions.

Norman Thomas Calls Another War Inevitable

Accuses Allies of 'Intention to Perpetuate Imperialism'

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Norman Thomas, Socialist party leader, said tonight that the United Nations are "laying the foundations for new war by their obvious intention to perpetuate their own imperialism."

In an address prepared for a mass meeting in connection with a quarterly meeting of the party's executive committee, Mr. Thomas said:

"Great Britain has not promised to restore Hongkong to China. We have not repealed unilateral Chinese exclusion, and we have intensified our own racial tension. Churchill has announced bluntly, 'We mean to hold our own. I have not become the King's First Minister to preside over the dissolution of the British Empire.' This statement has not been changed or modified in any way by Mr. Churchill or protested by our government.

"As it stands it means that American boys are fighting to restore Burma and Malaya to British rule and to keep India under British rule. This is to make a third world war virtually inevitable."

COFFEE RATIONING END IS IMMINENT

Washington, July 23 (A. P.).—Removal of coffee from the ration list is imminent, Government food officials said today.

No final date for lifting of rationing has been set, but these officials said an announcement is expected to be made by the Office of Price Administration within the next few days.

Recommendations for removal of rationing have been presented to top OPA and War Food Administration officials and action was said to await only their formal approval.

Coffee has been under ration since last November. Due to an improvement in the Atlantic shipping situation in recent months, the coffee trade reported that stocks early this month totaled about 450,000,000 pounds. Normally supplies total about 300,000,000 pounds at this time of year. Imports have been in excess of consumptio

The improved oceanic situation also has made it possible to increase this country's imports of sugar from the Caribbean area. Officials said, however, there is little likelihood that sugar rationing will be dispensed with or that larger amounts will be allowed civilians in the near future. Great quantities of raw sugar go into industrial alcohol for war needs.

More Dead and Missing Are Announced by Navy

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—The Navy announced today thirty-three casualties, including sixteen dead, five wounded and twelve missing.

In addition the Navy announced that the classification of four additional names has been changed from missing to dead and twenty-six additional names from prisoner of war to dead, one of which is omitted from the list as the next of kin resides in an occupied country.

This brings to 27,317 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,458 dead, 4,768 wounded, 10,275 missing and 3,816 prisoners.

The casualties announced today included (those listed are Navy and non-commissioned personnel unless otherwise specified):

New York

ALES, FRANKLIN ELMER. Dead. Mother, Mrs. Matilda Ales, 728 East Genessee Street, Buffalo.

BURNS, ROBERT JOSEPH. Missing. Mother, Mrs. Loretta Bayer, 417 East 147th Street, New York.

New York, July 23—America, a Catholic weekly edited here by priests of the Society of Jesus, will express the hope in its next issue that the United States will pledge itself to rebuild the Basilica of San Lorenzo, reported damaged in the air raid on Rome.

The magazine, which will go on sale next Wednesday, will say editorially:

"It would be a great relief if our Government could give assurance to the Holy Father at the earliest opportunity that there will be no repetition of this event—and as a sign of earnestness and good will would pledge itself to the rebuilding of the Basilica of San Lorenzo."

On the bombing itself America will say:

"One may well fear that the (raid) can be questioned, not on grounds of strict justice or military strategy, but of a higher strategy—the winning of men's minds and hearts as well as physical victory over their armaments."

'No Distinction' To Commonweal

New York, July 23 (AP)—The Commonweal, a Catholic lay weekly publication, will say editorially in next week's issue that no distinction should be drawn "between the bombing of Rome and that of the most miserable Calabrian village, the industrial city in the Ruhr, that of the English town."

Another view of the bombing will be taken by the Tablet, official organ of the Catholic diocese of Brooklyn.

The Tablet will say editorially in tomorrow's weekly edition that the precautions taken to avoid striking religious and cultural structures will not "lessen the sorrow shared by all of us that the United Nations had not seen fit to spare the city which enshrines most of the most sacred relics of Christian antiquity.

"It is true that Nazis and Fascists have bombed churches in England, Malta and elsewhere," the Tablet editorial continues, "but we have no desire to ape them. It is the Nazi way of life we oppose."

The Commonweal editorial says the announcements and the President's message to the Pope concerning the bombing "embarrass Catholics because they make it look as if Catholics would accept anything so long as certain buildings in a certain city were respected.

". . . In the measure that they have the faith of Peter, they can stand the threat to Peter's tomb. In the measure that they cannot escape being concerned with history they share the world's anxiety and sadness at seeing the peril threatening the city which links our world to the past."

Browder Argues For Hague

[By the Associated Press]

New York, July 23—Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in the United States, commenting on the recent indorsement of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City by the New Jersey Communist party, said today the action was designed to prevent a Republican victory in the State.

In a letter published in the Herald Tribune, Browder said:

"The simple fact is, of course, that the Communists merely joined in the advice (given by many others) that the workers should not join in the factional fight in the New Jersey Democratic party which promises to throw the election to the Republicans who are sabotaging President Roosevelt's war program."

November Election

New Jersey will elect a Governor in November.

Browder's letter continued:

"There are laws of the statute books which makes it a crime for a Communist to work in war industry. The Communists are still being kept out of combat service in the United States Army. Strictly speaking it is illegal for a Communist to draw his pay when he is inducted into the army, since the appropriations carry provisions that none of money shall be used to pay for the services of Communists.

"Hitlerite Laws"

"Anyone even suspected of being friendly to Communists is hounded out of the Government service. We propose that this maze of Hitlerite laws, and the attitude which prompted them, should be abolished, and Communists treated like other citizens."

Browder concluded by asking if "exceptional laws" against Communists could continue to be justified "because these Communists, in urging an end to the factional fight in the New Jersey Democratic party," reasoned differently than non-Communists.

The indorsement of Hague, on the ground he supported President Roosevelt's "win the war" policies, was contained in an article by William Norman, secretary of the New Jersey Communists and published in the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, on July 6.

RADIOS TO WAINWRIGHT

Wife Broadcasts Message for Captive Corregidor Hero

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 23 (AP)—Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright has sent a message to her husband, Lieut. Gen. Wainwright, hero of Corregidor, now a Japanese prisoner, and especially hopes that it gets through to him so he'll know his son "has his own ship now."

Mrs. Wainwright's broadcast last night from a local station was part of the "Eyes of the Air Force" program from New York and will be transcribed and rebroadcast from the United Nations short-wave station nearest Formosa, where the General is believed to be interned. She assured the general that "everything at home is fine."

"I keep very busy. I am an airplane spotter and serve regular shifts on the observation post in Skaneateles. So many of your friends wanted to be remembered to you it would be impossible to name them all," she said, adding:

"But Johnny [the Wainwrights' 30-year-old son, in the merchant marine] especially asked me to say hello. He wanted me to be sure and tell you that he is well and happy and that he has his own ship now. So 'hello' from our son, Captain Johnny."

Tire Plant Opened In Lima, Peru

Akron, Ohio, July 23 (AP)—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company today announced the opening of a tire plant at Lima, Peru—the company's third on the South American Continent.

The plant was opened officially by P. W. Litchfield, chairman of Goodyear's board of directors, and the first tire produced was turned over to Peru's National Museum. Dr. Manual Prado, President of the South American Republic, participated in the ceremonies.

Officials said Peruvian rubber and labor would be used exclusively.

Construction of the plant, Goodyear's twelfth in various parts of the world, was started in September, 1942. The company's first South American factory was established in Hurlingham, near Buenos Aires, Argentina, in 1931, followed by another at Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1939.

BATAAN AIR HERO RESCUED

Major Dyess of Texas Had Been Reported a Prisoner of War

ALBANY, Texas, July 23 (AP)—Maj. William Edwin Dyess, who was reported a prisoner of war in Bataan is free and well. The former college track star was rescued from a Pacific island by the Navy, he informed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dyess, by telegram.

As commander of a grounded Army Air Forces pursuit squadron, Major Dyess was last heard from on Easter, 1942, when reported a Japanese prisoner. Just before Bataan fell he led a group of his men into the hills seeking to filter through the Japanese lines.

Honors received for his Philippines action included the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Major Dyess attended John Tarleton College at Stephenville, Texas, and Texas A. & M. He married Marajen Stevick of Champaign, Ill., co-owner of The Champaign News-Gazette.

Jap Ship's Pyre: Gasoline And Guns

Los Angeles, July 23 (AP)—Resourceful, Lightning pilots, lacking bombs, destroyed a Japanese freighter by drenching the vessel's decks with high-test gasoline and then igniting it with shells and bullets from their nose guns.

The story was told today by Major John W. Mitchell, Enid, Miss., and Capt. Thomas G. Lanphier, Jr., born in Panama, C. Z. Both are home from the South Pacific for a tour of training bases to give student pilots the latest tips on fighting Japs.

The Lightning flyers found the Nipponese freighter lying under a camouflage net, Captain Lanphier related.

"We raked the decks with our guns but nothing much happened," he recalled. "So we dive-bombed the freighter, letting go our auxiliary gasoline tanks and spilling gasoline all over her.

"Then we made another pass and let loose with incendiary bullets. The gas caught fire and the last we saw of the ship it was burning from stem to stern."

The main attack on the San Lorenzo railway center inflicted

JUL 241943

"very heavy damage" to tracks and railway property, the report said, and the Tabonelli steel plant and a large chemical works southwest of it were hit.

Hits at the San Lorenzo yards were scored on two roundhouses, a large locomotive shop and car sheds. A large freight depot was still burning hours after the raid.

The air ministry said the bombs severed water mains at several places, flooding a number of roads around the chemical plant.

Much rolling stock was damaged or derailed at the Littoria railway center where a ~~xxxx~~ direct hit was seen. The railway bridge and the locomotive department were severely damaged. Ten large fires were seen burning.

The Ciampino air field north of Rome was left completely unserviceable, with the landing area almost entirely covered by craters, the report said. Direct hits were scored on a large hangar,

AT A UNITED STATES BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, JULY 23-(AP)-THE NAVIGATOR OF THE FLYING FORTRESS "RAT KILLER," PILOTED BY FIRST LIEUT. LAURENCE D. ("DUSTY") CLARK OF SEATTLE, WASH., WHICH FAILED TO RETURN FROM A RAID ON RENNES MAY 5, IS KNOWN TO BE SAFE AND THERE

30.27-6461

ARE STRONG INDICATIONS OTHER CREW MEMBERS ALSO SURVIVED, EIGHTH AIR FORCE OFFICIALS SAID TODAY.

THE NAVIGATOR, CAPT.RAY O.LANDRUM, OF FREDERICK,OKLA., IS A PRISONER OF WAR RECEIVING TREATMENT IN AN ENEMY HOSPITAL FOR A LEG INJURY, ACCORDING TO A CARD WRITTEN BY LANDRUM JUNE 21 AND RECEIVED AT THIS STATION YESTERDAY BY FIRST LIEUT.ROBERT P.BENDER, JR., POLLOCKSVILLE,N.C., PILOT OF THE FORTRESS "SPOOK FIFTH."

IT ALSO WAS LEARNED FOUR DAYS AGO THAT A MAJOR EDGAR COLE OF THE EIGHTH AIRFORCE HEAVY BOMBARDMENT GROUP IS SAFE.

AMONG THOSE WHO ACCOMPANIED MAJOR CLARK ON THE RENNES MISSION WAS MAJOR EDGAR B.COLE OF OGDEN,UTAH, SQUADRON LEADER WHO RODE THE "RAT KILLER" AS AN OBSERVER ON HER LAST RAID. MAJOR COLE'S WIFE LIVES AT NYSSA,ORE.

JUL 24 1943

AIR FORCE OFFICIALS AND FLIERS AT THIS STATION BELIEVE THE MAJOR MENTIONED IN THE REPORT IS THE SAME MAJOR COLE WHO WENT DOWN WITH CLARK.

THIS REPORT AND LANDRUM'S CARD STRENGTHENED THEIR BELIEF THAT AT LEAST MOST OF MAJOR CLARK'S CREW SURVIVED--PERHAPS ALL OF THEM.

LANDRUM'S CARD, RECEIVED THROUGH THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS, SAID:

"I'M OKAY. IN HOSPITAL WITH FRACTURED LEG, FEW MINOR BRUISES. HAVEN'T SEEN DUSTY CLARK YET. IF YOU HAVE TIME, SEND ME SOME UNDERWEAR. TELL ALL THE FELLOWS I'M OKAY AND HELLO."

FLIERS HERE INTERPRET LANDRUM'S REFERENCE TO CLARK AS MEANING CLARK ALSO SURVIVED. THEY CONTEND LANDRUM WOULDN'T HAVE REFERRED TO CLARK AS HE DID IF THE LATTER WERE DEAD.

OTHER MEMBERS OF THE CREW INCLUDED: (EDITORS: NAME OF CO-PILOT--FROM NEW YORK CITY--IS MISSING AND WILL BE INSERTED LATER.) LIEUT. JUL 24 1943

LIEUT.DONALD H.MERTEN OF MORGANVILLE,KANS., CO-PILOT OF THE "SPOOK FIFTH," SAID THAT CLARK'S BOMBER, APPARENTLY DAMAGED BY AN ENEMY FIGHTER, STRAGGLED FROM THE FORTRESS FORMATION AS THE RAIDERS STREAKED HOMEWARD AFTER BLASTING THE NAZI SUPPLY DEPOT.

"WE WERE FLYING DIRECTLY BEHIND CLARK, WHO WAS LEADING OUR SQUADRON," MERTEN SAID. "WHEN HE DROPPED OUT WE PULLED UP AND TOOK THE LEAD. WE WERE UNDER PRETTY HEAVY FIGHTER ATTACK THAT DAY. THE FIRST TIME I SAW THAT CLARK WAS IN TROUBLE WAS WHEN I OBSERVED A BURST OF FLAME SHOOT OUT FROM BEHIND HIS CO-PILOT'S COMPARTMENT. I ALSO NOTICED THAT HIS NUMBER THREE ENGINE WAS SMOKING.

"CLARK THEN SUDDENLY PULLED UPWARD SLIGHTLY, THEN PEELED OFF TO THE LEFT OF OUR FORMATION AND STARTED TO GLIDE DOWNWARD UNDER CONTROL. I NEVER DID SEE ANY PARACHUTES COME OUT BUT WE COULDN'T WATCH HIM

VERY LONG AS WE WERE TOO BUSY WITH GERMAN FIGHTERS.

"THE LAST TIME I SAW CLARK HE WAS ABOUT 6,000 FEET BELOW US--WE WERE AT ABOUT 21,000 FEET--AND HE WAS STILL GLIDING DOWN UNDER CONTROL. HIS SHIP WAS NOT ON FIRE."

LIEUT.CLARK S.NICHOLS OF BOSTON, BOMBARDIER OF THE "KATHY JANE," PILOTED BY LIEUT.NORMAN ROTHSCHILD OF PHILADELPHIA, SAID HE SAW CLARK'S BOMBER "DART INTO A WIDE HALF-LOOP," BUT "I LOST SIGHT OF HIM."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 23-(AP)-THE AMERICAN LINE ON SICILY FOLLOWING THE CAPTURE OF PALERMO NOW FORMS A SHARP RIGHT ANGLE.

THE VERTICAL ARM RUNS DUE NORTH FROM MEZZOIUSO, ABOUT 15 MILES FROM THE SEA, TO PALERMO.

THE HORIZONTAL ARM RUNS WEST FROM MEZZOIUSO THROUGH CARLEONE, CAMPOFIORITO, CONTESSA ENTELLINA, SANTA MARGHERITA DI BELICE AND MONTERAGO TO CASTELVETRANO.

AMERICAN ADVANCED PATROLS HAVE GONE FARTHER WEST THAN CASTELVETRANO BUT THEIR EXACT POSITIONS ARE UNKNOWN.

(THIS LINE LEAVES AN AREA OF NO MORE THAN 1,250 SQUARE MILES OF NORTHWESTERN SICILY NOT YET OCCUPIED BY ALLIED TROOPS.)

ELSEWHERE ON THE CATANIA PLAIN THE FRONT SITUATION WAS UNCHANGED.

FURTHER WEST THE CANADIANS REPORTED PROGRESS WAS SLOW. WILD RUGGED MOUNTAINS THROUGH WHICH THE GERMANS HAD DEMOLISHED STRATEGIC BRIDGES AND ROADS WERE FORCING THE CANADIANS TO FIGHT THEIR WAY FORWARD ON FOOT.

FIGHTING WAS TREMENDOUS FOR BOTH SIDES. THE GERMANS WERE OUTNUMBERED ALMOST EVERYWHERE BUT THIS COUNTRY IS IDEALLY SUITED FOR DEFENSE. THE BRITISH WERE FIGHTING UPHILL EVERYWHERE EXCEPT ON THE CATANIA PLAIN. EVEN ON THE PLAIN THEY WERE OVERLOOKED CONSTANTLY, WHICH HAMPERS ANY EFFORTS TO CONCENTRATE MEN AND VEHICLES INSIDE THE BRIDGEHEADS OVER THE SIMETO RIVER TO DRIVE ACROSS THE PLAIN INTO GERMAN DEFENSES.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 23-(AP)-IN THE HOARSE ROAR OF TANKS AND THE CRUNCHING TREAD OF AMERICAN INFANTRY FILING THROUGH PALERMO TODAY, THE FREE WORLD CAN HEAR THE OPENING STRAINS OF A DIRGE FOR AXIS POWER OVER EUROPE.

PALERMO WAS MORE THAN THE SIXTH LARGEST ITALIAN CITY.

IT WAS ONE OF THE QUEENLY PORTS OF THE TYRRHENIAN SEA.

IT WAS THE CIVILIZED HEART OF SICILY.

JUL 24 1943

IT WAS SHIELDED FROM ATTACK AS HEAVILY AS ALMOST ANY BASE ON THE ITALIAN PENINSULA ITSELF.

WHAT HAPPENED TO PALERMO I BELIEVE CAN HAPPEN TO ANY OTHER ITALIAN CITY IN THE WEEKS AND MONTHS TO COME.

THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN PROVED THESE THINGS:

THE ITALIAN ARMY FIGHTS NO MORE BRAVELY OR SKILLFULLY AT HOME THAN IT DID ABROAD.

WAR WEARINESS AND DISCOURAGEMENT RUN THROUGH VIRTUALLY ALL CLASSES OF THE ITALIAN NATION.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH GENERALS KNOW AS MUCH ABOUT LIGHTNING WAR TODAY AS THEIR GERMAN TEACHERS.

PROPERLY MIXED IN WITH VETERANS, AMERICAN AND BRITISH DIVISIONS THAT NEVER HAVE SEEN BATTLE BEFORE CAN BE HURLED INTO ACTION ON AT LEAST A PAR WITH EXPERIENCED ENEMY ARMIES--THANKS TO A TRAINING PROGRAM THAT KEPT PACE WITH THE LATEST LESSONS OF THE 1943 WAR PROGRAM.

AMPHIBIOUS WARFARE, THE MOST DIFFICULT AND EXACTING TYPE OF ALL, HAS BECOME AN ALLIED SPECIALTY, IN WHICH THOUSANDS OF SHIPS AND WARPLANES AND HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF TROOPS ARE COORDINATED WITH MATHEMATICAL PRECISION IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE MILITARY PRINCIPLE OF HITTING WITH OVERWHELMING, CONCENTRATED FORCE.

THE ALLIED COMMAND AGAIN HAS DEMONSTRATED THAT WHEREVER IT SENDS ITS LAND SPEARHEADS IT MAKES SURE FIRST OF AIR COVER AND A SECURE SUPPLY LINE.

THE ALLIES HAVE ALL THE ESSENTIALS FOR THE CONQUEST OF EUROPE.

FD/GN1233PEW

WITH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY IN SICILY, JULY 23-(AP)-STAFF SERGEANT ALBERT R.OBLIGATO OF 1135 VERNON AVE., BELOIT, WIS., IS FIGHTING THIS WAR IN A TINY "FLYING JEEP."

HE BOUNCES AROUND ABOVE NO MAN'S LAND IN A LOW-HORSEPOWER PLANE, SERVING AS THE EYES OF AN ARTILLERY BATTERY. WHEN HE GOES UP HE'S IN CONSTANT COMMUNICATION WITH HIS COMMAND POST. HE ADJUSTS ITS FIRE UNTIL SHELLS ARE PASTING THE TARGET, SEARCHES OUT ENEMY GUN POSITIONS--SOMETIMES BY THEIR FLASHES--AND FLIES AROUND OCCASIONALLY AS A COURIEJ.

HE AND A FELLOW OBSERVER WERE SENT UP THE OTHER DAY WHEN THE ENEMY

BEGAN SHELLING A CENTRAL SICILIAN ROAD OVER WHICH AN AMERICAN ARTILLERY OUTFIT WAS MOVING. SOME OF THE COLUMN HAD BEEN PERMITTED TO ROLL UP TO A DESTROYED BRIDGE, AND THEN WAS CUT OFF FROM THE REMAINDER OF THE OUTFIT BY HEAVY FIRE.

THE MINUTE OBLIGATO'S PLANE GOT OVER THE AREA. THE ENEMY BATTERIES STOPPED FIRING SO THAT THEIR POSITIONS WOULD NOT BE DISCLOSED. THEN AMERICAN INFANTRYMEN QUICKLY TOOK OVER THE JOB, THREW OUT PATROLS AND KNOCKED OUT THE ENEMY GUNS.

JUL 24 1943

QUITE OFTEN, HOWEVER, THE SERGEANT GOES OUT ON A CRUISING MISSION AND CAN'T TELL WHETHER HE'S OVER HIS OWN LINES OR ENEMY TERRITORY. THIS IS PARTICULARLY TRUE WHEN THE WIND IS STRONG AND HIS FRAGILE PLANE IS BEING PUSHED AROUND. UNDER SUCH CONDITIONS HE TRIES TO NAVIGATE HOME WITH WHAT HE CALLS HIS "HAPPY-GO-LUCKY TECHNIQUE."

SOMETIMES OBLIGATO CAN TELL WHERE HE IS BY WHETHER THE SOLDIERS ON THE GROUND ARE SHOOTING AT HIM. BUT EVEN ALLIED TROOPS HAVE BEEN KNOWN TO LET A FEW BULLETS GO IN HIS DIRECTION, ANDHE BELIEVES HE KNOWS WHY.

"THEY JUST CAN'T BELIEVE THEY SEE AN AMERICAN PLANE UP THERE," HE SAID. "THEY THINK I'M A NEW GERMAN SECRET WEAPON OR SOMETHING."

ANOTHER PROBLEM IS FINDING A PLACE TO LAND.

"A NICE BEACH OR LEVEL HIGHWAYS ARE BEST," HE EXPLAINED, "BUT THEY'VE BEEN PRETTY CROWDED LAATELY. WHEAT FIELDS ARE OKAY. IF THEY ARE NOT LEVEL I TAKE OFF DOWNHILL AND LAND UPHILL. ONCE IN A WHILE I GET NEAR A REGULAR AIRFIELD. THAT'S JUST LIKE EATING CHOCOLA CAKE."

WHEN HE DOES SIT DOWN AT A FULL-FLEDGED AIRPORT, THE GROUND CREWS ALWAYS START BRINGING OUT GAS. THEY GET UNDER THE SERGEANT'S SKIN.

"I HAVE AN AWFUL TIME WITH THOSE FELLOWS BECAUSE THEY ALWAYS INSIST ON GIVING ME 100-OCTANE GAS. EVERY TIME I HAVE TO TELL THEM, 'I BURN TRUCK GAS.' THEN THEY LOOK AT ME AS IF I WAS NUTS."

BEFORE 1940 OBLIGATO SOLD BEER AND INSURANCE IN BELOIT, AND FLEW AROUND A BIT IN VARIOUS LIGHT TYPE PLANES. HE TRIED TO JOIN THE AIR FORCES, BUT THEY TURNED HIM DOWN BECAUSE HE WAS 28--TOO OLD. THEN HE TRIED THE GROUND FORCES AND HEARD HE WAS JUST THE MAN THEY HAD BEEN LOOKING FOR. HE AND A GROUP OF OTHERS FLEW "FLYING JEEPS" IN THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN, BRUSHED UP ON THEIR TECHNIQUE AND CAME ON TO SICILY. NOW THEY WOULDN'T HAVE EITHER A FIGHTER OR A BOMBER.

A British Hospital in North Africa, July 22 (delayed)-(AP)-Private George Ourganian of Bloomfield, N.J., lay in a hospital bed today, a bullet from an Italian gun in his arm, and related how he slipped away from his Italian captors when they turned their attention to attacking Canadian troops.

He said he crawled from a stable where the Italians had begun to "third degree" him to a nearby ditch, where the Canadians, who had captured the town, found him.

"They (the Canadians) mistook me for an Italian because I was wearing only shorts," Ourganian said. "But when I started talking American the Canadians rushed me to their regimental aid post and from there to a hospital ship."

JUL 241943

Ourganian, who had been a factory worker, said he was among the first American paratroopers to come down on Sicily on the eve of the Alliedlandings.

"I landed six miles inland," he related. "It was dark as hell. When I hit the ground I threw away my parachute and got all my weapons ready. I couldn't find my companions, so I headed south by the compass.

"Around midnight, I met an Italian in a vineyard cluster. He let go with his tommygun and we started to shoot it out. I heard a moan. Guess I clipped him."

He said eight more Italians, some in civilian clothes, ran up and he turned his tommygun on them. He was wounded during that tussle, he said.

"I tried to throw a grenade," he went on, "but didn't have enough strength to remove it from my pack."

JUL 241943

He was taken prisoner, dumped in a pushcart and driven to a stable where his arm was bandaged and he was given water. The Italians encircled him and ask questions about the number of ships taking part in the invasion and the number of parachutists participating.

Suddenly, he heard a rumpus outside.

"there was fire with mortars and guns," he said. "It was near morning by this time. The Italians went out, leaving one man to watch me. Then he left, too, because apparently they needed all their men outside."

Then, he made his escape.

Sydney, July 23-(AP)-Archbishop Gilroy, secretary of the Roman Catholic Heirarchy in Australia, sent a ~~ma~~ cable to the papal secretary of state at Vatican city today saying:

"In this dark and tragic hour we archbishops and bishops of Australia, while expressing our sympathy and loyalty, venture humbly to associate ourselves with the noble and touching protest made by the holy father against the outrage which this ghastly war has brought upon the hallowed centre of Christianity."

JUL 24 1943

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JULY 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-CARL THUSGAARD, DANISH BORN WAR PHOTOGRAPHER FOR ACME PHOTOS, OFFICIALLY WAS POSTED MISSING TODAY AFTER THE CONSOLIDATED LIBERATOR IN WHICH HE WAS MAKING HIS FIRST BOMBING FLIGHT WAS SEEN TO CRASH IN FLAMES NEAR MADANG ON TH NORTHEASTERN COAST OF NEW GUINEA EARLY THIS MORNING.

AUSTRALIAN GROUND WATCHERS SAID THE LIBERATOR WENT DOWN ONLY AFTER DESTROYING TWO OR POSSIBLY THREE OF NINE ZEROS WHICH ATTACKED THE LONE BOMBER.

30.24-6469

THE AUSTRALIAN POST BENABENA, 70 MILES INLAND FROM MADANG REPORTED A PATROL WAS SENT INTO THE REMOTE AREA WHERE THE LIBERATOR CRASHED BUT THAT NO PARACHUTES WERE SEEN TO LEAVE THE STRICKEN PLANE.

(THE COMMUNIQUE FROM GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARDERS OF JULY 22 REPORTED THE LOSS OF A LIBERATOR AFTER DESTROYING TWO AND POSSIBGY THREE ZEROS).

THE PLANE APPARENTLY HAD COMPLETED A RECONNAISSANCE BOMBING MISSION OVER MADANG AND WAS FLYING HOME WHEN IT RAN INTO THE FORMATION OF NINE JAPANESE FIGHTERS WHICH A COMMUNIQUE REPORTED ATTACKED BENABENA THE MORNING OF JULY 7.

JUL 24 1943

THUSGAARD MAY BE THE THIRD AMERICAN WAR CORRESPONDENT LOST IN ACTION IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC THEATER. THE TIME MAGAZINE REPORTER, MELVILLE JACOBY, WAS KILLED ON AN AUSTRALIAN AIR FIELD LAST YEAR SHORTLY AFTER ESCAPING FROM CORREGIDOR. BYRON DARNTON, THE NEW YORK TIMES CORRESPONDENT, WAS KILLED LATE LAST YEAR WHEN MOVING TOWARD THE BUNA BATTLE AREA.

THUSGAARD, WHOSE WIFE LIVES IN JAMAICA, NEW YORK, WAS GRADUATED FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF COPENHAGEN AND COMPLETED TWO MONTHS OF COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE WITH THE DANISH FIELD ARTILLERY BEFORE GOING TO THE UNITED STATES IN THE LATE '20S.

JOINING THE ACME STAFF, THUSGAARD SPECIALIZED IN SPORTS PHOTOGRAPHY, WINNING A NUMBER OF PRIZES FOR ACTION AND NIGHT PICTURES.

THREE MONTHS AGO, HIS YOUNG SON DIED. THUSGAARD WAS AT AN ADVANCED NEW GUINEA BASE AT THE TIME AND COULDN'T BE REACHED FOR TWO WEEKS. PREMATURELY GRAY IN THE LATE 30S, THUSGAARD RECENTLY RETURNED TO PORT MORSBY FROM NASSAU BAY AFTER SURVIVING ATTACK WHICH WOUNDED ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT WILLIAM F.BONI.

THE DAY BEFORE MAKING WHAT MAY HAVE BEEN HIS LAST FLIGHT, THUSGAARD WENT OUT ON A PRACTICE BOMBING RUN WITH THE LIBERATOR "JUST TO GET THE FEEL OF IT."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, JULY 24 (SATURDAY)-(AP)-ALLIED AIR FORCES IN THE PACIFIC COMPLETED THEIR MOST ACTIVE WEEK

OF THE WAR TODAY AFTER A CLIMACTIC RAID ON THE MAIN JAPANESE NAVAL BASE IN JAVA ON THE SEA ROAD TO SINGAPORE FROM AUSTRALIA.

IN ONE WEEK AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN PILOTS HAVE MADE THREE RAIDS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC WITH A RECORD NUMBER OF PLANES. IN ADDITION THEY CONDUCTED TWO OF THE LONGEST BOMBING MISSIONS EVER FLOWN AND WITHOUT THE LOSS OF A SINGLE PLANE.

THE CLIMAX CAME THURSDAY WHEN ALLIED AIRMEN FLEW NEARLY 2,400 MILES TO SURPRISE THE JAPANESE WITH A SHATTERING RAID ON THE NAVAL BASE OF SOERABAJA IN THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES. THIS JAVA PORT IS ABOUT HALFWAY BETWEEN AUSTRALIA AND SINGAPORE, THE GREAT ENGLISH NAVAL BASE THAT WAS BELIEVED IMPREGNABLE UNTIL ITS CAPTURE BY THE JAPANESE ON FEBRUARY 15, 1942.

JUL 24 1943

SOME OF THE FIRES STARTED IN SOERABAJA AT AN OIL REFINERY, RAILROAD INSTALLATIONS, WAREHOUSES AND A DOCK COULD BE SEEN FOR 140 MILES.

IT WAS THE SECOND TIME WITHIN A WEEK THAT LIBERATOR BOMBERS RAIDED A CITY BLAZING WITH LIGHTS. LAST MONDAY ALLIED PILOTS MADE A 2,000-MILE ROUND TRIP FLIGHT TO STRIKE AT SURPRISED NIPPONESE AT MACASSAR ON CELEBES ISLAND, ALSO IN THE DUTCH EAST INDIES.

THESE LONG DISTANCE FLIGHTS WERE SURPASSED IN POWER BY THREE BIG ATTACKS ON THE ENEMY IN THE CENTRAL AND NORTHERN SOLOMON ISLANDS. TWICE THE JAPANESE WERE HIT IN RAIDS BY ABOUT 200 PLANES AND A THIRD TIME 150 TORPEDO AND DIVE BOMBERS, ESCORTED BY FIGHTERS, RAIDED THE SUPPLY BASE OF BAIROKO, ABOUT TEN MILES NORTH OF THE ENEMY'S MUNDA AIR BASE ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND.

JAPANESE NAVAL LOSSES RESULTING FROM ALLIED AIR ACTIVITY DURING THE WEEK WERE AT LEAST TWO CRUISERS, FOUR DESTROYERS AND A SUB CHASER. THESE SHIPS, ALONG WITH A FEW MERCHANT CRAFT, WERE SUNK WHEN THE ENEMY ATTEMPTED TO GET AID TO HIS BESIEGED FORCES AT MUNDA.

THE MUNDA AIR BASE WAS THE TARGET OF ANOTHER HEAVY RAID ON THURSDAY WHEN BOMBERS DROPPED 135 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES IN RAIDS SUPPORTING GROUND TROOPS SLOWLY CLOSING IN FROM THE JUNGLE ON THE EAST AND NORTH.

ON THE SEME DAY ALLIED AIR FORCES DROPPED 93 TONS OF BOMBS ON JAPANESE POSITIONS NEAR KOMIATUM, SEVEN MILES INLAND FROM ANOTHER ENEMY-HELD AIRDROME AT SALAMAUA ON THE NORTHEASTERN COAST OF NEW GUINEA. AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN SOLDIERS TOOK A HEAVY TOLL OF THE ENEMY IN CLASHES A FEW MILES SOUTH OF SALAMAUA.

WASHINGTON,JULY 23-(AP)-THE FRENCH AIR FORCE, DISARMED AND DISMANTLED BY THE NAZIS WHEN FRANCE FELL, IS BEING REBORN IN THE UNITED STATES FOR ANOTHER CRACK AT THE AXIS.

LITERALLY BY THE HUNDREDS, MEN WHO SERVED WITH THE NORTH AFRICAN ARMIES ARE MOVING INTO BILLETS IN THE SOUTH-EASTERN SECTION OF THE NATION TO BE TRAINED ANEW IN AERIAL WARFARE.

JUL 24 1943

ALL HAD AT LEAST LIMITED FLYING EXPERIENCE UNDER THE TRICOLOR.

WITH THAT EXPERIENCE, THEY CAN SKIP ONE BIG STEP--PRE-FLIGHT TRAINING--IN THE LONG PROCEDURE OF BECOMING COMBAT PILOTS.

YOUNG--THEIR AGES RANGE FROM 20 TO 30 YEARS--THE STUDENT PILOTS FOR THE MOST PART ARE NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS OF THE RANK OF SERGEANT OR ABOVE IN THE FRENCH FORCES. MANY STILL HAVE RELATIVES IN OCCUPIED FRANCE, GIVING THEM A DUAL MOTIVE FOR SPEEDING THEIR TRAINING--VENGEANCE FOR THEMSELVES, FREEDOM FOR THEIR FAMILIES AND FRIENDS.

ALL WERE SPECIALLY SELECTED FROM THE SCATTERED RANKS OF THE OLD FRENCH AIR FORCE.

INITIALLY THEY REPORT TO THE ARMY AIR FORCES TRAINING CENTER AT SELMA, GA., WHERE THEY QUICKLY CLEAR THE FIRST HURDLE, REVIEWING IN A MATTER OF DAYS PRE-FLIGHT TRAINING THAT ORDINARILY REQUIRES WEEKS OR MONTHS.

THENCE THEY MOVE TO AIR FORCES CENTERS AT TUSCALOOSA, ALA., AND GUNTER FIELD, ALA., FOR BASIC TRAINING BEFORE GOING ON TO THE ADVANCED FLIGHT SCHOOLS.

IT IS AT ALBANY, GA., AND AT CRAIG, ALA., THAT THEY GET THE MOST IMPORTANT PHASE OF THEIR RETRAINING AT THE CONTROLS OF SINGLE AND TWIN ENGINED AIRPLANES.

UNDATED OPEN CITY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WHAT IS AN OPEN CITY? THE WORLDWIDE DISCUSSION OF THE BOMBING OF ROME AND OF THE ITALIAN CAPITAL'S FUTURE STATUS HAS MADE THIS A LIVE QUESTION. DEWITT MACKENZIE, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR ANALYST, GIVES THIS ANSWER:

JUL 24 1943

"MY UNDERSTANDING IS THAT AN 'OPEN CITY' IS ONE FROM WHICH HAVE BEEN REMOVED ALL TROOPS, DEFENSES, MILITARY INSTALLATIONS (INCLUDING HEADQUARTERS AND HEADQUARTERS STAFF), MILITARY PRODUCTION (WHICH MEAN ANY KIND OF WAR FACTORY), AND TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES WHICH ARE USED FOR THE MOVEMENT OF MILITARY SUPPLIES OR PERSONNEL. WHEN THIS HAS BEEN DONE, THE POWER IN POSSESSION THEN DECLARES THE CITY 'OPEN.

X X X

"I FURTHER UNDERSTAND THAT THE PROCEDURE OF CREATING THE 'OPEN CITY' WOULD BE INITIATED BY ITALY THROUGH A THIRD PARTY, ASKING FOR ALLIED CONDITIONS. MOREVER THE ALLIES WOULDN'T RELY ON THE ENEMY'S WORD THAT ALL CONDITIONS WOULD BE FULFILLED, BUT WOULD TAKE SUCH STEPS AS ARE NECESSARY TO SEE THAT THEY HAD BEEN CARRIED OUT.

"JUST HOW THE ALLIES WOULD SATISFY THEMSELVES ON THIS POINT ISN'T STATED. THAT WOULD BE LAID DOWN IF AND WHEN THEIR CONDITIONS WERE ASKED FOR BY MUSSOLINI. THEY EITHER WOULD HAVE TO RELY ON A THIRD PARTY OR SEND THEIR OWN REPRESENTATIVES TO INVESTIGATE. IT NATURALLY WOULD BE SUFFICIENT IF THE VATICAN, FOR INSTANCE, SHOULD FIND IT POSSIBLE TO GIVE ASSURANCES THAT THE CONDITIONS HAD BEEN CARRIED OUT."

AP SPECIAL BUDGET FOR PMS

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

WHEN WE PUT THE MAGNIFYING GLASS ON THIS ACCELERATING WORLD WAR OF OURS WE BECOME ACUTELY AWARE THAT WE ARE INVOLVED IN NUMEROUS INDIVIDUAL CRISES, BOTH MILITARY AND POLITICAL--THE SORT OF HOT-SPOTS ONE LOGS DOWN AND STICKS IN ONE'S HAT AS A REMINDER TO KEEP AN EYE ON THEM FOR QUICK DEVELOPMENTS--AND HERE, APART FROM THE ALLIED AVALANCHE SWEEPING SICILY, ARE SOME WORTH WATCHING:

ITALO-GERMAN RELATIONS; INDICATIONS INCREASE THAT HITLER AND MUSSOLINI MAY BE CLOSE TO A PARTING OF THE WAYS, DUE TO THE FUEHRER'S INABILITY--OR DISINCLINATION--TO GIVE BADLY NEEDED ADDITIONAL AID TO A STOOGE WHO HAS CEASED TO BE USEFUL.

MORALE OF THE ITALIAN PEOPLE; THIS INTERLOCKS WITH THE PRECEDING CRISIS. THERE'S NO DOUBT THAT A VAST NUMBER OF ITALIANS ARE FED UP WITH MUSSOLINI AND THE WAR. MANY OF THEM WOULD BE GLAD TO THROW THE DUCE OVERBOARD AND MAKE A SEPARATE PEACE, IF THEY HAD LEADERSHIP. IF THAT LEADERSHIP APPEARS, SOMETHING IS LIKELY TO BREAK.

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE VATICAN AND THE ALLIES; POSSIBLY THE TERM "CRISIS" IS TOO STRONG TO BE USED IN CONNECTION WITH THE AFTERMATH OF THE BOMBING OF ROME. HOWEVER, IT CERTAINLY IS A MATTER OF MOMENT WHEN THERE'S ANY DIFFERENCE OF OPINION BETWEEN THE LEADERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND HIS HOLINESS, THE POPE, TO WHOM A WORLD-WIDE RELIGIOUS EMPIRE LOOKS FOR GUIDANCE.

JUL 24 1943

RED DRIVE ON OREL; THE NEAR ENCIRCLEMENT OF THIS CITY, IN FACE OF FIERCE BOCHE RESISTANCE, REPRESENTS MORE THAN A THREAT TO A SINGLE STRONG POINT AND THE GREAT GERMAN ARMY DEFENDING IT. OREL IS THE PIVOTAL FORTRESS FOR HUNDREDS OF MILES OF THE NAZI LINE SOUTH OF MOSCOW. ITS FALL MIGHT PRODUCE A COLLAPSE OF HITLER'S ENTIRE RIGHT FLANK, AGAINST WHICH THE REDS ARE BEGINNING TO FLING HEAVY ATTACKS.

THE SITUATION IS PARTICULARLY DANGEROUS TO THE GERMANS IN VIEW OF THE ALLIED THREAT OF A DRIVE UP THROUGH THE BALKANS TOWARDS THAT RIGHT WING. BERLIN SAYS 9,000,000 MEN ALL TOLD ARE BATTLING ALONG THE RUSSO-NAZI FRONT.

30.24-6475

TURKEY'S NEUTRALITY; IF THE ALLIES DO INVADE THE BALKANS, WILL THE TURKS AT LONG LAST ABANDON NEUTRALITY AND JOIN THEM, OR AT LEAST PERMIT PASSAGE OF UNITED NATIONS TROOPS THROUGH TURKISH TERRITORY? THAT MIGHT HAPPEN, FOR THE TURKS ARE THE FRIENDS OF THE ALLIES. IT WOULD BE A MOMENTOUS DEVELOPMENT.

A76

INVASION OF KISKA; WE PROBABLY SHALL SEE AN AMERICAN AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION AGAINST THIS JAP OCCUPIED ALEUTIAN ISLAND SOON. WHILE THIS ISN'T A MAJOR CRISIS, IT'S OF GREAT IMPORTANCE. KISKA IS THE LAST FOOTHOLD THE JAPS HAVE IN THESE AMERICAN ISLANDS. IN THEIR HANDS THIS BASE IS A THREAT OF SORTS AGAINST ALASKA, A HINDRANCE TO OUR OPERATIONS FROM ALASKA AGAINST NIPPONESE TERRITORY, AND AN INTERFERENCE WITH OUR NORTHERN COMMUNICATIONS TO RUSSIA.

MUNDA AND SALAMAUA; MUNDA, KEY BASE OF THE JAPS ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, IS OFFICIALLY REPORTED TO BE AT LAST "IN REACH OF CAPTURE." VIOLENT FIGHTING WITH ALL THREE ARMS--AIR, LAND AND SEA--HAS MARKED THE BATTLE FOR THIS STRATEGIC POSITION. OUR FINAL ASSAULT MAY BE UNDER WAY EVEN AS THIS IS WRITTEN. WESTWAR ON THE GREAT ISLAND OF NEW GUINEA OUR FORCES ARE DRIVING NORTHWARD AGAINST ANOTHER IMPORTANT JAPANESE BASE--SALAMAUA, OF BLOODY HISTORY.

JUL 24 1943

POSSESSION OF MUNDA AND SALAMAUA MIGHT PROVIDE THE ADDITIONAL LEVERAGE TO OUST THE MIKADO'S BARBARIANS FROM THAT WHOLE VAST AREA OF THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

IN THIS CONNECTION A JAPANESE OFFICER HAS BROADCAST FROM TOKYO TO HIS PEOPLE THE DECLARATION THAT THE SITUATION IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC IS "BECOMING INCREASINGLY DARK" BECAUSE OF "FIERCE AND TRAGIC BATTLES." TO THIS HE ADDS:

"WE MUST RECOGNIZE THAT THE SOUTH PACIFIC WAR HAS NOW ENTERED A STAGE WHERE A DECISIVE BATTLE MUST BE FOUGHT TO DETERMINE THE VICTOR."

THIS UNDOUBTEDLY IS A CORRECT ESTIMATE OF THE POSITION, AND THE GREAT BATTLE WHICH UNDOUBTEDLY IS BOILING UP REPRESENTS ANOTHER OF THE MAJOR CRISES OF THIS WAR.

AXIS LOSES AIRBASES

Bombers Raid Enemy Targets in Southern Part of Italian Mainland.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 24.—(AP) Axis forces in Sicily faced complete annihilation tonight as the American Seventh army drove eastward from Palermo toward Messina, last escape hatch for German and Italian troops fighting at Catania.

The forces opposing the British eighth army were threatened with being cut off from behind by the rapidly advancing Americans who have already accounted for the majority of the 110,000 enemy troops either captured or trapped in western Sicily.

Reuters reported that the advancing Americans already had taken Termini, 20 miles east of Palermo, while the Algiers radio revealed pressure against the Germans at Catania had been increased by Canadians who had joined the eighth army after advancing from Enna in central Sicily.

Reuters also reported the Allies had entered Trapani, last big fort in western Sicily in their cleanup campaign.

The Axis forces are now almost in exactly the same position as Hitler's troops were in Tunisia when the Americans and British broke through to Bizerte and Tunis and forced isolated Axis elements to retreat into Cap Bon.

If the Americans can reach Messina, every hope that the Axis might save something from the Sicily debacle would be smashed. Even as it is, the chances of the Germans and Italians evacuating any sizeable force from the Catania area appeared slight in view of the continuous Allied air offensive by land and sea which is making almost any form of Axis troop movement impossible.

American troops seized Marsala in the lightning mop up of the western part of the island, headquarters announced today, and it was the official estimate that 50,000 more prisoners would be added to the 60,000 already in Allied hands. Americans captured 20,000 of this first 60,000.

Troops Enter Trapani

(Reuters reported that Allied troops had entered Trapani, the last major city in western Sicily, today. The naval base, half way between Marsala and Palermo, had been expected to fall at any moment as it was cut off from aid. The deep water harbor will provide excellent facilities to speed unloading of American supplies and cut off the main home base from which Axis submarines have been operating in the Sicilian strait.

(Reuters also said Termini, another port town 20 miles east of Palermo, had been taken, indicating American troops were striking swiftly along the coast toward Messina. If they succeed in reaching the northeastern tip of Sicily all the Axis troops on the British at Catania [illegible] off.)

The formidable British Eighth army still is battering at furious German resistance around Catania, while Canadian troops are stabbing at the Nazi flank by land and Allied warships ranging the coast hammered the Axis positions from the sea in unceasing bombardments.

Post Road Cut

American armor and motorized infantry meanwhile has cut the vital north post road at a point officially described as "well east of Palermo"—and therefore much nearer Messina—and they are obviously in position to strike via the back door of this final Axis stand in all Sicily.

(A Berlin broadcast describing a clash with the Americans at Termini on the north coast, indicated that the Seventh army had advanced at least 18 miles east of Palermo. Other clashes were reported with Americans and Canadians in the neighborhood of Leonforte, about 37 miles west of Catania.)

Thus were the remnants of the Italian and German Sicilian armies being hemmed in by land and sea.

All the splendid system of 10 major airbases on the island was either occupied by the Allies or completely neutralized. Allied planes beat in wave upon wave upon the enemy.

"A rapidly diminishing portion of the island is all that remains to the Axis," today's Allied communique declared.

But this section, from Catania past Mt. Etna to Messina at the northeast tip of Sicily, was being stubbornly defended and "south of Catania the Germans are fiercely resisting the Eighth army's pressure," the bulletin said.

Mt. Etna is Strongpoint

(Alfred Wagg of NBC, aboard a warship off eastern Sicily, said British patrols several times had fought their way into Catania itself. He declared Catania was "not the core of German strength. This main strength lies in the position of their larger guns on the vistas of Mt. Etna, overlooking the city x x x"

The Candaian First division, led by Maj. Gen. Guy Simonds, striking toward Catania from the center of the island, was reported driving desperate tank crews and infantry of the German 15th armored division steadily backward.

Allied warships still swept into Messina strait to pound the only route by which the Germans can draw gravely-needed reinforcements from the continent. Three enemy E-boats were damaged in the latest operation.

Rule Tyrrhenian Sea

American capture of the naval and air base of Palermo gave the Allies rule over the Tyrrhenian sea. Swooping upon an enemy shipping convoy in this sea a few miles south of Rome yesterday, torpedo-carrying Beaufighters blew up a merchant ship, left another sinking, and ripped off the bow of a destroyer.

A freighter in another convoy was damaged by torpedoes from Wellington bombers. Both convoys apparently were trying to rush badly-needed supplies into Sicily.

Flying Fortresses in another main action of the day rained heavy bombs on the Leverano airdrome in the heel of the Italian boot, blasting parked aircraft and shooting down 12 enemy fighters in air battles.

Fighter-bombers of the Tactical airforce destroyed 20 landing craft off the coast of Sicily for another heavy blow on Axis reinforcement operations.

Meanwhile, British and Greek bombers flying out of Middle East bases struck heavy blows at Axis-held Crete, setting fire to an ammunition dump, scoring hits on factories at Hierapetra and Herakleion, and shooting up tent camps, gun positions, and transports. Seventeen Allied planes failed to return "from these and other operations," Cairo announced.

Naples Airdrome Bombed

In the Italian theater, medium bombers escorted by Lightnings bombed the Acuino airdrome north of Naples and American Warhawks swept the island of Ustita in a series of attacks.

(Rome reported an attack on Bologna in north central Italy, and said it caused casualties and damage.)

Night-flying R.A.F. Wellingtons bombed the railroad yard at Salerno below Naples and the airdrome at Pratica di Mare, while American Mitchells returned to Crotone—hard-hit by previous raids—and blasted the airport there on the Gulf of Taranto. Grounded aircraft were destroyed.

Crews reported medium anti-aircraft fire from all the targets and except for the fighters met by the Flying Fortresses, enemy fighter opposition was light. Four Allied planes were listed as missing.

No enemy base in southern Italy is now safe from repeated air attacks, as the whole foot of the Italian boot is within easy range of even light bombers. American and British airmen are extending their superiority halfway up the Italian peninsula.

The Allied air force concentrated on five strategic targets in southern Italy yesterday, including the Fortress raid on Leverano.

It is believed here that, regardless of the attempts now being made to bulwark the Hermann Goering and the Fifteenth Panzer divisions with parachute troop infantry and other units drafted from German garrisons in Italy, it will soon be the Nazi command's turn to say "too little and too late."

The situation in the northeastern corner of Sicily is analogous in many respects to the Cap Bon disaster in Tunisia, with these differences, however: It is only two miles across the Messina Strait to Italy, whereas Cap Bon had no convenient escape hatch. The Germans, too, have had nine days to organize the Mt. Etna line since the Eighth army broke into Catania plain at Simeto bridge, while on Cap Bon British armor slashed through every temporary stand as Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim's command disintegrated for lack of communications.

Palermo Surrendered Without Firing Shot

By Harold V. Boyle

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Palermo, July 22 (Delayed)—Historic Palermo, capital and largest city on Sicily, fell today without firing a shot in its own defense to American infantry and armored columns converging from three directions.

Doughboys tramped to the outskirts of the city about noon from the southwest after a sixty-mile advance from Castelvetrano during which they had to halt three times to knock out harassing artillery pieces.

Known For Churches

Happy that his forces avoided shelling into submission this city, known throughout the world for its ancient churches, temples and monuments which make it a living tomb of Phoenician, Greek, Byzantine, Saracen, Norman, Spanish and early French civilizations, the American deputy commander under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., accepted the surrender.

Italian officers, bags packed, had been waiting all day to hand over the town of from 400,000 to 500,000 population. The Germans were out last night.

Harbor Heavily Damaged

The harbor area has been heavily damaged by the Allied bombings. The city itself bore the scars of bombs, but the damage is not as extensive as that visited upon a number of other Sicilian towns.

Troops who rolled into Palermo at dusk received a hearty welcome. The populace cheered, threw gifts of flowers and fruit and poured free wine in the greatest demonstration most of them had ever seen. Italian soldiers still in uniform lined the streets by the hundreds and joined in the cheers. Some of them were so glad to be out of the war they even ran out and kissed the hands of the American soldiers rolling past in half-tracks.

Nazi Gun Destroyed

One of the famous German 88-millimeter artillery pieces which attempted to bar the American armored advance on the city was blasted to pieces by four perfect shots from an American 75-millimeter assault gun at less than 500 yards.

JUL 25 1943

When the Nazi piece opened fire on a reconnaissance column led by Capt. Hugh R. O'Farrell, of Athens, Ga., the officer pulled his men back beyond the brow of a hill and called up one of the crack self-propelled assault guns. It charged around a bend and wheeled into position in full view of the German gun.

Before it could let go Gunner Corporal Bennie Kulig, of Independence, Wis., had the German weapon dead in his sights and his first shot sent the enemy gunners scrambling for cover. The loader, Private Andrew J. Shewmake, of Monroe, Tenn., lapped in another shell and Kulig smashed a great hole through the '88's shield. Its ammuition burst into flame.

Kulig then swung the 75 over a couple of degrees and pitched shells into the German gun ammunition dump. It bl[illegible] an explosion that sh[illegible] Bright flame and blac[illegible] skyward and chunks [illegible] metal casing showere[illegible] of feet away.

Our patrols went forward after that and brought back eleven Germans and four Italians who had operated the gun, but the German lieutenant who commanded them escaped.

Not Even Yet

"This helps some, but we ain't even with those birds yet," said Gunner Kulig.

Sergt. Eugene Hatfield, of Gilbert, W. Va., explained that a German shell had landed under the American assault gun a few days ago and knocked out its radio. Other crewmen of the American gun were Sergt. Harold Carpenter, the gun commander, of Rensselaer Falls, N. Y., and Corporal Robert Edinger, its driver, of Plankinton, South Dakota.

Yanks Take Marsala, Mop Up Western Part Of Sicily

JUL 25 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 24—American forces have captured the western Sicilian port of Marsala, Allied headquarters announced today, and many of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.'s Seventh Army units were believed swinging eastward to join British troops in a knockout blow at Axis defenders clinging to the island's northeast corner.

"A rapidly diminishing portion of the island is all that remains to the Axis," said the Allied headquarters communique, disclosing that the Americans were mopping up enemy resistance in western Sicily and had captured "large numbers of prisoners and huge quantities of enemy equipment."

the dwindling enemy-held portion of Sicily and American fighter-bombers destroyed ten enemy barges off the north coast.

Only one enemy plane was shot out of the air over Sicily yesterday but night fighters destroyed three during their patrols. All the operations, including the attacks on mainland targets, cost the Allies four planes.

Three Torpedo Boats Hit

Allied warships continued to sweep into the Messina strait, knocking out enemy surface craft and shelling the route by which the Germans can draw gravely needed reinforcements from the continent.

Three enemy motor boats were damaged in the latest operation in which one Greek destroyer and one British destroyer participated.

The Tyrrhenian sea, now under Allied aerial domination, was the scene of the successful attack on an enemy convoy by torpedo-carrying Beaufighters.

Parked Planes Blasted

In attacking Leverano, on the heel of the Italian boot, the Flying Fortresses penetrated to the easternmost point yet attacked by Africa-based bombers.

While beating off the challenge of twenty to thirty enemy fighters over the target, the Fortresses dumped a heavy load of bombs on the airfield, blasting parked aircraft to bits.

Opposition Light

Allied flyers reported moderate anti-aircraft fire at all their objectives yesterday, but except for the formation of interceptors that met the Fortresses over Leverano, the enemy fighter opposition was light.

It was disclosed that Admiral Priato Leonardi, former naval commandant at Augusta, now is en route to England as a prisoner of war.

Meanwhile, reports reaching Allied headquarters indicated Allied forces in central Sicily, protected from the west by the American drive into Palermo, were on the move northeast of Enna.

From that position they could bear directly upon the western flank of the Axis army now blocking the British drive up the east coast, either pressing the Nazis within range of the big guns of the Allied fleet off the east coast or plunging to Messina and cutting off the only escape route remaining open.

Withdrawal Reported

The west coast Italian naval base of Trapani—remained to be overrun by the American column but Allied headquarters apparently considered this a mopping up and consolidating action.

(A German radio commentator, acknowledging in a Berlin broadcast that Palermo had fallen, said also that Axis forces had been withdrawn from Marsala and Trapani.

(Reuter quoted a Stockholm dispatch as saying Axis forces had begun evacuating Sicily. The report, not confirmed by Allied sources, was based on a dispatch to the Svenska Dagbladet from Bern, Switzerland.)

Meanwhile, German forces defending the northeastern tip were thrusting savagely at Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army. The bitter battle which has raged at Catania's southern environs for eight days, has reduced the northward drive of the British veterans to a yard-by-yard progress.

Crete Bases Pounded

(A Cairo communique said British and Greek bombers from Middle East bases carried out a large-scale daylight raid on enemy forces and installations on the German-held island of Crete in the eastern Mediterranean yesterday.

(They blew up an ammunition dump, shot up wireless and power stations and scored direct hits on factories at Hierapetra and Herakleion (Candia). Tented camps, gun positions and transport vehicles were attacked with "good results," the bulletin said. Seventeen planes were lost in the attack.)

American medium bombers battered Italy's mainland air bases at Aquino and at Crotone, on the Gulf of Taranto, by daylight, following up a night attack on rail installations at Salerno, south of Naples, and an airfield at Pratica di Mare.

12 Planes Bagged

American Flying Fortresses raided Leverano airfield, also on the mainland, scoring many direct hits and destroying a number of grounded aircraft, the communique said. Intercepted by enemy fighters, the four-engined Fortresses shot down twelve of them.

Other Allied airmen hammered road and rail communications in

The Canadians, advancing eastward of the American Seventh Army, were reported swinging rapidly around the German west flank at Catania.

Paul Kern Lee, Associated Press correspondent, reported that the Germans are strongly dug in around Catania. He said their force there is estimated at more than three divisions, including the Herman Goering armored division, reinforced by long-range coastal guns and large field pieces.

The Germans are especially well intrenched about a mile and a quarter north of the Simeto River on the Catania plain south of the city, with defenses stretching back to a depth of several miles and with thinner but fairly strong defenses facing northwest and west, he said.

In a communique broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded today by the Associated Press, the German High Command declared "the swaying battle in the Orel area" was continuing and that Russian attempts to achieve a break-through on the Donets, Belgorod, and Mius fronts and in the Kuban bridgehead had been repulsed with heavy losses to the attackers.

Canadians Advance

The Germans were trying frantically to reinforce their divisions in northeast Sicily, but the Americans cut the north coast road "well east" of captured Palermo, blocking the land route from the west to Messina, headquarters said.

The first Canadian division under Maj. Gen. Guy Simonds was reported making progress against the tank troops of the Fifteenth German Armored Division.

Warship Set Afire

All airdromes in Sicily now have been either captured or neutralized and enemy air power is virtually nil. Allied planes kept all enemy reinforcement routes under smashing assault yesterday.

In an attack on enemy shipping, Allied torpedo planes sank one merchantman, severly damaged two others and left a destroyer in flames.

In splitting the Axis forces and toppling Palermo, the Americans applied their modern tank and plane tactics. One column stormed into the Sicilian capital from the southwest, another from the south and southeast and a third cut northward to trap enemy forces withdrawing toward the east.

Palermo's Joy Bewilders Victors

JUL 25 1943

By Don Whitehead

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Palermo, Sicily, July 23 (Delayed)—The Yanks are swarming through this great capital of Sicily today while most of the 400,000 inhabitants are cheering their presence and welcoming them with an amazing show of hospitality.

Even an old campaigner like Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., is slightly bewildered by the enthusiastic reception given him and his men.

"They even threw flowers, lemons and watermelons," he chuckled. "But it should be emphasized that all the fruit was tossed to us in a spirit of friendliness."

"The Greatest Blitz"

Patton termed the drive on Palermo the "greatest blitz in history."

Eighteen hours after a great armored column began a drive on the city it was officially surrendered by General Molinero, Italian commander of Palermo.

"I am just a visiting fireman," Patton said. "The credit all goes to the men who led the troops and armor on Sicily.

"They did a remarkable job."

Italians Waiting To Give Up

When a corps commander entered the outskirts of Palermo at 7.24 P. M. he found a carload of Italian officers waiting his arrival. Among them was General Molinero, who had tried to surrender to advance patrols at dusk. He came to the corps commander's car. But immediate difficulties arose, because the corps commander spoke no Italian.

This difficulty was ironed out through an interpreter, and the American general came to the point quickly, demanding unconditional surrender.

"General Molinero said he was through and would fight no more," the corps commander said. "He added that there would be no resistance from his men.

Pillow-Case Flag

"However, Molinero said there was another general who was in command of troops in the citadel of Palermo, and that he couldn't speak for him. He was unable to say whether the other general would give up, but said he felt morally sure there would be no resistance. He added that this general was at the royal palace."

With this information, the American general organized an expedition to find the second Italian general, Mario Arisio. He borrowed a pillow case from an Italian family and tied it to the radio mast of his car for the drive to the palace.

Then A Sheet

But the pillow case hung limply at the mast and wouldn't flap in the breeze. It was a pretty inconspicuous flag of truce, so one of the general's men who noticed an Italian waving a white sheet from a fishing pole borrowed that for the occasion.

The sheet flapped fine in the breeze as they drove through the streets.

"But when we arrived we could not find anyone to do business with," the corps commander said. "Finally we located the head of police and he brought the general to me."

Patton Wins A Bet

The Italian was willing to surrender anything he could give the Americans, and said he would sign any terms of surrender. However, there was no written surrender and only the verbal demand for unconditional capitulation, which was accepted immediately.

Officially, Palermo fell at 8:00 P. M.

Patton Wins Bet.

Officially, the fall of Palermo was at 8:00 P. M. Orders had been issued that troops should be in Palermo by 8:00. At exactly 8:00 orders were signed for troops to march into the city, and as a result Gen. Patton won a bet by twenty-eight hours from Airmarshal Wigglesworth.

On July 18, Gen. Patton bet Marshal Wigglesworth his troops would be in Palermo by midnight of July 23. At that time this appeared to be an optimistic estimate because troops and armor hadn't begun to move toward Palermo.

However, three days ago armored troops moved along the coast road, while a task force under Lieut.-Col. William Darby of Fort Smith, Ark., moved in to protect the left flank of the push.

Moving into the Menfi area, the armor was held up at the Belice River by demolitions. But on July 21 the corps commander gave orders for the armor to move the net morning at 6 o'clock for an attack on Palermo.

The air force prepared to bomb the cities en route to Palermo if any of them resisted the advance, but when they began surrendering to reconnaissance elements of the great column, the bombing order was canceled and everything moved along on schedule.

Two Italian Divisions Trapped.

The drive to Palermo trapped at least two Italian divisions on the western end of the island, with probably 40,000 troops in the net. Great quantities of materiel probably will be found when the cleanup is finally made.

Gen. Patton said that one of the outstanding achievements in the capture of Palermo was in supply. For example, the day before the push began, 100,000 gallons of gasoline were landed—ample fuel for the cross-island trek.

This morning the drive through Palermo's bomb-pocked streets was like a triumphal tour as civilians applauded and cheered each passing vehicle.

Wherever an Army vehicle stopped, crowds of people gathered quickly, and at least one among them usually spoke English.

The troops were enjoying it hugely. One doughboy battled his way through an admiring throng and exclaimed: "Who's nuts in this crowd? I'm beginning to be afraid it's me."

Few Shots Persuade Marsala To Give Up

[By the Associated Press]

With the American Seventh Army in Southwest Sicily, July 22 (Delayed)—American troops fanning westward from captured Castelvetrano took Marsala, westernmost port of Sicily, with their only casualties a couple of men injured by snipers' bullets.

Salemi, fifteen miles north of Castelvetrano, proved to be a vacation jaunt to the hard-fighting troops. The town, which is on one of the main road networks, tossed in the sponge without a struggle.

Roads Cluttered

Describing Marsala, a town of 30,000 population, Lieut. Col. John T. Toffey, of Wyoming, Ohio, said: "We got in last night and the Italian troops surrendered by the thousands. There is getting to be so many of them now they are cluttering up the highways and getting to be a real military traffic problem."

JUL 25 1943

"Major H. P. Tucker, of Winston Salem, N. C., set up an artillery battery in the rear of the town and demanded the surrender. A few shots convinced them and they began coming toward his position in droves, waving white flags. It was all we could do to keep them from jamming the roads as they came on back."

JUL 31 1943

German Also Quits

Among the prisoners were two Italian battalion colonels and one German battalion colonel, who ran the port.

The soldiers were so busy rounding up prisoners and resting after their long marches of the last few days that they had little time to sample the famous Marsala sweet wine, one of the town's best-known exports.

Major Roy A. Murray, of Berkley, Cal., took 130 Italians and 20 German prisoners in seizing a small Nazi airport on which some planes were captured in operating condition. Other planes also were taken.

Leave Supplies Behind

The Germans were forced to pull out so fast they apparently were unable to organize a retreat well enough to get out all equipment and supplies.

The fact that relatively few Germans were captured was taken by officers as an indication that the Nazis had withdrawn to the Messina peninsula at the northeast corner of the island.

One German prisoner said he doubted that German troops would make a last ditch stand in that last corner of the island. He said they probably would try to break across the strait to the mainland, leaving the Italians behind as a holding force.

After Lieut. Herbert Doern of Carmine, Tex., had brought in a batch of Italian artillerymen, Major Lockett, and the twenty men with him had 300 prisoners on their hands. Lieut. Jim Burchard, a Stars and Stripes writer, commented: "You can't take these guys prisoners. You just accept them."

As an estimated 5,000 prisoners streamed back from the Castelvetrano area, the Italian commander, Major Pedrollo Sergio, waited in a villa with his staff to give himself up "with the full honors of war." But since the Americans captured more than half his men and seized him in his own headquarters before he announced his intention of surrendering, he was treated with scant ceremony.

Brooklyn Boy in Advance.

A platoon of anti-tank guns headed by Lieut. Norman McNeil of Buffalo, N. Y., took at least 300 prisoners during the airport roundup.

"They tossed quite a few hand grenades, but we didn't have a single casualty," he said.

Private Joseph Netter of 1024 Lancaster avenue, Brooklyn, was in the jeep cavalcade that took the airport.

Many of those among the welcoming populace at Castelvetrano wore homemade American flags on their lapels. Among these people was American-born Mary Piccione, who formerly lived at 414 Elton street, Brooklyn. She said the Fascists had denied her passage back home.

One of the saddest prisoners was a tall, limping soldier who leaned against a wall and wept bitterly.

"Mussolini caused all this," he sobbed. "He is a thief. You should bomb Rome. That is where he is. I have been two years in Sicily and have a daughter in Italy I have never seen!"

How Castelvetrano Fell.

The capture of Castelvetrano occurred July 21 and the first American soldier to enter the town was artillery Major William L. Lockett of Norman, Okla., who led a parade of jeeps to the airport, where more than 100 Axis airplanes lay smashed.

Six prisoners were brought out of the barracks. Speaking through an infantry interpreter, Sergt. Joe Faltraco of 3 Greenwood avenue, Newark, N. J., Major Lockett told the prisoners that they could go into the surrounding fields and tell their comrades to surrender while they had a chance.

Dozens of bandy-legged Italian soldiers flying all kinds of surrender banners soon were converging on the field like a swarm of happy grasshoppers. Many carried bottles of wine; some were intoxicated. They slapped friends on the back, tried to embrace the American soldiers and finally set to dancing in the field while one of them played a tune on a cornet.

Americans took the demonstration quietly.

"I have no use for these guys," said Private John Peterson of 590 Main avenue, Passaic, N. J. "They killed my buddy at El Guettarand now because we have them cornered, and they haven't got guts to fight, they expect us to treat them like company."

A number of British and American officers landed with the assault troops on invasion day, assigned to relieve combat forces of the job of administering captured enemy territory. In fact, they have followed so closely after the charging troops that, in one instance, Lieut. Col. Charles Poletti, former Governor of New York, who is on the staff of the newly created AMGOT—Allied Military Government of Occupied Territory—found himself the only American left in a town captured only a few minutes before. Colonel Poletti said that he merely made a speech, the people cheered and everything was fine.

When the first forces enter a city they may find it paralyzed, with no water or electricity, its police force inactive and its people short of food because of breakdowns in transportation. The first thing that they do is to get in touch with the Mayor and the chief of police. They hire men to bury any dead and clean up the streets. As soon as possible they get the water supply and the electric system functioning.

No Real Food Shortage

So far they have found no real shortage of food. Their problem has been to ferret it out in the surrounding farms and get it to the cities.

Although most high-ranking Fascist officials have fled to the mainland, a few of their measures, including their food-rationing system, have been temporarily retained. This provides a daily bread ration ranging from 200 grams for nonworkers to 800 grams for heavy laborers.

"The people have not objected to our keeping these restrictions in force, because they know it is for the general welfare," Colonel Poletti explained. "We have the food situation well in hand now, but we have to proceed cautiously, because we do not know what shortages we will face in large cities."

The AMGOT staff has to enforce the decrees of the Military Governor, Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, field commander of the Allied forces in Sicily. The AMGOT is the first joint venture of the two governments in running occupied territory, and it is functioning smoothly and without friction. Proclamations governing the behavior of persons in the occupied zones, printed in Italian and English, have been posted in public places.

"So far no violations of any have come to our attention, as it has been unnecessary to invoke any punishment, because these people are cooperating whole-heartedly," said Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry of Grand Junction, Col., who helped to organize the AMGOT and who is the highest participating American officer.

soaps, medicines Diesel oil and other products."

Colonel Poletti's parents were born in Italy. He studied at the University of Rome and speaks Italian fluently. He has found this of great benefit in his work. Although much of his dealing is with human distress, he has found that his job also has a lighter side.

"For instance," he said, "one man had to avert a municipal crisis over the removal of two dead horses by going out with an Italian cart and helping dispose of them himself. Another time the Army wanted 500 laborers and called on us to help. We sent the town crier around to announce that jobs were open, but then had to send an officer along to protect him because when crowds gathered around to hear him the military police started to arrest him for creating a disturbance. They did not know that that's the way you tell news in Sicilian towns where there are no newspapers."

Another time, Colonel Poletti found himself alone in the city of Favara, which the troops had taken as they swept on toward Agrigento. He said that it was an eerie feeling to be the only American in a hostile town, captured only a few minutes before, but he went boldly to the chief of police and told him what he wanted of him.

"Then I made a speech to a mass of people crowded around City Hall and explained that there would be no difficulty if they obeyed the military regulations," Colonel Poletti recalled. "They applauded and cheered as I drove away. It was just like a political meeting back home."

Italian office holders have been ordered to continue to carry out their duties, except for a few ardent Fascist sympathizers. These have been dismissed. All Fascist officials are out of their jobs, with the official dissolution of the Fascist party by order of the Allied High Command.

Another Fascist measure that is being continued is the payment of subsidies to wheat farmers to stimulate production. The AMGOT is discontinuing the payment of government allowances to the wives, children or other dependents of Italian soldiers—for obvious reasons.

"Needy cases can be given direct relief," Col. Poletti said. "As Sicily can exist on its own food supply, we don't plan to bring in any food at this time."

AMGOT IS WORKING RAPIDLY IN SICILY

Puts Cities Back in Shape Soon After Their Capture by Invasion Forces

POLETTI EXPLAINS RULES

Some Italian Regulations, Such as Food Rationing, Kept in Force for Public Good

WITH THE AEF, in Sicily, July 24 (AP)—The civil affairs section of the American Seventh Army is putting each Sicilian city back on its feet within a few hours after the combat troops have taken it.

Two Italians Block U. S. Division Half Hour And Die At Gun

[By the Associated Press]

Palermo, Sicily, July 22 (Delayed)—At least two Italian soldiers stayed by their guns today—and they held up an entire American armored division for half an hour.

While thousands of their fellow troops laid down their arms before the advance of the powerful Yank force, these two decided to stick it out for their own honor, and the honor of their army. Now they are dead.

The gun they manned while making a last stout stand was a 90-millimeter piece emplaced on a bend in the road through a rugged gorge bordered by high, rocky cliffs fifteen miles from Palermo on the Castelvetrano road.

Gunpit Camouflaged

In the gunpit, camouflaged with straw, were a young mustached lieutenant and one private. All the others had fled.

When a scout half-truck leading the American column swung around a curve in the road half a mile below them they opened fire.

The first shell hit the road in front of the half-track, which was armed only with a heavy machine-gun, ripped up a chunk of pavement, and skipped down the valley. The American crew noted the position of the enemy gun by that first flash, then leaped out of their vehicle and scrambled back around the corner.

Second Shell Hits It

That saved their lives—and cost them their half-track. The second shell struck it squarely. It burst into flames and in fifteen minutes was reduced to a mass of wreckage.

The crew members pointed out the site of the gun and a 75-millimeter self-propelled assault gun was rushed up. It poked in and out around the corner and engaged in a brief duel with the doomed Italian field piece. Then it rested with its nose around the enemy gun's steel shield and the duel was over.

A tank rolled up, pushed the smoking, gutted half-track out of the way and the columns moved on. When they reached the Italian gun the soldiers found the bodies of its two defenders lying near the gunpit where they had been flung by the shell explosion or caught by steel splinters as they tried to escape.

Letter Is Found

A few minutes later a patrol captured another Italian and a middle-aged, slender German sergeant with horn-rimmed glasses who had served as an engineer until the Nazis put him in the combat lines a few days ago because of the manpower shortage.

"We tried to tell the Italian lieutenant it was hopeless to try and hold you up, but he insisted that his honor demanded that he resist you," said a German, looking at the sprawling bodies without expression.

The lieutenant's personal effects—just finished writing to his family. Taking it along to post with an Italian authorities in Palermo, Corp. John Boretsky, Brooklyn, N. Y., wrote the postscript:

"Died at his gun," and signed it: "An American soldier."

ITALIAN WEAPONS POOR IN QUALITY

Some Divisions Use 25-Year-Old Austrian Machine Guns.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 24—(AP) Captured Italian weapons reveal a sharp decline in quality and some of Premier Mussolini's divisions still are equipped with 25-year-old Austrian-made machine-guns, Allied ordnance experts said today.

Inspection of the small arms and light artillery seized in Tunisia and Sicily disclosed that Italian manufacturers were using cast iron braces and defective springs in places where the life and death of the troops depended on the precision performance of weapons.

"No Italian weapon is very accurate. Most of them are feeble imitations of better types in German or Allied armies," one ordnance officer said.

Give Old Guns to Italians

"The Germans have given the Italians a number of their old-model 88s which have a higher silhouette, a longer carriage and which are harder to dig in and camouflage than the improved version of their field piece," he added. "Even so these old German 88s are the best gun the Italians have."

Captured Nazi equipment showed that German mechanical ingenuity and skill are still flourishing in the production of weapons.

A new 75 German anti-tank gun reported being manufactured in large quantities is effective against both armor and troops. Ordnance officers believe it may largely supplant the 88, although the latter's ability to throw a barrage 16,000 feet into the air against planes makes it a fine triple purpose weapon.

The Germans have been opportunistic in adding the best of the armaments seized in Czechoslovakia, France, Belgium and Russia to their field forces. Czech Bren guns and Russian 76 mm. anti-tank guns were among the equipment used and lost by the Germans in Africa.

Russian guns still rolled along on Russian-made tires, but the range finders had been reengraved with directions in the German language.

Guns Seized in Denmark

Some machine guns made and sold by Germany to Denmark before the war and confiscated again during the occupation turned up in the African war. Captured American jeeps were highly fancied by the Nazis prior to the Tunisian debacle.

Ordnance experts said a four-barrelled 20 mm. gun called the "Vierling," for use against armor troops or planes, was one of the most efficient of the Reich's products. Almost like the pompoms aboard warships, it requires a crew of six to operate.

Much of the German artillery is equipped with big-wheeled carriages to be drawn by horses, although anti-tank guns were specially fitted for motor hauling. Emphasizing fire power, the Germans equipped some of their armored cars with guns as big as 75 mm. Most of the cars, however, carry 20 mm. cannon and machine guns.

The biggest German armament disappointment of 1943, ordnance officers speculated, was probably the much-heralded six-barrelled mortar, electrically operated for firing smoke or gas shells approximately 800 yards.

Gen. Keyes Patton's Deputy

Commands One of the American Units Fighting in Sicily

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 24 (AP).—General Keyes is heading one of the American units in Sicily and is deputy commander to Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr., it was announced today.

[The dispatch included neither first name nor further identification, but at Washington it was believed that the deputy commander probably is Major General Goeffrey Keyes. War Department files listed his last assignment as commanding general of the 9th Armored Davision at Camp Campbell, Ky. Goeffrey Keyes was born at Fort Baird, N. M. He was promoted to major general in June, 1942.]

Book A Day On Sicily

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 24 (AP)—United Nations war correspondents in the Mediterranean area have been averaging well over 100,000 words a day in the coverage of the Sicilian campaign, communications statistics showed today. That is the equivalent of a full-length book every twenty-four hours.

HE'S TICKLED PINK BY WHITE SHEETS

By SERGT. RALPH G. MARTIN.
Correspondent for Stars and Stripes.

With American Troops in Sicily (Date Omitted in Transmission).—The kid sipped his bottle of soda with an unbelieving wink in his right eye. He had a big bandage over the left side of his face where a piece of shrapnel ripped just twenty-four hours ago.

"From hell to heaven in less than a day, that's pretty good, isn't it," he asked.

He was only 20 years old and had a boyish grin. He fought until he dropped and now he was being evacuated from Sicily.

"Did you ever see such beautiful white sheets in your life?" he asked. "I told the nurse to give me one sheet at a time so I could get used to them gradually."

The nurse beside his hospital ship bed smiled encouragingly.

He went on:

"Know what I had for supper? Roast beef, all kinds of vegetables, apple pie, orange juice and honest-to-goodness milk. The Army's really taking care of me."

"If we've got it they get it," said Lieut.-Col. C. W. Salley of Bay City, Tex., commanding officer of the hospital ship.

Football Talk And 'Touchdown'

With the American Seventh Army in Sicily, July 22 (Delayed) (AP)—An American force commander yesterday sent this message to Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., the American commander:

"Can we make a touchdown on our own initiative? Rush reply."

Thirty minutes later the answer came back: "You have the ball. Call a touchdown play."

With this go-ahead, the American armored column swung north toward Palermo, the capital of Sicily.

Heavy Allied Air Attacks Discourage Italian People

The Rome dispatches noted that the Allied forces in Sicily were throwing an "enormous mass of material" into the battle, a fact considered in Rome as a clear indication that "their reserves are still greater."

Despite the fall of Palermo, headlines on New York dispatches in the Spanish press sounded a warning against the overconfidence of the United Nations.

"The Allies still have not reached Mt. Etna," said a headline in the morning newspaper, Ya, which added that "nevertheless the United States believes the fall of Palermo will have repercussions at the German line."

German news agencies had virtually nothing to say about the Sicilian campaign today beyond the regular Berlin communique and devoted their attention to the efforts to halt the Russian drive in the Orel region.

The Balkans continued to draw the attention of the Spanish press and such headlines as "Sofia denies foreign reports of disorders" were bracketed with "rigorous measures adopted against Bulgarian terrorists."

Duce Asks What Is Europe?

Madrid, July 24 (A. P.).—Press dispatches from Rome indicated today that the Hitler-Mussolini meeting this week was prompted by Il Duce's desire to learn Germany's idea of where the boundaries of Europe begin.

The Rome correspondent of Efe, official Spanish foreign news agency, wrote that the Italian press, taking cognizance of Berlin dispatches emphasizing the insular character of the Sicilian campaign, had answered that the island invasion was part of the Allied plan for the invasion of continental Europe itself.

"Therefore, aiding Italy's defense contributes to the defense of the Continent," the press articles said.

The correspondent said that the Hitler-Mussolini meeting followed such a series of articles.

In Axis propaganda advertisements of the "new continental Europe" which have appeared in the Spanish press, Sicily shares the fate of the British Isles in being left off the map, but the Italian peninsula, like the Iberian and Scandinavian peninsulas, is included.

War Has Become Unequal Struggle, Sicilian Refugees Declare.

MADRID, July 24.—(AP) Rome dispatches to Spanish newspapers today stresses the devastation created in the Mediterranean theater of war by powerful Allied bomber fleets and disclosed that Italians reaching Rome from Sicily were spreading gloomy stories about the "unequal struggle of that terrible war."

All of the dispatches placed particular emphasis on the overwhelming superiority of the Allies, leaving no doubt that every Sicilian evacuation point is getting a terrific pounding from the Allied airmen who control the Mediterranean skies.

"At the present moment nothing can change the appearance of the Italian people," one correspondent wrote.

Shout for Peace

(Dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa yesterday quoted reports in Madrid as saying that crowds in several of Italy's principal cities were rioting and glamoring for "peace" immediately after the fall of Palermo, capital of Sicily.)

Allied air superiority over the Strait of Messina, admitted repeatedly in Axis dispatches explaining the difficulties of the Sicilian campaign, has turned the strait area into a shambles of twisted rails, sunken ships and burning docks and warehouses.

Shattering, blockbuster bombs have pitted the northeast sector of Sicily from the coast to the roads behind the Nebrodi mountain range, and blasted mainland ports and air fields from the tip of the peninsula to Naples, 225 airline miles to the north.

Italian officers reaching Rome, according to dispatches from that capital, gave graphic details of the punishment being dealt by air and naval forces of the United Nations.

Nazis Carry on Fight

The Hermann Goering division and other German units were said to be bearing the brunt of the drive at Catania, below Mt. Etna, which in 48 hours was turned from a defensive point on a fixed line to a shrinking salient of rearguard action, reported today to be moving northward.

Italians Bewail Unequal Fight

Madrid, July 24 (AP) — Italians reaching Rome from Sicily are spreading gloomy stories about the "unequal struggle of that terrible war," dispatches to the Madrid press from Rome reported today.

All press dispatches from Italy emphasized the overwhelming superiority of Allied forces and left no doubt that Allied bombers are heavily attacking all evacuation points from Sicily.

"At the present moment," one correspondent wrote, "nothing can change the appearance of the Italian people."

POPE WON'T MOVE FROM THE VATICAN

JUL 25 1943

Madrid, July 24 (A. P.).—The magazine Ecclesia, official organ of Accion Catolica, largest Catholic organization in Spain, has suggested that Rome be declared an open city.

"Rome should not be defended nor should it be attacked," the publication said yesterday in an article commenting on the recent American raid on military targets there. It should not give cause for war, nor should it be a victim of war because it does not belong to the litigants. Rome belongs to the world, the world of attackers, defenders and neutrals.

"Let the enemies be still. Let the world stand erect and let Rome remain safe."

How Gayda Explains It

Bern, Switzerland, July 24 (AP)—Virginia Gayda, Fascist editor, prepared the Italians today for the eventual loss of Sicily, telling them that the battle is one in which "mere material is winning over military virtue," Rome dispatches disclosed.

The propagandist declared that the invaders were unhesitatingly using superior war potentiality against the "soldierly courage and better maneuverability" of the defenders, whose situation can continue favorably only until "material supremacy brings a decision"

U. S. AIR SQUADRONS SMASH AT NORWAY IN DAYLIGHT RAID

First American Attack on Nazis There Is Carried Out by Fortresses.

London, July 24 (A. P.).—Heavy bombers of the Eighth United States Air Force attacked Norway for the first time by daylight today, an official American communique announced. Large formations flew a round trip of 1,200 miles—further than if raiding Berlin—in carrying out the assault along the east coast less than 100 miles south of Oslo.

The communique did not specify the targets, nor announce the plane losses, if any.

[A. P. reported from Stockholm late today that an American Flying Fortress made a forced landing in Sweden near the Norwegian border today. The dispatch added that all ten of her crew are safe.]

The principal target, however, was reported to be a factory at Heroya, on the Langesunds Fjord, a mile and a half south of Porsgrunn.

The factory was said to manufacture aluminum, nitrates and magnesium for the Nazi war machine and important supplies of synthetic cryolite, essential to the manufacture of aluminum.

Returning pilots reported little fighter or anti-aircraft interference in the operation, which entailed a flight of 1,000 miles over the sea alone, and which proved that Flying Fortresses can carry devastating bomb loads as far as Prague. The preliminary examination of photographs was said to show that the results of the bombing were very good.

"Easy" was the verdict of the Flying Fortress crews, who said that they encountered a brief anti-aircraft barrage over the target and two lone German fighters for about three-quarters of an hour after they had left the coast of Norway.

FORTRESSES RAID NAZIS IN NORWAY

Trondheim U-Boat Base Is Smashed by U. S. Bombers in 1,800 Mile Flight.

LONDON, Sunday, July 25—(AP) In an unprecedented 1,800-mile round trip to the edge of the Arctic circle, a strong force of American Flying Fortresses pounded Trondheim in Norway by daylight yesterday, leaving that big German U-boat base a raging mass of exploding bombs, flaming oil tanks and black smoke which mushroomed up several thousand feet.

The attack, announced early today in a U. S. Army headquarters communique, was the first American one on Norway, and one Fortress formation also smashed an aluminum plant at Heroya in southern Norway.

Factory Smashed

A French colonel who rode to Heroya said the factory there went "poof" after the American precision airmen had planted their bombs on it. This formation made a 1,200-mile roundtrip to reach its target.

The communique said bombing results were "good at both targets."

Seventeen German fighters were destroyed by the Americans.

One American bomber failed to return out of the big force used in the operation. It landed in Sweden safely and its crew of 10 was interned.

The returning flyers were practically unscatched after catching Nazi defenses off guard.

Photographs of the damage at Trondheim, called the German "Gibraltar of the north," confirmed that submarine repair shops, docks and other naval installations were heavily damaged by many thousands of pounds of high explosives, a jubilant intelligence officer said.

"We really hit it on the button," he said, for pictures showed that not a single bomb was wasted.

Trondheim, sheltered by its fjord approach, is the lair for Nazi warships and submarines that prey on the northern supply route to Murmansk. It was the last reported haven of Germany's great battleship, the Tirpitz, and the two 10,000-ton cruisers of the Admiral Hipper class.

Returning crews said they encountered a fair amount of anti-aircraft fire but only about 25 enemy fighters challenged them. The majority of the German pursuit planes seemed reluctant to attack.

The longest previous flight by Britain-based American bombers were raids on La Pallice and Bordeaux U-boat bases, each approximately 1,400 miles round-trip.

Bring Bombs Home

Three formations flew to Norway, but one, finding heavy clouds prevented accurate aiming, returned to its base with its bomb loads in order to avoid indiscriminate bombing.

Heroya is within hundred miles of the Norwegian capital of Oslo.

Returning members of Flying Fortress crews reported the raid was "easy," despite the fact that it meant carrying a terrific bomb load further than the distance to Berlin and almost as far as Prague in Czechoslovakia.

The factory at Heroya was said to manufacture aluminum, nitrates and magnesium for German war uses, as well as important supplies of synthetic cryolite, an essential in the making of aluminum.

In announcing the 1,200-mile flight, 1,000 miles of which were over the sea, the headquarters communique said only:

"Large formations of heavy bombers of the U. S. 8th Army Air force attacked targets in Norway in daylight today."

The fact that "large formations" were involved, however, indicated that the raid had been made in strength comparable to some of the heavier attacks on the continent.

Meanwhile, the British Air ministry announced that Mustangs, Hurricanes and Typhoons continued to harass enemy transport in France and Belgium today and damaged at least 10 locomotives.

Long bursts of anti-aircraft fire were heard on the French side of the Strait of Dover this evening after R.A.F. bombers were seen sweeping across the channel.

JUL 25 1943

Stockholm, July 24 (AP)—An American Flying Fortress made a forced landing in Sweden near the Norwegian border today. The crew of ten is safe.

Flier Tells of Heroya Blasting

AT A UNITED STATES BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, Sunday, July 25 (AP)—American airmen returning from yesterday's heavy attack on the Heroya aluminum refining works in southern Norway—it was the longest Flying Fortress raid yet in this theatre—exulted:

"Boy, what a mess we left that vital target in."

That summation of the 1,285-mile round trip was given by First Lieut. Robert D. Metcalf of Sacramento, Calif., bombardier of the Fortress called "Spitzfire" that led the raiders to the target and was the first to smack it with its bomb-load. The rest of the boys agreed with him.

"It was an amazing show," Lieutenant Metcalf said. "Like nothing in this world."

The bombers that left this base, returning intact and still flying in perfect formation, took along a distinguished observer, Colonel Corniglion-Molinier, commanding officer of the Fighting French Air Force in Britain.

The colonel pronounced the raid "wonderful, marvelous, beautiful." He said the entire factory went "Poof!" when the bombs hit. Colonel Corniglion-Molinier disclosed that he took the controls for a while and said it was the "most steady plane I ever flew in my life." He is a veteran flier of both world wars.

After Stalin had congratulated his generals for proving in the third year of war that German summer offensives are not automatically successful, a special Russian communique had captured "a number of villages outside Orel including Zmievka.

Other Red army columns were reported smashing at the Germans less than nine miles northeast of Orel and eight miles on the east.

The communique emphasized the premier's statement by announcing that in the Belgorod direction, south of the Orel sector, the new five-day offensive of the Russians there had "completely restored positions which they occupied before the offensive of the German Fascist troops began."

The special war bulletin, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded here by the Soviet monitor, called fighting in the south—in the Donets basin, in the area south of Izyum and southwest of Voroshilovgrad—engagements of "local importance." Positions southwest of Krasnodar in the Caucasus have been improved, it added.

REDS, NAZIS WAGE GREAT AIR BATTLE OVER BASE AT OREL

Desperate Germans Rely on Planes to Stem Russian Advance.

STALIN HAILS ARMY

Premier Says Enemy Campaign Is Smashed with 70,000 Dead.

MOSCOW, Sunday, July 25—(AP) Premier Stalin, whose Soviet armies were battering at the gates of Orel from three sides early today, spurred on his fighters with an announcement that Germany's 19-day old offensive in Russia had collapsed on the graves of 70,000 Nazi dead.

A violent air battle was raging east of Orel where the desperate Germans sought to stem a head-on charge by Russian fighters with the waning Nazi air force.

The Soviet midnight communique said Russian airmen were meeting the German fighters plane for plane and inflicting heavy counter-blows.

Ground Troops in Battle

On the ground, in this sector, Russian troops last were reported only eight miles from the German bastion and they captured 18 more villages, killed about 3,000 Germans, and captured 27 heavy guns yesterday.

The Russian vise was squeezing tighter from the south, too, where gains of three to five miles were recorded by a special Soviet communique. A number of villages, including Zmievka, 14 miles below Orel, were taken by the Soviet counteroffensive.

(The German radio, recorded by the Associated Press, admitted "partial withdrawals" near Orel as strong Russian reserves poured into the area "in an attempt to widen the break-through at any cost.")

Tanks, Planes Wrecked

On all fronts yesterday Russians continued to wreck German equipment including 43 tanks and 94 planes.

In the third year of war, the Red army for the first time has withstood and then rolled back the tide of German summer conquest, and thus Stalin said, "the legend that the Germans always are successful in their summer offensives and that Soviet troops are compelled to retreat is exposed."

"Our troops wore out and bled white picked German division—17 tank, three motorized and 17 infantry divisions—in 19 days destroying or disabling 2,900 enemy tanks, destroying 844 field guns, 195 self-propelling guns, 1,392 planes and more than 5,000 trucks, Russia's war leader asserted in an order of the day.

The order, addressed to Generals Rokossovsky, Vatutin and Popuv, ranked with Stalin's victory proclamations on Stalingrad and the great Red army counteroffensive of last winter.

It came as Russian troops inched ever closer to Orel, one of the main bases of the Nazi summer drive, with the Germans throwing in more reserves and stiffening their desperate resistance.

Nazi Offensive Smashed

"Yesterday, July 23, through the successful operations of our troops, complete liquidation of the German July offensive was carried out in the area south of Orel and north of Belgorod and in the direction of Kursk," said Stalin's order broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Nazi commanders on July 5 threw in several tank divisions in the Orel-Kursk sector, and 10 tank divisions, one motorized division and seven infantry divisions in the Belgorod-Kursk area, concentrating on narrow sectors and aiming "concentric blows from the north and south" endeavoring to wipe out Soviet troops near Kursk, Stalin said.

But Russian troops stood prepared for defense and attack, and "at the cost of tremendous losses of manpower and equipment the enemy succeeded in driving a wedge into our defenses to a depth of about nine kilometers (5 1-2 miles) in the Orel-Kursk sector and 15 to 35 kilometers (nine to 22 miles) in the Belgorod-Kursk sector.

"In fierce engagements our troops wore out and bled white picked German divisions and followed this up with violent counterblows by which they not only hurled back the enemy and completely restored their position occupied before July 5, but also broke through enemy defenses and advanced 15 to 25 kilometers (nine to 15 1-2 miles) toward Orel.

"Engagements carried out in the liquidation demonstrated the high military skill of our troops. Unprecedented examples of stubbornness, steadfastness and heroism were displayed by men and commanders of all arms, including artillery and mortar gunners, tankmen and airmen."

Vatican Radio Denies Report Pope Sent Protest to FDR

JUL 25 1943

LONDON, July 24—(AP) The Vatican radio, in a German language broadcast beamed to Germany, tonight branded as "entirely unfounded" German and Italian news agencies reports that Pope Pius XII had protested to President Roosevelt over Monday's bombing of Rome, and also said that the pontiff did not believe that American pilots intentionally set out to damage holy places.

The broadcast, which emphasized that the pontiff is impartial in the war, denied the Axis statements that after the raid the Pope called to the Vatican U. S. Charge d'Affairs Harold H. Tittman, Jr.

"Reports have been published by the Stefani agency (official Italian news agency) and DNB (German news agency) according to which the Pope was quoted as having stated that the Basilica di San Lorenzo was almost entirely destroyed," the broadcast said.

"This is untrue. What the Pope really said was: 'The Basilica was damaged per unna grandissima parte (in the greatest part).

"The facts are that the frontal part of the cathedral has been destroyed but the antique crypt of the Basilica, as well as the grave ope Pius IX are unharmed. herefore the Holy Father did not exaggerate. Apart from other reasons, it was right to mention the fact since this Basilica was the possession of the neutral Vatican state.

"Every neutral state raises its voice when its territory is crossed by aircraft, attacked or violated. Moreover this Basilica, one of the seven principal churches of Rome and a place of pilgrimage, belongs in one sense to the Catholics of the whole world."

The broadcast as recorded by The Associated Press said:

"Reports put out by NB [German official news agency], according to which the Pope had made a personal protest to President Roosevelt about the bombing of Rome, as well as a report that the United States Chargé d'Affaires, Mr. Tittman, had been called to the Vatican on the evening of the day the bombing took place, are both entirely unfounded.

"As the Holy Father's movements after the bombing of Rome have been subject to many incorrect interpretations in the foreign press it is necessary to recall what had really taken place.

"It is true that on the evening of the day of the bombing the Pope had visited damaged areas accompanied by one person only.

New Foreign Minister Named for Hungary

London, July 24 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press today that Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Regent of Hungary, had appointed Jeno Von Ghyczy as Hungarian Foreign Minister on the recommendation of Premier Nicolas Kallay. Until recently, Premier Kallay also held the Foreign Affairs portfolio.

Nazis' Offensive Is 'Liquidated,' Stalin Says

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 24—Premier Joseph Stalin, in an order of the day to three of his generals congratulating them on "complete liquidation" of the German July offensive, said today that the enemy had suffered 70,000 officers and men killed in the abortive drive.

The order of the day, recorded from the Moscow radio by the Soviet monitor, said 2,900 enemy tanks were destroyed or disabled and 844 guns, 1,392 planes and more than 5,000 trucks were destroyed from July 5 to July 23 in the fighting about Orel and Kursk.

"Yesterday, July 23, through the successful operations of our troops, complete liquidation of the German July offensive was caried out in the area south of Orel and north of Belgorod and in the direction of Kursk," said the order of the day addressed to Generals Rokossovsky, Vatutin and Popuv.

The broadcast was recorded here by the Soviet monitor.

Beginning Recounted

"From the morning of July 5 German Fascist troops with large forces of tanks and infantry supported by large air forces passed to the offensive in the Orel-Kursk and Belgorod-Kursk direction," Stalin's victory message said.

"The German command put into action several tank divisions in the Orel-Kursk sector and ten tank divisions, one motorized division and seven infantry divisions in the Belgorod-Kursk sector.

"Thus altogether the enemy hurled into the attack seventeen tank, three motorized and eighteen infantry divisions.

Forces Concentrated

"Concentrating their forces on narrow sectors of the front, the German command reckoned, by concentric blows from the north and south, on breaking through our defenses and encircling and wiping out our troops near Kursk.

"This new German offensive did not take our troops unawares." They were prepared not only to repulse the German offensive, but also to deal mighty counter-blows.

"At the cost of tremendous losses of manpower and equipment, the enemy succeeded in driving a wedge into our defenses to a depth of about nine kilometers in the Belgorod-Kursk sector.

Counter-Blows Follow

"In fierce engagements our troops wore out and bled white picked German divisions and followed this up with violent counter-blows by which they not only hurled back the enemy and completely restored their position occupied before July 5, but also broke through enemy defenses and advanced fifteen to twenty-five kilometers toward Orel.

"Engagements carried out in the liquidation demonstrated the high military skill of our troops. Unprecedented examples of stubbornness, steadfastness and heroism were displayed by men and commanders of all arms, including artillery and mortar gunners, tankmen and airmen.

"Thus German plans for a summer offensive can be considered as having completely failed. Thus the legend that the Germans always are successful in their summer offensives and that Soviet troops are compelled to retreat is exposed.

Enemy Losses Given

"During the engagement from July 5 to July 23 the enemy suffered the following losses: 70,000 officers and men killed, 2,900 tanks destroyed or disabled, 195 self-propelling guns, 844 field guns, 1,392 planes destroyed and over 5,000 trucks.

"In the fighting for the liquidation of the German offensive those particularly distinguishing themselves included troops of Lieutenant Generals Pukhov and Galanin, Lieutenant General of Tank Forces Rodin, Lieutenant Generals Ramanen, Kolpackhi and Chistyakov, Lieutenant Generals of Tank Forces Katukov and R[illegible]tmistrov, Lieutenant Generals Zh[illegible]ov, Shumilov and Kryuchenkin, and airmen of the air forces commanded by Generals Golovanov, Krasovsky, Rudenko and Naumenko.

"I congratulate you and the troops under your command on the successful liquidation of the German summer offensive. I express my gratitude to all men, commanders and political workers of the troops under your command for excellent operations.

"Immortal glory to the heroes who fell on the battlefield in the struggle for freedom and the honor of our motherland."

The message was signed "Supreme Commander in Chief of the Soviet Union, J. V. Stalin, July 24, 1943."

4,500 Nazis Killed

Moscow, July 24 (AP)—More than 4,500 German soldiers died yesterday at the approaches to Orel, where Russian forces closing a pincers about that bastion continued to throw back Nazi counter-attacks and forged ahead two to four miles, front-line dispatches said today.

As the fierce battle of attrition raged into its twelfth day, with reports of mounting German losses, Red Star, the army organ, said the battle not only had crushed Hitler's plan for a new general offensive on the eastern front, but was causing him to lose the battle for Sicily.

"The Red Army offensive is breaking down the entire German defense in Europe," Red Star said. "It makes the German rear vulnerable."

The newspaper said Hitler had been unable to release forces to combat the Allied invasion of Sicily because he was so heavily engaged on the Russian front.

(The German communique, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, declared "the swaying battle in the Orel area" was continuing and that Soviet attempts to achieve a breakthrough on the Donets, Belgorod and Mius fronts and in the Kuban bridgehead had been repulsed with heavy losses to the attackers.

JUL 25 1943

Dispatches describing the fury of the German counter-attacks at Orel told of a Russian smash across a river directly east of the city.

Eleven German counter-attacks were launched against the position, the dispatches said, and the Russians announced officially that more than 2,000 Germans were annihilated.

Editors Praise British-U. S. Teamwork

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 24 — Four leading American newspaper executives paid radio tribute today to the successful combination of British perseverance and American youthfulness which they have found in the joint war effort of the two nations.

Speaking on Morgan Beatty's weekly "War Telescope," broadcast over NBC to the United States, Paul Patterson, president of the Baltimore Sunpapers, said that "what we have here in Britain and perhaps even more strikingly in Sicily is the mature steadying force of an older nation combined with the youth of the new world."

Others Speak

His thesis was illustrated by examples from the experiences in Britain of himself, John S. Knight, publisher of the Akron Beacon Journal, Detroit Free Press and the Miami Herald; Ralph McGill, executive editor of the Atlanta Constitution, and Oliver S. Keller, president of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Interviewed by Beatty, Knight said that a newcomer to Britain "invariably is surprised by the excellent spirits and the sturdy appearance of the people" after 203 weeks of war.

Draymen's Courage Described

McGill told a story of a drayman of Coventry "who refused to move from his home site, even after it had been reduced to rubble," and who "set up housekeeping at the same old stand" in two trailers.

Keller, remarking on British ability "to stick in the pinches," described how the coastal city of Dover still was "taking it" and told of the sacrifices made by the RAF's air-sea rescue service to save Allied airmen and others from the English Channel.

Air Force Commended

"As for the United States," said Patterson, "our youth and our experimental turn of mind have created the fundamental driving force of America as exemplified in the Eighth Air Force," the story of which, he said, "ought to be told as often as possible."

Knight and Patterson both suggested that teamwork between the two nations might be improved still more through such visits as they are making to Britain, along with other American newspaper executives. They are guests of the British Ministry of Information.

Allies Raid Bologna, Salerno

London, July 24 (AP)—Rome today in a communique reported that Allied air raiders struck this morning at Bologna in the north-central section of Italy, causing casualties and damage.

The broadcast of the war bulletin, recorded by the Associated Press, also said that Allied bombers raided the city of Salerno, southeast of Naples, and the island of Ventotene, off Naples, this morning.

Intense Raids Reported

This Allied air activity, the announcement said, followed intense raids against the Calabrian-Sicilian coasts.

Today's German communique said, vaguely, that an "Axis thrust was successful" in Sicily, but did not specify in what sector the purported attack was launched.

The Germans said their heavy bombers attacked Allied shipping off Augusta, damaging six transport vessels and sinking one 2,000-ton freighter.

Violent Artillery Fire

British forces in front of Catania eased up in their attack yesterday, the Nazi radio reported, restricting their activity to violent artillery fire that occasionally rose to drum-fire intensity.

A bitter battle with American forces pushing northeast from Enna in central Sicily is in progress, Berlin said.

A FOCKE WULF PILOT SPEAKS TO AN AMERICAN PRISONER OF WAR

(By Lieutanant Douglas R. Venable, Jr.)

Yank, I know you hate this prison
And the way we treat you here

And I know you miss family
And the ones you hold so dear.
I know the terror in our soul
When you were sent to fly
'Round Wesermunde and Emden
And were knocked down from the sky.

You don't seem such a demon
As I watch you in your cell,
And you try to act so friendly
Like a Jew that's sent to hell.
But buddy, listen—while you think
You've had a gruesome deal
Just listen to the horror
And the hell I've had to feel.

JUL 25 1943

You think your Boeings over
(But we are ready from the start,
For we watch you leaving Dover
On a sound-location chart.)
It was fun at first to jump you
And catch you by suprise,
And get your engines smoking,
Then knock you from the skies.
To see that bomber twist around
And snap its burning wing,
And watch [illegible]ing [illegible]r
grou[illegible]
Is quite [illegible]ng.

That's one part of the story
But it's quite another tale
To see my buddies ruined
By your own steel-jacket hail.
That fellow there just makes it in
His leg is shot away:
His neck flows like a fountain;
Now they're bearing him away.
You haven't seen a ruptured spleen
And belly shot away
On him that's only seventeen
And full of fun and play.

My own best buddy—him and me—
Were diving on a plane—
Mein Gott! That feel of livid steel!
Oh, Lord! That sickening pain!
My leg was shattered, but on I came;
On came my buddy, too.
Those hooded figures in the waist
Looked—damned gruesome, too.
They caught him heavy on his wing;
They blew his rudder through.
And then bore down with everything
And cut his spine in two.

So Yankee, lie there 'til you rot.
May more like you go down!
I know now that we're losing
And my buddies aren't around.
I'd rather face the pits of hell
Or swim a molten stream
Than face those turrets when ablaze—
I live a hellish dream.
I realize that threats and lies
Ne'er can allay what's true.
Soon now I'll rise into the skies
In my homeland, too.
And see your bombers, thousands more
Come roaring through the blue.
I hear their engines, beating loud
And see the burning wreck
Of what I call "Der Vaterland"
—Damn your bloody neck!

Poet Dies in Air Battle But Leaves Final Verse

Lieut. Douglas R. Venable Wrote on Thoughts of Focke Wulf Pilot.

What does a Flying Fortress man think about as his ship drones along, miles up, on a bombing raid? Chiefly of the enemy, lurking somewhere out there in space to kill him. Sometimes, even of what a Focke Wulf pilot may think about him. That is the subject of the unique verses—written by a Fortress man during a raid on Germany—about which Gladwin Hill tells this unusual story.)

BY GLADWIN HILL

U. S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND—(AP) Lieutant Douglas R. Venable, Jr., navigator of the Flying Fortress "Old Bill," was a lanky, boyish-faced, quiet fellow of only 23.

Son of a Columbus, Ga., cancer specialist, he had gone from the University of Texas into the Air Force, and wound up on the ship piloted by his old schoolmate, Lieutenant William D. Whitson of Denton, Tex.

In his background, Venable was typical of many of the thousands of Fortress boys who for the last year, week in and week out, have been battling Germany from the air.

But in some ways, he was unusual. He was exceptionally quiet, thoughtful and studious.

Threw Own Poems Awa[illegible]

He also used to write poems to amuse himself. Some of the [illegible] would get a look at them and th[illegible] they were good, but Venable sa[illegible] they weren't, and threw them away.

One day, after they had dropped their bombs and the "Old Bill" had battled Focke Wulfs out of Emden, Venable began thinking of the narrow escape. He thought, as all Fortress men think sometimes, of what it would be like to be a German prisoner—of what, if he were captured, one of those Focke Wulf pilots might say to him.

So, on the flight back, he jotted down these thoughts, just as they came to him, in verse. Then, on May 15, in another raid on Emden, the "Old Bill" got into its toughest fight with the Focke Wulfs—one of the toughest any Fortress has survived.

The story of that trip has already been told. The "Old Bill" staggered home with one wing buckling, its plexiglass nose shot clean away, and only two of the 11 men aboard unwounded.

One of the casualties was Venable. The German 20-millimeter shell that blew off the plane's nose killed him instantly.

Among the things his friends found in his room was a po[illegible] which he had not thrown away.

ITALIAN PRISONERS SHIFTED TO CROATIA

MOSCOW, July 24—(AP) Tass, Russian official news agency, said in a dispatch from Bern, Switzerland, tonight that many Italian political prisoners and a large number of Italian army men had been sent to concentration camps in Croatia.

The total number of prisoners at three special concentration camps for Italian soldiers who refused to fight or deserted has been increased recently to 40,000, the dispitch said.

It added that several hundred Italian officers, arrested for violating orders and "subversive activities in the army," are kept in one of several prisons maintained for the purpose.

BOMBERS TEAMED WITH WARSHIPS IN ATTACK ON KISKA

Bombardment Heaviest Since Japs Seized Island 13 Months Ago.

WASHINGTCN, July 24 — (AP) In a communique containing fresh evidence that the hour of doom is rapidly nearing for 10,000 Japanese troops holding Kiska island, the Navy disclosed today that the Thursday assault against the invader's Aleutians outpost was a joint sea and air operation.

The latest war bulletin on the action suggested that the Japanese probably took a heavier beating on Kiska that day than ever before in the 13 and a half months they have held that bleak and rocky island.

Planes Open Attack

The attack started with an air raid by Army four engine Liberator bombers, Mitchell twin engine medium bombers and swift Lightning and Warhawk fighters. These planes heavily bombed and strafed Japanese coastal batteries, anti-aircraft positions and building areas.

This first air attack was followed immediately by the naval bombardment in which heavy and light guns of the U. S. Pacific fleet poured tons of steel and explosives upon the same targets. Then the aerial squadrons returned to the scene and mopped up.

The communique reported, with what was regarded here as great conservatism, that these terrific air and surface onslaughts started numerous fires and observers of the attacks saw at least one terrific explosion. The attacking groups included American Warhawks piloted by flyers of the Royal Canadian Air force.

One Plane Shot Down

The Japanese fired back with coastal batteries and anti-aircraft guns. But not an American warship was damaged by fire of the shore cannon and only one U. S. plane of all those over the island during the afternoon was shot down by anti-aircraft fire. Its crew was rescued.

INVASION TIP SEEN IN KISKA ATTACK

Washington, July 24 (A. P.).—The Navy disclosed today that heavy American air raids preceded and followed the American warships' bombardment of the Japanese positions on Kiska Island on Thursday. As a result of the combined operations, the enemy coastal batteries, anti-aircraft positions and building areas were hit, many fires were started and one large explosion was observed, the communique declared.

The communique also noted that Canadian flyers are participating in the campaign to soften up the Japanese defenses on Kiska, stating that some of the fighter planes in the attack were piloted by R. C. A. F. officers.

One American plane was shot down by anti-aircraft fire, but her men were rescued, it was announced.

The naval bombardment had been announced yesterday. A communique then said that heavy and light surface units assaulted enemy shore positions and that enemy guns replied but that no ships were damaged. Today's communique gave the first intimation of a co-ordinated sea-and-air drive to prepare the way for amphibious invasion of Kiska and strongly indicated that much heavier damage was accomplished on Thursday than had been expected.

GETS NETHERLANDS CROSS

JUL 25 1943

Navy Coxswain Receives Decoration From Queen Wilhelmina

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands has awarded the Bronze Cross to Martin J. Tray, a coxswain in the American Navy, for his heroism as member of a United States armed guard aboard a Dutch merchant vessel.

The ship was hit by two torpedoes and two bombs. Tray, courageously sticking to his gun, succeeded in destroying one of the enemy bombers.

The Navy gave his address as 2205 West Venango Street, Philadelphia. The citation awarded to Tray with the Netherlands decoration said he had "behaved bravely and skillfully."

STALIN CONTROL OF GERMANY SEEN

Norman Thomas, Socialist Leader, Predicts Spread of Communism.

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP) Norman Thomas, leader of the Socialist party, declared today that Marshal Stalin of Russia has shown definitely that he "Intends to call the tune" in Germany and central Europe in the post-war period.

He based his opinion, expressed at a press conference, upon the formation in Russia of a committee of German refugees and war prisoners and its appeal to Germans to revolt against Hitler. The appeal was publicized by the Communist party in Russia.

"Without waiting for a peace table," Mr. Thomas contended, "Stalin has shown definitely that he is not going to permit a British-American army to police Germany and central Europe after the war. He's in a position to block it. His army may reach Berlin first."

But the Socialist leader declared that Stalin's method of achieving his objective would not be through the use of his army, but by an appeal to the people of Germany in an attempt to bring them into the Communists ranks.

And, he observed, Stalin's aim "may make the training of all the American Gaulieters somewhat superfluous." He referred, he said, to the army's action in training men to take over civilian posts in occupied countries.

Meanwhile, the Socialist National Executive committee called for creation of a non-partisan commission for economic demobilization to study post-war utilization of the government's estimated $25,000,000,000 war plant investment.

Moscow To See "Mission"

Moscow, July 24 (AP)—The American film "Mission to Moscow" is being fitted now with a Russian langugage sound track and will be shown in Soviet theaters some time in the future, a Russian authority said today. He said nothing was known here of reports published abroad that the picture had been banned in the Soviet Union.

PRESIDENT'S SON IS HOME FROM AFRICA

Washington, July 24 (A. P.).—Col. Elliott Roosevelt, back from duty in North Africa, as commander of an Allied photographic reconnaissance group, asserted today "precision bombing in my opinion is the answer to winning the war."

The youthful second son of the President told of pictures taken after bombing raids which showed towns undamaged except for the immediate area of the target.

As an example he told at a press conference of the immobilization of airdromes on Sicily saying "precision bombing systematically reduced them for a week prior to the invasion to such a condition they were unable to use them as air fields."

Continual photographic reconnaissance of Rome as a key point in the movement of military traffic has been under way for months he said, and pictures taken there have provided much information on movements of troops in Italy.

He declined to discuss the bombing raids on Rome railroad yards Monday, the day before he started back to Washington.

LORD HALIFAX RESORTS TO MARX

Seattle, July 24 (A. P.).—"The lend-lease agreement is no longer a one-way proposition," declared Lord Halifax, the British ambassador. He added:

"It is now the generic name we give to commonu pooling of resources. England and the British commonwealth are now giving the United States as much as they are receiving."

He addressed Seattle civic leaders yesterday, comparing the lend-lease principle with the Marxist maxim: "From each according to his ability, to each according to his needs."

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 24 (AP)—Eighteen Navy men received medals and commendations here today for heroism in aerial and sea warfare in the Pacific battle zones.

Among those who were decorated were Lieut. Thomas Seabrook of Ridgewood, N. J., and Lieut. Robert L. Finucane of Rockville Centre, N. Y.

Draft Combing 4-F Files For Eligibles

By James Marlow and George Zielke

[Associated Press Correspondents]

Washington, July 24—Selective service is looking in every direction for enough manpower so that it can continue to delay general drafting of men it defines as fathers—or, if possible, avert it entirely.

But no official will say that permanent general deferment for such fathers (of children born before last September 15, provided the fathers are not in non-deferrable jobs) is very likely.

Right now the drive for draftees is concentrated on getting all the men possible out of the nearly 3,000,000 currently classified as 4-F.

Making Closer Check

Newest angle of the drive is pointed at those rejected for syphilis. Local boards have been told to check on these men closely—working with public health agencies—and call them up without delay if they refuse to take treatment which would make them fit for service. Then they would be sent to camps for treatment.

Another major part of the drive is aimed at psychiatrist rejections. Induction station psychiatrists have been rejecting twenty-three per cent. of recent examinees—virtually all of them physically fit—on the basis of belief that they are unable to stand the mental strain of shifting from civilian to military life.

Uniform Standards

The current aim is to work out more uniform standards for judging the general stability of the individuals examined.

Pretty well under way is an effort to shake out of war plants and other civilian work more than a million single and childless married men who currently are deferred for occupational reasons—as essential or key workers in essential industries.

September Quota Ready

Too, selective service officials see a strong possibility that, after the harvest season, local boards which find themselves pinched to meet quotas will reclassify into 1-A many of the 705,000 single and childless married men now deferred as necessary workers on farms.

Another recent move has been a change in procedure so that men who meet limited service standards won't be turned back at induction centers just because the limited service quota for the day they report happens to be filled before the examiners get around to them.

Latest official word from selective service headquarters is that there are enough men now in 1-A or 1-A-O (those who can be used for non-combatant military service) to fill draft calls through September, even though physicians and psychiatrists now are rejecting, all told, more than forty per cent. of those examined.

INTERNATIONAL OIL PROGRAM SOUGHT

JUL 25 1943

Washington, July 24 (A. P.).—An international program for utilizing all oil sources available to the United Nations to meet military and essential civilian needs has been undertaken by the Petroleum Administration for War.

Stewart P. Coleman, former director of the economics department of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has been named head of a new division set up to co-ordinate the various national oil programs.

The division will attempt to make the most effective use of oil supplies made available as a result of Allied military victories.

The Petroleum Industry War Council, in suggesting the new plan, said the United States was supplying most of the oil for Allied fighting machines and expressed the belief the sources of other countries should be tapped to prevent a possible future shortage here. The council is made up of advisors from the i

Two Turkish Ships Sunk By Unidentified Sub

ISTANBUL, July 24 — (AP) The crews of two small Turkish ships sunk by unidentified submarines in the Black Sea today came ashore in Turkish territory unharmed. Both ships were halted while en route to Bulgarian ports by a submarine which surfaced, ordered the crew to the lifeboats and then sank the ships with deck guns.

FAMOUS ARTIST MISSING IN ACTION

McClelland Barclay, Commander in Navy, Lost in Pacific Area.

ST. LOUIS, July 24.—(AP) Mrs. Robert Barclay said today she was informed her stepson, Lt. Com. McClelland Barclay, nationally known artist, was missing in action.

She said she had received a telegram from Hamilton Barclay, brother of the artist, saying that as next of kin he had been notified by the Navy department that his brother was missing.

The date and place were not given but Barclay has been in Australia and New Guinea making paintings and sketches for a permanent historical record of the war.

Barclay, 52, was a member of the first unit of the "War Arts corps" to arrive in Australia.

McClelland Barclay won fame during the first World War with many outstanding posters designed to promote recruitment for the Navy and Marines and donations to Red Cross drives.

In peacetime he was renowned creation of the "Fisher body girl," numerous vase and novelty jewelry designs, and for covers he painted for the Saturday Evening Post, Pictorial Review and The Ladies Home Journal.

Since the beginning of the present war he has devoted much attention to war scenes and portraits of Generals George C. Marshall and Douglas MacArthur and Admirals Chester H. Nimitz, Ernest J. King and William F. Halsey.

Two Successful Attacks Reported by Chinese

Chungking, July 24 (A. P.).—Chinese troops in Chekiang province have made successful attacks on Japanese-held points north of Yuhang, destroying defense works and communications facilities, the Chinese High Command announced today. Northwest of Haining, the communique said, the Chinese demolished three enemy barracks and many fortifications and inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese.

5 AIRMEN WIN D.F.C. AWARDS

New Yorkers and 2 From New Jersey Honored.

Washington, July 24 (A. P.).—Three men from New York State and two from New Jersey were included in a list of officers and men of the Army Air Forces who have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for outstanding achievements in the European and North African theaters, the War Department announced today.

They were First Lieut. Ralph E. Buchanan of 310 East 44th street, New York city; Second Lieut. Malcolm A. Hormats of Troy; Second Lieut. Gerald A. Jackson of Albion. Major Frank A. Hill of 183 Washington avenue, Hillsdale, N. J., and Sergt. Charles J. Selury of Cedar Grove, N. J.

Lieut. Buchanan, bombardier in a Flying Fortress, was cited for extinguishing a fire and fighting off enemy plane attacks on the crippled Fortress during a mission over Bizerte. Enemy anti-aircraft fire that started the blaze disabled four crew members and the pilot advised abandoning ship, the citation said. Lieut. Buchanan chose to remain, and moved the injured men out of range of strafing attacks after the plane had crash-landed.

The citation for Lieut. Hormats said that alone and unaided he attacked a flight of enemy planes over La Fauconnerie, Tunisia, dispersed them, and saved the bombers he was protecting from attack.

"While flying in a bomber escort mission over Maknassy, Tunisia," the citation for Lieut. Jackson read, "He observed fourteen Ju-87's with an escort of sixteen Me-109's maneuvering to attack our ground forces. Gallantly leading his flight, Lieut. Jackson broke through the formation of enemy fighters to attack the bombers, damaged several, forced them to jettison their bombs and drove the entire formation back over enemy territory."

Major Hill received his cross, the department said, for engaging in many flights in the European and North African theaters of operations from the Dieppe raid in August, 1942, to the conclusion of the North African campaign. He was credited with destroying three others, and damaging four.

Sergt Solury was awarded the cross for gallantry in smothering flames in the tail of a B-17 while over Palermo, Sicily, on May 9. Although severely burned, said his citation, he continued to man his guns and damaged several enemy fighters.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, July 24 (A. P.).—The Navy announced today 51 casualties, including 28 dead, 7 wounded and 16 missing.

This brings to 27,368 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since December 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,486 dead, 4,775 wounded and 10,291 missing.

In addition nine names were included whose status has been changed, eight dead from missing and one survivor from missing. The names of two whose parents reside in an occupied country were omitted.

The casualties announced today (those listed are Navy and non-commissioned personnel unless otherwise specified) include:

NEW YORK.

Wallace, 'Proud Idealist,' Assails U. S. 'Fascists'

At Detroit for Speech Today, He Calls 'Progressives' Democratic Party's Hope

DETROIT, July 24 (AP).—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, here to address a mass meeting tomorrow, lashed out spiritedly in a press conference today against "American Fascists" and predicted that if control of the Democratic party became a struggle between its "progressive element" and conservatives he was "confident the people will take care of that."

"Certain American Fascists claim I'm an idealist," Mr. Wallace said. "I ask them to look to themselves and ask if they have done as much to put their ideals into practice."

He was "proud" to be called an "idealist," Mr. Wallace said, adding that he would "continue to be a practical one." Although he used the term "American Fascists" several times during his press conference, he did not identify any individual as such.

"Old-fashioned Amercanism is the last refuge of the Fascists," he said, "but by old-fashioned Americanism they do not mean what is implied by the term, but mean the situation that existed when great corporations rose to power economically and politically. The reason Mr. Roosevelt is so hated by many big business men is the fact that he stopped making Washington a way station on the road to Wall Street."

Regardingt he Democratic party future, Mr. Wallace said he would fight to the last ditch to keep control of it out of the hands of "men and corporations who put money rights above human rights."

When a reporter mentioned that a magazine had referred to him as the "last New Dealer" in an article which declared that conservative elements were taking control of the Democratic party, Mr. Wallace said:

"The term 'New Dealer' doesn't mean the same thing everywhere. Let's say 'the progressive element.' By that I mean the men and interests which put human rights above money rights. The conservative element puts money rights first. Each group is conscious of the existence and need of the other. It's just a question of which is going to dominate. I'm confident the people will take care of that."

Mr. Wallace termed accomplishments of the domestic front in production of food and war goods a "modern miracle."

He said he intended to pass the time he formerly devoted to the Board of Economic Warfare to "getting acquainted with the folks throughout the country." He was relieved of his B. E. W. work by President Roosevelt after his differences with Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce. Today Mr. Wallace refused to comment on that, but declared he was proud of the agency's work.

Mr. Wallace's speech tomorrow afternoon at the State Fair Grounds has been arranged by various labor and civic groups. He will be introduced by R. J. Thomas international president of the United Automobile Workers (Congress of International Organizations).

Mr. Wallace toured the Ford Willow Run bomber plant today.

Policy Toward French Cited

JUL 25 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, July 24—A. A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, said in a letter made public today if an invitation to Gen. Charles de Gaulle to visit Washington would further military objectives "that invitation would be extended without delay."

The letter was in reply to one from Mortimer Hays, New York attorney and executive chairman of the Committee for a Democratic Foreign Policy, to President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull, urging that the United States recognize the French Committee of National Liberation and invite General de Gaulle to this country.

No Elected Representatives

Berle's letter said that governments-in-exile were made up generally of elected representatives in the invaded homelands, but "unfortunately this is not the case with France, and no French group today can authoritatively claim to represent the will of the French people under Axis domination. He added that the French had no opportunity since the nation's fall to express themselves politically.

"In the circumstances," Berle wrote Hays, "it seems to me that the only truly democratic course for the friends of France to take is along the lines of the policy which this Government has consistently followed—namely, to refrain from recognizing any group of Frenchmen as the government of France until the French people are liberated and are again in a position to exercise their free will in the choice of their leaders."

Seek Cooperation Of All

He said withholding of recognition did not mean "we have no relations with those Frenchmen who have succeeded in escaping from their conquered country," but that "we have from the beginning eagerly sought the cooperation of all Frenchmen sincerely desirous of taking an active part in the war against the Axis and will continue to cooperate with them in all matters dealing with the prosecution of the war.

"It is for this reason that General Giraud (cochairman of the French Committee of National Liberation at Algiers and French commander in North Africa) was invited to visit the United States."

2 CONVICTED OF BRIBERY

Ex-Lord Mayor and Admiralty Man Sentenced in England

LEEDS, England, July 24 (AP)—A former Lord Mayor of Newcastle and an Admiralty official were convicted today on charges of conspiracy and bribery in connection with the awarding of contracts for the construction of minesweepers.

Robert Stanley Dalgliesh, 71, now an Alderman, was sentenced to fifteen months in jail and fined £500 on each of five counts of giving bribes.

Charles J. Butt, 55, Admiralty official, was sentenced to three years imprisonment for accepting bribes and up to eighteen months imprisonment on other counts.

Dalgliesh, managing director of the Blyth Drydocks and Shipbuilding Company, Ltd., was accused, along with Sir Arthur Sutherland, a director, of giving money to Butt as an inducement to favor the Blyth company.

Sir Arthur, 76, a former Lord Mayor of Newcastle, was exonerated of all charges.

Authoritative quarters here assumed that the pattern of attack against Kiska is somewhat similar to that employed by the Allied command in the Mediterranean area where air and sea power were used jointly to pulverize island defenses at Lampedusa, Pantelleria and Sicily prior to occupation or invasion.

In the north Pacific fogs and bad weather prevent planes from operating with the same freedom as in the Mediterranean theatre and as a result the use of naval gun fire to soften up enemy shore positions has come to be of even greater importance there.

So far Kiska has been [illegible] 20 times this month and bombed seven times. Neither Japanese warships nor planes has offered any opposition. The Kiska garrison has no defense except to sit in underground positions and take a beating from all those units which cannot be stopped by gunfire.

Even so it is expected that if and when amphibious operations against Kiska began—and not many weeks remain before bad weather sets in—the Japanese will have come through the softening up process with sufficient weapons, supplies and ammunition to make the attack a costly one.

BOMBERS HIT JAPS ON NEW GEORGIA

Heavy Air Attacks Pressed on Bairoko-Munda Defense Positions.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, July 25. — (AP) Continuing their heavy aerial blows against principal Japanese bases in the Southwest Pacific, Allied bombers yesterday hurled 80 tons of explosives against the Bairoko-Munda defense on New Georgia and 60 tons upon Lae, New Guinea.

Two heavy attacks were made on enemy positions at Bairoko and at Boblo Hill, New Georgia, by torpedo and divebombers from the South Pacific command of Admiral William F. Halsey. Bairoko is situated on Kula gulf, about eight miles north of Munda airbase, and Boblo Hill is one mile northeast of Munda.

One U. S. Plane Lost

The communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said one of our planes was lost in the raid against New Georgia but that the crew was believed to have been rescued.

Flying through bad weather which frequently limits aerial operations in southwest Pacific, four engined bombers dropped 60 tons of high explosives on Lae in a morning attack. The bombs set off many explosions and started large fires.

The Japanese struck at two Allied positions—Bena Bena, 90 miles northwest of Salamaua, and Enogai inlet, two miles northeast of Bairoko. No damage was reported in either case.

Timor Bombed Heavily

Five different Japanese positions on Timor island, 400 miles northwest of Darwin, were pounded by Allied bombers. Three of the attacks—against Fuiloro, Lautem, and Dili—were made at night. Fires were started at Lautem and at Udili and the communique identified those at Dili as burning in ammunition dumps and near the airdrome. Results of the Fuiloro raid were not reported but large fires were started at Koepang and in the nearby village of Tenau.

Long-range fighters attacked the enemy seaplane base at Taberfane in the Aroe islands, damaging three float planes. Enemy float planes unsuccessfully attempted interception.

Allied bombers, on missions along the New Britain coast, strafed enemy barges off Cape Bushing at the southwestern tip of the island. One barge, apparently loaded with oil, exploded under the bombers' attack, and two other barges and a launch were set afire.

JAPS RUNNING OUT OF TRAINED PILOTS

JUL 25 1943

Zeros Being Shot Down Are New Craft, Says Chennault.

FOURTEENTH UNITED STATES AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN CHINA, July 23—(Delayed) — (AP) The Japanese definitely have reached a bottleneck in pilots, Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault declared at a press conference today.

"We have received most reliable reports that the Japs have circulated a nation-wide appeal for young men to join the air force," he said. "They are getting shorthanded and are desperately in need of new material which is not available."

Zeros recently shot down had been out of the factory only a few weeks, he said.

Emphasizing a high degree of cooperation with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's southwest Pacific command, he said "The reason we have been striking so regularly at shipping in Indo-China is because the Japs are attempting to withdraw men and munitions [illegible] plies to the southwest P[illegible]

Gen. Chennault wou[illegible] ment on the recent U[illegible] Liberator raid on the Ja[illegible] al base of Paramushiru [illegible] ile islands, but Col. Eugen[illegible] he of Moscow, Ida., commander of the Liberator force in China, remarked, "They ain't seen nothing yet."

DAYLIGHT ASSAULT ON ENEMY OUTPOST COSTS 17 AIRCRAFT

Gun Positions, Ammunition Dumps, Airfields Pounded by Raiders.

CAIRO, July 24 — (AP) British and Greek warplanes, more than 100 strong, widened their attacks on the invasion stepping-stone island of Crete in a bold daylight assault yesterday, blasting German encampments, gun positions, ammunition dumps and wireless stations in addition to the usual pounding of airfields.

Seventeen Allied planes were lost in what was officially described as "a large-scale offensive operation."

(The scope of the attack, one of the biggest ever made on Crete, indicated that it might be the start of a softening-up campaign as a prelude to invasion.)

Greek Fliers in Raid

R.A.F. and Hellenic air force Hurricanes, Beaufighters and Baltimores hammered targets throughout the Nazi-occupied island, which lies off the southern tip of Greece, with Greek fliers taking part in their first major operation against the enemy on their native soil.

(A Berlin broadcast said the raid was "obviously made for the main purpose of probing Axis defenses in Crete." The Germans asserted that 10 attacking planes were shot down by anti-aircraft fire and many more damaged and said the raid was "unsuccessful.")

A Middle East headquarters communique said the raiders bombed and machine-gunned factories engaged in Nazi war production and strafed enemy trucks on the roads. Several German staff cars were shot up.

While the Hellenic air force carried out its biggest vengeance mission to date, King George of Greece visited Greek squadrons in Lybia, whose members have been playing a prominent auxiliary role in coastal patrolling and similar operations.

Troop Camp Blasted

The first wave swept into the attack with cannon and machine-gun fire bursts on a troop camp near Nikolas and transport on roads near Neapolis and Paraskis. Buildings near Paraskis and a bridge at Hierapetra were also attacked.

The second wave struck its heaviest blows between Timbaki and Heraklion, scoring hits on roadways, tents, camp buildings and trucks. An ammunition dump, set fire, exploded later.

In the Malame area, a German staff car, buildings and a power station were strafed by the third formation, and the radio station at Selino Castelli was hit.

Light bombers scored bull's-eyes on a soap factory at Hierapetra and on a causeway near the Bay of Spinalogna. Other planes hammered shipping in Mirabella bay.

In addition to the crew, the car usually carries at least one officer on inspection and a medical officer to attend the ailing.

A typical stop for the car is a gravel pit outside Grandview, which is enjoying a boom because of the presence of a steam shovel and a work train. The men rushed for the car, letting the gravel digging go. In the twenty minutes the car was here an Army doctor gave every man a medical inspection and Sergeant Klos sold whatever was wanted. Mostly the men wanted all the candy and cigarettes they could carry.

"There isn't any way to figure the average business," Sergeant Klos says. "They'll buy all I have and anything I can get. The only problem is how much I can carry."

Ammunition dumps were blown up and tented camps, gun positions and radio and power stations were shot up by the attacking airmen, the announcement said.

Seventeen Allied planes were listed as missing.

Light bombers scored direct hits on factories at Ierapetra and Heraklion.

Well over 100 planes took part in the raid on Crete and the attacking bombers ranged all over the island, the British radio declared in a broadcast picked up at New York today by CBS.

In a communique broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded here by the Associated Press, the Italian High Command said that ten attacking planes were shot down by Crete's anti-aircraft defenses and that many more were damaged. The attack, it added, was "unsuccessful."

Band Concert Thrills Natives On South Pacific Island Outpost

KIRIWINA ISLAND, The Trobriands, July 11 — (AP) (Delayed) —Via boat and airmail—Kiriwina had its first band concert today and an air raid couldn't have created a greater sensation.

Never before had band instruments been seen here. Some of the natives — not many — had heard phonographs or radio music.

The band, of the American Army task force which had occupied the island June 30, assembled in a meadow.

Cooper-skinned natives, goggle-eyed at the sight of the shiny instruments, gathered around.

At the first note, the natives jumped. A few backed away in momentary fear. Others stood transfixed, open mouthed. Then they all broke into delighted squeals and shrill chatter but quickly became silent to listen.

Hundreds of other natives came on the run as the brassy notes carried to neighboring villages.

Closest attention went to the drummer, Frank L. Mace of Tarrytown, N. Y.

A vaudeville magician, Mitchel Dyszel of Somerville, N. J., topped off the band concert with some sleight-of-hand and, speaking from theater and night club experience, declared the natives the ideal audience.

The performance by Dyszel, a first class private and Army mail clerk, gave him all the prestige among the natives of a major general. He said he thought he might even become king if he had ambitions that way.

Trailer Store on Rails Does Big Business Along the Alaska Road's 500 Miles

ON THE TRAVELING PX, Alaska Railroad, July 24 (AP)—Sergeant Klos has just sold to about eighty customers $400 worth of candy, cigarettes and hair tonic in twenty minutes. This is an average piece of business for Tech. Sgt. George E. Klos of St. Paul and his traveling store.

The sergeant is buyer, manager and chief clerk of this store, which is nothing more than a trailer mounted on rubber-tired wheels with flanges to keep them on the tracks of the Alaska Railroad, over which it is pulled by a truck motor unit. But for several hundred men up and down the 500 miles of track which connect the interior of Alaska with the sea, his store is the only place where they can spend money.

The sergeant and his helpers, Corp. Warren C. Harding of Baltimore and Pvt. Merle Hill of Cozad, Neb., believe their store on wheels is the only one of its kind in the world. They further think they do a higher per capita business with their limited stock of sweets, tobaccos, shaving creams, toothpaste and writing paper than any other PX in business.

The PX car moves along the twisting railroad at a neat twenty-five miles an hour and stops everywhere that a soldier member of the railroad unit may be.

What's Behind The War News

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Remote as may be the day of complete Allied victory in Europe and great as the cost to achieve it, a pattern of disaster for the Axis on all fronts was fast expanding at this week-end.

From Russia to Sicily, from the Solomons to the Kurile Islands of Japan and in the Aleutians, the Axis was feeling the weight of United Nation power, the implacable will to force unconditional surrender. The Nazi U-boat menace in the Atlantic seemed more than ever a scotched snake. Even on the east Asia front the war took on new life. Allied bombers ranged over Japanese bases in obvious preliminaries for major combined sea-air-ground action to wrest Burma and its black gold stores of oil from enemy control.

Moving with breath-taking speed, Allied forces in western and central Sicily leaped forward in giant strides. At the week end, they were well on the way to clearing most of the great Italian island, vital as a base for operations against the European continent itself, of a collapsing foe. Only Britain's 8th army veterans on the east flank still were meeting bitter Nazi resistance on the Catania sector—and there were reports that the American 7th army, its heavy fighting done in the west, was moving toward Catania to give the British a hand.

Out of reported Hitler-Mussolini conferences came no word of consolation for Italians that greater German intervention yet might save them from Allied vengeance. By every report from European listening posts Il Duce pleaded in vain for help. Hitler could not spare the men, nor the planes from Russia or his bomb-blasted home front to rescue his Italian accomplice. There were rumors, indeed, that he had offered Mussolini only the doubtful consolation of refuge in Austria if the war-sick Italian people turned upon him. And from Spain came dispatches saying Italians demonstrated in the streets of Italy's great cities, shouting "peace!"

British naval guns and bombs began feeling out the Italian main-

Big Jap Plane Tender

Enemy Destroyer Damaged in So... Jersey Flyers in New Guinea H...

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July ... (A. P.).—American bombers sank a 9,000-ton Japanese seaplane tender off Bougainville Island and damaged one of four escorting destroyers on Thursday in disrupting another Japanese attempt to reinforce hard-pressed positions in the central Solomons.

The action was announced today in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique which also told of new air battles that cost the Japanese twenty-three planes destroyed or damaged, against loss of six American planes.

A large force of bombers—Liberators, Avengers, and Dauntless —was sent after the seaplane tender and destroyers. The attackers were provided strong fighter cover, for their goal was deep in enemy territory.

While the fighters took care of intercepting Zeros, shooting down five, our bombers pressed their attack in the face of intense anti-aircraft fire from the warships. We lost three fighters.

The tender was one of the Nisshin class which carries about fourteen planes and repair facilities.

Japs More Cautious Now.

Apparently badly hurt by the Allies' incessant bombing and strafing attacks in the Salamaua-Lae area, the Japanese in recent days have sent stronger air fleets to protect their holdings.

Yesterday a total of sixty Japanese fighters attempted to intercept heavy bombers attacking Bogadjim, twenty miles south of Madang, New Guinea. The bombers were escorted by P-38's, however, and the enemy force "was decisively defeated and dispersed," the communique said. Thirteen Japanese planes were shot down, five more probably were destroyed and five others destroyed or damaged. Two of our fighters were lost.

While the P-38's were fighting the Zeros, our bombers dropped sixty-one tons of fragmentation and demolition bombs on Bodadjim, starting large fires.

attacked the area in support of ground troops.

Barges Destroyed.

Liberator bombers, with Kittyhawks as fighter cover, in sweeps along the Japanese supply lines off New Guinea and New Britain, destroyed twelve enemy barges and destroyed or damaged thirteen others.

Japanese barges attempting to run supplies to Kolombangara Island, across Kula Gulf from New Georgia, encountered Allied light surface units — probably PT boats. Two of the four barges in the formation were set afire.

There were no reports on American ground positions at Munda, New Georgia, but the communique said dive-bombers

A brief sea attack put Crotone, at the eastern portal of the Gulf of Taranto, between the toe and heel of the Italian mainland boot, under fire. London speculation was that the raid was to cripple the roundabout rail transportation system for reinforcements bound to Sicily. That may be true, but there are other possible explanations.

Across the gulf, in the depth of which still lurks part of Italy's scattered and ineffective sea power, lies Apulia, the "heel" province of Italy. From Apulia's eastern shore it is less than 50 miles to Albania and the Greek peninsula. In Allied hands Apulia would be of incalculable value in pressing an air attack to pave the way for a surge across the eastern Mediterranean to knock at the Aegean Postern gate of the Nazi fortress of Europe.

Allied seizure of airfields in Apulia would place heavy bombers within 600 miles of the Rumanian oil fields. Those fields are the Achilles heel of the whole German war effort. And Apulia is vulnerable.

A recent National Geographic bulletin describes that flat and indefensible southeast corner of Italy as a "thirsty" land. Water was sold by the barrel like wine until the completion in 1939 of a vast 1,000 mile aqueduct system to feed nearly 200 reservoirs. That life-giving water distribution system is an inviting target Allied bombers have not yet assailed, perhaps for humanitarian reason.

From the Italian heel province Allied air power could carry forward a long swift stride against Italy, the Greek peninsula, Adriatic and Aegean shipping and even against Germany's war factories south and east of Berlin or against Berlin itself. This latter would supplement the air raids now carried out against Berlin from British bases.

But most of all, from Apulia bases, big bombers could range easily to the Plotsti center of Rumanian oil sources in mass attacks calculated to blast them out of action and leave Hitler's whole mechanized war machine gasping for fuel and lubricating oils.

A crushing air blow at Ploesti and its oil wells and pipelines perhaps would do more to help Russia destroy the German army on her front and shorten the struggle in Europe than any other one thing the Allies could do.

36 RECEIVE AWARDS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 2.—(Delayed)—(AP) Thirty-six officers and men of the Thirty-Second division, tanned and fit again, received Distinguished Service Crosses, Silver Stars and Purple Hearts from their new commanding general today for acts of heroism performed over seven months ago in New Guinea.

Maj. Gen. William H. Gill, presented medals in an impressive ceremony to men like Col. Alexander J. McNab, of Burlington, Vt., who personally led a patrol against an enemy pillbox and took part in the final successful grenade assault which wiped out the enemy.

The citations were "for extraordinary achievement while participating in 200 hours of operational flight missions in the Southwest Pacific Area during which hostile contact was probable and expected, these operations consisting of long-range bombing missions against enemy airdromes, harbors, shipping and naval forces."

Fliers to whom was given the Oak Leaf Cluster, and covering periods, included: Capt. Harry A. Staley of Geneseo, N. Y., Aug. 21-Jan. 31, and Capt. Jay Zeamer of Orange, N. J., April 5, 1942-Jan. 27.

Army, Navy Flyers Hit 4 Other Vessels

United States Navy and Army bombers working as a team pounced on a Japanese task force last Tuesday in the Solomons and sank a light cruiser and two destroyers and left another in a probably sinking condition. The action, reported in a communique dated Wednesday, is recounted by Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson in this delayed dispatch.

JUL 29 1943

By Leif Erickson

Guadalcanal, July 20 (Delayed). One Japanese light cruiser and two destroyers were sunk and a third destroyer hit and probably sunk today in a six-hour assault by navy and army bombers on a task force which presumably was trying to deliver major reinforcements to the Vila garrison on Kolombangara Island.

The battle lasted from 12.30 A. M. until dawn and ranged from inside Vella Gulf northward to the coast of Choiseul Island. The scene was approximately 250 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

Four Planes Lost

We lost two navy Avenger torpedo planes and two army Mitchell B-25 medium bombers in four separate attacks. Besides sinking three ships and possibly another, the aircraft damaged two more destroyers and a fairly large troop transport and possibly hit another.

Assault started with the discovery of the task force bearing southward from Bougainville Strait. The alarm was given by a navy Catalina patrol bomber piloted by Lieut. Harold Johnson, 26, of Hayward, California.

Destroyer Blows Up

Lieut. (j. g.) Malcolm Miller, of Muncie, Ind., an Avenger pilot from Purdue's campus, hit one destroyer amidships. The magazine blew up and sank within three minutes.

The confirmed credit for sinking the light cruiser goes to the crew of a Thirteenth Air Force Mitchell bomber piloted by Capt. Charles Brown, of Waldo, Ark., who played for Shreveport in the Texas League and Jersey City in the International.

After sighting the task force of eleven ships Johnson tracked the enemy southward for hours, while bomber striking forces were being organized.

Off the northern coast of Kolombangara, the task force divided. Two, possibly three, transports headed into the gulf; three cruisers and four destroyers patrolled to the north and east of Kolombangara as a covering force for the transports.

Couldn't See Destroyers

"I thought the transports were going into Vella Gulf alone," Pilot Johnson said. "I figured they were carrying reinforcement troops and I thought they would be cold turkey to bomb. What I didn't know, because one can't see too clearly from a plane at night, was that destroyers were escorting the transports.

"We went into a bombing run, dropping bombs at a fairly low altitude. Boy, the ack ack that hit us was terrific. They gave us everything they had. I'll never go after cold turkey out here again. Next time I'll know better."

Both Believed Hit

Bombardier Hugh Cooper, 23, of Bishop, Cal., released the bombs, however, and one hit a transport superstructure about midship. The crew believed the second transport was hit on the stern.

Johnson's plane had a huge hole in one wing, but he swung back on the trail to cover the oncoming bombers.

The first flight of Avengers hit about 2.30 A. M. Miller laid a heavy bomb right in the middle of a destroyer from masthead level. A tremendous explosion shattered the ship and it sank in three minutes.

Cruiser Crippled

One destroyer stopped dead and the light cruiser limped on at ten knots with an oil slick gleaming in the moonlight.

Miller said he apparently caught the destroyer by surprise because he didn't note any ack ack. The other ships opened up with a curtain of fire on the other Avengers. Two planes failed to return.

Big Fires Quickly Die Out

Lieut. William Rowbotham, of Long Beach, Cal., who observed three hits, said the resulting fires were big but didn't last long.

Mitchell bombers struck next, working over the targets until 4.30 A. M. The ships by then were scattered and were zig-zagging at high speed outside Vella Gulf. This flight did not claim any hits.

Cruiser Found Again

Guided by Lieut. Com. Carl Schoenweiss, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Catalina Squadron Commander Captain Brown, about 7 A. M., located the light cruiser previously hit by Miller's Avenger making only two knots off Choiseul Island.

"I got a near-miss off the stern on the first run," Brown said, "and on the next I got a hit amidship. There was a terrific explosion and water and debris flew 200 feet up. The ack-ack was pretty hot."

Japs Stick To Guns

Brown made his run at masthead height. Flying back and forth, he saw the cruiser settle by the bow with the stern rising high. Brown said the Japanese still manned the ack-ack guns when the stern was almost vertical.

One bomber failed to return from each B-25 flight.

Meanwhile, a medium force of Liberator heavy bombers unloaded forty-five tons of explosives on Kahili. The crews observed one large explosion and three fires burned for two hours. One Liberator failed to return. In exchange, the bombers shot down a two-engined enemy night fighter.

Down 110 Planes in 6 Weeks

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS in the South Pacific, July 18 (Delayed) (AP).—In the six weeks prior to July 16, 13th Air Force airmen shot down 110 Japanese planes and in the same period twelve Army planes were lost in combat. Five pilots were recovered. The best day was June 16, when Army pilots bagged forty-two Japanese planes off Guadalcanal and lost one.

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 24 (A. P.).—Major Edward Cragg, a Lightning pilot from Greenwich, Conn., destroyed two Japanese fighters in the Bogadjim fight and thus became the newest ace in the New Guinea area with five enemy planes to his credit. Major Cragg, however, was saddened by the crash of a fellow pilot.

"We were flying top cover for the bombers when we saw a tight formation of five Nips, with others well scattered," Major Cragg said. "I saw a fighter with in-line engines, possibly a Messerschmitt type. I dived at him at an indicated speed of 500 miles per hour. I closed in and gave him a hell of a burst and his left wing caught fire. He rolled over on his back and spun into the ground.

"My second victim was on his back, maneuvering away from another P-38, when I caught him from above and shot into his tail. His entire tail assembly blew off and he flopped over and crashed. I had a hard time pulling out of this dive, barely missing the trees.

"Then I gave cover to a P-38 which had caught fire. The pilot tried to land in the river but hit the bank instead and the plane exploded.

"The bombers finished their job shortly after we hit the Japs. Our battle lasted half an hour."

Jersey Flyers Shine.

Other Lightning pilots scoring in the battle over Bogadjim included:

First Lieut. John Jones of Paterson, N. J., who destroyed two enemy planes.

First Lieut. Paul Stanch of Audubon, N. J., who got his sixth Zero today and damaged another.

First Lieut. Andrew Kis of Woodridge avenue, Nixon, N. J., who destroyed one Zero.

The general commanding the bombers congratulated the fighter commander after their return, saying:

"Our boys certainly like this daylight bombing with fighters taking care of the opposition. Maybe those Japs will learn sometime that they can't fool around with P-38's.

Enemy Reports

The enemy frequently sends out reports to induce replies that will reveal information of military value. None of these reports is confirmed.

Domei, Japanes news agency, asserted today in a Tokio broadcast that Japanese bombers sank a large destroyer, a medium-tonnage transport and more than ten landing craft and damaged two large transports in an air raid on Rendova Harbor, off New Georgia Island Wednesday. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

The broadcast added that on Thursday the Imperial Navy special service destroyers and their protecting air force engaged in reinforcing Solomon Island bases encountered an Allied air force of ninety planes in the same area and in the ensuing battle shot down nine of the planes. One of the Japanese special service ships was sunk, the radio added.

The Japanese also claimed that a bombing force escorted by fighter planes shot down ten American aircraft in raids on Hengyang and Lingling in Hunan province, China, and at Kienow in Fukien province yesterday. The broadcast added that a heavy cloud formation prevented them from bombing the Lingling airfield.

ARGENTINE REPORTS

Buenos Aires, July 24 (A. P.).—An official report disclosed today that although Argentina's foreign trade continued to show a favorable balance both tonnage and values were reduced during the first half of 1943 to the lowest level in recent years.

The total in the first six months was 1,323,764,000 pesos (about $330,941,000), a 16.4 per cent drop as compared with the first half of 1942.

The report said the shortage of vessels, brought on by the war, was responsible for the decline. The nation's favorable trade balance for the period was 436,707,000 pesos.

Great Britain retained her traditional place as Argentina's best buyer by taking 29.1 per cent of the nation's exports, followed by the United States with 24.4. The United States continued as the leading supplier of Argentina's industrial needs.

Book-Burning Reported

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 24 (AP). Private reports from Buenos Aires today said the Gen. Pedro Ramirez Government of Argentina had burned a number of books, including copies of Joseph E. Davies' "Mission to Moscow" in an effort to destroy alleged Communist propaganda.

The reports said the Claridad and Problemas publishing houses were raided by police and their stocks of "objectionable books" seized and burned.

Brig. Gen. Jacomy to Confer With Allied Officials About Post

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, July 24 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Henri Paul Jacomy, newly appointed general officer in charge of the French Antilles and French Guiana, arrived in San Juan by plane today for conferences with American and British military and naval officers prior to taking over control at Martinique.

General Jacomy will confer with Admiral John H. Hoover, commander of the Caribbean Sea Frontier, who negogiated with Admiral Georges Robert early this month the terms of the latter's surrender of authority as High Commissioner.

Clare Luce Column Dropped by Army Paper

New Delhi, July 24 (A. P.).—The United States Army Public Relations Office announced today that the Army weekly newspaper for the China-Burma-India theater, the CBI Roundup, was discontinuing the column "Here the Gavel Fell," written exclusively for the paper by Representative Clare Luce.

The column was dropped after the War Department had pointed out that it contains the writer's views on controversial political questions and therefore has no place in an Army publication.

Americans Raid Docks, Boats At Mandalay

[By the Associated Press]

New Delhi, July 24 — American Mitchell medium bombers attacked Japanese river shipping and the dock area at Mandalay in Burma yesterday, scoring near hits on five large river boats and starting fires among enemy storage buildings, a United States communique reported today.

Another formation of Mitchells attacked the enemy supply center of Myingyan, fifty-five miles southwest of Mandalay, where explosions and big fires caused the returning airmen to believe they had destroyed an ammunition dump. Heavy American Liberators dumped more than thirteen tons of explosives on a Japanese airfield south of Kawlin.

Rolling Stock Damaged

Delayed reports told of heavy destruction caused by American raids on enemy targets in Burma two days ago, particularly to rolling stock and rail yards at Ywataung and at Sagaing.

Observers reported that a Japanese barracks area at Meiktila "no longer was in evidence," apparently having been wiped out by previous bombings.

RAF fighters in widespread sweeps over the same territory yesterday damaged more than 100 Japanese river craft, a British communique said.

Beaufighters also damaged factory buildings, while a flight of Hurricanes shot up motor vehicles and army huts and a formation of Blenheims bombed Japanese quarters at Buthedaung. Rounding out an active offensive day, RAF planes first bombed and then machine-gunned enemy positions at Theizang and Kalemyo.

All the planes returned.

LONDON, SUNDAY, JULY 25-(AP)-ALLIED TROOPS HAVE CAPTURED TRAPANI, BIG ITALIAN NAVAL BASE IN WESTERN SICILY, REUTERS REPORTED TODAY FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA.

THE PORT OF TERMINI, 20 MILES EAST OF PALERMO, ON THE NORTHERN COASTAL ROAD LEADING TO MESSINA, ALSO WAS REPORTED CAPTURED.

BY LEON BRANHAM

AT A UNITED STATES BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, SUNDAY, JULY 25-(AP)-JUBILANT AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESS CREWMEN HOPPED OUT OF THEIR VIRTUALLY UNSCATHED MACHINES LAST NIGHT AFTER AN UNPRECEDENTED 1,800-MILE FLIGHT AND DECLARED THEY HAD LEFT THE GERMAN U-BOAT BASE AT TRONDHEIM, NORWAY, A MASS OF FLAMING OIL TANKS SHOT THROUGH WITH ACCUMULATING EXPLOSIONS THAT SENT BLACK SMOKE SPIRALING SEVERAL THOUSAND FEET.

JUL 25 1943

EVERY PLANE RETURNED TO THIS BASE, AND ONLY TWO OR THREE HAD SUFFERED EVEN MINOR DAMAGE FROM THE ENEMY.

PHOTOGRAPHS CONFIRMED THAT THE SUBMARINE REPAIR SHOPS, DOCKS AND OTHER NAVAL INSTALLATIONS WERE HEAVILY DAMAGED BY THE MANY THOUSANDS OF POUNDS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES. THE PICTURES SHOWED THAT NOT A SINGLE BOMB FELL IN THE HARBOR, ALL LANDING FULL ON THE TARGETS.

"WE REALLY HIT IT ON THE BUTTON," SAID INTELLIGENCE OFFICERS.

CREWS SAID THEY ENCOUNTERED FAIR FLAK BUT ONLY ABOUT 25 ENEMY FIGHTERS CHALLENGED THEM, THE MAJORITY HESITANT TO TANGLE CLOSELY WITH THE FORTRESSES.

THE FLIGHT WAS THE LONGEST FORTRESSES HAVE MADE IN ANY WAR THEATER. THE LONGEST PREVIOUS ONES BY BRITAIN-BASED AMERICAN BOMBERS WERE RAIDS ON THE LAPALLICE AND BORDEAUX U-BOAT BASES, EACH A ROUND TRIP OF ABOUT 1,400 MILES.

THE TRONDHEIM GROUP WAS LED BY MAJ. GALE HOUSE OF SIOUX FALLS, S.D., THE SQUADRON LEADER WHO FLEW IN A BOMBER PILOTED BY 1ST. LT. ROY ATHOMPSON OF BOISE CITY, OKLA.

"NOTHING HAPPENED UNTIL WE CROSSED THE NORWEGIAN COAST," SAID HOUSE. "THEN A FEW GERMAN FIGHTERS MET US BUT THEY DIDN'T PRESS HOME THE ATTACK. VISIBILITY WAS GOOD. THE AIR WAS CLEAR AND NICE.

"THE TARGET GOT A HELL OF A PASTING. I SAW SMOKE BILLOWING UP ABOUT 3,000 FEET FROM ALL OVER THE TARGET AREA. OVER THE AREA I SAW ONLY ABOUT 15 FIGHTERS."

SECOND LT. WILLIAM H.GRODY OF SYRACUSE, N.Y., NAVIGATOR, COMMENTED:

"IT WAS JUST A SCRUB TEAM THE GERMANS PUT UP AGAINST US TODAY. THE FEW FIGHTERS WE SAW WERE NOT VERY COURAGEOUS. THEY'D START TO COME IN AT US BUT THEN BREAK OFF BEFORE GETTING CLOSE."

JUL 25 1943

FIRST LT. GEORGE G.BYRNES OF ST.PETERSBURG, FLA., CO-PILOT OF A FORTRESS SKIPPERED BY 1ST. LT. WILLIAM R.MCPHERSON OF HOUSTON, TEX., SAID:

"THE GERMANS HAD SMOKE POTS GOING ALL AROUND THE SUBMARINE SHOPS. BUT I DIDN'T SEE A SINGLE BOMB STRIKE THE WATER. THEY ALL LANDED ON THE TARGET, FOLLOWED BY TREMENDOUS GRAY AND HEAVY BLACK SMOKE WHICH BILLOWED UP THOUSANDS OF FEET."

A85

SGT. ROBERT SHAFER OF WILLIAMSPORT, PA., RADIO OPERATOR-GUNNER, WAS IMPRESSED MOST BY THE "BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY."

ONE OF THE FEW FORTRESSES DAMAGED WAS THE "PICCADILLY COMMANDO," PILOTED BY 1ST. LT. TIM TYLER OF LOWELL, MASS. FLAK SHELL EXPLODED IN THE BOMBER'S NOSE. THE NAVIGATOR SUFFERED A MINOR BURN ON THE RIGHT KNEE AND THE BOMBARDIER, FROM SPOKANE, WASH., WAS KNOCKED DOWN AND STUNNED MOMENTARILY. ANOTHER SHELL DAMAGED ONE ENGINE.

A DAMAGED OIL LINE IMPAIRED ONE ENGINE OF THE "AMERICAN BEAUTY," PILOTED BY 1ST. LT. JOHN W.JOHNSON OF EAST ST.LOUIS, ILL. THE BOMBER STRAGGLED FROM THE FORMATION ON THE HOMEWARD TRIP. THE SHIP WAS ATTACKED BY A FEW ENEMY FIGHTERS BUT SHARPSHOOTING GUNNERS FOUGHT THEM OFF. SGT. DONALD W.CROSSLEY OF WELLSBURG, W.VA., WHO ALREADY WAS CREDITED OFFICIALLY WITH SHOOTING DOWN SEVEN GERMAN PLANES, CLAIMED HIS EIGHTH.

JUL 251943

SECOND LT. E.L. MOODY OF SAN BENITO, TEX., BOMBARDIER ON THE FORTRESS "EXTERMINATOR" PILOTED BY 2D. LT. FRED HODGES OF ONEONTA, N.Y., SAID THE FLAK WAS FAIR AND "I SAW ONE BOMB SCORE A DIRECT HIT ON AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERY NEAR THE SUB SHOP."

NORWAY RAID SEPARATE

BY GLADWIN HILL

A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, JULY 24-(AP)-"EASY" WAS THE VERDICT OF FLYING FORTRESS CREWS WHO, IN THE FIRST AMERICAN RAID ON NORWAY, TODAY PROVED THAT THEY COULD CARRY A DEVASTATING BOMB LOAD ALMOST THE DISTANCE TO PRAGUE AND FARTHER THAN BERLIN.

ASIDE FROM THE LONG 1,000-MILE GRIND OVER WATER ALONE, THE CREWS OF THE FIRST SHIPS OVER THE TARGET REPORTED LITTLE DIFFICULTY.

THEY ENCOUNTERED A BRIEF ANTI-AIRCRAFT BARRAGE OVER THE TARGET AND TWO LONE GERMAN FIGHTERS FOR ABOUT THREE-QUARTERS OF AN HOUR AFTER THEY LE[illegible] COAST OF NORWAY. THAT WAS ALL.

WITH NORWAY BOMBING

AT A UNITED STATES BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, SUNDAY, JULY 25-(AP)-"SKIPPER," A BLACK COCKER SPANIEL, FLEW TO NORWAY YESTERDAY ON THE USAAF'S BIG BOMBING RAID.

HE ACCOMPANIED HIS MASTER, CAPT.JAMES M.SMITH OF AUSTIN, TEX., A VETERAN OF 25 MISSIONS.

"SKIP HAD A GOOD TIME AND GAVE NO TROUBLE," SAID SMITH. "HE HAD THE RUN OF THE PLANE AND SPENT MOST OF THE TIME IN THE BOMB BAY AND RADIO ROOM. WHEN WE WENT OVER THE TARGET HE WAS RIGHT UP IN THE NOSE."

SINCE THE FLIGHT WAS AT A RELATIVELY LOW LEVEL "SKIPPER" NEEDED NO OXYGEN MASK. HE WAS 300 HOURS FLYING TIME IN FLYING FORTRESSES TO HIS

BOMBARDIER LIEUTENANT PAUL DREILING, VICTORIA, KAS., A FORMER AUDITOR FOR THE CITIES SERVICE COMPANY IN CLEVELAND, WHO ALSO WAS MAKING HIS FIRST RAID, SAID: "ONE OF THOSE FIGHTERS REALLY CAME AT US. THE FELLOWS SAID FOR ME TO SHOOT HIM QUICK AND YOU HAVE NOT GOT LONG. I GOT OFF ABOUT 20 ROUNDS AT HIM. THERE REALLY WAS A LITTLE BIT OF EXCITEMENT TO IT."

ONE OF THE DAY'S CLOSE CALLS CAME TO TAILGUNNER SERGEANT DARREL BALKE, PORTLAND, ORE., A FORMER SAILOR MAKING HIS TWELFTH RAID WITH A BRAND NEW TOOTHBRUSH STUCK IN HIS COVERALL POCKET "JUST IN CASE WE LAND AWAY FROM HOME."

A PIECE OF FLAK RIPPED DOWN THROUGH THE RUDDER INTO THE TOP OF HIS TAIL TURRET AND WHIZZED OUT THE TURRET WINDOW SHATTERING THE GLASS.

"I GOT ABOUT FIVE GRAINS OF IT IN MY NECK," HE SAID. "I'VE BEEN RUBBING THE STUFF OUT ALL THE WAY HOME."

"IT WAS A FAIRLY EASY TRIP--REALLY ABOUT THE WORST THING WAS SITTING DOWN SO LONG," SAID PILOT LIEUTENANT COLMAN ASHER, OF 1818 OAKDALE, HOUSTON, TEX.

JUL 25 1943

ASHER'S CO-PILOT WAS LIEUT. FRED FRASSE, FORMER AUTO DEALER OF WEST NEW BRIGHTON, STATEN ISLAND, N.Y., ALSO MAKING HIS FIRST RAID.

"BEFORE WE HIT THE FIGHTERS FRASSE WAS SAYING IT WAS TOO EASY AND HE WANTED SOME ACTION," LAUGHED TOP TURRET GUNNER SERGEANT JAMES JONES, PLATTSMOUTH, NEB.

"OH NO, I WAS NOT," DEMURRED FRASSE, "THAT WAS MAERKI"--WAIST GUNNER SERGEANT GEORGE MAERKI, 2,18 EIGHTY THIRD STREET, JACKSON HEIGHTS, N.Y.

NIGHT LEAD BOMBER (FOLO LONDON)

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, JULY 24-(AP)-A FLYING FORTRESS, THE FIRST UNITED STATES WARCRAFT TO MAKE A FORCED LANDING IN SWEDEN IN THIS WAR, SKIDDED TO A HALT IN A BOG 15 MILES FROM THE NORWEGIAN BORDER AFTER PARTICIPATING IN TODAY'S BOMBING OF NORWAY.

THE CREW HAD A CLOSE CALL. THE PLANE NIPPED OFF THE TOPS OF A COUPLE OF TREES AND JUST MISSED A 10,000 VOLT HIGH TENSION POWER LINE.

WITHIN A FEW MINUTES AFTER BELLY-LANDING IN THE MUD WITH ONLY SLIGHT DAMAGE TO THE PLANE AND NO INJURIES TO THE CREW, SWEDISH SOLDIERS WERE ON THE SPOT. AND AFTER FIVE OR TEN MINUTES AT LEAST 200 SWEDISH SOLDIERS HAD GATHERED.

ONE MEMBER OF THE CREW ASTOUNDED THEM BY SPEAKING PERFECT NORWEGIAN.

JUL 251943

THE HEAVY BOMBER WAS REPORTED TO HAVE LANDED BECAUSE OF A FUEL SHORTAGE. IT CARRIED NO BOMBS, INDICATING THEY HAD BEEN DROPPED ON TARGETS IN NORWAY.

FIFTEEN MINUTES AFTER THE LANDING THE 10 CREWMEN, STILL DRESSED IN HEAVY FUR CLOTHES, WERE TAKEN TO AN UNDISCLOSED MILITARY CAMP FOR INTERNMENT. THEIR NAMES WERE NOT DISCLOSED BY AUTHORITIES.

THE AMERICAN ATTACK SET OFF A 75-MINUTE ALARM IN OSLO, NORWAY'S CAPITAL, THIS AFTERNOON. IT WAS THE FIRST ALERT IN THREE MONTHS. NO BOMBS WERE REPORTED DROPPED IN THE CAPITAL AREA, HOWEVER.

A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, JULY 24-(AP)--QUICK THINKING BY A GEORGIA COLONEL MADE THE FIRST AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESS RAID TODAY ON NORWAY AN OUSTANDING SUCCESS.

THE FORTRESSES MADE A 8,200 MILE ROUNDTRIP TO POUND THE IMPORTANT GERMAN METAL PORT OF HEROYA ON THE EAST COAST OF NORWAY WITH HIGH EXPLOSIVES.

JUL 25 1943

WHEN THE REACHED THE TARGET AN OVERCAST COVERED THE AREA UNTIL THEY WERE RIGHT OVER THEIR OBJECTIVE BUT QUICK ACTION BY COLONEL WILLIAM MASON REID, ALBANY,GA., WHO LED THE ATTACK AS COPILOT OF THE FORTRESS FLAGSHIP SAVED THE DAY. REID FLYING AS COPILOT TO CAPTAIN TOLAD SARGENT,PORTSMOUTH,N.H., AND NEWTON HIGHLANDS,MASS., SWUNG THE FORMATION AROUND IN A 180 DEGREE TURN AND APPROACHED THE CLUSTER OF BUILDINGS AT THE PORT FROM THE OTHER SIDE PERMITTING A GOOD BOMBING RUN.

"IT WAS A DAMN LONG GRIND BUT IT WASNOT IN VAIN--WE GOT IN A GOOD MACK AT THE TARGET," REID SAID."THAT IS SIGHTSEEING THE HARD WAY," HE LAUGHED IN COMMENTING ON THE LONG FLIGHT.

JUL 25 1943

"I ONLY SAW THREE BOMBS IN THE FIRST GROUP OFF THE TARGET," CAPTAIN HAROLD WESLEY, 86,526 SHERMAN WAY, VAN NUYS,CALIF., SAID. WESLEY, A FORMER MOVIE CAMERAMAN IN HOLLYWOOD , WAS THE FIRST CAMERAMAN TO FLY OVER GERMAN IN AN AMERICA RAID LAST FEBRUARY AND IT WAS HIS FIFTH PICTURE SHOOTING EXPEDITION IN THE FORTRESS "DOLLY MADISON" PILOTED BY CAPTAIN FRANK WARD, MADISON,N.H.

THE TWO GERMAN FIGHTERS WHO INTERCEPTED THE FORTRESSSES ONLY AS THEY LEFT THE NORWEGIAN COAST AFTER BEING OVER THE COUNTRY AN HOUR TRIED TO COMPENSATE FOR THEIR TARDINESS WITH HEADON "SUICIDE" ATTACKS WHICH TURNED SUICIDAL FOR AT LEAST ONE OF THEM.

"WE GOT TWO HEADON ATTACKS," CAPTAIN SRRGENT SAID," ONE CAME IN AT US AND I COULD SEE THE CANNONSHELLS BURSTING CLOSER EACH TIME UNTIL HE DOVE DOWN UNDER US.

THE SECOND ONE CAME IN SO CLOSE COLONEL REID HAD TO PULL

UP THE SHIP TO DODGE HIM," HE ADDED.

THE FIRST FIGHTER WENT ON TWOARD THE FORTRESS PILOTED BY LIEUTENANT ELLISON MILES, LIBERTY,TEX. WHEN THE GERMAN WAS 800 YARDS OUT BOMBADIER SERGEANT WINSTON TOOMEY, GETTYSBURG,DAKOTA, STARTED SHOOTING AT HIM.

"I KEPT ON SHOOTING UNTIL HE WAS ONLY ABOUT 100 YARDS OFF AND STARTED GOING DOWN UNDER US," TOOMEY SAID. THEN HIS TAILGUNNER SERGEANT EMILE KIRWIN, MOBILE,LA., FINISHED THE DUEL AND SAW THE GERMA GO SPIRALLING DOWN INTO THE OCEAN.

JUL 25 1943

THE FORMATION HIT THE METAL PORT IN THREE GROUPS EACH ONE HALF HOUR APART.

SOME OF THE BOMBS APPARENTLY LANDED IN A FACTORY DYNAMITE DUM AS FLAMES ROARED A HALF MILE HIGH.

SOME OF THE FLIERS IN THE FIRST GROUP OVER THE TARGET WHICH RETURNED TO BASE INTACT AND WITHOUT EVEN A MAN INJURED ESTIMATED THERE MIGHT HAVE BEEN AS MANY AS A DOZEN DIFFERENT PAIRS OF GERMAN FIGHTERS, EACH OPERATING BY ITSELF.

NAVIGATOR LIEUTENANT DAVID BESBRIS, RAYNHAM,MASS., WHO WAS MAKING HIS FIRST RAID. "IT REALLY TURNED OUT PRETTY EASY."

"IT WAS AN EASY TRIP, "PILOT LIEUTENANT DONALD G PARKER, VALPARAISO,IND., COMPLETING HIS TWELFTH RAID SAID . "BUT THOSE GUYS SURE CAME CLOSE. ONE WHIZZED RIGHT THROUGH THE SPOT WHERE HER WE WERE A FEW SECONDS BEFORE. I COULD SEE THE EXPRESSION ON THAT GUYS FACE. BUT WE REALLY BLASTED THE GARET.

"I EXPECTED IT WOULD BE A LOT WORSE THAN IT WAS.

IN THEIR APPARENT DRIVE TO ENCIRCLE THIS PIVOTAL GERMAN POSITION, THE FIGHTING RED TROOPS ALSO PRESSED IN MILE-BY-MILE FROM BOTH THE NORTH AND SOUTH, PARRYING FIERCE GERMAN COUNTER ATTACKS AND INFLICTING HEAVY LOSSES IN MEN AND EQUIPMENT.

THE RUSSIAN COMMUNIQUE REPORTED ADVANCES ALL ALONG THE FRONT, FROM IZYUM ON THE DONETS RIVER NORTH TO THE OREL SECTOR, BUT THE BIGGEST GAINS WERE RECORDED AT OREL AND BELGOROD.

ON THE BELGOROD FLANK, IN THE AREA WHERE THE GERMANS MADE GAINS WHEN THEY FIRST LAUNCHED THEIR FIRST OFFENSIVE JULY 5, THE RUSSIANS REPORTED THEY HAD CAPTURED SEVERAL TOWNS, KILLED 1,000 GERMANS AND DISABLED 15 TANKS.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THE GERMANS HAD COUNTERATTACKED THE SOVIET COLUMN ADVANCING NORTH OF OREL TOWARD BRYANSK BUT THAT THE NAZIS WERE REPULSED SEVERAL TIMES IN FIERCE FIGHTING AROUND THE TOWN OF BOLKHOV WHICH THE RUSSIANS CAPTURED YESTERDAY. GERMAN LOSSES INCLUDED A REGIMENT OF INFANTRY AND 43 TANKS. AN ADDITIONAL NINE TANKS AND 16 GUNS WERE LISTED AS CAPTURED.

JUL 25 1943

IN ANOTHER SECTOR OF THE OREL FRONT NOT IDENTIFIED IN THE COMMUNIQUE, THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY KILLED 1,500 GERMANS AND SMASHED 28 TANKS AND EIGHT GUN CARRIERS.

A20

SOUTH OF OREL, TWO BATTALIONS OF GERMANS WERE WIPED OUT AND 14 TANKS WERE DESTROYED AS RUSSIAN TROOPS CAPTURED SEVERAL FOOD AND SUPPLY DEPOTS.

WHAT WERE DESCRIBED IN THE COMMUNIQUE AS "ENGAGEMENTS OF LOCAL IMPORTANCE" CONTINUED IN THE REGION SOUTH OF IZYUM AND SOUTHWEST OF VOROSHILOVGRAD IN THE DONETS BASIN.

THE WAR BULLETIN SAID ONE GERMAN COUNTERATTACK WAS REPULSED WITH A LOSS TO THE NAZI ARMY OF 15 TANKS AND 600 DEAD. IN FOUR DAYS OF FIGHTING IN THE VOROSHILOVGRAD AREA THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY KILLED SEVERAL THOUSAND GERMANS AND DESTROYED LARGE QUANTITIES OF NAZI WAR MATERIAL.

ACTION ALSO WAS REPORTED IN THE AREA AROUND KRASNODAR ON THE KUBAN RIVER, IN THE NORTHWEST CAUCASUS. THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY HAD IMPROVED THEIR POSITIONS THROUGH ATTACKS SOUTHWEST OF THAT CITY.

JUL 25 1943

BY DANIEL DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 24-(AP)-BATTLE FRESHMEN ON THE EVE OF THE SICILIAN INVASION, SOLDIERS OF THE UNITED STATES 45TH DIVISION, DRAWN FROM ALMOST EVERY STATE OF THE UNION, CAN NOW BE REGARDED AS ONE OF THE FIGHTINGEST OUTFITS THAT EVER CONQUERED FOREIGN SOIL.

IF THEY ARE A SAMPLE OF THE SCORES OF DIVISIONS STILL TRAINING IN "BACK HOME" MANEUVERS, IT MEANS THAT GENERAL GEORGE C.MARSHALL AND HIS STAFF HAVE GONE A LONG WAY TOWARD SOLVING THE PROBLEM OF TRANSFORMING MILLIONS OF CIVILIANS INTO COMBAT-WISE TROOPS CAPABLE OF MEETING THE BEST OF THE AXIS ARMIES ON AT LEAST AN EQUALITY BASIS.

UNDER STUDIOUS, BESPECTACLED MAJOR GENERAL TROY MIDDLETON, FORMER DEAN OF LOUISIANA STATE UNIVERSITY, THE "FIGHTING FORTY-FIFTH" WENT INTO SICILY AS THE RIGHT FLANK OF THE SEVENTH ARMY AND INSIDE OF ONE WEEK WON BATTLE HONORS AT SCOGLITTI, SAN CROCE CAMERINA, COMISO, RAGUSA, AND VITTORIA.

CAPTURING COMISO AIRDROME, ONE OF SICILY'S "BIG TEN", WAS A HARD STRUGGLE BUT THE 45TH SMASHED UP THE NARROW WINDING MOUNTAIN ROAD TO 3,000 FEET AND SLUGGED IT OUT WITH GERMAN ARMORED CARS AND TANKS. THAT WAS THE FIRST ENEMY AIR BASE TO FALL TO THE ALLIES.

BY "PLUS THREE"--THE FOURTH DAY OF THE INVASION--THE ALLIES HAD GAINED COMPLETE AIR MASTERY BUT UNTIL THEN THE FORTY-FIFTH'S ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNNERS COVERED THEMSELVES WITH FAME IN THE EYES OF THEIR COMRADES. THE OUTFIT'S ACK-ACK WAS AS PRECISELY DEADLY AGAINST THE GERMAN AIR FORCE INTRUDERS AS ANYWHERE ON THE ALLIED FRONT.

IN TAKING RAGUS THE 45TH CLAIMED TO BE THE FIRST DIVISION TO LIBERATE CAPTURED AMERICANS IN SICILY. TWO AMERICAN BOMBER GUNNERS, SERGEANTS DAVID FLEMING OF JACKSON,MICH., AND ALLEN B.HUCKABEE OF TEMPLE, TEX., SHOT DOWN ON A RAID JULY 7, WERE FREED BY THE FIRST BUNCH OF 17 SOLDIERS IN TWO JEEPS TO ENTER THE TOWN.

A WHITE FLAG HUNG ON A CHURCH STEEPLE SIGNIFIED THE SURRENDER AT SAN CROCE CAMERINA AS THE GARRISON OF 1,000 ITALIANS THREW AWAY THEIR ARMS AND QUIT UNDER THE POUNDING OF THE FORTY-FIFTH'S DIVISIONAL ARTILLERY AND NAVAL GUNS MORE THAN FOUR MILES AWAY.

B22 G5

JUL 25 1943

THE ITALIAN PRISONERS OF WAR OUTNUMBERED ABOUT FIVE TO ONE THE AMERICANS WHO CAPTURED THEM.

RAGUSA'S FALL WAS PERHAPS THE MOST FABULOUS OF ALL THE 45TH'S SICILIAN VICTORIES. SEVENTEEN G.I.'S AND AN "ARMORED FORCE" OF TWO JEEPS WENT IN AND OCCUPIED THIS VITAL SOUTHEAST TOWN ON THE MAIN SOUTHERN HIGHWAY. NEARLY TWO DAYS LATER THE FIRING OF CANADIAN ARTILLERY WAS HEARD AND THE MAPLE LEAF TROOPS MARCHED IN TO SHARE RAGUSA'S ANCIENT GLORY.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JULY 24-(DELAYED)-(AP)-WITHIN RECENT WEEKS SEVERAL FIGHTER PILOTS OF THE FIFTH AIRFORCE HAVE HAD SOME HAIR-RAISING ESCAPES IN THE LOSS OF THEIR PLANES EITHER IN BATTLES WITH THE JAPANESE OR THROUGH MECHANICAL DIFFICULTIES OF BAD WEATHER.

THESE RARE LOSSES USUALLY ARE ANNOUNCED IN GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUES IN THE WORDS "ONE OF OUR FIGHTERS FAILED TO RETURN."

JUE 251943

ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE RECENT ESCAPES WAS THAT OF FIRST LIEUT. DAVID PARDY, OF GOSHEN, N.Y., WHO BAILED OUT OF HIS P-38 ONLY 200 FEET ABOVE THE GROUND AND ESCAPED WITH NOTHING WORSE THAN A BAD SCARE.

"I SAW MY PLANE HIT THE GROUND AND BURN EVEN BEFORE THE PARACHUTE OPENED, I WAS THAT CLOSE TO THE GROUND," PARDY SAID.

"I HIT THE TOP BRANCHES OF A TREE BEFORE MY 'CHUTE OPENED BUT THE 'CHUTE CAUGHT IN THE TREETOP AND SAVED ME FROM STRIKING THE GROUND WITH TERRIFIC FORCE. IN THE AFTERNOON SOME NATIVES FOUND ME. I SLEPT IN A NATIVE HUT THAT NIGHT, WITH ALL THE NATIVES TRYING TO USE PART OF MY PARACHUTE AS COVER. THE NEXT DAY I REACHED AN AUSTRALIAN CAMP."

THE HOLY FATHER IS ALSO AWARE THAT INJURING OF THE MYSTICAL BODY OF CHRIST WEIGHS MUCH HEAVIER THAN THE DESTRUCTION OF STONE HOUSES OF GOD, AND THAT DISREGARD OF THE LAWS OF HUMANITY AND MORALITY, OF JUSTICE AND OF PERSONALITY, WEIGHS HEAVIER THAN A VIOLATION OF CULTURAL MONUMENTS.

ALL THIS, HOWEVER, DOES NOT MAKE IT UNJUSTIFIABLE ONCE AGAIN TO RAISE ONE'S VOICE ON THIS VERY OCCASION OF THE BOMBING OF ROME, AND TO ADVOCATE WITH DEEP LOVE THE PRESERVATION OF THE MOST EXALTED ATTRIBUTES THAT DISTINGUISH HUMAN AND CHRISTIAN DIGNITY, AND TO ADVOCATE THIS TO BOTH BELLIGERENT PARTIES.

6-THE HOLY FATHER IS FATHER OF ALL. HE HAS IN THIS WAR TRULY ESPOUSED THE CAUSE OF THE GOD-GIVEN HUMAN AND CHRISTIAN RIGHTS THAT ARE SO SERIOUSLY VIOLATED, OF THE FREEDOM OF RELIGION AND RELIGIOUS OBSERVANCE, OF THE FOUNDATIONS OF A TRULY NEW ORDER. MILLIONS OF CATHOLICS LOOK UP TO THE REPRESENTATIVE OF CHRIST, WHOSE INTENTIONS ARE BUT TRUTH AND LOVE, WHO EMBRACES ALL WITH THE SAME SYMPATHY, WHOSE WORDS AND WHOSE HEART DO NOT END AT CATHOLICS, BUT CALL AND CALL UPON ALL CHRISTIANS, EVEN THOSE WHO ONLY SOMEHOW ARE STRIVING FOR LIGHT IN THE MIDST OF DARK TIMES, TO NEW IDEALS AND NEW EFFORTS FOR A BETTER FUTURE, FOR A WORLD OF PEACE AND HOPE, OF FREEDOM AND FAITH, FOR THE WELFARE OF HUMANITY AND TO HONOR HIM WHO HOLDS ALL IN HIS HAND, GOD, THE INFINITELY MERCIFUL BUT ALSO INFINITELY JUST.

THESE VERY THOUGHTS WERE CLEARLY AND UNAMBIGUOUSLY EXPRESSED IN HIS LATEST ADDRESS DEALING WITH THE SITUATION OF THE WORLD, THE ADDRESS TO THE CARDINALS IN JUNE, 1943, ON THE OCCASION OF HIS NAME DAY. IN THIS ADDRESS THE HOLY FATHER ONCE AGAIN ADVOCATED THE CAUSE OF OPPRESSED NATIONS, THE OBSERVATION OF THE LAWS OF HUMANITY IN PUBLIC LIFE IN THIS DAY WHEN ATTACK AND REVENGE ARE COMPETING WITH EACH OTHER, AND, FINALLY, THE OBSERVATION OF THE LAWS OF HUMANITY IN AIR WARFARE.

UNDATED TRAPANI-TERMINI

JUL 251943

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TRAPANI GAINED PROMINENCE AS A NAVAL BASE AS EARLY AS 260 B.C., WHEN ITS HARBOR FACILITIES WERE IMPORTANT TO THE CARTHAGINIANS IN THE FIRST PUNIC WAR.

IT WAS PREVIOUSLY KNOWN AS DREPANA, DERIVED FROM THE GREEK WORD FOR SICKLE, BECAUSE OF THE SICKLE-SHAPED PENINSULA ON WHICH IT IS LOCATED ON THE NORTHWESTERN TIP OF SICILY.

THE ROMAN FLEET WAS DEFEATED NEAR THERE IN 250 B.C., AND THE STRUGGLE TO OBTAIN POSSESSION OF THE PORT ENDED IN THE DECISIVE ROMAN VICTORY OFF THE AEGATES ISLANDS IN 241, WHICH LED TO THE CONCLUSION OF PEACE.

UNDER THE NORMAN KINGS, AT THE TIME OF THE FIRST CRUSADE, TRAPANI BECAME A PLACE OF IMPORTANCE; IT WAS A RESIDENCE OF THE ARAGONESE KINGS. IN THE 16TH AND 17TH CENTURIES IT WAS STRONGLY FORTIFIED.

TRAPANI IS 47 MILES WEST OF PALERMO AND ABOUT 16 MILES NORTH OF MARSALA, BOTH OF WHICH ARE IN ALLIED HANDS. ITS POPULATION IS 60,000 TO 70,000.

CAPITAL OF THE PROVINCE OF TRAPANI AND SEAT OF A BISHOP, ITS CHURCHES CONTAIN INTERESTING WORKS OF ART. IN THE VICINITY IS THE CHURCH OF THE MADONNA DELL' ANNUNZIATA, A MUCH-FREQUENTED RESORT OF PILGRIMS CONTAINING A FAMOUS STATUE OF THE MADONNA. THE CITY ALSO HAS SOME FINE GOTHIC AND BAROQUE PALACES.

ITS INDUSTRIES COMPRISE SHIP-BUILDING, SALT WORKS, FISHERIES AND THE WORKING OF CORALS, CAMEOS, MARBLE AND ALABASTER.

TERMINI, ALSO REPORTED CAPTURED BY THE ALLIES, WAS FOUNDED IN 408 B.C. BY THE CARTHAGINIANS. IT WAS TAKEN BY ROMANS IN THE FIRST PUNIC WAR. SCANTY REMAINS OF BUILDINGS OF ROMAN TIMES, INCLUDING BATHS, AN AMPHITHEATER AND A SO-CALLED CURIA, EXIST IN THIS TOWN 20 MILES EAST OF PALERMO. OUTSIDE IT ON THE SOUTH ARE CONSIDERABLE REMAINS OF TWO ROMAN AQUEDUCTS.

OTHER FEATURES OF TERMINI ARE THE CHURCH OF SANTA MARIA DELLA MISERICORD AND THE OSPEDALE DEI BENFRATELLI, CONTAINING A MUSEUM OF ANTIQUITIES AND SOME PAINTINGS BY SICILIAN MASTERS.

Mussolini Out, King and Badoglio Rule Italy; New Military Regime Says 'War Continues'; Fascists' Ouster May Be First Move for Peace

JUL 26 1943

Peace Appeal Seen with End Of Duce's Rule

LANDSTROM

LONDON, Monday, July 26.—(AP) Benito Mussolini's 21 years of Italian dictatorship and international bullying ended sensationally last night when King Vittorio Emanuele deposed him and installed Marshal Pietro Badoglio as head of a military government "to stand against those who have wounded the sacred soil of Italy."

A royal proclamation announced that Vittorio Emanuele had assumed supreme command of all Italian forces. It was preceded by an announcement that the King had accepted the "resignation" of the man whom Prime Minister Churchill termed Adolf Hitler's "tattered lackey."

However, crushing Axis defeats in Sicily and swiftly rising Allied threats to the Italian mainland supported the belief that Mussolini actually was dismissed by the King.

Called from Retirement

The 71-year-old Marshal Badoglio, called out of retirement to become the new premier, said:

"The war continues."

Mighty Allied war fleets roaring over Italy, increasing defections in the Fascist party ranks, rumored disagreements between Mussolini and Hitler, and reports of violence and sweeping arrests preceded the announcement.

World-wide repercussions, especially among the German and Japanese allies, were expected.

There was no news concerning Mussolini's whereabouts, or what his status would be under the new government. Reports from Bern, Switzerland, that he and his cabinet members had been arrested found no confirmation here.

Premier Badoglio signed a proclamation saying the King, who assumed supreme command of all Italian armies, had given him "full powers" to act at a time when onrushing Allied armies were sweeping across Sicily toward the Italian mainland.

Crack in Axis Front

Il Duce's fall, with the shadow of defeat and disaster hanging over his country, was widely regarded here as a crack in the solid front of the Axis.

A British authority said: "It's terrific news, but Italy still is in the war and it must be empnasized that the conditions remain the same—Italy can get out of the war only by unconditional surrender."

Mussolini' resignation—probably forced upon him—after more than a score of years of iron-handed rule, probably means the death of the Fascist party he headed.

Significantly, the Rome radio which broadcast the proclamations by the King and Premier Badoglio did not sign off with the usual Fascist party anthem, Giovinezza. It played only the Royalist hymn. The broadcasts were recorded by the Associated Press.

This sensational turn in Italy's fortunes was a shattering blow to the Axis partners, Germany and Japan. No immediate comment was forthcoming from Berlin and Toyko.

Official Sources

There was speculation that Adolf Hitler might march German troops into war-weary Italy where Premier Badoglio warned all Italians that any attempt to interfere with his orders would be crushed.

Rome's announcement began:

"The King-Emperor has accepted the resignation as head of the government, prime minister, and secretary of state, submitted by His Excellency Caveliere Benito Mussolini, and has appointed as head of the government, Prime Minister, and secretary of state, His excellency Caveliere Pietro Badoglio, marshal of Italy."

The announcement was made in German, Spanish, and French at various intervals for hours tonight by the Rome radio.

The majority view in London is that Italy won't be in the war much longer.

Premier Badoglio, a close friend of the King, came out of retirement to take over the government. Mussolini had dismissed him as chief of staff Dec. 6, 1940, and during Il Duce's long term the old soldier had been konwn as a Fascist by compulsion and a Royalist by choice.

Calls for Support

He issued a proclamation tonight telling Italians:

"On orders of His Majesty the King, I am taking over the military government of the country with full powers."

He called on all Italians to rally around the King.

"The war continues," he added. "Italy, grievously stricken in her invaded provinces and in her ruined towns, maintains her faith in her given word, jealous of her ancient traditions."

King Promises Recovery

The King in his proclamation said Italy, "by the valor of its armed forces and the determination of all its citizens, will find again a way of recovery."

These sensational announcements, recorded by the Assocated Press, may be the opening Italian peace moves.

They came as Allied troops were sweeping across Sicily off the southern Italian mainland, less than a week after the 500-plane American air attack on the Fascist capital of Rome, and amid reports that widespread peace demonstrations had occurred in Italy's main cities.

An official British statement was expected tonight on this startling political and military turn in the war.

JUL 26 1943

'No Recrimination,' Says King

"No consideration must stand in our way and no recrimination must be made," said the King's proclamation. "We must stand against those who have wounded the sacred soil of Italy."

The "resignation" of the bald, squat boastful Mussolini ended a career that began with the Fascist march on Rome in 1922. The international and domestic standing of Mussolini, however, has steadily deteriorated since he led his country into war in the summer of 1940.

Mussolini was conferring with Adolf Hitler last Monday when the huge American air attack was delivered on rail and airport installations at Rome.

Mussolini apparently appealed to Hitler for aid in resisting the Allied onslaughts which clearly are aimed at knocking Italy out of the war as quickly as possible.

If that was his plea he undoubtedly failed in his mission. The King's proclamation, which in effect dismissed the originator of Fascism, followed.

Long Out of Favor

Premier Badoglio, long out of favor with the Fascists, had been reported a likely successor to Mussolini once the country decided to sue for peace.

The resignation of Mussolini, whose empire vanished under converging Allied troops, also apparently ended the Fascist party as it had been constituted.

The King's proclamation specifically said that the resignation of Mussolini as premier "and secretary of the Fascist party" had been accepted.

(U. S. government monitors advised the Office of War Information that the Rome radio, after broadcasting the King's proclamation, played the Royalist anthem in full but did not play the Fascist hymn, Giovinezza.

(Nor was the Fascist era used in dating the King's proclamation.)

The little King and Badoglio took over Italy's destinies at a fateful moment.

People War Weary

Naples, Leghorn, Rome, San Giovanni and other Italian cities are heavily damaged by Allied bombers. The people are war-weary and hungry.

Italian morale is at a new low because of sweeping Allied successes in Sicily where whole Italian divisions are surrendering, and the civilians are welcoming Allied troops in unprecedented friendship demonstrations.

Sicilians and Italian soldiers have been profuse in condemning the dictator Mussolini and their German allies.

The number of German troops in Italy is not known. Their presence long has been a factor in consideration of any Italian suit for a separate peace. But there have been recent reports that Hitler does not intend to waste too many troops trying to defend Italy.

For several hours after the announcement the Berlin radio had made no comment.

This suggested that propagandists in Germany had been caught flat-footed by the King's action.

Prestige Blow to Axis

No matter what course Italy's new leaders take in the war the departure of Mussolini is a prestige blow to the Axis throughout the world, particularly in the Balkans where both Italian and German occupation troops have been unable in two years to crush organized military resistance.

Mussolini had been losing his grip on the Italians for years. The fact was quite obvious in the last year. Il Duce had not spoken to his people as a war leader since last December, about a month after the Allied landings in North Africa.

In the last few weeks almost hysterical efforts have been made to buttress the Fascist order. One of the chief moves was to employ the rhetoric of Carlo Scorza, Fascist party leader under Mussolini. Scorza's name was not even mentioned in Rome broadcasts tonight.

The news was jubilantly received in London. One British authority said:

"Mussolini has crashed and with him the whole Fascist regime must almost inveitably come to ruin.

"It seems, therefore, that Italy's days as a member of the Axis and consequently as a fighting partner at Germany's side are numbered.

"No other construction of the astonishing sequence of events is possible."

Sees Democratic Spirit

Another said:

"It is significant that Badoglio was called prime minister, for the very title suggests that the Italian people desire now, above all things, to return to democracy and to end dictatorship."

Sir Frederick Kenyon, president of the "Friends of Free Italy" organization here, said "we hope that this means Italy is coming out of the war and that Italians will be given a chance of choosing their own government free of Germany and free of Fascism."

Mussolini's eclipse came just four days before his 60th birthday, July 29.

Last spring he had changed his entire government and the Fascist bureaucracy in a final effort to retain his grip on Italy.

His son-in-law, Count Galezzo Ciano, was dismissed as foreign minister, and Musolini took over that portfolio.

Ciano was made minister to the Vatican, and there have been reports that he recently attempted to get the Pope to mediate for peace.

The amazing rapidity with which the Allied tropos conquered all of Africa, toppled Pantelleria, Lampedusa, and other Mediterranean islands, and then swarmed over Sicily these all contributed to Mussolini's downfall.

Morale Sagging

The Italian leader had withdrawn his troops from Russia, and some from the Balkans in an attempt to stave off the Allies. But the superiority of Allied equipment and sagging morale among Italian troops has made Sicily's conquest an imminent possibility.

Once the northeastern tip of Sicily is cleaned up the Italian mainland will be only two miles from the Allied troops, and Sicily itself will serve as a huge air base to smash remaining Italian strength should Italy choose to fight on.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have demanded the unconditional surrender of Italy, and Allied leaflets dropped over Italy—along with the bombs that crippled railway yards in Rome Monday — have said flatly that the Italians must overthrow Mussolini and his Fascists or "suffer the consequences."

The Rome radio's failure to play the Fascist anthem tonight was an indication that the King has decided to try to divert Italy of Fascist trappings.

Fascists Fear Nazis

Mussolini's Fascist leaders publicly had rejected the Roosevelt-Churchill demand that Italy quit the war with a declaration that Italy still would be a battleground if the country sought a separate peace. In other words, the Fascists quite obviously fear Germany's reaction to any Italian peace feeler.

Despite the uplift in spirit caused here by the news, there was a tendency among many people to restrain their general rejoicing. Their idea is that Mussolini's exit from the scene does not automatically mean a military surrender of Italy.

It would appear that the King and Marshal Badoglio have two alternatives, both of them risky. If they sue for peace Germany may turn on them with all the ferocity of a jilted partner. If they decide to continue the war against the Allies, then Italy's cities will be at the mercy of nearby Allied air power.

Italians were told by the British radio that Mussolini was "thrown out by the will of the Italian people," but that this was not enough to save Italy.

"The Germans and any Italian government that keeps Italians bound to Germans must be eliminated," the radio said.

BERLIN RADIO SEES MUSSOLINI AS 'ILL'

First Nazi Comment Arrives Five Hours Late—Official Statement Lacking

LONDON, Monday, July 26 (AP)—The Berlin radio in its first comment on the Mussolini resignation—made almost five hours after Rome's first announcement—quoted the Italian-Stefani news agency as saying that the change of Italian Government was believed to have been owing to the Premier's health. Premier Mussolini "has been ill for some time," Berlin said.

Nazi-Badoglio Deal?

London, Monday, July 26 (AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm today, quoting the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet, said the Rome radio had announced that German Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring, German commander in Italy, and German Ambassador von Mackensen were negotiating with Marshal Badoglio in Rome.

At the time of receipt of this message London auditors listening to the Rome radio had not heard such a report.

Algiers French See Hint Of Peace in Duce's Fall

Rome Statements Remind Them of Petain Armistice Decree

ALGIERS, July 25 (AP).—Typical of French reaction here to the Rome announcement tonight of Benito Mussolini's fall was the comment of one Frenchman that they had "exactly the same tone as Marshal Petain's proclamation announcing the armistice" (in June, 1940).

While Marshal Pietro Badoglio was quoted as saying the war would continue, the phraseology of his statement, as well as King Victor Emmanuel III's, stressed the bravery with which the Italian armed forces had fought and the grievous wounds of the motherland.

Despite the lateness of the hour, Frenchmen here began thronging hotel lobbies and standing outside newspaper offices.

Probably the only Frenchman in Algiers who appeared unexcited was General Charles de Gaulle. His voice betrayed no emotion when a correspondent roused him from sleep with a telephone message and gave him the news.

"Very interesting" was his reply.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 25—(AP) The news of the resignation of Premier Mussolini of Italy was received here tonight direct from the Rome radio.

Soviet Told of Mussolini's Exit

LONDON, Monday, July 26 (AP)—The Moscow radio, always slow to comment on foreign affairs, broadcast only a bare announcement of the Mussolini resignation today. A Moscow announcer heard by the Soviet monitor read the bulletin at slow dictation speed for provincial papers in the Soviet Union to copy.

SWEDISH-ITALIAN PHONE COMMUNICATIONS CUT

STOCKHOLM, July 25 — (AP) The telephone communications between Sweden and Rome were broken tonight, international operators reported.

The break was revealed when Swedish newspapers tried to check reports of Mussolini's resignation.

It was not known whether the break was made on the German or Italian exchange.

Sensation In Argentina

Buenos Aires, July 25 (AP)—News of the ouster of Mussolini as chief of Italy's Government created a profound impression today in Argentina, whose population includes an estimated 3,000,000 Italians and descendants of Italians.

Newspapers sounded sirens to inform the public while the radio and press carried sample accounts of the Rome radio announcement that King Vittorio Emanuele named Pietro Badoglio to succeed the Duce.

Foreign Minister Storni declined immediate comment. Other official circles were likewise silent but followed developments with great interest as they awaited diplomatic information from their own Embassy in Rome.

'Beginning Of The End,' Says Mackenzie King

Ottawa, Ont., July 25 (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King said tonight that the resignation of Premier Mussolini of Italy, as announced by the Rome radio, "appears to be the beginning of the end of the Fascist regime."

"It is too soon to say what effect Mussolini's dismissal will have on Italy's withdrawal from the war, but it is certainly a step in the right direction," the Prime Minister added.

BADOGLIO KNOWN AS MYSTERY MAN, FASCIST HATER

New Italian Premier Resigned as Chief of Staff of Army in 1940.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tall and tough Field Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italy's new prime minister, has long been noted for his anti-fascist and anti-German attitude which made him suspect by Mussolini's henchmen.

Long a close personal friend of King Victor Emanuel, the 72-year-old marshal has for the most part held aloof from politics and on Dec. 6, 1940, resigned as chief of staff of the Italian army. Eleven days after his resignation, which was quickly accepted by Mussolini, German troops poured across the border into Italy proper.

Since that time he has been a man of mystery. Reports drifting to the outside world, however, had him under arrest by the Mussolini government and one of the leaders of a movement to obtain a separate peace for Italy.

World War Conquest

His friendship with the King dates back to the time of Italy's participation in the first World war in which his outstanding achievement was the taking of Sabotino mountain. For this the King made him the Marquis of Sabotino.

Since that time the friendship between the two men has grown and even after his resignation from the general staff the Marshal was frequently called into conference by the King.

In June of last year he wrote a letter to the King complaining bitterly of the subordination of the Italian general staff to the German command. The German practice in Africa and Sicily of leaving Italian troops to fight hopeless rearguard actions while the Germans seized all available transport and fled is not expected to have increased the Marshal's liking for the Germans.

Ruthless Methods

His military career has been marked by ruthlessness in dealing with opponents, particularly in the Ethiopian campaign in which marauders were brought before military tribunals and later executed enmass by machinegun fire. His hard bitten tactics may shortly become evident if his government is seriously opposed by the Blackshirts.

At one time he held an honorary membership in the Fascist party as a result of his Ethiopian conquest but he was never accepted into the party's inner circle.

It is believed that only his enormous prestige with the King and his popular following among the people and the army stayed the hand of Mussolini's government in dealing seriously with him.

First Break Seen Near In Axis Battle Front

Emanuele's Fortunes Shifting

(By th

e Associated Press)

Gray little Vittorio Emanuele III, the King who lost out in the backwash of Italy's dubious victory in World War I, apparently was swept back into power on the tidal wave of Italy's sure defeat in World War II.

The secret of his emergence at all from the two decades of obscurity is apparently the high esteem in which he was held by his people despite the Fascist curtailment of his power which left him barely puppet power.

Posed With Mussolini

Even Mussolini, who towered head and shoulders physically above the 74-year-old King, was forced to borrow heavily upon that popularity in the frequent dark days of recent months.

At first Mussolini posed with little Emanuele beside him on a balcony and other stagy appearances. But in recent months the king set out on his own touring of bomber centers and morale-shaken sections where the populace greeted him with cheers.

1941 and 1943—His armies are mauled in Libya and Russia.

1942-43 — Disaster befalls his troops in North Africa; his African empire is swept away; his Italian mainland cities suffer devastating aerial bombardments; his Mediterranean islands swept in invasion path; Rome is bombed.

July 25, 1943—Resigns as premier.

What of Duce's Fate? Germany Offers Haven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What becomes of Mussolini?"

There was nothing from Rome last night to indicate what fate awaits the bulgy dictator who rose to supreme power by the castor oil his adjutants forced down the throats of his political enemies.

It was announced merely that the little Italian king had accepted Mussolini's resignation. There apparently were no words from Mussolini in farewell to those who for 21 years shouted "Duce, Duce," when he appeared, arms akimbo, on his famous balcony.

There was no reason to believe he was in custody, though he and Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italy's new "strong man," long have been unfriendly. Badoglio scored Mussolini from the start of his career.

Should he decide to flee Italy, the fallen dictator was handy to the neutral soil of Switzerland. It was either that, or appeal to his friend Adolf Hitler for sanctuary in Germany.

Italy's 'Stab-In-The-Back' Move Beginning Of Il Duce's Fall

Mussolini Seemingly First A Winner, Bit By Bit Saw His Empire Torn To "Shreds And Tatters"

JUL 26 1943

C.S. CRANMER

[By the Associated Press]

New York, July 25—"Now the die is cast, and our will has burned our ships behind us."

It was June 10, 1940, and Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, chin outthrust and fists resting on hips in characteristic truculent pose, was announcing the famous "stab in the back"—Italy's entrance into the Second World War in what apdpeared to be the dying hours of Frahce.

Never did a gamble on war seem so sure, and yet yet in that cast of the die began the downward spiral of Italy's fortunes which resulted in the Allied invasion of Italy's homeland in Sicily two short weeks ago and the swift crash of Mussolini's personal career.

Mussolini went out less than a week after Rome was bombed on Monday.

Confident And Sure

Confident and sure, Mussolini told his people in 1940 that "we are descending to battlefields against the plutocratic, reactionary democracies."

"Fighters of land, sea and air, Black Shirts of the revolution and of the legions, men and women of Italy, of the empire and of the Kingdom of Albania, listen!" he declared in his theatrical manner.

But one order—"conquer"—he shouted with a sweeping gesture, "wings over and enflames hearts from the Alps to the Indian Ocean."

French Were Abandoning Paris

The French, beaten, were abandoning Paris that day. "Nice, Savoy, Corsica, Tunisia," Fascist mobs had clamored.

It looked as though Mussolini might easily win what he had demanded.

He stood at the top of his career. He had bluffed his way through and won Ethiopia in 1935-36 in spite of the British Empire and the fifty-two nations who had imposed economic sanctions.

Through 1936 to 1939 he had seemingly duped French and British statesmen and the non-intervention committe, poured men, planes and supplies into Spain and seen his man win in a bitter civil war.

With ease he had annexed Albania to the Italian crown in 1939.

Cowed All Opposition

For eighteen years Mussolini's strong-arm Fascisti had cowed all opposition. As a result of his successes, he was at the peak of his popularity.

To Italians Mussolini looked like a winner. The objective, he told them, was to "break the chains that strangle us in the Mediterranean." It looked as though Fascism was as dynamic as Mussolini said—that the war was as good as over and that Italians could share in the victory without very much fighting. Mussolini looked smart.

By contrast, the realities proved great and tragic for Italy.

Shackles Instead Of Laurels

Far from obtaining any of her coveted objectives, Italy soon came shackled in the Mediterranean more securely than ever, her fleet not daring to come out of hiding for months after the first disastrous encounters with the British.

Her empire was torn into "shreds and tatters," as Prime Minister Churchill promised. No Italian hearts on the shores of the Indian Ocean leaped to conquer—Italian Somaliland and Eritrea were soon gone. Haile Selassie, whom Mussolini once could mimic, mockingly took his throne in Ethiopia again on May 5. The gems of the empire, Cirenaica and Tripolitania, eventually followed. Far from being a bright new jewel in the empire's crown, Tunisia became the dusty dead-end of a long retreat which in its entirety spelled the greatest Italian defeat since Caporetto in World War I.

Instead of Mussolini's "Mare Nostrum," the Mediterranean became an Allied lake—an avenue for invasion of the Italian homeland's long and vulnerable coastline. The sea's southern shores became the bustling bases of swarms of British and American warplanes which hammered Italian cities with their deadly cargoes day and night.

Unprepared, war weary, badly led, Italy proved herself far from dynamic in big-league war. Though Mussolini had boasted of 8,000,000 bayonets, he was unable to mobilize and arm anything like that number of troops when it came to the showdown.

Not until June 21, eleven days after Italy's declaration of war and four days after France asked for an armistice, was Italy able to begin a general offensive. Fighting against the dispirited, disorganized, hopeless French, the Italian army managed to penetrate from one to 20 miles along a 120-mile front before hostilities ceased on June 25.

Italian Morale Ebbs

No sorrier sight was presented than the ill-clad, outnumbered, freezing and starving Italian peasants drafted into Mussolini's legions who met humiliating defeat at the hands of the little nation of Greeks—whom Mussolini mistakenly believed he had bought off when he began his invasion on October 28, 1940.

Humiliatingly rescued by the German armored columns which plowed through the mountain passes of Yugoslavia and Greece in April, 1941, Italian morale ebbed to low when Marshal Erwin Rommel and his African Corps went to Africa in an attempt to save Italy's empire for her.

Italian hearts sank when a flood of German missions, experts, technicians, police, airmen and soldiers poured through the Brenner Pass, and began infiltrating into all the important Government departments, teaching the Italians how things were done in Berlin, virtually taking over her propaganda services, even taking over the command in Africa.

Nazis Virtually Occupy Italy

In order to prevent a collapse, to keep Italy in the Axis and in the war it had become necessary for Germany virtually to occupy Italy.

It became evident that even if the Axis won the war Italy would be the loser to the traditional foe the German, who had occupied the peninsula in centuries past.

Mussolini, who had originated modern Fascism, had seen it spread to Germany, where it overshadowed his own movement. Hitler ,the pupil, became the master, and Mussolini the gauleiter.

The only ambitions Italy had realized had been by grace of the Fuehrer.

Italy Played As Pawn

Nice, Savoy, Corsica — Italian troops finally occupied these, but not until the shadow of Allied invasion was falling upon Italy itself with the landing of Allied troops in French North Africa. Until then Hitler had preferred to balance France and Italy, one against the other, trying to win French collaboration, use of the French fleet, in return for his protection against Italian claims.

Dalmatia, other parts of Yugoslavia, fell into Mussolini's satchel. But the Duke of Spoleto, the Mussolini-sponsored "King" of Croatia, never dared take his throne in the restless Balkans. where hundreds of Italians met their death every month.

Realizes She Was Tricked

As Italian killed, wounded and captured neared the 750,000 mark, including more than 600,000 in Africa, it became evident that Italy had been tricked into the war. The story—it was confirmed in part by Count Galeazzo Ciano, then Foreign Minister — was that Italy warned Germany in the early months of 1939 that the Italian army would not be ready for war for at least three years. Hitler reassured the Italians on that point, and their "pact of steel," a military alliance, was signed on May 22, 1939.

Hitler's word to the Italians was no more reliable than it had been to his intended victims, however, and a few months later he began his war in Poland. It soon became evident that Italy would be dragged in, either to share in the victory or because Mussolini believed Fascism would rise or fall with Hitler.

No Change In Italian Alignment

Mussolini, who agitated for Italy's entrance into the first World War on the side of the Allies, made no revolutionary change in the Italian alignment in European affairs from the day of his march on Rome, when he formed his government on October 30, 1922, until the Ethiopian affair in 1935.

In 1934 he had mobilized troops at the Brenner Pass and the threat of war apparently prevented Hitler from seizing Austria at the time of the assassination of the Austrian Chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss. In 1935 Mussolini joined Britain and France in the Stresa Front to counter Hitler's creation of a huge army by conscription.

The Axis Is Born

But angered by opposition to his Ethiopian invasion, he turned to Germany as his only available friend in 1936. Involved in Spain, a German threat to Britain and France was a welcome diversion for Mussolini. Count Ciano went to Berlin, and on October 24 Hitler announced the formation of a Nazi-Fascist front. The two governments agreed to "conduct common action to their advantage," and the Axis was born.

Once headed down the road with Hitler there was no turning back. The path led to the Anti-Comintern Pact, which Italy joined in 1937, outright military alliance in 1939, war, Italy's involvement on the Russian front in the "crusade against Bolshevism" to which she was believed to have sent no more than 100,000 men, and war with the United States in 1941.

Rumors Of Italian Panic

As the Allies drove East and West in Africa in 1943 and finally gained complete possession of the southern shore of the Mediterranean, rumors multiplied of Italian panic, of Italian peace feelers of dissident army, monarchist and other elements in Italy willing to displace Mussolini.

The general shakeup of the Cabinet by Mussolini on February 6, 1943, in which he ousted his son-in-law, Count Ciano, and a long list of other officials, aroused new speculation that Ciano may have shown himself not unwilling to play the role of Allied agent in a "receivership" for the Fascist regime. Reported fallen from German favor, he was appointed Italian Ambassador to the Vatican.

Crushed Opposition

So thoroughly had Mussolini crushed all leadership of opposition in his long years of power, however that it was necessary to discount heavily all such rumors.

This was so, even when Allied bombings of Italy and her stepping-stone islands grew to full power and the invasion of Sicily caused the roads of Italy to be lined with hungry, frightened, war-weary refugees, as the roads of France had been on June 10, 1940.

DUCE'S DOWNFALL MAJOR FEAT FOR NEW COMBAT ARM

Eisenhower's Psychological Warfare Scores Biggest Triumph.

JUL 26 1943

By JAMES GALLAGHER

NEW YORK, July 25—(AP) Mussolini's downfall today appeared to be the first major victory of the war for the Allied fourth combat arm, "psychological warfare."

Striking through the air by leaflet and radio and silently through underground channels from Africa, Allied psychological warriors infiltrated Fascist Italy with the skill of Commandos.

Since the original landings in North Africa, a psychological warfare department has held a place on General Dwight D. Eisenhower's combined staff along side of the land, sea and air arms. Its operations have been under the command of an American army officer and its staff has been composed of a mysterious collection of radio experts, newspapermen, professors, psychologists, linguists and shadowy figures who fell into no particular classification and whose movements were cloaked with the greatest secrecy.

Singular Success at Start

Their first operation in the original landings was crowned with singular success thanks to the work of the State department's Robert Murphy and Lieutenant General Mark Clark's daring submarine trip to Africa to confer with pro-Allied French generals previous to the landings.

Once French resistance was ended, the psychological warriors turned their machinery on Italy. Listening posts were set up in Africa which gleamed every bit of Axis propaganda, discarded some and turned the rest into radio wedges aimed at cracking Axis solidarity.

Italy was bombarded over the ether waves from the Allied-controlled African stations long before the first Flying Fortress flew over Rome. The Germans had scarcely time to abandon another Italian division to its fate in the mad retreat across Libya and Tunisia before the news was being broadcast to the Italian people showing how they had been used as tools by Hitler.

Favorable News Recounted

Every favorable move by America toward Italy such as the release of thousands of interned Italians by the Justice department was immediately relayed to Italy by leaflet and radio. At the same time, the stern attitude of the British clearly indicating to the Italian people what they could expect if they persisted in following Mussolini was not neglected.

The psychological attack came not only from Africa. London and Washington and agents in a half dozen capitals were busy burrowing under the tottering Fascist framework. From neutral sources came a steady stream of "informed" stories of feelers for peace and the shakiness of Mussolini's position.

It was the old German "nerve war" tactic with Anglo-American embellishments.

Not all the psychological warfare was by remote control. Silent, secretive figures appeared at General Eisenhower's headquarters only to fade quickly and silently from sight. Some returned, others did not. Just what they did and where they went probably will be military secrets until the end of the war.

Close Coordination

Just as the attacks of the ground forces had to be coordinated with air assaults on the battlefield, psychological warfare had to be coupled with Allied victories.

It was axiomatic that they would have had little success if they had been linked with a stymied or losing army. Behind the reasoning of the psychological broadcasts, leaflets and underground attacks there had to be a military force to put weight behind the words.

The psychological attack has tended Mussolini's downfall and made the Allied military task easier while the guns, troops, airplanes and warships of Britain and America put "authority" behind the Allied ether and underground efforts.

TOKEN RESISTANCE BY ITALY EXPECTED

JUL 26 1943

Fascism's Rule Ended, Surrender of Axis Weak Link to Come Next.

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(Former Chief of the AP Bureau in Rome)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP) Italy showed the first crack in the dam of her resistance to the Allies today and the army, with a display of defiance, made a desperate move to buttress the war effort.

Benito Mussolini, in a tacit confession of his failure as a dictator, stepped aside, apparently deserted by his fair-weather friend, Adolf Hitler.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, a non-Fascist in spirit, embittered by his treatment at the hands of the former sergeant, Mussolini, took command of a military government, implying an end to the rule of Fascism.

This may well be the first step along the rocky road toward Italy's unconditional surrender by the army, which is what the Washington and presumably the London authorities desire. It is a hopeful sign, for the Allies want the surrender of a defeated army, so that no resurgent Fascist in the future may again lead the Italians to war with the assertion that they were undefeated militarily in World War II, as the Germans said they were militarily undefeated in World War I.

Although Badoglio's proclamation was double-talk in Washington, it was taken to mean that Italy would make a last desperate stand against the American and British invaders, but that the war, for the Italians, would go on only until they were forced, by circumstances, to surrender.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had offered the Italian people an honorable peace and a respectable place in the Europe of the future if they would only dismiss their discredited Duce.

Italy, unable to defeat the Greeks, herself defeated in Africa by the British, her divisions surrendering piecemeal in Sicily, must be aware that she lacks the military power to resist the Allies successfully.

What is likely, then, is a token resistance, since the army, typified by Badoglio, could not, with honor, let the country down by immediately folding up. This resistance may be expected to last as long as Italian resources in arms and men hold out. That may be only a matter of months, or even weeks.

The Allies will insist on unconditional surrender. That means the Italians must accept the Allied terms, without posing any conditions of their own. Our terms would undoubtedly include the laying down of Italian arms, the Allied occupation of Italy and Allied army administration of the country until the people could decide what kind of Italian government they wished. This situation probably would prevail until the defeat of Germany.

The temptation to treat today's developments optimistically was a great one, but Washington authorities advised a cautious consideration of the eventualities.

Much will depend on the secret plans of Hitler.

Hitler's abandonment of Mussolini was assumed here, since the dictator had to give up the absolute power he has held for two decades. Presumably the Duce was left without defense against the hatred of his disillusioned, dispirited people.

The belief was strengthened that Mussolini had asked Hitler for help at their conference last week, while Rome was being bombed, and that the German dictator refused it.

Yet the possibility remained that the Germans would try to fight a delaying action on the peninsula, that they with the Italians might even take up a front in the Po valley for the last stand in Italy.

On the other hand, Hitler could write off Italy, withdraw his troops to an impregnable line behind the Alps for the defense of his "fortress Europe," explain to his people and his satellites that Italy was only a ruptured appendix of Europe, and divert some of his divisions to the new fortifications on the French coast and to the Balkans.

Badoglio's proclamation showed clearly his intenion to preserve the monarchy and strengthen the home front, for he warned against any attempt of the people to revolt.

But all that Mussolini has stood for now is lifted from the people, presumably, for Badoglio was a bitter enemy of the Duce.

WASHINGTON, July 25 — (AP) Word of the resignation of the Fascist Premier Mussolini brought no immediate comment from the White House today but military quarters quickly raised question marks over Italy's future contribution to the Axis war against the United Nations.

The Army and Navy command officially was silent. But in other Washington quarters there was mention of President Roosevelt's recent reference to the invasion of Italy as possibly the beginning of the end against the Axis.

An immediate re-appraisal of the war in the light of the retirement of the leader of Fascism in Italy was indicated.

Army Heads Non-Committal

High-ranking officials of the War department, while expressing gratification at the change of Italian command, declined any official comment pending formal official notification from the Mediterranean theater of command.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio is considered in military circles here as the greatest professional soldier in modern Italian history. However, he has been opposed to the Mussolini regime and is understood to have objected to Italy's entrance into the war. His professional skill brought his appointment early in the war to a high post, or chief of staff.

LaGuardia Asks Italy If It Is Remaining Fascist

New York, July 25 (AP)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York city, in a short-wave broadcast to Italy tonight, said the people of this country "will continue the war until Fascism and Naziism are destroyed" and would not tolerate any action to prolong the war.

The broadcast, released by the local Office of War Information, followed the announcement that Premier Mussolini had resigned, that King Vittorio Emanuele had assumed command of the Italian forces and that Marshal Pietro Badoglio had been appointed Premier.

"People of Italy, the decision is in your hands," Mayor LaGuardia said in his broadcast. "Eliminate the Fascist government. When we say that, we mean to say the complete elimination of the Fascist philosophy and the Fascist government."

"What we would like to know," LaGuardia continued, "is whether the Fascist government will continue in Italy and whether Italy will continue with Hitler and the Nazis."

N.Y. ITALIANS JUBILANT OVER DUCE'S DOWNFALL

NEW YORK, July 25 — (AP) For 1,800 Americans of Italian birth, Mussolini's downfall could not have happened at a more appropriate moment—they were attending an anti-Fascist rally when they heard the news which touched off a wild demonstration.

The announcement which electrified the Italian-American crowd at Cooper Union came from Rep. Vito Marcantonio (American Labor) who with dramatic force interrupted the speaker to announce the "message of historic importance."

Leaping to their feet, applauding, cheering, and pounding each other on the back, the crowd, comprised chiefly of shirt-sleeved men, began a 10-minute impromptu victory parade through the aisles, with hands held high in the V-for-Victory sign.

Earlier, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York had said upon learning of the news that "insofar as Italy is concerned, she is out of the war. x x x It's a source of great satisfaction that Mussolini finally has been discovered. He will go down in history as the betrayer of Italy."

"Won't Be Long Now For Italy"—Wallace

Detroit, July 25 (AP)—"It won't be long now for Italy," was Vice-President Henry A. Wallace's comment today when he was informed of the dismissal of Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Wallace's full statement: "If this news is true, surely it won't be long now as far as Italy is concerned."

Italy's Future Value to Axis Questioned in Washington

High-Ranking Officials Are Pleased by Move, But Withhold Comment.

AXIS PREPARES FOR FINAL STAND IN SICILY TRIANGLE

Enemy Defending Desperately Narrow Northeast Corner of Island.

U.S. TROOPS MOP UP

Patton's Seventh Army Completing Seizure of Western Section of Trapani Falls.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 25—(AP) The campaign in Sicily reached its last and decisive stage today as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced the occupation of Trapani, last of the three major ports in the western part of the island, by the American Seventh army.

While the American forces under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., rushed through the dust and heat to finish the mopping up of western Sicily, raising to more than 50,000 the total prisoners in their hands, there were strong indications that the enemy was establishing a strong stabilized line across the northeastern tip where he would make his last big stand in an attempt to block the door to Italy.

Three Miles Below Catania

The Axis front now runs from the Dittaina river, about three miles south of Catania on the east coast, due west through Catenanuova, which is 12 miles west of Paterno and about 23 miles west and slightly north of Catania. From there it turns to Regalbuto, four miles to the northwest, and bends sharply northward to the sea.

(This would indicate that the Allies may be in possession of the north coast as far east as Acquedola, approximately 55 miles west of Messina strait and 65 miles east of Palermo—or at least that the Axis may not be seriously opposing Allied advances into that area.

(Roundabout reports originating from the Algiers radio yesterday said the Allies had reached San Stefano di Camastra, 50 miles east of Palermo).

German divisions are holding the sector from the river inland to Regalbuto, a winding line of 35 to 40 miles, and the Italians have been entrusted with the remaining 30 miles to the northern seacoast.

Dispatches indicated that the northern section of the line was still somewhat unsettled and it was not known exactly here where it came up to the coast.

A small triangular section of Sicily is now left in Axis hands, with Messina at the tip. Both legs of the triangle are approximately 55 miles long and the base is about 60 miles across—an area approximately the size of Cap Bon where the remnants of Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim's Tunisian army were destroyed less than three months ago.

Italian 'Chutists Seized

Headquarters announced that Italian parachute troops had been dropped behind Allied positions at an unnamed place, but said they were captured and "effectively dealt with."

Today's communique said Canadian troops under Maj. Gen. Guy Simonds "have been engaged in bitter fighting and have made good progress" ploughing through desperate resistance of the German 15th armored division in the neighborhood of Regalbuto, approximately in the center of the Axis line.

Regalbuto is directly west of Mt. Etna where German forces, consisting chiefly of the Hermann Goering armored division, were putting up a skillful and determined fight to hold the gateway to the escape port of Messina.

The British Eighth army of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery maintained heavy pressure day and night on this front, and the Germans were said to have suffered very heavy casualties and to have been given no respite.

Allied naval forces were busily engaged in offensive patrols along General Montgomery's seaward flank, repeatedly daring the enemy's coastal batteries and torpedo boat flotillas in the narrow waters, and a naval communique said one of these Allied formations again had bombarded the harbor of Taormina about 20 miles north of Catania, on Wednesday night.

Gain Another Harbor

The American capture of Trapani in the western region far removed from the active area of fighting gave to the Allies another big and well-equipped harbor and completed the lightning seizure of the three big western Sicilian ports of Palermo, Marsala and Trapani.

The Allied hold on the latter port, a city of 63,000 population at the northwestern tip, emphasized the grip which the United Nations are clamping on the Tyrrhenian sea among Sicily, Italy and Sardinia.

With bases looking upon this sea, the Allied naval and air forces were now in position to roam this water approach to Rome with greater freedom and to supplement their blockade efforts of the east Sicilian coast with a tighter control of the north shore.

But the continued discovery by Allied airmen of some Axis shipping and landing barges in Sicilian waters indicates that the Germans and Italians were still able to pour in men and supplies.

Carpet of Destruction

Flying Fortresses, four-engined R.A.F. Liberators and Halifaxes from the Middle East command,

30.24-6517

Wellingtons, Mitchells, Marauders, Lightnings, Beaufighters and Mustang invaders continued to unroll a carpet of destruction across Italy's rail network and bottleneck supply lines to Sicily.

The Fortresses, making their longest strike from North African bases, hit Bologna in a 1,500-mile round trip to northern Italy where they exploded an ammunition train and twisted up the tracks in the crowded freight yards.

Other air forces concentrated on rail targets at Marina di Catanzaro, Marina di Paola and San Giovanni on the Italian toe, and invaded the harbors of Naples, and Milazzo and Messina in Sicily, where they destroyed at least three small ships and hit at least five other small ships and boats.

Leghorn Bombed

The Italian communique, heard here in a broadcast, said Leghorn, the port and naval base on Italy's northwest coast also was bombed and that 97 persons were killed and 260 injured at Bologna.

(The British Air ministry said Leghorn was hit by home-based R.A.F. Lancasters making a shuttle bombing from North Africa).

The measure of Axis air resistance was indicated by the Allied announcement that only two Allied planes were missing from all these attacks.

The Italian communique said there was hard fighting yesterday, particularly on the northern wing of the Italian positions, but claimed that Allied thrusts in the eastern and central sectors were held.

The enthusiasm of the Italian reception of the American army in the west exceeded anything yet encountered, dispatches from Sicily said.

Cheering crowds pelted General Patton with flowers as he entered an unidentified "large city," it was said. A similar reception had been met at Palermo.

The 50,000 prisoners in American hands represented an increase of 10,000 over previous figures. The total taken by the Allies thus far was expected to mount to 110,000 when all have been counted.

ALGIERS AID ASKED BY UNDERGROUND

French Units Express Confidence in Committee of National Liberation.

ALGIERS, July 25 — (AP) France's main underground organizations, through the Council of Resistance, sent a message of confidence and an urgent appeal for help to the French Committee of National Liberation at Algiers today.

The message expressed certainty that the committee "will finish once and for all with the survivals of Vichy and will remain strictly faithful to the fundamental principles to which all forces of resistance have been attached for three years."

These principles, it added, were "clearly defined by Gen. Charles de Gaulle in his manifesto of May, 1942" when he stated aims and methods to which his national committee in London and the French underground movements agreed.

The council appealed to the provisional government of the French empire here to "give every help within its power in the present merciless struggle against deportation (by the Germans), against the annihilation of youth and the true elite of France."

Andre Philip, commissioner of the interior, is in charge of direction of French resistance for the government here.

Devotion to Duty Shown By U. S. Doctors Under Fire

Recently Civilians, They Perform Long Operations as Bombs Fall.

By JOHN A. MOROSO III

WITH THE AMPHIBIOUS FORCES INVADING SICILY, July 20—(Delayed)—(AP) One of the few beautiful things I have seen in the American invasion of Sicily is the devotion to duty and the bravery of American doctors under fire.

For the most part they are doctors recently from civil life. I have seen them perform long complicated operations while our ship rocked with the explosion of bombs falling in the water nearby. They gave the same care to the enemy wounded that they gave to the American boys.

No distinctions were made, although the prisoners infested us with sand fleas and other insects.

Typical of these doctors is Lieut Charles S. Stevenson, 35, of Pittsfield, Mass., who was a gynecologist and obstetrician before the war. Lieut. Stevenson was graduated from Princeton and then Johns Hopkins, where he served five years on the staff.

'Dreamers' Were Dynamite

"The Italian wounded were obviously not mad at anybody unless it was Mussolini," he said. "Their surprise, I later learned, was due to the fact that they had been told we were not fighters. They had been told that we were 'Hollywood playboys' and soft, ineffectual dreamers.

"One Italian artilleryman had been shot through the back and stomach by a Nazi officer because he refused to fire his gun on the Americans. He was tall and thin and he had been a farmer near Verona. He was wounded about 20 hours before he was brought aboard and his prognosis was very grave.

"He said that he knew he was among friends and begged us to go right ahead with our surgery. Dr. Richard Hunt of Stoneham, Mass., was to be my assistant and he and I made arrangements with our chief, Lieut. Com. J. C. Fremont of Detroit. Several operations had already been performed that night and the operations crew was very tired, but with the help of coffee and sandwiches they were able to keep moving.

Used Blood Plasma

"Long before we completed the lengthy operation the anesthetist reported that the patient's blood pressure was very low. We gave him a pint of blood plasma which had been prepared from blood donated to the Red Cross by some highly commendable citizen back home several months before. (We doubt if the donor could ever have dreamed at the time that his or her blood would help to save the life of an Italian farmer who was shot in the back by a German officer because of his refusal to fire upon American soldiers.) We followed this with a fresh transfusion.

"The entire operation took more than two hours. Then we sat down on the deck feeling fatigued and sort of numb.

"Our man not only lived but thrived on the liquid we fed him through his veins for the next five days. We subsequently put him ashore in North Africa and when we left he shook hands all around and smiled broadly and repeated over and over: 'Grazi, grazi, grazi.'"

4 U. S. Flying Squadrons Hailed for African Work

Fighter and Bomber Groups Serve in Middle East

CAIRO, July 25 (AP).—Four tactical groups of the 9th United States Army Air Force have been commended for distinguished service in the middle eastern theater in the last year.

The groups are the 57th Fighters, commanded by Colonel Arthur Salisbury of Sedalia, Mo., who will be recalled as the stars of the Palm Sunday victory against Axis transports off Tunisia;

A veteran heavy bombardment group formerly comanded by Colonel George F. Maquire, of Coffeyville, Kan., and now under Colonel Keith K. Compton, of St. Joseph, Mo.;

Another heavy bombardment group, comended for strategic support of the British 8th Army in the north African clean - up, headed by Colonel John R. Kane, of Shreveport, La.;

And a medium bomber group, headed by Colonel Edward N. Backus, of Brownsville, Tex., which carried out shuttle bombing attacks that unhinged Axis defenses in Libya and Tunisia.

Hamburg Has Heaviest Air Blow of War

R.A.F. Swamps Defense, Rains Down 2,300 Tons at Cost of But 12 Planes

Americans Follow With Daylight Raids

Blast 4 Targets in Reich in Deepest Penetration; 19 U. S. Planes Are Lost

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 26 (Monday).—American bombers battered four places in Germany and also a target in Belgium in daylight Sunday in the mightiest single day's onslaught of the war, following up a record-breaking 2,300-ton raid by British planes on Hamburg, Germany, Saturday night.

Nineteen American bombers—all heavies—were lost as the American airmen made their deepest penetration into Germany, attacking factories at Warnemuende, near the Baltic seaport of Rostock, Hamburg, the seaplane base at Wustrow and the shipyards at Kiel.

British Typhoon bombers blasted airfields at Woensdrecht, Holland, and Courtrai, Belgium, while American twin-engined mediums were attacking near Ghent. Three enemy aircraft were destroyed in this raid.

Coke Oven Is Target

An American communique said that a coke oven on the Ghent-Terneuzen canal near Selzaezé, Belgium, was the target in the medium bomber raid and that all the planes returned safely. It was the second operation for the 8th Air Force Support Command.

R. A. F. Mitchells attacked the Fokker aircraft factory at Amsterdam, in occupied Holland, Sunday afternoon, scoring bomb hits "right across the target," the air ministry news service reported. Escorting Spitfires had cleared a path through enemy fighters and there was no opposition except anti-aircraft fire.

Hamburg, Germany's greatest port, was covered by huge clouds of smoke after the mass assault there.

"Preliminary reports indicate great damage was done (at Hamburg Saturday night)," said an Air Ministry communique in signalizing the resumption with clearing weather of the Allies' 'round-the-clock onslaught on German industrial centers.

Leghorn Is Battered

The record pounding of Hamburg's maze of docks and shipbuilding yards followed Saturday's spectacular daylight raid by American Flying Fortresses on the enemy's naval base at Trondheim, Norway, and new war factories at Heroya, Norway, the latter within 100 miles of Oslo.

Saturday night, while Hamburg was being blasted by hundreds of one and two-ton block-buster bombs, huge Royal Air Force Lancaster bombers from North Africa circled over the Italian port of Leghorn on the northwest coast of Italy to blast its installations before continuing on across the Alps to their home bases in England.

Twelve British bombers were lost in the attack on Hamburg, but none was missing as a result of the "shuttle" bombing of Leghorn and only one Flying Fortress failed to return from the 1,800-mile round-trip raid on targets in Norway, Allied communiques reported. The single missing Fortress made a forced landing in neutral Sweden and its crew of ten was interned.

The Berlin radio described Saturday night's Hamburg raid as a "heavy enemy terror attack," and said it caused "heavy losses among the population and considerable destruction to residential quarters, cultural monuments and public buildings."

It was calculated here that the R. A. F. probably used 1,000 planes in the night's operations, with perhaps 700 of four-engined bombers concentrating on Hamburg.

The attack was of the "Thunderbolt" type, the British Air Ministry disclosed, with the entire great weight of steel and fire hitting Hamburg within fifty minutes.

"It seems to have swamped and scattered ground defenses," the Ministry said, possibly explaining the extremely low cost in bombers. "There were vast fires, black smoke rose four miles into the air and there were many reports of violent explosions."

The heaviest previous raid by the R. A. F. was thought to have been that of last June 11 on the Rhineland industrial centers of Duesseldorf and Muenster, when more than 2,000 tons of explosives were dropped.

It was the ninety-ninth raid of the war on Hamburg, which now ranks close to Cologne and Bremen among the most heavily bombed German cities. Cologne has been raided 119 times, Bremen 104. Hamburg is one of Europe's greatest ports, with twenty-two miles of berths for seagoing ships and 110 miles of docks and landing stages.

Other British bombers attacked unspecified objectives in western and northwestern Germany Saturday night, and Sunday Allied fighters swept across the Channel almost at wave-top height to carry on the campaign by daylight.

Sunday's German communique acknowledged that Saturday's raids on Norway caused "strong damage," especially at Trondheim, but as usual implied that the damage was confined to residential districts.

Returning American flyers reported that they left the big Nazi submarine base a raging mass of flames, with clouds of black smoke mounting thousands of feet into the air. Photographs confirmed that submarine repair shops, docks and other naval installations were damaged heavily.

SMOKE HEAVY OVER HAMBURG

German Radioman Reports City As Dark At 8 A. M. As At Midnight

RAF Reveals 2,300 Tons Of Bombs Dropped Was 2,600 Tons By U. S. Standards

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 25—A German radio reporter who said he was standing in the center of bomb-ravaged Hamburg at 8 A. M. today said smoke hung so densely over the great port city from last night's record-breaking RAF raid that it was "almost as dark as in the middle of the night."

"It was difficult to get through to the center," said the Nazi whose broadcast description of the havoc was recorded here by the Associated Press. "Broken glass, timber and beams barred the way. Everything was full of smoke.

"The view over the Alster (a lake in the heart of Hamburg) today was a terrible sight. Smoke rose from all burning houses. The tower of the town hall stood in flames.

Opera House Burned

"Every minute delayed-action bombs explode. The Opera House has been burned out and all world-famous entertainment places destroyed.

"The extent of the damage cannot be estimated yet. Our famous public buildings, the state library and main theater are burned out. Two of the oldest churches, Nikolai and St. Georges, are in flames.

"It is now 8 A. M. Smoke is so black over the city that it is almost as dark as in the middle of the night."

Although the RAF announced that its big bombers released 2,300 tons of explosives over the German port of Hamburg in a record raid last night, the actual weight dropped, by American usage, was almost 2,600 tons.

Britain uses the "long ton" of 2,240 pounds, whereas the American "short ton" contains 2,000 pounds.

BOLOGNA HIT BY AMERICAN FORTRESSES

North African Force Strikes At Railroad Bottleneck In Italy

British Lancasters Pound Leghorn, Other Communications Targets

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 25—United States Flying Fortresses, staging their longest hop of the Mediterranean war, blasted the railroad bottleneck of Bologna yesterday in one of a series of crippling new blows upon vital Italian rail transport arteries.

The unescorted Fortresses, winging 1,500-mile-round trip, exploded an ammunition train and blanketed the crowded freight yards at Bologna with bombs, Allied headquarters announced today, and met no opposition from either fighter planes or anti-aircraft guns.

Lash Over Southern Italy

Other Allied bombers lashed out over southern Italy, concentrating on railroad targets to weaken Axis defenses.

[RAF Lancasters pounded Leghorn on the northwest coast of Italy last night in another shuttle-bombing run from North Africa back to Britain, it was announced in London. None of the Lancasters was lost, the Air Ministry said.]

RAF Liberators and Halifaxes flying from Middle East bases smashed Friday night at the airdrome at Reggio Calabria, on the toe of Italy, a Cairo bulletin announced, laying bombs near hangars and upon other targets, and starting a big fire south of the field. All the British planes returned safely.

Rolling Stock Destroyed

Bologna, inland ninety miles northeast of La Spezia, the naval base where Fortresses once attacked the rufugee Italian battleships, had never before been bombed by the Northwest African Strategic Air Force.

Bomb bursts covered the target area where, it was officially announced, a "large proportion" of a concentration of railway rolling stock was destroyed.

Other American crews struck by daylight against the Marina di Catanzaro and Marina di Paola railyards, low on the Italian boot, and RAF and RCAF Wellingtons made two raids Friday night on communications at San Giovanni, opposite Messina.

Shatter Rail Junctions

Mitchells escorted by Lightnings hit the locomotive repair shops and yards at Marina di Catanzaro, on the gulf of Squillace, shattering rail junctions and a large shed, along with rolling stock. They also strafed 300 freight cars, 60 of them tankers, at the village of Curinga.

Marauder bombers scored hits on repair shops and tracks at Marina di Paola, on the Italian instep. Their lightning escorts met no enemy fighters.

The Wellingtons hurled block-busters on ferry slips, the railraod station and dock buildings at San Giovanni, and other Wellingtons attacked freight yards at Salerno, below Naples.

RAF Beaufighters sweeping the bay of Naples sank a small steamer, a schooner and a landing barge. Only two Allied planes were lost in the twenty-four-hour period.

"Invaders" Bomb Ships

Mustang (A-36) fighter-bombers, whose pilots have won semi-official adoption of the name "Invader" for that type of plane, swooped down on Messina harbor to hit three naval vessels, leaving one burning.

Another "Invader" attack on Milazzo in northeast Sicily scored a hit on a merchant vessel and other bombs landed among small craft. Other planes machine-gunned a barge in the San Stefano area of the north coast, destroyed a number of trucks inlands and damaged road communications.

The crippling punishment dealt Italy's rail systems was typified by last week's raid on Foggia, in southern Italy, where air photographs today disclosed that three and a half acres of railroad yards had been wrecked and five acres of warehouses and workshops covering another eight acres gutted. Pictures also showed that Friday's bombing of Leverano, on the Italian heel had burned out the main station, blocked the main rail lines and destroyed or damaged at least half the enemy aircraft on the ground at the airfield.

"Beautiful Explosions"

The great Fortress strike against Bologna was "almost like a sightseeing tour," one pilot, Lieut. Burton E. English, of Lytton, Iowa, reported.

"There were some beautiful explosions. The ammunition train we hit must have been fully loaded. First there was a small brown burst, then it looked like a giant pull of flash powder," said Copilot Lieut. Caleb Barker, of Newport, Washington.

REDS CLOSE RING ABOUT OREL BASE, NEAR RAIL LINE

Soviet Columns Within Seven Miles of Bryansk Railway, Feeding City.

30 MORE PLACES TAKEN

Nazi Tanks Are Knocked Out as Russians Press Offensive.

LONDON, July 25 — (AP) The great Russian counter-offensive battering upon Orel from three directions engulfed 30 more populated places and swept forward 2 1-2 to 5 1-2 miles today, Moscow announced in a special communique, and complete encirclement of the great Nazi base appeared only a matter of time.

Red army columns driving down behind Orel have cut within seven miles or so of the Bryansk railway feeding supplies and reinforcements into the stronghold.

The Russians are steadily narrowing the 50-mile escape corridor held open by the half-encircled Germans, for another Soviet column is pushing up from the south to the west of the city.

Rail Station Taken

Beating down German counter-attacks, the Russians captured the railroad station of Glazunovka and the populated places of Pakhomovo, Chizhovka and Narykovo on the western bank of the Oka river northeast of Orel, said the communique, broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Today's gains followed advances of three to five miles yesterday, and in Saturday's battles 54 more German tanks and 56 of their planes were destroyed, the war bulletin said.

South, in the Belgorod area, there were scouting engagements and "fighting of local importance," while scouts increased their activities in the battle areas on the Donets front still farther south, it added.

28 Tanks Smashed

The regular midnight communique said the Red army advanced on the north, east and south sides of Orel, knocking out 28 tanks, killing 2,840 Germans, taking prisoners, and capturing an important height on the south side of the city.

Several populated places were captured east and south of Orel, the announcement added. In several places the Germans mounted strong counter-attacks.

In other sectors, the communique said, 21 more German tanks were destroyed and over 800 Germans killed.

German Wedge Erased

A previous special announcement of the Soviet command had declared that the German wedge, nine by 22 miles, which had been driven into Russian lines at Belgorod by the German offensive launched on July 5 had been completely erased.

Sixty-five per cent of the tanks with which Adolf Hitler was estimated to have launched his summer offensive on July 5 have now been destroyed, Moscow dispatches said. Premier Joseph Stalin on Saturday declared the German offensive had been completely squashed at a cost of 70,000 German dead. This was approximately a seventh of the force with which the Germans were believed to have begun their drive.

DNB, German news agency, in a broadcast from Berlin tonight, said fighting had decreased in violence in all sectors of the front except at Orel.

Claim Breaches Closed

There, the Nazi high command admitted, some "local breaks" had been made in the German lines in the course of see-saw fighting, but it claimed the breaches were closed.

A German war reporter in a front line broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said the "extraordinary heat in the Orel sector has now given way to a continuous drizzle which has transformed all roads into swamps through which motorized elements have to plow their way."

SECOND FRONT URGED BY SOVIET COMMENTATOR

LONDON, July 25 — (AP) Urgings for a second front in western Europe were renewed with fresh vigor over the Moscow radio today by M. Viktorov, authoritative political commentator.

He declared that such an attack now would turn the present Nazi crisis into "a veritable catastrophe."

In the plainest talk from Moscow since the Sicilian invasion, Mr. Viktorov asserted that "only joint blows from the east and west can put an end to the hopes of Hitler."

Moscow Hails Success Of Reds' Summer Drive

Moscow, July 25 (AP)—The complete encirclement of Orel appeared to be only a matter of time today.

Premier Stalin's announcement yesterday that the 1943 German summer offensive had been completely liquidated became all the more significant when he stated that the Russians already had knocked out 2,900 tanks in the fighting in the Orel-Kursk area since July 5. This represents about sixty-five per cent. of the 4,250 tanks with which the seventeen German armored divisions employed were believed to have begun the battle.

Encouraging To Reds

The complete elimination of the German tank wedge, nine miles by twenty-two miles in area at Belgorod, below the Russians' Kursk salient, as announced in a special communique, was particularly encouraging to Russians.

"The Germans used to say in 1941 and 1942 that they were defeated not by the Russians but by 'General Winter,'" Izvestia, the Government newspaper, remarked in a triumphant editorial.

"Now they are meeting General Summer."

Maj. Gen. Yenshin was credited by Red Star with a major share of the success. The Soviet division commanded by him absorbed the main blow of the German offensive at the Orel end of the Kursk salient and withstood thirty-two violent attacks conducted by 800 Nazi tanks over a period of several days, the Red army newspaper said.

Hitler's Appeal Failed

Izvestia said that during the German offensive Adolf Hitler appealed personally to the SS Division bearing his name to capture Kursk, but in vain.

The defeat for the Nazis was another bright mark in the careers of Col. Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky, who led the break-through on the south side of Stalingrad last winter, and of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin, who headed the sweep across the Middle Don.

Fresh German reserves flown into the battle by bulky Junkers transports were defeated in the latest fighting in which three to five miles were gained, Soviet dispatches said. The advances were marked by violent air combats.

Soviet partisans deep in the Ukraine were reported contributing greatly to Russian success, hiding along the high banks of the rivers and attacking boats and barges as they come along. One detachment sank six barges and twelve cutters, Soviet accounts said. The Germans were said to be forced to use the rivers more and more because of guerrilla activity along the roads.

Mr. G. B. Shaw Is 87 Today, Unhappy About Whole Thing

America Gaining Balance of Power in War, He Declares.

LONDON, July 25—(AP) George Bernard Shaw, who calls his 87th birthday tomorrow a "sore subject," says in a statement written for the occasion that "we shall have to look to our step between the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R. if we are to keep our eminence among the powers."

"America's astonishing feat of shipbuilding," he said, "has won for her command of the seas."

Mr. Shaw praised the American war effort generally and remarked specifically that the United States had been "extraordinarily generous to us considering how strong the anti-British feeling is in America. The Lend-Lease act was a very welcome surprise but it will leave the balance of power in the hands of America in the west."

Asked what he thought the Washington, Casablanca, Moscow and similar conferences accomplished at long range, Mr. Shaw said:

"Conferences are very useful because the parties get to know one another as human beings, not as epithets in the papers. Before the war Stalin was nothing to Mr. Churchill but a blood-stained tyrant and Mr. Churchill was nothing to Stalin but a type of burgeois imperialist.

"Now they know one another as Winston and Uncle Joe. That is an enormous improvement. The same thing is true of Mr. Churchill in Washington hob-nobbing with the President and treating Congress to one of his oratorical performances.

Charters Mere Words

"Conferences are all to the good. But the Atlantic Charters they issue are not worth the paper they are written on: They are mere highfalutin abstract phrases without particulars as to measures or quantities or duration or anything that makes words mean something.

"Men assent to them enthusiastically and then oppose a catering trade-factory act that should have been passed a century ago, and boggle over the pennyworth of overdue ransom suggested in the Beveridge report."

(Catering trade-factory act legislation recently passed Parliament for improvement of wages and conditions for workers in restaurants and hotels. The Beveridge report proposed advanced social reforms for the post-war period.)

Discussing the post-war reactions of people who have been fighting, Mr. Shaw said that mostly they won't like the lessons they will have to digest, but "they must lump them."

Kaiser Died in Bed

"Anyhow, they will not be consulted after the war any more than they were consulted before it. If there is an election, lots of them will vote for hanging Hitler, who will not be hanged, just as they voted after four years of war for hanging the Kaiser who died in his bed 20 years later.

"When wars are declared by the diplomatists the people go mad with patriotism and pugnacity. When the armistice is announced they go equally mad with relief and maffick (celebrate hilariously) for a fortnight because the war is over."

Mr. Shaw lives most of the time at his home at Saint Lawrence, Welwyn, Hertfordshire, visiting London only occasionally. He rarely entertains visitors. Although he remarks dolorously that good beefsteak would kill him and that old men should take a back seat, he endures well and continues active.

30-24-6519

He has spent the war years writing, being "told old for anything else."

Child's Guide to Politics

"I am finishing a sort of child's guide to politics," he disclosed.

"I had rather have written a few more plays in the time this very tough job has cost me. But I am tired of hearing politicians, editors and voters shouting without understanding what they are shouting about."

He concluded:

"Please do not remind me of my birthday. Consult an actuary before wishing me many happy returns."

British Sink Nazi E-Boat In Encounter in Channel

Squadron Attacks Enemy Craft in Pre-Dawn Darkness

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—Light coastal forces of the British Navy destroyed a German E-boat in a sharp engagement this morning off the coast of France, a British Admiralty communique announced today.

The squadron, under the command of Lieutenant R. B. Rooper, encountered the enemy force off Gravelines and attacked at close range. One boat was hit by gunfire and sank after an explosion. The remainder fled under cover of darkness. A number of survivors were picked up from the sunken craft, the communique said. The British ships returned to harbor without damage or casualties, the Admiralty said.

Allied air formations were reported in a German communique to have attacked a Nazi convoy "in water of the north."

Elmer Davis Says Sicily Is Only the Beginning

Predicts American Blows, Both in Europe and Pacific

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—Elmer Davis, Office of War Information director, asserted tonight "you will see more and more American soldiers in Europe," for the "Sicilian campaign is only the beginning."

"More than half of America's war strength is deployed in the Pacific," he said in a talk over the British broadcasting system, "and that front too will be steadily reinforced until complete victory is won."

"We are going to finish this war in the Pacific and finish it right if it takes six years or no matter how long it takes."

Mr. Davis said American submarines are 'gradually chopping down the Japanese merchant marine to a point where it will ultimately be inadequate for supply reinforcement of outlying garrisons."

"We are going to recover Kiska," he said, and named four routes to Japan—one via the Aleutians, from the south, west and the "open sea.'

Burma will be retaken in "due course," he added.

American Editor Lauds British In Address

London, July 25 (AP)—Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution, praised the British today, saying that they were able to fight the war and at the same time plan to be a better nation when peace comes.

In an address for the North American Service of the British Broadcasting Corporation, he noted in particular plans already made for revision of the educational system to insure wider schooling for all classes and a program for the rebuilding of London.

"The war has brought out the best and the worst and burned away the worst," he said, "leaving people who have proved themselves and who face the future with courage and determination to join with America and other nations of the United Front to make this a better world for all of us."

FRESH CANADIAN UNITS ARRIVE IN ENGLAND

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, July 25 — (AP) Announcement was made tonight of the arrival overseas of hundreds of additional Canadian soldiers and airmen as well as a naval crew assigned to take over a warship in England. They sailed recently from this port.

The group included infantry, airmen, artillerymen, and a unit of parachute troops who recently were graduated from the Fort Benning, Ga., training center.

A United States Bomber Station in England, July 25—A Flying Fortress named "Lord Cesspool" has gotten other Fortresses in trouble and precipitated a minor administrative repercussion in the Eighth Air Force.

A name censorship—moral not security—has hit the big bombers, and no longer will the Nazis be attacked by ships labeled "Vulgar Virgin" or even less printable monickers.

"Lord Cesspool," the cause of it all, just had the misfortune to be standing near the entrance to a bomber base where visiting dignitaries couldn't miss it.

Several of them, fresh from the less rough and ready life of Washington, raised their eyebrows. An official suggestion was made that Fortress names be toned down at least enough to get by in mixed company.

In fact, one zealous official came out flatly for renaming the entire fleet after American cities, States and rivers—the naval touch—but that met a storm of protest.

Under the compromise agreement, the boys may give their fancies full flight, so long as they stay within the bounds of propriety. "Memphis Belle," for instance, and "Boom Town," two of the most noted Fortresses, are in the clear.

Stockholm Reports Norway Raid Success

Stockholm, July 25 (AP)—The American Flying Fortress attack on Trondheim, Norway, Saturday damaged one German submarine and another enemy warship, wrecked the naval administration building and a military barracks, and achieved other "destructive results," it was reported here today.

Fires still are burning at the big German naval base after the two-hour assault by scores of the American heavy bombers, said reports filtering across the border from Norway.

The raiders were said to have dropped their explosives "with great precision" on military targets both at Trondheim and at the aluminum manufacturing center of Heroya in southern Norway.

HUNGARY SENDS FEELERS ON PLANS FOR BALKAN BLOC

War-Weary Nation Seeks to Survive Post-War Moves Without Loss.

WM. B. KING

ANKARA, Turkey, July 25—(AP) The war-weary and frightened government of Premier Nicolas Kallay is struggling to find some formula which will see Hungary through the post-war settlement with something resembling a whole skin, according to scraps of information reaching this neutral capital.

A reliable informant said that Hungary had sent cautious feelers to the refugee governments of Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, expressing willingness to form a Balkan bloc with them in the post-war period.

Already the Polish, Yugoslav and Greek free governments have worked out preliminary agreements in London for post-war cooperation in the Balkans, and it would be a real coup if Axis-ridden Hungary could win a place in these councils.

Press Denies Reports

In Istanbul, newspapers published extracts from Pester Lloyd and other Hungarian newspapers vehemently denying that Hungary would consider a separate peace or desert the Axis. But repeated rumblings of discontent continue to reach Istanbul from Budapest.)

The most important advantage that Hungary would get out of the reported sub-rosa agreement with the refugee governments would be their possible assistance at the peace conference. Hungarians are said to feel that if a real agreement for a cooperative Balkan block could be worked out before Europe falls to the Allied armies, the free governments would work for Hungary's preservation at the peace conference.

There were no indications that the refugee governments were rising to the Hungarian bait.

Transylvania Most Issue

Another Balkan report was that Premier Kallay had made informal overtures to Premier Ion Antonescu of Rumania, intimating that Hungary would be willing to give back to Rumania some of her former teritory awarded to Hungary by the Germans.

An immediate settlement of this problem—which so rankles in the heart of the Rumanian that he possibly would rather fight Hungary for Transylvania than the Allies for an Axis victory—would add to Hungary's stability and give her more freedom of action in the months to come.

BIG JAP RAID ON CHINA FAILS

American Flyers Beat Off 160 Bombers And Fighters In Hunan

At Least 16 Enemy Planes Shot Down In Attack On Two Air Bases

WIGHT

[By the Associated Press]

United States Fourteenth Air Force Headquarters in China, July 23 (Delayed)—The largest Japanese air raid ever made against American installations in China was rebuffed today with the destruction of sixteen enemy aircraft and damaging of many others by outnumbered Warhawks, United States Air Force headquarters announced.

Approximately 160 Japanese bombers and fighters attacked two United States air bases in Hunan province during the foray, but were driven off with a loss of sixteen planes destroyed, sixteen probably destroyed and eight others damaged.

Stilwell's Version

[A communique issued from Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters in Chungking Sunday gave slightly different totals, saying ten Zeros and six bombers were destroyed, twelve Zeros and seven bombers were probably destroyed and six Zeros and three bombers were known to have been damaged. The damage to ground installations was described as slight.

[A Japanese communique, recorded Saturday by the Associated Press from a Tokyo broadcast, declared ten American planes were shot down in raids on Hengyang and Lingling airfields in Hunan and Kienow in Fukien province. A heavy cloud formation prevented the raiders from dropping bombs on the Lingling field, the communique said.]

No Yanks Shot Down

Despite the odds against them, the Warhawks attached to Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's Fourteenth Army Air Force suffered no losses in the air. One plane was destroyed on the ground. Another was damaged in combat, but was brought down safely.

The raid was the first Japanese offensive action against the United States bases since May 17, when they lost fifteen planes in a raid on an American camp in western China.

Col. Clinton S. (Casey) Vincent, 28, of Natchez, Miss., forward echelon commander, became the Fourteenth Air Force's tenth ace when he shot down an enemy plane, increasing his total to five.

The Japanese attacked in four waves—two in the morning and two in the afternoon.

Engages First Wave

A group of Warhawks led by Lieut. James M. Williams, 25, of Huntsville, Texas, engaged in the first wave about forty miles from one base and fought the enemy planes fiercely all the way to the target area. Williams shot down one of the raiders himself to score his first victory.

That first group caused slight damage, but the second morning formation ran into such fierce opposition from the Americans that they were forced to jettison their bombs about the countryside.

The afternoon raiders struck at a second base but most of their bombs went wild and damage was negligible.

The Warhawks led by Colonel Vincent and Col. Bruce Holloway, 30, of Knoxville, Tenn., gave the Japanese such a hot reception that they could not get a good bead on the base.

Holloway, top fighter ace in China, increased his total to nine by downing one plane.

WIDE BURMA SWEEPS ARE STAGED BY R.A.F.

JUL 26 1943

NEW DELHI, July 25 — (AP) Aircraft from the U. S. Tenth Air Force and the R.A.F. ranged over a wide area in Burma yesterday and bombed Japanese military installations and shipping, communiques announced today.

American P-40s equipped with medium and light bombs attacked Japanese ground forces at Suprabum, destroying three large buildings and setting fire to supply installations. Troops quartered east of the town were shot up and showered with fragmentation bombs. Heavy bombers pounded the Pagoda point airfield southwest of Rangoon.

R.A.F. fighters on offensive patrol swept over the Akyab area and the Chindwin river, damaging Japanese supply sampans and barges. Southwest of Akyab a heavy artillery position was attacked and most of its crew annihilated, the British bulletin said. Blenheims bombed the port of Buthedaung and bursts were seen among sheds near the jetty.

All American and R.A.F. aircraft were reported to have returned safely.

Japs In Ground Attack

Chungking, July 25 (AP)—Several thousand Japanese troops, striking from Yangcheng in southeastern Shansi province, attacked Chinese positions at Siyeh, Nantuchuan and Peituchuan last Monday, and were engaged by the Chinese, the Chinese high command announced today. It said airplanes supported the invaders.

COLONEL MARKS JULY 23

Bags His First Bomber in China and Gets News He Has a Son

UNITED STATES FOURTEENTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN CHINA, July 23 (Delayed) (AP)—Lieut. Col. Samuel B. Knowles Jr., of San Antonio, Tex., executive officer of the Fourteenth Air Force's forward echelon, won't forget July 23, 1943, for a long time.

Colonel Knowles, who arrived in China only a few weeks ago, started on duty by shooting down a Japanese bomber, his first victory. Soon after he climbed out of his P-40 he was handed a radiogram saying that a son had been born to his wife, who lives in San Antonio, on July 21. The son, who weighed 7½ pounds, is named Samuel.

Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, Colonel Knowles' commanding officer, took time out today to send congratulations on both counts.

"What a day," Colonel Knowles exclaimed, "if I could have seen my wife and son everything would have been perfect."

TERRIFIC AIR BLOW STRUCK AT MUNDA

More Than 200 Planes Hit Foe's New Georgia Air Base With 186 Tons of Bombs

HEAVIEST ATTACK OF WAR

Strong U. S. Reinforcements Join Our Ground Forces— Gasmata Is Battered

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Monday, July 26 (AP)—Allied bombers, attacking Japanese positions in the Southwest Pacific with ever-increasing intensity, yesterday delivered the heaviest raids of the war against two of the enemy's most important bases.

More than 200 American planes swarmed over the key air base at Munda, New Georgia, raining 186 tons of bombs upon the Japanese pinned within the air base by American troops who control the surrounding jungle.

At the same time, medium bombers and long-range fighters, manned by Australians, swept up the coast of New Britain for a coordinated dawn attack on the Gasmata airdrome. The radio station was destroyed and grounded aircraft, the runway, supply dump areas and enemy personnel "thoroughly strafed," the communiqué from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said.

Strong forces of our aircraft "in all categories" participated in the attack on Munda, the communiqué said. One plane was reported missing in the raid, which also covered enemy gun positions on Bibolo Hill, one mile from the Munda airdrome.

Bombs Hit Near Transport

Off the island of Buka at the northern tip of the Solomons, a reconnaissance plane attacked an 8,000-ton transport. Six 500-pound bombs fell within forty feet of the ship, but results could not be determined.

Over Bougainville, just south of Buka, heavy reconnaissance bombers shot down one of seven intercepting Zeros. The other six fled when our fighter planes arrived.

The Japanese attempted a raid on Allied positions on Rendova Island, some eight miles south of Munda, sending sixty bombers and fighters against American positions there. Our fighters intercepted the raiders, shot down eight and drove the others away. Four of our planes were destroyed in dogfights but the pilots of three were saved.

Light Allied surface craft—probably PT boats—sank five barges off Cape Cretin, about fifty miles east of Lae on the Huon Peninsula of New Guinea. The barges were southbound and were believed to have been bound for Japanese bases on the Huon Gulf.

No Reports on Ground Situation

There were no reports on the ground situation at Munda and aside from the raids on that air base and on Gasmata, there was little activity Sunday. Enemy occupied villages on Sealru Island, in the Tenimber group 300 miles north of Darwin, and the Finschhafen area of New Guinea were bombed. The enemy base at Vila on the southeast coast of Kolombangara Island near New Georgia was bombed by a night patrol unit.

The intensified blasting of Munda was another step in the "softening up" campaign against the strong enemy defenses there. The raid, while not the largest from the standpoint of the number of planes used involved in heaviest weight of bombs dropped in a single raid in the southwest Pacific.

While the communiqué did not mention ground fighting around Munda, the heavy air attack indicated that our troops have found progress slow and difficult. Among the targets in the raid was Lambeti, just east of the Munda airdrome, indicating that our troops have made little if any progress from that direction in the past several days.

3 Flying Boats Beat Off Japs, Rescue 50 Wounded Marines

Leathernecks Evacuated From New Georgia Despite Enemy Bombing And Strafing Attack

JUL 26 1943

By LEIF ERICKSON

(Associated Press Correspondent)

Guadalcanal, July 22 (Delayed). The daring rescue of more than fifty wounded American marines by three Catalina flying boat crews who fought off an enemy bombing and strafing attack lasting half an hour while taking the wounded aboard at New Georgia Island was disclosed at the Solomon Islands air headquarters today.

Lieutenant (j. g.) R. B. Blodgett, of Sacramento, Cal., pilot of one of the flying boats, was wounded in the upper right arm. His copilot, Ensign A. L. Macaulay, of Santa Cruz, Cal., was slightly wounded by a shrapnel fragment.

Flying Boat Damaged

With several holes in the wings and hull and the air speed indicator out of commission, Blodgett took off with the heavily overloaded flying boat and successfully landed the evacuees and crew on water at night at a base. Two other Catalinas carried out similar loads.

Six rubber boats plied between the shore and the planes with wounded marines during the attack by two enemy float biplanes. None of the evacuees suffered any harm. The Catalinas were on the water for an hour and a half.

The First Mission

This first mission to evacuate wounded was made July 11, a day after the combined marines and army infantry had completed a five-day jungle march from their anchorage and captured four heavy Japanese naval guns on the western point of Enogai inlet.

Lieut. R. F. Wadsworth, Rochester, N. Y., and Flight Leader Blodgett related the story of the rescue flight this way:

Three flying boats first landed in the late afternoon. Each plane immediately put out two rubber lifeboats, manned by two crewmen each, to ferry the wounded from the shore.

Wounded Taken Aboard

"We took aboard the wounded," Blodgett said, "and shortly after we had finished, and Joseph Strittmetter, of Fort Worth, Texas, the crew captain was hauling in the anchor when two planes attacked us.

"They made a couple of strafing runs and one bombing pass before we could get our guns firing. One small bomb landed in the water off our bow.

"Shrapnel put numerous holes in the plane. Joe Howard, of Pasadena, Cal., started firing from the bow, turning back three more Japanese strafing attacks.

Shore Guns Help Out

"Marine shore guns joined in firing on the enemy planes, which kept up their strafing passes but didn't dare again approach within effective range. After a half hour of this the Japanese withdrew."

During the rush to get the wounded aboard, William Smith, of Glendale, Cal., Blodgett's mechanic, was left ashore and a marine private helping to man the boats stayed in the plane.

Wadsworth said he and Radioman Bruce Danielson, of Redlands, Cal., worked until exhausted in taking wounded aboard his flying boat and then had to turn the job over to Ensign F. D. Gibson, of Honolulu, and Radioman Marion F. Mason, of Spencer, Iowa.

Waiting until almost dark after the Japanese withdrew, the three planes took off on the return flight. They were targets for some ack-ack but were unhit.

JAVA AIR ATTACK VIEWED AS START OF INDIES THRUST

Dutch Admiral Says Allies Preparing to Recapture Island Empire.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25—(AP) Thursday morning's attack by United States Liberator bombers on Surabaya, Java, was declared today by Rear Admiral Pieter Koenraad, commander of Netherlands forces in Australia, to mark the beginning of a drive to retake Dutch possessions from the Japanese, according to a dispatch to Aneta, Dutch news agency, from Melbourne.

The smash will greatly help the morale of Netherlands East Indies peoples, the Admiral said.

Remarking that the attack was the first made on Java in 12 months, he said, "I hope there will be many more raids until the day we go back. Our men and women in Japanese hands have waited for this for a year and the mental relief for those in prison camps must be very great."

He estimated that there were between 30,000 and 40,000 Dutch still in Java.

Thorough Wrecking Job

Admiral Koenraad said destruction of the great naval base at Surabaya under his direction before the Japanese arrived was a thorough job but that the enemy has had a year to effect repair work, raise docks and make the base useful.

Under Dutch control it employed 18,000 men and British and American warships as well as Dutch were repaired there during the closing campaign.

"I saw it on the last day before the Japanese arrived," he continued. "It was well wrecked. Four floating docks including one for cruisers, one for destroyers, one for submarines were sunk and a graving dock was extensively damaged. Twenty-seven merchant ships and 87 smaller craft were sunk in the harbor which was completely bottled up."

New Zealand Prelate Deplores Rome Bombing

Auckland, New Zealand, July 25 (AP)—Deploring the bombing of Rome, Bishop James Michael Liston, of Auckland, said in a sermon at St. Patrick's Cathedral today that "so many attempts are being made to justify it that we may well conclude the perpetrators of it have an uneasy conscience.

"If the bombing of the Eternal City with its unique Christian glories, memories and treasures was thought necessary for the cause of a better world, we are buying our victory dearly," the Catholic prelate said.

12 Flyers Die to Spare Havana Beach Crowds

U. S. Airmen Refuse to Jettison Bombs in Mid-Air Collision

HAVANA, July 25 (AP).—Two American B-25 Mitchell bombers starting on a patrol today collided in mid-air 2,000 feet above Cuban Army headquarters, killing twelve American airmen.

The planes were loaded with bombs, and some of the crewmen might have saved their lives by jettisoning the high explosives on the crowded beaches or on Army headquarters, but they tried to make crash landings at sea and the planes blew up.

Only one of the twelve bodies had been recovered several hours after the accident.

NAVY GUN CREW FOILS NAZI PLANES

Three Aircraft, Possibly Four, Downed in Running Battle.

WASHINGTON, July 25—(AP) At least three, possibly four, German airplanes were shot down by a Navy gun crew aboard an American merchantman crossing the North Atlantic, the Navy reported today.

More than 100 aerial raids and numerous submarine attacks were beaten off by the gun crew during the voyage made through severe Arctic storms.

The story of the crew was told by the Navy in announcing award of letters of commendation to all its members.

"You sailed the northern run under conditions which were remarkably trying and dangerous," wrote Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, in a letter addressed to Ensign James W. Abbott, 29, Seattle, Wash., commander of the crew.

100 Separate Raids

"The enemy attacked viciously and repeatedly with great numbers of submarines and bombers, actually making more than 100 separate aerial raids over a period of five days, and your vessel, because of her unmistakable size and type, was the specific target of each assault upon the convoy.

"In addition, she was battered by Arctic storms of such ferocity that all lifeboats were wrecked, the guns completely covered with ice, and the ship on one occasion broke down completely, so that she became perilously separated from the escorting craft."

Admiral Jacob also reported in the letters of commendation that members of the gun crew "with all guns blazing, gave battle with such terrific barrages of instantaneous, skillful, and deadly fire that they not only saved the merchantman from damage, but also sent probably three and possibly four German planes into flaming destruction."

CHAPLAIN WILL VISIT U.S. FORCES OVERSEAS

WASHINGTON, July 25 — (AP) The Rev. Dr. William Barrow Pugh, chairman of the general commission on Army and Navy chaplains, said today he will leave soon on a visit of several months to American armed forces overseas.

His tour will carry on the work started by the late Methodist Bishop Adna W. Leonard, killed in a plane crash in Iceland last spring.

Dr. Pugh, the stated clerk of the Presbyterian church in the United States, is Bishop Leonard's successor as chairman of the commission on chaplains. Accompanying him on the trip will be Chaplain George F. Rixey, deputy chief of Army chaplains.

WALLACE ATTACKS HOSTILE FACTIONS

American Fascists' Seeking to Destroy Roosevelt Gains on Home Front, He Says.

DETROIT, July 25 — (AP) Vice President Wallace asserted today that "there are powerful groups who hope to take advantage of the President's concentration on the war effort to destroy everything he has accomplished on the domestic front over the last ten years."

Mr. Wallace spoke out in defense of President Roosevelt in an address before a crowd of 14,000 at a meeting sponsored by Detroit labor and civic groupsan address in which he made no reference to the President's recent reprimand of himself and Secretary of Commerce Jones for a public quarrel over purchase of critical materials for the nation's war stock pile.

"Some people," Wallace said, "call these powerful groups 'isolationists,' others call them 'reactionaries' and still others, seeing them following in European footsteps, call them 'American Fascists.'

"Sooner or later the machinations of these small but powerful groups which put money and power first and people last will inevitably be exposed to the public eye."

Referring to his recent visit to Latin America, Mr. Wallace said that "In South America I found that the lowliest peon looked on President Roosevelt as the symbol of his dearest aspirations in the peace to come."

The Vice President called upon all Americans to begin now their "apprenticeship to world peace" by shouldering esponsibilities for "enlightenment, abundant production and world cooperation."

He asserted that "when we as victors lay down our arms in this struggle against the enslavement of the mind and soul of the human family, we take up arms immediately in the great war against starvation, in employment and the rigging of the markets of the world."

Mr. Wallace declared that the nation was not confronted with a choice between an Americanized Fascism and the restoration of prewar scarcity and unemployment saying that "too many millions of our people have come out of the dark cellars and squalor of unemployment ever to go back."

Democracy or Greed

"Our choice," he maintained, "is between democracy for everybody or for the few — between the spreading of social safeguards and economic opportunity to all the people — or the concentration of our abundant resources in the hands of selfishness and greed."

Here in Detroit, scene of a recent race riot, the Vice President said that many "patriotic and forward looking citizens are asking, 'why not start now practicing these four freedoms in our own back yard?'" "They are right," he exclaimed. "A fuller democracy for all is the lasting preventive of war. [illegible] lesser or part time democ[illegible] breeds the dissention and class conflicts that seek their solution in guns and slaughter."

"We cannot fight to crush Nazi brutality abroad," said Mr. Wallace, "and condone race riots at home. x x x We cannot plead for equality of opportunity for peoples everywhere and overlook the denial of the right to vote for millions of our own people. x x x We cannot offer the blueprints and skills to rebuild the bombed out cities of other lands and stymie and rebuilding of our own cities. Slums have no place in America. x x x We cannot assist in binding the wounds of a war stricken world and fail to safeguard the health of our own people. x x x We cannot hope to raise the literacy of other nations and fail to roll back the ignorance that clouds many communities in many sectors of our own nation."

He referred to those who have attacked his philosophy—"those twisters of fact who shriek that your Vice President is a wild-eyed dreamer trying to set up T.V.A.'s on the Danube and deliver a bottle of milk to every hottentot every morning."

Mr. Wallace suggested that those critics read the report of the Post-War Problems committee of the National Association of Manufacturers—"Business Men All"—which, he said, "has wisely declared that increased production in other countries will not reduce living standards in the United States."

America's Assets

He listed these as America's assets "when the guns stop:"

1. Manpower by the million.
2. The largest industrial plant capacity in the world.
3. The greatest resources, both natural and artificial, to make peacetime products—and thousands of new inventions waiting to be converted to peacetime use.
4. The largest scientific farm plant in the world.
5. The biggest backlog of requirements for housing, transportation, communications and living comforts.
6. The greatest reserve of accumulated savings by individuals that any nation has ever known."

"With such wealth," he asked, "who says this nation is now bankrupt?" "If industrial management," he added, "can bring the same wisdom in producing for peace that it has shown on many production fronts in the supply program for war, the horizons we face are bright."

He expressed faith in "our democratic, capitalistic system," but added that "it must be a capitalism of abundance and full employment. If we return to a capitalism of scarcity such as that which produced both 1929 and 1932, we must anticipate that the returning soldiers and displaced war workers will speak in no uncertain terms."

Lauded By Labor Leader

The Vice President was introduced by R. J. Thomas, international president of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), who called him "the architect and crusader for a new world" and one who has "spoken most clearly and most courageously for labor and the common man."

Mr. Thomas assured Mr. Wallace that "not all the men of broad girth and narrow vision x x x not all the enemies of democracy, abroad and right here at home, will prevail against you. You have one mighty weapon which they can never command. You have behind you the men and women who build America in peace-time and who produce its weapons and fight its battles in war-time."

Calling the Vice President the "champion of the plain people — labor, the farmer and small business man," Mr. Thomas added, "your plans and aspirations for a better world are also our plans and hopes. Your political and industrial enemies are but puny, selfish voices which the torrent of the people's wrath will, in due time, drown into silence."

At a Sunday breakfast at a downtown hotel, Mr. Wallace told his audience that "the safety of the world depends on raising the standards of living of Asia's millions, lest they rise up a hundred years from now as 'have-nots'."

After seeing the warplants of Wayne and Oakland counties yesterday, he said, he was convinced that "we'll have to do more than build TVA's on the Danube to keep these plants and workers busy."

He offered as a "Christian and absolutely practical" suggestion to American businessmen that they turn to India and China for post-war investment—mentioning road building and hydro-electric projects and markets for farm machinery.

FARLEY DEFENDS BOMBING OF ROME

He Says Mussolini Was Using City for Military Purposes

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 25—James A. Farley, who arrived here today for a three days' visit, commenting in an interview on the bombing of Rome, said:

"No intelligent person should complain if the military leaders deem such action necessary.

"It is apparent Mussolini had taken advantage of the proximity of the Vatican to use Rome for war purposes and he was given ample warning by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to declare it an open city."

As to politics, the one-time Democratic national chairman said that politics are now "dead."

"And that is as it should be in wartime," he continued. "But in 1944, when the war may be over or near the end, the people will again revive interest and probably be more concerned than ever in picking a President because of the days of reconstruction that lie ahead."

Rome Bombing Held "Matter Of Necessity"

Kansas City, July 25 (AP)—Bishop Edwin V. O'Hara, of the Catholic diocese, today described the bombing of Rome as "obviously a matter of necessity."

While regretful of the damage reported at the Basicila of San Lorenzo, the bishop said in an interview that "no building, whatever its antiquity, can be placed in the way of the safety of our armed forces and the progress of the war."

He added that there was no doubt that the railroad targets were important military objectives and should be attacked, and that every care was taken to avoid damage to non-military establishments.

HOOVER PROPOSES AFRICA HAVEN FOR OPPRESSED JEWS

Assure Refugees of United Nations Support, Ex-President Urges.

NEW YORK, July 25 — (AP) Former President Herbert Hoover said tonight that the uplands of central Africa might well be turned into a home for the 4,000,000 oppressed Jews in Axis-dominated Europe.

"Many of these great African areas," said Mr. Hoover, "are mandates established from the last war, in trust for all the world. Such an area in Africa could be considered sentimentally an area to Palestine."

From his home in Palo Alto, Cal., Mr. Hoover spoke to the emergency conference to save the Jewish people of Europe, a group of Jewish, Catholic and Protestant leaders from all over the country who have been meeting here the past week. His talk, heard at the conference's final session, was broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Until the permanent settlement of Jewish refugees can be arranged, Mr. Hoover said, "there should be more systematic temporary measures." He added:

"There are groups of Jews who have escaped into the neutral countries of Europe. They and any other refugees from the persecution of Fascism should be assured of support by the United Nations.

Refugee Stations

"Definite refugee stations should be arranged in these neutral countries for those who may escape. But these measures should be accompanied by arrangements to steadily transfer them from these refugee stations in neutral countries to other quarters. Possibly the release of greater numbers of refugees could be secured from the Nazi countries by European neutrals."

Mr. Hoover said several million Jews would have benefitted if during the past two years authorities had followed his advice to provide "systematic food relief of the starving women, children and unemployed men in the occupied countries."

"Relief was refused," he said, "on the ground that such action would aid the Germans. We proposed conditions that would have prevented this.

"Relief was, however, finally permitted to one of these countries, that is, Greece, under the exact conditions which we stipulated. The Greek people are being saved today, and our State department says officialy that it is not benefitting the Germans.

"Does not this experience warrant its extension to other occupied countries? It would save the lives of thousands of Jews."

TWO ALLIED SHIPS SUNK IN ATLANTIC

Past Week's Toll Raises Total to 675 Vessels Since Pearl Harbor.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The sinking of two merchant ships in the western Atlantic, made public last week, raised to 675 the Associated Press total of announced United Nations and neutral merchant ship losses in the area since Pearl Harbor.

The Navy said two persons died when an Axis submarine sank an unnamed United Nations merchant vessel in the Caribbean early in July.

Stockholm authorities said the 1,641-ton Swedish freighter, Scandiniavia, had been torpedoed in the South Atlantic and that survivors had been landed at "Guinea."

The Scandinavia was the fifth vessel of Swedish registry announced as lost in the western Atlantic since Jan. 1 and the 12th since Pearl Harbor.

Axis underseas warfare in these waters has taken an announced toll of five ships thus far in July.

Rome Reports Allies Halted

Allied thrusts were declared by the Italian high command Sunday to have been held in the eastern and central sectors of Sicily yesterday as hard fighting continued, particularly "on the northern wing of Italian positions."

The Italian communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by The Associated Press, said Leghorn was bombed and the number of casualties had not yet been ascertained. It said, however, that damage at the Ligurian sea port was slight. "Two bombers were hit by flak," the bulletin said.

A dozen Allied planes were reported to have been shot down in the last two days. The communique said casualties in a Saturday raid on Bologna were ninety-seven dead and 260 injured.

What's Behind The War News

By HAMILTON W. FARON

Appraisal of the effect upon the war of the resignation of Premier Mussolini must await future moves of the Italian government, but it appars to be the symbol of the long-expected collapse of Germany's Axis partner.

That it resulted primarily from the lightning-like conquest of most of Sicily by hard-punching Allied troops and the certainty of invasion of the mainland cannot be doubted.

The prospects of invasion have been indicated strongly by the bombing of Rome, of the toe of the Italian boot, even of Naples, on the western coast where Allied control has been gained over the Tyrrhenian sea.

Fondness of Italians for their traditions, and their towns and provinces was emphasized by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, in taking over the position of premier. It appeared likely that at least some consideration had been given to that, as well as to the economic effect of bombing of Italian industry by Allied Planes.

"The war continues," said Premiere Badoglio. But, that statement was believed in Washington to be subject to qualification—open to interpretation that the war might "continue" only until peace could be negotiated.

If such an interpretation were true, a peace with Italy would withdraw from the Axis hundreds of thousands of trained soldiers (even though they have not in recent weeks been effective) and remove from the hands of Hitler invaluable supplies of military material and support of the Italian fleet.

Immediately, withdrawal of Italy would smooth the way for Allied invasion of the Mediterranean shores of southern France, of the Hellenic peninsula and the Balkans.

The sudden, and to Washington military circles at least, wholly unexpected resignation of Mussolini came at a time that a thunderous step-up in war from the skies presaged smashing new offensives against the Axis throughout the world.

Those offensives still will come—possibly soon in some sectors.

Two Sharp Indices

Throughout the world's war fronts the increasing tempo of battering air and naval assaults was boldly underscored by the Hamburg raid—greatest attacks on a single target from the air—and the 1,800 mile flight of Flying Fortresses almost to the Arctic to batter Trondheim in western Norway.

In 50 blast-filled, flaming minutes Saturday night, R.A.F. fliers dumped 2,600 tons — American weight—of bombs on Hamburg, submarine and shipbuilding center that plays the principal part in keeping Axis shipping in action.

Then with Sunday's daylight American heavy bombers thundering over the city to add new destruction.

At almost the same time other bombers and fighting planes on all war fronts from the Mediterranean to the jungles of Burma were carrying the war in the air to the Axis. And all were operating with outstanding success and surprisingly few losses among the giant flights.

Each of the aerial assaults and fighter engagements added new support to invasion possibilities, for all could be a part of a softening up campaign prior to putting ground troops ashore on scattered beachheads.

Pacific Thrust Apparent

The European theater, where Allied might is poised on all sides awaiting the moment to launch new offensives, provides half a dozen or more likely fields for new drives. But, it is in the Pacific that new assaults appear nearer.

Kiska, Japanese-held island in the Aleutians, blasted with day-to-day regularity for weeks, and bombarded as well by heavy naval units, may be the next enemy base to fall. The prolonged aerial and naval bombardments have softened it for ground troops when they start the job of ferreting out the estimated 10,000 Japanese garrisoned there. To the southwest in the Solomons, Munda, also blasted from the air, likewise has been battered to the point where it is only a question now of how soon American troops will finally drive the Japanese from that New Georgia island airbase.

And on the other side of the world, from the North cape of Norway almost to the Dardanelles the spectre of invasion haunts the Axis.

The constant thread of transchannel operations from England against France and the western coast of Europe never has lessened, forcing retention there of Axis ground and air power that is badly needed in the Mediterranean and on the Russian front.

CAPTAIN GENDREAU KILLED

Medical Officer a Victim in a Japanese Bombing Raid

HONOLULU, July 24 (AP)—Capt. E. A. M. Gendreau, 55, surgeon and medical officer of the United States Pacific Fleet, was killed during a Japanese bombing raid on Rendova Island in the central Solomons a few days ago.

Death of the veteran naval officer was announced today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of Pacific Ocean areas.

Captain Gendreau was killed while on one of his regular inspection trips to the South Pacific. No other details were disclosed.

Solid Economic Basis Found for All Americas

JOHN LLOYD

JUL 26 43

MEXICO CITY, July 25—(AP) Belief that a solid economic foundation on which to anchor projects for a future bloc of American nations has been found was expressed widely here today following publication of a report by Mexican and American experts recommending steps to build up Mexican industry with United States wartime and post-war cooperation.

The recommendations of the Mexican-American Commission for Economic Cooperation, which in brief proclaims the death of economic imperialism and urges aid to industrialize Mexico and raise the Mexican people's standard of living, were treated as a first class sensation. They were viewed here not just from the angle of Mexican-American relations but from that of the relations between the United States and Latin America as a whole.

Four Recommendations

The commission recommended (A) that Mexico focus her efforts on turning out strategically needed war materials, with the U. S. supplying equipment for that production; (B) that Mexico develop industries useful in peace as well as in war; (C) immediate and long-term projects to aid the war effort or not interfere with it, in chemical, electrical and metallurgical industries and those handling rubber, cement, alcohol and paper; and (D) establishment of a committee in Mexico of government, bank and industry representatives to cooperate with a U. S. delegate in developing the program.

Given first page streamer heads in the newspapers, topping the war news, the story also was the prime subject of conversation among Latin American diplomats, who placed emphasis on the beneficial effect the recommendations could have on the future of all the American nations.

Statements by Vice President Henry A. Wallace and Nector Lazo of the Bureau of Economic Warfare during their recent tour of South America, that industrialization of Latin America should be encouraged, had won applause but had lacked the tangible step which the commission's report now constitutes.

The scope the report was intended to cover is indicated in its concluding remarks, signed by the American commissioners, Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne C. Taylor and Harry D. White and the Mexican members Evaristo Araiza and Valentin Garfias. They said in summary that the economic "truths" set forth in the report could "become realities more quickly in this hemisphere than in almost any other part of the world."

Plan for Future World

Development of the program of cooperation between Mexico and the United States—the most feasible immediate phase of the greater project—they added, could well set an example and fix the rules that will govern the "world of tomorrow."

Latin American diplomats, who had been anxiously awaiting the report as a document that might make history, viewed the recommendations in exactly those terms. There was wide approval although remarks were tempered by regret that the shipping problem primarily would hamper quick large scale cooperation of the kind in countries not enjoying land connections with the United States.

The frank manner in which the commissioners dealt with wartime transportation difficulties, however, was generally appreciated. The point had been previously driven home, during the Wallace tour, when Latin Americans were told that the war effort must come first and that where shipping is needed to supply troops fighting abroad that shipping cannot be diverted.

Offsetting the fact that these difficulties must be recognized was the emphasis the report placed on the continuing nature of the cooperation, to extend into the post-war period as a permanent procedure. Most comment took this amply into account as promising future action that would be extended as rapidly as conditions permitted to all of Latin America.

Exploitation Ended

All the newspapers here gave prominence to the report's statement that "the days of exploitation or economic imperialism, whether by nations or powerful private groups, are over." "No Mexican or United States government in the future will consent to them or permit their reappearance," the report added.

This phrase in particular made a hit in Mexico where, justly or unjustly, the subject of economic imperialism has been for years a prime matter of discussion.

Mexican spokesmen have been insisting that conditions in this country permit safe investment here of foreign capital and that new foreign capitalistic enterprises would be welcomed. Former President Emilio Portes Gil, who now practices law, declared that so long as the enterprises respected established Mexican laws they would have no difficulty. He maintained that Mexican laws governing industrial investments and employment were more conservative than similar laws in most other countries and that they had been a subject of controversy simply because they were new.

The report of the Mexican and American commissioners held that by expanding Mexican industry the standard of living of Mexican workers will automatically be improved, which will permit greater purchases of agricultural products. The increased purchasing power of the population as a whole, it said, will enable the country to argument its purchases from foreign countries.

This is the basis of argument being used by promoters of the idea of expanded industry throughout Latin America, the thesis being that industrialization of presently undeveloped countries will not actually harm highly industrialized exporting countries such as the United States.

Victory Most Urgent

The commissioners made it plain in their report that victory in arms is the most urgent problem and it must take precedence in any cooperative effort. Mexico, they therefore recommended, should continue to concentrate her efforts on producing materials of strategic use in the war effort ,and the United States should continue to supply equipment to help produce such materials. This—"until final victory is won."

But the long term program is also provided for in a recommendation that Mexico create wherever possible industry that will be useful in peacetime as well as war.

A "guiding principle" recognized by the commission was that Mexico's industrialization should be carried into effect as rapidly as possible. The commissioners announced that they had studied programs for development in Mexico of electrical, chemical and metallurgical industries as well as industries handling rubber, cement, alcohol and paper. They have passed on and recommended projects of immediate and long term nature which can contribute directly or indirectly to the war effort or which will not interfere with it.

Creation in Mexico of a small committee was recommended to develop the industrialization program. It would be made up of representatives of the government, banks and industry and would have the cooperation of a delegate appointed by the United States government.

THIRD LEAD BRITISH AERIAL

BY LYNN HEINZERLING

LONDON, MONDAY, JULY 26-(AP)-AMERICAN FOUR-ENGINED BOMBERS IN THEIR DEEPEST STAB INTO GERMANY BLASTED FOUR AXIS BASES BY DAYLIGHT SUNDAY, INCLUDING HAMBURG WHOSE RUINS STILL WERE BURNING FROM A RECORD 2,300-TON RAF ATTACK DELIVERED SATURDAY NIGHT.

HARDLY HAD THEY RETURNED WHEN THE RAF ROARED OFF AGAIN TO BATTER THE CONTINENT LAST NIGHT AND EARLY TODAY.

THE AMERICANS, STRIKING THE MIGHTIEST SINGLE DAY'S ONSLAUGHT OF THE WAR, LOST 19 OF THEIR UNESCORTED PLANES IN ATTACKING AIRCRAFT FACTORIES AT WARNEMUNDE, NEAR THE BALTIC SEAPORT OF ROSTOCK, THE SEAPLANE BASE AT WUSTROW, AND THE SHIPYARDS AT KIEL, AND HAMBURG.

"BURSTS WERE OBSERVED IN ALL TARGET AREAS," SAID THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

U.S.ARMY MEDIUM BOMBERS WITH A SPITFIRE ESCORT ALSO BOMBED INDUSTRIAL TARGETS NEAR GHENT, BELGIUM, AND MANY OTHER TARGETS WERE ATTACKED BY ALLIED AIRMEN IN OCCUPIED HOLLAND AND FRANCE.

HAMBURG, GERMANY'S MOST VITAL PORT AND SUBMARINE CENTER, SUFFERED AN UNPRECEDENTED BEATING BY 1,000 RAF PLANES SATURDAY NIGHT. THE 2,300 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES AND FIRE BOMBS THEY DROPPED LEFT BLACK SMOKE RISING FOUR MILES OVER THE SEAPORT WHICH HAD UNDERGONE 99 BOMBINGS.

IT WAS THE GREATEST AERIAL ASSAULT EVER LAUNCHED AGAINST A SINGLE TARGET, AND IT COST THE BRITISH 12 BOMBERS.

THEN U.S.FLYING FORTRESSES TOOK OFF YESTERDAY TO ADD TO HAMBURG'S GAPING WOUNDS. BEATING OFF AN ENEMY FORCE OF 200 FIGHTERS AND PLUNGING THROUGH A MILE-THICK WALL OF GERMAN FIRE THE BIG BOMBERS

30.24-6523

SPREAD THE DEVASTATION IN THAT PORT.

"A LARGE NUMBER" OF ENEMY FIGHTERS CRASHED IN FLAMES WHEN THEY SOUGHT TO PROTECT HAMBURG AND THE OTHER TARGETS IN GERMANY, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

THE FLYING FORTRESS FORMATION THAT HAMMERED A GIANT FOCHE-WULF ASSEMBLY PLANT AT WARNEMUNDE FLEW A 1,500-MILE ROUNDTRIP.

WHILE THESE LONG-RANGE AMERICAN HEAVYWEIGHTS WERE BORING INTO GERMANY, SWARMS OF ALLIED BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS ATTACKED NUMEROUS OBJECTIVES IN OCCUPIED BELGIUM, HOLLAND, AND FRANCE.

MANY SKY BATTLES RESULTED, THE ALLIED PLANES SHOOTING DOWN FOUR ENEMY PLANES AND LOSING SEVEN ALTHOUGH THE PILOT OF ONE WAS REPORTED SAFE.

THE ALLIES ATTACKED ENEMY AIRFIELDS NEAR ANTWERP AND AMSTERDAM IN THE SWEEPS.

U.S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED THAT "VERY GOOD BOMBING RESULTS ARE INDICATED BY PHOTOGRAPHS MADE DURING SATURDAY'S DAYLIGHT ATTACK BY 8TH AIR FORCE HEAVY BOMBERS ON TWO GERMAN TARGETS IN NORWAY."

"COMPLETE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS ARE NOT YET AVAILABLE," IT SAID, "BUT PICTURES MADE FROM FLYING FORTRESSES SHOW THAT THE FIRST BOMBS DROPPED AT HEROYA HIT THE CENTER OF ALUMINUM AND MAGNESIUM INSTALLATIONS THERE AND SUBSEQUENT BOMBS BLANKETED THE ENTIRE PLANT.

"DIRECT HITS ON THE RECTIFIER STATION AND CHLORINATION UNIT IN THE MAGNESIUM WORKS ARE SHOWN, PLUS DIRECT HITS ON THE FOUNDRY IN THE ALUMINUM PLANT AND ON THE POWER STATION AND SODIUM NITRATE UNIT IN THE NITRATE PLANT," THE ANNOUNCEMENT CONTINUED. "HITS ON MANY OTHER BUILDINGS AND STORES ARE INDICATED.

"AT TRONDHEIM THE PHOTOS SHOW A HEAVY CONCENTRATION OF HITS ON THE NAVAL WORKSHOPS--THE AIMING POINT--ADJACENT TO THE U-BOAT BASIN. THE SHOPS WERE COMPLETELY OBSCURED BY BLACK SMOKE A SHORT TIME LATER. A COLUMN OF DENSE BLACK SMOKE NEARLY 15,000 FEET HIGH IS BELIEVED TO INDICATE HITS ON OIL STORAGE TANKS.

"THE PICTURES ALSO SHOW NUMEROUS HITS ON MILITARY HUTS AND PERSONNEL BARRACKS BETWEEN THE U-BOAT BASIN AND AIRFIELD."

DESCRIBING THE BOMBING RESULTS OF THE FORMATION THAT ATTACKED U-BOAT INSTALLATIONS AT TRONDHEIM, FIRST LT.JOHN LEE OF TIPTON, PA., SAID: "WE SURE KNOCKED HELL OUT OF THE TARGET. I COULD SEE VERY BLACK SMOKE AND LOTS OF FLAMES FROM THE WORKSHOPS SHOOTING UP TO 3,000 FEET."

"THE BOMBING WAS DARNED GOOD," DECLARED TECH.SGT.TEX J.NEELY OF OSCEOLA, IND., RADIO OPERATOR. "EVERY BOMB HIT I SAW WAS RIGHT IN THE TARGET AREA."

STAFF SGT.FLOYD L.THOMPSON, CHEROKEE INDIAN BALL TURRET GUNNER FROM DURHAM, OKLA., SAID "WE CERTAINLY BLEW THAT PLACE APART. WE MUST HAVE HIT OIL DUMPS. I SAW A TERRIFIC FLASH OF FLAME AND RIGHT AFTER IT HEAVY BLACK SMOKE CAME OUT."

SGT.BILLIE E.CLAPPER OF WINFIELD, KAS., TOP TURRET GUNNER, SAID HE SAW ABOUT 12 OR 15 JERRY FIGHTERS "BUT THEY WEREN'T ABLE TO DO US ANY DAMAGE."

"ONE YELLOW-NOSED SO AND SO CAME IN AT 3 O'CLOCK," SAID SGT.DANIEL C.RANGOLD, GARFIELD, N.J., RIGHT WAIST GUNNER ON "LUFTWAFFE LULLABY." "WHEN HE CAME IN TO ABOUT 500 YARDS I GAVE HIM A BURST AND HE TURNED OVER AND WENT STRAIGHT DOWN. THE OTHER WAIST GUNNER SAW HIM HIT THE WATER. I MUST HAVE HIT THE PILOT."

SGT.ALBERT M.FRIECAS OF OAKLAND, CALIF., BALL TURRET GUNNER, ON "OUR BABY," SAID "I WAS SITTING THERE MINDING MY OWN BUSINESS WHEN AN FW CAME OUT OF THE CLOUDS 1,000 FEET UNDER THE SHIP. I DON'T THINK HE KNEW WE WERE THERE, SO I JUST KNOCKED HIM OFF BEFORE HE FOUND OUT."

SGT.DEWITT J.WEIR OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX., TOP TURRET GUNNER, KNOCKED DOWN AN ME-109.

JUL 261943

"HE CAME IN TO ABOUT 100 YARDS," SAID WEIR. "HE OUGHT TO HAVE KNOWN BETTER. HIS SHIP MADE A NICE WHITE SPLASH IN THE WATER."

TECH.SGT.LEVI H.CARTER OF CARROLLTON, GA., RIGHT WAIST GUNNER ON THE "BRASS RAIL BOYS," TOLD HOW HE GOT A GERMAN: "AT 500 YARDS I GAVE ONE FW A SHORT BURST AND THE PLANE BROKE INTO FLAMES. THEN HE WENT INTO A SPIN. OUR TAIL GUNNER SAW HIM CRASH."

SECOND LT.RAYMOND M.STALEY OF BALTIMORE, MD., NAVIGATOR OF THE FORTRESS "HEL-N-BAC," SAID:

"THREE JERRIES CAME OUT TO MEET US WHEN WE CROSSED THE GERMAN COAST, BUT THEY TURNED TAIL AND THEY WERE THE LAST FIGHTERS I SAW ALL DAY. OUR CREWS WERE SIMPLY AMAZED. WITH NOTHING TO DO THEY SPENT MOST OF THE TRIP SINGING TO EACH OTHER OVER THE INTERPHONE."

RELATING HOW HIS FORMATION DROPPED BOMBS ON THREE DIFFERENT TARGETS, STALEY COMMENTED, "BOY, WE BOMBED ALL OVER GERMANY TODAY."

FIRST LT.W.R.FITZGERALD OF KALAMAZOO, MICH., BOMBARDIER OF THE "LULU," PILOTED BY FIRST LT.WILLIAM K.THOMAS OF LONG ISLAND, N.Y., DESCRIBED THE FLIGHT AS A "COOK'S TOUR OF GERMANY WITHOUT THE BENEFIT OF GOERING'S BOYS." "IT WAS JUST A BREEZE," HE SAID, "COMPARED TO OUR LAST TRIP TO KIEL. I SAW ONLY FOUR OR FIVE FIGHTERS ALL DAY."

FITZGERALD SAID HE SAW "BIG CLOUDS OF SMOKE AND GREAT FLASHES OF FIRE" COMING UP AT WARNEMUNDE. THIS REPORT WAS CORROBORATED BY FIRST LT.HENRY M.QUIRK OF NEWTON CENTER, MASS., A PILOT.

FIRST LT.JOHN L.SUNDBERG OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., PILOT OF "THE ASSASSIN," WHICH CAME BACK WITH 14 HOLES, DESCRIBED THE KIEL FLAK AS "THE WORST I'VE EVER SEEN." HIS NAVIGATOR, SECOND LT.WILLIAM K. MCNATH OF LYONS, GA., ADDED THAT "HONEST, THERE WAS ONE PATCH OF A SOLID WALL OF FLAK ABOUT A MILE SQUARE."

JUL 261943

SGT.JOHN A.NEAL, JR., OF ARLINGTON, VA., BALL TURRET GUNNER, SAID FLAK EXPLODED SO CLOSE "MY EARS ARE STILL RINGING." HIS NAVIGATOR, SECOND LT.RALPH GUINSBURG, CHAPPAQUA, N.Y., REPORTED SEEING ONLY TWO FIGHTERS AND SGT.CARL CAMPBELL OF ALEXANDRIA, LA., TOP TURRET GUNNER, SAID, "I ONLY FIRED 20 ROUNDS TODAY, COMPARED WITH 700 ROUNDS ON MY LAST RAID AT LE BOURGET."

THE INTENSITY OF THE KIEL FLAK WAS "ABSOLUTELY NO COMPARISON WITH THE LAST RAID THERE," DECLARED FIRST LT.THOMAS J.NIX OF BRUNSON, S.C., NAVIGATOR OF THE "PRINCESS." FIRST LT.D.W.JOHNSON OF DENTON, GA., BOMBARDIER, SAID: "WE LAID A GOOD PATTERN OF BOMBS ON THOSE SHIP-YARDS. I SAW EXPLOSIONS ALL OVER THEM."

30.24-6525

SGT.ALFRED SILBA OF CAMBRIDGE, MASS., BALL TURRET GUNNER ON A FORTRESS PILOTED BY FIRST LT.S.W.SOUTH OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., TOLD HOW ONE FORTRESS KNOCKED OUT A LONG ROW OF NINE ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS.

"I SAW THIS BOMBER--DON'T KNOW WHO HE WAS--PEEL OFF FORMATION AND MAKE A BOMB RUN OVER THE BATTERY. HE GOT 'EM ALL RIGHT, FOR UP CAME A BIG CLOUD OF SMOKE AND DUST, AND THERE WAS NO MORE FLAK FROM THAT SPOT."

SILBA SAID ONE EXPLODING FLAK SHELL "BOUNCED" HIS PLANE 50 FEET UP AND HE GOT READY TO BAIL OUT.

FLIGHT OFFICERS ROBERT L.CARSON OF FORT WORTH, TEX., CO-PILOT OF THE "AMERICAN BEAUTY," REPORTED "LOTS OF FIRES AROUND KIEL."

THE FORTRESSES FROM THIS STATION WERE LED BY CAPT.JOHN A.STORIE OF WALLA WALLA, WASH., PILOT OF THE "LONESOME POLE CAT."

LONDON, JULY 25-(AP)-THE BERLIN RADIO IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SAID THAT BRITISH SPEED BOATS HAD ATTACKED A GERMAN CONVOY OFF THE DUTCH COAST EARLY TODAY, AND THAT ONE BRITISH SHIP AND ONE GERMAN ESCORT VESSEL WERE LOST.

THE BROADCAST ADDED THAT GERMAN SHIPS LATER ATTACKED BRITISH BOATS SOUTHWEST OF IJMUIDEN OFF THE DUTCH COAST, DESTROYING THREE BRITISH TORPEDO BOATS.

LONDON, JULY 25-(AP)-THE U.S.ARMY TOOK OVER A FORMER BARON'S SIX-STORY TOWN HOUSE FOR THE FIRST GROUP OF WAACS ARRIVING HERE, AND THE GIRLS WERE IMPRESSED WITH ITS SIZE UNTIL THEY SAW BUCKINGHAM PALACE DURING A SIGHTSEEING TOUR TODAY.

"WE THINK WE'RE LIVING IN A BIG BUILDING--BUT GET A LOAD OF WHERE THE KING AND QUEEN LIVE," SAID PRIVATE FLOYDA HENDERSON OF FAIRMOUNT, W.VA.

THIS FIRST UNIT OF THE WOMAN'S ARMY CORPS IS HERE FOR SPECIAL COURSES IN COMMUNICATIONS BEFORE GOING ON DUTY WITH THE U.S.EIGHTH AIR FORCE, AND THE GIRLS WERE TAKEN ON A TOUR OF THE TOWN BY THE AMERICAN RED CROSS.

AMONG THOSE MAKING THE TRIP WERE PRIVATE ADELINE TUTTLE OF JACKSONVILLE, FLA., FIRST SGT.VIRGINIA ROSEKRANS AND SERGT.DOROTHY FULLER OF PORTLAND, ME., PRIVATE LYDIA WEIMAR OF LAMAR, COLO., AND PRIVATE JUANITA WEIMER OF DODGE CITY, KANS. THE LATTER TWO ARE NOT RELATED, BUT BOTH HAD BEEN TELEPHONE OPERATORS IN LONG BEACH, CALIF., HAD WORKED AND LIVED TOGETHER AND JOINED THE WAACS TOGETHER. THEY NOW ARE ON DUTY IN THE SAME DETACHMENT.

THEY SAW CHURCHILL'S RESIDENCE, THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT AND BIG BEN, AND WERE AWED BY SECTIONS THAT HAD SUFFERED HEAVILY IN AIR RAIDS.

THE WAACS WERE STANDING ON THE PAVEMENT PEERING AT THE TOWER OF LONDON WHEN A COMPANY OF AUXILIARY TERRITORIAL SERVICE GIRLS CAME MARCHING BY. THE WAACS QUICKLY LINED THE CURB FOR THEIR FIRST GLIMPSE OF THEIR BRITISH SISTERS IN KHAKI, AND THE ATS COMPANY COMMANDER, SPOTTING A WAAC OFFICER, SALUTED AND GAVE THE COMMAND EYES RIGHT--SO THE ATS COULD LOOK AT THE WAACS.

THE SALUTE WAS RETURNED BY WAAC PRESS RELATIONS OFFICER LIEUT. HENRIETTE HORAK OF SAN FRANCISCO, WHO IS DUBBED "HANK THE LITTLE GIANT."

THE ATS GIRLS WERE DISMISSED DOWN THE BLOCK AND BEGAN DRIFTING BACK SHYLY. THE WAACS EYED THEM WITH INTEREST. SOON THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN WOMEN SOLDIERS WERE DEEP IN CONVERSATION.

THE WAACS WERE GETTING SETTLED OVER THE WEEKEND. THE FIRST GROUP OF THEM WHICH SAILED TO AFRICA HAD TO CARRY THEIR OWN BARRACKS BAGS ON TO THE BOAT. UNCLE SAM HAD HIS SOLDIERS HANDLE THE BAGS AND LOCKER TRUNKS FOR THE WAACS ON THEIR JOURNEY THIS TIME, ONLY OVERLOOKING THE FACT THE ELEVATOR WAS NOT WORKING AND THAT THE GIRLS WOULD HAVE TO CARRY THEM FROM THE FOYER TO THE UPPER FLOORS.

A U.S.BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND,JULY 25-(AP)-FLYING FORTRESS CREWS DODGED THE GERMANS' BIGGEST FLAK BARRAGE YET AND OUTFOUGHT ONE OF THE ENEMY'S BIGGEST FIGHTER FORCES--ABOUT 200 PLANES--TO BOMB WHATEVER WAS LEFT OF HAMBURG TODAY AFTER LAST NIGHT'S RAF RECORD BLOW AT THE BIG TOWN.

JUL 26 1943

"I NEVER SAW SUCH A WALL OF FLAK--IT WENT RIGHT FROM 20,000 FEET UP TO 35,000 AND STRETCHED THICK FOR MILES," SAID MAJ.KIRK MITCHELL OF OKLAHOMA CITY, LEADER OF THE GROUP FROM THIS BASE.

"I THINK WE DID A PRETTY GOOD BOMBING JOB," HE ADDED--"DESPITE THE HEAVY SMOKE SCREEN, MUCH OF WHICH DOUBTLESS CAME FROM FIRES STARTED BY THE RAF."

WE HAD THE TARGET PRETTY WELL COVERED," SAID SERGT. PAUL HENDERSON OF GENEAUTRY, OKLA. (CORRECT), A GUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "UPSTAIRS MAID", PILOTED BY LIEUT. JOHN CASELLO OF CINCINNATI, O.

"THE RAF DID A PRETTY GOOD JOB OF BOMBING HAMBURG AND I THINK WE HELPED THEM ON QUITE A BIT," SAID HENDERSON.

THE GERMAN FIGHTER DEFENSE, WHILE EXCEPTIONALLY LARGE, WAS NOT AS INTENSIVE AS ON SOME RAIDS BUT THE GERMAN LOSSES WERE MUCH HEAVIER, THE FLIERS SAID.

"I'VE NEVER SEEN SO MUCH FLAK AND SO MANY FIGHTERS," SAID SERGT. ANTHONY CALCO, 33 NETHERWOOD ST., NEWARK, N.'., "UPSTAIRS MAID'S" RADIO GUNNER.

"IN 24 RAIDS I HAD SEEN ONLY ONE FIGHTER GO DOWN--TODAY I SAW FIVE. THEY WERE FALLING LIKE FLIES," SAID LIEUT. RIPLEY JOY, 2918 21ST AVE., SAN FRANCISCO, THE PILOT OF THE "MIRACLE SHIP", "HELL'S ANGELS.". "THIS WASN'T THE TOUGHEST RAID I'VE BEEN ON BUT IT WAS RIGHT UP IN THERE. BREMEN WAS THE WORST BUT THIS WAS A CLOSE SECOND."

"WHEN WE GOT TO THE GERMAN COAST COMING BACK OUR FIGHTERS CAME IN AT US," RECOUNTED SERGT. JIMMY JAMESON OF PONCA CITY, OKLA, A WAIST GUNNER.

JUL 26 1943

"THE FIRST THREE WENT UNDER US. THE LAST ONE CAME RIGHT AT US. I LET HIM HAVE IT. I STARTED WHEN HE WAS ABOUT 500 YARDS OUT AND KEPT SHOOTING UNTIL HE CAME IN TO ABOUT 50 YARDS--ABOUT 100 ROUNDS. HE TURNED OVER ON HIS BACK AND WENT INTO A DIVE AND THE OTHER BOYS SAW HIM GO DOWN OUT OF CONTROL."

SERGT. RALPH STROHSAK OF CLEVELAND, O., GUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "WINNING RUN", PILOTED BY LIEUT. ALEX STRICKLAND OF SLATON, TEX., KEPT UP THE DUEL WITH THE NAZI PILOTS EVEN THOUGH A 20 MILLIMETER SHELL KNOCKED HIM RIGHT OUT OF THE TOP TURRET AND GAVE HIM A BRUN ON THE SHOULDER.

"HE JUST PICKED HIMSELF UP, CLIMBED BACK INTO THE TURRET AND KEPT FIRING UNTIL WE HAD CROSSED THE COAST," SAID LIEUT. CURTIS OLSEN, 29 SPOONER ST., FLORAL PARK, LONG ISLAND, N.Y., THE CO-PILOT.

THEN BOMBARDIER LIEUT. EDWIN LAMME OF FRESNO, CALIF., CLIMBED BACK AND CUT AWAY STROHSAK'S CLOTHES AND PUT OINTMENT ON HIS BURN.

CAPT. BARRY WHEELER OF LAWRENCE, MASS., RODE AS OBSERVER. LIEUT. CARL HOKANS OF HOLLY, MICH., WAS NAVIGATOR.

"IT WAS ABOUT AS GOOD A RAID AS ANY WE'VE HAD RATHER JUST AS TOUGH," SAID LIEUT. WILLIAM LEFEVRE OF ELKHART, IND., PILOT OF THE FORTRESS "FLAK-WOLF" WHO WAS MAKING HIS FINAL RAID.

THREE MEMBERS OF HIS CREW CLAIMED GERMANS SHOT DOWN--BOMBARDIER LIEUT. ABBOT SMITH OF WESTCHESTER, PA.; NAVIGATOR LIEUT. CHARLES L. HERMAN OF HOUSTON, TEX., AND WAIST GUNNER WILLIAM FLEMING OF JENKINS, KY.

JUL 26 1943

THE DAY'S "JINX SHIP" WAS "YANKEE DOODLE DANDEE" WHICH HAD TWO SUCCESSIVE BALL TURRET GUNNERS PASS OUT FROM LACK OF OXYGEN BEFORE THE GOT OUT OF GERMANY, BUT THE PLANE DIDN'T HAVE ITS REALLY CLOSE SHAVE UNTIL IT WAS ALL THE WAY HOME.

THEN, AN ENGINE FAILURE JUST AS IT WAS LANDING NEARLY CAUSED A CRASH--NARROWLY AVERTED BY THE SKILLFUL PILOTING OF LIEUT. ARNI SUMARLIDASON OF SEATTLE.

JUL 26 1943

IT WAS THE FINAL RAID ALSO FOR SERGT. ROBERT PLUMMER OF EXETER, MO., A FIVE-FOOT, TWO-INCH BALL TURRET GUNNER ON THE "UPSTAIRS MAID."

OUTSIDE OF FLYING AS A GUNNER IN SOME OTHER THEATER FOR WHICH HE HAS APPLIED PLUMMER SAID, "WHAT I WANT TO DO MOST IS TO GET BACK TO THAT LITTLE OLD HILL FARM IN MISSOURI."

HIS FELLOW GUNNER SERGT. PAUL HENDERSON ALSO WAS FINISHING HIS LAST RAID HERE AND SAID, "I'D LIKE TO GO TO THE PACIFIC WHERE ONLY 30 OR 40 FIGHTERS SOAR UP TO MEET YOU--WE HAD AT LEAST 200 TODAY."

A U.S. BOMBER STATION IN BRITAIN, JULY 29 (AP)--EXCEPTIONALLY STRONG FORMATIONS OF FORTRESSES--POSSIBLY THE LARGEST EVER DISPATCHED FROM BRITAIN--RANGED FAR AND WIDE OVER GERMANY TODAY IN THE SECOND SUCCESSIVE DAY OF ASSAULT ON HITLER'S EUROPE.

FORTRESSES FROM THIS STATION WHICH BLASTED KIEL SHIPYARDS AND THE GIANT FOCKE-WULF ASSEMBLY PLANT AT WARNEMUNDE MET AMAZINGLY LITTLE FIGHTER OPPOSITION.

SOME FORMATIONS DROPPED THOUSANDS OF INCENDIARIES ON THE WARNEMUNDE TARGET, SAVING THEIR HIGH EXPLOSIVES FOR KIEL, BUT ENROUTE TO THE LATTER PLACE THEY UNLOADED A FEW BOMBS ON THE SEAPLANE BASE NEAR WUSTROW, 20 MILES EAST OF WARNEMUNDE ON LUBECK BAY, THE CREWS SAID.

THE PUNISHING ATTACK ON KIEL WAS SWEET REVENGE FROM THE BOYS OF THIS STATION, WHICH LOST 10 OF 20 BOMBERS MISSING FROM THE LAST AMERICAN RAID ON THE U-BOAT BASES ON JUNE 13.

THE QUESTION ON EVERYBODY'S LIPS TODAY WAS "WHERE WERE THE GERMAN FIGHTERS?"

JUL 26 1943

IN CONTRAST TO THE MORE THAN 200 GERMAN FIGHTERS ENCOUNTERED OVER KIEL ON JUNE 13, ONLY A PALTRY HALF DOZEN OR SO WERE SIGHTED IN THAT AREA TODAY, THE ASTONISHED FLIERS SAID. MANY CREWS REPORTED THEY DIDN'T SEE A SINGLE FIGHTER THROUGHOUT THE ENTIRE TRIP.

IT WAS A 1,500-MILE ROUND TRIP TO WARNEMUNDE, BALTIC SEAPORT EIGHT MILES NORTH OF ROSTOCK WHERE 25 PER CENT OF THE LUFTWAFFE FIGHTER AIRCRAFT ARE PRODUCED. IT WAS ALSO THE SECOND UNPRECEDENTED LONG DISTANCE FLIGHT BY EIGHTH AIR FORCE HEAVIES. YESTERDAY AMERICAN PLANES MADE THEIR FIRST FORAY INTO NORWAY TO BLAST TRONDHEIM IN A 2,000-MILE ROUND TRIP.

RESULTS OF THE KEIL AND WARNEMUNDE ATTACK WERE DESCRIBED AS GOOD. RETURNING FLIERS REPORTED MANY BOMB BURSTS AND FIRES THROUGHOUT THE KIEL AREA AND FIRES AND SMOKE WHICH MUSHROOMED UPWARD 1,000 FEET FROM WARNEMUNDE. A FACTORY AT THE LATTER TARGET COVERED 400,000 SQUARE FEET. IT WAS THE FIRST AMERICAN

HIGHLY PLEASED WITH THE DAY'S WORK, BRIG.GEN.FREDERICK L. ANDERSON, CHIEF OF THE EIGHTH AIRFORCE BOMBER COMMAND, SAID:

"THE ATTACK UPON HAMBURG, GERMANY'S GREATEST SEAPORT AND U-BOAT BUILDING CENTER IS AN EXAMPLE OF THE PERFECT COORDINATION WITH THE RAF IN PLANNING AND EXECUTION.

"WE HAVE KNOWN FOR SOME TIME THAT THE GERMANS HAD CONCENTRATED THEIR STRONGEST FIGHTER AND ANTIAIRCRAFT DEFENSES AROUND HAMBURG, SURE INDICATION OF THE IMPORTANCE THEY ATTACH TO THE CITY. NAZI PROPAGANDISTS RECENTLY GAVE SOLEMN ASSURANCE TO THE GERMAN PEOPLE THAT NO MORE DAYLIGHT AMERICAN BOMBERS WOULD INVADE NORTHWESTERN GERMANY.

"WITH THEIR ATTACKS UPON HAMBURG AND SHIPYARD AT KIEL OUR BOMBER CREWS MUST HAVE CONSIDERABLY SHAKEN WHAT LITTLE FAITH THE GERMAN PEOPLE STILL HAVE IN NAZI PROMISES."

JUL 26 1943

ALTHOUGH THE LUFTWAFFE WAS MYSTERIOUSLY ABSENT, THE RAIDERS RECEIVED A WARM RECEPTION FROM KIEL ANTIAIRCRAFT BATTERIES. THE MAJORITY OF FORTRESSES AT THIS STATION RETURNED WITH FLAK PUNCTURES. THE STATION'S ONLY CASUALTIES WERE ONE BOMBER MISSING AND THE PILOT OF ANOTHER FATALLY WOUNDED.

SECOND LT.RAYMOND M.STALEY OF BALTIMORE, MD., NAVIGATOR OF THE FORTRESS "HEL-M-BAC," SAID:

"THREE JERRIES CAME OUT TO MEET US WHEN WE CROSSED THE GERMAN COAST, BUT THEY TURNED TAIL AND THEY WERE THE LAST FIGHTERS I SAW ALL DAY. OUR CREWS WERE SIMPLY AMAZED. WITH NOTHING TO DO THEY SPENT MOST OF THE TRIP SINGING TO EACH OTHER OVER THE INTERPHONE."

RELATING HOW HIS FORMATION DROPPED BOMBS ON THREE DIFFERENT TARGETS, STALEY COMMENTED, "BOY, WE BOMBED ALL OVER GERMANY TODAY."

FIRST LT.W.R.FITZGERALD OF KALAMAZOO, MICH., BOMBARDIER OF THE "LULU," PILOTED BY FIRST LT.WILLIAM K.THOMAS OF LONG ISLAND, N.Y., DESCRIBED THE FLIGHT AS A "COOK'S TOUR OF GERMANY WITHOUT THE BENEFIT OF GOERING'S BOYS." "IT WAS JUST A BREEZE," HE SAID, "COMPARED TO OUR LAST TRIP TO KIEL. I SAW ONLY FOUR OR FIVE FIGHTERS ALL DAY."

FITZGERALD SAID HE SAW "BIG CLOUDS OF SMOKE AND GREAT FLASHES OF FIRE" COMING UP AT WARNEMUNDE. THIS REPORT WAS CORROBORATED BY FIRST LT.HENRY M.QUIRK OF NEWTON CENTER, MASS., A PILOT.

FIRST LT.JOHN L.SUNDBERG OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., PILOT OF "THE ASSASSIN," WHICH CAME BACK WITH 44 HOLES, DESCRIBED THE KIEL FLAK AS "THE WORST I'VE EVER SEEN." HIS NAVIGATOR, SECOND LT.WILLIAM K. MCNATH OF LYONS, GA., ADDED THAT "HONEST, THERE WAS ONE PATCH OF A SOLID WALL OF FLAK ABOUT A MILE SQUARE."

JUL 26 1943

SGT.JOHN A.NEAL, JR., OF ARLINGTON, VA., BALL TURRET GUNNER, SAID FLAK EXPLODED SO CLOSE "MY EARS ARE STILL RINGING." HIS NAVIGATOR, SECOND LT.RALPH GUINSBURG, CHAPPAQUA, N.Y., REPORTED SEEING ONLY TWO FIGHTERS AND SGT.CARL CAMPBELL OF ALEXANDRIA, LA., TOP TURRET GUNNER, SAID, "I ONLY FIRED 20 ROUNDS TODAY, COMPARED WITH 700 ROUNDS ON MY LAST RAID AT LE BOURGET."

THE INTENSITY OF THE KIEL FLAK WAS "ABSOLUTELY NO COMPARISON WITH THE LAST RAID THERE," DECLARED FIRST LT.THOMAS J.NIX OF BRUNSON, S.C., NAVIGATOR OF THE "PRINCESS." FIRST LT.D.W.JOHNSON OF DENTON, GA., BOMBARDIER, SAID: "WE LAID A GOOD PATTERN OF BOMBS ON THOSE SHIP-YARDS. I SAW EXPLOSIONS ALL OVER THEM."

SGT.ALFRED SILBA OF CAMBRIDGE, MASS., BALL TURRET GUNNER ON A FORTRESS PILOTED BY FIRST LT.S.W.SOUTH OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., TOLD HOW ONE FORTRESS KNOCKED OUT A LONG ROW OF NINE ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS.

"I SAW THIS BOMBER--DON'T KNOW WHO HE WAS--PEEL OFF FORMATION AND MAKE A BOMB RUN OVER THE BATTERY. HE GOT 'EM ALL RIGHT, FOR UP CAME A BIG CLOUD OF SMOKE AND DUST, AND THERE WAS NO MORE FLAK FROM THAT SPOT."

SILBA SAID ONE EXPLODING FLAK SHELL "BOUNCED" HIS PLANE 50 FEET UP AND HE GOT READY TO BAIL OUT.

JUL 261943

FLIGHT OFFICERS ROBERT L.CARSON OF FORT WORTH, TEX., CO-PILOT OF THE "AMERICAN BEAUTY," REPORTED "LOTS OF FIRES AROUND KIEL."

THE FORTRESSES FROM THIS STATION WERE LED BY CAPT.JOHN A.STORIE OF WALLA WALLA, WASH., PILOT OF THE "LONESOME POLE CAT."

PRAISE FOR THE SPITFIRES ESCORTING THE KIEL RAIDERS CAME FROM COLONEL HERBERT T.THATCHER, WASHINGTON, D.C., GROUP COMMANDER AND PILOT OF THE "RAUNCH RASCAL" AND HIS COPILOT, FIRST LIEUTENANT MAURICE STRUHL, PORTLAND, OREGON.

ONE FW 190 SLIPPED THROUGH THE SCREEN OF SPITFIRES GIVING STAFF SERGEANT IRA BARTON, BEL BARTON, W.VA., TAILGUNNER ON THE "ROCKHILL SPECIAL" AND SECOND LIEUTENANT T.SHIRLY, LOUISVILLE, ALA., ITS BOMBARDIER-NAVIGATOR A SHOT AT HIM. THE GERMAN WENT DOWN IN FLAMES.

GUNNERS WHO GOT THEIR FIRST CRACK AT ENEMY FIGHTERS WERE STAFF SERGEANT JOHN B.WESTRAN, PORTLAND, ORE., AND TECHNICAL SERGEANT FRANK G.BREWER, JR., BIRMINGHAM, ALA. THEY WERE IN "TAIL END CHARLIE" PILOTED BY FIRST LIEUTENANT CHARLES C.BOYER, LOMITA, CALIF.

FLAK GAVE THE CREWS SOME TROUBLE.

"IT DID NOT HIT US BUT BLEW US AROUND A BIT, SAID FIRST LIEUTENANT T.J.STEENSON, STAATSBURG, N.Y. SERGEANT JOHN O.ADAMS, BRIDGETOWN, N.J., TAILGUNNER ON "UTAH GAME COCK," SAID THE "FLAK LASTED ONLY A MINUTE."

LIEUTENANT WALTER WILSON, GLENCOVE, L.I., N.Y., BOMBARDIER, SAID "OUR CREW HAS WAITED FOR SIXTEEN MONTHS FOR A SHOT AT THE ENEMY AND NOW WE HAVE HAD IT."

AT A UNITED STATES BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, JULY 25-(AP)-AMERICAN AIRMEN RETURNING FROM TODAY'S HEAVY ATTACK ON THE HEROYA ALUMINUM REFINING WORKS IN SOUTHERN NORWAY---IT WAS THE LONGEST FLYING FORTRESS RAID YET IN THIS THEATER---EXULTED, "BOY, WHAT A MESS WE LEFT THAT VITAL TARGET IN."

THAT SUMMATION OF THE 1,285-MILE ROUND TRIP WAS GIVEN BY 1ST. LT.ROBERT D.METCALF OF (2211 23D ST.) SACRAMENTO, CALIF., BOMBARDIER ON THE "SPITZFIRE" WHICH LED THE RAIDERS TO THE TARGET AND WAS THE FIRST TO SMACK IT WITH ITS BOMB-LOAD.

THE REST OF THE BOYS AGREED WITH HIM.

"IT WAS AN AMAZING SHOW," METCALF SAID. "LIKE NOTHING IN THIS WORLD."

BOMBERS WHICH LEFT THIS BASE, RETURNING INTACT AND STILL FLYING IN PERFECT FORMATION, TOOK ALONG A DISTINGUISHED OBSERVER, COLONEL

CORNIGLION-MOLINIER, COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE FIGHTING FRENCH AIRFORCE IN GREAT BRITAIN.

THE COLONEL PRONOUNCED THE RAID "WONDERFUL, MARVELOUS, BEAUTIFUL."

HE SAID THE ENTIRE FACTORY WENT "POOF" WHEN THE BOMBS HIT.

CORNIGLION-MOLINIER DISCLOSED THAT HE TOOK THE CONTROLS FOR A WHILE AND SAID IT WAS THE "MOST STEADY PLANE I EVER FLEW IN MY LIFE." HE IS A VETERAN FLIER OF BOTH WORLD WARS.

THE AMERICAN CREWMEN SAID AS FAR AS OPPOSITION WAS CONCERNED, THE FLIGHT WAS A "GLORIOUS OPERATION" BUT THEY DISLIKED "SWEATING IT OUT" OVER SO MANY MILES OF ROUGH NORTH SEA WHERE MOTOR FAILURES COULD BE DISASTROUS.

METCALF, WHO WAS A REPORTER ON THE SACRAMENTO BEE WHEN A STUDENT IN JUNIOR COLLEGE, SAID HE ENCOUNTERED ONLY LIGHT FLAK.

THE CREW SAW ONLY SIX FOCKE-WULF 190'S. THEY ATTACKED THE FORMATION SOME 70 MILES OUT TO SEA ON THE RETURN TRIP.

METCALF SAID HIS FORTRESS' CREWMEN SAW AT LEAST TWO SHOT DOWN INTO THE SEA.

JUL 26 1943

THE "SPITZFIRE'S" CREW SAID THE BOMBS HIT THE TARGET AREA IN A "BEAUTIFUL PATTERN" AND SMOKE ROSE AS HIGH AS 6,000 FEET.

THE "SPITZFIRE" WAS FLYING HER 23D MISSION. BESIDES METCALF, OTHERS ABOARD WERE: THE PILOT, 1ST LT.FRANK R. SPITZNAGEL, FOR WHOM THE FORTRESS WAS NAMED, OF PARKSIDE AVE., BUFFALO, N.Y.; THE NAVIGATOR, 2D LT.KARL H.BRAUDER OF INDIANAPOLIS; AND THE CO-PILOT, MAJ.J.S.SMITH, OF CARPENTERIA, CALIF., WHO WAS LEADER OF THE FIRST GROUP TO ATTACK THE TARGET.

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE ORIENTATION CENTER SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, JULY 24-(AP)-MAJOR GEN.IRA C.EAKER REVIED A BATTALION OF WACS BEING TURNED OVER TO THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE FOR DUTY TODAY AND DESCRIBED THEIR PARADE AS "THE SMARTEST I'VE SEEN MANY." Since I've been here and I've seen

ALSO REVIEWING WITH THE AMERICAN AIR COMMANDER WERE MAJOR GEN. JEAN KNOX, HEAD OF THE BRITISH ATS--SISTERS IN KHAKI OF THE WACS--COL.HARVEY HOLLAND, COMMANDER OF THE ORIENTATION CENTER; AND OTHER HIGH RANKING AMERICAN OFFICERS AND REPRESENTATIVES OF BRITAIN'S WRENS AND WAAFS.

MAJOR GEN. KNOX, TALL, SLAIM AND SMART IN A UNIFORM WITH RED COLLAR TABS; WITH EAKER, CAPT. MARY A.HALLAREN, WAC BATTALION COMMANDER; COL.HOLLAND AND HIS EXECUTIVE OFFICER, MAJOR CECIL MCGIMSEY OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., AND THE WAC ADJUTANT, LIEUT. ALETHA L.WINN OF HAVANA, N.D., "TROOPED THE LINE"--WALKED AROUND THE WAC COMPANIES STANDING STIFFLY AT ATTENTION.

FIRST SERGT. VIRGINIA ROSEKRANS OF PHILADELPHIA CONFIDED TO HER COMPANY THAT GENERAL EAKER, WHO ACCOMPANIED GENERAL KNOX ON AN INSPECTION OF WAC QUARTERS, HAD BEEN WORRIED WHETHER THEY WOULD STACK UP WITH THE BRITISH ATS AND WAAFS.

THE WACS WERE PRECEDED IN THE PARADE BY A 28-PIECE CENTRAL BASE SECTION BAND LED BY CORP. ERNEST J.TASSIN OF NEW ORLEANS, AUGMENTED BY A SMALLER BAND FROM THE TENTH REPLACEMENT DEPOT, WHICH IN TURN WAS LED BY SERGEANT THURMAN WILSON OF NEWBURN, N.C. WILSON WAS A FORMER BUGLER AT ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY NEAR WASHINGTON, D.C.

MARCHING EXTRA PROUDLY WAS PRIVATE DOROTHY E.WHINERY OF ANOKA, MINN., CARRYING THE STARS AND STRIPES. WITH HER IN THE COLOR GUARD

WERE PRIVATES MARY C.WATERMAN OF APPLETON, WISC., AND ETHEL D.RUDOLPH, MILWAUKEE, WISC.

STANDING STRAIGHT AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE FIELD WERE CORPORAL WINNIE VAN DYKE, OAK HARBOR, WASH., AND PRIVATE JEAN DELANEY, LYNN, MASS.

THE WACS WERE WEARING NEW PATCHES ON THEIR LEFT SHOULDERS, SHOWING THEY WERE ATTACHED TO THE AIRFORCE. THEY ALSO WORE SERVICE RIBBONS, WHICH HAD BEEN PINNED ON THEM THE DAY BEFORE BY SIX OFFICERS UNTIL THEIR THUMBS GAVE OUT.

FOLO LONDON MUSSOLINI

CHICAGO, JULY 25-(AP)-SEVERAL MIDWESTERN LEADERS IN AMERICAN-ITALIAN AFFAIRS TODAY HAILED THE DISMISSAL OF PREMIER MUSSOLINI OF ITALY AS SIGNALING THAT NATION'S WITHDRAWAL FROM THE WAR.

SAID NICOLO LO FRANCO, 54, ITALIAN BORN EDITOR OF L'TALIA, LARGE MIDWESTERN ITALIAN LANGUAGE NEWSPAPER:

JUL 26 1943

"THE NEWS THAT MUSSOLINI HAS LOST HIS POSITION IS GOOD NEWS TO US.. WE FEEL NOW THAT ITALY WILL SOON BE AT PEACE WITH US AGAIN AND WE WILL HAVE FREEDOM FOR EVERYONE."

GIUSEPPE ANTONIO BORGESE, EXILED ITALIAN EDUCATOR AND AUTHOR OF "GOLIATH: THE MARCH OF FASCISM," SAID:

"THE NEWS OF MUSSOLINI'S DISMISSAL IS GOOD IN ITSELF, BUT I SHOULD ENJOY IT MUCH LESS IF IT TURNS OUT THAT THE ALLIES COUNTENANCE THE NEW REGIME OF THE KING AND MARSHAL BADOGLIO. THEY ARE FASCISTS TOO, AND IF THE SUCCESSION MEANS SUPPORT FOR THEM, IT WILL BE 'DARLANISM' ALL OVER AGAIN."

MUNICIPAL JUDGE GEORGE L.QUILICI, A LEADER IN ITALIAN AFFAIRS IN CHICAGO, SAID MUSSOLINI'S DISMISSAL SIGNALED THE "IMMEDIATE APPROACH OF THE END OF ITALY'S PART IN THE WAR."

MAJOR MCGIMSEY, WHO PINNED ON THE FIRST RIBBON, PREDICTED THE WACS WOULD BE WEARING INSIGNIA SHOWING SERVICE IN OTHER WAR THREATRES BEFORE THEY RETURNED HOME. THE OFFICERS WHO HELPED MCGIMSEY WITH THE RIBBON PINNING WERE CAPT. THOMAS SHALLCROW OF PHILADELPHIA AND LIEUTS.WILLIAM G.ISENBURG, HADDON HEIGHTS, N.J.; ARTHUR BERMAN, SAN ANTONIO, TEX.; A.ABRAMS, PHILADELPHIA AND R.L.?OGG, SYRACUSE, N.Y.

AFTER THE PARADE GENERAL BAKER AND OTHER GUESTS WERE ENTERTAINED AT THE LARGEST LUNCHEON EVER HELD AT THE CENTER, AND ONE FOR WHICH THE WACS HELPED PREPARE. THE NIGHT BEFORE, PRIVATES FIRST CLASS MARY HOLT OF ATLANTA, MARJORIE SCHLOGEL, OLATHE, KANS., AND HAZEL FISHER OF CHICAGO WORKED POLISHING SILVER. CORP. AVERIL CURTIS, WESTON, W.VA., A FORMER FLORIST EMPLOYE, AND SGT. MARGARET MCCANCE OF LONG BEACH, CALIF., ARRANGED FLOWERS.

JUL 26 1943

FIFTEEN WACS SERVED AND NOTHING WAS SPILLED. SO DELIGHTED WERE CENTER MESS OFFICER CAPT. R.J.MCCARTHY OF WASHINGTON, D.C., AND WAC MESS OFFICER LIEUT. EDYTH E.BIOLO, IRON MOUNTAIN, MICH., THAT AFTERWARD THEY IMPULSIVELY GAVE EACH OTHER A BEAR HUG.

LIEUT.BIOLO, AN EXPERT NUTRITIONIST, JOINED THE WACS BECAUSE HER HUSBAND HAD BEEN REPORTED MISSING IN ACTION. THEY HAVE A FIVE-YEAR-OLD SON, JOE PETE, WHO HAS BEEN LEFT IN CARE OF LIEUT.BIOLO'S MOTHER, MRS. PETER D'ELBERTO, IN IRON MOUNTAIN. HER SISTER, MRS. LORRAINE BAUMEL, IS A WELL KNOWN SKIIER.

AFTERWARD, AT AN OFFICERS' DANCE, THE WACS PROVIDED ENTERTAINMENT. WITH PFC. MARGIEBELLE NEEDHAM OF LOS ANGELES AS MISTRESS OF CEREMONIES. PRIVATE ONA MAY MURRAY, MONTEREY, CALIF., SANG POPULAR SONGS AND FOUR PRIVATES FIRST CLASS -- MONICA WEBER OF ST.PAUL, MARY WAHL OF

30.24-6533

FAIRFAX, MINN., CLARA DICKMAN OF SAN FRANCISCO AND ELDRENE VINCENT OF VALLEJO, CALIF. -- DANCED HAWAIIAN NUMBERS.

THE NIGHT BEFORE, ENLISTED WACS HAD THEIR DANCE AND SOME FRIENDS AND RELATIVES SAW EACH OTHER FOR THE FIRST TIME OVERSEAS. SINCE THE WACS ARRIVED HERE ROLAND L.BOURGEOIS OF WASHINGTON, D.C., A RED CROSS FIELD WORKER, AND CENTER CHAPLAIN CAPT. C.G.SKIPPY OF WOLLASTON, MASS., HAVE BEEN BUSY HELPING PEOPLE FIND EACH OTHER.

THERE WERE THREE PAIRS OF [illegible] AND SISTERS AT THE DANCE. SGT.JOSEPH ABATTO OF BALTIMORE CAME UP TO SEE HIS SISTER, PFC. ROSALIE JONES OF BALTIMORE, WHO ALSO HAS A HUSBAND OVERSEAS. ANOTHER PAIR WERE PFC. COSETTE DION AND FLIGHT OFFICER LOUIS DION OF HARTFORD, CONN., AND SHE WAS FORCED TO GIVE HIM THE FIRST WORD OF THE DEATH OF THEIR FATHER. PFC. ELIZABETH HAMILTON, 28, FORMER MANAGER OF A WEST PALM BEACH NIGHT CLUB, ALSO MET HER BROTHER, PRIVATE HUGH KENNEDY, 26.

THE FIRST WAC TO FIND HER HUSBAND OVERSEAS WAS CORP. ROSALIE BURNETTE, 26, OF BLACKVILLE, S.C. SGT. PAUL BURNETTE IS IN THE AIR-FORCE, STATIONED NEARBY.

TWO NEW YORKERS, PRIVATE DORIS ISRAEL AND PFC. ARTHUR ROSENTHAL, WHO ARE COUSINS, ALSO LOCATED EACH OTHER.

SOME OF THE WACS ALREADY HAVE BEEN SENT INTO LONDON TO TAKE A SPECIAL SHORT TRAINING COURSE IN COMMUNICATIONS BEFORE GOING ON PERMA-NENT ASSIGNMENT, AND ARE QUARTERED IN THE FORMER TOWN HOUSE OF A BRITISH BARON.

THE DETAIL IS UNDER THE COMMAND OF SECOND LIEUT. PAULINE ABELL OF SPOKANE, WASH.

"I'LL SAY THIS IS GOING TO BE ALL RIGHT," SAID PRIVATE MARY LONERGAN OF MORRISTOWN, N.J., AFTER LOOKING AROUND THE FOYER OF THE ONCE HANDSOMELY FURNISHED HOUSE.

ALSO IN THE DETAIL AND ANXIOUS TO GET OUT AND SEE A SHOW IS PFC. MURIEL HEALY OF HOLLYWOOD AND NEW YORK, WHO, UNDER THE PROFESSIONAL NAME OF JUDITH ALDEN, TOURED THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA IN THE CAST OF "TONIGHT AT 8:30."

SGT. MARION EVANS, LENOLA (CQ), N.J. AND PFC. MARGARET FRANK OF WASHINGTON, D.C., SAID THEY WERE DISAPPOINTED, ADDING THEY HAD HOPED TO BE QUARTERED IN A CASTLE, PERHAPS ONE WITH GHOSTS.

BY RUTH COWAN

AT AN EIGHTH UNITED STATES AIR FORCE ORIENTATION CENTER, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND--(AP)--A BRITISH SERGEANT, ONE OF THE TOUGHEST BREED OF MEN

JUL 26 1943

ALIVE, WATCHED A TOPKICK OF THE FIRST FEMINE AEF IN BRITAIN AT WORK AND PRONOUNCED HER OKAY.

"SHE HAS THE ARMY LINGO ALL RIGHT, BUT I CAN'T GET USED TO A TOPKICK WITH CURLS," HE SAID AS HE EYED FIRST SERGT. VIRGINIA ROSEKRANS, TALL AND SLIM, THE FIRST WAC TO SET FOOT IN BRITAIN.

FIRST SERGT. ROSEKRANS FLABBERGASTED A GROUP OF BRITISH CARPENTERS AT THE ORIENTATION CENTER. THEY PUT DOWN THEIR TOOLS TO WATCH IN AMZEMENT, THEN AMUSEMENT, AS SHE GOT DOUBLETIME ACTION OUT OF A GROUP OF LAUGHING WACS.

IT WAS NEAR NOON AND THE RECENTLY LANDED GIRLS WERE BUSY UNPACKING, WASHING AND IRONING. SUDDENLY DOWN THE LINE CAME A TALL FIGURE IN THE GREEN OVERALLS THE WACS CALL THEIR "ZOOT SUITS". ON THE BACK OF THE SUIT WAS "TOP KICK," STENCILED THERE BY SOME CAPRICIOUS COMRADES.

"GET YOUR BLOUSES ON," FIRST SERGT. ROSEKRANZ CALLED, "YOU'VE ONLY GOT A MINUTE. HURRY UP! HURRY UP! YOU'VE GOT TO MARCH IN PARADE."

SHE FOLLOWED HER OWN ORDERS AND IN A MINUTE WAS BACK OUTSIDE IN UNIFORM, STILL CALLING, "HURRY UP!" WACS CAME OUT RUNNING, SOME PULLING SLIDE FASTENERS IN SKIRTS, BUTTONING BLOUSES, TO LINE UP. WHILE HER COMPANY WAITED IN FORMATION, FIRST SERGT. ROSEKRANZ WALKED AROUND RESTLESSLY. "THEY ALWAYS RUSH ME AND THEN I WAIT," SHE GRUMBLED. THEN, "REST" SHE ORDERED HER COMPANY.

THE WACS LAUGHED, SINCE NO ONE HAD CALLED THEM TO ATTENTION IN THE FIRST PLACE.

"ALL RIGHT, ALL RIGHT," CONCEDED FIRST SERGT. ROSEKRANZ. (CORRECT).

"SERGEANTS WERE NEVER LIKE THAT WHEN I WAS IN THE ARMY," COMMENTED A CARPENTER. "SHE'S HUMAN," ONE OF HIS COMPANIONS INFORMED HIM.

"SAY, WHAT TIME IS IT?" SUDDENLY DEMANDED THE LADY SERGEANT. THE TIME THE WACS GAVE HER MATCHED HER OWN WATCH. AFTERWARDS SHE EXPLAINED WHY SHE WAS SUSPICIOUS ABOUT THE RIGHT TIME.

"I USED ALWAYS TO COMPLAIN WOMEN COULD NEVER BE ON TIME. SOMEBODY DECIDED TO CURE ME. SO WHEN I SET A TIME FOR SOMETHING THE WACS WOULD ALWAYS GET THERE 10 MINUTES EARLY AND MAKE IT LOOK LIKE I WAS LATE. IT WAS SOME TIME BEFORE I CAUGHT ON THAT THEY WERE SETTING THEIR WATCHES AHEAD."

FIRST SERGT. ROSEKRANS WAS BORN IN PHILADELPHIA. HER PARENTS ARE MR. AND MRS. FRANK M. ROSEKRANS. ASKED HOW MANY CHILDREN THERE WERE IN THE FAMILY, SHE REPLIED, "SEVEN, I THINK."

SHE STUDIED ART IN PHILADELPHIA AND LIVED IN NEW YORK AND CHICAGO FOR A TIME. SHE'S A MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF WOMEN PAINTERS AND SCULPTORS. ON THE EVE OF THE JAPANESE ATTACK ON PEARL HARBOR SHE WAS RIDING A MOTORCYCLE FROM CHICAGO TO CALIFORNIA.

"I HAD INTENDED DOING SOME SCULPTOR TYPES ON THE WEST COAST, BUT WHEN THE WAR BROKE OUT I DECIDED TO JOIN THE WACS."

SHE WAS INDUCTED AT LOS ANGELES AND TRAINED AT DES MOINES. THEY GAVE HER A CHANCE TO GO TO OFFICERS TRAINING SCHOOL, BUT SHE'S SATISFIED TO REMAIN A PLAIN TOPKICK.

--DASH--

NOBODY HAS PICKED A "TYPICAL WAC", AND IT MIGHT BE A TOUGH JOB, JUDGING FROM SOME OF THOSE HERE.

THERE'S "GRANDMA CONKLIN" -- PFC MARGARET CONKLIN OF SUSANVILLE, CALIF. -- WHO LEFT BEHIND SIX CHILDREN, SIX GRANDCHILDREN AND A MOTHER TO GO OFF TO WAR AT THE AGE OF 43.

30.24 - 6535

HER YOUNGEST SON, SERGEANT EARNEST CONKLIN, 21, IS STATIONED AT CAMP VAN DORN, MISS.

HER MOTHER, MRS. CLARA CARMEN, 66, OF SANTA BARBARA, CALIF., AND HER FIVE OTHER CHILDREN ALL HAD APPROVED HER JOINING THE WACS. THEY ARE MRS. JUNE JILMER, 27, CALIFORNIA, A CLERK IN AN ARMY ORDNANCE DEPOT; MRS. CAROL HUKEY, 26, AND MRS. CLARICE THOMAS, 22, BOTH OF WALNUT CREEK, CALIF.; JAMES CONKLIN, 24, OF SUSANVILLE; AND MRS. NORMA BAUGH, 23, GLENDALE, ARIZ.

PFC CONKLIN IS LISTED AS A COOK "AND THAT'S WHAT I WANT TO BE," SHE SAID. "I USED TO BE A PRACTICAL NURSE. IN FACT I JOINED THE ARMY TO GET AWAY FROM IT."

"A MONTH AGO WE WERE ALL SLAVES," TOURTET EXCLAIMED. "NOW WE ARE FREE TO FIGHT FOR FRANCE. MARTINIQUE IS FRENCH AGAIN. THE TERRIBLE DICTATORSHIP IMPOSED ON THESE ISLANDS BY ADMIRAL ROBERT AT LAST HAS COME TO AN END. OUR POOR NEGROES SAY WE HAVE STILL NOTHING TO EAT, BUT WE CAN BREATH THE AIR OF FREEDOM."

THE LIVELY MAJOR DECLARED THAT UNDER ROBERT'S REGIME "EVERYTHING" BELONGED TO THE NAVAL OFFICERS -- THE BEST HOUSES, MOTOR CARS, TRUCKS, COMMUNICATIONS AND CENSORSHIP, ARMS, BOATS AND FOOD. HE SAID NAVAL OFFICERS LOYAL TO ROBERT WERE PAID TWICE AS MUCH AS ARMY OFFICERS.

THERE ARE STILL ABOUT 300 SAILORS HELD IN FORT SAINT LOUIS- THE BALANCE OF THE ORIGINAL 1,200 HOLDOUTS HAVING JOINED THE NEW REGIME.

TOURTET RELATED HOW A LOC)7:9..8953HJ OGACIZED A QUIET DEMONSTRATION OF SORROW JUNE 25, THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE FRANCO-GERMAN ARMISTICE, HOW THEY WERE REFUSED PERMISSION TO HOLD THE CEREMONY, AND HOW THEY DEMONSTRATED ANYWAY, MEETING ONLY FEEBLE POLICE RESISTANCE.

CONSULAR EMPLOYES, UNITED STATES NAVAL OBSERVERS AND OTHER VISITORS TO MARTINIQUE DURING THESE DAYS WERE ORDERED TO STAY INSIDE BECAUSE OF THE FEAR OF RIOTING.

MEANWHILE, TROOPS STATIONED NEAR BALATA, 10 KILOMETERS FROM FORT DE FRANCE, DECLARED THEIR ALLEGIANCE TO THE FIGHTING FRENCH AND CALLED UPON MAJOR TOURTET TO JOIN THEM AS THEIR LEADER.

ROBERT ANNOUNCED HE INTENDED TO MAINTAIN ORDER REGARDLESS OF THE COST. A CHANTING, DANCING MOB FROM FORT DE FRANCE CAUSED HIM TO TAKE REFUGE TOOK AFTERWARDS ABOARD THE DRY-DOCKED EMIL BERTIN.

TENSION MOUNTED UNTIL THE MORNING OF JUNE 30, WHEN AN ASSISTANT NAVAL OBSERVER AT THE UNITED STATES CONSULATE RECEIVED A TELEPHONE CALL FROM ROBERT'S CHIEF OF STAFF, A CAPTAIN ROQUES, WHO INQUIRED WHETHER CONSUL MALIGE WOULD BE IN HIS OFFICE WITHIN THE NEXT 15 MINUTES.

UPON BEING ASSURED THAT MALIGE WOULD, ROQUES SAID HE WAS SENDING "AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE." THIS WAS ROBERT'S REQUEST FOR THE UNITED STATES TO SEND A PLENIPOTENTIARY TO ARRANGE THE TRANSFER OF THE COLONY TO THE FREE FRENCH.

JUL 26 1943

THAT EVENING THE AGED ADMIRAL'S "COMMUNIQUE TO THE POPULATION" WAS BROADCAST, ADVISING THE PEOPLE THAT HE WOULD RETIRE TO PREVENT BLOODSHED BETWEEN THE POPULATION-ARMY ALLIANCE AND THE NAVAL FORCES.

TOURTET REVEALED THAT "THE ENTIRE BALATA GARRISON COMPRISED ONLY 70 FRENCHMEN, 20 SENEGALESE AND 30 CREOLES." HE SAID THE ARMY'S "PANZER DIVISION" WAS MADE UP OF TWO OLD TRUCKS, TWO SMALL CANNON FIXED ON ANOTHER PAIR OF TRUCKS, AND TWO CARS WITH MACHINE GUNS.

TOURTET'S MEN WERE CONSTRUCTING A "TANK" BY FIXING A CANNON ATOP A

HEAVY TRACTOR WHEN NEWS OF ROBERT'S CAPITULATION WAS RECEIVED.

JUL 26 1943

BY DANIEL DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA JULY 26-(MONDAY)-(AP)-MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO WAS THE "GOAT" OF MUSSOLINI'S MISERABLE FAILURE TO BLITZ GREECE IN 1940.

HIS MILITARY FORTUNES SANK DEEP IN THE SNOW OF THE ALBANIAN WINTER FRONT AS THE GALLANT LITTLE GREEK ARMY SMASHED THE MECHANIZED INVASION OF ITS HOMELAND AND SCORED A SERIES OF BRILLIANT VICTORIES OVER AN ENEMY FOUR TIMES LARGER NUMERICALLY.

THE TEMPERAMENTAL MARSHAL'S REPUTATION WAS CHIEFLY BASED ON THE CONQUEST OF ETHIOPIAN TRIBESMEN ARMED WITH SPEARS AND MUSKETS AGAINST TANKS AND PLANES.

AGAINST THE GREEKS, WHOSE SKILL AND COURAGE KNEW NO BOUNDS IN RESISTANCE OF THE HATED FASCISTS, BADOGLIO FLOPPED BADLY AND NONE OF HIS SUCCESSORS FARED ANY BETTER UNTIL HITLER INTERVENED.

BADOGLIO'S BLINDNESS AS TO THE EFFECTIVE USE OF AIRPOWER--AT A TIME WHEN THE ITALIAN AIRFORCE BOASTED ONE HUNDRED TIMES AS MANY MODERN WARPLANES AS THE GREEKS--ENABLED THE GREEK GENERALS TO MOBILIZE AND REINFORCE A FRONT BY A FEW LONG, NARROW MOUNTAIN ROADS AND A COUPLE OF RAIL LINES AFTER THE INVASION HAD ALREADY STARTED.

BADOGLIO'S MISCALCULATIONS OF WHAT WINTER HAD IN STORE FOR HIS MORE THAN TWO SCORE DIVISIONS CAUSED THE ITALIANS TO SUFFER HEAVY CASUALTIES FROM FREEZING AS THE CAMPAIGN WAS PROLONGED.

APOLOGISTS FOR BADOGLIO AFTER HIS FALL FROM FAVOR ASSERTED HE STEADFASTLY OPPOSED IL DUCE'S GREEK ADVENTURE. TO GREEKS FIGHTING IN ALBANIA

- JUL 26 1943

FASTLY OPPOSED IL DUCE'S GREEK ADVENTURE. TO GREEKS FIGHTING IN ALBANIA THIS SEEMED THE RANKEST KIND OF SECOND GUESSING. WHAT LICKED BADOGLIO IN 1940 WAS THE SAME THING THAT ULTIMATELY LICKED MUSSOLINI IN 1943. THE ITALIAN ARMY IS THIRD RATE IN SPIRIT AND TECHNIQUE. THE MAJORITY OF ITALIAN SOLDIERS HAVE NO HEART FOR THE WAR.

THE GREEKS REPEATEDLY MADE SUCKERS OF BADOGLIO AND HIS FIELD COMMANDERS BY TACTICS CLASSIC IN SIMPLICITY.

HE SENT HIS ARMORED COLUMNS SPEARING INTO THE PINDUS MOUNTAINS AND BEYOND THE DRINOS VALLEY TOWARD IOANNIA, CAPITAL OF THE GREEK FRONTIER PROVINCE OF EPIRUS.

PEAKS SO THEIR MEN COULD CATCH THE ITALIANS BELOW BY ENFILADING FIRE FROM THEIR LITTLE PACK HOWITZERS.

THE GREEKS SHUNNED THE VALLEYS AND OUTFLANKED THE ITALIANS BY CIRCUITOUS ROUTES OVER THE HIGH RANGES.

FASCIST EGOTISM WAS UNPREPARED FOR REVERSES. WHEN THESE CAME IN SEEMINGLY AN UNENDING SERIES BADOGLIO WAS OUSTED.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA JULY 25-(AP)-BENITO MUSSOLINI'S BLACKSHIRT REGIME APPEARS TO HAVE FALLEN BEFORE A SINGLE ALLIED SOLDIER SET FOOT ON THE ITALIAN MAINLAND, BUT AT A MOMENT WHEN SICILY IS FOUR-FIFTHS CONQUERED AND THREE BRITISH ARMIES AND ONE AMERICAN ARMY ARE HELD IN RESERVE FOR THE SOUTHERN EUROPEAN FRONT.

THE SICILIAN INVASION WAS CARRIED OUT WITH BRILLIANT SUCCESS BY THE SEVENTH UNITED STATES ARMY UNDER LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON, JR., AND GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY.

LIEUT.GEN.K.A.N.ANDERSON'S BRITISH FIRST ARMY WHICH CAPTURED TUNIS IS STILL NOT COMMITTED YET IN ANY OVERSEAS OPERATION FROM AFRICA. LIEUT.GEN.MARK CLARK'S U.S.FIFTH ARMY LIKEWISE HAS NOT SEEN ACTION THIS SUMMER.

IN THE MIDDLE EAST FROM SYRIA TO LIBYA THERE ARE THE BRITISH NINTH AND TENTH ARMIES, NEITHER OF WHICH HAS FOUGHT SO FAR AGAINST THE AXIS ON EUROPEAN SOIL.

SOME OF THE BEST VETERAN AMERICAN DIVISIONS ABROAD AMONG ALLIED FORCES ARE HELD IN RESERVE IN AFRICA.

ALLIED AIR POWER, THE HISTORIANS MAY RECORD, PLAYED A DECISIVE ROLE IN MUSSOLINI'S ASTONISHINGLY SUDDEN DOWNFALL, BUT THE FACT THAT AIR POWER IS BACKED UP BY SUPERIOR LAND AND SEA FORCES MAKE IT AS POTENT AS IT IS.

IT'S OBVIOUS TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE THAT ALLIED ARMS WHICH ENGULFED SICILY IN A FORTNIGHT COULD STRIKE AT THE ITALIAN PENINSULA ITSELF WHEN AND WHERE GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER CHOOSES.

ONLY SATURDAY UNESCORTED AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESSES FLEW UNOPPOSED AS FAR NORTH AS BOLOGNA AND SMASHED THAT RAILROAD CENTER WHERE MOST OF ITALY'S COMMUNICATIONS GO THROUGH A BOTTLENECK. ONLY A WEEK AGO WELL OVER 500 AMERICAN BOMBERS RAISED HAVOC IN ROME'S TWO GREAT RAILROAD YARDS.

AT SEA THE ALLIED NAVIES ARE SUPREME. ITALY'S PORT-LOVING FLEET IS SPLIT UP, AND HAS STAYED IN HARBOR REFUGES BOTH ON THE WEST AND EAST COASTS.

ON LAND UPWARDS OF 100,000 ITALIAN TROOPS ARE ESTIMATED TO HAVE BEEN TRAPPED IN SICILY IN THE LAST TWO WEEKS.

A NUMBER OF NATURAL BARRIERS BOLSTERED THE AXIS POSITION IN THE NORTHEASTERN TIP.

AT CATANIA THE EIGHTH ARMY FACED THE TOUGHEST OF THEM. GERMAN TROOPS WERE ENTRENCHED SOLIDLY BEHIND THE CONFLUENCE OF THREE RIVERS AND A CLUSTER OF 10 AIRFIELDS AT GERBINI, WHERE HUNDREDS OF GERMAN 88-MILLIMETER ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS, NOW USED AS FIELD ARTILLERY, HAVE CONVERTED THESE POSITIONS INTO BOX-LIKE STRONGHOLDS.

THE TERRAIN WAS HEAVILY MINED.

A FEW MILES BEHIND THE FRONT THE GROUND BEGINS TO RISE SHARPLY IN THE STEEP SLOPES OF 10,000-FOOT MT.ETNA, THE ADVANTAGES OF WHICH THE GERMANS ARE EMPLOYING TO THE FULLEST.

MOUNTAINS ALSO BUTTRESS THE REGION WHERE THE AXIS LINE EMERGES ON THE NORTH COAST. THE CARONIA RANGE RUNS PARALLEL TO THE BEACH AND IS CUT BY A SYSTEM OF WATERWAYS WHICH MAKE NATURAL DEFENSE POSITIONS.

JUL 26 1943

ITALIAN RESISTANCE MAY INCREASE GREATLY ONCE THE FORCES OF GEN. ALFREDO GUZZONI OCCUPY THIS POSITION. EXPERIENCE IN NORTH AFRICA SHOWED THAT MUSSOLINI'S DIVISIONS WERE CAPABLE OF FIGHTING TENACIOUSLY AND WELL WHENEVER THEY WERE PLACED IN A STRONG DEFENSIVE POSITION WITH BOTH FLANKS SECURED.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID THAT ALL AMERICAN PILOTS WERE SAFE.

THE JAPANESE ATTACKED IN FOUR WAVES BUT THE P-40 FIGHTERS, ALTHOUGH GREATLY OUTNUMBERED, TORE INTO THE RAIDERS SO FURIOUSLY THAT MANY WERE FORCED TO JETTISON THEIR LOADS BEFORE THEY REACHED THE TARGET AREA.

ATTACKS, BY THE JAPANESE BOMBERS THAT DID REACH THE TARGET WERE DESCRIBED AS INACCURATE WITH ONLY MINOR DAMAGE RESULTING TO GROUND INSTALLATIONS.

THE AMERICANS WERE CREDITED WITH DESTROYING 10 ZEROS AND 6 BOMBERS, PROBABLY DESTROYING 12 ZEROS AND 7 BOMBERS, AND DAMAGING 6 ZEROS AND 3 BOMBERS.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND, JULY 25-(AP)-STRAWS IN THE ALEUTIAN WIND INDICATE THE JAPANESE MAY BE PREPARING TO SELL KISKA AS THEY DID ATTU--AT THE PRICE OF A GARRISON, BUT NOTHING MORE--SHOULD THE UNITED STATES LAUNCH AN ASSAULT.

THIS WEEK'S RAID ON PARAMUSHIRO LENT WEIGHT TO THIS THEORY. RAIDERS FAILED TO FIND ANY GREAT CONCENTRATION OF JAPANESE POWER, EXCEPT A FEW TRANSPORTS--APPARENTLY NOT EVEN ENOUGH AIR POWER TO BEAT OFF OUR LONG RANGE BOMBERS LET ALONE GIVE ANY ASSISTANCE TO THEIR BELEAGUERED ARMY AND NAVY DETACHMENTS AT KISKA.

AIRMEN RETURNING FROM PARAMUSHIRO REPORTED ONLY ENOUGH VESSELS IN THE HARBOR TO SUPPLY THAT SERIES OF BASES STILL UNDER CONSTRUCTION, NOT ENOUGH TO SUPPLY KISKA WITH NEEDED DEFENSIVE POWER. OF COURSE IT IS ALWAYS POSSIBLE THAT JAPANESE SHIPS OR PLANES WILL BE BROUGHT SUDDENLY NORTH FROM THE MAIN PART OF JAPAN AND TRY FOR KISKA WITHOUT STOPPING AT PARAMUSHIRO, BUT THAT MANEUVER WOULD BE IN DESPERATION, LIKE TRYING TO SUPPLY ATTU DIRECTLY FROM SEATTLE WITH ENEMY AIR AND SEA FLEETS IN BETWEEN.

AMERICANS HAVE BEEN TIGHTENING THE STRANGLING RING AROUND KISKA THE PAST SEVERAL WEEKS WITH FREQUENT AIR RAIDS AND HEAVY SHELLING BY NAVAL CRAFT, AND THIS IS TELLING ON THE ENEMY. IF THE JAPANESE HAD ANY INTENTION OF HELPING THE KISKA GARRISONS BEFORE THEY ARE FACED WITH THE ATTU CHOICE--SURRENDER OR DIE-- IT WOULD HAVE BEEN LOGICAL TO HAVE DONE SOMETHING TOWARD REINFORCING THE GARRISON BEFORE THIS. BUT NOTHING HAS BEEN DONE.

ONLY ONE ATTEMPT HAS BEEN MADE TO GET SURFACE VESSELS TO KISKA SINCE THE ATTU BATTLE, AND THAT WAS FLAT FAILURE WHEN AMERICAN AIRPLANES CAUGHT FOUR TRANSPORTS AND SANK AT LEAST TWO OF THEM.

OF TARRYTOWN, N.Y., FLEW ON TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE DESTRUCTION OF A JAPANESE BATTLESHIP, AND FOR THE ACTION HAS RECEIVED THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS.

RECENTLY RETURNED FROM 10 1/2 MONTHS OF DUTY WITH THE ORIGINAL MARINE TORPEDO PLANE SQUADRON IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, THE PILOT TOLD HOW THE BIG BATTLEWAGON MET DEATH ON THE 13TH OF NOVEMBER, AN "UNLUCKY BAY FOR THE JAPS."

"IT WAS A BATTLESHIP OF THE KONGO CLASS, AND IT HAD BEEN CRIPPLED IN THE BIG NAVAL BATTLE OFF GUADALCANAL THE NIGHT BEFORE," HE SAID. "WE CAUGHT UP WITH IT ABOUT DAWN, BUT PRIOR TO OUR ATTACK, WHEN WE WERE ABOUT TEN MINUTES OFF HENDERSON FIELD, A HALF DOZEN ZEROS ATTEMPTED AN INTERCEPTION. MY TAIL GUNNER DOWNED ONE OF THEM, BUT NOT BEFORE OUR PLANE HAD BEEN SHOT UP PRETTY BADLY, AND OUR TURRET GUNNER SLIGHTLY WOUNDED.

"HOWEVER, WE CONTINUED OUR MISSION THROUGH THE HEAVY FLAK THROWN UP BY THE BATTLESHIP AND ACCOMPANYING DESTROYERS, BUT WHEN I LEVELED OFF FOR THE RUN IN I DISCOVERED MY BOMB BAY HAD BEEN SO SHOT UP I COULDN'T UNLOAD THE TORPEDO.

"FLYING ON OVER THE BATTLEWAGON, WE RETURNED TO THE AIRFIELD. AFTER LOADING ANOTHER PLANE, WE FLEW BACK FOR A SECOND RUN. THIS TIME THE HEAVY WARSHIP HAD SLOWED UP UNTIL IT WAS NEARLY A 'DEAD' TARGET. YOU COULDN'T MISS IT--JUST LAYING DOWN THERE--AND I SENT THE 'FISH' IN FOR A CONFIRMED HIT. WE LEARNED LATER THAT THE JAPS HAD TO SCUTTLE IT."

(EDITORS: AT DUSK LAST THURSDAY, AMERICAN NAVY TORPEDO PLANES AND DIVE BOMBERS POUNCED ON AN ENEMY SEAPLANE TENDER AND FOUR DESTROYERS ATTEMPTING TO RUN SUPPLIES AND EQUIPMENT INTO BUIN, JAPANESE BASE IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS. THE TENDER WAS SUNK, A DESTROYER WAS DAMAGED AND FIVE ZEROS DROPPED IN THE ENSUING AIR BATTLE. THE RESULTS WERE ANNOUNCED SATURDAY BY GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS BUT THE DRAMATIC DETAILS OF THAT FIGHT ARE NOW FULLY TOLD IN THIS DELAYED DISPATCH FROM LEIF ERICKSON, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT STATIONED AT GUADALCANAL, HEADQUARTERS FOR THE SOLOMONS ISLANDS AIR FORCE.)

GUADALCANAL, JULY 22-(DELAYED)-(AP)-UNITED STATES BOMBERS STRUCK JAPANESE SHIPS WITH PRECISE DESTRUCTIVE POWER TODAY FOR THE FOURTH TIME IN SIX DAYS AND BLASTED UNDERNEATH THE WATER A LARGE SEAPLANE TENDER APPARENTLY CARRYING AERIAL STRENGTH TO REINFORCE THE ENEMY'S STEADILY DEPLETED AVIATION ARM IN THE SOLOMONS THEATER.

THE UNITED STATES HEADQUARTERS OF THE SOLOMONS AIR COMMAND ALSO REPORTED ONE OF THREE DESTROYERS ESCORTING THE 9,000 TON (ESTIMATED) TENDER WAS HIT AND DAMAGED.

FIVE DIRECT, HEAVY BOMB HITS FROM NAVY AND MARINE AVENGER TORPEDO PLANES FINISHED THE TENDER AFTER SHE FIRST HAD BEEN STRUCK AT LEAST THREE TIMES BY NAVY DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBERS.

LT. WILLIAM ROUBOTHAM, LONG BEACH, CALIF., LEADER OF THE 16-PLANE AVENGER FLIGHT, SAW THE SHIP GO DOWN. HE TOLD OF THE SIGHT IN THESE WORDS:

30.24-6541

"FIRST THERE WAS A THICK COLUMN OF WHITE SMOKE GOING STRAIGHT UP AT LEAST A THOUSAND FEET.

"THEN THICK, BLACK CLOUDS SWIRLED FROM THE SHIP AT THE BOTTOM OF THE WHITE COLUMN.

"THEN THERE WASN'T ANYTHING UNDER THE BLACK SMOKE. IT SEEMED TO COME OUT OF THE WATER.

"I COULD SEE THE CANS (DESTROYERS) TURN TO GO ALONGSIDE, BUT NOTHING WAS THERE."

THE ENEMY VESSEL WAS CAUGHT WHILE MOVING SPEEDILY AND ABOUT TO SWING AROUND THE SOUTHERN END OF BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND TOWARDS BUIN AND KAHILI, CHIEF JAPANESE SHIPPING AND AVIATION BASE IN THE SOLOMONS ISLANDS.

THE AIR COMMAND, HIGHLY PLEASED WITH THE SUCCESSFUL STRIKE, SAID IT PROBABLY DESTROYED A NUMBER OF FIGHTING AND BOMBING PLANE REPLACEMENTS.

THIS WAS THE WAY THE ATTACK WAS CARRIED OUT:

SHORTLY BEFORE 5 P.M. TODAY, A FLIGHT OF LIBERATOR HEAVY BOMBERS DROPPED A PATTERN OF EXPLOSIVES AROUND THE TENDER AND DESTROYERS FROM A HIGH ALTITUDE. THE MISSILES SPLASHED ALL AROUND THE SHIPS BUT ONLY ONE HIT ON A DESTROYER WAS CLAIMED.

THE NAVY'S DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBERS CAME IN NEXT--SO CLOSE BEHIND THE HEAVY PLANES THAT THE PILOTS COULD SEE THE LIBERATOR BOMB SPLASHES. RIGHT AFTER THE DIVE BOMBERS WITHDREW, THE AVENGERS SWOOPED DOWN AND FINISHED THE JOB.

MEANWHILE MORE THAN 100 UNITED STATES FIGHTER PLANES COVERED AN ATTACK ON KAHILI AIRDROME AND SHOT DOWN AT LEAST FIVE ZEROS AGAINST

THREE OF OUR FIGHTERS. NOT AN ENEMY PLANE GOT CLOSE ENOUGH TO FIRE ON A BOMBER.

LT. MAX WOYKE OF BROOKLYN, N.Y., WAS THE FIRST DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBER PILOT TO SIGHT THE JAPANESE SHIPS.

HE SAW ONE DESTROYER THROUGH A CLOUD HOLE. HE SAID, "I THOUGHT WE'D HAVE TO LAY ALL OUR BOMBS ON THE CAN. THEN I SAW A SECOND DESTROYER AND SAID TO MYSELF, 'OH, OH, THIS IS SOMETHING.' WE WENT DOWN AND THERE WAS THE BIG SHIP WE'D BEEN LOOKING FOR."

FOLLOWING WOYKE, DARK, BOYISH LT. (J.G.) J.C. HOGUE OF HENDERSON, TEX., LANDED THE FIRST DIVE BOMBING HIT AMIDSHIPS ON THE TENDER.

"AS I PULLED OUT, I COULD SEE A SPLASH OF FIRE AND FLYING DEBRIS," HOGUE SAID. "I WAS PRETTY HAPPY ABOUT IT. MY GUNNER (RICHARD MIRALLES OF REDDING, CALIF.) TOLD ME, 'SIR WE REALLY GOT A HIT'."

IN ADDITION, THE AMERICANS WERE CREDITED WITH 19 ENEMY PLANES PROBABLY DESTROYED AND NINE DAMAGED.

THE ENEMY RAID WAS DIRECTED AT TWO U.S. AIRBASES IN HUNAN PROVINCE.

LT. (J.G.) RAYMOND EARL, 24, MONROE, LA., SCORED A SECOND CONFIRMED HIT.

JUL 26 1943

FIRST LT. JOHN WORLUND, SEATTLE, WASH., MARINE AVENGER PILOT WAS GIVEN CREDIT FOR ONE OF THE TORPEDO FLIGHT'S HEAVY BOMB HITS. OTHER AVENGER PILOTS SCORING DIRECT HITS WERE MARINE LT. AS HE WAS HEADING HOME, HOGUE SAID, HE HEARD A FIGHTER PILOT RADIOING, "SHE'S JUST NOW GOING DOWN. NICE WORK."

THIS MORNING, DAUNTLESS AND AVENGER PLANES COLLABORATED ON A DRIVE AGAINST THE ENEMY.

THE DIVE BOMBERS MADE A HEAVY STRIKE AGAINST MUNDA AIRFIELD ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND, BLASTING ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN POSITIONS.

GIVING SUPPORT TO GROUND TROOPS IN NORTHERN NEW GEORGIA, AVENGERS, DAUNTLESSES AND MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS WORKED IN RELAYS AT SMASHING JAPANESE POSITIONS AROUND BAIROKO HARBOR. THEY DROPPED MORE THAN 120 TONS OF BOMBS YESTERDAY. (THIS SMASH ON BAIROKO WAS REPORTED PREVIOUSLY IN A COMMUNIQUE FROM GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS).

P-BP AND P-39 FIGHTERS FOLLOWED A TREE-TOP LEVEL STRAFING ATTACK.

CAPT. DICK KOENIG, WINDSOR, COLO., WHO LED THE STRAFING AIRACOBRAS REPORTED, "WE REALLY POURED IT ON THEM. IT WAS GOOD TO BE SHOOTING OUR GUNS AGAIN, AFTER FLYING THE RENDOVA (ISLAND) PATROL WITH NOTHING HAPPENING."

WITH MUSSOLINI

LOS ANGELES, JULY 25-(AP)-EMIL LUDWIG, AUTHOR AND LECTURER WHO WROTE A BIOGRAPHY OF MUSSOLINI AFTER A SERIES OF INTERVIEWS WITH HIM IN 1932, COMMENTED TONIGHT ON THE DUCE'S EXODUS:

"THIS IS THE KEY TO HIS TRAGEDY: THAT HE ASPIRED MILITARY CONQUEST WITH THE HELP OF AN UNMILITANT PEOPLE. HIS ARMAMENTS AND THREATENING SPEECHES IN THE END DROVE HIM INTO THIS ALLIANCE, WITHOUT WHICH HE WOULD NEVER HAVE BEEN ABLE TO CHALLENGE BRITAIN AND AMERICA.

"HE KNEW ENGLAND'S POWER BUT HAD LUDICROUS IDEAS ABOUT AMERICA. HE HATED THE GERMANS, AND SAID TO ME ONCE THAT EUROPE'S HISTORY WOULD HAVE BEEN A BETTER ONE IF THE TEUTONS HAD BEEN BEATEN BY THE ROMANS AND NOT VICE-VERSA.

"HE SPOKE TO ME WITH ENVY OF THE MILITARY SPIRIT OF GERMANY; A SPIRIT TO WHICH HE COULD NEVER ROUSE HIS PEOPLE. THAT IS WHY HE FELL FOR THE GIANT WAR-MACHINE OF PRUSSIA, LIKE SOME DELICATE WOMEN FALL FOR A PRIZE FIGHTER."

CHICAGO, JULY 25-(AP)-RABBI JACOB B. AGUS OF DAYTON, O., DECLARED TONIGHT THAT "JEWISH CLAIMS ON PALESTINE ARE NOT MADE ON NATIONAL OR HISTORICAL ARGUMENTS BUT ON THE BASIS OF REALISTIC CONSIDERATION THAT IT IS THE ONLY AVAILABLE PLACE FOR LARGE SCALE JEWISH IMMIGRATION."

SPEAKING ON A PANEL ON POST WAR PROBLEMS AT THE EIGHTH ANNUAL CONVETION OF THE RABBINICAL COUNCIL OF AMERICA (ORTHODOX), HE ASSERTED THE ATLANTIC CHARTER EMPHASIZED THE RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUAL HUMAN BEINGS RATHER THAN RIGHTS OF NATIONS.

JUL 26 1943

"THEREFORE," HE SAID, "WE FEEL THAT THE PROBLEMS OF JEWS IN EUROPE AFTER THE DOWNFALL OF HITLER WILL BE REGARDED AS WORLD PROBLEMS AND SOLVED AS SUCH."

RABBI WILLIAM DRAZIN OF SAVANNAH, GA. ASSERTED THAT WITH PROSPECTS OF SEVERE ECONOMIC DEPRESSION IN EUROPE AFTER THE WAR "IT WILL BE WELL NIGH IMPOSSIBLE TO REINTEGRATE THE JEWISH PEOPLE NTO THE ECONOMIC STRUCTURE. X X X LARGE UMBERS OF JEWS WILL ELECT TO MIGRATE AND TO MAKE A NEW START.

"IN PALESTINE ALONE IS THERE A COMMUNITY WHICH WILL RECEIVE THESE VICTIMS ENTHUSIASTICALLY AND GIVE THEM A MEASURE OF AID. X X X RECONSTRUCTION OF JEWISH LIFE IN PALESTINE REQUIRES THE IMMEDIATE ABROGATION OF THE 1939 WHITE PAPER WHICH SET AN ARTIFICIAL BARRIER UPON JEWISH IMMIGRATION INTO THE COUNTRY."

RABBI URI MILLER OF NEW ORLEANS, LA., DECLARED THAT "IF RELIGION IS TO BE AN EFFECTIVE INSTRUMENT TOWARDS CONSTRUCTION OF A BETTER SOCIETY IN THE POST WAR WORLD THE INSTITUTIONS OF RELIGION MUST BE STRENGTHENED."

RABBI MANUEL LADERMAN OF DENVER, COLO., VICE PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL, SAID THAT ORGANIZED RELIGION SHOULD HAVE A VOICE IN PLANNING THE PEACE.

"POLITICAL EXPEDIENCY ALONE," HE ADDED, "SHOULD NOT DICTATE THE TERMS OF PEACE. THE RELIGIOUS CONSCIENCE OF MANKIND HAS A HIGHER MORAL POSITION, BY AND LARGE, AND CAN MORE EFFECTIVELY INJECT THE DIVINE ESTIMATE OF MAN AND GODLY COMPASSION IN PLANNING A JUST HUMAN OR

"BETTER TO LIVE A DAY AS A LION THAN 100 YEARS AS A SHEEP."

THAT WAS THE MOTTO OF BENITO MUSSOLINI, WHICH HE ORDERED INSCRIBED ON ITALY'S 20 LIRE COIN.

AND FOR NEARLY 21 YEARS HE EMULATED A LION.

HE WAS SUPREME, TRULY "IL DUCE," THE LEADER--UNTIL HIS DISMISSAL TODAY JUST FOUR DAYS SHORT OF HIS 60TH BIRTHDAY.

KING VITTORIO EMANUELE, WHO DISMISSED HIM, HAD JUST BEEN A FIGURE-HEAD DURING THE TWO DECADES THAT MUSSOLINI RULED ITALY WITH AN IRON GRIP.

THE DISMISSAL WAS A STRANGE TURN-ABOUT OF DESTINY, FOR IT WAS THE KING WHOM MUSSOLINI NOTIFIED BACK IN OCTOBER, 1922, THAT HE WAS TAKING OVER THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT.

A BATTLE-SCARRED VETERAN OF WORLD WAR 8, MUSSOLINI SINCE 1919 HAD BEEN BUILDING UP HIS POWERFUL FASCIST PARTY ORGANIZATION. IT WAS SAID TO COMPRISE 2,000,000 MEN, INCLUDING DISCIPLINED UNITS OF INFANTRY, CAVALRY AND ARTILLERY, EQUIPPED WITH FIELD GUNS, MACHINEGUNS AND ARMORED CARS.

JUL 26 1943

THE FASCISTS, ALIGNED AGAINST THE SOCIALISTS AND LABORISTS, HAD STEADILY GAINED POWER WHILE ITALY SUFFERED POLITICAL AND LABOR DISTURBANCES. WHEN A GENERAL STRIKE PARALYZED THE COUNTRY IN AUGUST, 1922, THE GOVERNMENT OF PREMIER FACTA SHOWED ITS IMPOTENCE--AND MUSSOLINI SAW HIS CHANCE. HE DEMANDED AND RECEIVED THE RESIGNATION OF FACTA UNDER A THREAT TO MOBILIZE THE FASCISTS.

ON OCTOBER 24, MUSSOLINI STOOD AMONG HIS FOLLOWERS AT NAPLES AND DELIVERED AN ULTIMATUM: "GIVE US POWER PEACEFULLY OR WE SHALL TAKE IT BY FORCE." THE PHRASE WAS THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE "MARCH ON ROME."

PLANNED IN FOUR DAYS, THE MOVEMENT WAS CARRIED OUT WITH PERFECT MILITARY PRECISION. FASCIST FORCES THROUGHOUT THE NATION, HAVING THE SYMPATHY OF A VAST MAJORITY OF THE PEOPLE WHO HAD BEEN ALIENATED BY THE SOCIALISTS, MOVED TOWARD ROME. FINALLY RECOGNIZING THE INEVITABLE, THE KING INVITED MUSSOLINI IN TO FORM A GOVERNMENT. IN FORMING HIS CABINET, MUSSOLINI TOOK THE POST OF PRIME MINISTER AND THE PORTFOLIOS OF WAR AND THE INTERIOR. ITALY WAS CONVERTED TO FASCISM.

B75

HE EXALTED "THE WILL TO POWER" AND IMBUED HIS PEOPLE WITH THE IDEAL OF MAKING 20TH CENTURY ITALY A REINCARNATION OF "THE GLORY THAT WAS ROME'S." PACIFISM HE ABHORRED AS CRAVEN; COMBATIVENESS WAS TO HIM THE NOBLEST EXPRESSION OF A NATION'S ABILITY TO FACE SACRIFICE.

HE DESPISED DEMOCRACY AND KEPT THE FORMS OF A CONSTITUTIONAL MONARCHY ALIVE ONLY TO UTILIZE THEM IN CARRYING OUT HIS PROGRAM.

AS CREATOR OF THE FASCIST STATE HE RULED ITALY WITH A MAILED FIST AFTER THE DEPRESSING TURBULENT DAYS OF THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

THEN CAME A FATEFUL DAY WHEN HE CAST HIS LOT WITH ADOLF HITLER.

THE GERMAN NAZI LEADER, JUST COMING TO POWER, BORROWED SOME OF MUSSOLINI'S FASCIST "BLACK SHIRT" IDEAS.

MUSSOLINI, IN TURN, APPROPRIATED SOME OF HITLER'S NAZI IDEAS, SUCH AS PERSECUTING THE JEWS.

A MORE FATEFUL DAY CAME WHEN MUSSOLINI PLUNGED ITALY INTO THE SECOND WAR BY JUMPING ON PROSTRATE FRANCE--A VENTURE THAT EVENTUALLY BOOMERANGED TO PUT ITALY VIRTUALLY ON HER KNEES.

ALL HIS LIFE MUSSOLINI FOUGHT FOR POSITION. SON OF A POOR SOCIALIST BLACKSMITH AND A SCHOOL TEACHER MOTHER WHOM HE REVERED ALWAYS, HE HAD A HARD BOYHOOD AND YOUTH.

NONE EVER DISPUTED HIS PERSONAL COURAGE. WOUNDED IN 98 PLACES BY SHRAPNEL IN WORLD WAR 1, HE LET THE SURGEONS WORK WHILE HE WATCHED WITHOUT AN ANESTHETIC. LATER A TARGET FOR ASSASSINS, HE NEVER SEEMED TO FLINCH.

WHETHER HE LOVED CHILDREN OR NOT, HE THOUGHT THEM A NATIONAL

NECESSITY. GREAT SUMS WERE GIVEN HIM FOR CHARITY AND MUCH OF IT WAS USED IN BUYING LAYETTES FOR BABIES OF POOR FAMILIES, ALWAYS ACCOMPANIED BY A LITTLE CASH TO AID THE PARENTS.

GERMAN PROPAGANDISTS APPARENTLY WERE STUNNED LAST (SUN) NIGHT BY DICTATOR MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL IN ITALY, AND THEY GROPED FOR A MEANS OF PRESENTING THE NEWS TO THEIR OWN PEOPLE. IN ITS FIRST TENTATIVE EXPLANATION BERLIN BLAMED IL DUCE'S "HEALTH."

NOT UNTIL FIVE HOURS AFTER ROME MADE THE ORIGINAL ANNOUNCEMENT DID BERLIN RADIO REPEAT IT IN AN OVERSEAS BROADCAST. THERE WAS NO INDICATION YET THAT THE GERMAN HOMELAND HAD BEEN TOLD.

TRANSOCEAN, GERMAN NEWS AGENCY, QUOTED THE ITALIAN STEFANI AGENCY AS SAYING THAT THE KING HAD ACCEPTED MUSSOLINI'S "OFFER" TO RESIGN AND APPOINTED MARSHAL BADOGLIO AS THE NEW PREMIER.

OFFICIAL BERLIN, APPARENTLY STUNNED BY THE DEVELOPMENTS IN ITALY IN WHICH PREMIER MUSSOLINI WENT INTO THE DISCARD, HAD NOT FOUND ITS RADIO VOICE SEVERAL HOURS AFTER THE EVENT LAST (SUNDAY) NIGHT.

NEITHER DOMESTIC NOR OVERSEAS BROADCASTS BY THE GERMAN RADIO OR SATELLITE NATIONS IN OCCUPIED EUROPE, HAD CARRIED THE NEWS OF MUSSOLINI'S RESIGNATION TWO HOURS AFTER THE ROME ANNOUNCEMENT. APPARENTLY BERLIN HAD NOT BEEN PREPARED FOR THE OVERTURN AND HAD NO EXPLANATION READY.

THE ROME RADIO, TOO, WAS SILENT AFTER ITS FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE. ITALIAN BROADCASTS BEAMED TO FOREIGN LANDS MADE NO MENTION OF THE HAPPENING.

ALLIED RADIOS, HOWEVER, BEGAN BROADCASTING THE NEWS IN ALL LANGUAGES IMMEDIATELY, THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION SAID.

NEW YORK, JULY 25-(AP)-COUNT CARLO SFORZA, FORMER ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER AND FRIEND OF ITALY'S NEW PREMIER, WARNED TONIGHT THAT IF THE NEW GOVERNMENT SHOULD INCLUDE MUSSOLINI'S "DANGEROUS ACCOMPLICES SUCH AS GRANDI, FEDERZONE, VOLPI AND OTHERS," THE MOVE MIGHT BE AN "INDIRECT BENEFIT TO HITLER."

"BUT KNOWING BADOGLIO INTIMATELY FOR 25 YEARS," THE COUNT SAID IN AN INTERVIEW, "MY IMPRESSION IS THAT HE IS SHREWD ENOUGH TO AVOID SUCH A BLUNDER.

JUL 26 1943

"IF THE FASCIST MACHINE AND THE PARTY'S BLACK-SHIRTED ARMY GOES ON, THE WORLD MAY BE ENTITLED TO WONDER WHETHER THE CHANGE IN ITALY IS NOT AN INDIRECT SERVICE RENDERED TO HITLER IN ORDER TO ALLOW HIM TO ORGANIZE HIS DEFENSES IN THE ALPS, WHILE HOPING THAT THE UNITED NATIONS WILL PERMIT THEMSELVES TO BE CHEATED BY A SIMILAR FASCIST REGIME."

DECLARING THAT THE DEPOSING OF IL DUCE WAS "A HAPPY EVENT," THE FORMER ITALIAN DIPLOMAT ATTRIBUTED HIS DOWNFALL TO THE RECENT BOMBING OF ROME.

"LET ME SAY THAT THOSE WHO CHALLENGED THE BITTER MILITARY NECESSITY OF THE BOMBARDMENT OF ROME MUST NOW REGRET THEIR IMPUDENT CRITICISM," HE SAID. "IT IS EVIDENT THAT THE CERTAIN END OF THIS CRIMINAL AND ANTI-CHRISTIAN DEMAGOGUE IS THE DIRECT RESULT OF THE ROME BOMBARDMENT."

REFERRING TO ANY PART KING VITTORIO EMANUELE MAY HAVE PLAYED IN THE REMOVAL OF MUSSOLINI, SFORZA SAID THAT "MY LONG PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE OF THE KING EXCLUDES ANY PERSONAL INITIATIVE IN THE DEAL."

NEW YORK, JULY 25-(AP)-BASEBALL FANS AT THE YANKEE STADIUM GREETED THE NEWS OF MUSSOLINI'S RESIGNATION TODAY WITH A TUMULTOUS UPROAR THAT HALTED PLAY FOR SEVERAL MINUTES.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT WAS READ OVER THE LOUDSPEAKER SYSTEM IN THE SIXTH INNING OF THE SECOND GAME BETWEEN THE YANKEES AND CHICAGO WHITE SOX. THE CROWD OF 36,779 ROARED WITH DELIGHT, THEIR CHEERS DROWNING OUT THE WORDS THAT KING VITTORIO EMANUELE HAD TAKEN OVER.

PRESSURE (700)

BY JOSEPH E. DYHAN

FORT DE FRANCE, MARTINIQUE, JULY 18-(DELAYED)--(AP)--A FRENCH MAJOR NAMED HENRI TOURTET, HIS SPIRITED ENGLISH WIFE AND A PAIR OF MARTINIQUE CIVILIANS EMERGED TODAY AS FIGURES ALMOST AS PROMINENT AS ADMIRAL GEORGES ROBERT IN THE FANTASTIC SERIES OF EVENTS WHICH HELPED BRING FRANCE'S CARIBBEAN ISLES TO THE SIDE OF THE UNITED NATIONS.

MME. ANN TOURTET AND HER HUSBAND RECITED TODAY HOW THEY AUISTED IN SWINGING MARTINIQUE'S EUROPEAN SOLDIERS TO THE ALLIED CAUSE COINCIDENTALLY WITH PRO-ALLIED DEMONSTRATIONS AMONG FORT DE FRANCE'S POPULACE.

NEGRO DEMONSTRATORS WERE LED BY VICTOR SEVERE, FORMER MAYOR AND DEPUTY IN PARLIAMENT, AND EMMANUEL RIMBAUD, AGED, HALF-DEAF PRESIDENT OF THE CITY'S LARGEST BANK.

MEANWHILE, IT WAS POINTED OUT THAT ROBERT'S SINCERITY IN WISHING TO AVOID BLOODSHED WAS PROVED WHEN HE COUNTERMANDED GOVERNOR NICOLS' ORDER TO SHOOT DOWN DEGAULLIST DEMONSTRATORS AS EXCITEMENT MOUNTED NEAR THE END OF JUNE. THESE SOURCES BELIEVE THAT THE ADMIRAL WAS MERELY WAITING FOR THE POPULATION TO "SHOW SOME GUTS" AND RISE UP SO THAT HE MIGHT STEP OUT OF THE TROUBLED PICTURE HONORABLY.

DURING THREE EXCITING DAYS FROM JUNE 27 TO 30 THE HUMID MARTINIQUE SKIES LOOKED DOWN ON SUCH SCENES AS A GARRISON OF 120 MEN BARRICADING THEMSELVES OUTSIDE FORT DE FRANCE IN DEFIANCE OF ROBERT, SOLDIERS MANUFACTURING A HOME-MADE "TANK" ON A TRACTOR CHASSIS, AND THIS DRAMATIC DECLARATION BY MAJOR TOURTET TO THE RESTLESS SOLDIERS:

"I'M WITH YOU. TRUST ME. WAIT. WHEN THE MOMENT COMES I'LL TELL YOU."

THEREAFTER FOUR ANTIQUE NAVY PLANES FLEW OVER TOURTET'S ENCAMPMENT, LEADING THE MEN TO FEAR THAT THEY WERE GOING TO BE BOMBED, ALTHOUGH IT TURNED OUT THE PLANES WERE ONLY SCOUTING.

King Seen Rallying Italians to Sue for Advantageous Peace

(John Evans formerly was chief of the Associated Press bureau in Rome and was intimately acquainted with many of the figures who now can be expected to take up new roles.)

By JOHN EVANS,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, July 26.—King Victor Emmanuel's return to power in Italy smoothes the Allied road to Berlin.

All the manifestos in the world don't alter the fact that the old, pre-Fascist chiefs, the old King and his close friend, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, are in the saddle. They may be unable to clear out the Fascist leaders all down the line, but they have forced out Mussolini and for a generation Mussolini has been Fascist Italy.

The King and Badoglio yesterday proclaimed their intention to defend "the sacred soil of Italy." Obviously no King and no soldier could surrender the land before it was attacked. Sicily is invaded, but the mainland stands and, through patriotism and because the Germans are everywhere, Italy must go on fighting for the present.

Whole Picture Changed.

The ousting of Mussolini, however, alters the whole situation. Il Duce was the fighting chief, backed by a generation of youth constantly harangued to observe his motto: "Live Dangerously." This young generation swore to live and die for Mussolini, but when they have seen his Fascist troops defeated and their leader turned out of power and palace their spirit will be gone. They can turn to no other real leadership within their ranks because Mussolini never developed a right hand man to take his place. Always he was the whole show.

The King never liked Mussolini. He accepted him because he had to. When the Fascists marched on Rome on October 28, 1922, Italy was in a chaotic state. The King feared civil war. He had exhausted his stock of old-fashioned political leaders, none of whom proved strong enough or clever enough to control the people. So he took in Mussolini as premier and gradually Mussolini was everything and the King became a symbol.

King Victor Emmanuel is a symbol of old Italy. Stripped of real power he still held and doubtless holds today something of his old place in the hearts of elder Italians. He always has been a little father to them. He was honest, kind, a devout Catholic, and a good soldier in his day. His proclamation is patriotic and it is a safe assumption that his people will follow where he leads—for the moment at least.

May Rally Nation.

Marshal Badoglio likewise is what is known as a "good" Italian. He stayed away from Fascism until the campaign for Ethiopia. Having been called in by Mussolini to do the job, when he was against Fascism, he felt it only polite to join the party.

Evidence that he was no real convert to Fascism came early in this war when he criticized Mussolini's military conduct and again left the public scene.

Given the King and Badoglio in power, both old but both wise and moderate politically, both patriots of Italy, both of the old regime and each personally devoted to the other, it is apparent that there is Italian leadership that should rally the great mass of Italians.

"We must stand against those who have wounded the sacred soil of Italy," says the King's proclamation, countersigned by Badoglio as premier.

It is possible that Badoglio thinks he can defend the Italian mainland, but it hardly is probable that such a soldier, famed as a good strategist, conscious that Italy is weak and no lover of the Germans, should hope that Italy can stand against the Allied world.

May Delay to Aid Nazis.

Peace certainly is in the minds of the King and Badoglio as it must be in the minds of Italian millions. Hoping to get an honorable peace and good terms, Italy must fight on a little longer.

The King and his new premier know that Allied terms are "unconditional surrender." They know also that the Allies have almost a friendly attitude toward Italy, stripped of Fascists, and they must realize that the Americans would see that they got good treatment and that "unconditional" terms probably would be better than any conditions a defeated country could negotiate.

Italy, however, is obliged to fight on for a time because of the Germans. Hitler's men are in the country and they are strong. Driven from Sicily, the Germans may elect to defend a line across Northern Italy if they do not withdraw entirely. Merely to play fair with their ally, the King and Badoglio would give the Germans time to establish themselves at northern barrier, probably hoping that Hitler will choose the Alps and leave Italy to the Italians and their friends, the allied enemy.

On Thursday Mussolini, if still alive, will be 60. Out at his Villa Torlonia, guarded by Black Shirts, it will be a sad birthday for the man who brought disaster on his country. His Fascism would have attained its majority next October 28. It isn't likely to come of age and it may die so gradually that it never will have a funeral. With Mussolini gone there may be some upstarts seeking to hold or seize power but Badoglio would give them short shrift.

Fascism's Roots Are Deep.

Mussolini set up a plan for a successor but the plan doubtless went out the window as its maker figuratively was tossed out of that beautiful Palazzo Venezia.

Fascism certainly has deep roots. The babies of 1922 are soldiers today. As Romulus who founded Rome and his twin brother Remus sucked their strength from a she wolf, so have the young Fascists been fed, physically and mentally, the doctrine of a daring life, absolute obedience to Il Duce and the greatness of Italy. Romulus killed Remus, his brother, and probably Mussolini has killed Fascism, his twin.

In this doctrine of late years, however, respect for the King and recognition of the Church of Rome have had their places. The King appeared with Mussolini, publicly supported him but it never was any secret that the King merely made the best of things and sought to keep Italy united. Now that he is King again, he and Badoglio have to deal with a Fascism which not only has lost its chief but seen him go out in disgrace, in defeat and without the fighting spirit he preached to his cohorts. Having chopped off the head, the King and Badoglio should not have too much trouble disposing of the body.

Something of Fascism may remain for there are roads, bridges, buildings, and great areas of reclaimed marshes as a physical heritage. There also is familiarity with discipline which the new chiefs may utilize. The political structure of Fascism doubtless will be converted eventually, but so thoroughly were laws and public systems made over by Mussolini that a whole new governmental organization must be evolved; or the system itself might be transformed by a new spirit or rather a revival of the old one which was almost as democratic as a republic.

Three other old leaders, all opposed to Fascism, still live. They are Vittorio Orlando, 83 now, premier during the Versailles Peace Conference; Franesco Nitti, 75, ardent anti-Fascist, former premier, possibly a prisoner in France, and Count Carlo Sforza, 71, former minister of foreign affairs who resigned as Ambassador to France when Mussolini rose to power.

These old men may sooner or later gather about the King as counsellors in the task of remaking Italy.

Italy Put Under Martial Law to Avert Revolt; Duce Reported Seized Fleeing to Germany; U. S. and Britain Insist on Full Surrender

Duce Reported Under Guard in Villa at Rome

JUL 27 1943

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, July 26.—Marshal Badoglio and a new cabinet ruled turbulent Italy tonight under a martial law imposed to prevent civil war between joyous liberals who want to make peace immediately with the Allies and discredited Fascists left leaderless by the mysterious and sudden exit of Benito Mussolini and his ministers.

Stockholm and Bern dispatches reported the broken Mussolini had been arrested while trying to flee to German sanctuary from the nation he brought to the brink of disaster after 21 years of dictatorship.

Mussolini was said in a dispatch from Bern to be under heavy guard at a villa near Rome, but this was not confirmed directly from Italy.

Wild Italian demonstrations for peace occurred last night and all day today in Rome, Milan, Genoa, Turin, Bologna, and other major Italian cities which had been hit by Allied airmen.

Three Fascists were killed at Milan, reports from Switzerland said. Paraders shouted their joy at the downfall of Mussolini, tore down his portraits and Fascist signs, and threw away party buttons as Premier Badoglio planted Italian troops in Fascist headquarters.

Police Chief Replaced

The Fascist-appointed chief of the Italian police was dismissed. He was replaced by Carmine Senise today. Gen. Quirino Armellini was named commander of a "volunteer militia for national security" to aid the military in preventing any revolt.

Stunned German propagandists offered their Berlin-inspired official attitude that Italy would remain in the war, but Allied circles in Bern here were increasingly convinced that it was the beginning of the end for Italy.

One Italian source in Bern said the Italian capital expected an armistice with the Allies would be asked and possibly obtained by the end of the week despite Marshal Badoglio's vague assertion last night that the "war continues."

A Reuters Stockholm dispatch today said preliminary negotiations for an armistice between Italy and the Allied began in Vatican city last night. The Bern correspondent of Svenska Dagbladet was the source of the report. There was no confirmation whatever.

Sponsored Peace Feelers

Of the 17 men who make up Italy's new cabinet attention centered on Raffaele Guariglia, the foreign minister who last spring put out peace feelers through neutral Ankara, Lisbon, and Bern. The Rome radio said Mr. Guariglia had geen recalled from his ambassadorial post at Ankara to take over foreign affairs.

In a recent speech at Ankara, Mr. Guariglia, a 54-year-old career diplomat, had hinted that Italy was tired of war and ready to talk peace terms.

New details of the events preceding the deposing of Mussolini were given by the Rome radio tonight.

Mussolini, the announcement said, called an extraordinary meeting of the Fascist grand council Saturday night to make a political and military report to that body. It was the first time the group had met since Dec. 7, 1939, six months before Italy entered the war on Germany's side.

Just what happened at that meeting was not disclosed, but Mussolini fell from power the next day. The King apparently could not accept Mussolini's military propositions, and the swiftly rising menace from Italian civilians as well as Allied armies in themselves were enough to force Il Duce from office.

Premier Badoglio and the King must move swiftly to save Italy. That is the conssenus in London, Washington, and at Allied headquarters in North Africa.

No Slackening of Pressure

There was no indication that the Allies are going to slow their military pressure on Italy to give the new leaders a breathing spell, or to see if they intend to capitulate as a natural sequence to Mussolini's departure from the scene.

But Premier Badoglio's immediate concern seemed to be measures to curb incipient revolt in Italy. The German radio broadcast a Rome dispatch saying that the newly-appointed chief of Italian police, Carmine Senise, already had taken over his post.

The 71-year-old Premier Badoglio, named by King Vittorio Emanuele to succeed Mussolini as premier last night, established martial law in one of his first pronouncements. Axis radio broadcasts, in elaborating on the official announcement that Mussolini had resigned, implied that he stepped out of his luxurious offices in bomb-scarred Rome because of ill health.

Premier Badoglio invoked a dusk-to-dawn curfew throughout Italy, banned all public gatherings and made the point in a special order of the day that the Fascist militia —some 250,000 men hitherto considered Mussolini's own private troops —was part of the King's armed forces "and with them, as always, cooperates in the common work and intentions for the defense of the Fatherland."

Fascist Party Barred

The broad decrees, broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by the Associated Press, made no distinction between Fascists and the population generally, suggesting that the Fascist party and all it stood for was to go out with Mussolini.

JUL 27 1943

But despite the invoking of military rule—and troops were empowered to fire on violators—reports from the continent told of spreading demonstrations among the war-weighted people of the peninsula.

Secretary Hull said in Washington that the very timely and appropriate ending of Mussolini's rule was the first major step in the early and complete destruction and eradication of Fascism.

Prime Minister Churchill held long sessions with the British War cabinet in London. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden saw U. S. Ambassador John G. Winant and the Soviet charge d'affaires at the London Foreign office, and presumably discussed Italian developments.

The accounts of demonstrations within Italy were varied.

A 30-minute gesture of homage to Pope Pius XII was held in St. Peter's square of Vatican city last midnight, said a German dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio.

Anti-Nazi Outburst

A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said there was an anti-German outburst in front of the Milan cathedral.

At Turin, a crowd was reported to have shouted: "We don't want to be bombed for Germany's sake."

Other reports reaching London told of clashes between Italian civilians and German troops. Some German soldiers were said to have been confined to quarters to prevent further outbreaks.

The accounts of Mussolini's arrest recalled a report in London last week that Hitler had promised him sanctuary at Vienna.

One Bern dispatch said that the former chieftian had been seized by Italian military leaders and that they were "holding him for delivery to the Allies."

Oppose Nazis, Radio Urges

The "Free Milan" underground radio broadcast this exhortation to Italians in mid-afternoon:

"The tyrant is gone. Rise and throw the Germans out of Italy. Rise in one mass against the Germans."

The once pompous Mussolini, who fathered the idea of fascism, quit ignominiously. At the very least his going means that the Italian government is under serious strain and one more blow might break its entire political and military structure.

The whole Axis setup in southeastern Europe is beclouded.

In Yugoslavia, Gen. Draja Mihailovic's partisans are expected to increase the fight against the invaders; in Greece an army of resistance is organized and growing in strength; in Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania there has been growing antagonism.

Balkans Precarious

The collapse of Italy would greatly impair Hitler's ability to hold the Balkans and, in turn would make it considerably easier for the Allies to strike in that direction.

Premier Badoglio's words that "the war goes on" were met in London with such comments as the laconic: "It's okay with us." The unconditional surrender edict developed at the Casablanca conference still stands.

If the eclipse of Mussolini is a prelude to peace overtures — and Italy's days as a fighting partner in the Axis may be numbered — the Allies have all their plans ready.

The Allied Military Government for Occupied Territory headed by Maj. Gen. Lord Rennell has trained personnel capable of dealing with an area and population much larger than in Sicily, where it is now functioning.

Berlin Officials Silent

German foreign office officials were silent. Details of the Rome developments were reported by the Berlin radio to have been presented factually, without comment, to the German people. A Nazi broadcast said that in view of the flood of rumors and alarmist reports from enemy sources, more detailed reports are awaited from Rome before any concrete attitude can be formed."

Predicts Surrender in Week.

One Italian political spokesman in London, who cannot be further identified, predicted that Italy would be out of the war against the Allies within a week. Others were not so optimistic.

This spokesman declared, by the way, that Mussolini's ouster could be attributed directly to two events, the bombing of Rome and the blow suffered when the Vatican radio on Saturday flatly denied the Axis propaganda story that the Pope had protested to President Roosevelt against the bombing.

Andrea Simoni, secretary of the Free Italian movement in London, said: "The King certainly rallied many people to his side, some of whom did not like him. Getting Italy out of the war is naturally extremely popular with the people."

German Army a Factor.

Hitler's army, however, remained an unknown factor in determining the King's next move as the German forces have virtually dominated Italy since their arrival at Il Duce's call for reinforcements. Hitler was now faced with the choice of taking over Italy completely, to keep her in hand or of withdrawing to the Brenner Pass and tightening the boundaries of his "European fortress."

Previous estimates of Hitler's strength in Italy pointed up the latter as his most probable choice. Doubt has been expressed that German forces presently in Italy are strong enough to defend the country without Italian support, and railway lines linking Germany with Italy have been so shattered by Allied air attacks that immediate heavy reinforcements were considered hardly possible.

Says: 'War Continues.'

In a royal proclamation last night, the King announced that he had accepted Mussolini's "resignation" and had installed the 71-year-old Marshal Badoglio—bitter foe of Il Duce and of Fascism—as head of a military government "to stand against those who have wounded the sacred soil of Italy."

Confronted by some of the gravest problems that the commander of a beaten and dispirited army ever faced, with the bulk of Sicily overrun by the Allied armies, with German troops and German policemen on Italian soil, and with the mainland cities beset by bombings that threaten ever-increasing force, Marshal Badoglio said: "The war continues."

But the conviction grew that Italy—her cities shattered, her empire vanished, internal unrest and violence growing, and a mighty Allied army pounding at her threshold—had shaken the "guilty hierarchy" of Fascism and taken a necessary step toward eventual peace.

Read Like Petain's.

Swiss dispatches to London, which expressed the belief that Italy would be out of the war within a few weeks, noted the similarity in tone between today's Italian proclamations and those issued by Marshal Petain shortly before the fall of France.

Allied broadcasts today kept drumming home to the Italians today that they must rid the country of more than Mussolini.

ITALY'S NEW CABINET FACES THORNY PATH

Veteran Diplomat Heads List Of 17 Named By Badoglio

Army In Hands Of Sorice Who Missed Boat On Invasion

JUL 27 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 26—Baron Raffaele Guariglia, veteran diplomat, headed a list of seventeen men whom Premier Marshal Badoglio chose for his Cabinet today to guide Italy through the war-strewn path picked by the preceding Fascist government of Benito Mussolini.

As new Foreign Minister, the baron will have the important double-barreled job of trying to save face for his bomb-torn nation among the remaining Axis leaders and attempt to salvage whatever he can for doomed Italy from the victorious Allies when the day of peace comes.

Envoy To Turkey

Guariglia became Italian Ambassador to Turkey last February. The Berlin radio disclosed tonight that shortly after notification of his appointment as Foreign Minister, Guariglia flew from Ankara to Rome. The baron previously had been Ambassador to France, Argentina and Spain.

Conduct of Italy's armies will be in the hands of Gen. Antonio Sorice as Minister of War. Sorice, now 46, was an artillery captain in World War I, according to a DNB dispatch. He later led various artillery training schools, joined the army's general staff and in 1936 was appointed chief of the cabinet of the War Minister, the dispatch added.

Missed Boat

Sorice missed the boat on the invasion of the Italian islands. The Rome radio quoted him as informing the Italian Senate Defense and Finance Committee last May that the protection of the Italian islands and coastline had been organized on a "well-thought-out plan."

The complete cabinet:

Foreign Minister — RAFFAELE GUARIGLIA.

Home Affairs—BRUNO FORNACIARI.

Finance — SENATOR DOMENICO BARTOLINI.

Minister for Italian Africa—GEN. MELCHIADE GABBA, a Senator.

Justice—GAETANO AZZARITI.

War—GEN. ANTONIO SORICE.

Navy — REAR ADMIRAL RAFFAELE DE COURTEN.

Air—GEN. RENATO SANDALLI.

Agriculture and Forestry—DR. ALESSANDRO BRIZZI.

Education—DR. LEONARDO SEVERI.

Public Works—DR. DOMENICO ROMANO.

Communications — GEN. FREDERICO AMOROSO.

Corporations — DR. LEOPOLDO PICCARDI.

Popular Culture (Propaganda)—DR. GUIDO ROCCO.

Exchange and Currency — DR. GIOVANNI ACANFORA.

War Production—GEN. CARLO FAVAGROSSA.

Under Secretary of State in the Premier's Office—DR. PIETRO BARATALO.

Azzariti, the Minister of Justice, was first president of the Italian Court of Appeals and director of the legislative bureau of the Ministry of Justice.

Badoglio's Announcements

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—The complete texts of the announcements today by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, new Italian Premier, as broadcast by the Rome radio, follow in an English translation:

Pietro Badoglio has issued the following proclamation:

Italians—[illegible] the appeal [illegible] His Majes[illegible]de King Emperor to [illegible]ans ar[illegible] proclamatio[illegible] must again [illegible] at your bend[illegible] duties.

This is not the moment to indulge in demonstrations, because they will not be tolerated. The demands of the present grave hour are soberness, discipline and patriotism from every one of you. Each one is asked to do everything for the supreme interest of the nation.

Assemblies are prohibited and public authorities have orders to disperse all gatherings.

Control of public order now has come under the military authorities.

The proclamation was followed by a manifesto from Badoglio reading:

Commanders of army corps and land defenses assume care of public order.

I assume responsibility for public order in the territory of this province. In order to maintain the status of the law I rely on the high sense of duty and patriotism of all citizens. Force will be used wherever it may be necessary to bring any one who disobeys the law to their senses.

I order that:

1—All armed forces of the state and police forces in the provinces, the various militias, the armed civilian corps and the attested guard now come under my orders. Respective commanders will present themselves to the army corps commander for instructions.

2—A curfew will be imposed from dusk to dawn. No civilian must be out during this period. Exceptions are priests, doctors and midwives. As long as night services of railways still run, civilians coming or going by such trains must carry their personal cards. Public offices of all kinds and variety, theaters, cinemas and sports halls will remain shut during the curfew hours.

3. It is permanently forbidden in any circumstances for more than three people to meet in public or in locked places or to confer together. Sale of arms and ammunition is strictly forbidden. Cars, motorboats and planes of all types must not be used except in the service of the public and military authorities. Special permits must be obtained from civil and military authorities by anyone using such vehicles. The posting of printed bills, manuscripts or advertisements of any kind in [illegible] places except in Cath[illegible] Churches is forbidden.

4. All signaling, either with mirrors or by light is forbidden. All firearms licenses are canceled until further notice. Competent authorities will cancel present applications for licenses. All who have firearms must keep them at home and accept responsibility for seeing they are not used.

5. All Italians who have to leave home must take their identity documents and a photograph of themselves with them. They must produce their identity cards upon request by public order officials or military.

6. Daily papers may print only one edition.

7. Doors of all buildings leading to public highways must remain open day and night and must be illuminated in accordance with prevailing blackout regulations. Windows of all buildings must have their shutters closed during curfew hours.

8. Troops, patrols and public authority officials under my order will, if necessary, use their firearms to enforce the above orders. All offenders will immediately be arrested and handed over to military tribunals for judgment.

Reported Seized Trying to Flee

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—Reuters reported from Stockholm today that Mussolini had been captured by officers while trying to escape from Italy to Germany.

[In a National Broadcasting Company broadcast from Bern Paul Archinard said that reports reaching neutral Switzerland indicated that Mussolini and several of his Fascist leaders were under arrest. These reports were without confirmation.]

War Criminal Rating May Be Mussolini's Lot

Allies to Gather Evidence Against Axis Leaders; Duce Is Likely Candidate

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—Some day there may be issued from London a warrant for the arrest of one Benito Mussolini, ex-dictator of Italy.

A United Nations Commission for Investigation of War Crimes already has been named and is expected soon to begin collecting evidence against a long list of war criminals, which supposedly would be topped by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and Mussolini. Action by the United Nations is expected to follow the commission's findings.

Both Mussolini and Hitler often have been reported to have cached personal funds in Switzerland, a traditional haven for political refugees, and a country which both dictators have left free throughout the war.

Whether Switzerland would alter her traditional policy and exclude Axis leaders was not known. The only other possible refuges for them in Europe are Turkey, which is closely allied with Great Britain; Portugal, also an ally of Britain; Sweden, which Mussolini presumably would have to have Hitler's approval to reach, and Spain, whose Generalissimo Francisco Franco is in Mussolini's debt for aid during the Spanish civil war.

The Vatican is an unlikely but possible temporary haven. It is also possible that Hitler might take in his erstwhile partner.

None of the United Nations leaders is known to have stated specifically that Hitler and Mussolini would be jailed or executed. The purpose of the United Nations commission is to investigate charges against war criminals "regardless of rank."

Armistice Talks In Vatican Reported

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Tuesday, July 27—A Reuter dispatch from Stockholm today said preliminary negotiations for an armistice between Italy and the Allies were begun in Vatican City last night. The Berne correspondent of Svenska Dagbladet was the source of the report. There was no confirmation whatever.

While negotiations were going on in the Vatican, it was said, the German Ambassador to Rome, Hans Georg Viktor von Mackensen, was holding a series of talks with Marshal Badoglio.

An Italian and German communiqué on the von Mackensen-Badoglio talks was expected shortly, the dispatch said.

Report Cries for Peace

STOCKHOLM, July 26 (AP).—The Stockholm newspaper "Allehanda" reported today that thousands of Italians had demonstrated in northern Italy, shouting "Down with Hitler!" "Out with the Germans!" and "We want peace!"

The demonstrations were especially great in Milan and Turin, it said, and German troops in Italy have been in a state of alarm for the last three days.

The reports were roundabout, however, for Stockholm is cut off from communications with Italy.

Throng in Vatican City Demonstrates for Pope

Gathers in St. Peter's Square After Fall of Mussolini

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—As news of Benito Mussolini's resignation spread across Rome, a large crowd gathered about midnight last night in St. Peter's Square at Vatican City and "paid homage to Pope Piux XII" during a half-hour demonstration, a D. N. B. (German official news agency) broadcast from Berlin said today.

D. N. B. quoted as the source of this report a Rome dispatch of "The International Information Bureau," a Nazi propaganda agency.

Unusual diplomatic activity at the Vatican was reported. The broadcast said the Pope received Monsignor Francesco Borgonaini-Duca, Papal Nuncio to Italy, and others at a series of private audiences.

ITALY'S GRAND COUNCIL HEARD DUCE'S SUMMARY

LONDON, July 26 — (AP) Benito Mussolini made a statement on the political and military situation before an extraordinary meeting of the Fascist grand council Saturday night, on the eve of his resignation, the Italian Stefani news agency announced over the Rome radio tonight.

It was the first meeting of the council since Dec. 7, 1939, six months before Italy entered the war.

Moscow Slow to React To News From Italy

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—The Moscow radio, always slow to comment on foreign affairs, broadcast only a bare announcement of the Mussolini resignation today.

CROWDS REJOICE IN ITALIAN CITIES AS FASCISM ENDS

Demonstrations Are Staged in Many Areas; King, Badoglio Lauded.

SYMBOLS REMOVED

All Outward Evidences of Duce's Dictatorship Barred; Martial Law Ordered.

BERN, Switzerland, July 26. — (AP) Demonstrations of joy at Mussolini's downfall broke out in many Italian cities last night, newspapers reaching Switzerland disclosed today, and although Berlin still insisted tonight that her Italian ally would remain in the war, in Allied circles here the conviction grew that it was the beginning of the end for Italy.

One Italian source here said the Italian capital expected an armistice would be asked and possibly obtained by the end of the week, despite Marshal Pietro Badoglio's assertion that the war would continue. Although this appeared premature, it would be surprising if some peace overtures were not made at the earliest moment.

Apparently rejoicing in Italy was general.

Throngs Cheer in Rome

One newspaper, the Milan Gazetta del Sport, said throngs burst into Rome's streets spontaneously on hearing the news and said that a parade invaded the empty halls of the Palazzo Venezia, whose balcony Mussolini used for years as a rostrum for his sword-rattling speeches. Another parade went to the Quirinale where the demonstrators shouted for the King.

A third cheering, singing, flag-waving throng went to the War ministry and acclaimed the Army while others paraded to newspaper offices and elsewhere about the Italian capital.

The newspaper said demonstrators paraded also at Bologna and Milan, and one version reaching the Swiss-Italian frontier said a Milan mob threw stones and broke down doors and windows at Il Duce's own publication, Il Popolo d'Italia. Another report said part of the building was burned.

Shouts of long life to Italy, to the King, to Marshal Badoglio, and to the Army rose into the night at all three cities.

Corriere del Ticino of Lugano, which has shown Fascist sympathies in the past, reported anti-Fascist demonstrations occurred in many cities of northern Italy.

Copies of the Corriere della Sera of Milan told of "joyful" demonstrations at Rome, Florence, Milan and Bologna.

Train Crushes Portrait

At Como a huge portrait of Mussolini was torn down by railroad workers and placed on the tracks where it was shredded by passing trains.

One report said that at Rome a vast crowd demonstrated in St. Peter's square for a half-hour shortly after midnight shouting approval of the Pope. The dispatch said the Pontiff had several private audiences during the day, among his callers being the apostolic nuncio in Italy, Monsignor Borgonicini Duca.

Usually well-informed foreign observers said the Saturday Vatican statement on the bombing of Rome was aimed directly at Il Duce. In Italy the bombing is considered the fault of Mussolini because he failed to declare Rome an open city.

Began Year Ago

Il Duce's fall had its beginning long ago. His resignation appears to bear out this story current in Nazi circles here:

Il Duce sought some way out of the war in the spring of 1942 after the first disastrous winter campaign in Russia. In November, 1942, he specifically asked the Nazis for permission to seek a separate peace. This was refused.

The situation became acute with the Sicilian invasion. Last Monday, summoning Hitler none too gently, Mussolini insisted on more aid as the price of Italy's continuing to fight. Hitler counter-proposed that southern Italy be abandoned in favor of defenses to be established north from Rome.

Mussolini presented this proposal to the Fascist council and the King. The King refused, called Premier Badoglio to the premiership, and forced Il Duce's resignation.

Newspapers reaching Switzerland said the Fascist salute had been abolished and signs erected throughout the nation under Mussolini were being erased. Trains arriving at the frontier had been stripped of their Fascist decorations. Reports that railways and trucks had been commandeered for withdrawal of German trops could not be confirmed.

Carabinieri on Guard

The Carabinieri, armed police loyal to the Italian king, took over guard of Italy tonight as Marshal Badoglio formed a new government to bury Fascism.

Orders went out to every city and hamlet to remove all Fascist insignias. The Fascist militia was incorporated into the regular army, giving loyal Italians an opportunity to throw away their party buttons but still remain in the fighting forces. Those suspected of lingering allegiance to Mussolini were disarmed and arrested.

Trainloads of Italian workers returning from Germany broke into cheers when informed that Mussolini was out.

Demonstrations for peace in Italian cities were said to have inspired a sharp dusk to dawn curfew, a ban on civilian weapons and a prohibition of the assembly of more than three persons. Premier Badoglio put these rules into effect by edict.

Troops Hope to Return Home

Italian occupation troops in Yugoslavia were reported moving swiftly toward the coast in hopes of imminent return home. Some Italians were said to be joining Yugoslav patriots, hoping to fight against the Germans.

(Reports from Algiers said 22 Italian divisions in Yugoslavia and Greece and three or four in southern France were ordered home.) Every indication was that they were caught by surprise, even though Hitler was informed of the crisis when he met Mussolini a week ago.

French, Finnish, Hungarian, Rumanian and Bulgarian cabinets were summoned into special sessions during the morning.

The German view, as expressed here, was that what happened in the Balkans would determine the whole course of the war.

The Axis was irreparably cracked.

Balkan Defection Looms

A defection in the Balkans could quickly smash German defenses in southeastern Europe and bring about a collapse of Germany far sooner than anyone hitherto ever thought possible.

Advices from Germany indicated it was difficult to see how anyone in the Reich could deal effectively with Premier Badoglio. At the minimum, the Nazis privately recognized that Mussolini's downfall marked the beginning of the final phase of the war.

"Black Radio" Was Blamed

BERN, Switzerland, July 26 (AP). —The Berlin correspondent of the Swiss newspaper "National Zeitung" wrote today that diplomats and the press at Berlin were so surprised by Mussolini's downfall that telephones were busy throughout last night. Until the official German news agency D. N. B., gave the report of its Italian counterpart, Stefani, at 11 p. m., the writer said, Berlin newspaper men and diplomats believed themselves victims of the "black radio."

"It is hard to realize that Italy's chief could give up his office and resign as statesmen do in other countries with different forms of government," the "National Zeitung's" correspondent wrote. He said Nazi circles were surprised by the sudden departure of Mussolini, and expressed a conviction that all was over with Italy and that the nation could no longer be expected to carry on the fight as part of the Axis.

ITALIAN PRESS VENTS ITS IRE UPON FASCISM

Unmuzzled After Twenty Years, It Promises "Inexorable Punishment"

Freedom Of Political Activity Also Apparently Is Restored

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, July 26—The Italian press tonight found its lost voice in a full-lunged shout against the Fascism that had muzzled it for twenty years.

Along with freedom of the press, it appeared that freedom of political activity had been returned in Italy.

Whether the Italian press had been restored its full freedom of expression or whether the new Government was not yet able to apply control was not yet certain, but a few copies of Italian newspapers that reached the Swiss frontier carried outspoken declarations such as have not been seen on their pages since the Fascist march on Rome.

Punishment Promised

La Stampa, a newspaper of Turin, published a front-page statement signed by five parties, including the Communist-Socialist party which was outlawed under Fascism. The statement declared that "irresponsibles" who wrought havoc on the Italian nation would be "inexorably punished."

Corriere della Sera of Milan—before Fascism, one of Italy's most noted newspapers—declared "Mussolini left. We are free." It also declared that henceforth it would express its own opinions.

Front-Page Call To Italians

La Stampa carried on its front page a call to Italians, which said the newspaper would receive and publish news.

"The dolorous incubus that weighed upon our political life is ended," said La Stampa. "The monstrous passion that destroyed the greater part of our well-being has been destroyed."

La Stampa branded Fascism as "a regime of persecution, corruption and incompetence that improvisedly involved the country in a war that was not wanted and imposed upon it a situation of tragic responsibility. However difficult may be the trials yet awaiting us we reunite with calmness, firmness and faith in all our forces to indicate to ourselves the new road. Irresponsibles who caused great damage to the nation will be inexorably punished."

Gayda Reported Out As Editor Of Giornale d'Italia

London, July 26 (AP)—The editorship of Il Giornale d'Italia, for years semi-official organ of Benito Mussolini and his Fascist Government, has been taken over by Senator Alberto Bergamini, Berlin announced tonight.

Bergamini founded the paper in 1901 and directed it until 1924, when it was taken over by Virginio Gayda.

The Berlin announcement was heard by the Associated Press.

Bergamini had been removed from his post on the newspaper by Mussolini because of his attacks on the Fascist Government.

North Italian Towns Reported Calm After Mussolini's Ouster

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 26.—News of Mussolini's downfall was taken calmly by Italians in northern towns, like Venice, Milan and Turin, Swiss radio broadcasts reported today.

Telephone communication between Switzerland and Italy has been reopened and railway traffic is continuing regularly, said the broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press.

A Bern dispatch said traffic on the Chiasso Railroad between the two countries was normal.

There still was no telephone communication between Stockholm and Rome and Stockholm reported that Berlin also was said to be cut off from Rome.

MUSSOLINI'S CURTAIN 'NICE SHOCK' IN AFRICA

Some Yanks Cheer, Some Jest, All Welcome News

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 26 (AP)—Johnny Doughboy took the news of Benito Mussolini's walkout with (a) a grain of salt, (b) hat-throwing jubilation, (c) sober contemplation, or (d) just plain confusion, a check-up among American soldiers in North Africa showed tonight.

"Mussolini couldn't take the war in spite of his years of balcony gesturing, and turned yellow," said Charles I. Jones, infantry corporal, of Buffalo, N. Y.

"He isn't fooled by Hitler's hot air and he knows he can't win, so he gets out," remarked Arthur Govanna, infantry private, of Revere, Mass.

"Maybe we will get home sooner because of it," suggested Corps. James J. Osebold of Spokane, Wash., and Dale C. Herman of Indianapolis, Ind.

The news broke up one company at reveille formation. Everybody broke into cheers.

John Calhoun, Air Force sergeant gunner, of Chillicothe, Tex., who has flown over Sicily since the invasion started, expressed the belief that "it's the best break the Italians have had since Mussolini stabbed France in the back three years ago and brought misery and unwanted war to his people."

"What are the odds Italy will fold up now?" asked Corp. Arnold W. Smith of Charleston, W. Va.

"I was afraid it was some sort of propaganda at first, but anyway it was one of the nicest shocks of the war," said Private Libero Bevilacqua of Boston, Mass., both of whose parents were born in Fanno, Italy.

The Wacs too, were voluble in their reactions.

"It will shorten the war a whole lot," declared Lucille C. Jarousse, private first class, of Ardmore, Pa.

Italy's Underground Ready For Action, Calls for Peace

Clandestine Radio Urges General Strike, Immediate Armistice.

CAIRO, July 26 — (AP) Italy's anti-Fascist underground movement is ready for action in that country, and is calling for peace, Dr. Paolo Vittorelli, Middle Eastern delegate of "Guistizia E Liberta," said today.

Dr. Vittorelli, a member of the central committee of Guistizia E Liberta, which asserts that it has the largest following inside Italy, declared that after a silence of nearly a year the group's clandestine radio station in Italy was heard today to say in a broadcast:

"Peace must be signed by the Italian people.

"Railwaymen! Stop all troop trains en route to the Fascist war fronts.

"Soldiers! Do not obey your officers. Desert the Fascist army.

"Italians, make an end immediately to the Fascist war."

General Strike Urged

The radio also called for a general strike throughout Italy.

Commenting on the situation, Dr. Vittorelli declared:

"Italian anti-Fascism and the Guistizia E Liberta movement do not consider Fascism fallen as a result of Mussolini's resignation.

"The struggle is not finished for us until the Fascists throughout the social scale have been routed out and punished for their crimes.

"Our struggle is not ended until the last German soldier is chased from Italian soil.

"The Italian people's victory will be the Allies' victory, when the Fascist rule is replaced by true democracy."

Dr. Vittorelli, who recently interviewed captured Italian soldiers and seamen, disclosed there were many indications of disruption within Italy's armed forces.

Surprising Naval Unrest

One seaman said anti-Fascist sabotage was particularly rife in naval arsenals, while the unwillingness of enlisted men to fight was crippling the Navy.

Dr. Vittorelli said he believed this report might explain the surprising non-appearance of the Italian fleet in the defense of Italy's home shores.

"But," he declared, "the present crisis is not a manifestation of the will of the Italian people. It is an indication of chaos and a breaking up of Fascism, but in reality it is a military coup d'etat, with the palace backing another February revolution.

"The revolution of the Italian people to liquidate Fascism has still to come. It will come."

Like most members of his party, Dr. Vittorelli is young, most active of the Free-Italian movements in the Middle East, the party workers say the organization was founded in 1930 by Carlo Rosselli, who was murdered near Paris in 1937, supposedly by a Fascist gunman. It was said to be the first political movement pledged to fight Fascism after Mussolini came into power.

Allies Squeezing Sicily Foe

JUL 27 1943

Americans Racing Along Coast to Messina —British Hammer at Catania.

DE LUCE

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 26 (A. P.).—Allied troops are squeezing tighter upon Axis last-stand defenses in northeastern Sicily against bitter resistance, it was announced today, and American troops mopping up western Sicily have captured Termini, twenty miles east of Palermo, and taken 7,000 more prisoners, including six Italian generals and an admiral.

[The Algiers radio reported that Allied troops, continuing their steady advance in Sicily, had also occupied Cefalu, fifty miles east of Palermo. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, was not immediately confirmed by official Allied sources.]

"Further pressure on the enemy was maintained in all sectors" by American, Canadian and British forces closing in on the but their progress was slowed Catania-Etna-Messina area, the Allied communique declared. Canadians striking east from central Sicily continued to advance, in the face of bitter resistance, it added.

Some units of the United States Seventh Army, driving toward Messina, are far to the east of Termini, and its capture consolidates the grasp upon the northern coastal area of the island.

70,000 Prisoners So Far.

More than 70,000 prisoners now are in Allied hands of whom 56,000 were taken by Americans. The six Italian generals and the admiral were not immediately identified. To date, ten generals and two admirals have surrendered.

It was officially estimated that three and a half German divisions and three Italian divisions were bottled up in the northeastern corner of Sicily. One of the Nazi units in the Messina bridgehead was identified as the Twenty-ninth Division, named for the German unit destroyed by the Russians at Stalingrad.

Allied planes kept up their incessant hammering, and the Axis supply port of Milazzo west of Messina was blasted Saturday night with many fires started. Road objectives near Orlando also were hit. Three Axis aircraft were destroyed against loss of one Allied plane.

Trapani Falls to U. S.

American units had all but finished the mop-up of western Sicily with occupation of Trapani over the week end by armored forces of Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr.

There was every indication that the Axis was establishing a strong defense along this line and was prepared to make a last-ditch stand in an effort to block an Allied invasion of Italy or at least to wage a delaying action which would permit the evacuation of some troops and equipment if Allied pressure became too great.

The remaining Axis territory is roughly the size of Cape Bon on the North African coast, where the army of Nazi Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim cracked up less than three months ago.

The British were still encountering strong resistance in the Catania sector, but land forces were getting assistance both from the air force and from naval units which swung into offshore positions to blast away at the port of Taromina half way up the coast to Messina.

Allied aircraft also ranged over the Tyrrhenian and Ionian seas and the Strait of Messina to attack Axis shipping still bringing a trickle of men and material to the beleaguered Axis garrison.

Militia Relieved at Swiss Border.

Berne, July 26 (A. P.).—Advices from the Italian frontier reported today that the Blackshirt Militia, which had hitherto been guarding the frontier, had been replaced by carabinieri.

No Comment at Headquarters.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 26 (A. P.).—"It is entirely too early to form a competent opinion on what Mussolini's dismissal will do to the Italian war effort," an Allied general officer declared today. He pointed out that the official information given by Rome was susceptible to numerous interpretations and that until words were backed by deeds, Marshal Pietro Badoglio and his military government remain a question mark.

This officer, who may not be identified, suggested that if the Germans continued to reinforce their three and a half divisions in Sicily, that would be an almost certain sign that they were confident that Marshal Badoglio would be able to keep their rear temporarily secure. On the other hand, if the Germans began pulling out of Sicily, that could be taken as evidence they feared that Italy would try to quit the war.

"All sorts of rumors are circulating now and they must strictly be regarded as such," this officer said. "No one in the Allied command is ready to say today exactly what may be the far-reaching results of Mussolini's ouster."

Churchill to Report Later on Italy

London, July 26 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill will give the House of Commons a comprehensive picture of the Italian war situation at the next sitting, it was reported today.

JOY IN MEXICO GREETS OUSTER OF MUSSOLINI

'Great!' Exclaims Foreign Minister—Carol Sees Italy's Exit

MEXICO CITY, July 26 (AP)—Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla, informed of Premier Mussolini's resignation, declared jubilantly:

"This is great. The Axis is collapsing and now we can look into the future more smilingly."

Señor Padilla hastened to telephone a report to President Manuel Avila Camacho, who was week-ending in Cuernavaca.

The news brought this comment from former King Carol of Rumania, now living here in exile:

"It is hard to make a prediction, but the most likely development would be Italy's withdrawal from the war, since King Vittorio Emmanuel always was opposed to participation in the war."

Bruno Pierloni, general secretary in Mexico, of the Mazzini Society, anti-Fascist Italian organization, expressed his satisfaction with developments and declared:

"The conviction of all anti-Fascist Italians, I am certain, is that the designation of Marshal Badoglio as Premier signifies the first step toward peace."

Axis Shaken By Duce's Fall, Says Tsouderos

Cairo, July 26 (AP)—Greek Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos declared tonight "it is doubtless that the resignation of Mussolini proves how strongly shaken the Axis edifice has been and it cannot but have important consequences for the development of our struggle."

Tsouderos added:

"The Greek people, who gave the first stroke against Fascist Italy, not only because it fought for its soil and homes but also because it was deeply involved in the principles of justice which inspired the United Nations in the struggle, I am sure will rejoice today that the fall of Mussolini and his regime shows how near the hour of victory and liberation of all Greeks is."

Fascist Elements Banned In Badoglio's Dictatorship

JUL 27 1943

Not a Politician or Policy-Maker Is Among Men Selected.

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

(Former Chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Rome)

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) Marshal Pietro Badoglio has set up a military dictatorship in Italy, free of all political control, Fascist or otherwise.

This became obvious today with the announcement of his new cabinet which supplants the Fascist politicians who were swept out of office in the resignation of Benito Mussolini.

There is not a politician or a policy-maker in the lot. All are bureaucrats, career officers or civil servants of the type who, in a democratic country, remain on the job regardless of the party changes in the government.

Most of them are unknown to those of us who lived in Rome because they were sitting at desks in the various ministries, handling the paper work.

Keep Civil Services Running

It is obvious that they were elevated to ministerial rank in the present crisis only to keep the civil services running while the Army rules the country and conducts the faltering war effort, perhaps with the inevitable surrender in view.

Raffaele Guariglia, the new foreign minister, is a career diplomat who started, traditionally, in the Italian consular service and worked himself up to the rank of ambassador by following orders. He was ambassador to France at the time Mussolini declared war against that counrty. Later he was ambassador to the Vatican, was removed there to make room for Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, and was sent to Ankara.

The only holdover from the Fascist regime seems to be Gen. Carlo Favagrossa, minister of war production. Premier Badoglio retained the Donald Nelson of Italy. But General Favagrossa, a career general, probably had less power under Mussolini than the director of the War Production board has under Roosevelt.

Bruno Fornaciari, minister of interior, is a prefect, in the career service that directs the civilian police activities of Italy. A prefect corresponds to a provincial governor.

Domenico Bartolini, minister of finance, has been the chief purchasing agent in the Finance ministry, with a voice in the handling of savings bank deposits and social insurance funds, which in Italy are invested in war bonds.

And so on down the line. Presumably the other cabinet members are no more nor less Fascist than Dr. Guido Rocco, the new minister of popular culture, who will direct the propaganda. Dr. Rocco is well-known to every American correspondent who served in Rome for he was long in the Propaganda ministry. In recent years he has been chief of the foreign press section.

Dr. Rocco is a mild-mannered man, with impeccable courtesy. He was supposed to guide the foreign correspondents along the line of Fascist rectitude in news reporting, but the job was mainly one of passing along the complaints of Mussolini who, a former journalist, kept a keen eye on the press.

Dr. Rocco, consequently, had to give quite a few of the foreign correspondents what was called a "head-washing" fairly often. He usually squirmed under the unpleasant task, for it was alien to his nature. It alwayse seemed distasteful to him to inform us that we had offended the dignity of the Fascist regime.

We regarded Dr. Rocco as a man unhappy in the post that had been assigned to him. He seemed still unhappier when Mussolini imported the anti-Semitic campaign from Germany. Colleagues said it was because his wife was Jewish and Dr. Rocco's position as a civil servant had become still more difficult.

DUCE'S DOWNFALL PRESAGES DEATH

OF FASCIST RULE

Cordell Hull Says Allies Will Fight Bitterly for Full Surrender.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP) The downfall of Benito Mussolini as Italy's dictator was viewed by official Washington today as the beginning of the end for the Axis powers.

Secretary of State Hull said he regarded Mussolini's resignation as the initial major step in the early and complete destruction of Fascism throughout the world.

But, he told his press conference, the United States is still fighting like the devil for an unconditional surrender by all of its enemies.

The general Congressional reaction was that Italy soon would seek peace and that the terms must be complete capitulation, disarmament and free access by the United Nations to Italian military bases.

Enthusiasm Tempered

The capital's enthusiasm was tempered, however, by words of caution from all sources that there is still hard fighting ahead for the Allies.

Mr. Hull called the dramatic event very timely and appropriate and said he believed Japan will take due notice. But he made it clear that Mussolini's dismissal would mean not the slightest letup in the Allied military drive toward the Italian mainland.

Mr. Hull said he had no information either from the White House or the War department that there would be any change in the unconditional surrender terms laid down at the Roosevelt-Churchill conference at Casa Blanca last January.

From President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines came the opinion that the dictator's fall, "is the widest crack so far in the Axis armor."

Through the Philippine Office of Special Services in Washington, Mr. Quezon hailed Mussolini's ouster as "good news" but acknowledged that "it is too early to be sure that his political demise marks the end of the Italian resistance to the invincible forces of freedom."

Satisfactory Terms Held Likely

Several senators said they thought acceptable terms could be made with Italy now by which Allied armies might gain access to the European continent without the bloody prelude of a shoreline invasion.

Senator Burton (R-Ohio) said, however, that he did not see how the terms of even a temporary peace with Italy could vary from the unconditional surrender mandate laid down by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

30.24-6553

"That would mean, of course," he said, "that whatever military needs we may have in Italy shall be met by the Italians."

Senator Guffey (D-Pa) said he felt the apparent downfall of Fascism in Italy would pave the way for an agreement which would remove the country from the war "and save the lives of thousands of our boys."

Senator Milliken (R-Colo) commented that any armistice must call for the demobilization of the Italian armies and Senator Revercomb (R-W.Va.) declared that the Italians must "get completely out of the war and give us access to Italian territory for military uses."

Largely agreeing with his colleagues, Senator Davis (R-Pa.) declared that Mussolini's fate is the end of the journey for all dictators.

"What has come to Mussolini will come to all dictators," he added, "and I hope that, with the final peace settlement Italy will be back among the free people of the world."

Representative Ludlow (D-Ind.) termed Mussolini's fall "the beginning of the crack-up for the Axis," and predicted Italy would be out of the war in a short time.

Representative Thomason (D-Tex.) also expressed belief that it was the beginning of the end of Italy's role in the war.

"The same fate is in store for Hitler," he remarked. "We're definitely on the way."

Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, remarked that "if that ugly pretense at government has been thrown overboard by Italy it may mean an important step in the sweep toward victory."

"The weakness of the Italian people," he said, "has been the weakness of their evil leaders. Italy has partially retrieved its honor by renouncing the blood thirsty man who was responsible for the greatest tragedy in the history of the Italian people.

"Italy can now avert further tragedy only through an honorable surrender to the inexorable force of Allied arms."

AXIS HAS BOMBED CHURCHES STEADILY

Ecclesiastical Buildings in Many Countries Blasted Mercilessly.

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP) Axis airmen have bombed thousands of churches, monasteries and other ecclesiastical buildings in Great Britain, France, Poland, Norway, Greece and other United Nations, the Office of War Information said today.

Describing its reports as incomplete, the OWI told of many instances of widespread damage to religious edifices by Axis bombers. The full story may not be available until the war ends.

Herbert Morrison, British Home secretary, has estimated that 13,895 churches, monasteries and other religious buildings in Great Britain have been damaged or destroyed by Axis bombs. The lists include 4,100 churches, 22 of them designed by Sir Christopher Wren.

Available information indicates that France's more famous cathedrals escaped bomb damage, but churches in several French towns, including Gisors, Les Andelys, and Samur, were bombed during the Nazi campaign in France.

Dutch sources report that five large churches in Rotterdam were destroyed by air attacks and that churches in Vlissingen, Rhenen and Delzigl also were bombed.

Norwegian Churches Hit

In their invasion of Norway, Norwegians report, the Nazis bombed all the churches in Kritiansand, Molde, Bodoe, Steinkjaer, and Namus, as well as a 400-year-old church in Gudbrands-dalden, a town north of Oslo.

In Belgium, the cathedral of Tougnai was reported gutted by fire and many churches around Antwerp, Liege and Kassel were destroyed by bombs.

The cathedrals of Canterbury, Coventry and Liverpool were among the British churches reported damaged by Nazis bombs.

In Scotland alone, 121 churches have been hit by Nazi bombs and seven of them destroyed.

1000 Smashed in Poland

The number of churches blasted in Poland was tentatively estimated at 1,000, with almost every church in Warsaw damaged or destroyed. Saint John's cathedral, built in the 14th century, the 18th century church of St. Xavier, the 17th century church of St. Cross, an 18th century Lutheran church in Warsaw, and the great synagogue of Warsaw were demolished.

Other Axis partners have followed the examples of the Nazis. The Greeks have accused the Italians of deliberately destroying the ancient Greek Orthodox church of St. Sophia, described as the oldest church in Christendom. Greek churches have also been destroyed on the island of Crete and in many other Greek cities.

Reports from Yugoslavia said the Bulgarians had bombed and pillaged scores of churches in Serbia.

In the Pacific, the Japanese have destroyed or damaged several historic Catholic institutions in Manila.

U.S. TROOPS PRESS 500 YARDS CLOSER TO MUNDA BASE

JUL 27 1943

Land Advance Follows Severe Aerial Pounding of Jap Positions.

McDANIEL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday, July 27 — (AP) Driving ahead under the support of a heavy bombardment from sea and air, American troops pushed their front line 500 yards closer to the core of Japanese defenses at the strategic Munda airfield yesterday.

It was the first general ground advance reported since the beginning of the battle for New Georgia island in the central Solomons.

Official reports failed to give any details of what apparently is the start of the long-heralded drive which should bring American troops to grips with the enemy in and along the firmly-established and stubbornly-held perimeter defenses of Munda.

Following a softening-up campaign that probably was achieved by American planes which rained nearly 600 tons of high explosives on enemy positions last week, an unstated number and type of Allied warships Sunday afternoon believed what spokesman for General Douglas MacArthur described as a "heavy bombardment" against Munda's defenses.

Navy Fliers Aided

Formidable units of United States Navy Dauntless and Avenger bombers, covered by Wildcats and Corsairs, joined in the bombarding process Sunday evening, and followed by Monday morning by further Avenger and Dauntless waves which braved intense ground fire to dump 82 tons of bombs on pin-pointed gun positions and personnel targets around the big air base.

While American naval and air units concentrated on opening gaps in the Munda perimeter for advancing infantrymen, Liberators of the army's 13th airforce, escorted by a strong formation of fighters, attacked the airdrome around Buin-Faisi where American airmen reported a concentration of enemy planes.

After fighters had swept the Khaili airfield with cannon and machine-gun fire, Liberators bombed the dispersal and bivouac areas from a high altitude. Coming on the scene after that attack, 30 Zeros made an unsuccessful attempt to break up departing American formations. We lost one fighter in this engagement.

Vila Fires Set

Giving no rest to the Japanese holding Vila on Kolombangara island, 17 miles northwest of Munda, Army Mitchell bombers with fighter protection bombed and strafed supply areas causing fires which burned for hours.

Eleven Japanese fighter planes were destroyed in an air battle over Salamaua.

The Japanese bombed Allied positions on Nassau bay, below Salamaua, and Tambu bay and Vangunu on New Georgia island.

Medium Allied bombers scored hits on a jetty and adjacent buildings at the enemy-occupied village of Larat in the Tanimcar islands, resulting fires sending smoke 2,000 feet high.

Two small enemy supply vessels were driven ashore off Cape Cunningham, New Britain island. One was left in flames. A heavy bomber raided the airdrome at Lae, New Guinea.

The communique said light Allied naval craft intercepted a group of enemy barges attempting to run supplies to the New Georgia forces by night, sinking one and damaging two others.

At Komiatum, seven miles from Salamaua, one of our heavy units, supporting ground units, dropped 70 tons of demolition bombs on Japanese gun positions and other defense works.

the communique said.

At Salamaua itself, heavy bombers dropped sixty-seven tons of bombs starting several large fires on the airdrome and near-by areas. Direct hits were scored on buildings and installations.

Eleven Shot Down

Allied fighters intercepted a force of thirty to fifty enemy fighters in the area, shooting down eleven and probably downing five others against the loss of one of ours.

At Munda, our torpedo and dive bombers dropped eighty-two tons of bombs on enemy gun positions covering the airdrome. One Allied plane was lost but the crew was saved.

Surface naval forces supported the ground troops with an effective bombardment, and the land forces increased their pressure on the besieged Japs with a general advance along the entire front, moving up 500 yards in one sector.

A heavy Allied bomber bombed the airdrome and other targets at Vila on Kolombangara Island shortly after dawn, and later medium bombers with a fighter escort followed through with a bombing and strafing attack at Webster Cove near by, causing fires that burned three hours after the assault.

The ground advance on the strategic Munda air base followed a thorough pounding of the area by 200 American bombers which dropped 186 tons of bombs Sunday. During the past week 580 tons of bombs have been dropped on Munda.

MacArthur Men Inch 500 Yards Closer to Munda

Close In Under Air Umbrella and Sea Bombardment, Raid Salamaua and Lae

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 27 (Tuesday) (AP).—The Allies have made a 500-yard advance in their drive on the Japanese air base of Munda on New Georgia Island in the central Solomons, closing in under a supporting air and naval bombardment, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced in a communique today.

The ground advance on Munda followed an Allied aerial pounding of the base on Sunday which headquarters described as the heaviest aerial assault of the Pacific war.

Salamaua and Lae on New Guinea, Buin on Bougainville and Vila on Kolombangara Island were bombed heavily yesterday by Allied airmen. Eleven Japanese fighter planes of a force of thirty to fifty were destroyed in an air battle over Salamaua. Five more were probably shot down.

The Japanese bombed Allied positions on Nassau Bay, below Salamaua, and Tambu Bay and Vangunu, on New Georgia Island.

Medium Allied bombers scored hits on a jetty and adjacent buildings at the enemy-occupied village of Larat in the Tanimbar Islands. Two small enemy supply vessels were driven ashore off Cape Cunningham, New Britain Island. One was left in flames.

Light Allied naval craft intercepted a group of enemy barges attempting to run supplies to the New Georgia forces by night, sinking one and damaging two others in Kula Gulf.

Jap Base at Munda Shaken by Heaviest Raid of Pacific War

SPENCER

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 26.—American bombers, in the mightiest aerial assault of the Southwest Pacific war, dropped 186 tons of bombs yesterday on Japanese positions at Munda, New Georgia.

More than 200 planes—Liberators, Flying Fortresses, Mitchells, Avengers and Dauntless bombers, with strong fighter escort—participated in the attack, and only one failed to return.

The communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters made no comment on the results of the raid beyond saying that "the area was thoroughly bombed."

Six hundred miles to the west, the Royal Australian Air Force executed the heaviest attack yet made on the Gasmata airdrome on the south coast of New Britain. Roaring in at dawn, Beauforts, Beaufighters and Bostons, with Kittyhawks as cover, destroyed the radio station and grounded aircraft.

"The runway and dump areas and enemy personnel were thoroughly strafed," the communique said. "Antiaircraft positions were silenced."

Attacks against Japanese shipping continued. A Liberator bomber on reconnaissance over Buka Island in the Northern Solomons sighted eight Japanese merchantmen moving in the direction of the hard-pressed enemy bases to the southeast. The bomber attacked the largest of the vessels, which were without the protection of warships. Crewmen said they saw six of their 500-pound bombs explode within 40 feet of the 8,000-ton transport. The ships raised a heavy anti-aircraft barrage and the Liberator did not remain to observe results.

Thirty Japanese bombers, escorted by as many Zeros, were intercepted in an attack on Allied positions on Rendova Island a few miles south of Munda.

"The attackers were driven off with the loss of eight of their fighters," the communique said. "Four of our planes were destroyed in combat, but three of the pilots are safe."

There was no news on the ground fighting either in New Guinea or on New Georgia. The heavy bombing of the Munda positions, however, indicatd that American troops who have hemmed the Japanese within the immediate defenses of the airdrome have found further progress difficult. The air assault, which raised to more than 580 tons the weight of bombs dropped on the area in the past week, was destined to help reduce pillboxes, machine-gun nests and other positions hidden in the jungle.

Writer Wounded in Solomons

GUADALCANAL, July 23 (delayed) (AP).—Osmar White, war correspondent of "The Melbourne Sun" and "The Sydney Telegraph," suffered fractures of both legs when enemy bombs hit a small naval vessel on which he was traveling near Rendova Island two nights ago.

HULL SAYS HEAVIER PRESSURE IS TO BE PUT ON ITALY NOW

JUL 27 1943

Asserts Chief Reliance Is on Military Events—Calls Ouster Timely.

Washington, July 26 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull indicated today that increased military pressure to insure Italian capitulation to the Allied demand for unconditional surrender would be this country's response to the downfall of Benito Mussolini. He termed very timely and appropriate the ending of the Italian dictator's regime and said that it was the first major step in the early and complete eradication of Fascism, but Secretary Hull emphasized repeatedly that the chief reliance is on military developments.

The State Department head, making the first official American comment on the displacement of the Italian dictator, told a press conference that the Allies were fighting like the devil, when asked what the United States was doing in the face of the Italian internal developments. Secretary Hull indicated no change in the unconditional surrender policy laid down by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill and said that if all minds are kept on fighting like the devil, the Allies will win the war much sooner.

Japan Will Take Notice.

He emphasized that all attention is on military developments. Secretary Hull said in response to another question that he believed Japan would take due notice of what has occurred in Italy.

At the outset of the press conference, Secretary Hull was asked if he anticipated any change in the unconditional surrender terms fixed by the United States and Great Britain for capitulation by the Axis. He said that he had no information to that effect from the President and War Department and did not anticipate anything.

Asked to comment generally on the Mussolini shift, he said that he has been convinced that Fascism carries with it the seeds of its own destruction. He added that the very timely and appropriate ending of Mussolini's regime was the first major step in the complete destruction and eradication of every vestige of Fascism, both nationally and internationally.

No Contract With Badoglio.

Asked if the United States would negotiate with King Victor Emmanuel, or if he regarded the King in the same class as the Fascists, he said that he had not conferred with the President. He said that there was no truth in reports that the United States had made contact with the new Italian Premier, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, a few months back.

Asked if the no-surrender terms applied to Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania, Secretary Hull first referred his questioner to President Roosevelt and the War Department, then remarked that he imagined the same terms applying to the Axis would apply to all other countries which had declared war against the Allies. He would not undertake, however, to discuss what he termed marginal cases, such as Finland.

Another question was if Secretary Hull considered the House of Savoy as a faction of the Fascist party. He replied that as far as the State Department is considered, the war is on in Italy, and it has not as yet reached that question.

To an inquiry as to the effect of the Italian developments on the people in occupied territories of Europe, Secretary Hull said that he would rather not move too fast ahead of American armies. He said that he had no confirmation of reports that Italian troops were being withdrawn from Albania.

The State Department, he said, had no information on Mussolini's whereabouts. His statement that Japan would take due notice of the downfall of Mussolini was in reply to a question if the Italian development carried any message for the Pacific Axis partner.

Repeatedly he emphasized that the United States awaits military developments. He gave that reply to half-a-dozen questions, including one whether the American Government has been in consultation with Great Britain on the Italian shake-up.

Mrs. Roosevelt's View.

In other words, he emphasized, this Government is on the qui vive, watching all military moves. The White House, meanwhile, remained silent on the Mussolini resignation, and most other official circles remained reserve.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt declared today that the ouster of Mussolini as head of the Italian Government was "a break in the assurance" of the Axis powers and "might be the beginning of a crack internally." Asserting that she could not speak for the President, the First Lady told her press conference that the upheaval in the Italian Government certainly was a surprise to her.

"Everybody feels excited at something which might be the beginning of a crack internally," Mrs. Roosevelt said. She added that an internal crack "after all, is a sudden thing."

"To have one dictator disappear shows a break in assurance of the Axis powers," she declared.

ITALIAN WAR PRISONERS HAIL DUCE RESIGNATION

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 26—(AP) Col. Frank A. Hunter, commanding officer at the Ashford Interment camp, said today that the Italian prisoners of war appeared anything but downcast at the news of Mussolini's "resignation."

The prisoners' ranks, swollen by new arrivals from the battlefronts, were cheerful as they went about their work, Col. Hunter stated.

One internee's cap bore in Italian the legend: "I told you so."

Exiled Catholic Leader Hails Mussolini's Ouster

Sturzo Sees First Step Toward Return to Democracy

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 26 (AP).—Don Luigi Sturzo, exiled former leader of the Italian Catholic Popular party, which Benito Mussolini outlawed, said here yesterday that Il Duce's ouster is the first step in Italy's return to "a free democratic and Christian country."

In an interview with "The Jacksonville Journal," Don Luigi, who has lived here since 1940, said: "The fall of Mussolini is a great and hopeful event in itself, not only for Italy, but for the United Nations. It is not clear yet what the Italian situation is now. We shall see very soon what Hitler will do to avoid a separate peace for Italy.

"I think the reaction of the Sicilian people in welcoming Allied troops with cheering, flowers and fruits, as in Palermo, has shaken the last confidence in fascism. The Sicilian people have freely demonstrated their feelings for liberty and peace."

Don Luigi, seventy-three years old and frail, was interviewed at a hospital where he is recuperating from a heart ailment. He left Italy in 1924 after Mussolini dissolved the Popular party and placed him on the hunted list.

Italian-American War Veterans Express Hope

Philadelphia, July 26 (AP)—Damiano Sassi, of Philadelphia, national commander of the Italian-American War Veterans' Association, representing 15,000 veterans of the last war, sent this telegram to President Roosevelt today:

"As all America rejoices over the fall of Fascism, may I, in behalf of Uncle Sam's legion of veterans of Italian blood, both on the battlefront and on the home front, extend warm felicitations to our commander-in-chief, who not only foresaw this real beginning of the end of world gangsterism, but whose sagacity, executive ability and courage were the generating factors.

"In Il Duce's fall, we see the dawn of a new peace and freedom, the emancipation of enslaved epoples, and the triumph of peoples still free but completed to fight for continued freedom. A bleeding world looks forward to your wisdom and initiative in attaining victory."

Badoglio, Here In 1921, Pledged Italy To Peace

Philadelphia, July 26 (AP)—Italy's new Prime Minister, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, said the Italian people "dream of peace" when he visited Philadelphia on July 24, 1921.

Asked to comment on the Washington Disarmament Conference, then pending, he said:

"We shall be glad to lay aside our swords for all time. We have fought the war and now dream of peace. The move that your President has made toward calling a conference on world disarmament is a noble and inspiring action. I am confident the Italian nation will be sure to join most heartily in the movement."

Hitler's Hand Seen In Ousting Of Duce

Boston, July 26 (AP)—Dr. Gaetano Salvemini, Harvard professor of Italian history, international liberal and anti-Fascist, said today that he thought "Mussolini was thrown out as the result of a direct agreement with Hitler."

"When Palermo fell Mussolini lost all prestige" he said in an interview. "No one would take orders from him any more. So the problem has been attacked by this attempt to create national agreement around the King and Badoglio.

"Now we will have to wait a few days and sees what happens in the big cities of the north," the professor declared, "whether there's to be a popular uprising and a concerted demand for peace."

Hoover Sees Il Duce's Fall as Handwriting On Wall for Axis

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The resignation of Benito Mussolini, former President Hoover says, "will give heart to every man and woman in Axis-dominated countries—it is the handwriting on the wall."

Mr. Hoover made the statement last night in a broadcast from his home in Palo Alto, Calif., to the closing session here of the Emergency Conference to Save the Jewish People of Europe.

Deviating from his prepared speech to comment on the ousting of the Fascist leader, he described Mussolini as "one of the great persecutors—not only of Jews."

In his prepared talk, the former President proposed that the uplands of Central Africa might well be thrown open as a land of refuge for Jews and other peoples persecuted by the Axis.

"Many of these great African areas," he said, "are mandates established from the last war, in trust for all the world. Such an area in Africa could be considered sentimentally an annex to Palestine."

Urging that "more systematic temporary measures" be taken now to aid Jewish refugees, Mr. Hoover said:

"There are groups of Jews who have escaped into the neutral countries of Europe. They and any other refugees from the persecution of Fascism should be assured of support by the United Nations."

President Roosevelt sent a message to the emergency conference in which he said:

"You are aware of the interest of this Government in the terrible condition of the European Jews and of our repeated endeavors to save those who could be saved. These endeavors will not cease until Nazi power is forever crushed."

La Guardia Tells Italy To End All Fascism

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Mayor F. H. La Guardia in a short-wave broadcast beamed to Italy last night called on the Italian people to "eliminate the Fascist government" and added:

"When we say that, we mean to say the complete elimination of the Fascist philosophy and the Fascist government."

The Mayor's broadcast, released by the New York Office of War Information, followed the announcement that Premier Mussolini had resigned and Marshal Badoglio had been named his successor.

Mayor La Guardia, referring to a statement by Badoglio that "the war continues," asked:

"Does this mean that the complete downfall of Italy must be carried out? Does this mean that Italy must continue to share the misery, the defeat and the shame of Germany?

"The Italian people must make this decision. As for us, we are at war against all those who continue to support the war begun by Hitler and by Mussolini, and we will continue this war until Fascism and Nazi-ism are destroyed."

Italy.

The momentous news spread quickly through New York's Italian quarter and impromptu celebrations were staged in the narrow, crowded streets.

Angelo Rizzo, known as "the Mayor of Mulberry Street," said, "It's the greatest thing that ever happened Italy will return to herself once again."

Meanwhile some 1,800 persons of Italian birth—attending an anti-Fascist rally at Cooper Union—were electrified into a shouting, parading mass when Representative Marcantonio, American Labor party, dramatically interrupted a speaker to announce the "message of historic importance."

The crowd leaped to its feet and began a 10-minute victory parade through the auditorium, their hands held high in V-for-victory salute.

At the Yankee Stadium, where the Yankees were playing a double-header with the Chicago White Sox, baseball momentarily ceased to exist when the announcement of the resignation was broadcast over the loudspreaker system.

The announcer's voice was drowned out as the 36,779 fans roared and jumped up from their seats.

Duce Before Fascist Council

New York, July 26 (AP)—Twenty-nine ranking Fascists attended the Fascist grand council meeting Saturday night on the eve of Benito Mussolini's resignation to hear him make a "statement on the political and military situation," the Office of War Information quoted the Italian Stefani agency as reporting tonight.

This was the first grand council meeting since Italy entered the war, the OWI said. It related that among those present were such party notables as Carlo Scorza and Roberto Farinacci, new and old Fascist party secretaries, respectively; Dino Grandi, relatively youthful and reputedly mild Fascist former Foreign Minister and Ambassador to Washington and London, and aged, white-haired Marshal Emilio de Bono, one of Mussolini s oldest collaborators and

New York Italians Celebrate News of Mussolini's Ouster

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 26.—L'Italia e salvata—Italy is saved!

Those were the words with which rejoicing Italian-Americans greeted the announcement that Premier Mussolini was no longer dictator of one-time top military leader and Count Ciano, former Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Financial Marts Hit By Reports Of Mussolini's Fall

New York, July 26 (AP)—Peace selling jolted financial markets today as the downfall of Mussolini was construed in financial quarters as another broad step toward victory and the return to normal times when readjustments in industry generally may entail difficulties.

Stocks with a war rating were among the principal casualties; steels, rails, aircrafts and specialties dropping $1 to $5 at the worst. Late support reduced extreme losses in many cases but the Associated Press 60-stock average finished with a net loss of $1 at $51.80 after its recent climb to a new high since October 1939. Transfers amounted to 1,455,740 shares. A few issues with good post-war prospects emerged with modest advances.

Corporate bonds dipped with stocks although loans of Axis-occupied countries exhibited isolated strength. Commodities softened with grains losing 1 to 2 cents a bushel.

BADOGLIO, DUCE HELD PRE-DAWN CONFERENCE

BUENOS AIRES, July 26—(AP) The pro-Fascist Italian language daily, Mattino D'Italia, in a special dispatch from Rome, said today that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, new military chief of Italy, had held a long conference with Benito Mussolini early Sunday morning in the latter's villa at Torlonia.

A final decision that the Duce should leave the government apparently was reached at this time, the dispatch said, adding that Mussolini had given King Vittorio Emanuela a complete report on the military and political situation on Saturday night.

Il Duce was represented as telling the King that he was prepared to resign if this could facilitate the solution of the government's problems. Subsequently, the monarch was reported to have conferred with Crown Prince Umberto, Marshal Badoglio and others. The result of these conversations was Marshal Badoglio's pre-dawn visit to Mussolini, presumably to inform the Duce that he was being replaced at the head of the government.

Badoglio Is Facing Hardest Fight of His Stormy Career

By the Associated Press.

Field Marshal Pietro Badoglio, 72-year-old veteran of six Italian wars, has stepped from retirement into the premiership vacated by Benito Mussolini to face a conflict on two fronts alongside of which all of his other campaigns pale into insignificance.

The hard-bitten soldier comes to the leadership of his country at an hour which finds it threatened by victorious Allied armies from without and with the home front crumbling under the sledge-hammer blows of Allied aircraft and the ebbing morale born of defeatism.

Long a close friend of King Victor Emmanuel and never a member of the Fascist clique which surrounded Mussolini, he has, nevertheless, been a dominant figure in Italian affairs from the World War until he resigned as chief of staff of the Italian Army on December 6, 1940, after the crushing defeats in the Greek campaign.

Opposed Il Duce.

His opposition to various aspects of Mussolini's leadership since Italy's entrance into the present war have given rise to frequent rumors that he was the leader of a move for a separate peace for Italy.

It is no secret that he has been out of step with the Fascist party, although he held an honorary membership, and he has been a critic of the increasing German influence, as indicated by his bitter letter to the King last year objecting to the subordination of Italian generals in the Axis command.

The grizzled old soldier shunned the Fascist march on Rome in October, 1922, and through the years he has appeared to be lukewarm toward the party.

This is the third time he has been called up from obscurity in an effort to pull the country out of Mussolini's military and political messes.

Was Governor of Libya.

For a time he was Ambassador to Brazil, but his obvious worth finally caused Mussolini to call him home for assignment as Governor of Libya from 1928 to 1933.

Three subsequent campaigns of conquest put him momentarily into top military positions. He was made commander in Ethiopia after months of lagging progress in that invasion, and three months later led his army into Addis Ababa. He was made governor of Ethiopia but resigned and returned to Rome.

Up to that time he had not even belonged to the Fascist party, but after the Ethiopian conquest he was given a membership card.

In the invasion of Greece Mussolini's generals had had five months of humiliating lack of success when Badoglio again was put in charge in November, 1940. A week later he was relieved of command at his own request amid reports that he disapproved of the war on Greece.

Was in Retirement.

Apparently he continued to oppose Italy's part in the war, because he never was called again to direct a campaign through the months of Italian reverses in North Africa—setbacks that cost Italy her whole empire.

His name seldom has appeared in the news for the last two years. When it did he was linked with reports that he headed an anti-Fascist movement or that as a representative of the King he had been in touch with the Allies on a possible Italian withdrawal from the war.

OWI Broadcast to Italy Calls Ruler 'Fascist' and 'Moronic Little King'

JUL 27 1943

The Office of War Information, in transmissions beamed to Italy and the rest of Europe, broadcast yesterday statements characterizing King Victor Emmanuel as "the moronic little King" and "the Fascist King." The OWI short-wave stations, which are known collectively as "The Voice of America," also assailed Marshal Pietro Badoglio as "a high-ranking Fascist."

Immediately after Premier Benito Mussolini's "resignation" was made known Sunday, the overseas division of the OWI merely broadcast that there was "no essential change" in the government of Italy. Yesterday, however, the government propaganda agency directed its fire against the two new Italian leaders personally.

In presenting "typical unofficial reaction" to the events in Italy, the OWI employed the device of quoting an imaginary "American political commentator," "John Durfee." According to "Mr. Durfee," it was announced, the United States will continue the war irrespective of whether Signor Mussolini, Marshal Badoglio or "the Fascist King himself" rules Italy.

The OWI also quoted extensively from a Sunday-night radio speech by Samuel Grafton, columnist for The New York Post. It was Mr. Grafton who described King Victor Emmanuel as "the moronic little King."

The reference to "the moronic little King" was carried in the hourly English-language transmission at 2 P. M., as broadcast over the 16, 19 and 23 megacycle bands, but was dropped in the 3 P. M. bulletin.

Mr. Grafton was quoted further as follows:

"Fascism is still in power in Italy. It has put on a new face, that is all. Italian fascism has rouged its cheeks and its lips and is trying to see whether a smile will not do more for it than the famous frown by which it has lived so long. This is a political minuet and not the revolution we have been waiting for. It changes nothing, for nothing can change in Italy until democracy is restored."

Pepper Demands "Cleansing"

In addition to Mr. Grafton and "Mr. Durfee," the OWI in its morning broadcasts carried a statement by Senator Claude Pepper of Florida that the Italians still must "cleanse" themselves of fascism. Senator Pepper's remarks were not quoted in the afternoon broadcasts.

The only official reaction broadcast by the OWI was that by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, who said Italy will have to surrender unconditionally if it wants a peace.

The British Broadcasting Corporation's broadcasts to Italy and the Continent were not heard here yesterday because of atmospheric conditions, but in its general service to the world the chief emphasis was laid on Signor Mussolini rather than on the King or Marshal Badoglio.

The OWI emphasized that Marshal Badoglio had maintained "effective membership" in the Fascist party, and noted that on Oct. 28, 1939, he had assured Signor Mussolini that he believed Italy would become greater "under your infallible leadership."

The OWI, whose overseas division is administered by Robert E. Sherwood, Pulitzer Prize winner in playwriting, and Joseph Barnes, former foreign editor of The New York Herald Tribune, has a fixed policy against making public the texts of its transmissions to enemy countries. Short-wave stations operated by the OWI can usually be heard in the New York area, however, throughout the day and night.

OWI officials remained puzzled by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia's statement that they could now make public the personal appeal he delivered by short wave to King Victor Emmanuel "several months ago." It was understood, however, that the Mayor had reference to his speech of Aug. 29, when he indirectly asked the King to "take over the reins of power." The text of the speech was made public by the Mayor last Oct. 26.

Rome Radio Hints Italy May Soon Sue for Peace

Tells Soldiers They Fight Only 'to Save Their Own Future'

Elaborating on Marshal Pietro Badoglio's assertion that "the war continues," the Rome radio said last night in a proclamation broadcast to wounded Italian soldiers that Italians "are fighting exclusively to defend their own respect and to save their own future," The Associated Press reported.

Issued as Italy's future role in the war remained obscure, the proclamation, recorded here by the Columbia Broadcasting System, said that "war continues because no condition of inferiority can force resignation upon a people who have a right to justify their own errors."

The import of the proclamation seemed to be that Italy, rallying around Badoglio and King Victor Emmanuel III, was ready to salvage what it can from its present position and perhaps sue for peace.

Fascist Militia Is Made Part of Regular Army

Mussolini's Black Shirts Shorn of Power and Identity

The Fascist Militia, a creation of Benito Mussolini, became a part of Italy's regular armed forces yesterday under the name of "Voluntary Militia for National Security," and is now headed by General Guerino Armellini, an army corps commander, according to a Rome broadcast recorded by The United Press.

In an order of the day to the militia, Armellini recalled "the heroism that the militia has been known to perform at all times and places," and expressed belief it would continue to perform its duties in defense of the Fatherland "with the same love and affection as in the past."

Italian Crisis Recalls That of France in '40

By the Associated Press.

Italy today, like France in 1940, in her hour of peril expressed confidence in her future as a nation.

King Victor Emmanuel, in announcing Mussolini's resignation, said:

"Italy, by the valor of its armed forces and the determination of all its citizens, will find again a way of recovery." He added that Italians had an "unshakable faith in the immortality of our country."

On June 13, 1940, French Premier Paul Reynaud predicted in an address to his countrymen "the day of resurrection will come!"

France had declared Paris an open city and was tottering before the German advance. Reynaud disclosed he had made a second and final appeal to President Roosevelt for help.

"It is necessary that clouds of warplanes from across the Atlantic come to crush the evil force which dominates Europe," the Premier said.

"Despite our reverses the power of the democracies remains immense. We have the right to hope that the day is coming when all that power will be placed in force.

"That is why we maintain hope in our hearts."

The "clouds of warplanes" came eventually, but the United States did not have them early in the war.

Three days after Reynaud made his plea he resigned as premier. Marshal Henri Petain was chosen to succeed him, and on the following day Petain acknowledged that France was beaten by asking Hitler for an honorable peace to save soldiers from further slaughter.

MILITARY EFFECT OF DUCE'S FALL NOT YET DEFINED

JUL 27 1943

Easing of Offensive to Await Capitulation Is Unlikely, Evidence Shows.

NAZIS HOLD KEY

Whether German Units Will Be Reinforced Is Major Question Mark.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pattern for reaction to the dismissal of Premier Benito Mussolini — that it was "entirely too early to form a competent opinion" of the effect on Italy's war effort—was set yesterday by a general officer at Allied Headquarters in North Africa.

While London remained officially silent, evidence was given there of an intent to continue to "pour it on" Italy in a militray sense, with an eye to a smashing victory, rather than sit back and await possible Italian capitulation.

This possibility of an early Italian surrender was stressed in semi-official speculation from many of the world's capitals.

Still a Question Mark

As to the immediate military effect, however, the Allied general officer who spoke at headquarters in North Africa asserted that until words are backed by deeds Marshal Pietro Badoglio and his military government must remain a question mark.

This high officer, whose name could not be used, suggested that a key to the question might be found in whether the Germans continued to reinforce their three and a half divisions in Sicily. If they do, he said it could be taken as a sign of their confidence that Premier Badoglio would protect their rear. If the Nazis begin pulling out, he said it would indicate fear that the Italians were quitting.

The finger of uncertainty was pointed also by the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet. A Swedish broadcast quoting the paper, and recorded by C.B.S., said Mussolini's resignation indicated the Italian people were becoming "more and more permeated with doubt" about the war's outcome, but added: "What has just happened is probably only the beginning of a period of equal uncertainty and tension."

Nazi View Crystallized

Meanwhile, the Axis propaganda line assumed clearer form. Berlin spokesmen told Swedish correspondents that the Nazis were "taking an easy view" of the developments in Italy. They emphasized the statements by King Vittorio Emanuele and Marshal Badoglio that the war would continue, and argued that Mussolini's ouster had nothing to do with his recent meeting with Hitler. A Wilhelmstrasse spokesman added that he didn't know where Mussolini had gone.

The U. S. Office of War Information reported that while German and Japanese propagandists were cautious in their output for internal consumption, they sought to persuade the outside world that Il Duce lost his job because he was "ill." The OWI added that the external Axis broadcasts sought to emphasize that Marshal Badoglio was a good Fascist and that Italy was "determined" to carry on the war.

Lisbon Hails News

Lisbon received the news ebulliently. Awarding of prizes at the National Dog show was halted by the excitement. Among first to receive confirmation were the Brazilian and Cuban ambassadors. "This will have a tremendous effect on our cause," said the Brazilian emissary. "Let's have a bottle of champagne."

Reaction throughout South America to Mussolini's downfall ran fairly much in one channel, except in Argentina. Dispatches from Buenos Aires said the government was awaiting clarification of the Italian situation before expressing an official opinion on the effect on Italo-Argentine relations.

Bonds of Sympathy

The Buenos Aires reports said that if Italy should be eliminated from the war, Argentina then would be in a position to examine its relations with other members of the Axis. It was added that a large Italian population in Argentina, and bonds of sympathy between the two countries, had been invoked frequently as an argument against severance of relations with the Axis.

A former Italian deputy, Mario Nariani, one of the exiled leaders of the Italian Socialists, predicted in Buenos Aires that Vittorio Emanuele would resign in favor of his son, Umberto, and that the latter would then seek peace.

News of the Mussolini ouster was received joyfully in Bogota, Colombia, where the motion picture theaters interrupted films to give the story loud-speakers. Handclapping in some cases lasted 15 minutes. Also delighted were members of the Italian colony and all sectors of the clergy, who forecast that there would now be no more bombing of Rome.

Peace Move Justified

The Lima, Peru, newspaper El Comercio said Italy's military situation justified any peace overture on the part of the King or Premier Badoglio. It said if this course were adopted, a breach would have been opened in the Axis "which could be the starting point for a happy end of the war."

La Cronica, in Lima, obviously referring to Hitler, said "the other factor in creating Europe's tremendous misfortune" will not take long to follow in Mussolini's path because "the same law rooted Mussolini out from power."

...ssolini out from power.

In Mexico City, Francisco Flora, president of the Anti-Fascist Italians in Exile (A.I.E.) commented: "We persecuted Italians here expect soon to join our brothers in Italy to begin reconstruction of our homes on the bases of liberty and democracy."

Free Italians think Premier Badoglio should start immediate negotiations for peace based on unconditional surrender, Serafino Romualdi, secretary of the Free Italian association of Uruguay, said in Montevideo. He proposed to go to Argentina this week to organize Italian residents for the "post-surrender" work which he said should be faced jointly by Italians in Europe and the many millions residing elsewhere.

At Jacksonville, Fla., Don Luigi Sturzo, exiled former leader of the Italian Catholic Popular party which Benito Mussolini outlawed, said yesterday that Il Duce's ouster is the first step in Italy's return to "a free democratic and Christian country."

"Great and Hopeful Event"

In an interview with the Jacksonville Journal, Don Sturzo, who has resided here since 1940, said "the fall of Mussolini is a great and hopeful event in itself, not only for Italy, but for the United Nations.

"It is not clear yet what the Italian situation is now. We shall see very soon what Hitler will do to avoid a separate peace for Italy.

'I think the reaction of the Sicilian people in welcoming Allied troops with cheering, flowers and fruits, as it was in Palermo, has shaken the last confidence in Fascism. The Sicilian people have freely demonstrated their feelings for liberty and peace."

Don Sturzo, 73 and frail, was interviewed at a hospital where he is recuperating from a heart ailment. He left Italy in 1924 after Mussolini dissolved the Popular party and placed Don Sturzo on the hunted list.

Road of Imperialism For Mussolini Ended In Sicilian Debacle

By the Associated Press.

While others sought to preserve the fading strength of a nation he tried through bluff and blood to aggrandize, Benito Mussolini, one-time Socialist, father of Fascism, leader of the theatrical march on Rome and exponent of the Philosophy "live dangerously," faces his 60th birthday—he was born July 29, 1883—shorn of the power he coveted above all.

He had a long career to look back on—one which led from an editor's desk to the Italian front line in the World War and took shape and importance on October 28, 1922, when his black-shirted legion marched on Rome and he was called to the premiership by King Victor Emmanuel.

Forthwith he embarked upon a crusade which, he told his followers, would restore to Italy the glories of the Roman empire.

There began a campagin of drumbeating and sword-rattling calculated to play upon the Italian love of the dramatic, but it was not until 13 years after his ascent to power that the Fascist road show was ready to play on an international stage.

Proclaimed Roman Empire.

In 1935 and 1936 Mussolini, anxious to link the colony of Eritrea on the Red Sea coast of Africa with Italian Somaliland to the south, rode roughshod over the pitifully equipped and ill-trained army of the Ethopian emperor, Haile Selasie.

From the balcony of Palazzo Venezia in Rome, Il Duce proclaimed the new Roman empire and graciously tendered the crown to the diminutive king who had summoned him in the crisis of 1922.

Mussolini was scornful of Great Britain and the 52 nations which had imposed futile sanctions against him. And as a gesture of his impatience with those who would oppose the rise of Italy he withdrew from the League of Nations.

Intervention on the side of the Nationalists in Spain was his next step and then in 1939 came the conquest of tiny Albania across the Adriatic. Mussolini and Italy were riding high and there was, it seemed, nothing to stop him.

North of the Alps Mussolini's Axis partner and one-time pupil, Adolf Hitler, invaded Poland. The German Army, having gobbled up everything to the east, turned south and swept through the lowlands and into France.

One June 10, 1940, Mussolini stood once more on the balcony of Palazzo Venezia. It was time to redeem his pledge of Axis solidarity. France was on its knees. Britain was reeling back from Dunkerque. There was but one order, he told the throng in the square—"Conquer!"

But something went wrong. There was brief jubilation when Italy captured undefended British Somaliland and then in a whirlwind drive the Fascists were hurled out of Eritrea, Italian Somaliland, British Somaliland and then, the crowning insult, Haile Selassie marched back into Addis Ababa at the head of a native and British Army.

There was no further cause for Fascist celebration. Germany came to the rescue to extricate Mussolini's battered army in the snow-covered mountains of Greece and in the sandy wastes of Cyrenaica and Libya. Then the slow retreat into Tunisia and the moral-shattering debacle at Tunis and Bizerte.

Bombs began to fall on Italian island possessions and on the cities of the mainland in ever greater weight and the black-shirted machine began to labor. Defenses cracked, then fell, and when the Allies invaded Sicily, city after city fell and there were cheers for the conquerors.

In Italy Mussolini sped northward for a desperate conference with Hitler and in his absence bombs fell on Rome. It was near the end, which came for Mussolini when the Rome radio, once the sounding board for his speeches, announced his resignation.

DUCE'S OUSTER STIRS WORLD

JUL 27 1943

Many Capitals See Italy's Surrender Near.

By Associated Press.

From around the world today came speculation and assertion that the exit of Benito Mussolini had spelled out the prelude of a separate peace for Italy.

London: There was quick unofficial speculation that, since Italy had moved toward fulfillment of the Allies' initial condition of surrender, the British and American governments may soon present terms for "honorable capitulation" to King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Pietro Badoglio. At the same time, however, there was evidence of an attitude not to relax and wait for Italy to quit, but rather to "pour it on" for a smash finish.

Moscow: The Russian people were electrified by the news of Mussolini's downfall. The immediate reaction, as heard in homes and on street cars and subways, was that Germany had suffered a severe blow. Some said they felt this may mean that Italy would drop out of the war in a few weeks, and that even if she carried on, her resistance would be only half-hearted.

Chinese Rejoice.

Algiers: A Frenchman who reflects French feeling but who would not permit his name to be used, said that the appointment of Marshal Badoglio may portend Italy's withdrawal from the war. In this event, he said, France would be one of the United Nations most vitally affected and should have a voice in whatever arrangements may be made with the new Italian government.

Germany—German propagandists declared in press radio reports that Mussolini's exit was "among the developments running counter to the Allies' wishes." Their makeshift line apparently was that the appointment of Marshal Badoglio's military government "means that Italy's will to resist continues unchanged." One dispatch declared that "the change of government brings no visible change in the Italo-German relationship."

Chungking—There was rejoicing in the streets. Wall bulletins put up by Chinese newspapers attracted large crowds, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, addressing his Government today, referred to the news. Like other members of the Cabinet he appeared to be in high spirits. One official said he hoped the Italian King and new military governor would "choose the right course for Italy—liberation."

Mexico City Favors Smiles.

Mexico City—Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla declared jubilantly: "This is great. The Axis is collapsing and now we can look into the future more smilingly."

Santiago, Chile—The newspaper Hora, devoting its entire front page to events in Italy, commented: "News of the downfall of Fascism has been happily received throughout this country."

Buenos Aires—The Argentine press splashed the front pages with news of Mussolini's exit. The conservative La Nacion said in an editorial labeled "The Downfall of the Fascist Regime" that "since yesterday Rome has new ruins, the ruins of Fascism less glorious than those left by Christianity and the Roman Empire."

Orient — The United States Broadcast Intelligence Service reported that, after a lapse of about sixteen hours, all Oriental Axis radio stations broadcast the Rome announcement of the Mussolini ouster without further comment.

Axis Airbases in France, Holland Blasted; Damage Extensive.

ED. SALE

LONDON, July 26—(AP) Flying Fortresses returned in force today to batter the saturated ruins of Hamburg and attacked three other northwest German cities of Hannover, Wilhelmshaven and Wesermunde in widespread daylight raids which cost the Germans upwards of 54 planes and the Allies 23 bombers and three fighters.

Lesser American and British bombers and fighter-bombers set upon German airbases in France and Belgium by daylight in a torrent of explosive fury which followed up a 2,000-ton assault on the German Ruhr industrial capital of Essen and its Krupp arsenal.

In three days, Europe's greatest port of Hamburg had shuddered under history's most violent assault. On Saturday night, the R. A. F. dropped 2,300 long tons of bombs or 2,571 tons of bombs on Hamburg in the heaviest air attack the world has known. On Sunday, Fortresses gave Hamburg the heaviest daylight raid in history, and today they followed up that attack.

Bombers Make History

Asserting the crews "have made history" in the last three days, Brig.-Gen. Frederick L. Anderson, head of the U. S. Air Force Bomber command, revealed they had flown more than 3,000 miles and destroyed approximately 100 enemy fighters.

During the round-the-clock raiding General Anderson said the crews had been through five hours of aerial combat, penetrating deep into the heart of industrial Germany "over five of the heaviest flak areas in the world and through eth fiercest of enemy fighter opposition without fighter escort."

"They have destroyed the production of a huge aluminum factory, damaged submarine facilities in Norway, brought the threat of destruction to the rubber tire output for the German army and airforce, destroyed considerable of German submarine-building capacity, damaged aircraft engine and assembly plants," General Anderson said.

"Flying Fortresses attacked rubber factories at Hannover, U-boat and aircraft works in Hamburg and port installations at Wilhelmshaven and Wesermunde," a joint U. S. and British communique said. "Good bombing results were reported at all targets."

Strong Opposition

The four-engined American craft flew unescorted to their four German objectives, encountering strong opposition and destroying "more than 50 enemy aircraft."

Lesser British medium, light and fighter-bombers attacked German airfields at Courtrai, Abbeville and Merville while medium U. S. bombers attacked German landing strips at St. Omer, France. These smaller raiders were escorted by squadrons of British, Dominion and Allied fighters which destroyed four German challengers.

Heavy U. S. Thunderbolt fighters simultaneously swept the Dutch and French coasts.

JUL 27 1943

In all daylight operations, the score of destroyed planes was more than 54-26 in favor of the Allies.

The three heavy attacks on Hamburg not only were a material blow at Germany; they formed a psychological strike as well. The triple attack came less than a week after the bombing of Rome, which presumably had great effect in the overthrow of Mussolini.

The four-ply raid on Germany marked the third successive day the Americans had hit Nazi targets in force. Tronheim in Norway was attacked Saturday to usher in the sustained cycle.

Stubborn fighter opposition and heavy flak were encountered at Hannover and some fights lasted two hours. One group of Fortresses alone claimed 33 German victims of the 75 to 100 planes that rose to challenge them.

Rubber Plants Aflame

It was the first American attack on Hannover and its synthetic rubber plants were left ablaze. Warehouses and nearby railway yards also were attacked. Thousands of fire bombs fell as "thick as matches dumped out of a giant matchbox," one flier said.

German fighters met the Americans at the European coast and fought them all the way to and from the target cities.

The Nordhaven plant on the south bank of the Weser-Elbe canal and the Vehrenwalder Straffa works in Hannover proper employ 50,000 persons.

An official Eighth Airforce release declared: "It is known that the rubber situation is Germany is becoming increasingly critical. It is believed that both the German army and airforce have been largely dependent on the output of the two factories in Hannover."

On July 22 Fortresses destroyed a large percentage of the Nazi synthetic rubber output when they bombed a big rubber factory at Hulls. Today's was the first raid on German processing plants.

Nazi Defenses Weakened

The ceaseless day and night pounding which was set off with the American Flying Fortress raid on Trondheim in Norway Saturday fast was sapping the strength of the enemy's defenses.

American fliers returning from today's second successive daylight sortie over Germany reported seeing few Nazi fighters, whereas in yesterday's assaults on Hamburg, Kiel and other targets the enemy sent an estimated 200 interceptors to grapple with the Flying Fortresses.

"Yesterday you could shake hands with them. Today none came closer to me than 600 yards," declared one American gunner. He and his mates said they hit today's targets squarely.

Last night's devastating attack on Essen, like the previous night's record 2,300-ton blow at Hamburg, was all over in 50 thundering minutes—a typical sudden "saturation" assault perfected by Britain's great night bomber fleet.

Heaviest Raid on Essen

When the four-engined planes turned for home they left smoke billowing 20,000 feet over Essen, the Air ministry said, adding that it was "easily the heaviest" attack ever made on the industrial capital of the Ruhr.

"At the end of the attack smoke from a mass of fires, well concentrated, was rising over 20,000 feet," the ministry said. "There were several violent explosions such as have been so often seen in recent heavy attacks."

In addition to today's raid by American medium bombers on the Saint Omer field, formations of R.A.F. Typhoons and Boston bombers pounded German air bases at three points in France and Belgium, ripping buildings, hangars and runways to drain Nazi aerial resources. Many squadrons of crack Spitfire fighters escorted them.

Most of last night's loss of 25 R.A.F. bombers undoubtedly was sustained over Essen, whose anti-aircraft defenses are among the strongest in the Ruhr.

(The German radio claimed that 23 British bombers were destroyed over Essen, and that 34 American four-engined planes were shot down in yesterday's daylight attacks on Hamburg and Kiel. An American communique acknowledged the loss of 19 bombers in the daylight raids.)

Although it has not been hit as frequently as other cities in Germany, Essen has been the target for some of the R.A.F.'s most concentrated assaults. In 57 attacks prior to last night it was estimated that 11,000 tons of explosive and fire bombs had been dumped on the great armament center.

Important Rail Junction

In adition to being the center of the Krupps munitions empire, Essen also is an important junction point in the Germany railway system, lines radiating from it to all the principal towns in the Westphalian iron and coal fields.

R.A.F. Mosquito stings at Hamburg and Cologne last night probably were combination bombing and reconnaissance flights, made principally to gain visual proof of the vast destruction done to Hamburg by the British-American raids Saturday night and Sunday. A new record was set when Hamburg was bombed three times inside 24 hours.

Four enemy raiders were shot down during a night attack on a town in northeast England. Damage was described as slight, with no casualties.

Axis Warships Lost

Dispatches reaching London, meanwhile, reported that a Nazi submarine and another warship of unstated type were hit in Saturday's raid by American Flying Fortresses off Trondheim in Norway.

The Norwegian Telegraph agency quoted a Swedish correspondent as saying that 42 bombers carried out the assault "with great precision," reducing shore installations to a shambles and destroying every gas tank in the city. Fires among German barracks were said still to have been blazing at noon Sunday.

Fortress Results Photographed

Photographs taken during the bombing of Hamburg on Sunday showed the City Hall ablaze and extensive damage to German submarine construction facilities, it was announced today.

Headquarters of the European Theatre of Operations of the United States Army said that, "although a blanket of smoke covered Hamburg, photos show a large concentration of bursts visible through the smoke across the southwest end near the slips and large dry docks of the Blohm Voss shipyards."

"This plant is the biggest U-boat producer in Germany," it noted.

Direct hits also were shown on the Howaldte Werke U-boat yards and factories and oil tanks.

At Kiel, the targets hit by the Fortresses included the Deutsche Werke submarine yards where "numerous bomb bursts were visible in construction bases and across adjacent installations."

Another concentration of bombs smashed down upon Kiel's Kriegsmarine Werft, chiefly engaged in making 500-ton U-boats. At the time of the attack five submarines and a 440-foot naval escort ship were in a fitting-out basin that was "blanketed by bomb bursts."

LONDON HAS ALERT

LONDON, Tuesday, July 27 —(AP) London had an alert of about an hour shortly after midnight today during which a small number of planes approached the Thames estuary and one or two came in the direction of London.

Gunfire was heard and searchlights were active during the warning, which was the first since July 15. Nightworkers took to the shelters.

Spanish Cabinet Meets In Emergency Session

London, July 26 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio, in a braodcast recorded by Reuters, reported that the Spanish Cabinet had met in an emergency session today. The reason for the meeting was not disclosed.

U. S. FLIERS BLAST 2 BURMA BRIDGES

Heavy Damage Also Is Inflicted Upon Railways and Other Enemy Installations

JUL 27 1943

RAF ATTACKS KAYAUKTAW

Liberator Bombers Unleash Tons of Explosives on Monywa Oil Supplies

NEW DELHI, India, July 26 (AP)—Bomb-carrying fighters, medium bombers and heavy formations of the United States Tenth Army Air Force knocked out two more bridges used by the Japanese and wrought heavy damage to railways and other installations in Burma Saturday, American headquarters announced today.

The communiqué noted only one instance in which Japanese fighters attempted intercession—this against medium bombers on four missions—and said this was fruitless, with every plane and crew returning safely.

The bridges destroyed were at Hpunzinzup and Namati, the communiqué said. Fighters carried out these attacks.

Liberator bombers dropped fifteen tons of explosives on Monywa, starting two oil fires that sent smoke up 6,000 feet, and again raided the jetties at Akyab.

Royal Air Force Blenheims yesterday attacked the important Japanese supply base at Kyauktaw on the Kaladan River in Burma, a British communiqué announced today. Bomb bursts observed were well within the target area, but complete observation was prevented by heavy cloud formations. A steamer station was hit, the communiqué said.

No aircraft was reported missing.

U. S. Air Bases in China Raided 2d Day in a Row

Japanese Lose 13 Planes and Do Little Damage

14TH UNITED STATES AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN CHINA, July 24 (Delayed) (AP).—For the second consecutive day Japanese medium bombers and Zeros tried to knock out two American air bases in eastern China today, but the results were the same as yesterday. The Japanese suffered heavy losses and did little damage.

Today's raids were not as big as yesterday's, when the enemy sent 160 planes into the attack, but they were equally determined. By nightfall the Americans had shot down thirteen bombers and fighters, probably destroyed two others and damaged six. This compared with yesterday's score of sixteen enemy craft destroyed and others damaged.

One American plane was shot down today, but its pilot bailed out safely.

"The Japanese seem very worried about our operations from advance bases, but we are not worried at all about their ability to knock us out of them," commented Brigadier General Edgar Glenn, of Garden City, N. Y., chief of staff of the 14th Air Force. "So far they have done practically no damage. We've got enough to handle the situation."

Chinese Suffer For U. S. Aid

Chungking, July 26 (AP)—Nearly one hundred Chinese families were slain by Japanese punitive columns last year in eastern Chekiang province alone for assistance given in the rescue of the crews of several American bombers which landed along the east China sea coast after the April 18 bombing of Tokyo, the Chinese high command announced today.

STALIN DIRECTING REDS' OREL DRIVE

Troops Gain Six Miles Under Personal Supervision Of Soviet Premier

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, July 27—Red armies personally directed by Marshal Joseph Stalin captured seventy villages, gained six miles and killed 5,000 enemy troops yesterday in their advance on the big German base at Orel where thousands of Axis troops risk entrapment, it was announced today in Moscow.

With Russian troops attacking Orel within eight miles of the city's northeastern and eastern gates, a special communique said that other units had swept across the Oka river directly above the base in a wide wheeling movement threatening to cut the last supply line into Orel—the railway running northwest to Bryansk.

Berestna Taken

Village after village on the west bank of the Oka river fell to the Soviet troops, one column of which also took Berestna, forty-five miles northwest of Orel. The size of the Russian drive indicated that Bryansk, as well as Orel, was a Soviet objective. Both are the keystones to the entire German south-central front in Russia.

Two thousand Germans were killed northwest of the city in an effort to halt the first successful Red army summer offensive of the war.

South of Orel, Russian troops pushing up the railway from Kursk, captured Kurakina and Yeropkino, the latter only seventeen miles below the German bastion. The Germans lost 2,100 men before retreating in furious counter-attacks along the railway.

Five-Mile Gain

The occupation of Yeropkino was a five-mile gain from Zmierka.

In Sunday's fighting the special bulletin said the Red army had destroyed or damaged fifty-two German tanks and shot down fifty-seven planes. The regular midnight communique, filling incomplete details of engagements Monday, said that approximately 5,000 Germans had been killed and a score of tanks crippled, destroyed or captured. Ammunition and arms dumps and prisoners also were reported seized.

The German radio commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, said that German defenders at Orel had been "kept extremely busy" during the day.

He also commented on a massive Russian drive below Leningrad and farther south in the Lake Ladoga region, saying that it was still too early to tell whether this was only a "temporary phenomenon."

Wladyslaw Banaczyk, Polish Minister of Home Affairs in the exiled Government here, said today he had information that the Germans were preparing defense lines in Lublin province in Poland, roughly 400 miles behind their sagging lines in Russia.

In the Belgorod sector below Orel the Russians "improved their positions" and maintained steady pressure on the Germans. "Intensive reconnaissance" operations were reported in the Donets basin south of Izyum and southwest of Voroshilovgrad.

The German resistance was stiffened by reserves flown to Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow.

Attacks Called Weaker

The Berlin radio account, recorded by the Associated Press, said Soviet attacks from the Sea of Azov to Belgorod were weaker than in previous days due to heavy Russian losses. The Germans said they destroyed 130 tanks yesterday.

"In the area of Orel the Soviets with strong infantry and tank forces south, southeast and north of the city, repeated their unsuccessful attempts at a break-through yesterday," the German communique said. "The Soviets were repulsed in heavy fighting, partly at close quarters. At several points German troops launched a counter-attack and threw back the enemy."

A Russian landing force on the Black Sea was reported thrown back.

Russian and German accounts agreed that the most violent combats were at Orel. German broadcasts said the Nazis "held their own against manifold Russian superiority in men and heavy war materiel." The Russians were reported by Berlin to be building up even stronger masses of infantry and tanks to "overrun the small front and to tear up the German flanks and hit from the rear."

Stalin Visit Inspires Soviets to New Gains; Near Vital Rail Link

Thirty More Villages Fall Before Russian Forces; Nazi Defense Stubborn

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 26.—Russian troops inspired by personal visits of Premier Stalin to the front slashed through stubborn German resistance to advance two and one-half to five and one-half miles on the Orel front yesterday, and now stand within six miles of the Bryansk railway supplying the powerful Nazi base.

Thirty more populated places were swept up Sunday and German positions became ever more precarious despite desperate counterattacks. Heavy Nazi losses in men and materiel continued.

Stalin has been at the front much of the time, personally supervising operations, it was disclosed, as the Red Army moved slowly toward complete encirclement of Orel.

(The German communique declared all Russian attacks yesterday had been frustrated, with the Red Army suffering heavy losses in men and tanks. Soviet assaults in the Caucasus and Lake Ladoga areas likewise were repulsed, it added.)

The new advances upon Orel were announced in a special communique.

The Russian gains were registered in the face of stubborn opposition by the German defenders, the communique said, but declared German losses in the latest fighting mounted to well over 2,000 dead and heavy loss of armored equipment.

Most rapid progress in the three-pronged drive on the city was made again by the northern Soviet column, pressing toward the railroad link to Bryansk which has been feeding men and material into the base and which is vital to the Germans if they are forced to evacuate the city.

South of Orel, the Russians said, Red Army troops were "breaking down resistance" and had made gains, dislodging the Germans from a number of villages.

The Soviet advance, the bulletin said, was being well supported by the Red Air Force, which was ranging behind the German lines to strike at troop concentrations and supply depots.

The center column of the Orel drive was credited with smashing 10 German tanks and killed 1,500 of the enemy. A large number of prisoners were taken, the communique added.

The Russians reported "engagements of importance" in the Belgorod area 165 miles to the south of Orel. Nine tanks and a company of Germans were wiped out, the report said. In another sector the Russians said their troops withstood a counterassault for two hours, disabling 12 tanks and killing 80 Germans.

The war bulletin indicated that the Germans launched frequent counter attacks in all sectors but reported that all assaults had been broken up.

There was little action on other fronts. The Russians said that there was intense scouting activity in the Donets basin south of Izyum and southwest of Voroshilovgrad.

New Nazi Defense Line Reported Built in Poland

Banaczyk Says It Is 400 Miles From Russian Battlefront

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—Wladyslaw Banaczyk, Minister of Home Affairs of the Polish government-in-exile, said today he had information that the Germans are preparing defense lines in Lublin Province in Poland, roughly 400 miles behind their present line in Russia.

He said his underground informant reported that all road, rail and telephone communication had been suspended between Lublin Province and the rest of Poland, and that mass murders were being committed by the Germans to rid the area of its Polish population.

He estimated that in the entire war to May 1, 1,800,000 Polish Jews and 1,400,000 other Poles were killed by the Germans.

"In the event the fall of Mussolini breaks down the whole Fascist system, Poland may have to take up arms very soon," Banaczyk told a press conference. "We are prepared."

Signs of Axis Breakdown Reported in the Balkans

Hungary and Bulgaria Said to Show Greatest Unrest

ISTANBUL, July 25 (Delayed) (AP).—Signs have begun to appear in the Balkans indicating the possibility of a breakdown in the Axis structure there, with Hungary and Bulgaria showing the most symptoms of nervousness.

Premier Bogdan Filoff of Bulgaria has issued a decree making all Bulgarians over the age of sixteen subject to "state premier laws," indicating that the government believes much of the sabotage and pro-Russian activity in the country is the work of youths in schools and universities. Another decree forbids Bulgarians to leave their homes or drive their cars during an air raid alert under penalty of being fired upon without question.

Travelers from Bulgaria report a general state of unrest and tenseness there, and predict that a series of swift Allied successes in the Mediterranean might cause a revolt against the Bulgarian alliance with the Axis.

Travelers from Hungary say the same condition prevails in that satellite country, and that the Hungarians appear definitely set against further active participation in the war.

Indian Moslem Leader Knifed by Interviewer

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, July 26.—Mahomed Ali Jinnah, president of the All-India Moslem League, was slightly wounded today by a Moslem who knifed him during an interview.

Jinnah suffered minor injuries on the chin and one hand. His assailant was arrested.

(This dispatch did not bring out the reason for the attack. Jinnah, a wealthy lawyer, advocates creation of a separate state for India's 90,000,000 Moslems).

Malta Downs 6 Enemy Raiders

VALLETTA, Malta, July 26 (AP).—Enemy raiders made a sharp attack on Malta last night, running into a heavy anti-aircraft barrage, which downed three Axis planes, while night fighters got three more. Bombs were dropped over a wide area.

GREEK AIRDROME RAIDED

Kalamata, in South, Attacked From Middle East

CAIRO, Egypt, July 26 (AP)—Beaufighters from the Middle East attacked the Axis airdrome at Kalatmata, in southern Greece, during daylight Saturday, a communiqué said today.

The planes scored hits on administration buildings and the runway. A truck was strafed with cannon fire and left burning.

The communiqué also announced that an attack had been made on a radio station and troop encampment near Kyparissa, in the same area. All the aircraft returned safely.

Horrors of Life on Home Front Prove to Be Minor Annoyances

JUL 27 1943

Public Is Grumbling But War Correspondent Finds Causes Are Thin.

(An Associated Press war correspondent, back for a rest after nearly nine months with the fighting forces in the Central and South Pacific, reverses things and reports on the home front conditions he thinks the men out there would like to know about.)

By NORMAN BELL

SOMEWHERE ON WEST COASTAL SOIL, U.S.A., July 26—(AP) Dear Fellows:

Nobody here knows the answer any more than you do to that biggest question of all: "How long's the war going to last?"

In fact, if you came home now, it's the first thing they would ask you.

The folks are as eager as you are for the answer. And they are just as confused over the range of official and semi-official opinions that spread it out anywhere from one to ten years.

The dope you hear that a lot of people back home still don't know that a war is going on isn't true. There may be a few such walking sleepers—like the guy in the next block you used to see every day, but, should you return now, would shake your hand blankly and say: "Oh, hello, have you been away?"

Even such as he, however, can hardly escape the constant reminders that things are not as usual. These include food rationing and sharply increased restaurant prices (my lunch today, which a year ago would have cost around 50 cents, set me back 76 cents); lags in the laundry returns; deteriorated street car and taxi services, and drastic scarcity of many of the articles your girl friends used to crave—ranging from chewing gum to fur coats.

The bourbon whiskey shortage at this place has recently become acute. There seems to be plenty of other types of liquid stocks on display.

Stockings a Problem

For women, including those who like to dress up after a day of riveting or welding at the shipyards, the sheer stocking situation is grave.

Just to give you an idea: a hostess, falling from a chair with a prized bottle of hoarded refreshment she had taken from a shelf, was more concerned about her stockings than the bottle.

"I might have snagged one of them," she said, "and you can't get this kind any more."

Among the younger ones, who haven't joined the WACs or WAVES or other service organizations, bare legs are becoming quite the thing, painted or natural.

Ladies' hat seem about as usual, except for evidence of the military influence in some models. They still come in all shapes and sizes.

There are enough other feminine frills left (out of uniform) to warm a home-comer's heart.

Among the rationed items, meat appears to cause the most concern, particularly for people engaged in physical labor. Some, including lumberjacks, are reported to have complained they don't get enough to keep up their strength.

No Bones for Rover

Horse meat, which is being sold for human consumption in some parts of the country, has thus far been advertised for sale here only as dog food. There are no bones now for Rover at the butchers.

The butcher I talked with said one of his problems is to remember, after he has collected the ration point stamps from customers, to collect the money as well.

City automobile traffic continues brisk—in this West coast port city at least—despite the gasoline rationing. I have seen one good intersection collision, which tied up a street car line and called out the police, fire department, auxiliary police, air raid warden, military police, Navy shore patrol and an emergency hospital ambulance. Then another car driven by a sturdy blonde wearing a leather coat and dungaree breeches, came along and pulled the wreckage away.

But don't take all this wrong, fellows, as you think it over during those deadly long periods of monotonous nothing out there.

The war has brought no real suffering on the home front.

Minor Annoyances

Those occasional "horror" letters about rationing and other "atrocities" are probably just the production of nervous annoyance, probably over some minor matter.

They could be occasioned by such a simple combination as a head cold and a shortage at the corner drug store of those all-purpose tissues that come in so handy for blowing the nose.

I heard one young and pretty housewife wailing, on the very verge of despair, over just a situation.

"But," said the drugstore man, "your mother got along most of her life without 'em. Your grandmother never heard of 'em."

That effectively reorientated the young housewife to the facts of life in wartime. She went home smiling instead of ready to cry in her V-mail.

Kids Bearing Up Well

And the kids seem to be bearing up well, even if the once popular brands of candy bars have disappeared.

There doesn't seem to be a real crack in the home front, anywhere.

It's still a great country.

And it's swell to be home.

Jap Kiska Garrison Thought Abandoned

By the Associated Press.

HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND, July 26.—The Japanees evidently plan to attempt to reinforce the beleaguered garrison of Kiska and indications are they may be preparing to sell the Aleutian Island as they did Attu—at the price of a single garrison, no more.

Only one attempt has been made to get surface vessels to Kiska since the Attu battle and that was a flat failure. United States planes caught four transports, sank a couple of them and sent the others scurrying back.

Bombers returning from the enemy's Paramushiro base report there are no great concentrations of Japanese power there—only a few transports and apparently not enough air power to beat off our raiders, let alone give assistance to the Kiska garrison.

The least the Japanese could have done if they intended to help the Kiska garison was to concentrate ships and planes at Paramushiro and await weather which would allow them to rush toward Kiska.

This they nave not done, although there is always the chance that ships or planes wil be brought north suddenly, direct from the main part of Japan without a stop at Paramushiro.

That, however, would be in desperation.

Dutra, of Brazil, Will Visit U.S.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 26 (AP).—General Eurico Caspar Dutra, Brazilian Minister of War, will go to the United States early in August for conferences designed to increase the teamwork between the armed forces of the two nations, it was announced today.

MARTINIQUE GETS U.S. AID

Lend-Lease Shipments Also Reach Guadeloupe, Stettinius Reveals French Agree To Establish Ceilings, Apportion Supplies Fairly

JUL 27 1943

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, July 26—Lend-lease shipments of sorely needed food and other supplies have reached the French Caribbean islands of Martinique and Guadeloupe to relieve the distressed population, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Lend-Lease Administrator, announced tonight.

Two shiploads, totaling 6,200 tons of essential civilian goods, were dispatched immediately upon the capitulation of Admiral Georges Robert as the island's administrator, Stettinius said. The Lend-Lease Administration will be reimbursed, he added, for the full cost of the goods and expenses involved.

To Establish Ceilings

Further shipments will be made in accordance with emergency needs and by arrangements with local French authorities, Stettinius said.

Lend-lease goods are being distributed through local importers and retailers and "neither speculation nor profiteering is permitted," according to Stettinius. French authorities have agreed to establish ceiling prices, and to apportion supplies fairly throughout the islands so that small towns will receive a fair share.

Included in the shipments were evaporated milk, flour, salted fish, pork and beef, margarine, rice, cheese, edible oils, dehydrated vegetables, vitamins, medical supplies, chemicals, matches, thread, needles, cotton textiles and lubricating oils.

MEXICAN LABOR CHARGES STUDIED

U. S. Committee Investigates Report Imported Workers Treated Unfairly.

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) A representative of the Mexican government has complained to the Fair Employment Practice committee that there has been discrimination against Mexicans brought into the United States for wartime work, an FEPC official disclosed today.

The Rev. Francis J. Haas, FEPC chairman, told reporters that a "Mexican consul" placed the complaint with him during a trip he had made last week to Texas.

Earlier, War Manpower Commission Chairman Paul V. McNutt had told a press conference his commission had received no complaints from the Mexican government or other sources that Mexican workers were being treated unfairly, as to wages or working conditions.

Commission Investigating

Mr. Haas declined details of the complaint, but said the FEPC, set up by President Roosevelt to combat discrimination in employment on grounds of race, religion or nationality, was "looking into it" and had already had "informal telephone conversations" with employers.

The complaint, he said, involved treatment accorded an unspecific number of Mexicans working in agriculture or as railroad laborers "in the southwest." Asked about reports the Mexican government had threatened to withdraw some of its nationals, he said he knew of none.

Mexicans have been brought into this country for wartime work under an inter-government agreement specifying that they be paid the "prevailing wage" of the locality for their type of work and be assured fair working conditions.

WALLACE URGED FOR SECOND TERM BY SEN. GUFFEY

Vice President's Attack on U. S. 'Fascists' Lauded by Staunch Democrat.

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) An unaltered Roosevelt-Wallace ticket for the Democrats in 1944 was advocated today by Senator Guffey, D-Pa.), an Administration wheel horse, in an enthusiastic endorsement of the attack on "American Fascists" by Vice President Wallace in Detroit yesterday.

Asserting that Mr. Wallace had delivered "one of the best speeches ever made," Senator Guffey told an interviewer:

"I endorse what he said and I have no hesitancy whatever in saying that I'm for Roosevelt and Wallace as a Democratic ticket for 1944. And if the war is still going on and the peace has not been secured, they will be overwhelmingly reelected."

Senator Guffey and others previously had predicted that President Roosevelt would be renominated and relected for a fourth term, but his was the first Congressional voice publicly espousing Mr. Wallace for a second term.

His Voice Strong

President Roosevelt's recent rebuke to Mr. Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones for their public dispute over foreign war purchases had started speculation that Mr. Wallace might be discharged as a running mate if the President sought a fourth term. However, Senator Guffey is chairman of the Democratic Senatorial campaign committee and thus is linked firmly to the party campaign organization.

The Vice President's Detroit talk came in for heavy criticism from most Congressional Republicans as well as some Democrats.

Senator Nye (R-N.D.) charged that Mr. Wallace, in lambasting men he called "isolationists," "reactionaries" and "American Fascists," was trying to "take the public mind off the embarrassing messes of the Administration" in the domestic field.

"It isn't going to help their cause merely to recite how the peons of South America love Roosevelt for what he has done for them with American dollars," Senator Nye declared.

Mr. Wallace said in his prepared speech that he found in South America "that the lowest peon looked on President Roosevelt as the symbol of his dearest aspirations in the peace to come."

Wrong Bird Shot

Mr. Wallace's allusion to "powerful groups which put money in power first and people last" and which he said were attempting to destroy the New Deal's domestic accomplishment, provoked from Senator Smith (D-S.C.), an Administration critic, comment that the Vice President had "shot the wrong bird."

"The people of this country are going to get a chance to decide which group put money in power before the best interests of the American people," Senator Smith declared.

Senator Radcliffe (D-Md), generally friendly to the Administration, said he felt there was nothing to be gained by criticism of so-called "isolationists" on patriotic grounds.

EIGHT AMERICANS CALLED TRAITORS

Grand Jury Indicts Group Abroad Broadcasting for Axis

JUL 27 1943

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) Eight Americans accused of turning their backs on their homeland and joining forces with Axis radio propagandists in attacks on the American war effort were indicted today for treason—a charge that may carry the death penalty.

Attorney General Biddle, describing the District of Columbia grand jury's action as a warning that the U. S. "will not tolerate traitors at home or abroad," promised that they will be brought to trial as soon as they are apprehended.

Seven are alleged to have sounded off regularly on the ether waves from Germany while the eighth—Ezra Pound, 57-year-old modernist poet who won some attention in international literary circles — has broadcast from Rome.

The indictments, rounding out more than a year's investigation by the Justice department, accuse all of "giving aid and comfort" to the enemy through propaganda broadcasts at persuading U. S. citizens to "decline to support the United States in the conduct of the war."

Chose to Aid Axis

"It should be clearly understood that these indictments are based not only on the content of the propaganda statements—the lies and falsifications which were uttered—but also on the simple fact that these people have freely elected, at a time when their country is at war, to devote their services to the cause of the enemies of the United States," Mr. Biddle said. "They have betrayed the first and most sacred obligation of American citizenship."

The eight, six of them native Americans, are accused of trying to destroy Americans' faith in their own and Allied governments and "in other ways to impede, obstruct and interfere with naval and military operations." The Axis made use of them, the indictments charged, in the belief their knowledge of American language and customs would make their "false declarations of loyalty" more credible.

Others Indicted

In addition to Pound, who has spent most of the last 30 years abroad, the defendants were identified by the Justice department as follows: Robert H. Best, 47, formerly of Sumter, S. C., and son of a clergyman; Frederick W. Kaltenbach, 48, native of Dubuque, Iowa, and the Nazis' American counterpart of "Lord Haw Haw"; Jane Anderson, 50, native of Atlanta, Ga., who was introduced on Reich radios as a famous "orator"; Douglas Chandler, 54, Chicago native who was billed as "Paul Revere"; Constance Drexel, 48, naturalized German alien and one time free-lance writer who is known on the Axis radio as a "famous American journalist"; Edward Leo Delaney, a native of Olney, Ill., and one time bit player on American stages who broadcast under the name of "E.D. Ward"; and Max Otto Koischwitz, a German native and one time instructor at Hunter college in New York who adopted the radio alias of "O.K."

Sketches of Eight Indicted

EZRA POUND, poet, has lived abroad since 1908 and had not seen the United States in twenty-eight years when he made a brief visit here in 1939 to publish a book of poetry and to sing the praises of Benito Mussolini and Fascism.

Pound was born in Hailey, Idaho, and was graduated from Hamilton College in 1905 with the distinction of having been the only upper classman in the history of the college who was subjected to hazing. The experience took place when Pound entered the college as a junior after two years at the University of Pennsylvania.

After two years of post-graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania, Pound went abroad and in following years his poetry came to be highly respected by some critics here. He has been called the best of living American poets, and such writers as Archibald MacLeish, T. S. Eliot, James Joyce, Ernest Hemingway and Allen Tate have given him unstinted praise.

In the days when the Montparnasse section of Paris was the expatriates' quarter, Pound was a familiar figure, in beard and velvet jacket. He later moved to Rapallo, where his talents were readily enlisted by Fascism. He frequently attacked Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

CONSTANCE DREXEL was born in Darmstadt, Germany, but acquired United States citizenship when her father was naturalized. She was brought up in Massachusetts, did newspaper work in Boston, and went abroad as a correspondent in 1915.

EDWARD LEOPOLD DELANEY, was born in Olney, Ill., and was an actor playing bit parts before he went to Europe in 1939. The Nazis called him "E. D. Ward" and had him broadcast from Copenhagen, Oslo, The Hague, Brussels, Paris, Belgrade, Athens and other cities that fell to Nazi aggression.

FREDERICK WILHELM KATLENBACH was born in Dubuque, Iowa, and was discharged as a high-school teacher there after he organized a Nazi group among students. He was an Army officer in the World War, but after going to Germany he married a German girl and became a Nazi. He was called "Lord Hee-Haw" by the British.

DOUGLAS CHANDLER was born in Chicago and served in the United States Navy before he became a reporter in Baltimore. He was later in the advertising and brokerage business. He went to Europe in 1930. He broadcast for Germany as "Paul Revere" and was selected by the Nazis after Delaney and Kaltenbach had failed to incite any uprisings in the United States. Chandler was no more successful.

JANE ANDERSON was born in Atlanta, and worked as a reporter in London before gravitating to Germany. She was once condemned to death as a Franco spy, but was spared by the Loyalist government through the intercession of the United States. Her broadcasts are semi-hysterical attacks on Jews and Communism.

ROBERT H. BEST was born in Sumter, S. C., and was an Army officer and later a correspondent for American newspapers in Europe.

MAX OTTO KOISCHWITZ was born in Germany, but came to the United States in 1925, taught German at Columbia University and later at Hunter College. He was naturalized in 1935, but returned to Germany, where he was Nazified and christened "O. K." for his radio broadcasts.

30 ARE INDICTED IN COAL WALKOUT

New Anti-Strike Law Is Enforced Against Pennsylvania Strikers.

PITTSBURGH, July 26—(AP) In the first action under the newly-enacted anti-strike law, a Federal grand jury indicted 30 persons on charges of conspiracy and fomenting strikes in connection with recent unauthorized work stoppages in southwestern Pennsylvania coal fields.

The indictments followed nearly two weeks of investigation by the grand jury, called July 14 while more than 12,000 miners were idle and after steel production had dropped because of a lack of coal to fire blast furnaces.

Of the 30 persons indicted, five were presidents of local unions of the United Mine Workers, one a local ex-president, one a local vice president, one a chekweighman, 10 local committeemen and one local recording secretary. Others were members.

28 Called Conspirators

Five indictments, embracing a total of 32 counts, charged 28 persons specifically with "combining, conspiring and confederating together to interfere by strike and other interruptions with the operations" of mines operated by the government. The other two were miners and were charged with coercing miners to absent themselves from work.

Twelve counts of one indictment listing 21 persons charged the union local officials and members with preventing normal operations at mines by forming picket lines and by "counseling employes to remain away from work x x x and by threatening to inflict bodily harm" if the miners attempted to enter the pits.

Bench warrants were ordered for arrest of the defendants by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker and bond was fixed at $1,000 each. Conviction on the charges would make the defendants liable to fines up to $5,000 or sentences up to a year in jail.

The indictment said those named "well knew" the mines were in possession of the United States and that continuous operation was necessary "for successful prosecution of the present war."

Followed by F.B.I. Investigation

The grand jury was convened after agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had gone into the coal fields to determine causes of the walkouts which continued after the United Mine Workers' policy committee and President John L. Lewis had ordered the men back to work. The mines returned to almost normal operation almost simultaneously with start of the investigation.

The jurors heard 99 witnesses, including a number of UMW district officers and FBI agents. Besides those indicted, the jury linked "divers other persons whose names are unknown" to the alleged conspiracy.

Union district officials repeatedly pleaded with the miners to return, and termed the continued work stoppages which led to the indictments "outlaw strikes conducted by outlaw miners." President William Hynes of the Uniontown, Pa., district said at the time, "It is evident that a ten per cent sentiment is trying to strongarm a 90 per cent back-to-work majority."

KISKA POUNDED BY U. S. BOMBERS

JUL 27 1943

Principal Jap Positions Are Hit, Holes Blasted on Airfields.

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) The greatest series of bombing raids aimed in any one day at Kiska, where the Japanese garrison estimated at 10,000 men seems marked for destruction, was reported by the Navy today.

Roaring over the bleak, Rocky Island in the north Pacific Aleutians, ten flights of planes blasted principal Japanese positions on Saturday, tearing holes in the laboriously built air field runways and causing much other damage.

Bombs also found their marks in enemy gun emplacements, presumably knocking out more of the steadily decreasing supply of heavy weapons carefully guarded by the Japanese as a defense against invasion.

Army Wildcat fighters, used with increasing frequency as light bombers, carried out the ten Saturday raids. They dropped their bomb leads and swept back over the target in strafing attacks. One plane failed to return.

The new raids boosted to 20 the number of times Kiska had been hit by bomber flights since July 1. In the same period, Naval units have turned their heavy guns on Kiska in seven bombardments.

Unconfirmed Report Asserts Two Attacking Planes Are Downed

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 26 — The heaviest series of bombing raids in one day on the Japanese base at Kiska, was reported by the navy today.

Ten flights of planes attacked principal Japanese positions on Saturday, damaging the airfield runway and enemy gun emplacements.

Army Wildcat fighters, used with increasing frequency as light bombers, carried out the raids. They dropped their bomb loads then turned back to strafe the targets. One plane failed to return.

The new raids boosted to thirty the number of times Kiska had been bombed since July 1. In the same period, naval units have shelled the island seven times.

Lieutenant Decapitated By Propeller of Plane

Washington, July 26 (A. P.).—Lieut. C. K. Merrifield of the Marines was decapitated when he straightened up into the whirling propeller of a bomber after removing its wheel chocks, preparatory to taking off from National Airport yesterday.

A resident of Rocky Ford, Col., Lieut. Merrifield was one of the crew of the bomber on a routine flight from Cherry Point, N. C., to Floyd Bennett Field, New York city.

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, July 27 (A. P.).—The War Department made public today the names of 104 United States soldiers wounded in action. The announcement includes casualties in the Aleutian, European, North African, Pacific and Southwest Pacific areas and the names of men from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut with their next of kin.

North African Area.

JERSEY MEN CITED

Washington, July 26 (A. P.).—Stationed aboard an American merchant ship on the northern run of the north Atlantic, a Navy gun crew which included three New Jersey men shot down three and possibly four German airplanes.

The Navy announced yesterday letters of commendation had been sent to members of the gun crew by Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, who said "the enemy attacked viciously and repeatedly with great numbers of submarines and bombers, actually making more than 100 separate aerial raids over a period of five days, and your vessel, because of her unmistakable size and type, was the specific target of each assault upon the convoy."

Among those receiving letters were: Robert Pasco Vivalo, gunner's mate, third class, United States Navy Reserve, son of Mrs. Julia Vivalo, 110 West End avenue, Somerville, N. J.; A

Edward Warth, seaman, first class, United States Navy Reserve, son of Mrs. Florence Ryan Warth, 3911 Liberty avenue, North Bergen, N. J., and Clifford Whetham, coxswain, United States Navy Reserve, son of George Whetham, 18 George street, Midvale, N. J.

ROOSEVELT NOTES LIBERIAN ANNIVERSARY

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) Congratulating President Edwin J. Barclay of Liberia on his country's anniversary, President Roosevelt today said in a message to his recent White House guest:

"On the national anniversary of Liberia, I am glad to send the cordial greetings of the people of the United States. Please accept my hearty good wishes and those of the people of the United States for the prosperity, well-being and continued progress of the people of Liberia."

FIRST LADY URGES WOMEN TO ENLIST

Drafting of 'Certain Ages' May Be Necessary, She Warns.

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP) Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that if recruiting for women's units of the armed forces falls very short of the number needed, the inevitable result will be registration of women and the drafting of those of "certain ages."

She suggested at a press conference that the fact that WAVES are not permitted to serve overseas and the recent attacks on the social behavior of the WAC might have cut down enlistments.

"If the shortage becomes very great," Mrs. Roosevelt asserted, "It will lead to registering and taking in of people of certain ages."

Turning to other subjects, the First Lady described the ousting of Mussolini as "a break in assurance" on the part of the Axis "which might be the beginning of a crack internally."

Mrs. Roosevelt, who has held no regularly scheduled press conferences since June, called this one after her return from Seattle where she visited her daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger.

The northwest, she said, is "enormously awake" to the possibilities of future development in Alaska and wants overland routes opened along the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Roosevelt uttered an emphatic "no!" to a query whether she thought gasoline rations should be equalized throughout the nation. She added, however, that she thought the pleasure driving ban should be nationwide.

New Five-Cent Stamp To Honor Netherlands

Washington, July 26 (AP)—Postmaster General Walker announced today that a new 5-cent stamp honoring the Netherlands, the fifth in a series of twelve commemorating the resistance of countries overrun by the Axis, will go on sale in Washington August 24.

The Netherlands flag, in red, white and blue, will be the central subject of the stamp.

Patton Can't Get Along Without His Lip Lotion

San Marino, Cal., July 26 (AP)—"Old Blood and Guts" can't get along without his favorite lotion for chapped lips.

On May 17 Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., paused in the North African mopping-up campaign to write his sister, Miss Anne W. Patton, to send his favorite remedy for wind-cracked lips.

Though sent by air and V-mail, the letter didn't arrive until today. Miss Patton had the prescription filled and sent it to Sicily where her brother is leading troops completing conquest of the Italian island.

"If the lotion takes as long en route as the general's letter," Miss Patton said, "I should have sent it to Berlin, Germany."

Three Killed in Crash Of Bomber in California

By the Associated Press.

BLYTHE, Calif., July 26.—Army officials reported yesterday that three men were killed in a B-24 Liberator bomber crash near the Blythe Army air base Saturday night.

The dead:

Second Lt. John E. Connor, bombardier, Philadelphia; Sergt. Tyra Thornell, gunner, Dallas, Tex.; Pfc. Richard J. Wolf, Pittsburgh.

Two men stationed at the base were praised by their commanding officers for heroic rescue work.

Pfc. Orlan Hammons of Lynch, Ky., saw the plane was going to crash and followed it in a jeep. His car stuck in soft sand but he ran to the scene and pulled the tail gunner, whose name was not given, from the burning ship.

Staff Sergt. Jerry Chodorovsky, St. Louis, donned an asbestos suit and fought his way through flames to free another gunner from the wreckage.

New York Flyer Killed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 25 (AP).—Two Randolph Field flyers, students in the central instructors' school, were killed in the crash of their basic training plane today. Army officials said the plane was piloted by Second Lieutenant Charles W. Albring. His wife lives on Wheadon Road, Camillus, N. Y. His passenger was Second Lieutenant Roger W. Armbrister, of San Diego, Calif.

Claims on Palestine Regarded as Realistic

CHICAGO, July 26 (AP).—Rabbi Jacob B. Agus of Dayton, Ohio, declared last night that "Jewish claims of Palestine are not made on national or historical arguments, but on the basis of realistic consideration that it is the only available place for large-scale Jewish immigration."

Speaking on a panel on postwar problems at the eighth annual convention of the Rabbinical Council of America (Orthodox), he asserted the Atlantic Charter emphasized the rights of individual human beings rather than rights of nations.

"Therefore," he said, "we feel that the problems of Jews in Europe after the downfall of Hitler will be regarded as world problems and solved as such."

Rabbi William Drazin of Savannah, Ga., asserted that with prospects of severe economic depression in Europe after the war "it will be well-night impossible to reintegrate the Jewish people into the economic structure. * * * Large numbers of Jews will elect to migrate and to make a new start.

"In Palestine alone is there a community which will receive these victims enthusiastically and give them a measure of aid."

West Virginia War Hero Is Slated For Honors

Logan, W. Va., July 26 (AP)—Logan county's outstanding war hero, Capt. Jimmy Dieffenderfer, has requested that no public celebration be held in his honor.

Dieffenderfer, arriving home at Sprigg on furlough, asked Mayor R. H. Casto to abandon plans which included a parade. The four-times decorated flyer instead will be the guest of honor at a dinner Wednesday night sponsored by the Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs.

The young captain, who completed forty-five missions against the Japs in the South Pacific, will be accompanied to the dinner by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Dieffenderfer.

Gold Rush Responsible For Salamaua, Lae Growth

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26—(AP) It took a war to make Salamaua and Lae familiar names to Americans, but the two great air bases which the Allies are attempting to recapture from the Japanese have been known in the southwest Pacific since 1926 as the "ports of the goldfields."

These two cities, 18 miles apart on the northeastern coast of New Guinea, were only spots on the map until the big gold rush in 1926.

Within a few months after the discovery of gold in the Morobe fields, 35 miles inland by air, they became important airports for hauling freight and passengers to and from the mining area. When the war started the two cities claimed the world's largest air freight line.

Jungles Dense

The jungles between the coast and the Morobe district were the cause of the rapid growth of the airlines. The only other means of transportation was by native carriers over a 60-mile trail. A round trip took three weeks. One way by air took from 18 to 25 minutes.

During the 12 months ending June 30, 1940, the New Guinea air services carried 16,984 passengers, 146,998 pounds of mail and 23,499,840 pounds of freight, including heavy mine machinery.

The goldfields, which made this business possible produced $90,000,000 worth of the yellow metal before the war. They averaged more than $10,000,000 annually for the few years preceding the war.

The entire mining district is dotted with landing fields, including emergency clearings in the hills. Inland headquarters and a large airport was built at Wau, 35 miles from Salamaua. This base was recaptured from the Japanese several months ago and since then has been the object of repeated and costly attacks by land and air forces.

Salamaua is on a narrow isthmus and has a sheltered anchorage. Before the war it boasted of a large hospital, picturesque bungalows, a first class hotel and a small but thriving business district.

Because Salamaua is subject to periodical floods the New Guinea Airways, Ltd., established its headquarters at Lae soon after the start of the gold rush. In 1935 the government completed engineering, working to prevent flooding of the airfield.

Remained Main Base

It, however, remained the main base for the New Guinea Airways because of its wide expanse of flat ground and its further distance from the mountains, which gave heavily loaded planes a greater distance to gain altitude without circling the airport. It lacks a suitable anchorage and ships must be unloaded there by a lighter service.

Four years ago Lae was selected to be the new capital of the Territory of New Guinea instead of Rabaul on New Britain island northeast of the mainland.

Rabaul, now the strongest Japanese base in that area of the South Pacific, was evacuated in 1937 after a nearby volanic eruption covered it with ashes and dust. It was later reoccupied but because of the danger of more eruptions the decision to change capitals was made. The war started before the move was accomplished.

When the Japanese occupied Lae and Salamaua late in January, 1942, they found well developed airfields. They became military bases which are the main object of the present Allied offensive in New Guinea.

Allied control of them would force the enemy to use bases farther north and more distant from the shipping and air lanes of the United Nations in the South Pacific.

PADDOCK BURIAL PLANNED IN ALASKA

Ex-Track Star and General Will Be Interred Near Plane Crash Scene.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26—(AP) The bodies of Major General William P. Upshur and of Captain Charles Paddock will be buried in Alaska where the two were killed in a plane crash last week.

Mrs. Upshur said today the bodies of the two Marine corps officers would not be returned to the United States. General Upshur commanded the western department of the Marines. Captain Paddock, Pasadena newspaper man and former track star, was the general's aide.

"In war time one cannot make personal demands," Mrs. Upshur said. "My keenest wish was that the general's body should lie in Arlington National cemetery. x x x But during war it is obvious that in meeting death as a Marine, his body must lie in a Marine's grave, remaining where he fell."

Mrs. Upshur said she was returning this week to her home in Richmond, Va., and that memorial services for the general would be held in the family church in Richmond later.

Memorial services were scheduled today in the Pasadena Presbyterian church for Captain Paddock.

MRS. LUCE ANGRY OVER COLUMN BAN

Greenwich, Conn., July 26 (A. P.).—Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R.-Conn.) charged today that removal of her column from the China-Burma-India Roundup, a weekly soldier publication in New Delhi, India, was "out and out politics, part of an obvious policy to keep anti-administration writing from the boys overseas."

The blonde representative and playwright, plainly peeved, noted that her column was barred a week after editors of the paper had declared she was their candidate for Vice-President.

"They were only joking, of course," declared Mrs. Luce. "I'm surprised, really, that any one could take this vice-president talk seriously. I have gone out of the way to be fair and objective in the column. I bent over backward so far that I wouldn't allow my column to be reprinted in this country because I was afraid I could be accused of not being an all-out Republican. I wrote the column because I wanted to do something for the men and I am most familiar with the China-Burma theater."

The War Department ordered the Army publication to stop publishing the column, a spokesman said, because it was a long-standing Army policy that material involving matters of political controversy should not appear in Army publications.

Disloyal Japs in U. S. Camps to Be Segregated

Denver, July 26 (A. P.).—Disloyal Japanese will be segregated this fall in the Tule Lake Relocation Center — accommodating more than 15,000—in northern California, Dillon S. Myer, director of the War Relocation Authority, announced.

He said yesterday that transfer of disloyal evacuees from nine other centers will begin early in September and be completed by November 1.

Check on Japanese Disloyal to U. S. Nears Completion

By JAMES D. WHITE,
Associated Press Writer.

The Japanese officer glared at me.

"Look what happens to Japanese in America," he bellowed. "The Army runs them out of their homes along the Pacific Coast and is going to 'relocate' them in Government centers.

"Two-thirds of those Japanese are Nisei—American citizens. To treat them this way is against your own Constitution, and we Japanese are just as concerned over what happens to them as to our own people in America.

"You can be very sure," he went on, "that we are watching this thing with the closest possible attention, and if it keeps up, we have you people in Shanghai and all the other Americans in the Far East to work on."

Internees at Japs' Mercy.

In the few months I remained in Shaighai before repatriation with diplomats and other correspondents, this was a major propaganda theme with the Japanese.

They claimed that Americans were treating Japanese in this country harshly simply because they were Japanese. They seized on every report via neutral sources and the radio to twist it to their own purposes.

Since then they have interned all Americans in their own and conquered territory. These and thousands of war prisoners are at their mercy.

They never mentioned the prime factor behind the relocation of Japanese on the West Coast—the extent of Japan's espionage system, and the difficulty of distinguishing between perfectly good Americans of Japanese ancestry and those who still are Japanese in mind and spirit.

There still is the big difficulty in this huge question.

From the West Coast the Government has moved 108,000 people of the Japanese race—first to assembly centers, then to relocation centers.

Question of Loyalty.

The War Relocation Authority describes the relation centers as exactly that—places from which these Japanese can be relocated into normal life.

This process is going on, but slowly.

The question always comes up: Who's loyal and who isn't?

The WRA has been easing up to the move of separating loyal and disloyal Japanese.

On March 2, 1942, the Western Defense Command, on grounds of military necessity, ordered all persons of Japanese ancestry to leave the West Coast area—the western half of Washington, Oregon and California, and the lower third of Arizona. Later this was extended to include California.

A few thousand Japanese tried to leave. They found Americans suspicious, often unwilling to sell them gasoline or other means of transportation. They had difficulty finding places to stay and work after they got out of the prohibited areas.

So on March 29 the Army stopped this voluntary movement and enforced a compulsory but systematized evacuation of the Japanese—first to assembly centers, then to 10 relocation centers.

Then came the question of sorting them.

Three Types in U. S.

Japanese in this country may be classified in three main types:

First are those born in Japan who came here before this country excluded immigration from Japan in 1924. These are known as Isei (pronounced ee-say).

Their children, born in this country, are known as Nisei (pronounced nee-say) and are not only American citizens but generally American in ideas and habits. Few read Japanese, though many still speak it.

Then there is a class known as Kibei (pronounced kee-bay) who were born in this country but returned to Japan for an education and an indoctrination of Japanese ideas, then returned to this country to live.

Often all three types are found in the same family. All are present in all the relocation centers.

Nearly every disturbance reported out of the camps is attributed fundamentally to conflicts among these three groups. By all accounts, the Isei and the Kibei represent a pro-Japanese element, with the Nisei generally trying to remain loyal Americans despite pressure from the others.

The fact that the Nisei—American citizens—were confined along with the others did not strengthen their arguments with their elders.

Information Needed.

From the beginning, the WRA has said it recognized the desirability of separating the loyal from the disloyal. But, WRA said, to do that it had to have detailed information about every single individual if it was to avoid grave mistakes.

Such detailed information was not available at first. WRA says now—after months of investigation and questioning and research—that it has exhaustive information about every Japanese in the centers who is more than 17 years old.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has checked on 85 and 90 per cent of the Japanese concerned, expects to finish the job soon.

Working from this information, WRA plans to begin in September the job of weeding out the disloyal.

The job of seperation is looked on by WRA with frank apprehension. Probably 25,000 persons will be moved one way or another—a big problem in transportation alone, which has just been arranged. Once that job is accomplished, WRA expects life in the relocation camps to attain a more even keel.

About 6,000 Japanese have been placed on seasonal leave to work in the sugar beet and other crops in the intermountain States of Idaho, Utah, Eastern Washington and Oregon, Wyoming, Colorado and Montana.

Some 9,000 others have been given indefinite leave.

To qualify for indefinite leave, WRA says, an evacuee must show that he can support himself outside and satisfy WRA that he will not endanger national security. WRA officials will help him find a job, and check up on the community he plans to enter, to see whether his presence would lead to trouble. The evacuee has to keep WRA informed of his place of work and residence, and the FBI is notified of the fact that he has been released.

WRA points with pride to the fact that of 15,000 Japanese released not a single instance of disloyalty has been reported. The only owner complaints, it says, have come from people who hired young Japanese evacuees—they were inclined to move on to other and better jobs.

American citizens going on indefinite leave are required to give a pledge of allegiance. Aliens must pledge themselves to good behavior.

Here's what Dilton S. Myer, WRA director, says the Japanese are doing:

"More than 8,000—half of them volunteers—are in the Army. Of these, 1,200 volunteered from behind the wire inclosures of WRA centers.

Doing Patriotic Work.

"Outside the relocation centers, the thousands of JapaneseAmericans—including both those who have left the centers on leave and those (some 20,000) who were never evacuated— the displaying their patriotism in the same ways as other civilian Americans.

"They are buying War bonds and stamps, donating money and blood to the Red Cross and participating in salvage campaigns. Several hundred are serving effectively in the intelligence branch of the United States Army. Still others are working as translators with the overseas branch of the Office of War Information.

Mr. Myers declares the original evacuation was constitutionally justified as a wartime necessity.

But, he continues, "there is no justification for detaining citizens of the United States against whom no charges of disloyalty or subversiveness have been placed, for any longer time than is required to screen out the loyal from the disloyal an dto provide for the necessary guidance and assistance in relocation."

JUL 27 1943

New York, July 26 (AP) — A Tokyo dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said today eight Liberator bombers attacked Japanese-held Wake Island early Sunday.

Two of the raiders were declared to have been brought down, against a loss of two Japanese fighter planes, one of which was credited with purposely crashing into one of the bombers to carry it to earth. The broadcast did not mention damage aground.

West Atlantic Ship Toll At 675

New York, July 26 (AP) — Announcement last week of the loss of two merchant vessels in the Western Atlantic brought to 675 the Associated Press count of announced Allied and neutral merchant-ship sinkings in those waters since Pearl Harbor.

Tokio Claims 28 U. S. Planes

Japanese headquarters reported yesterday in a Tokio broadcast that twenty-eight Allied planes had been shot down during Japanese raids on Chinese airdromes at Hengyang and Lingling, in Hunan Province, and at Kweilin, just south of the Hunan border. The announcement, recorded by the Associated Press, said the raids were carried out on July 23, 24 and 25.

Berlin Attitude On Mussolini Is Termed Serene

Schmidt, Foreign Ministry Spokesman, Lays Trouble to Domestic Situation

The German radio informed the world that Dr. Paul Schmidt, the German Foreign Ministry spokesman, maintained "an attitude of complete and serene calmness toward the events in Italy" at a press conference yesterday morning at Berlin. No other highly placed Nazi was quoted on the subject of Benito Mussolini's abdication.

The German announcement, picked up by listening posts here, described the press conference as "exclusively dominated by the inner political events in Italy." Dr. Schmidt, it said, explained that developments in Italy "were obviously due to Italy's domestic situation, and for this reason it was at present not possible to give an opinion from the angle of foreign politics."

The explanation was not the one given by German radios for home consumption. Those broadcasts said Mussolini's resignation was assumed to be due to ill health.

The esssence of the proclamations by King Victor Emmanuel III and Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Il Duce's successor as Premier, Dr. Schmidt told the newsmen, "must be seen in the declaration that Italy would continue in the prosecution of the war."

Churchill warning to Italy to seek an "honorable" peace or take the grim consequences.

By every indication Washington and London are busy behind the scenes preparing in advance the specific terms under which an armistice would be granted if Italy sought it. Nor can it be questioned that those terms would provide first of all for tightening the Allied Mediterranean net on Germany to exploit without delay the expected collapse of the southern facade of Hitler's fortress of Europe.

Whatever the political aspects of an Italian surrender, the military phases of any armistice must be harsh. Bases in southern Italy itself, on the Greek peninsula and the islands of the Aegean now garrisoned by Italian troops would be essential for Allied use if Anglo-American forces are to strike swiftly and effectively at Germany and bring increased aid to Russia's rolling summer offensive.

The Balkans offer the shortest, surest road to victory. The Greek peninsula and the Page d-studded Aegean are routes coming to grips with Nazi inner defense lines on the continent. Evasuation of Italian garrisons outside Italy, or orders from Rome which made them passive on-lookers at best, would expose German troops in such key positions as Crete to isolation and swift annihilation.

Powerful British armies are already poised in Egypt and Syria to move across the eastern Mediterranian, matching the Anglo-American sweep through Sicily. And there are ever growing symptoms that Nazi satellite nations in the Balkans are as ripe for revolt against the crumbling Axis as is Italy.

Allied victories in Sicily are already paving the way for a leap across the straits of Messina to the Italian "boot" itself. It goes without saying that any armistice terms granted Rome would require unopposed Allied occupation of such areas in the "toe" and "heel" of the boot as are needed to support when Turkey follows her known inclination, instead of a policy of prudence, and steps into the struggle as a fellow member of the anti-Axis league.

That would even further shorten the way to effective flanking operations in the Balkans against Germany and a possible ultimate junction of Russian and Allied forces for the final squeeze on Germany itself.

What's Behind the War News

JUL 27 1943

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

With the fall of Benito Mussolini, the Nazi-Fascist Axis has started to come apart at the seams, changing the whole military perspective overnight.

Summary removal of Il Duce by royal decree foreshadows early peace feelers from Rome, in the judgment of United Nations authorities. There is no other logical explanation for the military-political upheaval which came in swift answer to the Roosevelt-Churchill warning to Italy to seek a drive to clear the Greek peninsula and the Aegean.

Nor could die-hard Italian resistance greatly delay Allied capture of such bases. That is the fact confronting Rome in weighing whatever terms may be imposed as the price of a cessation of hostilities.

Russian Morale Mounts

The news from Italy must necessarily step up Russian morale, already high and growing with every new victory around Orel. It might signal the long-awaited moment

Nazis Caught Off Base in Raid By U. S. Airmen on War Plants

AT A U. S. BOMBER BASE, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 26 — (AP) U. S. Eighth Air force Flying Fortresses from this station caught Nazi defenses far off base when they hit Hamburg today for the second successive day.

"It was an easy one," said Major William R. Calhoun, 23, pilot of the "Eight Ball" which led the attack on Nazi industrial targets. "Bombing looked pretty good. I saw a hell of a big explosion."

"There were only about 20 or 25 fighters and they only made three passes at us," said Sergt. Frank Mathews of Watsonville, Calif., ball turret gunner on the bomber "Charlie Horse."

"Yesterday (when submarine building yards at Hamburg were bombed) they had a couple of hundred fighters up," said Tail Gunner Sergt. Goldie Hoover, who has a 14-year-old son back in Ambridge, Pa., and who says with a wink that h' officia' age is 35.

"Yesterday I shot about 1,500 rounds—today not more than 500 closer to me than 600 yards.

"Yesterday you could shake hands with them. Today none came closer to me than 600 yards."

Milan Newspaper Declares People Cheered News of Duce's Ouster.

FASCIST SALUTE ABOLISHED

Cry of 'Long Live the King' Is Raised by Roman Crowds—Some Riots Reported.

Berne, July 26 (A. P.).—The Italian people went wild with joy on hearing of the downfall of Mussolini after the end of more than twenty years of Fascist preparation for war, according to word received in Berne today.

The only Italian newspaper arriving at Chiasso, on the Swiss frontier, the Gazzetta del Sport, published in Milan, declared that cheering throngs had burst into the streets as soon as they heard the radio announcement, and despite the blackout paraded through the streets of Rome and invaded the empty halls of the Palazzo Venezia from whose balcony Il Duce had harangued them for a score of years.

An impromptu parade formed and there were demonstrations against Fascism with shouts of long life to Italy's King, to Marshal Badoglio and the Army. The throngs carried Italian flags and sang.

One parade went to the Quirinale, where the people shouted for the King. Others demonstrated at the War Ministry, acclaiming the army, and in various other parts of the city in front of newspaper offices. The Gazzetta del Sport reported similar demonstrations at Miland and Bologna.

Fascist Salute Abolished.

Reports that trucks and railways had been commandeered for the withdrawal of German troops could not be confirmed. The first Nazi reaction, privately, was that there was now no chance of their withdrawal even if it had been intended.

Reports from the Swiss-Italian frontier said there was a brawl at Como when non-party members spat at Blackshirts and tore their uniforms from their backs. A mob was said to have hurled stones and smashed doors and windows at offices of Mussolini's Il Popolo d'Italia which, according to another re burned.

The Fascist salut ished and signs erec out the country in t decades were being er motives of Italian trai at the frontier stripped Fasces decorations. Throughout the day the Italian radio broadcast only official communiques and music.

Workmen Cheer.

Italian commissioners of public safety at Chiasso and other frontier cities were reported ordered by military authorities to remove all Fascist insignia. Travelers from Italy also were ordered to take off party buttons. A trainload of Italian workmen from Germany arrived at Chiasso and demonstrated "joyfully" when they heard the news of Mussolini's fall. They removed party emblems.

Army regular troops were said to have occupied barracks of the Fascist militia.

Italian troops in Yugoslavia were reported to be moving rapidly toward the coast in the hope of returning home quickly. A report to an Italian source here said it was expected in Rome that Italy would ask for an armistice by the end of the week.

Mussolini's downfall brought a flurry of activity among Axis satellites. Vichy, Helsinki, Budapest, Bucharest and Sofia cabinets were summoned in special sessions.

LONDON, TUESDAY, JULY 27-(AP)-DEEP-ROOTED SUSPICION OF THE MEANING OF THE POLITICAL SHAKE-UP IN ITALY WAS STRONGLY IN EVIDENCE IN LONDON TODAY, BUT THERE WAS GENERAL AGREEMENT THAT BENITO MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL APPEARED TO BE A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION FOR THE ALLIES.

STAID ENGLISHMEN, WHO USUALLY TAKE CHANGES IN WAR WITHOUT ALTERING THEIR FACIAL EXPRESSIONS, SHOWED MORE EXCITEMENT OVER MUSSOLINI'S RUN-OUT THAN THEY HAVE AT ANY TIME SINCE THE UNITED STATES CAME INTO THE WAR.

JUL 27 1943

IN THE "PUBS" EVERYONE IS ASKING:

"WHAT DO YOU THINK OF MUSSO?"

FOR THE BEST ANSWER, THEY ARE EAGERLY AWAITING THE NEXT ADDRESS BY PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL WHO IN THE PAST HAS CALLED MUSSOLINI SUCH NAMES AS "HYENA" AND "PINCHBECK CAESAR."

CARTOONISTS AND ART EDITORS, WHO PREVIOUSLY HAD FOUND BROAD FIELDS OF MATERIAL IN MUSSOLINI, ARE HAVING A FIELD DAY. THE DAILY EXPRESS, FOR INSTANCE, PICTURED A BEWHISKERED ITALIAN AT A MICROPHONE ON A BALCONY, ASSERTING:

"THE MANAGEMENT REGRETS TO ANNOUNCE THAT THERE WILL BE SOME LAST-MINUTE CHANGES IN THE CAST FOR THE FINAL ACT."

THE DAILY MAIL CHOSE A CRICKET SCENE, WHICH LOOKED SOMETHING LIKE A BASEBALL CARTOON, SHOWING GARRULOUS MUSSOLINI STRIDING AWAY FROM THE HOME PLATE, AND SHORT KING EMANUELE DEPARTING FROM THE PITCHER'S BOX AFTER STRIKING HIM OUT.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF MUSSOLINI DID NOT SEEM TO CONCERN THE MAN IN THE STREET FOR THE MOMENT. IT WAS FELT THAT HE WAS TRAPPED AND COULD NOT GET AWAY, AND THIS CHUCKLE WAS HEARD REPEATEDLY:

"LET HIM GO TO GERMANY IF HE WANTS TO; WE'LL GET HIM EVENTUALLY."

HERE ARE SOME OF THE THINGS THAT STRUCK THE BRITISH AS SIGNIFICANT:

THE ROME RADIO DEVOTED THE NIGHT CONCERT HOUR FOR TROOPS TO SOOTHING "COUNTRY MUSIC" INSTEAD OF THE USUAL MARTIAL SONGS.

FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE MAY 13 THE ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE YESTERDAY MADE NO MENTION OF ALLIED AIR RAIDS ON THE ITALIAN MAINLAND ITSELF.

ITALIAN PRISONERS OF WAR IN ENGLAND WERE PERMITTED TO LISTEN TO THE ROME RADIO. THEY SENT A DEPUTATION TO THE CAMP COMMANDANT ASKING HIM TO APPEAL TO BRITISH SOLDIERS TO BE KIND TO THEIR FAMILIES WHEN THEY INVADE THE HOMELAND.

"WE KNOW THE BRITISH WILL TREAT OUR PEOPLE WELL," A SPOKESMAN SAID, "BUT THIS IS WAR. PLEASE ASK TOMMY TO BE GENTLE WITH OUR PARENTS, OUR CHILDREN AND OUR LOVED ONES AT HOME."

A ROME RADIO REPORT HEARD IN LONDON BY THE MINISTRY OF INFORMATION SAID THAT THOUSANDS OF ITALIANS WERE PARADING IN THE STREETS OF ROME.

30.24-6563

ADDING THAT "WHEN THE KING APPEARED LATER IN THE DAY AT THE WINDOW OF THE QUIRINAL, A TREMENDOUS OVATION GREETED HIM."

THE BROADCAST SAID THRONGS, SPURRED BY A CARNIVAL SPIRIT, CARRIED BANNERS READING "LONG LIVE FREE ITALY" THROUGH ROME'S STREETS.

IN A FRENCH LANGUAGE BROADCAST THE ITALIAN RADIO SAID THE CHANGE IN REGIME IN NO WAY AFFECTED PUBLIC ORDER, THAT "EVERYWHERE, LIFE IS PROCEEDING IN AN ENTIRELY NORMAL WAY."

"ITALIAN LIFE, HENCEFORTH ENTERING A PHASE OF NEW AND GREATER ACTIVITY AND A MORE INTENSE WORLD IN ALL SPHERES, WILL EMPHASIZE A FRESH IMPULSE GIVEN BY THE NATION TO ITS TRADITIONAL INSTITUTIONS," THE BROADCAST SAID.

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-GERMAN TWIN-ENGINED FIGHTER PLANES, UNABLE TO STAVE OFF THE HEAVY AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESS ATTACK ON HAMBURG YESTERDAY, CHASED THE RAIDERS MORE THAN 60 MILES OUT TO SEA IN AN ATTEMPT TO CATCH STRAGGLERS ON THE RETURN TRIP--BUT THEY DIDN'T HAVE MUCH LUCK, RETURNING AMERICAN PILOTS SAID TODAY.

THE GERMAN AIR FORCE, THEY REPORTED, THREW IN EVERY TYPE OF FIGHTER TRYING TO TURN THE FORTRESSES OFF THE TARGET--ME-109S, FW-190'S AND JU-88S IN ADDITION TO TWIN-ENGINED FIGHTERS.

"SOME TWIN-ENGINED JOBS MADE ONE ATTACK WHILE WE WERE STILL OUT OVER THE NORTH SEA," SAID SECOND LIEUTENANT PAUL GORDY OF GAINESVILLE, FLA. "OTHERS TOOK UP THE TASK AT THE COAST AND STAYED WITH US UNTIL WE WERE ABOUT 60 MILES OUT AT SEA ON THE WAY BACK."

IN THE CHASE, CREW MEMBERS SAID, THE FIGHTERS STAYED OUT OF RANGE OF THE FORTS' GUNS AND APPEARED TO BE WAITING ONLY FOR STRAGGLERS.

FLAK WAS HEAVY OVER THE TARGET. SECOND LIEUTENANT ROBERT M. KOENIG OF LE MARS, IOWA, NAVIGATOR ON THE "RAMP TRAMP" SAID: "WE MUST HAVE HIT THE HEAVIEST CONCENTRATION OF FLAK IN ALL [illegible]ANY."

TECHNICAL SERGEANT MIKE LEVIN OF ST.LOUIS, MO., GUNNER ON HIS FIRST TRIP SINCE HE WAS WOUNDED OVER LORIENT SIX MONTHS AGO SAID: "IT WAS ROUGH BUT I'VE GONE THROUGH ROUGHER. FEELS GOOD TO BE BACK FLYING AGAIN."

"THE WHOLE CITY OF HAMBURG WAS COVERED BY BILLOWING SMOKE WHEN WE ARRIVED OVER THE TARGET," SAID CAPTAIN RICHARD W.WEITZENFELD OF CHICAGO, PILOT OF THE LEAD SHIP IN ONE GROUP.

DESPITE THE SMOKE HE SAW THE AREA BURST INTO FLAME, HE SAID, AND FIRST LIEUTENANT CHARLES J.LEMAN OF BALTIMORE, MD., REMARKED: "IT MUST HAVE BEEN AN OIL STORAGE DUMP WE HIT."

IT SEEMED LIKE "A MILLION SQUARE MILES OF SMOKE" TO MAJOR KIRK K.MITCHELL OF OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.

SECOND LIEUTENANT ROBERT P.PAULIN OF STEUBENVILLE, OHIO, PILOT OF "CALAMITY JANE", SAID THAT THE "FLAK WAS SO THICK WE COULD WALK ON IT." SECOND LIEUTENANT ROBERT A.DEPENDAHL OF ST.LOUIS, MO., SAID THAT THE FIGHTERS "ATTACKED LIKE DEVILS."

OUSTER.

G. GIGLIO, FORMER ROME CORRESPONDENT OF THE DAILY HERALD, WARNED THAT "MUSSOLINI MAY HAVE RESIGNED AT THE SUGGESTION OF HITLER TO STOP THE DISINTEGRATION OF ITALIAN ARMED FORCES WHICH NO LONGER WERE OBEYING THEIR ORDERS."

SWISS DISPATCHES TO LONDON, WHICH EXPRESSED THE BELIEF THAT ITALY WOULD BE OUT OF THE WAR WITHIN A FEW WEEKS, NOTED THE SIMILARITY IN TONE BETWEEN THE ITALIAN PROCLAMATIONS AND THOSE ISSUED BY MARSHAL PETAIN SHORTLY BEFORE THE FALL OF FRANCE.

ALLIED BROADCASTS KEPT DRUMMING HOME TO THE ITALIANS TODAY THAT THEY MUST RID THE COUNTRY OF MORE THAN MUSSOLINI, AND THE ALGIERS RADIO, IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WARNED THAT "IT IS NECESSARY THAT ALL TRACES OF THE FASCIST REGIME DISAPPEAR FROM ITALY. A CHANGE OF NAMES IS NOT ENOUGH. IN ORDER TO BRING ITALY BACK TO LIFE AND THE WORLD BACK TO PEACE SOMETHING MORE THAN A PALACE MANEUVER OR A COUP D'ETAT IS NECESSARY. A REAL REVOLUTION IS NECESSARY."

JUL 27 1943

THE BRITISH BROADCASTING CORPORATION, IN AN ITALIAN BROADCAST, CALLED ON THE ITALIANS TO BREAK ALL TIES WITH THE GERMANS.

ALTHOUGH THE ROYAL PROCLAMATION SAID VITTORIO EMANUELE HAD ACCEPTED IL DUCE'S RESIGNATION, THERE SEEMED LITTLE DOUBT THAT HE ACTUALLY HAD BEEN DEPOSED.

THE PEOPLE TO WHOM HE BROUGHT WAR ARE WEARY AND HUNGRY AND ITALIAN MORALE IS AT A NEW LOW BECAUSE OF THE SWEEPING ALLIED SUCCESSES IN SICILY, WHERE ENTIRE DIVISIONS ARE SURRENDERING AND THE CITIZENS ARE WELCOMING ALLIED TROOPS IN UNPRECEDENTED FRIENDLY DEMONSTRATIONS.

BY DANIEL DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 26-(AP)-PREMIER PIETRO BADOGLIO, WHETHER HE ENVISIONS HIMSELF AS THE ITALIAN PETAIN OR A MALE JOAN OF ARC, IS CONFRONTED TODAY BY SOME OF THE GRAVEST PROBLEMS THAT THE COMMANDER OF A BEATEN AND DISPIRITED ARMY EVER FACED.

SURVIVING ITALIAN FORCES IN SICILY ARE NOW BELIEVED RESPONSIBLE FOR HOLDING THE NORTHERN FLANK OF THE MT.ETNA LINE ESTABLISHED BY TWO IDENTIFIED GERMAN DIVISIONS, THE HERMANN GOERING AND THE FIFTEENTH PANZER.

THE GERMAN AIR FORCE HAS NUMEROUS BASES IN ITALY AND GERMAN GESTAPO AGENTS AND MILITARY GARRISONS HAVE LONG BEEN ESTABLISHED IN WIDELY SCATTERED PARTS OF THE PENINSULA.

IF ITALY QUITS THE WAR WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO THIS TANGLED SYSTEM OF AXIS DEFENSE OF THE EUROPEAN FORTRESS?

BADOGLIO IS AN OLD LINE MONARCHIST AND WAS NEVER AN ARDENT FASCIST. THE FACT IS THAT THE OFFICERS AND BLACKSHIRT REGIMENTS HAVE A BETTER RECORD, AT LEAST FOR COURAGE, THAN ANY OTHER ELEMENTS IN THE ITALIAN ARMY.

JUL 27 1943

IF KING VITTORIO EMANUELE AND BADOGLIO PERSIST IN CONTINUING THE WAR THE EFFECTS OF THE DISGRACE OF FASCISM OBVIOUSLY WOULD HAVE INCALCULABLE INFLUENCE ON THE ELITE TROOPS WHO FORMERLY ENJOYED GOVERNMENTAL ADULATION AKIN TO THAT LAVISHED ON THE NAZI DIVISIONS BY HITLER.

NO ESTIMATE OF THE ITALIAN SITUATION CAN OVERLOOK THE FACT THAT THE REPORTED ABANDONMENT OF FASCISM YESTERDAY FULFILLED NUMBER ONE OF THE ANNOUNCED ALLIED AIMS IN INVADING ITALIAN TERRITORY.

OFFICIALLY THE ALLIED TERMS REMAIN UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

SERGEANT MAX WINSHIER OF LOS ANGELES, CALIF., SAID HIS COMPANY HAD "A LIAR'S BELT," TO BE WORN BY PROVEN "RUMOR MONGERS" IN THE OUTFIT. THE FIRST G.I. TO BREAK THE NEWS NEARLY GOT THE BELT TO WEAR PERMANENTLY.

THE MILDEST REACTION WAS REPORTED BY CORPORAL HARVIS DYAS OF MOBILE, ALA., WHO HEARD THE NEWS ON THE RADIO AND AT ABOUT MIDNIGHT AWOKE THE BOYS IN HIS TENT TO SPREAD THE INFORMATION.

"IT DIDN'T AFFECT THEM AT ALL," SAID DYAS. "THEY TOLD ME TO GO BACK AND SLEEP IT OFF."

SOUTH OF CATANIA, A MAIN STRONGHOLD OF THE AXIS DEFENSE, THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY REPORTED SUCCESSFUL PATROL ACTIVITY.

TYPICAL OF THE SICILIAN PEOPLE'S REBELLION AGAINST FASCISM WAS AN INCIDENT, OFFICIALLY REPORTED, IN WHICH BRITISH PARACHUTE TROOPS AND AN AMERICAN INTERPRETER DROPPED BEHIND ENEMY LINES. THEY WENT TO THE NEAREST VILLAGE IN SEARCH OF FOOD AND WERE GREETED AS LIBERATORS AND FED WITH THE BEST THE COUNTRYSIDE COULD PROVIDE. A LOCAL PHYSICIAN ATTENDED ONE INJURED TROOPER. THE NEWSPAPER SAID THESE TERMS PROBABLY WOULD INCLUDE "THE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OF ALL THE ARMED FORCES OF ITALY, FREE USE OF ITALIAN TERRITORY BY ALLIED FORCES FOR PURSUING THE WAR AGAINST GERMANY, DISMISSAL OF ALL FASCIST MINISTERS AND DISBANDMENT OF ALL FASCIST ORGANIZATIONS."

JUL 27 1943

"IT IS NOT THE INTENTION OF THE BRITISH AND UNITED STATES GOVERNMENTS," THE DAILY MAIL SAID, "TO ALLOW ITALY TO OFFER HONORABLE CAPITULATION--WHICH MEANS THE SAME THING AS UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER BUT SOUNDS NICER--AND THEN WITHDRAW INTO A STATE OF NEUTRALITY. BOTH GOVERNMENTS ARE DETERMINED TO INSIST ON THE SEVEREST TERMS BEFORE GRANTING AN ARMISTICE."

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-AN ADMISSION THAT THE AXIS FORCES IN CENTRAL SICILY ARE VIRTUALLY ENTRAPPED BY THE ADVANCING ALLIED ARMIES CAME TODAY FROM THE GERMAN-CONTROLLED VICHY RADIO.

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-THE ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE, WHICH WAS ISSUED BY THE "SUPREME COMMAND" IN PLACE OF THE CUSTOMARY "HIGH COMMAND," WAS QUOTED BY THE ROME RADIO TODAY AS SAYING THAT ALLIED ATTACKS HAD BEEN REPULSED IN SICILY.

THE BROADCAST, WHICH WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID THAT THE ALLIES WERE ATTACKING HEAVILY IN CENTRAL SICILY WITH ARMOR.

STAFF SERGEANT CLARENCE WHITE OF ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., TOP TURRET GUNNER OF "KIPLING'S ERROR 111," SAID "OUR BOMBARDIERS VIRTUALLY BLEW THE HELL OUT OF THINGS. WE COULD SEE SMOKE FOR MILES."

LIEUT. BERNARD J. QUENNEVILLE OF SOUTH HADLEY, MASS., BOMBARDIER, SAID "SOME OF OUR BOMBS HIT DOCKS, OTHERS HIT MERCHANT VESSELS AT KIEL. HEAVY COLUMNS OF SMOKE WERE SEEN AND THEY APPEARED TO BE COMING FROM WAREHOUSES."

CAPT. CLIFFORD B. HAMILTON, PORTLAND, ORE., SUMMED UP THE KIEL RAID THUS:

STAFF SERGEANT JOSEPH V. SANZONE, BROOKLYN, N.Y., TAILGUNNER ON THE "RUTH L," SAID "I SAW 20 ENEMY PLANES BUT THEY KEPT THEIR DISTANCE."

"I DIDN'T SEE ANY FIGHTERS UNTIL AFTER WE LEFT THE TARGET," SAID LIEUT. JOHN C. MCILVAINE, HOUSTON, PA., BOMBARDIER ON "DRY RUN 111." "THEY WEREN'T AT ALL AMBITIOUS. I THINK WE CAUGHT THEM BY SURPRISE."

ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS HEAVY DURING TODAY'S AMERICAN FORTRESS RAIDS ON GERMAN CITIES.

"IT WAS REALLY ROUGH TODAY," SAID LIEUT. W.A. BAKER OF SEATTLE, WASH., PILOT OF THE FORTRESS, "OUR BAYBEE." "THEY SENT UP EVERYTHING BUT THE KITCHEN SINK AND THEY WOULD HAVE FLOWN THAT, TOO, BUT IT WAS MADE INTO FLAK."

JUL 27 1943

BAKER'S CO-PILOT, LIEUT. MARTIN C. MINNICH, PIQUA, OHIO, SAID "THOSE DAMNED FIGHTERS UP THERE WERE THICKER THAN BEES IN A HONEYCOMB. WE MADE OUR BOMB RUN WITH 13 GERMANS ON OUR TAIL. AND WHENEVER A DAMAGED BOMBER WOULD LEAVE OUR FORMATION BETWEEN SEVEN AND 12 FIGHTERS WOULD POUNCE ON IT LIKE VULTURES."

MINNICH SAID HIS CREW CLAIMED SIX GERMANS DESTROYED. A FEW SECONDS AFTER HE PULLED HIMSELF UP INTO THE RADIO COMPART-

REGAN'S SHIP CAME BACK WITH ITS CONTROLS DAMAGED, AND WITH HITS IN THE GAS TANK AND LEFT WING.

SERGEANT G.D.STARKEBAUM, CONCORDIA, MO., TOP TURRET GUNNER, SAID FIGHTERS ATTACKED HIS PLANE "EIGHT AND 10 AT A TIME," AND ADDED:

CAPT.ROBERT L.HODSON OF ELDON, IA., WAS PILOT OF THE "OLD PUSS III" WHICH LED ONE GROUP.

FOR THE MEDIUM BOMBER CREWMEN WHO STRUCK THE ST.OMER AIRDROME IT WAS THEIR THIRD SUCCESSIVE ATTACK WITHOUT LOSS OF A MAN OR PLANE. THE ONLY "INJURY" WAS A BLACK EYE EXHIBITED BY SGT.ALBERT MOLLOT, TURRET GUNNER FROM TACOMA, WASH., WHO ANSWERED WISECRACKS WITH, "OH THAT? I GOT IT WARMING UP AT VOLLEY BALL FOR THE MISSIONS."

THE ST.OMER RAID WAS PLANNED BY MAJ.D.A.CURTIS OF GALVESTON, TEX., SENIOR GROUP INTELLIGENCE OFFICER. TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO CURTIS MADE HIS FIRST COMBAT FLIGHT FROM THE ST.OMER FIELD AS A MEMBER OF THE RAF DURING THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

MAJ.WILSON R.WOOD OF CHICO, TEX., DESCRIBED IT AS "OUR THIRD GO AT THE HUN AND THE MOST SUCCESSFUL OF ALL."

FIRST LT.OSCAR ZIWEIG OF WASHINGTON, D.C., SAID IT WAS "LIKE FLYING A DOUGHNUT" (A PRACTICE MISSION).

FIRST LT.T.G.TRAINOR OF HAVERHILL, MASS., BOMBARDIER IN THE "RAUNCHY RASCAL THE SECOND," SAID HE AND SEVERAL CREW MEMBERS ALMOST FELL OUT OF THE PLANE WHEN THEY LEANED OVER TO SEE THE EFFECT OF THE FIRST INCENDIARIES THEY DROPPED.

"IT WAS ALMOST WORTH THE FALL," TRAINOR SAID. "EVERY BOMB HIT IN THE VICINITY OF THE AIRDROME."

LT.JOHN T.WALIOR OF ABERDEEN, S.D., WHO PLAYED GUARD FOR NOTRE DAME AND WAS DIRECTING BOMBARDIER OF THE MISSION, SAID "IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL JOB."

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-WHO SAYS A WOMAN CAN'T KEEP A SECRET? TWO WACS PROVED IT BUT ALMOST LANDED IN THE GUARDHOUSE DOING IT.

AT FIRST, CAPTAIN SELMA HANSEN, LOS ANGELES, AND LIEUT.DOROTHY SWART, ELSA, TEX., WERE VERY HUSH-HUSH WHEN ASSIGNED TO THE EUROPEAN THEATRE OF OPERATIONS OF THE U.S. ARMY, BUT NOW THAT A WAC BATTALION IS IN BRITAIN THEY CAN COME OUT INTO CIRCULATION.

THEY ARRIVED SOME TIME BACK, UNDER SECRET ORDERS TO REPORT

DIRECTLY TO MAJOR GENERAL IRA C.EAKER AT THE U.S. EIGHTH AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS. THEY TOOK THE ORDERS BOTH SERIOUSLY AND LITERALLY. BUT WHEN THEY ARRIVED IN BRITAIN THEY FOUND THEY DID NOT KNOW WHERE THE AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS WAS.

CAPT.HANSEN RELATED THAT THEY SPENT SEVERAL HOURS TRYING TO LOCATE GEN.EAKER. THEY TRIED TO FIND OUT THROUGH U.S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS, BUT WHEN THEY REFUSED TO SHOW THEIR ORDERS NO ONE THERE WOULD HELP THEM. ARMY REGULATIONS ARE THAT MILITARY PERSONNEL COMING INTO AN AREA REPORT TO THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE.

COLONEL RALPH PULSIFER OF THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE KNEW THAT THE WACS WERE EXPECTED. IN FACT, HE TOLD HIS ASSISTANT THAT THERE SHOULD BE TWO WACS IN TOWN, AND THAT THEY WOULD JUST SEE HOW LONG IT TOOK THE WOMEN TO CHECK IN.

JUL 27 1943

THEY WAITED AND THEY WAITED. MEANWHILE, REPORTS STARTED COMING IN THAT TWO WOMEN IN STRANGE UNIFORMS WERE GOING AROUND TRYING TO FIND OUT WHERE THE EIGHTH AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS WERE LOCATED.

FINALLY, PULSIFER DECIDED HE HAD BETTER GO FIND THE WACS. HE RAN INTO CAPT.HANSEN JUST OUTSIDE U.S. HEADQUARTERS.

"DON'T YOU KNOW YOU ARE SUPPOSED TO REPORT TO THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE?" HE ASKED.

"NO, SIR," SHE REPLIED, "MY ORDERS WERE TO REPORT TO GENERAL EAKER."

HE FINALLY PERSUADED HER IT WOULD BE OKAY FOR HER TO COME IN--IN FACT HE ORDERED HER TO REPORT TO HIS OFFICE--AND THEN HELPED THE TWO SECRETIVE WACS ON THEIR WAY.

A U.S. BOMBER STATION, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, JULY 26-(AP)-ACCIDENTS HAPPENED SO FAST ON THE FLYING FORTRESS "FLAK-WOLF" IN THE AMERICAN RAID YESTERDAY ON HAMBURG THAT THE GUNNERS HAD TO PLAY A GAME OF MUSICAL CHAIRS PINCH-HITTING FOR EACH OTHER.

THE BOMBER CAME BACK WITH A BAG OF THREE GERMAN FIGHTERS.

"IT WAS A TOUGH ONE TO FINISH ON," THE PILOT, LIEUT.WILLIAM LEFEVRE OF CHICAGO, SAID LAUGHINGLY. JUL 27 1943 ON HIS LAST MISSION OVER HERE.

SOON AFTER THE PLANE STARTED OUT, THE BALL TURRET GUNNER'S HEATING EQUIPMENT FAILED, LEAVING SERGT.ROBERT SINK OF SOUTH HAVEN, MICH., FREEZING IN HIS CRAMPED, UNDERSIDE FISHBOWL.

THE BELOW ZERO COLD QUICKLY FROZE UP HIS OXYGEN APPARATUS. ALTHOUGH GRADUALLY LOSING CONSCIOUSNESS, HE STUCK AT HIS GUNS THROUGH THE DEFENSE SCREEN OF 200 GERMAN FIGHTERS UNTIL BOMBS WERE DROPPED AND THE TARGET HAD BEEN PASSED.

THEN, WHEN HE TRIED TO CLIMB OUT OF THE TURRET, HE COLLAPSED.

"I TURNED AROUND AND SAW HIM SLUMPED OVER THE TURRET OPENING," SAID WAIST GUNNER SERGT.DURWARD HINDS OF 1307 WATERLOO ST., LOS ANGELES, CALIF., WHO ALSO WAS FINISHING HIS LAST RAID.

"THE RADIO OPERATOR--SERGT.DALE BRANDFAS OF COLUMBUS, NEB.--AND I WENT OVER, LIFTED HIM OUT OF THE TURRET AND WORKED OVER HIM WITH OXYGEN UNTIL WE GOT HIM CONSCIOUS AGAIN."

"THEN," LEFEVRE SAID, TAKING UP THE STORY, "OUR GUNS STARTED GOING OUT. THE TAIL GUNS FROZE UP AND THEN THE TOP TURRET PHONED DOWN TO SAY HE WAS IN TROUBLE.

"HE HAD BEEN WHIRLING AROUND SO FAST SHOOTING AT GERMAN FIGHTERS

30.24-6571

THAT HE TORE THE MIKING BAG ON HIS OXYGEN MASK AND SAID HE COULDN'T SEE.

"I TOLD HIM: 'IF YOU CAN'T SHOOT, KEEP SWINGING THAT TURRET AROUND SO THEY'LL KNOW WE'VE GOT A BOY IN THERE.'

"SO RIGHT THERE AT THE THICKEST OF IT THREE OF OUR MOST IMPORTANT GUNS WERE OUT--TAIL, TOP TURRET AND BALL TURRET--WHEW!

"THEN THE TOP TURRET GUNNER--SERGT.JAE GOOD OF INDIANAPOLIS--STARTED PASSING OUT FROM LACK OF OXYGEN. I COULD HEAR OVER THE INTERPHONE THAT HIS VOICE WAS GETTING WEAKER AND WEAKER."

THE PILOT LEANED BACK, KNOCKED AT THE TOP TURRET GUNNER'S LEGS WITH AN EMERGENCY OXYGEN BOTTLE BUT THE GUNNER COULDN'T REACH IT.

JUST THEN WAIST GUNNER HINDS CAME FORWARD AND TOOK OVER THE TOP TURRET SO GOOD COULD CLIMB DOWN AND GET THE OXYGEN.

TAIL GUNNER SERGT.JOSEPH SERPA OF ONSET, MASS., WHO IS SMALL, MOVED UP TO TAKE OVER THE IMPORTANT BALL TURRET POSITION.

RADIOMAN-GUNNER BRANDFAS MOVED INTO SERPA'S PLACE IN THE TAIL AND BALL TURRET GUNNER SINK, REVIVED IN THE RADIO COMPARTMENT, TOOK OVER THE RADIOMAN'S GUN.

"THE OLD INTERPHONE KEPT US GOING," LEFEVRE SAID. "WE HAD A LOT OF TAIL ATTACKS AND WITH THEM YOU HAVE TO FLY BY THE TAIL GUNNER AND WHEN HE SAYS 'KICK IT' KICK IT--YOU FLY BY SOUND."

JUL 27 1942

WITH HALF OF THE CREW MEMBERS WORKING OTHER MEN'S JOBS, LEFEVRE, WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF THE CO-PILOT, LIEUT.JACK ROLFSON OF 3139 NORTH 59TH ST., OMAHA, NEB., GOT THE BOMBER THROUGH THE FRAY AND HOME SAFELY.

THREE GERMAN FIGHTERS WERE CLAIMED SHOT DOWN BY WAIST GUNNER SERGT. WILLIAM W.FLEMING OF JENKINS, KY.; LIEUT.CHARLES L.HERMAN OF HOUSTON, TEX., THE NAVIGATOR; AND LIEUT.ABBOT SMITH OF WESTCHESTER, PA., THE BOMBARDIER.

HELPING RESCUE SINK WAS HINDS' FOURTH NOTABLE FIRST AID JOB ON RAIDS.

ON TWO PREVIOUS RAIDS, HINDS HELPED A FATALLY INJURED CO-PILOT AND A NAVIGATOR.

ON HIS FOURTH RAID ON LORIENT, ON JAN. 23, 1942, ALTHOUGH WOUNDED HIMSELF AND WITH HIS OXYGEN MASK SHOT OFF AT A HIGH ALTITUDE, HINDS RESUSCITATED A WAIST GUNNER WHO HAD PASSED OUT FROM LACK OF OXYGEN.

"IT LOOKED TO ME LIKE OUR BOMBS WERE RIGHT ON THE TARGET," SAID PHOTOGRAPHER SERGT. MARTIN KAGEY OF 1218 OXFORD ROAD, CLEVELAND HEIGHTS, O., WHO WAS PHOTOGRAPHING BOMB BURSTS. IT WAS HIS 20TH RAID.

"I AM SURE WE KNOCKED OUT ONE WHOLE GROUP OF WAREHOUSES," SAID LIEUT. HOWARD NESS OF GALION, O., CO-PILOT OF THE "THUMPER AGAIN" PILOTED BY LIEUT. JACOB JAMES OF VALLIANT, OKLA.

THE CREW OF THE "THUMPER AGAIN" WHICH CLAIMED FIVE GERMAN PLANES YESTERDAY CLAIMED ONE TODAY--BY TOP TURRET GUNNER SERGT. JAKE GOOD OF INDIANAPOLIS, IND., WHO YESTERDAY WAS KNOCKED OUT OF HIS TURRET AND SLIGHTLY BURNED BY A GERMAN 13 (CORRECT) MILLIMETER BULLET WHICH LATER WAS FOUND IN HIS UNDERWEAR.

JUL 27 1942

GOOD WAS ON HIS 22RAID TODAY.

"THOSE FIGHTERS WEREN'T EAGER AT ALL TODAY," SAID SERGT. JOSEPH KERR, 43-YEAR-OLD WAIST GUNNER OF THE "EIGHT BALL," WHOSE HOME IS 4435 SOUTH THIRTY-EIGHTH STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO.

ONE OF THE OLDEST GUNNERS IN THE AIR SERVICE, KERR IS A FORMER BEER SALESMAN WHO SERVED THREE PREVIOUS ENLISTMENTS IN THE INFANTRY, ARTILLERY AND CAVALRY. HE HAS BEEN ON 17 RAIDS, SHOT DOWN THREE GERMANS AND HAS THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS.

OTHER "EIGHT BALL" CREW MEMBERS ARE THE CO-PILOT, CAPT. GLENN SHUMAKE OF FRANKLIN, GA.; NAVIGATOR CAPT. ROBERT J. YONKMAN OF GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.; AND GUNNER SERGEANTS LLOYD JORDAN OF FREDERIKA, IOWA, PAUL MCGEE OF LOCUST GAP, PA., PAUL C.LEMANN OF NEW BEDFORD, MASS., AND ARNOLD DORAN OF 71 MOZART STREET, JAMAICA PLAIN STATION, BOSTON, MASS.

JUL 27 1943

OTHER CREW MEMBERS OF HOOVER'S SHIP ARE THE PILOT, LIEUT. GEORGE SHOPE OF BINGHAMTON, N.Y.; CO-PILOT LIEUT. SILAS ASHWELL OF SEATTLE, WASH.; NAVIGATOR LIEUT. RICHARD DOYLE OF ENGLEWOOD, N.J.; BOMBARDIER LIEUT. JOHN REEDER OF COLUMBIA, S.C.; AND GUNNER SERGEANTS CHARLES WALSH, FORMERLY IN THE FORD ASSEMBLY PLANT OF KANSAS CITY, MO.; LEON RATLIFF OF FORT COBB, OKLA.; A.J. TAMBE OF ROCHESTER, N.Y.; FRANK D.SMITH OF CYNTHIANA, KY., AND ARTHUR J.BURNS OF DENVER, COLO.

OTHER "THUMPER AGAIN" CREWMEN INCLUDE NAVIGATOR LIEUT. PAUL SCOGGINS OF TIOGA, TEX.; BOMBARDIER LIEUT. WALTER WITT OF SAN FRANCISCO AND GUNNER SERGEANTS ALLEN J.HAMILTON OF PHILADELPHIA, JESSE TRIPP OF POCATELLO, IDAHO, AND FRANK MISIAK OF CHICAGO.

OTHER "CHARLIE HORSE" CREW MEMBERS INCLUDE CO-PILOT LIEUT. DON DECAMP OF DES MOINES, IA.; AND GUNNER SERGEANTS WILLIAM T. HEMBREE OF MAXWELL, TENN., AND CHARLES DOBACK OF NAUGATUCK, CONN.

EVERY PLANE (ADD BRANTHAM'S) RETURNED TO THIS BASE, AND ONLY TWO OR THREE HAD SUFFERED EVEN MINOR DAMAGE FROM THE ENEMY.

PHOTOGRAPHS CONFIRMED THAT THE SUBMARINE REPAIR SHOPS, DOCKS AND OTHER NAVAL INSTALLATIONS WERE HEAVILY DAMAGED BY THE MANY THOUSANDS OF POUNDS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES. THE PICTURES SHOWED THAT NOT A SINGLE BOMB FELL IN THE HARBOR, ALL LANDING FULL ON THE TARGETS.

"WE REALLY HIT IT ON THE BUTTON," SAID INTELLIGENCE OFFICERS.

CREWS SAID THEY ENCOUNTERED FAIR FLAK BUT ONLY ABOUT 25 ENEMY FIGHTERS CHALLENGED THEM, THE MAJORITY HESITANT TO TANGLE CLOSELY WITH THE FORTRESSES.

JUL 27 1943

THE FLIGHT WAS THE LONGEST FORTRESSES HAVE MADE IN ANY WAR THEATER. THE LONGEST PREVIOUS ONES BY BRITAIN-BASED AMERICAN BOMBERS WERE RAIDS ON THE LAPALLICE AND BORDEAUX U-BOAT BASES, EACH A ROUND TRIP OF ABOUT 1,400 MILES.

THE TRONDHEIM GROUP WAS LED BY MAJ. GALE HOUSE OF SIOUX FALLS, S.D., THE SQUADRON LEADER WHO FLEW IN A BOMBER PILOTED BY 1ST. LT. ROY ATHOMPSON OF BOISE CITY, OKLA.

"NOTHING HAPPENED UNTIL WE CROSSED THE NORWEGIAN COAST," SAID HOUSE. "THEN A FEW GERMAN FIGHTERS MET US BUT THEY DIDN'T PRESS HOME THE ATTACK. VISIBILITY WAS GOOD. THE AIR WAS CLEAR AND NICE.

"THE TARGET GOT A HELL OF A PASTING. I SAW SMOKE BILLOWING UP ABOUT 3,000 FEET FROM ALL OVER THE TARGET AREA. OVER THE AREA I SAW ONLY ABOUT 15 FIGHTERS."

SECOND LT. WILLIAM H.GRODY OF SYRACUSE, N.Y., NAVIGATOR, COMMENTED:

"IT WAS JUST A SCRUB TEAM THE GERMANS PUT UP AGAINST US TODAY. THE FEW FIGHTERS WE SAW WERE NOT VERY COURAGEOUS. THEY'D START TO COME IN AT US BUT THEN BREAK OFF BEFORE GETTING CLOSE."

30.24-6573

SGT. ROBERT SHAFER OF WILLIAMSPORT, PA., RADIO OPERATOR-GUNNER, WAS IMPRESSED MOST BY THE "BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY."

ONE OF THE FEW FORTRESSES DAMAGED WAS THE "PICCADILLY COMMANDO," PILOTED BY 1ST. LT. TIM TYLER OF LOWELL, MASS. FLAK SHELL EXPLODED IN THE BOMBER'S NOSE. THE NAVIGATOR SUFFERED A MINOR BURN ON THE RIGHT KNEE AND THE BOMBARDIER, FROM SPOKANE, WASH., WAS KNOCKED DOWN AND STUNNED MOMENTARILY. ANOTHER SHELL DAMAGED ONE ENGINE.

A DAMAGED OIL LINE IMPAIRED ONE ENGINE OF THE "AMERICAN BEAUTY," PILOTED BY 1ST. LT. JOHN W.JOHNSON OF EAST ST.LOUIS, ILL. THE BOMBER STRAGGLED FROM THE FORMATION ON THE HOMEWARD TRIP. THE SHIP WAS ATTACKED BY A FEW ENEMY FIGHTERS BUT SHARPSHOOTING GUNNERS FOUGHT THEM OFF. SGT. DONALD W.CROSSLEY OF WELLSBURG, W.VA., WHO ALREADY WAS CREDITED OFFICIALLY WITH SHOOTING DOWN SEVEN GERMAN PLANES, CLAIMED HIS EIGHTH.

SECOND LT. E.L. MOODY OF SAN BENITO, TEX., BOMBARDIER ON THE FORTRESS "EXTERMINATOR" PILOTED BY 2D. LT. FRED HODGES OF ONEONTA, N.Y., SAID THE FLAK WAS FAIR AND "I SAW ONE BOMB SCORE A DIRECT HIT ON AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERY NEAR THE SUB SHOP."

JUL 27 1943

DESCRIBING THE BOMBING RESULTS OF THE FORMATION THAT ATTACKED U-BOAT INSTALLATIONS AT TRONDHEIM, FIRST LT.JOHN LEE OF TIPTON, PA., SAID: "WE SURE KNOCKED HELL OUT OF THE TARGET. I COULD SEE VERY BLACK SMOKE AND LOTS OF FLAMES FROM THE WORKSHOPS SHOOTING UP TO 3,000 FEET."

"THE BOMBING WAS DARNED GOOD," DECLARED TECH.SGT.TEX J.NEELY OF OSCEOLA, IND., RADIO OPERATOR. "EVERY BOMB HIT I SAW WAS RIGHT IN THE TARGET AREA."

STAFF SGT.FLOYD L.THOMPSON, CHEROKEE INDIAN BALL TURRET GUNNER FROM DURHAM, OKLA., SAID "WE CERTAINLY BLEW THAT PLACE APART. WE MUST HAVE HIT OIL DUMPS. I SAW A TERRIFIC FLASH OF FLAME AND RIGHT AFTER IT HEAVY BLACK SMOKE CAME OUT."

SGT.BILLIE E.CLAPPER OF WINFIELD, KAS., TOP TURRET GUNNER, SAID HE SAW ABOUT 12 OR 15 JERRY FIGHTERS "BUT THEY WEREN'T ABLE TO DO US ANY DAMAGE."

"ONE YELLOW-NOSED SO AND SO CAME IN AT 3 O'CLOCK," SAID SGT.DANIEL C.RANGOLD, GARFIELD, N.J., RIGHT WAIST GUNNER ON "LUFTWAFFE LULLABY." "WHEN HE CAME IN TO ABOUT 500 YARDS I GAVE HIM A BURST AND HE TURNED OVER AND WENT STRAIGHT DOWN. THE OTHER WAIST GUNNER SAW HIM HIT THE WATER. I MUST HAVE HIT THE PILOT."

SGT.ALBERT M.FRIEGAS OF OAKLAND, CALIF., BALL TURRET GUNNER, ON "OUR BABY," SAID "I WAS SITTING THERE MINDING MY OWN BUSINESS WHEN AN FW CAME OUT OF THE CLOUDS 1,000 FEET UNDER THE SHIP. I DON'T THINK HE KNEW WE WERE THERE, SO I JUST KNOCKED HIM OFF BEFORE HE FOUND OUT."

JUL 27 1943

SGT.DEWITT J.WEIR OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX., TOP TURRET GUNNER, KNOCKED DOWN AN ME-109.

"HE CAME IN TO ABOUT 100 YARDS," SAID WEIR. "HE OUGHT TO HAVE KNOWN BETTER. HIS SHIP MADE A NICE WHITE SPLASH IN THE WATER."

TECH.SGT.LEVI H.CARTER OF CARROLLTON, GA., RIGHT WAIST GUNNER ON THE "BRASS RAIL BOYS," TOLD HOW HE GOT A GERMAN: "AT 500 YARDS I GAVE ONE FW A SHORT BURST AND THE PLANE BROKE INTO FLAMES. THEN HE WENT INTO A SPIN. OUR TAIL GUNNER SAW HIM CRASH."

BY LEO BRANHAM

AT A UNITED STATES BOMBER STATION, ENGLAND, (DELAYED)-(AP)-OFFICIALLY CREDITED WITH SHOOTING DOWN ELEVEN ENEMY FIGHTERS AND PROBABLY DESTROYINGANOTHER, THE SHARPSHOOTING CREW OF THE FLYING FORTRESS "ARGONAUT THIRD" HAS AVERAGED BETTER THAN ONE GERMAN PLANE IN NINE RAIDS ON NAZI EUROPE.

WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE PILOT, FIRST LIEUTENANT THEODORE ARGIROPULOS OF REDDING, CALIF., AND THE CO-PILOT, SECOND LIEUTENANT RICHARD G.BOHNEY OF SCHEREVILLE, IND., EVERY MEMBER OF THE CREW HAS SCORED AGAINST THE GERMAN AIR FORCE. THEIR BIGGEST HAUL CAME DURING THE HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL BOMBING ATTACK ON A GERMAN RUBBER PLANT AT HULS, AT THE HEAD OF THE RUHR VALLEY, WHEN FOUR JERRIES BIT THE DUST.

ON THAT MISSION SERGEANT KENNETH L. HULS (CORRECT) OF PERKINS, OKLA., BALL-TURRET GUNNER WHO PREVIOUSLY HAD DESTROYED ONE GERMAN PLANE, SHOT DOWN TWO FOCKE-WULF 190'S. SERGEANT ROSCOE PIERSON OF MEMPHIS, TENN., TAILGUNNER, AND PHILIP HULSE (CORRECT) OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., TOP TURRET GUNNER, GOT ONE EACH.

THE CREW'S SECOND HIGHEST SCORER IS SERGEANT JOSEPH S.CEBULAK OF LANSFORD, PA., RIGHT WAIST GUNNER, WITH ONE FOCKE-WULF 190 AND ONE MESSERSCHMITT 109 TO HIS CREDIT.

JUL 271943

CREDITED WITH ONE EACH ARE SECOND LIEUTENANT CHARLES L.MAZE OF KANSAS CITY, MO., NAVIGATOR; FIRST LIEUTENANT ERNEST L.WATTS OF HATTIESBURG, MISS., BOMBADIER; AND SERGEANT JOHN PMPEDRI OF SUNOL, CALIF., RADIO OPERATOR-GUNNER, AND FRANK TOCK OF CLEVELAND, OHIO, LEFT WAIST GUNNER.

"MY GUNNERS ARE THE BEST IN THE BUSINESS" PROUDLY PROCLAIMED THEIR SKIPPER, A STOCKY, DARK YOUNGSTER OF GREEK PARENTAGE. "THEY DON'T FOOL AROUND. THEY SHOOT TO KILL."

ONLY TWO MEMBERS OF THE ORIGINAL CREW WHICH CAME TOGETHER NINE MONTHS AGO AT A TRAINING CENTER BACK HOME HAVE BEEN LOST TO ARGONAUT THIRD.

ON THE CREW'S FIRST RAID--TO COURTRAI, FRANCE, ON MAY 14--FIRST LIEUTENANT PETER PROVENZALE OF BROOKLYN, NAVIGATOR, WAS WOUNDED AND STILL IS IN A HOSPITAL.

AFTER FIVE MISSIONS ARGIROPOULOS' FIRST CO-PILOT, SECOND LIEUTENANT WILLIAM C.KING OF VERNAL, UTAH, WAS PROMOTED TO PILOT OF ANOTHER BOMBER. ON HIS FOURTH OPERATION IN THE NEW ASSIGNMENT, KING WENT DOWN DURING THE EIGHTH AIRFORCE'S RENEWED ASSAULT ON THE GERMAN U-BOAT BASE AT ST. NAZAIRE ON JUNE 26.

"BILL WAS FLYING ON OUR RIGHT WING THAT DAY AND WE SAW HIM GO DOWN," SORROWFULLY RECALLED HIS FORMER CREW-MATES.

JUL 271943

"TWO OF HIS ENGINES WERE SHOT OUT NEAR THE FRENCH COAST AND AS HIS BOMBER WENT DOWN WE SAW EIGHT PARACHUTES STREAM OUT. THEN THE PLANE CRASHED INTO THE WATER," ARGIROPULOS AND HIS CREW RELATED.

AS ITS NAME SUGGESTS, "ARGONAUT THIRD" IS THE THIRD FLYING FOR

TO WHICH AGRIOPULOS AND HIS CREW HAVE BEEN ASSIGNED. THEY TRADED THE FIRST ARGONAUT TO ANOTHER CREW. LATER IT WAS SHOT DOWN OVER ENEMY TERRITORY.

"ARGONAUT SECOND" WAS BADLY SHOTUP DURING ONE RECENT RAID AND IT HAS NOT BEEN REPAIRED.

THE CREW HAS HAD MANY CLOSE SHAVES ON SIX TRIPS TO GERMANY AND THREE TO FRANCE. THREE TIMES DAMAGED ENGINES AND FUEL EXHAUSTION CAUSED THEM TO FORCE LAND AT AIRFIELDS OTHER THAN THEIR OWN.

...NCE) AA U.S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, TUESDAY, JULY 27-(AP)-FOUR MEMBERS OF THE CREW OF THE FLYING FORTRESS "SHORT STRIDE", WHO BAILED OUT AS THE BADLY-DAMAGED BOMBER STRUGGLED HOME ON A RECENT RAID, ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE LANDED IN THE NORTH SEA ABOUT 15 MILES FROM THE GERMAN COAST, AIR FORCE OFFICIALS AT THIS STATION SAID TODAY.

THE FOUR:

FIRST LIEUT. J.R.KAUFMAN, PITTSBURGH, PA.

BOMBARDIER SERGT. FRANK GARMON, ATLANTA, GA.

TAIL GUNNER SERGT. BUFORD J.MANLEY, RIDGELY, TENN.

WAIST GUNNER AND RADIO OPERATOR W.S.MAULE, WILMINGTON, DEL.

JUL 27 1943

THE BOMBER, WITH ITS RUDDER JAMMED BY ITS OWN LIFERAFT, TWICE DIVED DOWNWARD OUT OF CONTROL AS PILOT FIRST LIEUT. E.H. SHELTON OF PLAINVIEW, TEX., FOUGHT TO BRING HER HOME. IT WAS DURING THE SHIP'S SECOND DIVE THAT THE FOUR MISSING CREWMEN JUMPED OUT.

SHELTON FINALLY LANDED AT HIS HOME BASE AFTER HIS SHIP HAD BEEN GIVEN UP FOR LOST, SO BADLY DAMAGED IT WAS NEARLY TORN IN HALF.

NO WORD HAS BEEN RECEIVED HERE ON THE FATE OF THE MISSING MEN.

30.24-6575

THE GERMAN AIR-SEA RESCUE OUTFIT ANSWERED THE INTERNATIONAL SOS RADIOED ON THEIR BEHALF, AND OFFICIALS HERE BELIEVE THERE IS A GOOD CHANCE THAT THE GERMANS MAY HAVE PICKED UP THE MEN.

AT THE TIME THEY JUMPED THERE WAS A HIGH WIND WHICH WOULD HAVE BLOWN THEM TOWARD THE GERMAN COAST. ALL FOUR WERE WEARING LIFE JACKETS.

ALGIERS, JULY 26-(AP)-MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO WAS REPORTED TODAY TO HAVE ORDERED 22 ITALIAN DIVISIONS HOME FROM YUGOSLAVIA AND GREECE, AND TO HAVE RECALLED THREE OR FOUR MORE FROM FRANCE.

BY THOMAS F.HAWKINS

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 26-(AP)-ITALIANS POURED INTO THE STREETS OF ITALY'S BIGGEST CITIES LAST NIGHT AND ALL DAY TODAY WITH CRIES FOR PEACE AND SHOUTS OF JOY AND SPONTANEOUS PARADES CELEBRATING THE DOWNFALL OF MUSSOLINI, WHO IS REPORTED HELD UNDER A STRONG GUARD AT HIS VILLA NEAR ROME.

JUL 27 1943

THESE DEMONSTRATIONS OCCURRED IN ROME, NAPLES, MILAN, BOLOGNA, TURIN, GENOA, COMO, AND OTHER CITIES. MANY OF THESE POINTS HAD SUFFERED HEAVILY THROUGH ALLIED AIR ATTACKS.

STUNNED GERMAN PROPAGANDISTS OFFERED THEIR BERLIN-INSPIRED OFFICIAL ATTITUDE THAT ITALY WOULD REMAIN IN THE WAR, BUT ALLIED CIRCLES HERE WERE INCREASINGLY CONVINCED THAT IT WAS THE BEGINNING OF THE END FOR ITALY.

ONE ITALIAN SOURCE HERE SAID THE ITALIAN CAPITAL EXPECTED AN

ARMISTICE WITH THE ALLIES WOULD BE ASKED AND POSSIBLY OBTAINED BY THE END OF THE WEEK DESPITE MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO'S VAGUE ASSERTION LAST NIGHT THAT THE "WAR CONTINUES."

ALTHOUGH THE FASCIST PARTY HAD NOT BEEN OFFICIALLY PROCLAIMED DEAD, BADOGLIO AND HIS NEW MINISTERS IMMEDIATELY SET ABOUT CLEANING HOUSE, TAKING OVER PARTY HEADQUARTERS AND THE YOUTH ORGANIZATION, OUSTING THE ITALIAN CHIEF OF POLICE AND INSTALLING A NEW ONE.

NEWSPAPER DISPATCHES FROM ITALY NOW ARE HALTED, AND ROME RADIO PROVIDES THE ONLY DIRECT INFORMATION FROM THE ITALIAN CAPITAL. BUT POLITICAL AND DIPLOMATIC CHANNELS STILL ARE OPEN, AND THIS IS THE SITUATION IN ITALY:

THREE FASCISTS WERE KILLED IN MILAN LAST NIGHT, BUT OTHERWISE THERE HAVE BEEN NO SERIOUS DISORDERS, ALTHOUGH BADOGLIO HAS MOVED SWIFTLY FOR FEAR THERE WILL BE FURTHER BLOODSHED.

THE MILITARY HAS TAKEN OVER ALL POLICE FUNCTIONS. FASCIST ORGANIZATIONS EVERYWHERE ARE DISAPPEARING QUIETLY. NO BLACKSHIRTS VENTURE ON ITALIAN STREETS. MUSSOLINI'S PORTRAITS AND FASCIST SIGNS ARE TORN DOWN.

ONE CROWD ON MILAN'S STREETS THIS MORNING CARRIED RED FLAGS AND SHOUTED "LONG LIVE SOCIALISM."

EVERY ROME RADIO BROADCAST, ASIDE FROM REPEATING GERMANY'S ARMY COMMUNIQUE TODAY, HAS AVOIDED ANY MENTION OF GERMANY OR THE AXIS "PACT OF STEEL" OF WHICH MUSSOLINI SO OFTEN BOASTED.

THE SECOND EDITION OF CORRIERE DELLA SERA IN MILAN CARRIED AN EDITORIAL SAYING:

"MUSSOLINI HAS LEFT. WE ARE FREE."

MUSSOLINI WAS SAID TO BE STRONGLY GUARDED BY REGULAR ITALIAN TROOPS ARMED WITH MACHINEGUNS AT HIS VILLA NEAR ROME.

CARLO SCORZA, PARTY SECRETARY, AND SEVERAL OTHER HIGH FASCISTS ALSO WERE SAID TO BE IN PROTECTIVE CUSTODY.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR HANS GEORG VICTOR VON MACKENSEN CALLED ON BADOGLIO TODAY APPARENTLY TO GAIN ITALIAN MILITARY ASSURANCES.

ONE OF BADOGLIO'S GREATEST WORRIES APPARENTLY IS THE PRESENCE OF GERMAN TROOPS IN ITALY, BECAUSE IT'S SAID THE GERMANS STILL HOPE TO ESTABLISH A LINE IN NORTHERN ITALY SHOULD THE COUNTRY COLLAPSE.

MUSSOLINI'S ECLIPSE HAS SHAKEN ALL AXIS COUNTRIES. MANY GOVERNMENTS ARE HOLDING URGENT CABINET SESSIONS.

ADOLF HITLER WAS SAID TO HAVE KNOWN HOW SHAKY ITALY WAS DAYS BEFORE HE FLEW TO MEET MUSSOLINI AT VERONA IN NORTHERN ITALY A WEEK AGO.

MUSSOLINI ALSO KNEW THE COUNTRY'S POSITION, ITALIANS HERE SAYD. TO SUCH AN EXTENT THAT HE PREPARED AN "ILLNESS ANGLE" TWELVE DAYS AGO WHEN HE SUMMONED A GERMAN SURGEON NAMED SAUERBRUCH TO OBTAIN A DIAGNOSIS ON HIS STOMACH AILMENT. THERE HAS BEEN NO DOUBT THAT MUSSOLINI IS ILL, BUT NOBODY HERE ACCEPTED THAT AS A REASON FOR HIS ECLIPSE.

BEFORE HITLER WENT TO SEE MUSSOLINI TO GET THE BAD NEWS, HE IS SAID TO HAVE CALLED INTO CONFERENCE THE CHIEF MEMBERS OF HIS HIGH COMMAND, INCLUDING FIELD MARSHALS FRITZ ERICH VON MANNSTEIN, GUENTHER VON KLUGE, AND EWALD VON KLEIST, WHO HAVE BEEN FIGHTING ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 26-(AP)-AN UNCONFIRMED REPORT REACHIN BERN FROM ITALY TODAY SAID THAT THE BIRTHPLACE OF FASCISM IN MILAN HAD BEEN BURNED ALONG WITH THE BUILDING OF THE FASCIST NEWSPWPER, IL POPOLO D'ITALIA, THERE.

ITALIAN COMMISSIONERS OF PUBLIC SAFETY AT CHIASSO AND OTHER FRONTIER CITIES WERE REPORTED ORDERED BY MILITARY AUTHORITIES TO REMOVE ALL FASCIST INSIGNIA. TRAVELLERS FROM ITALY ALSO WERE ORDERED TO TAKE OFF PARTY BUTTONS.

A TRAINLOAD OF ITALIAN WORKMEN FROM GERMANY ARRIVED AT CHIASSO AND DEMONSTRATED "JOYFULLY" WHEN THEY HEARD THE NEWS OF MUSSOLINI'S FALL. THEY REMOVED PARTY EMBLEMS.

ARMY REGULAR TROOPS WERE SAID TO HAVE OCCUPIED BARRACKS OF THE FASCIST MILITIA.

ITALIAN TROOPS IN YUGOSLAVIA WERE REPORTED TO BE MOVING RAPIDLY TOWARD THE COAST IN THE HOPE OF RETURNING HOME QUICKLY.

A REPORT TO AN ITALIAN SOURCE HERE SAID IT WAS EXPECTED IN ROME THAT ITALY WOULD ASK FOR AN ARMISTICE BY THE END OF THE WEEK.

MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL BROUGHT A FLURRY OF ACTIVITY AMONG AXIS SATELLITES.

VICHY, HELSINKI, BUDAPEST, BUCHAREST AND SOFIA CABINETS WERE SUMMONED IN SPECIAL SESSIONS.

MOSCOW, JULY 26-(AP)-PRAVDA, THE COMMUNIST PARTY ORGAN, ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT THE AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE "MISSION TO MOSCOW" WOULD BE SHOWN ON THE SCREENS OF MOSCOW CINEMAS BEGINNING TOMORROW. ANOTHER RAID WAS MADE BY ENEMY BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS ON AN AMERICAN BASE IN HUNAN PROVINCE, CAUSING VERY SLIGHT DAMAGE. IN THIS FIGHT SIX JAPANESE BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS WERE DESTROYED, TWO PROBABLY DESTROYED AND SIX DAMAGED.

HAVANA, JULY 26-(AP)-EXPLODING OF BOMB LOADS BY CRASH LANDINGS FOLLOWING THE MID-AIR COLLISION OF TWO TWIN-ENGINED B-25 BOMBERS RESULTED IN THE INSTANT DEATH OF ALL 12 OF THEIR AMERICAN CREWMEN IN THE WORST MILITARY AVIATION DISASTER EVER RECORDED IN THIS AREA, MILITARY AUTHORITIES INVESTIGATING THE ACCIDENT ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE PLANES COLLIDED YESTERDAY JUST OFF A CROWDED HAVANA BEACH. AUTHORITIES PRAISED THE PILOTS FOR REFUSING TO JETTISON THEIR BOMBS, WHICH WOULD HAVE ENDANGERED THOUSANDS OF BATHERS, GOLFERS AND CUBAN SOLDIERS STATIONED AT MILITARY HEADQUARTERS HERE.

THERE WERE FIVE OR SIX HEAVY EXPLOSIONS AS THE BOMBS WENT OFF AFTER THE PLANES CRASH-LANDED. REPORTS THAT TWO CUBANS HAD BEEN DROWNED IN RESCUE ATTEMPTS LACKED CONFIRMATION. SALVAGE OPERATIONS CONTINUED TODAY AND AN ARMY BOARD OF INQUIRY ORDERED THE NAMES OF THE VICTIMS WITHHELD PENDING NOTIFICATION OF THE NEXT OF KIN.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND, JULY 25-(AP)-STRAWS IN THE ALEUTIAN WIND INDICATE THE JAPANESE MAY BE PREPARING TO SELL KISKA AS THEY DID ATTU--AT THE PRICE OF A GARRISON, BUT NOTHING MORE--SHOULD THE UNITED STATES LAUNCH AN ASSAULT.

THIS WEEK'S RAID ON PARAMUSHIRO LENT WEIGHT TO THIS THEORY. RAIDERS FAILED TO FIND ANY GREAT CONCENTRATION OF JAPANESE POWER, EXCEPT A FEW TRANSPORTS--APPARENTLY NOT EVEN ENOUGH AIR POWER TO BEAT OFF OUR LONG RANGE BOMBERS LET ALONE GIVE ANY ASSISTANCE TO THEIR BELEAGUERED ARMY AND NAVY DETACHMENTS AT KISKA.

AIRMEN RETURNING FROM PARAMUSHIRO REPORTED ONLY ENOUGH VESSELS IN THE HARBOR TO SUPPLY THAT SERIES OF BASES STILL UNDER CONSTRUCTION, NOT ENOUGH TO SUPPLY KISKA WITH NEEDED DEFENSIVE POWER. OF COURSE IT IS ALWAYS POSSIBLE THAT JAPANESE SHIPS OR PLANES WILL BE BROUGHT SUDDENLY NORTH FROM THE MAIN PART OF JAPAN AND TRY FOR KISKA WITHOUT STOPPING AT PARAMUSHIRO, BUT THAT MANEUVER WOULD BE IN DESPERATION, LIKE TRYING TO SUPPLY ATTU DIRECTLY FROM SEATTLE WITH ENEMY AIR AND SEA FLEETS IN BETWEEN.

AMERICANS HAVE BEEN TIGHTENING THE STRANGLING RING AROUND KISKA THE PAST SEVERAL WEEKS WITH FREQUENT AIR RAIDS AND HEAVY SHELLING BY NAVAL CRAFT, AND THIS IS TELLING ON THE ENEMY. IF THE JAPANESE HAD ANY INTENTION OF HELPING THE KISKA GARRISONS BEFORE THEY ARE FACED WITH THE ATTU CHOICE--SURRENDER OR DIE-- IT WOULD HAVE BEEN LOGICAL TO HAVE DONE SOMETHING TOWARD REINFORCING THE GARRISON BEFORE THIS. BUT NOTHING HAS BEEN DONE.

ONLY ONE ATTEMPT HAS BEEN MADE TO GET SURFACE VESSELS TO KISKA SINCE THE ATTU BATTLE, AND THAT WAS FLAT FAILURE WHEN AMERICAN AIRPLANES CAUGHT FOUR TRANSPORTS AND SANK AT LEAST TWO OF THEM.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT WES GALLAGHER, BACK IN THIS COUNTRY AFTER COVERING THE TUNISIAN WAR AS A CORRESPONDENT ACCREDITED TO GENERAL EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS, HERE SURVEYS THE POSSIBLE LONG-RANGE EFFECTS OF MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL ON THE MILITARY SITUATION, AND FUTURE ALLIED STRATEGY).

BY WES GALLAGHER JUL 27 1943

(WX)-NEW YORK,JULY 26-(AP)-ITALY'S SURRENDER, APPARENTLY FORESHADOWED BY MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL, WOULD OPEN A "BLOODLESS"

SECOND FRONT OVER NIGHT.

IT WOULD ALTER THE WHOLE MEDITERRANEAN STRATEGY OF THE ALLIES AND SHORTEN THE WAR AGAINST GERMANY BY MONTHS AND PERHAPS YEARS. SOME OF THE FRUITS OF VICTORY WOULD BE:

1. ALLIED AIRFIELDS IN NORTHERN ITALY FROM WHICH AMERICAN AND RAF BOMBERS COULD HAMMER EVERY CORNER OF HITLER'S REICH EVERY HOUR OF THE DAY.

2. CERTAIN COLLAPSE OF NAZI RESISTANCE IN THE BALKANS, DUE TO THE WITHDRAWAL OF THE ITALIAN GARRISONS, AIR POUNDING OF ALREADY FEEBLE AXIS SUPPLY LINES LEADING TO GREECE AND SIMILAR PEACE MOVES BY HITLER'S WAR TORN SATELLITES, HUNGARY, RUMANIA AND BULGARIA.

3. A BRIDGEHEAD IN EUROPE FROM WHICH ALLIED TROOPS MIGHT FORCE THEIR WAY INTO FRANCE AND THE BALKANS.

ANY ALLIED ENTRY INTO ITALY ALSO WOULD HAVE ITS LIABILITIES. THESE WOULD BE:

JUL 27 1943

1. THE NECESSITY OF FINDING SHIPPING AND FOOD TO FEED ITALY'S 40,000,000--A TREMENDOUS STRAIN ON AMERICAN AND BRITISH SEA TRAFFIC.

2. THE NECESSITY OF GARRISONING ITALY WITH A HALF MILLION TROOPS.

PERHAPS THE BIGGEST GAIN FOR AMERICA AND BRITAIN WOULD BE IN THE AIR. IN TRYING TO CARRY OUT AN AIR WAR AGAINST GERMANY FROM ENGLAND, THE ALLIES HAVE BEEN FORCED TO FLY GREAT DISTANCES OVER ENEMY TERRITORY TO REACH THE HEART OF THE REICH AND EVERY FOOT OF THESE DISTANCES HAVE BEEN BITTERLY CONTESTED BY THE LUFTWAFFE. THE GERMANS HAVE HAD THE ADVANTAGE OF KNOWING FROM WHICH DIRECTION THE BLOWS WOULD BE STRUCK AND HAVE CONCENTRATED THEIR FIGHTER DEFENSES IN THE WEST.

IT IS AN AXIOM OF AIR WARFARE THAT AN AIR FORCE'S EFFECTIVENESS DECREASES IN DIRECT RATIO TO THE DISTANCE IT MUST OPERATE FROM ITS BASES.

AIRFIELDS IN NORTHERN ITALY WOULD CUT THE DISTANCE ALLIED BOMBERS WOULD HAVE TO FLY TO REACH PRAGUE, HOME OF THE GREAT SKODA MUNITION WORKS, FROM 750 MILES TO 300; THE DISTANCE TO THE AIRCRAFT FACTORIES AT VIENNA FROM 800 TO LESS THAN 300, AND EVEN BERLIN ITSELF FROM 650 MILES TO ABOUT 400.

MUNICH, CENTER OF NAZISM AND HALF WAY ACROSS EUROPE FROM ENGLAND, IS ABOUT 100 AIR MILES FROM THE ITALIAN BORDER.

BOMBERS FLYING FROM ENGLAND COULD CROSS GERMANY AND LAND IN ITALY RETURNING THE NEXT NIGHT OR DAY AND THE GERMANS WOULD NEVER BE ABLE TO SET THEIR DEFENSES TO MEET THE BLOWS. THE STRAIN ON THE ALREADY BATTERED LUFTWAFFE WOULD BE INCREASED 100 PERCENT.

GREAT AREAS OF HITLER'S CREAKING COMMUNICATION SYSTEM WOULD COME UNDER THE DEADLY FIRE OF MUSTANG FIGHTERS AND BOMBERS AND THE TRAIN-BUSTING FIGHTERS OF THE RAF.

BETTER WEATHER CONDITIONS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN WOULD INCREASE THE HOURS OF OPERATION.

JUL 27 1943

AIR MEN SUCH AS AIR MARSHAL SIR ARTHUR TEDDER AND LIEUTENANT GENERAL CARL "TOOEY" SPAATZ BELIEVE WITH SUCH BASES GERMANY COULD BE CRUSHED WITHOUT ANY GREAT LAND BATTLES.

THE EFFECT OF ITALY'S COLLAPSE WOULD BE TREMENDOUS IN THE BALKANS. HUNGARY HAS BEEN CLOSER TO ITALY THAN TO GERMANY IN THOUGHT, AND HER WAR-WEARY NEIGHBORS, RUMANIA AND BULGARIA, WOULD PROBABLY JOIN HER IN SUING FOR PEACE.

HITLER WOULD ALSO LOSE AN ITALIAN GARRISON FORCE IN YOGOSLAVIA AND GREECE, ESTIMATED AT FROM 12 TO 20 DIVISIONS. CONSIDERABLY SMALLER GERMAN FORCES IN THESE TWO TURBULENT COUNTRIES WOULD BE LEFT WITH THE IMPOSSIBLE TASK OF HOLDING DOWN A VIOLENT POPULACE AND BEATING OFF AN ALLIED ATTACK WHILE SUPPORTED BY THIN SUPPLY LINES WITHIN EASY REACH OF ALLIED PLANES IN ITALY. THE NAZI POSITION WOULD BECOME

30.24- 6581

MILITARILY UNTENABLE UNDER THESE CIRCUMSTANCES, LEAVING THE WAY CLEAR FOR ALLIED TROOPS TO POUR UP FROM THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN ONTO THE FLANK OF HITLER'S FORCES IN RUSSIA.

NORTHERN ITALY WOULD PROVIDE NARROW GAPS--NONE TOO GOOD, BUT OPENINGS NEVERTHELESS--FROM WHICH ALLIED TROOPS MIGHT FORCE THEIR WAY WEST INTO FRANCE OR EAST INTO HUNGARY.

THE NARROW BRENNER PASS INTO AUSTRIA WOULD OFFER SCANT ROOM FOR OPERATIONS AND IT IS DOUBTFUL IF THE ALLIES WOULD TRY TO FORCE IT.

ON THE DEBIT SIDE WOULD BE THE HUGE TASK OF FEEDING ITALY'S HUNGRY POPULATION. OCCUPATION WOULD BRING DUTIES WHICH WOULD PROVE A SEVERE STRAIN ON ALLIED SHIPPING AND SUPPLIES.

PERHAPS ONE OF THE BIGGEST PROBLEMS WOULD BE OF GARRISONING THE COUNTRY. AT LEAST 500,000 TROOPS WOULD BE NEEDED AND THESE WOULD BE IN POSITIONS WHERE THEY WOULD BE OF NO USE IN FIGHTING THE GERMANS ON ANY BATTLE FRONT. TO TAKE THAT MANY TROOPS FROM THE ACTIVE ALLIED FORCES IN THE MEDITERRANEAN WOULD BE A SEVERE HANDICAP TO FUTURE OPERATIONS UNTIL THEY COULD BE REPLACED.

JUL 27 1943

GENERAL DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER AND HIS BRITISH-AMERICAN STAFF NEVER DEPENDED ON AN ITALIAN COLLAPSE FOR VICTORY BUT MADE PLANS TO EXPLOIT IT SHOULD IT COME ABOUT AND IF ITALY SUES FOR PEACE, MILITARY MOVES WILL FOLLOW IN THE BALKANS WITH LIGHTNING RAPIDITY.

SAYING "I DO HOPE THE ITALIANS WILL IMMEDIATELY GO IN FOR PEACE AND HAVE CONFIDENCE IN THE ALLIES," SENORA SARFATTI DECLARED:

"THE SOONER ITALY GETS OUT OF THE WAR--NOT ONLY UNPOPULAR BUT UNNATURAL TO ITS CLOSEST AND HIGHEST TRADITIONS--THE BETTER.

"IF THE ALLIES SHOW LENIENCY AND MODERATION TOWARD ITALY, IT WILL HAVE A PROFOUND EFFECT ON THE MORALE OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE."

NEW YORK, JULY 26-(AP)-THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE IN A COPYRIGHTED STORY SAID TONIGHT THAT AN ARGENTINE BREACH OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH JAPAN IS IMMINENT.

JUL 27 1943

THE NEWSPAPER SAID REPORTS OF A BREACH WERE BASSED ON INFORMATION RECEIVED AT SANTIAGO, CHILE "FROM BUENOS AIRES SOURCES CLOSE TO THE GOVERNMENT OF PRESIDENT PEDRO P.RAMIREZ."

"THE REPORTS SAY RELATIONS HAVE BEEN STRAINED SINCE AN ARROGANT PROTEST BY BARON SHU TOMII, JAPANESE AMBASSADOR AT BUENOS AIRES, AGAINST LANGUAGE USED BY VICE-ADMIRAL SEGUNDO R.STORNI, ARGENTINE FOREIGN MINISTER, IN AN ADDRESS AT THE FOURTH OF JULY LUNCHEON OF THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF THE RIVER PLATE," THE STORY SAID.

"THE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR IS SAID TO HAVE CALLED ON STORNI SEVERAL DAYS LATER TO 'WARN' HIM AGAINST BREAKING OFF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS NATIONS.

"AMBASSADOR TOMII IS QUOTED AS HAVING SAID: 'JAPAN HAS WON ITS WAR. WE NOW ARE CONSOLIDATING OUR POSITIONS, AND NO ONE CAN DEFEAT US. WE SHALL CONTINUE TO ADVANCE OUR POSITIONS AS SUITS OUR PLANS, AND WHEN READY WE SHALL APPEAR ON THE AMERICAN CONTINENT. WHEN THAT TIME COMES ARGENTINA PROBABLY WILL FIND THAT IT IS TO HER ADVANTAGE TO HAVE REMAINED FRIENDLY TOWARD VICTORIOUS JAPAN.'"

IN HIS ADDRESS, STORNI TOLD ASSEMBLED CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES THAT "THE UNITY OF THE AMERICAS WILL NOT BE BROKEN. THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC WILL BE ALONGSIDE THE OTHER AMERICAN NATIONS WHEREVER IT IS CALLED BY ITS ENGAGEMENTS OF HONOR AND ITS DUTIES OF PAN-AMERICAN COOPERATION."

SO AT LONG LAST THE BIG (CAP B) VOICE (CAP V) WITH THE FEET OF CLAY HAS TOPPLED FROM THE PEDESTAL WHICH HE HEWED FOR HIMSELF BACK IN THOSE TRYING DAYS AFTER THE LAST WORLD WAR WHEN THE PEOPLE OF ITALY AND OTHER EUROPEAN COUNTRIES WERE READY TO ACCEPT ANY ATTRACTIVE POLITICAL NOSTRUM IN AN EFFORT TO CURE THEIR ILLS.

JUL 27 1943

MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL IS A SENSATION BUT NOT A SURPRISE. NO MAN WITH A SOUL SO SMALL THAT IT WOULD RATTLE IN A PEANUT-SHELL, AND INFLICTED WITH SUCH SHORT-SIGHTEDNESS AS INSPIRED HIS EVIL MANNER OF ENTRANCE INTO THE PRESENT WAR, COULD HOPE TO SURVIVE.

THE SELF-STYLED DUCE, ALTHOUGH POSSESSING MANY ACCOMPLISHMENTS, NEVER HAS BEEN A BIG MAN. HIS CHIEF ASSETS HAVE BEEN A STRIKING PERSONALITY AND THE GREATEST GIFT OF SHOWMANSHIP SINCE BARNUM. HE IS ONE OF HISTORY'S NOTORIOUS FAKERS.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE DICTATOR'S COLLAPSE ARE SUCH AS TO SUPPORT THE BELIEF THAT ITALY IS PREPARING TO JETTISON FASCISM AND MAKE OVERTURES TO THE ALLIES FOR PEACE. THE FACT THAT THE NEW MILITARY REGIME UNDER BADOGLIO SAYS THE WAR WILL CONTINUE DOESN'T NECESSARILY MEAN THAT SURRENDER ISN'T CONTEMPLATED.

THIS METHOD OF APPROACH IS CALCULATED TO SAVE FACE AND PROVIDE A POSSIBLE BARGAINING POINT. ALSO THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT MAY HAVE TO PROCEED CAUTIOUSLY SO AS TO AVOID A DISPLAY OF IRRESPONSIBLE VINDICTIVENESS BY HITLER.

HOWEVER, WHETHER ITALY SURRENDERS VOLUNTARILY IN THE NEAR FUTURE OR TRIES TO BATTLE ON, HER RACE IS ALL BUT RUN. SHE CAN'T HOLD OUT FOR LONG.

WITH THE UNHAPPY COUNTRY IN A STATE OF NEAR COLLAPSE, THE GREAT QUESTION IS WHAT THE EFFECT WILL BE ON OTHER NATIONS, ESPECIALLY GERMANY. THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT THE MORAL REACTION WILL BE FAR REACHING. IT CANNOT HELP BUT BE A TREMENDOUS SHOCK TO THE MORALE OF THE OTHER AXIS COUNTRIES, AND IT WILL DRAW THE NEUTRALS CLOSER TO THE ALLIES.

JUL 27 1943

FROM A MILITARY STANDPOINT HITLER PRESUMABLY DISCOUNTED THE LOSS OF ITALY SOME TIME AGO. HE HAD SQUEEZED ALL THE JUICE HE COULD OUT OF THAT TURNIP WHE NORTH AFRICA SLIPPED AWAY FROM HIM. HOWEVER, IF AND WHEN THE ALLIES HAVE TAKEN OVER ITALY IT WILL PROVIDE A CONVENIENT BASE FOR POSSIBLE OPERATIONS IN THE BALKANS, AND THAT'S SOMETHING FOR THE FUEHRER TO WORRY ABOUT.

THE REPERCUSSION AMONGST HITLER'S BALKAN SATELLITES IS LIKELY TO BE AD FOR HIM. ALREADY THERE IS DISAFFECTION IN RUMANIA, BULGARIA AND UNGARY, AND THE ITALIAN DEBACLE INEVITABLY MUST STRENGTHEN THE REVOLT

AGAINST THE REICH. IN THE CASE OF BULGARIA IT SHOULD NOT BE OVERLOOKED THAT KING BORIS IS THE SON-IN-LAW OF KING VICTOR EMMANUEL, AND THE BULGARIAN RULER'S VIEWS ARE LIKELY TO BE HEAVILY INFLUENCED BY THE ITALIAN MONARCH, AND THE POSITION OF ITALY.

EQUALLY TO THE POINT IS THE FACT THAT MOST OF THE AXIS TROOPS NOW IN THE BALKANS ARE ITALIAN. SO ARE THOSE IN THE STRATEGIC DODECANESE ISLANDS IN THE AEGEAN SEA. SURRENDER OF ITALY AND WITHDRAWAL OF HER FORCES FROM THESE ZONES CERTAINLY WOULD DRAW THE BUNG IN HITLER'S BALKAN BARREL.

NATURALLY A BREACH IN THE FUEHRER'S BALKAN DEFENSES WOULD HAVE AN IMMEDIATE AND POWERFUL EFFECT ON HIS POSITION IN RUSSIA. AS I HAVE POINTED OUT BEFORE, IT WOULD CREATE A GREAT THREAT TO THE RIGHT WING OF HIS VAST BATTLE-FRONT AGAINST WHICH THE REDS ARE FLINGING THEMSELVES WITH FRESH FURY.

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-- FIGHTING THEIR WAY THROUGH A HEAVY SCREEN OF ESCORT VESSELS, LIGHT BRITISH NAVAL FORCES ATTACKED A GERMAN CONVOY OFF TEXEL, HOLLAND, ON SATURDAY NIGHT AND TORPEDOED AND PROBABLY SANK ONE SHIP, THE ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCED TODAY.

JUL 27 1943

AT THE SAME TIME, THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID, ANOTHER FORMATION OF LIGHT BRITISH WARCRAFT ENGAGED THE ESCORTING VESSELS IN A SHARP CLOSE-RANGE DUEL, AS A RESULT OF WHICH SEVERAL OF THE ENEMY SHIPS WERE DAMAGED

"IN THE FINAL STAGES OF THE ACTION IT WAS NOTICEABLE THAT

30.24-6583

THE ENEMY'S RETURN FIRE WAS CONSIDERABLY REDUCED," THE COMMUNIQUE ADDED.

SO CONFUSED WERE THE GERMAN ESCORT VESSELS THAT AT ONE TIME IN THE FIGHT THEY WERE OBSERVED FIRING ON EACH OTHER, THE ADMIRALTY SAID.

THE GERMAN ESCORT CRAFT WERE SAID TO INCLUDE MINESWEEPERS, TRAWLERS AND "R-BOATS".

LONDON, JULY 26--(AP)--DNB, GERMAN NEWS AGENCY, REPORTED IN A BROADCAST OVER THE BERLIN RADIO RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS THAT ALLIED BOMBERS ATTACKED A GERMAN CONVOY OFF THE NORTHERN COAST OF NORWAY LAST NIGHT.

U.S. FORCES SWEEP AHEAD IN SICILY

Tanks, Infantry Pursue Retreating Italian Units Closely.

JUL 23 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 26—(AP) American infantry and tanks swept along the north coast of Sicily today in close pursuit of the Italian forces falling back with hardly a fight toward the Messina bridgehead.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio's reassumption of command of Italian forces under King Vittorio Emanuele caused no pause in the flight of remnants of his Sicilian garrison toward the two-mile-wide strait separating the island from the mainland.

U. S. Seventh army units captured Termini, 20 miles east of Palermo, it was officially announced, but are already far east of that north coastal port in their dash toward Messina, and have taken 7,000 more prisoners, including six Italian generals and one admiral, in their mopping up of western Sicily.

Seek New Defense Line

Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring threw a resurrected 29th Motorized division into the hopeless struggle in eastern Sicily, apparently hoping that it and two and a half other German divisions already engaged would be able to delay the Allies long enough to establish a new defense line for besieged Europe.

Whether this new line would be in southern Italy despite Mussolini's collapse or be somewhere north in the Po valley, Hitler's headquarters itself may not yet have decided.

The new American advances on the northern flank promised to turn the Messina bridgehead into a second Gap Bon, where the last Axis remnants were trapped in Tunisia.

Attacking in the central sector against another resuscitated German division—the 15th armored division—the Canadians pressed forward indomitably. Their most recent gains, however, have not yet been announced officially. Today's communique said only that they "continued to advance, but their progress was slowed in the face of bitter resistance."

The remainder of the British Eigth army, stymied for 10 days on the southern outskirts of Catania, confined its operations to successful patrols.

German reports indicated that the unfortunate Goering and 15th Armored divisions and 29th Motorized division were fated to fight "to the last cartridge" for the Fatherland with little chance to escape from Sicily. The surviving Italian forces, equivalent to three divisions, were believed to be in no condition physically and mentally to share in this suicidal resistance.

The original 29th division was wiped out at Stalingrad, and the original Goering and 15th divisions were lost in Tunisia.

Supply Port Smashed

Milazzo, northeastern port used by the Germans to bring in fresh troops, was shattered Saturday night by American and R.A.F. bombers. It is about 18 miles west of Messina, whose port installations have been laid in ruins by repeated raids.

Road objectives near Orlando also were attacked, and Malta-based light bombers hammered communication lines, bombing at and near Adrano, Cerami, Troina and Novaro. Bad weather grounded the heavy bombers. Three enemy night fighters were destroyed, and one Allied plane was lost.

The bag of 7,000 more prisoners brought the total taken in so far in the Sicilian campaaign to 70,000, of whom 56,000 have fallen to the Americans. Ten generals and two admirals now have been captured.

Huge numbers of prisoners were expected from further mopping up operations in the western island areas.

The Etna positions in the East, poorly linked by mountainous roads where any Allied thrust would trap the enemy in adjoining sectors, run diagonally across the northeastern corner of Sicily from Catania on the east coast through Misterblanco, Paterno, Biancavilla, Bronte, and Cesaro to San Fratello on the north coast.

Clearly too Exposed

San Stefano, 25 miles west of San Fratello, was formerly expected to be the northern anchorage of the Etna line, but it is clearly too exposed, especially with the American onrush maintaining a blistering pace.

Even the least gloomy of Berlin reports on the Sicilian campaign claimed only that a determined battle would be waged to retain the hold on the Messina bridgehead as long as possible.

Churchill Tells Italy: Yield or Be Destroyed, Roosevelt Agrees, Will Broadcast Tonight; Badoglio Reported Negotiating With Allies

ITALIANS WARNED IN CHURCHILL TALK

L. HAWKINS

Says People Must Choose Terrible War or Peace; Hopes for Surrender.

LONDON, July 27 — (AP) Withholding judgment on the new Italian regime of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Prime Minister Churchill warned the Italian people today that they must yet decide whether the terrible war power of the Allies brings them "relief from war and freedom from servitude" or a holocaust in which their peninsula will be "seared and scarred and blackened" from end to end.

In a restrained speech free of gloating over the "shame and ruin" of Benito Mussolini who often had been a target of his choicest barbs, the Prime Minister told a crowded House of Commons that so far there had been no peace approaches from the new Italian government and he clearly implied that Allied terms are still the unconditional surrender of all Italy.

Not Allied Choice

Apparently knocking down any suggestion that Premier Badoglio may have been the Allies' choice as head of an Italian surrender regime, Mr. Churchill declared "I know little or nothing of the new government. I express no opinion on it."

But he clearly expressed a hope for Italian surrender.

"We do not kn[illegible]hat is going to happen in [illegible]w Mussolini is gone and once the Fascist power is certainly and irretrievably broken we should be foolish to deprive ourselves of any means of coming to general conclusions with the Italian people."

Declaring that the United States and Britian are in close consultation and acting in concert, he said that if the Italian people and government continued in the war on behalf of Germany there would be no choice for the Allies but to make war upon Italy "from every quarter north and south, and from the sea and from the air, and by amphibious descents."

Orders Already Given

Orders to this effect, he added, already had gone out to Allied commanders.

The consequence of such a decision by the Italians, he continued, "will be that in the next few months Italy will be seared and scarred and blackened from one end to the other."

Mr. Churchill said he did not doubt but that the main wish of the Italian people was to be "quit of their German taskmasters" and to revive their democratic and parliamentary institutions.

If they so elected, he said, the Allied armies could bring to them "relief from war, freedom from servitude, and after an interval, a respectable place in a new and rescued Europe."

"The choice is in their hands," he added.

At such a juncture, he advised, the best course was to let the Italians "stew in their own juice for a bit" and to "hot up the fire" until the Allies obtained from Italy the indispensable requirements for carrying on the war against the capital foe, Germany.

These requirements, it was assumed, include air bases.

Hope for Early Surrender

Although Mr. Churchill plainly declared that the war is to go on with Italy, he intimated that the Allies hope Italy will decide to surrender before it is too late.

"We certainly do not seek to reduce Italian life to a condition of chaos and anarchy and find ourselves without any authorities with whom to deal," he continued.

"We must be careful not to get ourselves into the kind of a position into which the Germans have blundered in so many countries, namely of having to hold down and administer in detail, day by day, by a sytem of gauleiters, the entire life of a very large population x x x

"Such a course might well in practice turn this sense of liberation, which it may soon be in our power to bestow upon the Italian people, into a sullen discontent against us and all our works. x x x

"I certainly don't wish, in the case of Italy, to tread a path that might lead to execution squads and concentration camps."

Warns Against Optimism

By way of caution, he warned against too great optimism, remarking that Italy's war power was only about one-tenth that of Germany's and that an immense task awaited the Allies.

But mighty battles on the Russian front this month have inflicted "very deep injuries" on the Germans and the "spirit of revolt rises higher in all subjugated lands," he said.

"The whole outlook of the Nazi party and regime, their whole ideological outlook as it is called, will be disturbed and darkened by events which have happened and are going to happen in Italy, and the overthrow and casting down in shame and ruin of the first of the dictators and aggressor war lords strikes a knell of impending doom in the ears of those that remain."

The first reaction to the speech was reflected in an Evening News editorial which said Mr. Churchill "utters words of common sense. The Italians have overthrown Mussolini. They now have new leaders. But so far these leaders have made no approaches to us. Therefore, says Mr. Churchill, the war against Italy goes on."

The Evening Star commented, "the new dictator cannot be accepted at face value. The war will go on until Italy surrenders. x x x Badoglio is mistaken if he thinks he can wear Darlan's mantle."

ALTERNATIVE IS AVALANCHE OF FIRE AND STEEL

Unconditional Surrender Is the Unchanged Basis, Briton Asserts.

NO VIEW ON NEW REGIME

Commons Hears Prime Minister Demand Enemy Break With Germany or Suffer Fate.

London, July 27 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill told a cheering House of Commons today that "Italy will be seared and scarred and blackened from one end to the other" unless the new government headed by Marshal Pietro Badoglio abandons Germany's war against the United Nations.

Speaking at a supreme moment in his career as Britain's wartime Prime Minister, when his arch foe Benito Mussolini had disappeared fro mthe scene, Mr. Churchill said that orders to exert the "utmost rigor of war" against Italy already had gone out to Allied commanders.

No overtures of peace have been received from the successor to Mussolini, the "first of the dictators" to go, Mr. Churchill said, and therefore no new decisions by the Allies were called for, except to bring "the maximum avalanche of fire and steel upon all targets of military significance throughout the length and breadth of Italy."

JUL 28 1943

No Opinion on Badoglio.

"I know little or nothing of the new government," he said. "I express no opinion upon it."

The Allied course, he said, would be to let the Italians "stew in their own juice for a bit" and to "hot up the fire to the utmost" with the aim of obtaining from the Italian Government full facilities for carrying on the war against Germany. These facilities, it was assumed, included air bases.

But in the interest of the supreme object of destroying the Nazi war machine, he warned against throwing Italy into such political chaos as to leave the Allies no Government to deal with or to intrust with the policing of Italy while the war is pursued against Germany.

"The unconditional surrender of Italy should be brought about wholesale and not piecemeal," he said.

Unity of U. S. and Britain.

Declaring that the British and United States governments were in continuous consultation, he said they were "acting in the closest concert" in the Italian situation.

The British Government, he said, was conducting an "increasingly successful war and policy" and then he offered a "word of caution."

"The whole outlook of the Nazi party and regime, their whole ideological outlook as it is called, will be disturbed and darkened by events which have happened and are going to happen in Italy," he predicted, "and the overthrow and casting down in shame and ruin of the first of the dictators and aggressor war lords strikes a knell of impending doom in the ears of those that remain."

Nevertheless, he added, Italy's war power was about a tenth of that of Germany's and the Allies must not "allow this favorable inclination of our fortunes to blind us to the immensity of the task before us."

Cheered By Crowd.

Mr. Churchill's entry into the House of Commons to discuss the downfall of the man he had castigated as a "pinchback cæsar" and "tattered lackey," was a procession of triumph from the gates of Parliament to his seat.

He was cheered by a waiting crowd at the gates as he jauntily walked to the chamber.

But there was no suggestion of gloating as he discussed the fallen dictator today, and his choice of adjectives was considerably less picturesque than some that he has used in the past in discussing Mussolini.

"I certainly don't wish, in the case of Italy, to tread a path that might lead to execution squads and concentration camps, and above all to have to carry on our shoulders a lot of people who ought to be made to carry themselves," he said.

His speech was beamed to Italy. The British Broadcasting Corporation devoted nearly the whole afternoon to Italian language broadcasts of the speech.

Making his first war statement to the Commons since the invasion of Sicily and the fall of Mussolini, he told the cheering members:

"We may reasonably expect very great changes will take place in Italy. What their form will be and how they will impinge upon the forces of German occupation and control it is too early to forecast."

Declaring that vast Allied forces are standing at the doorway of Italy, the Prime Minister asked:

"What is it these vast forces bring to Italy? They may bring, if the Italian people so decide, relief from war, freedom from servitude and, after an interval, a respectable place in a new and rescued Europe."

Hails Welcome to Americans.

He added: "When I learned of the scenes enacted in the streets of the fine city of Palermo, of the entry of the United States Army and I review the mass of detailed information with which I have been supplied, I cannot doubt that the main wish of the Italian people is to be quit of the German taskmasters.

"The Germans naturally desire that Italy shall become the preliminary battleground and that by Italian sufferings the ravages of war shall be kept as far away as possible and as long as possible from the German fatherland," he asserted.

If Italy continues to fight with the Germans, however, he said, "from north and south, from sea and from air and by amphibious descents we shall endeavor to bring the utmost rigor of war increasingly upon them."

At this point he said that orders have already been given to this effect.

Since no "approaches" have been received from the Italians he said, "no new decision is called for from us except the decision already taken to pour fire and steel upon every military target of significance throughout Italy."

A Warning on Revolution?

Uttering a "word of caution," Mr. Churchill said now that Mussolini is gone "we should be foolish to deprive ourselves of any means of coming to a general conclusion with the Italian nation." It would be a mistake, he added, "to act so as to break down the whole structure and expression of the Italian State."

Apparently implying that the Allies would accept surrender from the Badoglio military government, Mr. Churchill added:

"We certainly do not seek to reduce Italian life to a condition of chaos and anarchy and find ourselves without any authorities with whom to deal."

Emphasizing that an immense task would be involved in occupying Italy, Mr. Churchill said:

"We must be careful not to get into the kind of position into which the Germans have blundered in so many countries—namely to hold down and administer from day to day the entire life of a very large population and thereby become responsible under hard conditions for the whole of their upkeep and well-being.

"It is to the interests of Italy and also to the interests of the Allies that the unconditional surrender of Italy should be brought about wholesale and not piecemeal. Whether this can be accomplished or not I cannot tell."

He disclosed that Britain was keeping Russia informed of the progress of the campaign against Italy as well as acting in the closest concert with the United States.

Churchill said that he "corresponded personally almost every day" with President Roosevelt. This was assumed to mean by telephoning and cabling as well as writing.

Declaring that "German national strength is still massive," he said that the affairs of Italy must be handled with the "supreme object" of destroying the Nazi war machine "constantly in view."

Orders to Keep Up Blasting Already Given to Armies

(Churchill's Text on Page A-4.)

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 27.—Prime Minister Churchill told a cheering House of Commons today that "we shall continue to make war on Italy from every quarter" so long as she continues to side with the Germans.

"Orders to this effect already have been given to all Allied commanders concerned," he said.

Thus far, the Prime Minister added, he has received no peace overtures from Premier Pietro Badoglio's new Italian government.

"The decision of Italy to continue under the German yoke would not seriously affect the general course of the war and still less would it alter its ultimate results," he said.

Fascist Collapse Expected.

"The only consequence will be that in the next few months Italy will be seared and scalded and blackened from one end to the other."

Meanwhile Mr. Churchill expressed no opinion on the new government of Italy.

"The keystone of the Fascist arch has crumbled and without attempting to prophesy it does not seem unlikely that the entire Fascist edifice will fall to the ground in ruin if it has not already done so," the Prime Minister declared.

Making his first war statement to Commons since the invasion of Sicily and the fall of Mussolini, Mr. Churchill said:

"We may reasonably expect very great changes will take place in Italy. What their form will be and how they will impinge upon the forces of German occupation and control is too early to forecast."

Believes Italians Want to Quit.

Declaring that vast Allied forces are standing at the doorway of Italy, the Prime Minister asked:

"What is it these vast forces bring to Italy? They may bring, if the Italian people so decide, relief from war, freedom from servitude and after an interval a respectable place in a new and rescued Europe."

He added: "When I learned of the scenes enacted in the streets of the fine city of Palermo, of the entry of the United States Army and I review the mass of detailed information with which I have been supplied I cannot doubt that the main wish of the Italian people is to be quit of the German taskmasters."

"The Germans naturally desire that Italy shall become the preliminary battleground and that by Italian sufferings the ravages of war shall be kept as far away as possible and as long as possible from the German fatherland," Mr. Churchill asserted.

If Italy continues to fight with the Germans, however, he said, "from north and south, from sea and from air and by amphibious descents we shall endeavor to bring the utmost rigor of war increasingly upon them."

Will Continue Attacks.

Since no "approaches" have been received from the Italians he said, "no new decision is called for from us except the decision already taken to pour fire and steel upon every military target of significance throughout Italy."

Uttering a "word of caution," Mr. Churchill said now that Mussolini is gone "we should be foolish to deprive ourselves of any means of coming to a general conclusion with the Italian nation."

It would be a mistake, he added, "to act so as to break down the whole structure and expression of the Italian state."

Apparently implying that the Allies would accept surrender from the Badoglio military government, Mr. Churchill added:

"We certainly do not seek to reduce Italian life to a condition of chaos and anarchy and find ourselves without any authorities with whom to deal."

Emphasizing that an immense task would be involved in occupying Italy, Mr. Churchill said:

"We must be careful not to get into the kind of position into which the Germans have blundered in so many countries—namely, to hold down and administer from day to day the entire life of a very large population and thereby become responsible under hard conditions for the whole of their upkeep and well-being.

Wholesale Surrender Is Goal.

"It is to the interests of Italy and also to the interests of the Allies that the unconditional surrender of Italy should be brought about wholesale and not piecemeal. Whether this can be accomplished or not I cannot tell."

Meanwhile, he said, "We should allow the Italians, to use a homely phrase, 'to stew in their own juice' for a bit and hot up the fire to the utmost in order to accelerate the process until we obtain from their government or whoever possesses the necessary authority all the indispensable requirements we demand for carrying on against our prime and capital enemy, which is not Italy but Germany."

He said Britain was keeping Russia informed of the progress of the campaign against Italy as well as acting in the closest concert with the United States.

Mr. Churchill said that he "corresponded personally almost every day" with President Roosevelt. This was assumed to mean by telephoning and cabling as well as writing.

U-Boat Warfare Failing.

While Italy has only "about one-tenth of the power of Germany," Mr. Churchill said, "the whole outlook of the Nazi party and regime * * * will be disturbed and broken by events which happened and are going to happen in Italy."

"German hopes of U-boat warfare turning the tide of the war are sinking as fast as the U-boats themselves," he said.

The fall of the "first of the dictators," he said, "strikes the knell of impending doom in the ears of those who remain."

This, he added, should not blind the Allies to the major work yet to be done.

Declaring that "German national strength is still massive," he said that the affairs of Italy must be handled with the "supreme object" of destroying the Nazi war machine "constantly in view."

Churchill's Speech Bidding Italy Surrender

LONDON, July 27 (AP).—Following is the text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's address in the House of Commons today:

The House will have heard with satisfaction of the downfall of one of the principal criminals of this desolating war. The end of Mussolini's long and severe reign over the Italian people undoubtedly marks the close of an epoch in the life of Italy. The keystone of the Fascist arch has crumbled, and without attempting to prophesy, it does not seem unlikely that the entire Fascist edifice will fall to the ground in ruins if it has not already so fallen.

The totalitarian system of a single party armed with secret police, engrossing to itself practically all offices, even the humblest in the government, and with the magistrates and the courts under control of the executive, with its whole network of domestic spies and neighborly informants—such a system when applied over a long period of time, leaves the broad masses without any influence upon their country's destinies and without any independent figures apart from the official classes.

This, I think, is a defense for the people of Italy—one defense; although there can be no really valid defense for any people which allows its freedom and inherent rights to pass out of its own hands.

Now the external shock of war has broken the spell which in Italy held all those masses in a fog for so long—in fact for more than twenty years—and held them for all this period in physical, and even more, in moral subjection. We may therefore reasonably expect that very great changes will take place in Italy. What their form will be or how they will impinge upon the forces of German occupation and control it is too early to forecast.

The guilt and folly of Mussolini have cost the Italian people dear. It looked so safe and easy in May, 1940, to stab falling France in the back and advance to appropriate the Mediterranean interests and possessions of what Mussolini no doubt sincerely believed was a decadent and ruined Britain. It looked so safe and easy to fall upon the much smaller state of Greece. But, however, there have been undeceptions. Events have taken a different course.

Must Throw Off German Yoke

By many hazardous turns of fortune and by long marches of destiny, British and United States armies having occupied the Italian African empire, the north of Africa, and the great bulk of Sicily, now stand at the portals of the Italian mainland, armed with the powers of the sea and of the air, and very large land and amphibious forces equipped with every modern weapon and device. What is it, Mr. Speaker that these masterful forces bring to Italy? Sir, they bring, if the Italian people so decide, relief from war, freedom from servitude, and after an interval, a respectable place in a new and rescued Europe.

When I learned of the scenes that were enacted in the streets of the fine city of Palermo on the entry of the United States armies, and when I reviewed mass of detailed information with which I had been furnished, I cannot doubt that the main wish of the Italian people is to be quit of their German task masters, to be spared a further and perfectly futile ordeal of destruction, and to revive their former democratic and parliament institutions.

These they can have. The choice is in their hands. And what is the alternative? The Germans naturally desire that Italy shall become a battleground, a preliminary battleground, and that by Italian sufferings the ravages of war shall be kept as far away as possible, for as long as possible, from the German fatherland.

If Italian government and people choose that the Germans are to have their way, no choice is left open to us. We shall continue to make war upon Italy from every quarter north and south, and from the sea and from the air, and by amphibious descents we shall also endeavour to bring the utmost rigor of war increasingly upon them.

Orders to this effect have been given to all Allied commanders concerned. A decision by the Italian government and people to continue under the German yoke will not affect seriously the general course of the war; still less will it alter its ultimate results. The only consequence will be that in the next few months Italy will be seared and scarred and blackened from one end to the other.

More Upheavals Foreseen

I know little or nothing of the new government. I express no opinion upon it, but it is obvious that so far as their own people are concerned they have a very important decision to make. Meanwhile, I am anxious that the various processes by which this decision is reached shall be allowed to run their course under no other pressure than that of relentless war. This operation may well take some time.

There may be several stages of transition. Past experience shows that in cases of a great change of heart and character in the government of a nation, very often one stage is rapidly succeeded by another, I cannot tell.

So far we have had no approaches from the Italian government and therefore no new decision is called for from us except those decisions connected with bringing the maximum avalanche of fire and steel upon all targets of military significance throughout the length and breadth of Italy.

However, I must utter a word of caution. We do not know what is going to happen in Italy. Now Mussolini has gone and once the Fascist power is certainly and irretrievably broken we should be foolish to deprive ourselves of any means of coming to general conclusions with the Italian nation.

It would be a grave mistake when Italian affairs are in this flexible, fluid and formative condition for the rescuing powers of Britain and the United States so to act as to break down the whole structure and expression of the Italian state. We certainly do not seek to reduce Italian life to a condition of chaos and anarchy and find ourselves without any authorities with whom to deal.

By so doing we should lay upon our armies and upon our war effort the burden of occupying mile by mile the entire country, and of forcing an individual surrender of every army or coherent force in every district into which our troops might enter. An immense task of garrisoning, policing, and administering will be thrown upon us, involving a grievous expenditure of power and still more of time.

We must be careful not to get ourselves into the kind of a position into which Germans have blundered in so many countries, namely, of having to hold down and administer in detail, day by day, by a system of gauleiters, the entire life of a very large population and thereby becoming responsible, under the hard conditions of this present period, for the whole of their upkeep and well-being.

Such a course might well in practice turn this sense of liberation, which it may soon be in our power to bestow upon the Italian people, into a sullen discontent against us and all our works. The rescuers might soon indeed be regarded as tyrants, and might even be hated by the Italian people as much as, or almost as much as, their German ally.

Italians to 'Stew in Own Juice'

I certainly don't wish, in the case of Italy, to tread a path that might lead to execution squads and concentration camps, and above all to have to carry on our shoulders a lot of people who ought to be made to carry themselves. Therefore my advice to the House of Commons and to the British nation and to the commonwealth and the empire and to our allies at this juncture may be simply stated. We should let the Italians, to use a homely phrase, "stew in their own juice" for a bit and hot up the fire to accelerate the process until we obtain from their government, or whoever possesses the necessary authority, all the indispensable requirements we demand for carrying on the war against our prime and capital foe, which is not Italy but Germany.

It is in the interests of Italy and also in the interests of the Allies that the unconditional surrender of Italy should be brought about wholesale and not piecemeal. Whether this can be accomplished or not I cannot tell, but the people in this country and elsewhere who cannot have the necessary knowledge of all the forces at work, or assign true values to the various facts and factors should, I think, at this juncture be restrained in speech and writing in case they may add to the tasks and toils and losses of our armies, and prolong and darken the miseries which have descended upon the world.

In all these affairs we are, of course, acting in the closest concert with the United States, our equal partner and good gallant comrade in this new tremendous Mediterranean enterprise. Our Russian friends are also being kept regularly informed. The Allied commanders in the Mediterranean theater are in closest accord and the British and United States armies under their leadership are working as if they were the army of one single nation. Our two governments are in continuous consultation and association through the Foreign Office and I correspond personally almost daily, under the authority of the war cabinet, with President Roosevelt.

I conceive that His Majesty's government have the right to ask for the solid and sustained confidence of Parliament. After years of extreme difficulty and danger, we are conducting an increasingly successful war policy, and we feel sure that the House would not wish us to be deprived of the fullest freedom to act in the name and interests of the nation as we think fit at this particular and swiftly moving juncture.

It is extremely important that full latitude should continue to be accorded to the government by the House and that no diminution of the responsibility of the executive should be attempted, and that no untimely or premature explanation should be sought in respect of the business of such consequence and complication.

Italy One-Tenth German Power

Questions have been addressed to the leader of the House about a debate. Sir, it may be possible for me to make some further statement, not only on the Mediterranean position, but upon the war as a whole before the House rises. I should be quite willing if this were possible, but I cannot at present promise to do so because I do not know whether any point will be reached in the next week from which a general survey can usefully be made.

Very complete, vivid and excellent accounts are appearing in newspapers of all operations. An immense army of correspondents move with the troops and carry their cameras into the heat of fighting. An immense volume of material of the deepest interest and of a very high level of quality and accuracy fills the public press from hour to hour, and there is at present very little which I could add to this except, of course, to set matters in proportion as I and my colleagues view them and to place the proper emphasis, or what we conceive with our fallible judgment to be the proper emphasis, upon the various facts and factors.

I would venture to offer another word of caution, and I do not think it is inappropriate to do so, in a period when not unnaturally our spirits run high. What is Italy as a war unit? Italy is, or rather it was, perhaps about one-tenth of the power of Germany. The German tyranny is being violently assaulted and beset on every side.

The mighty battles on the Russian front, far exceeding in scale any of the operations in which we and the United States have hitherto been engaged on land, have in the month of July inflicted very deep injuries upon the German Army. The systematic shattering of German cities continues remorselessly and with ever growing weight.

The spirit of revolt rises higher in all subjugated lands. German rule is maintained from North Cape in Norway to the Island of Crete only by hideous and ruthless cruelty, reprisals and massacres. German hopes of U-boat warfare turning the tide of war are sinking as fast as the U-boat themselves.

The whole outlook of the Nazi party and regime, their whole ideological outlook as it is called, will be disturbed and darkened by events which have happened and are going to happen in Italy, and overthrow and casting down in shame and ruin of the first of dictators and aggressor war lords strikes a knell of impending doom in the ears of those that remain.

Nevertheless, let us not allow this favorable inclination of our fortunes to blind us to the immensity of the task before us or of exertions still to be made and privations and tribulations still to be endured and overcome.

German national strength is still massive. German armies, though seriously mauled by the three Russian campaigns, are still intact and quite unbroken. Hitler has under his orders over 300 German divisions, excluding satellites. Three-quarters of them are mobile and most of them continue to be well equipped. We are fighting some of these divisions in Sicily at this moment and, as we see, they offer a stubborn resistance in positions well adapted to defense. The authority of the central government of Germany grips and pervades every form of German life.

The resources of a dozen lands are in their hands for exploitation. Harvest prospects are reported to be fairly good. This Nazi war machine is the hateful incubus upon Europe which we are resolved utterly to destroy and the affairs of Italy must be handled with the supreme object constantly in view.

Both our strategy and our policy, I venture to claim, have been vindicated by events and I look forward to offering to Parliament, as the months unfold, further convincing proofs of this assertion. But we cannot afford to make any large mistake which we can, by careful forethought, avoid, nor can we afford to prolong by any avoidable mismanagement the somber journey in which we shall persevere to end.

Speech Broadcast to Italy

Churchill Pays High Tribute to War News Reports

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 27. — Prime Minister Churchill paid a major tribute today to the quality and accuracy of the war coverage by war correspondents as he addressed Commons on the downfall of Benito Mussolini.

"Very complete, vivid and excellent accounts are appearing in newspapers of all operations," he said.

"An immense army of correspondents move with the troops and carry their cameras into the heat of fighting. An immense volume of material of the deepest interest and of a very high level of quality and accuracy fills the public press from hour to hour."

LONDON, July 27.—Italian Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio was reported discussing armistice conditions with Allied representatives in a Bern dispatch tonight as the Rome radio told the world that the Italian people had rejected Fascism.

Without confirmation from Allied quarters or from Rome, the Swiss telegraphic agency said information from Rome stated that Benito Mussolini's successor was talking terms and that it was "generally believed" the contact was made through the Vatican.

This report was circulated after a day of rumor to the same effect.

The Allied demand for unconditional surrender was placed anew before the Italian people earlier in utterances by both President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Even as the crisis appeared to heighten, Adolf Hitler was reported to have been forced against his wishes into a combined German-Italian defense of all Italy as the price for her continued participation in his war.

Turkish Leader Consulted

Italy's new foreign minister, Rafaele Guariglia, conferred aboard an Italian embassay launch at sea with Turkish Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioglu, with whom he has been associated as ambassador to Turkey, an Ankara dispatch said, reporting the meeting might have far-reaching consequences.

In announcing the Italian disavowal of Fascism, the Rome radio said Premier Badoglio's "purely professional cabinet can only help in the present transition period" and that it did not lean to any specific political idea.

The Italians acted after finding that "the curtailing of liberties" and the errors of Fascist leaders "were compromising the war effort," the radio said.

President Roosevelt reaffirmed in effect at a White House press conference the Allied policy of exacting unconditional surrender. Secretary Knox said developments in Italy indicated some attempts to take that country out of the war in the reasonably near future.

Utmost Power Unleashed

Prime Minister Churchill declared in an address before the House of Commons that Allied commanders had been ordered to exert the "utmost rigor of war" against Italy until she yielded.

Without confirmation, rumors of negotiations for an Italian-Allied armistice circulated in neutral capitals and in London.

Swiss newspaper dispatches indicated that Italian factions long subordinated to the Fascism yoked upon Italy by Benito Mussolini—and these include liberals who seek an immediate end to the war—were seeking a voice in the development of a new national policy.

Count Giacoma Suardo, Fascist president of the Italian Senate and an aide of Mussolini, resigned today and King Vittorio Emanuele appointed Don Paolo de Velle to succeed him, the Rome radio announced. The King received the new cabinet in audience.

It was said, however, in another dispatch that no official decision had been made "regarding the future of the Fascist party."

Despite Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio's decree barring public assemblies, a Bern dispatch said representatives of reconstituted Italian parties met at Turin last night and drafted a resolution urging him to recognize "the necessity for permission of full expression of public opinion."

(A Rome broadcast recorded in New York by N.B.C. said Premier Badoglio's rule "represents a necessary transition from the old government to the new government.")

Mussolini Opposed Plan

Statements by travelers who arrived at Madrid from Rome today aboard an Italian plane — from which Fascist markings significantly had been stripped — presented this picture of the week-end shakeup and its causes:

(1) Hitler proposed abandonment of central and southern Italy, in view of the Allied threat from Sicily, and establishment of a strong line behind the Po river. Mussolini was disgusted, but sought to do his bidding. He was overruled by the Fascist Grand council 19 to 6 and handed the King his resignation Sunday morning.

(2) Marshal Badoglio, taking over, told the Germans that "all Italy must be defended or Italy will leave the war." Hitler, confronted by that alternative, agreed to help in the defense of the whole peninsula.

Duce Near Rome

(3) Mussolini was said to be at a villa between Rome and Ostia, in the Tiber river valley 12 miles southwest of the capital. Madrid dispatches did not bring out whether he was under guard. Earlier Stockholm and Bern reports said he had been arrested. The Fascist party took steps before the developments were announced designed in part to protect the leaders and in part to hold those considered responsible for Italy's plight.

Even while Prime Minister Churchill was advising Italy to get out of the war or "be seared and scarred and blackened from one end to the other," and denying receipt of overtures for peace, reports that Italy's withdrawal was imminent flooded London.

In Rome, Premier Badoglio was reported to have confered at length with Nazi Ambassador Viktor von Mackensen and other German representatives.

Radio press broadcasts from both Berlin and Tokyo continued to emphasize the Marshal's statement that the war goes on and interpreted Mussolini's resignation as a domestic matter.

A Tokyo dispatch said Italian Ambassador Mario Indelli had assured Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu in an hour-long interview that Italy's war policy based on the Axis pact was not affected.

Saying it quoted responsible circles in Italy, a DNB dispatch broadcast from Berlin declared the shift in Rome was a "constitutional" revision and that "Italy continues on the road which she has taken."

Demonstrations Minimized

"Demonstrations during Sunday night against the insignia and seats of the Fascist party are described as unimportant riots which already have been completely suppressed," DNB said. "In all Italian cities, complete order and calm prevail."

A private message distributed by DNB to newspaper editors explained the position as this: "Considerations of political views which hitherto had played an important role in the German-Italian relationship are now given less importance than the more decisive question of the community of faith of Germany and Italy in the fight for European freedom."

Press Lauds King

Shuffling 21 years of Fascism into the background, Italian newspapers and radio began to eulogize the King and the new military government. A Spanish language broadcast from Rome said Fascism "was incapable of giving the necessary internal order and discipline required to continue the fight," but Italians "now are more firmly united than ever before."

The new editor of Il Popolo di Roma, Corrado Alvaro, wrote that "after the internal quarrel has come to an end without a civil war, Italians may look tomorrow and dangers coldly in the eye." Mr. Alvaro is a 48-year-old former theater critic.

RIOT IN MILAN EXCEPTION

JUL 28 1943

London, July 27 (A. P.).—Rumors of Italian peace moves resulting from the collapse of the Fascist Government of Benito Mussolini were current in London today but were unconfirmed. Nor was there any indication that British officials were, ready to consider any terms other than complete surrender.

A Stockholm dispatch by Reuters quoted the Svenska Dagbladet cofrespondent at Berne as saying that preliminary negotiations for an armistice had been started at the Vatican, but the report could not be verified.

With the exception of his proclamation of martial law to preserve peace in troubled Italy, the moves of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, new Italian Premier, have been cloaked in secrecy and there have been no official intimations that any overtures have been made by either side.

The state of Marshal Badoglio's relations with Berlin remained unclear. Reuters, again quoting the Berne correspondent, said that the Italian chief had conferred with Hans Georg Viktor von Mackensen, German Ambassador to Rome, and that both Italian and German communiques on the conference were expected shortly.

Italian People Stirred.

Whatever moves were on the fire concerning Italy's future, there seemed no question that the people of Italy were profoundly stirred by the change. The Rome radio in an English broadcast recorded by the British Ministry of Information said that crowds had paraded Rome streets bearing banners reading "Long live free Italy!" and cheering King Vittorio Emanuele and Marshal Badoglio.

Leaders of Allied Governments in Exile in London hailed Signor Mussolini's resignation as the first definite crack in the Axis war machine. President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia predicted that the new Italian Government would move for peace.

Milan Grol, Yugoslav Foreign Minister, said: "With Mussolini's departure continuation of the war by the Italians becomes senseless and even impossible because it will have no supporters, even among the Black Shirts."

Trygve Lie, Norwegian Foreign Minister, said: "Of all the portents of coming defeat of Nazism and Fascism, this is the greatest. Now the question is, who is next?"

A Rome radio report heard in London by the Ministry of Information said that thousands of Italians were parading in the streets of Rome, adding that "when the King appeared later in the day at the window of the Quirinal, a tremendous ovation greeted him."

The Morocco radio reported today that all German, French and Arabic broadcasts from Italy had been suppressed. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

BERNE, Switzerland, July 27.—The Swiss Telegraphic Agency reported tonight, in a dispatch dated "at the Italian frontier" that the new Italian regime was "discussing the conditions of an armistice" with the Allies at Rome, but confirmation from either the Rome radio or Allied sources was lacking.

The Swiss agency said that it was "generally believed" that Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio and his aides had established contact with the Allies at Rome through the British and American representatives at the Vatican.

The Swiss agency report was the latest in a growing series of rumors and reports filtering across the Italian border in the last twenty-four hours, and it lacked confirmation from any official sources.

Turkey Sees Mediation Move

[A dispatch from Istanbul, Turkey, said Italy's new Foreign Minister, Raffaele Guariglia, conferred Tuesday with Turkish Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioglu "in what was believed to be an attempt to lay the basis for Turkish mediation between the Allies and Italy." The two men conferred on an Italian Embassy launch in the Sea of Marmora. Guariglia, who was Italian Ambassador to Turkey before his new appointment, was expected to return to Italy at once, the dispatch said.]

[The Stockholm newspaper "Svenska Dagbladet" said Guariglia's appointment "gave ground for rumors regarding preliminary armistice negotiations in Ankara." It added: "Unconfirmed reports say Badoglio's son is in contact with the Allies in Algiers."]

Taylor Aide At Vatican

The American representative at the Vatican at present is Harold Tittman. Although he is a member of the United States Diplomatic Corps, he is not accredited in the role of diplomat, since this country and Vatican City do not have formal diplomatic relations. He is secretary to Myron Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican. Taylor is now in this country.

Great Britain has diplomatic relations with Vatican City, and her Minister is Francis D'Arcy Osborne.

"Soon every Italian will be called on for the dangerous honor of deciding if he wants to be a free citizen of free Italy."

Move for Liberal Rule Reported

BERN, Switzerland, July 27.—(AP) Ending a two-day celebration of the fall of Mussolini, the Italian people grew calmer tonight and a movement was reported taking shape aimed at assuring a liberal regime in the future, according to advices reaching here from Italian cities.

Premier Badoglio's ban against public gatherings was ignored in several cities, notably Turin, where representatives of the reconstituted Italian polical parties were reported to have met last night and drafted a resolution urging Premier Badoglio to grant the "necessary permission" for full expression of public opinion in development of the new national policy.

These representatives, the reports reaching Bern said, expressed the opinion that the present Italian regime was a temporary one, which an Italian diplomat stated was also Premier Badoglio's belief.

One was quoted as saying the Italian people "would always be grateful" to Premier Badoglio for taking the initial step to comply with the wishes of the people, who greeted the week-end's developments "not only with joy, but with a recognition of the seriousness of this hour."

Communist action party groups convened at Milan to discuss their future, then decided to postpone any action until the premier had answered the Turin resolution.

The Italian reports said there were signs posted in Milan declaring that if Premier Badoglio did not arrive at some quick results the situation would be critical. They also told about posters and leaflets scattered through Milan urging this four-point program:

1. An honorable peace with the United Nations.
2. Departure of the Germans from Italy, and return of the Italian troops from abroad.
3. The arrest of Fascist leaders responsible for Italy's suffering.
4. Restoration, when the present period of emergency had passed, of democratic liberties with true Italian representation.

74 Prisoners Released

Italian newspapers reaching Switzerland said 74 anti-Fascist political prisoners had been released during rioting around the jail in Milan by anti-Fascists.

In outbreaks Monday nine Fascists, among them a militiaman, were shot or stabbed to death and 40 seriously wounded while more than 100 were injured to a lesser degree in Milan.

Travelers from Italy said the Corriere della Sera's morning edition had been seized three hours after its appearance and supressed "because it contained an article considered inopportune."

Sporadic Fighting in Milan

Fascists equipped with rifles, machine-guns, and bombs barricaded themselves in building on Plinio street in Milan tonight and were continuing "sporadic and hopeless" resistance, the travelers told Swiss correspondents.

The Italian army has completely taken over in Milan and is in possession of almost all Fascist headquarters throughout the city although some members had entrenched themselves and exchanged shots with the soldiers.

Similar shortlived insurrections occurred in Turin, Bologna, Genoa and other cities in northern Italy.

Fascist Quarters Taken Over.

Berne, July 27 (A. P.).—While Premier Badoglio and his newly formed Cabinet set about the task of maintaining order and sweeping Italy of the outward symbols of Fascism, reports from Rome indicated a popular belief there that one of the first acts of the new Government would be a request for an armistice.

While Premier Badoglio has not yet officially proclaimed the Fascist party to be dead, he and his Ministers are cleaning house throughout the nation. The Fascist party headquarters have been taken over, Signor Mussolini and other high Fascists are reported under protective custody, and the national police force has been reorganized under a military administration, according to political and diplomatic reports from the Italian capital.

Disorders have been surprisingly few, according to these informants. Premier Badoglio moved swiftly to avoid bloodshed. So far only one serious outbreak has been reported—a riot in Milan on Sunday night that resulted in the death of three Fascist party members.

Nazi Sees Italy Still in Axis

Declares Vital Interests Preclude Peace—Supposes Ambassador Saw Badoglio.

London, July 27 (A. P.).—German spokesmen became bolder today in commenting on the change of Governments in Italy as Prime Minister Churchill made it clear that no proposals for armistice have yet been received from Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the new chief in Rome, and that the Allied purpose is still the unconditional surrender of all Italy.

"As long as a patriot is at the head of Italy he naturally must adopt the principle that the vital interests of Italy could be brought to bear only against her enemies, England, the United States and Bolshevism," the German radio said in quoting what it said were the remarks of a Foreign Office spokesman.

The spokesman was quoted as saying that the German Ambassador in Rome, Hans Georg Viktor von Mackensen, undoubtedly already had talked with Marshal Badoglio but that no information could be given concerning the meeting.

The hitherto cautious manner in which the Reich's radio and press have dealt with what they call the "situation in Italy" has made it clear that the Nazis either are uncertain what to expect next or that they are just undecided how best to try and keep the home front and their satellites in line.

The Berlin radio, as recorded by the Associated Press here, limited its morning broadcast to announcing the inauguration of Premier Badoglio's martial law measures and repeating the names of the members of the new Italian Cabinet.

An article in the Berlin Boersen - Zeitung, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said:

"Those are sadly advised who think that political events in Italy will cause the seismographs in Berlin to vibrate. Germany is resolved to stand all ordeals and to conclude them by victory under all circumstances. This war will not be decided by words and political machinations and unbidden prophets, but by German deeds on the battlefield."

'Waiting to Let Things Mature.'

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung wrote that Germany, "conscious of her strength, is waiting to let things mature," and added that the "further course of developments is awaited with the determination to bring the conflict with the enemies of Europe to a victorious end under all circumstances."

The newspaper emphasized a phrase contained in Premier Badoglio's original order on taking control of the Italian Government, that the "war will continue."

"Italy has entered a new phase of her development," said the Voelkischer Boebachter.

Italians arriving at the Swiss frontier said Mussolini had reached Spain by airplane.]

All the travelers emphasized that the Italian people were overwhelmed with joy over Mussolini's resignation and that the royal family and Marshal Pietro Badoglio were riding a wave of popularity.

The new Italian government demands that either all of Italy be defended, or the nation will withdraw from the war, the travelers said.

Hitler is pictured as forced to agree or lose his ally. By this account the irony is that Mussolini, who came increasingly under Hitler's thumb, fell in trying to obey his partner, and that the crucial resistance to German wishes came from Il Duce's subordinates, not himself.

This is the story of the crisis told by the air travelers, all of them Italians:

The new government of Marshal Badoglio is supported on its stand by King Victor Emmanuel III and the army and both are enoying great popular prestige as Mussolini's successors.

Mussolini, when he returned from his meeting with Hitler at Verona on Monday of last week, his apparent acquiescence in the German scheme.

Only six council members sided with Mussolini's contention that the one course possible was to agree with Hitler, and nineteen voted against him. This vote came early in the session, and Mussolini declared that in view of the strong opposition he thought he must resign.

There was a long discussion on what would happen to the Facist party if he did, but finally it was agreed that Italy counted more than the Facist party. Going to the palace early Sunday, Il Duce gave the King his resignation. The King had been kept informed of events.

Mussolini went to his villa. Carlo Scorza, Fascist party secretary, was put under preventive arrest, and others among Mussolini's closest associates were confined to their homes. The party had taken steps to protect some leaders and to hold others considered responsible for the low national fortunes.

No public announcement was made until Sunday night, after Badoglio had told the Germans that "all Italy must be defended, or Italy must leave the war."

Great public demonstrations immediately broke out, with cheers for Badoglio and for the royal family, and jeers for Mussolini and Fascism. The Italians had no doubt that this meant the end of Fascism. Fascist militia garrisons at Rome prepared to resist but quickly surrendered to Badoglio's orders.

Badoglio let the demonstrations go on, but put the damper on them Monday by his proclamation of martial law.

On Monday German and Japanese residents of Rome flooded in their requests for passports and authorizations to leave Italy.

The travelers arrived here on the day's first Ala Littoria plane from Rome, a plane which had been stripped of all Fascist insignia and was marked simply with Italy's national colors, red, white and green. An hour after it arrived, the Fascist name Ala Littoria had given way to "Ala Roma" at the line's offices in Madrid.

Why Mussolini Fell: He Sought To Sacrifice Italy at Hitler's Bid

By The Associated Press

MADRID, July 27.—Benito Mussolini fell from power because he tried to do Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's bidding that he abandon two-thirds of Italy and establish an Axis defense line in the north, the first travelers arriving here from Rome since his downfall declared today.

Mussolini, the travelers said, is now at a villa on the road between Rome and Ostia, to the southwest of the Italian capital.

[The Algiers radio reported Tuesday, without confirmation from any source, that Mussolini was in Switzerland. At London, the Exchange Telegrapn news agency reported, according to The United Press, that the Bern radio said

...y called in his party aids ... them that Hitler considered southern and central Italy undefendable if the Allies held Sicily.

Hitler's plan was to create a great defense line behind the Po Valley in northern Italy, and he suggested that all Italian troops, munitions, rolling stock and food be transferred behind that line, to leave the Allies the heavy burden of supplying the civilian population.

Mussolini expressed disguest over the plan, but called a meeting of the Fascist party grand council for Saturday. Meanwhile, some party leaders, including Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, met separately with non-party leaders.

Conduct of War Attacked

The council meeting lasted until 2 a. m. on Sunday. Mussolini outlined Hitler's plan, but there were immediate attacks upon Il Duce's conduct of the war and especially

Confused Germans Want Parley With Badoglio, Spain Hears

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, July 27.—Berlin dispatches to the Madrid newspaper Informaciones suggested today that Adolf Hitler, apparently taken by surprise by Premier Mussolini's resignation, would like very much to arrange a meeting with Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

The Berlin correspondent of the Madrid newspaper Informaciones quoted a German Foreign Office spokesman as saying Mussolini's resignation had nothing to do with his conference with Hitler last week and inferred that the Fuehrer was greatly surprised.

At the same time, the correspondent said, it was suggested in Berlin that it would be nice if the new governor of Italy could get together with the German leader for a meeting.

Berlin Confused.

In other words, unless the Spanish correspondent was made the carrier for propaganda, Berlin doesn't know what to expect from Badoglio and his government—which Berlin has termed " a cabinet of technicians."

There were indications, however, that the Germans were hurrying military preparations designed to plug up holes which might be left in the Balkans should Italy bow out of the war or should Italian troops there decide to go home.

(The Algiers radio broadcast a report last night that Badoglio had recalled 22 Italian divisions from Yugoslavia and Greece, as well as three or four divisions in Southern France.)

The Informationes dispatch—the first word received here from Berlin describing German reaction to the Italian crisis—said, however, that the Germans "continue to believe that the Italian change will not concern the Fascist structure in Italy, despite the order incorporating the Fascist militia in the regular army.

Supply Line Threatened.

Reports from Rome, meanwhile, said Badoglio was busy trying to take the Italian war machine out of reverse gear and unscramble Italy's bomb-shattered transport system.

While German divisions are still solidly entrenched in the Catania-Etna line in Sicily facing the relentless pressure of the British 8th Army they apparently are worried about their supply lines.

Unless Badoglio can achieve a transport miracle, the Nazi troops may be forced to withdraw from Sicily because of an imminent shortage of ammunition and other supplies.

To strengthen his Balkan defenses, it was pointed out here, Hitler would have to use troops from Austria and Greece. The Vardar and Morava River Valleys have been held mainly by Italian units which would have to be replaced if Rome orders them home.

Russian Press Asserts Fascists Still Rule Italy

Declares Regime Mussolini Created Continues War Alliance With Germany

MOSCOW, July 27 (AP).—The resignation of Benito Mussolini is only the first step on the way to liquidation of Fascism and defeat of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, an editorial in the army newspaper, "Red Star," said today.

"Present conditions insistently demand an increase in the number of blows against Fascist Germany, with the purpose of approaching the hour of complete victory," "Red Star" said.

The editorial asserted that foreign observers are wrong when they affirm that Italian Fascism exists no longer. Mussolini's resignation means bankruptcy of Italian Fascism and indicates a deep crack in the Italian-German coalition, the editorial said, but "while the creator of Fascism has resigned, the regime is still left, and the war alliance between Italy and Germany still exists."

The editorial labeled Mussolini a "traitor to the interests of the Italian people" and said "he sold Italy to Germany."

The government newspaper "Izvestia" said, "The exit of Mussolini only confirms to what extent the closest allies of Hitler already see the approaching defeat of the Axis powers." It said Mussolini, by the invasion of Ethiopia, the seizure of Albania and the military assistance given to the "Spanish Fascist Franco," was the "first to begin to unwind the forces of the new world war."

"Mussolini put his strong man, Carlo Scorza, at the head of the Fascist machine to clean out the wavering elements and suppress the resistance of the dissatisfied sections, but to no avail," the newspaper said.

"Izvestia" said the masses of the Italian people had begun to seethe with unrest long before Mussolini resigned power, with strikes in military factories and with farmers hiding their wheat.

Pope Consults Advisers

Sees His Secretary of State and Nuncios to Germany and Italy

BERN, Switzerland, July 27 (AP).—The Swiss Telegraph Agency said in a dispatch from the Italian frontier today that Pope Pius XII had long discussions yesterday with Luigi Cardinal Maglione, Papal Secretary of State.

The dispatch said he saw also Vincenzo Cardinal La Puma, Domenico Cardinal Jorio, Giuseppe Cardinal Pizzardo, Monsignor Borestini, the Papal Nuncio to Germany, and Monsignor Francesco Borgoncini - Duca, the Papal Nuncio to Italy.

Goebbels Propaganda Machine Is Stumped By Events in Rome

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 27.—Paul Joseph Goebbel's high-powered German propaganda machine, which seldom has been slow in trying to combat any military setback, appeared stomped today by the task of explaining the downfall of Mussolini to the German people.

The cautious manner in which the Reich's radio and press have dealt with what they call the "situation in Italy" has made it clear that the Nazis either are uncertain what to expect next or that they are just undecided how best to try and keep the home front and their satellites in line.

BADOGLIO BANS MUSSOLINI PAPER

London, July 27 (A. P.).—The Swiss radio said today that Benito Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia at Milan had been suppressed by the new Government and had not appeared since Friday. The newspaper's plant previously was reported to have been burned by Italians demonstrating over Mussolini's ouster from office.

The most important Turin newspaper, La Stampa, "was banned from publication for a day, following which demonstrating masses took over control of the paper," the British radio reported today in a broadcast recorded by CBS.

ITALIAN SENATE HEAD QUITS, ANOTHER NAMED

LONDON, July 27.—(AP) Rome radio announced tonight that King Vittorio Emanuele had accepted the resignation of the Fascist president of the Italian Senate, Count Giaconna Suardo, and had appointed Don Paolo de Velle in his place.

Count Suardo was one of Mussolini's minor henchmen.

He sometimes deputized for Il Duce in public appearances. The last time was March 23, 1941, when he addressed the Fascist youth organization in front of Mussolini's residence during the Italian-Greek war.

The King met the new cabinet in audience today, Rome also announced.

BULLETINS.

London, July 27 (A. P.).—The Algiers radio broadcast a report purporting to come from Rome today that Benito Mussolini was in Switzerland. No such report or broadcast was heard at the Associated Press listening post in London.

Peace Offers Rumored

LONDON, July 27 (AP).—Rumors of unconditional surrender offers by the Badoglio government flooded London today after Prime Minister Churchill's speech, but there was nothing here or in foreign reports to confirm them.

"It would cause no surprise," wrote Frank King, diplomatic correspondent of The Press Association, "if the first peace overtures from Rome were put out within the next forty-eight hours. The approaches would be made through Switzerland—the protecting power—rather than the Vatican."

Stefani Head May Be Suicide

STOCKHOLM, July 27 (AP).—Information reaching Stockholm today said that Manlio Morgagni, head of the Italian official news agency, Stefani, had shot himself at Rome. It was believed here that the shock of Mussolini's fall and developments in that connection were responsible.

[The Office of War Information said Stefani broadcast that Morgagni "has died," but gave no other details.]

ITALIAN ENVOY TALKS PEACE IN TURKEY

Instanbul, July 27 (AP)—Italy's new Foreign Minister, Rafaele Guariglia, conferred with Numan Menemencioglu, Turkish Foreign Minister, today in what was believed to be an attempt to lay the basis for Turkish mediation between the Allies and Italy. The two Foreign Ministers conferred on the Italian embassy launch in the Sea of Marmara.

PALERMO FOLK RIOT FOR FOOD

U. S. Troops Dole Out Flour to Starving Sicilians.

BOYLE

Palermo, Sicily, July 23 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Food rioting broke out on Palermo streets today, but American troops brought it under control by distributing captured German military stores.

The disorder centered around the railroad station, where a mob of hungry people, many of whom hadn't eaten for days, descended on a German supply dump. Railroad authorities appealed for help to Capt. Raymond W. Robowski of Minneapolis, who was commanding a road patrol.

"They weren't going to issue these supplies and the people began rioting," Capt. Robowski said. "These people are really starving. We found them carting off lumber and clothing, but mostly they wanted food. They were breaking open bags of flour and scooping it up like animals."

The American officer said he persuaded the railroad authorities to let him dole out all the supplies. The good news raced through the throng, and soon the people formed a long line to get their share.

Capt. Robowski said that some women carried in their arms babies "so starved there was hardly any life left in them at all."

Lean Townspeople Wait in Line.

"First we issued German hard bread," Capt. Borowski. "Now we're giving out flour."

As Capt. Robowski talked, hundreds of poorly clad men, women and children impatiently waited in line for something to eat. Their lean forms and gaunt features told the story of their distress. A small Catholic nun in a habit smudged with flour helped the American soldiers dole out the supplies.

"They're taking flour away in anything they can find," Capt. Robowski added, "shirts, skirts, caps, hats, pans, bags, papers, sheets—even an umbrella. We're giving them two handfuls each. Already we've supplied 500 people and they're still swarming up.

"By looking around here you can tell who lived right in this country—you can tell the Fascists by their well-fed look."

He said the Germans left twenty-five to thirty 250-pound bags of flour and fifteen cases of hard bread. "I don't know what to do with these people when the flour supply runs out," he sighed. "They'll be wild."

Lieut. John Rickershauser of 1348 Orange avenue, Union, N. J. reported that some of the people in line hadn't eaten for eight days.

Officers Rode Away, Wished Troops 'GoodLuck'; Army Dumps Looted by People

What happened in Palermo, capital of Sicily, in the last hours before American troops entered the city is told by Dr. Vincenzo de Fonzo, native correspondent for The Associated Press before the war, in the following article:

By Dr. Vincenzo de Fonzo

PALERMO, Sicily, July 23 (Delayed) (AP).—At dawn yesterday two violent explosions shook the people from their sleep, and explosions continued throught the day. At first it was thought fighting had started at the gates of the city. Then the truth came out. Orders had arrived to blow up all ammunition dumps, destroy military installations, bridges, docks and other objectives, and set fire to the fuel stores.

Two days before, the military and civil authorities had abandoned the city, without a word of warning to the population. They took away all the money they could lay their hands on. They left workmen and clerks without any part of their salary.

The prefect, the Mayor and the Federal Secretary were the first to make off by airplane. It did not matter to them that for three days the population had been without bread or macaroni, and that in the city and its suburbs there no longer was any drinking water.

Long lines of German trucks sped through the streets, driving swiftly toward the harbor. Hitler's soldiers were in flight.

Italian Officers Flee

And what about the Italian army? Most of the officers followed the example of their German comrades. The soldiers, on the other hand, were issued rations for five days and set at liberty with the words, "Do what you can, and good luck to you."

Meanwhile, the three local papers, after more than twenty years of lies and distortions, published the first edition which revealed the truth of the situation. Displayed with bitter words was the position of the authorities in the abandonment of the city to its fate.

A little later, on the walls of the city, appeared proclamations dated July 10 (the day Allied troops landed on the island, addressed to the people and signed "The Committee for Sicilian Independence."

"Fascism is finished at last," the proclamation said, "and the people who have in common with us the ideals of liberty and democracy have come to us to give us their help in cleaning out the regime which has been the worst in all our history. Our heartfelt feelings of gratitude go out to them. . . .

Now let us return to our great day. At 4:30 p. m. the first American mobilized column entered the city by the coastal road from Romagnolo. There were few people in the streets, and the soldiers of "The Star Spangled Republic" met no resistance. The passersby looked at them with stupefaction. People rubbed their eyes. According to Fascist propaganda, the city was going to be invaded and sacked by Australian and New Zealand troops. The women were going to be raped and the men imprisoned. But these, on the contrary, were peaceful soldiers with a smile on their lips.

When they had got over their first surprise, the population began to move about the streets, to follow them, to touch them, to pat them on the back. This happened in more or less every street traversed by the Allied troops. Soon the news of the arrival of the liberating army spread all through the city, and the demonstrations became steadily more intense.

Cronies Turned Against Him

BERN, Switzerland, July 27 (AP). — Benito Mussolini's former cronies in the Fascist party Grand Council cut him down in a violent word battle lasting into the hours of dawn Sunday as the dictator struggled in vain to keep his hold, the newspaper "Il Corriere della Sera," of Milan reported today. Italian Fascism, the newspaper declared, ended in "a farce in which the founders could no longer agree."

BRUTTO

Even Carlo Scorza and Roberto Farinacci, Mussolini's chief subordinates, turned against him as a leader as they strove futilely to oppose the council majority assembled to "pronounce the end of the Fascist regime," it said.

The outcome was a foregone conclusion, and before it ended strong concentrations of troops had moved into place in Rome. Thus, the Italian authorities already were taking necessary steps to maintain order while the population was "completely unaware of the historic hour sounding for the nation."

It was not said whether Il Duce was present at the second half of the session in which Count Dino Grandi, a former Minister of Foreign Affairs and of Justice, presented the resolution hostile to him which was adopted.

Mussolini's report on the situation, presented earlier, was attacked violently by Grandi, who proposed that the council and the government give all power to the crown, with command of all armed forces. This proposition was supported by Marshal Emilio de Bono, Count Galeazzo Ciano, Giuseppe Bottai, Luigi Federzoni and several others.

A feeble effort to obtain some support for Mussolinin was made by Carlo Scorza, Gaetano Polverelli, General Enzo Galbiati, chief of the Fascist militia, and a few others. The Grandi resolution was adopted by a vote of 19 against 7, with one council member absent.

Mussolini brought to the session a large collection of documents against his former friends and, opening the volume after the first acrid attack upon him, said: "I must read your dossiers."

Grandi reacted violently. A wild discussion followed, in which Scorza and Farinacci participated. The latter two proposed new orders of the day, but even these were said to be unfavorable to Il Duce.

Thus, said the newspaper, ended the fight begun in 1921 between Mussolini and Grandi. It was in 1921 that Grandi violently attacked Mussolini's politics at a congress of the Fascist party at Rome.

De Gaulle Asks A Voice in Any Deal With Italy

Says No Settlement Could Be Valid Without France; Giraud Reports on Trip

ALGIERS, July 27 (AP).—General Charles de Gaulle declared in a radio address to France today that the French must have a part in any United Nations settlement with Italy.

Voicing an opinion that is rapidly gaining strength in French circles here, the Fighting French leader stated it was clear that the change in power at Rome might raise the question of settling accounts soon.

"In spite of the terrible plight of our country," he asserted, "such a settlement could be neither valid nor lasting without France."

De Gaulle said the fall of Mussolini proved "the failure of the political, social and moral system called totalitarianism." For France, he said, it was the first part in the work of retribution.

"Out of hatred and greed our country, Italy, led by that poor leader, threw herself into a war she deemed easy," he said, "but once again events have proved that while it is easy to add to the sufferings and humiliations of the unhappy French people, no benefit can be derived from this in the long run."

FALL CHEERED BY SICILIANS

Townsfolk Pat Back Of Correspondent Bearing News Of Duce Ouster

Canadian Soldier Serves As Interpreter In Spreading Report

JUL 28 1943

By ROSS MUNRO

[Canadian War Correspondent]

(Distributed by the Associated Press)

Somewhere in Sicily, July 26 (Delayed)—In this front-line town, poverty-stricken Italian citizens in the battle-scarred main street received the news of Mussolini's resignation as Italian leader with shouts of "bravo, bravo."

They grabbed the hands of myself and a Canadian soldier, shaking them like trip-hammers, patted us on the back and cried out in a flood of Italian "down with Mussolini, death to the Duce."

The citizens milled around the main street, with the hulk of a destroyed German tank still at one corner, gesticulating wildly, laughing and shouting. It was one of the most unexpected spontaneous scenes I have ever witnessed.

Signalman As Interpreter

Early in the morning Canadian war correspondents heard the news over the BBC and headed for the town. I found Signalman Frank Sisco, of Cochrane, Ont., who speaks Italian fluently. He came along as an interpreter to find out what the local Italians thought of the momentous announcement.

With Sisco I stopped on the main street, which had been the center of bloody fighting for the town a short time before as the Canadians assaulted the place.

We walked up to a group of Italian civilians and Sisco asked them if they had heard the news. They hadn't.

Then he told them of Mussolini's resignation. The group of twenty crowded around us, shouted together, "bravo, bravo," and clapped their hands.

"Thank You," Youths Say

A couple of youths said "grazia, grazia" (thank you, thank you).

This reception took me by surprise. I had seen civilians in every town we had occupied in Sicily give the troops the "V" sign in the march from the coast, and sometimes cheer the invaders. But this was something I hoped I might see some day, but never really expected.

JUL 28 1943

Sisco and I made our way through the crowd and told another group standing beside the wrecked Nazi tank about the good news. There was an immediate outburst of joy and Sisco was nearly mobbed. He was hugged by one husky fellow and walloped on the back as if he were a newly elected party leader.

Town Is Transformed

I felt like a Woolcottian town-crier. The town was changed from a miserable Fascist down-trodden place into a place of high excitement and enthusiasm for the Allied cause. It couldn't have been a fake.

Overjoyed Sicilians vented their hatred for their Fascist overlords by tearing down Italian propaganda posters bearing pictures of Mussolini. They threw rocks at Fascist emblems. One old man reached up to disfigure a painting of Mussolini's head on the wall of a building.

For the first time in Sicily I saw really happy Italians. Sad-eyed old women smiled, and pretty, vivacious young girls who had been hiding in the cellars came into the streets, their eyes sparkling with joy.

No Fear Of Riot

Crowds jammed the main street as Canadian guns, trucks and ambulances made their way slowly through the throng. A Canadian patrol asked me anxiously if a riot were brewing. I told them not to worry for they were seeing the Italian reaction to the best news they had had for years.

The Italians were almost pathetic in thanking us. I nearly had my hand wrung off. Carabinieri police officers pleaded with me to drink some wine with them. We saw tattered, bewildered people, starved and exploited for years, breathe new hope of freedom and liberty in our scanty information about the Duce's downfall.

The shadows of twenty-one years' existence under Fascism drifted away. They told me through Sisco how they had been taxed to the hilt, reduced to dire poverty and forced to fight while the Fascist group at the top indulged in Roman luxury in Sicilian country mansions.

U. S. MAY DEMAND STRATEGIC BASES THROUGHOUT ITALY

Knox Hints Price of Peace Will Provide for Needed Airfields.

WASHINGTON, July 27 — (AP) Navy Secretary Knox hinted today that the onrushing Allies might demand strategic bases on the Italian peninsula mainland for air and sea attacks on Germany, as part of any price of peace.

In response to questions at his press conference, Mr. Knox said Italy possessed strategic positions useful to the Allies for "certain purposes." He declared that bases set up on the peninsula would be extremely useful for an advance across the Adriatic sea and air attacks on southern Germany.

While disclaiming any "exclusive information" on the situation, the Navy Secretary said that "the appearance of things indicates probably some attempt at taking Italy out of the war," and expressed the opinion that "it will come in the reasonably near future."

In response to a question, Mr. Knox said he meant an attempt by King Vittorio Emanuele and Marshal Badoglio, successor to Mussolini.

Amid world-wide speculation over the next move of the reformed Italian government, Mr. Knox was asked how the Allied "unconditional surrender" formula would apply if and when the battered Axis partner sues for an end of hostility.

The Navy Secretary said that "only one man" could answer that question, and then—to another query as to whether that man was Prime Minister Churchill or President Roosevelt—declared: "Only two men could answer your question—but they will speak with one voice, I am sure."

Still Enemy Nation

Meanwhile, the Office of War Information went one step further in clarification of the official attitude of the United States toward the new Italian regime, with the declaration that it is regarded as an enemy, the same as the Mussolini government.

"This Italian government," an OWI official said, "composed as it is mostly of people formerly associated with Fascism, declared as one of its first acts allegiance to Hitler and the Axis, and therefore is an enemy of the United Nations, and the war will go on to unconditional surrender."

Peace in Italy Unlikely For Weeks—or Months

(John Evans, author of the following article on Italy's outlook, is a former chief of the Associated Press bureau in Rome and intimately acquainted with the personalities on whom the country's immediate future now depends.)

By JOHN EVANS

NEW YORK, July 27—(AP) The Italian dove of peace is likely to get shot if he doesn't stay under cover a while. It is too early for any but wishful thinkers to see the white flag of surrender flying over Rome.

Common sense seems to support Marshal Pietro Badoglio's proclamation that: "the war continues."

There are rumors aplenty that peace is being discussed in the Vatican, that there may be "honorable terms," that Italy is out of the war and so on.

Maybe, but the plain facts are:

King Vittorio Emanuele and Premier Badoglio declared that they will defend Italy.

Sicily Not Yet Lost

The conquest of Sicily is yet to come.

The Italian Army, Navy and Airforce have been ordered to resist.

To seek peace immediately would put the King and Premier Badoglio in the position of publicly pledging defense while secretly they sought to surrender.

And finally, there probably are enough German troops in Italy or nearby to take over a good part of the country.

Nonetheless, the King and Premier Badoglio doubtless see the end of the war coming. They have ousted Mussolini and probably have killed Fascism. It would be logical for Italy to fight for a time, until the Germans get out and until it is demonstrated that Italy can not hold out.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today that "Italy will be seared and scarred and blackened from one end to the other" unless Italy leaves Hitler to fight his own war alone.

Italians Wish Peace

It would be mere guessing to predict when peace will come. Mussolini was forced out rather sooner than most people expected. It is evident already that the Italians wish peace. With all their devotion to the King and their faith in Premier Badoglio they cannot overvastation.

The Allied terms of "unconditional surrender" are plain. For the King and Premier Badoglio to accept them and yet maintain Italian unity for the future would seem to require that Italy must make a show of resistance until Italians are convinced that there is no other course. At present, it is natural that Italians should hope to get a quick peace. They are tired of war. They never liked the Germans. Doubtless they hate Hitler. Probably they haven't thought much about the price they must pay to be rid of Fascism and out of the war.

Passive, Maybe Active Role

For all those reasons it is likely to take some time, weeks or months, for Italy to turn from war upon the Allies to war upon Germany. Italy's eventual war upon Germany, her strange and uncomfortable bed-fellow, may be only a passive one of furnishing airfields, trains and supplies or it may be a real war, actively fighting with the Allies.

Meantime, Pope Pius certainly must be praying for peace and thinking of how, and how soon. His may not be an active role just now for he knows exactly the difficulties. But when peace comes it is quite likely to come through the Vatican.

The Pope may be urging already upon the King and Premier Badoglio, as he did upon Mussolini, that Rome be declared an open city, stripped of troops, defenses and munition plants so that it shall not be bombed and churches and civilians endangered.

Strong Hold on Country

The Pope has a strong hold on all Italy. The King and Badoglio both are devout Catholics. Italy is a Catholic country and Italians have been reared in reverence—except, indeed, the young generation born into Fascism, taught by Mussolini at one time to defy the church and obliged later by his example to recognize the Pope as the spiritual superior even of Il Duce, who finally, twelve years ago, made his pilgrimage to the Vatican and bent his knee to the Holy Father.

IRKED BY OWI BROADCAST

Says Agency Lacked Authority to Send Out Comment on King Being Moronic.

Washington, July 27 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt reaffirmed in effect today the Allied policy of exacting unconditional surrender from Italy. At the same time he said that Robert E. Sherwood of the Office of War Information is taking strong action because an OWI broadcast had referred to Victor Emmanuel as a "moronic little king."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke publicly for the first time at a press-radio conference of the events in Italy, but mostly withheld specific comments.

He was asked what his reaction was to the change in the Italian Government and replied that he never had reactions, since he was much too old.

On the matter of unconditional surrender he was asked whether there would be any change in that policy. He replied that Secretary of State Hull had covered the point yesterday.

Hull said yesterday that the United States was still fighting like the devil and that for her the price of Italy's peace remained as before—unconditional surrender.

Question of Mussolini.

He interrupted an inquiry whether demands would be made for the surrender of Benito Mussolini to the Allies, in the event of unconditional surrender, by declaring he did not think it would be useful to go into details.

He said he asked himself many hypothetical questions and was wise enough not to give himself any answers.

But he did say that when he spoke last week at a news conference about the bombing of Rome he had no information at that time that Mussolini was going to quit.

JUL 28 1943

No Authorization.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had read only a portion of the speech of Prime Minister Churchill today, in which Mr. Churchill analyzed the Italian situation, but he had liked very much what he had read.

With considerable severity, Mr. Roosevelt told a questioner that neither he nor the State Department had authorized the OWI broadcast, which described both the Italian King and Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the new Prime Minister, as Facists.

He said that Mr. Sherwood, playwright and head of the overseas branch of OWI, had given no such authorization and is taking vigorous steps as a result of the broadcast.

What OWI Broadcast.

The OWI declared today that the new Government of Italy is regarded as an enemy the same as Mussolini's regime.

Clarifying the tone of the OWI's radio broadcasts to Europe, an official said:

"This Italian Government, composed as it is mostly of people formerly associated with Fascism, declared as one of its first acts allegiance to Hitler and the Axis, and therefore is an enemy of the United Nations, and the war will go on to unconditional surrender."

It was understood, however, that the general policy of the OWI in its broadcasts to continental Europe is to refrain from making any personal criticism of either King Victor Emmanuel or Marshal Badoglio. Certain English-language broadcasts by the OWI, quoting a columnist as calling the King "moronic," were described as being merely a part of a regular service to inform English speaking people of the trend of printed opinion in this country.

Knox Sees Peace Bid.

Secretary of the Navy Knox said that developments in Italy indicate some attempts to take that country out of the war in the reasonably near future.

The Secretary of the Navy told his press conference that he had no exclusive information on the situation, but that it was his estimate "that the appearance of things indicates probably some attempt at taking Italy out of the war."

He was asked whether he meant an attempt by King Emmanuel and Marshal Badoglio, successor to Benito Mussolini. He replied that he meant such an attempt.

As to the time, Mr. Knox said: "I think it will come in the reasonably near future."

The Navy Secretary was reminded that when Secretary Hull was questioned yesterday about application of the unconditional surrender formula to Italy, Mr. Hull said that he had not yet consulted the Army and Navy.

Mr. Knox commented that only one man could say how the formula would apply. Asked whether that one man was Prime Minister Churchill or President Roosevelt, he quickly amended his reply to say:

"Only two men could answer your question—but they will speak with one voice, I am sure."

conference that the short-wave tack on the King and his new Prime Minister should never have been made. Neither he nor Secretary of State Cordell Hull had been consulted before the broadcast, he said.

The President added that Robert E. Sherwood, director of OWI's overseas service, was raising cain about it. The broadcast quoted from a Sunday night radio speech by Samuel Grafton, New York Post columnist, who referred to "the moronic little King."

Milton S. Eisenhower, acting director of OWI, declined to comment on the President's criticism of OWI.

OWI Policy Explained

He explained, however, that the broadcast was in English and was beamed to Great Britain. He authorized this statement regarding OWI policy:

"Prior to Sunday we attacked Fascism and all individuals connected with it. Since Sunday the line in OWI broadcasts is that any government which continues to be aligned with Hitler is an enemy of the United States and the United Nations."

The broadcast to Great Britain was described as a regular daily feature in which the opinions of American commentators are quoted to inform the British of the views of the American press and commentators.

President [illegible]t said he liked very much what he had read of Prime Minister Churchill's speech to the House of Commons today. Secretary Hull previously had indicated that the United States and Britain are in complete accord on the treatment of Italy.

Asked for his reaction to the change in Italy which displaced the government of Benito Mussolini, the President said he was much too old to have reactions. Neither would he comment on a London report that Mussolini might eventually be delivered to the Allies as a war criminal. He asked himself many such hypothetical questions, he said, and he was wise enough not to give himself an answer.

President Roosevelt said that when Rome was bombed last week he had no intimation that Mussolini

Short-wave Broadcast Made Without Official Authorization, He Declares.

JUL 28 1943

WASHINGTON, July 27 —(AP) President Roosevelt today sharply criticized an Office of War Information broadcast in which Vittorio Emanuele of Italy was characterized as "the moronic little King" and Marshal Pietro Badoglio was called a Fascist.

However, the chief executive reaffirmed by implication the Allied policy of requiring unconditional surrender from Italy.

Mr. Roosevelt told his press-radio would make his exit. Asked for comment on that exit, he said he thought Secretary Hull had dealt with it pretty well yesterday.

In a cursory reading of extracts from Mr. Churchill's speech, Mr. Hull said, he found no material difference between it and his own comments. Mr. Churchill had said that war "from every quarter" would be waged against Italy so long as she remains on the side of the Germans.

No Chaos without Leaders

"We certainly do not seek to reduce Italian life to a condition of chaos and anarchy and find ourselves without any authorities with whom to deal," Mr. Churchill added.

Thus, the Anglo-American policy does not preclude the acceptance of Italy's surrender from Premier Badoglio, once it is evident that the Fascist regime has been completely scrapped. Neither Premier Badoglio nor any other Italian, however, will be allowed to negotiate terms for the surrender. The Allied attitude means that there will be no dickering.

After the surrender, final governmental authority in Italy is not likely to rest with Premier Badoglio, King Vittorio Emanuele, or any other Italian, for the duration of the war against Germany.

AMGOT (the Allied Military Government of occupied territories) would supplant the Italian government pending the peace. The King would not be deposed, but his royal prerogatives would be suspended until after the complete defeat of the Axis, when the Italians would be allowed to decide if they wished to retain the monarchy or substitute a republic.

In making their attitude known to the Italians, the Americans and British are likely to make no commitments on the future peace settlement, other than the promise, voiced last November by Adolph Berle, assistant Secretary of State, that Italy shall regain a full statehood in the post-war Europe.

19 and 23 meter bands.

Here is the main news in brief:

Mussolini has resigned as the head of the Italian Government. Marshal Badoglio, a high-ranking Fascist, has been named successor. King Victor Emmanuel has taken command of the armed forces. The essential nature of the Fascist regime in Italy has not changed. * * *

That is the news in brief. Here is the news in detail:

Benito Mussolini, for twenty-one years the Chief of State of Fascist Italy, has resigned. Rome Radio announced late Sunday evening that King Victor Emmanuel had taken command of all Italian armed forces. Mussolini's place as head of the Italian Government has been assumed by Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

However, there was no indication that any essential change had taken place in the Fascist control of Italy. * * *

The King's announcement was followed by this proclamation to the Italian people by Marshal Badoglio: "The war continues. Italy, grievously stricken in her invaded provinces and in her ruined towns, maintains her faith in her given word.'"

By "given word" Badoglio meant Mussolini's pledges to Hitler—pledges under which Italians are forced to fight for the preservation of the Fascist and Nazi regimes. . . .

Typical unofficial reaction in the United States to this development in the Italian political situation was that of the columnist for The New York Post, Samuel Grafton.

He said: "Fascism is still in power in Italy. It has put on a new face; that's all. Italian fascism has rouged its cheeks and its lips and is trying to see whether a smile will not do more for it than the famous frown by which it lived so long."

Samuel Grafton, the commentator for The New York Post, added:

"The moronic little King, who has stood behind Mussolini's shoulder [illegible]-one years, has moved [illegible]ward one pace. This is a political minuet and not the revolution we have been waiting for. It changes nothing; for nothing can change in Italy until democracy is restored."

That was the comment by Samuel Grafton of The New York Post.

Mussolini long ago was dubbed by the American people as the "sawdust Ceasar." John Durfee, another well-known American political commentator, says that while the news of Mussolini's resignation is welcome to Americans, it is not regarded here as an event of great importance.

John Durfee, the American political commentator, declared:

The American people have pledged themselves to fight fascism until unconditional surrender. This war will go on, irrespective of whether it's Mussoini, or Badoglio, or the Fascist King himself who usurps power. Our fight will go on until the unconditional surrender of fascism. * * *

At the end of the broadcast the following was repeated:

Mussolini has resigned as the head of the Italian Government. Marshal Badoglio, a high-ranking Fascist, has been named successor. King Victor Emmanuel has taken command of the armed forces. The essential nature of the Fascist regime in Italy has not changed.

John Durfee, described in the broadcast as "another well-known American political commentator," is an "imaginary" figure quoted by OWI as a device to represent unofficial opinion in America.

OWI Broadcast Excerpts

Following are the pertinent textual excerpts from the official OWI transcript of its short-wave broadcast in English to Europe Monday in which King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was called "the moronic little King" and "the Fascist King," and Marshal Badoglio was referred to as a "high-ranking Fascist":

Story of 'Sicily In America' Is Told to Italians

O. W. I. Broadcast Depicts Life inMiddletown,Home of Many Sicily Emigrants

Middletown, Conn., with its white-painted houses, its old elms, its little church, its Mayor and its 850 men in the armed forces, got some good international publicity yesterday, probably without the townspeople knowing it.

A description of Middletown and its good citizens was sent through the ether by Office of War Information short-wave broadcast at frequent intervals during the day to the people of Axis-controlled Europe, especially Italy.

If the villagers living in Mellili, on the conquered eastern co[illegible] of Sicily, listened in, they must still be talking about it today. More than 6,000 of Middletown's 26,000 inhabitants either came from Mellili, or, as the O. W. I. put it, "have their roots in the soil of Mellili."

Town's History Related

"Sicily in America" was the title of the short-wave broadcast. It gave a description of the town's appearance a brief account of its history back in the days when Middletown was second only to Boston in clearing clippers to China, and the story of how thousands of Sicilians emigrated to Middletown when it became a manufacturing center. The town, in Middlesex County, is situated on the Connecticut River, about twenty miles inland from Long Island Sound.

The broadcast described the Roman Catholic Church of San Sebastiano which stands on one of Middletown's elm-shaded streets and which was named after the patron saint of Mellili. It described the three Italian-American societies which have a prominent place in the community life.

It told how the Mayor of Middletown, Salvatore Cubeta, born in Mellili, married Marion Bacon, direct descendant of one of the Colonial families that founded the town. It told of their children—"product of two worlds, of two cultures—" and of their boy who is at a naval school.

No Question About Loyalty

"When Italy declared war on the United States," said the O. W. I. broadcast, "no one told the Sicilians of Middletown that they would have to give up their societies.

"There was on question about the loyalty of these people. Eight hundred and fifty of their sons now are serving in the United States armed forces. T[illegible] the Italians of Middletown, say as they gather on the stree[illegible] corners after a day's work:

"'In America we have found everything. Work. Homes. Happiness. Our sons are now in the battle of America and of the free nations. They are entering upon the soil of Sicily. Our thoughts are with those of our relatives who suffer. But our hopes are with the ideals of the democratic government which has made possible everything we have, and which will one day work for the future of a free and independent Italy.

"'We are confident that once Fascism is thrown out of Italy the way of life we enjoy here in America can become a reality for all nations.'"

The "Sicily in America" broadcast was repeated a number of times during the day on the O. W. I.'s "Voice of America" broadcasts to Europe.

End of Fascism Demanded

About 80 per cent of the O. W. I.'s 400 daily programs beamed to Europe are given over to news, and yesterday's stressed Prime Minister Winston Churchill's address to Parliament and Secretary of State Cordell Hull's statement concerning the new regime in Italy. All the news broadcasts emphasized that the new regime is little different from the old and that the Battle of Italy must go on until Fascism is wholly ousted from the country.

The broadcasts told how the news of Benito Mussolini's downfall was received in this country at Sunday afternoon ball games and in homes throughout the nation. "The crowds cheered," said the O. W. I., "and settled back for the games to continue. The general reaction was, 'So what?'

"The people wanted to know what the next move was. They found out. Italy's king and Marshal Badoglio took over. And then they knew. It was still Fascism, in a different form. Mussolini was gone, but a shadow of Mussolini was in. The window dressing had changed, but the same shabby goods were for sale at the same old counter."

FASCISM BANNED BY ITALIAN PEOPLE

'Errors of Leaders Were Compromising War Effort,' Says English Broadcast.

NEW YORK, July 27 — (AP) A Rome radio English-language broadcast said today that the Italians have "rejected Fascism" after finding out that "the curtailing of liberty" and the errors of its leaders "were compromising the war effort."

The broadcast, recorded by C.B.S., said that "what has happened in Italy is extremely simple and proves that the Italian people are sound, loyal and disciplined."

"In 1922 the Italian people adhered to Fascism in order to free themselves from demagogy," the announcer said. "In 1943 they have rejected it after finding out that the curtailing of liberty and the errors which it enabled its leaders to make were compromising the war effort of the country, that's all.

Move Held Indispensable

"The situation had become so critical it was indispensable to achieve a much stronger welding of all the spiritual forces of the nation in order to put up a more effective defense.

"The change has taken place in war time because the war had made it possible to realize that Fascism was not giving the country the order, organization and coordination of ideas and plans necessary to face events, and also in this the Italians have behaved like a mature and fully conscious nation.

"They have given Fascism all the time necessary for the experiment. Once war had broken out they continued to work for it, to make all the sacrifices demanded by it. There has been no crisis comparable to the French one.

"The Italian people have given everything they have been asked for, the sacrifice of individual liberty, money and blood. They have fought and are fighting for their government.

People Saluted With Joy

"Public opinion had become preoccupied with the conduct of the war and when the King gave the sign the people saluted with joy the beginning of a new life for the country. Their cry has been: Long live Italy, long live the King, long live Badoglio and long live the Army.

"It is necessary that it should be known abroad that no moral collapse has taken place. The two messages issued by the King and Marshal Badoglio have faithfully interpreted the feeling of the Italians that fill with a manly joy the whole of Italy.

"Today the Italian people is united and therefore it is strong, much stronger than yesterday. As long as the enemy is on the threshhold of Italy our people repeat Badoglio's words: The war goes on."

Italian Radio Stations End Fascist Signal

New York, July 27 (AP)—Radio stations of the official Italian news agency, Stefani, returned to the air today shorn of their idling signal of "Vincere"—conquer.

In its place the stations returned to the internationally accepted practice of sending out the letter "V" in code when idling.

All Italian stations, including commercial ones, used the "Vincere" signal before Benito Mussolini's downfall. Stefani's stations were silent all day yesterday but returned to the air this morning.

The new signal was heard in broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press.

"Benito E Finito" They Say

New York, July 27 (AP)—The latest Italian wisecrack, scrawled under pictures of Mussolini and painted on Fascist walls, said the BBC, recorded by NBC: "Benito e finito."

New York, July 27 (AP)—German troops were reported moving through the Brenner Pass to take up defense positions in Italy's northern provinces of Venetia, Lombardy and Piedmont, advices reaching the Associated Press from a European capital said today.

A Swedish newspaper correspondent said "strong Italian forces are marching northward from central Italy."

Where Mussolini Is Mystifies Europe

By The Associated Press.

European rumor factories, playing with the greatest mystery since Rudolph Hess landed in Britain, have been working at maximum "war production" on the whereabouts of Benito Mussolini during the past forty-eight hours.

A Stockholm dispatch said "Il Duce" was trying to enter Switzerland.

A dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, reported him in Madrid.

A story from Madrid said travelers from Italy reported he was in a villa outside Rome.

Rome, the one place where presumably there are authorities who know where he is, was silent.

Nazis Fear Crete Invasion

Talk About the "Invulnerability" of Island's Fortifications

German propagandists began to talk about the "invulnerability" of Crete yesterday, praising its defenses as they did those of Sicily a few weeks befoe the Allied invasion.

A Transocean broadcast recorded by he Associated Press asserted that Crete "at any moment can be turned into an active volcano of gigantic ferocity." The German news agency gave at its authority a Nazi war reporter named Hans Adolf Weber.

Weber's glowing report of the island's fortifications came from Candia. It indicated that the Nazis fear the Allies may direct their next powerful blow against Crete.

Nazi Drive Repulsed In Sicily as Allies Down Relief Planes

21 Big Transports With Supplies for Axis Riddled Over Straits

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 27.—American and Canadian troops, throwing themselves forward in the northeastern area of Sicily, have cut to pieces savage German counterattacks in the central sector and advanced over ground strewn with Axis dead, Allied headquarters announced today.

At the same time, a headquarters communique announced that Allied air forces had smashed a new enemy attempt to bring reinforcements on a large scale into Sicily by shooting down 21 huge German Junkers-52 transports in a battle over Messina Strait.

Two giant German 323-Mersbergs were shot down by RAF Beaufighters. These planes are capable of carrying more than 100 men, but official reports did not state whether they were filled with troops.

Germans Plan "Dike."

It was stated officially that German troops now have been identified all along the entire front in Northeastern Sicily where they are attempting to build a dike across the tip of the island to block the invasion gates to Italy.

Enemy losses skyrocketed in the central and southern portions of the line and a number of German battalions lost half of their effective strength in attempts to batter back the relentless forward rush of the Allied troops who swept in a wheeling movement from Central Sicily.

The Canadians bore the brunt of the operation and made gains against the heaviest opposition, and the Allied communique said the American advance, too, was proceeding "according to plan." However, the Germans were managing to stiffen their resistance as the Americans drove into the harder core of the enemy's defense positions.

Rail Center Bombed.

Medium bombers attacked railway communications at Marina di Paola in Southern Italy while light bombers and fighter-bombers continued the assault upon shipping in Sicilian harbors and on road communications on the island, the Allied communique said.

On the night of July 25-26 the port of Milazzo, Sicily, was attacked by medium bombers and torpedo-carrying aircraft sank an enemy merchant vessel in the Tyrrhenian Sea.

In addition to the 21 JU-52s shot down in offensive sweeps over the Messina area on July 25, Allied fighters shot down eight of the enemy escort planes.

Hammering ground communications, Boston and Mitchell planes hit objectives at Adrano, Paterno, Nicosia and Cape Orlando in Northeastern Sicily, and Bostons and Baltimores pounded Regalbuto, one of the key points of the Axis line in Central Sicily.

Installations Hit.

Harbors along the northeast coast, including Messina and Barcellona, were swept by gunfire and bombs to break up or slow Axis reinforcement attempts. Railway sidings, military buildings and barges were attacked at Sanagata. A merchant ship and smaller vessels were riddled at Messina, barges were strafed at Stefano Marino and the landing ground was attacked at Falcome, with hits scored on the runway, a fuel dump and bivouac areas.

In a sweep over Sardinia, Warhawks shot down five enemy aircraft. Victories were credited to Maj. Robert L. Baselier, Columbia, Conn., and Capt. John C. Watkins of Baltimore, Md., each of whom bagged a Messerchmitt 202, and Flight Officer Lewis F. Braun, Ottawa; Second Lt. Philip C. Whiteside, West Frankfort, Ill., and Flight Officer Paul L. Maret of Atlanta, Ga., who got a Messerchmitt-109 each.

Except for the central sector where Americans and Canadians beat back German counterassaults and then advanced themselves, the battle of Sicily appeared to be passing through an interim period in which both sides were gathering strength for a showdown.

Reinforcements Arriving.

The presence of Axis troop-carrying airplanes, barges and merchantmen was taken as indisputable evidence that reinforcements still are arriving without regard to the cost in men and machines.

The Germans were spending men lavishly trying to roll back the Allied advance and regain some stragetic positions along what is rapidly becoming a solid front.

The main American Army in the north was believed moving eastward, meeting increasing German resistance somewhere in the area east of Termini.

While the Germans had not taken over the entire Sicilian front, elements of their troops had been sighted in all sectors, indicating they were taking over the main burden.

The Germans apparently were ready to sacrifice heavily in crash landings of their big aerial transports to pour more troops into Sicily. Several days ago it was officially stated that all enemy airdromes on the island were captured or neutralized.

Situation Unchanged, Rome Says.

(The German communique said the battle in Sicily continued "with unbroken strength and unaffected by political developments in Italy" and with Allied attacks repulsed. Allied tank and troop columns advancing east of Cefalu, midway point along the Northern Sicilian coast, were attacked by German airplanes successfully, it added.

(Meanwhile, the Italian communique, recorded by the Associated Press from a Rome broadcast, said the situation remained unchanged in Sicily.

(The Italian war bulletin reported another series of Allied raids on the Naples area and the region of Messina Strait and said antiaircraft defenses and Italian fighters shot down eight planes in duels off Sardinia.

(German warplanes, the communique said, attacked warships and merchantmen off the northern and eastern coasts of Sicily and heavily damaged four transports, two cruisers and a destroyer.

(The Italian communique said five other Allied merchantmen were hit by Axis aircraft in a raid on the harbor of Valletta, Malta.)

NAZI AIR RELIEF OF SICILY NIPPED

21 Giant Transport Planes Shot Down Near Messina; U. S. Troops Advance.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 27 — (AP) Deadly R.A.F. Spitfires have shattered another desperate German attempt to reinforce their troops in Sicily, knocking down 21 giant transports over Messina as the Nazis took to the airways to stave off the fall of Sicily a little longer.

Aground, U. S. and Canadian troops hurled back Nazi counter-attacks and then drove deeper into the bitterly-defended but slowly dwindling northeastern corner of the island, Allied headquarters announced today.

The 21 Junkers-52 transports were blasted from the skies Sunday along with eight Axis fighters, and R.A.F. Beaufighters in another action downed two great German 323-Merseburgs. The latter can carry more than 100 men apiece, but it was not reported whether they were filled with troops.

Blast Axis Shipping

Determined to win as much time as possible in Sicily, the Germans attempted the aerial reinforcement after sending the 29th motorized division to the island from Italy. Now Allied planes are ranging the coasts, blasting at shipping and harbor installations to cut off sea communications.

The Germans gambled extravagantly with their giant transports, for the Allies have captured or neutralized all of Sicily's main airports, and the great aircraft presumably started for improvised or badly damaged fields, risking crash landings.

Only one Spitfire was lost in the battle over Messina. The R.A.F. feat duplicated that of American Lightnings last week in knocking down 21 transports near Sardinia in a few moments.

Canadian troops bore the brunt of ground operations as the noose tightened on the Axis holdings, making "further limited progress after heavy fighting," today's Allied communique declared.

Meet Stiffer Resistance

Dispatches said Axis resistance increased along the northern front as the U. S. Seventh army pushed ahead "according to plan."

British Eighth army patrols felt out the strong enemy positions below Catania midway along the east coast.

German troops have been thrown in on all sectors of the great semi-circular front to hold critical areas and rally Italian resistance.

The Nazis attacked viciously in the central sectors in futile attempts to halt the Canadian and American advances striking doggedly into the rough, mountainous country. Front reports indicated tne German 15th Armored division made the main assault, suffering bloody losses.

The main force of American troops was believed pounding along the north coast battling the Germans somewhere east of Termini.

Subs Sink Four Ships

(British submarines cruising the Mediterranean have destroyed four ships and 19 other small vessels, making raids into the Aegean and along the Italian coast, an Admiralty communique issued in London reported.

(The submarines bombarded the dynamite dumps, sheds, and installations on islands in the Aegean, hitting at Amorgas, at Tratoni in the gulf of Hierissos near Salonika, Potidhaia in the Gulf of Salonika, Kastro on the island of Lemnos, and at Nea Playia near Salonika.

(They sank a tanker in the northern Aegean and three other ships in the Gulf of Genoa in Italy, off Elba and Monte Christo in the northern Mediterranean, another near Crotone in southern Italy, and another was sunk or badly damaged in Suda bay, Crete, the Admiralty said.)

Widespread Air Raids

In widespread air operations yesterday, Allied planes poured a great weight of bombs on railway targets at Marina de Paola in southern Italy, Warhawks raided airports in Sardinia, downing five enemy fighters, and the new American A-36 "Invaders" pounded the port of Milazzo west of Messina, firing docks and warehouses.

Railway sidings, military buildings and barges were hit at Sanagata, ships were strafed at Messina, barges were bombed at Stefano Marino and the airfield at Falcone also was attacked.

Small ports along the coast were brought under devastating bomb and strafing attacks, and Bostons and Baltimores flying out of Malta joined in the Sicilian raids by bombing Regalbuto on the Axis' central line.

During all the aerial operations, said the communique, 11 enemy planes were downed and three Allied ships were missing.

German planes struck at Malta Sunday night, but three Junkers 88s were downed.

Great Fires Left By 'Chain' Raids Over Hamburg

Big German Port Apparently Marked For Destruction

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 27.—For the fifth time in 48 hours Hamburg was attacked from the air last night as the RAF sent Mosquito bombers over the German seaport for the third successive night, the British Air Ministry news service said today.

Returning crews said there was a clear sky over the devastated city and flames could be seen while they were still more than 30 miles from the target.

Airmen were quoted as saying that the flak was not so intense as had been expected, but there were some night fighters on patrol.

The air battle, designed apparently to flatten Germany's great port of Hamburg, began Saturday night, when RAF heavy bombers carried out the greatest raid of the war, dropping 2,300 long tons of explosives and incendiaries. Since that time the RAF and the USAAF have kept up round-the-clock attacks.

Yanks Raid Again.

The USAAF hit the port in daylight Sunday with a large fleet of heavy bombers, and the same night RAF Mosquitoes took up the attack.

The Americans raided the city in daylight again yesterday, and the Air Ministry put out the preliminary announcement that Hamburg had been attacked even before the official communique.

Nothing was said concerning possible RAF losses.

The air offensive rolled on unchecked throughout daylight today, with Allied formations crossing the Dover Straits toward the Calais area. The aircraft winging over the Channel in brilliant sunshine appeared to be fighters.

RAF reconnaissance pilots went to Essen yesterday to view the devastation from the heavy attack by RAF heavy bombers Sunday night. They reported fierce fires were still burning there.

Three Other Towns Hit.

Sharing the weight of the American assault with Hamburg in daylight yesterday were three other northwest German cities—Hannover, Wilhelmshaven and Wesermunde.

American medium bombers dumped their cargoes on the German airfield at St. Omer, France, while British medium, light and fighter bombers attacked Courtrai, Abbeville and Merville. At the same time American Thunderbolt fighters made wide sweeps over the French and Dutch coasts.

Returning raiders said that German fighter opposition was spotty but the Allies had the better of the situation for a final check showed 54 Axis planes shot down against 26 for the Allies. Of the latter, 23 were bombers but communiques did not give a breakdown on the number of American losses.

Good Results Obtained.

Heaviest opposition was reported at Hannover, where the Americans struck at two synthetic rubber plants employing 50,000 workers. The American pilots said the flak was heavy and that they were opposed by a force of from 75 to 100 fighter planes, of which they destroyed 33.

Naval installations were the targets at Wilhelmshaven and Wesermunde and submarine works and an airplane engine plant were the Hamburg objectives.

An Allied communique said that

American Troops in North Africa Say Mussolini Couldn't Take It

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 27 (A. P.).—Most American soldiers, the service paper Stars and Stripes reported today, believe that Benito Mussolini couldn't take it.

The paper made a large number of inquiries among the troops and found that Il Duce's sudden disappearance from the world scene was received as great news.

"He turned yellow," said Corporal Charles Joans of Buffalo, N. Y.

"He got out while the getting was good," commented Private (f. c.) Arthur Govanna of Revere, Mass. Sergt. John C. Calhoun of Chillicothe, Tex., said it was "a great break for the Italian people."

One infantry company was given the news with great formality, Stars and Stripes reported. It was read as the men were lined up for reveille formation.

Corporal Harvis Dyas of Mobile, Ala., who heard the report of Mussolini's resignation by radio, awoke a group of men sleeping in pup tents, and they stayed awake all night discussing its possible effects.

Another company hung its "Liar's Belt" on Sergt. Max Win-good results were observed on all of the targets.

The city of London had an alert lasting about an hour shortly after midnight last night when a small number of planes approached the Thames estuary and one or two headed toward London. The alarm was the first since July 15. Gunfire was heard and night workers went to shelters.

Minor enemy activity also was reported over Southeast England. There was little damage and no casualties, a communique said. One enemy raider was downed.

ALLIES BOMB COAST AREAS OF CONTINENT

Airfields And Industries In France, Holland And Belgium Hit

Base At Tricqueville Is Singled Out By United States Craft

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 27--With Germany's seaport of Hamburg and industrial center of Essen smoldering from blows by heavy bombers, Allied light and medium bombers struck by daylight today at industrial targets and airfields in northern France, Holland and Belgium.

Airfields attacked included one at Tricqueville, France, which was singled out by United States medium bombers.

United States Thunderbolt fighters flying at a great height shielded a strong force of raiders that attacked objectives in northern France.

Results Called Good

A communique of the Air Ministry and United States Army headquarters, said results of the Tricqueville airfield bombing were "good."

The communique said "squadrons of Spitfires escorted and covered the bombers, none of which is missing," and added that other United States medium bombers, Thunderbolts and Spitfires, made supporting sweeps over north and northwest France. In that action, nine Axis fighters were downed. Two of the United States fighters are missing, but both pilots were rescued.

Among the targets of the raids was Zeebrugge on the coast of Belgium. Hundreds of Allied fighters and light bombers took part in the sweep.

No Flak Encountered

At Zeebrugge industrial buildings were hit and pilots reported they encountered neither fighters nor flak. Ventura bombers escorted by Spitfires attacked Nazi airfields at Courtrai in Belgium and Woensdrecht in Holland, dropping 500-pound bombs on hangars, buildings and dispersal areas.

Other Spitfires made diversionary sweeps from Ypres in Belgium to Hulst in Holland.

In the round-the-clock attacks by the RAF and United States Army Air Force on Hamburg, Mosquito bombers gave the port and industrial center its fifth raid in forty-eight hours last night.

Arms Plants Raided

The Mosquitos, without loss to themselves, dumped 500-pound bombs on munitions plants that had escaped the blockbusters and incendiaries of the RAF's heaviest attack of the war Saturday night and the daylight attacks by United States heavy bombers Sunday and Monday. RAF Mosquitos were over the port Sunday night too.

The Air Ministry announced that photographs taken twelve hours after the Sunday night attack on Essen showed that thirteen more buildings of the Krupp works were severely damaged and many were still burning.

London, Wednesday, July 28 (AP)—The Axis-controlled radio, at Calais, French channel port, went off the air after midnight indicating that RAF raiders were out again.

King George Receives Gen. Devers

London, July 27 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of United States forces in the European theater, was received by King George VI at Buckingham Palace today. The King also granted an audience to T. V. Soong, Chinese Foreign Minister, and to Prime Minister Churchill.

Nazi General Is Reported Punished for Cowardice

Invasion Rumor Said to Have Distracted Holland Chief

LONDON, July 27 (AP).—Aneta, the Netherlands news agency, reported today that Air General Friedrich Christiansen, commander of German military forces in the Netherlands, had been court-martialed for cowardice. The agency gave as its source a Moscow broadcast quoting a Stockholm dispatch from The Hague.

The report said that when British troops were rumored recently to have landed at several points on the Netherlands coast, "Christiansen lost his head completely and ordered out his troops without investigating the rumors."

In the resultant confusion, Aneta said, German soldiers deserted in large numbers and fled.

London Correspondents Give Lunch For Davis

London, July 27 (AP)—The Association of American Correspondents in London held a luncheon today for Elmer Davis, director of the United States Office of War Information.

Among the guests were a number of prominent American newspapermen visiting England. They included Robert McLean, publisher of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; Basil Walters, executive editor of the Minneapolis Star-Journal and Tribune; Paul Patterson, president of the Baltimore Sunpapers; Oliver Keller, president of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, and William R. Hearst, Jr., publisher of the New York Journal-American.

Robert Bunnelle, chief of the Associated Press bureau in London, presided at the luncheon, and Davis made an off-the-record talk.

British Submarines Create Havoc in Ægean

London, July 27 (A. P.). — British submarines have made a number of daring forays into the Ægean, where they bombarded Greek shore targets, particularly in the Salonika area, and have destroyed four ships and nineteen small vessels, an Admiralty communique announced today.

Hits were scored on sheds, dynamite dumps and a bauxite plant and installations on the island of Amorgos in the Ægean, at Tratoni in the Gulf of Hierissos near Salonika, Potidhaia in the Gulf of Salonika, at Kastro on the island of Lemnos and at Nea Playia on the approaches to Salonika.

Man Who Nearly Hit Monte Carlo Honored

London, July 27 (AP) — Lieut. James Ralph Drummond, the submarine commander who almost blew up the bank at Monte Carlo with torpedoes, received the Distinguished Service Order tonight.

While operating in the Mediterranean, Drummond's submarine fired two torpedoes at a supply ship off the French Riviera. One sank the ship. The other exploded on the beach of Monte Carlo just below the casino.

10,000 PRISONERS DEBARK IN BRITAIN

Biggest Convoy of Kind Runs Gantlet of U-Boats and Axis Planes Without a Scratch

ITALIANS GAY, NAZIS GLUM

Axis Partners Assigned to Different Ships — Ages Range From 17 to 70

By HENRY B. JAMESON
For the Combined American Press.

A BRITISH PORT, Wednesday, July 28—The greatest mass movement of war prisoners ever undertaken by boat has been accomplished without a hitch, despite Axis efforts to sink the ships that were carrying their own soldiers out of the Mediterranean war zone.

An Allied convoy transporting thousands of German and Italian prisoners from North Africa to Britain recently beat off both German submarines and air attacks on the way.

The targets, of course, were the big troopships, none of which were so much as scratched, but it gave the prisoners some weary moments of action they did not bargain for—being fired on by their own guns after they no longer were of any value to the war machine.

[According to a Reuter dispatch from London, the prisoners in the convoy numbered 10,000.]

Some idea of the size of the convoy might be indicated by the fact that unloading required three days.

Italians Cheery, Nazis Glum

All the ships did not come into the same port, but one transport after another pulled into position here like cattle trains to disgorge their passengers. The prisoners were taken ashore in groups of fifty and escorted to waiting trains which scattered them to various camps throughout the country. There were no officers above the rank of major.

While there was no sign of disorder among the prisoners, ranging in age from 17 to 70 (there was actually one Italian reported to be aged 70), a glaring difference was noted in the attitude of the Germans and the Italians who were moved on different ships.

The Italians, with few exceptions, appeared cheerful, obviously tickled to be out of the war. Many of them were almost pitifully clad in weather-beaten, unmatching uniforms and misfit shoes, but the big majority had a broad smile for photographers.

One handsome young air force officer, spotting three United States Army officers on the train platform, jumped to the window, waving his arms and shouting in perfect English: "Welcome Americans." Several others joined the chorus.

Before boarding the train another Italian officer turned to some Allied officers and said: "Thank you for your kindness." He then gave them a snappy American salute.

It was an entirely different picture with the Germans.

Germans Better Dressed

All of them were much better dressed, but their actions seemed to radiate the hatred that nazism taught them to hold for the Allies. For the most part, they were young men who grew up in the Hitler Youth Movement—warriors who were made to believe they were invincible and who, a year ago, were racing triumphantly toward Alexandria with Field Marshal General Erwin Rommel.

Here they appeared restless and chagrined under a heavy guard of tough-looking British Tommies. They were deeply tanned and had a fine physical appearance, but there was little conversation among them. They just glared into space like caged animals following orders.

The first German off one ship was typical of the majority. He was a 20-year-old junior officer, wearing the sandy brown uniform of the Hermann Goering Division and the Iron Cross over his heart—twelve of the first fifty off the boat wore Iron Crosses. When a newsreel photographer turned his machine in his direction he clenched his fists and mumbled something under his breath and quickly turned his back on the camera.

"They don't look as hard and tough physically as the Jerries of the last war," said a veteran, "but they look a hell of a lot meaner."

Wrist Watches Abound

Virtually all the Nazi prisoners wore fine wrist watches, and heavy rings of which not nearly so many were noted among the Italians. One Panzer division major sported a monocle.

Correspondents were not permitted to interview any prisoners.

United States military police under the command of Capt. John Prinizy Roswell of New Mexico served as guard aboard one of the Italian ships. The other officers were Lieuts. Merton Rowe of Gardiner, Me., and Clinton E. Armstrong of El Paso, Tex. Most of the enlisted men in this outfit were from the Middle West and the Southwest.

To facilitate unloading the prisoners, the Americans, whose job ended when the ship docked, were fed field-kitchen style on the docks by a staff under the direction of Capt. Chris Anderson of Chicago, assistant quartermaster of this port.

Flying Chef Discharges Pistol At Nazi Airman When Gun Jams

A U. S. BOMBER STATION 1, ENGLAND—(AP) A voluble, stocky, bushy-haired little sergeant of Italian parentage has gone from mess cook to Flying Fortress gunner since he joined the Army, but all the officers at this station, including Captain Clark Gable, hope he gets grounded and sent back to their kitchen. BRANHAM

Whenever the name of Sergeant Paul Joseph Posti, 30, of Boston and Los Angeles, is mentioned the officers say:

"He's a damn good cook"—and smack their lips in fond recollection of the many savory dishes he used to prepare for them.

"Wait," pleads the agitated Sergeant Posti. "Until I've sweated out my missions (completed combat duties) and after I've had a little leave I'll come back and cook for you."

"The boys," moans the little sergeant, "are just looking for an excuse to shanghai me back into the kitchen."

Other Talents Too

Versatile, American-born Sergeant Posti, whose accomplishments include proficiency as a linguist and sleight-of-hand artist, was a chef in civilian life, cooking in hotels and restaurants in Boston, St. Louis, Hollywood and Los Angeles. At Hollywood he worked at the Brown Derby and at a Universal studio restaurant.

He said he still received royalties from a cook book published through a Boston firm.

Sergeant Posti enlisted as a cook. The Army sent him to gunnery school. Before you could say Jack Robinson—almost—Sergeant Posti found himself aboard a Flying Fortess as a waistgunner.

But before his bomber Eschelon roared off for England, Sergeant Posti ran into trouble.

The circumstances are somewhat clouded. Sergeant Posti's version is that he had permission to stay out, but his commanding officer said he failed to report back to camp on time from leave. Anyway, sergeants don't argue with captains, and Sergeant Posti found himself "busted" back to a G.I. private.

Into a mess kitchen he went. And in an officers mess he stayed for several weeks after arriving in England—to the great delight of his seniors. One of them was Captain Gable, who Sergeant Posti recalls once gave him and his staff a $50 tip back in Hollywood.

Sergeant Posti says he likes to cook but he didn't like staying here while his former Flying Fortress comrades were fighting over Europe.

Frequent petitions to his commanding officer eventually were rewarded with reinstatement as a sergeant waistgunner. Gleefully Sergeant Posti discarded his chef's cap.

On his very first raid—to Hulst, Germany, on June 22—Sergeant Posti shot down an enemy fighter.

The boys are still chuckling over the little sergeant's latest exploit during the American attack on the St. Nazaire submarine base June 28.

On that mission Sergeant Posti flew as waistgunner on the Fortress "Belle of the Bayou" piloted by First Lieutenant Jack H. O'Mohondro of Crowley, La. Sergeant Posti poured out so much lead at enemy fighters his machinegun burned out. As the Fortress started home a lone Focke-Wulf bore in on Sergeant Posti's side.

Sergeant Posti's gun was useless. Undaunted, the resourceful sergeant pulled out a 38-caliber revolver he always carries on raids, and emptied it at the German.

"Naw, I didn't really expect to stop him with that pistol," grinned Sergeant Posti afterward, "but that Focke Wulf was coming right at me only about 100 yards away—and there I was helpless."

The German, Sergeant Posti said, paid for his folly. The ball turret gunner, Sergeant Russell R. Nelson of Indianapolis, Ind., shot him down.

Sergeant Posti speaks Italian, French and Spanish. While working in California, he said he sometimes did special work as an interpreter for the Glendale Police department.

Sergeant Posti is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Posti of Boston. His father is a commission broker.

SOVIETS CONTINUE CLOSING OREL GAP

Troops Advance From Two To Four Miles On Three Sides Of German Base

[By the Associated Press]

London, Wednesday, July 28—Soviet troops stormed heights "of great tactical importance" and repelled repeated German counter-attacks yesterday as they moved from two and a half to four miles closer on Orel from three directions, taking more than fifty populated places.

The midnight Soviet communique, reported by the Associated Press, gave this picture of the Russian sweep on the German bastion:

North of Orel—The Russians moved in, capturing several populated places and a number of heights of tactical importance. On one of these, Soviet artillery and infantry killed 400 Germans. Fourteen tanks and four armored cars were disabled or destroyed. In another sector, one strong point frequently changed hands but by the end of the day a flanking march by the Russians routed a battalion of German infantry and firmly dug in at the strong point.

Artillery Barrage

East of Orel—the Germans flung down an artillery barrage and sent their men forward time and again with counter-attacks to halt the Soviets. All were repulsed and in the fighting around two populated places 800 Germans were killed, eighteen tanks wrecked and six self-propelled guns destroyed. A number of populated places were occupied here. The Soviet advance continued.

South of Orel—the Germans fought bitterly to hold on to intermediate lines but were forced to retreat from one position after another. Over 1,000 Germans were wiped out in two days' fighting here as twenty-six tanks were destroyed.

The Germans were fighting desperately for the strategic Orel-Bryansk railway, their one main supply line from the west, and Moscow dispatches last night said the closest point the Russians had reached to that line still was Studenkovo, five miles to the north.

Positions Improved

Considerable improvement of Russian positions in the Belgorod area, south of Orel, was reported by a special Soviet communique which said the fighting continued to be of local importance.

Russians Improve Positions

In fighting north and east of Mga, which is 30 miles southwest of Leningrad, the Russians also reported improvement in their positions. It was the first Russian acknowledgement of renewed fighting in the north despite German reports that a Russian offensive was underway here.

Ninety German tanks were disabled or destroyed and 44 German planes brought down throughout the day on the long Russian front, the communique said.

New Nazi Tactic

German explanations, broadcast by Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, were that the Nazis aimed to "exhaust Russian strength by continual battle"—a new role for the exponents of lightning war—and were not interested in territorial gains but in safeguarding occupied territory to make it economically profitable.

Gen. Kurt Dittmar, German radio commentator, said Soviet reserves appeared "almost inexhaustible" and said the Germans had inflicted such high losses on the Russians that "the battle can now be rightly called the battle of attrition."

SOVIET CAPITAL SEES 'MISSION TO MOSCOW'

Only Minor Cuts Made in Film for Public Showing

MOSCOW, July 27 (AP)—"Mission to Moscow," Hollywood version of Ambassador Joseph E. Davies' story of his assignment to the Russian capital, opened in Moscow today with minor cuts.

In general the Russian audience liked the picture, but was amused by some of Hollywood's ideas on Russian life.

The scene in the British Embassy where the Ambassador pulls the telephone plug to prevent the use of eavesdropping mechanism before continuing his conversation, is left in the picture, but a scene in the American Embassy where the secretaries tell Davies the walls have been tapped is deleted.

The Russians were amused at Hollywood's idea of their ice skating in an Alpine resort atmosphere. The famous Moscow trial scenes were watched with intense interest while the biggest laugh came when President Roosevelt was depicted telling Davies:

"I don't care what the Russians think of you, I want to know what you think of the Russians."

U. S. FIGHTERS BOMB FOE IN NORTH BURMA

Troop Centers and Communication Lines Main Targets

NEW DELHI, Burma, July 27 (AP)—Warhawk fighter-bombers of the Tenth United States Air Force blasted numerous Japanese troop centers and communication lines in widespread raids over Northern Burma on Sunday, a communiqué said today.

An enemy base at Mogaung was the most important target. A large building was destroyed, while the military area was showered with fragmentation bombs, leaving many fires.

A bridge at Tiangzup was knocked out of commission, while repair crews rebuilding previously destroyed bridges at Nsopzup and Hpunginzup were dispersed by machine-gun fire. Barracks at Sumta and north of Katha were bombed. Medium bombers reported near-misses on a steamer near Akyab on Saturday.

One American aircraft was reported missing after having encountered a monsoon during these operations.

13 Japanese Planes Lost In Raids on U. S. Bases

7 of 8 Zeros Are Shot Down in Attack on Kwangsi Field

CHUNGKING, July 27 (AP).—The Japanese air force, continuing an offensive against advance bases of the United States 14th Air Force in Kwangsi and Hunan Provinces, lost thirteen planes shot down on Saturday and two others probably destroyed, Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today. One American plane was destroyed by enemy action but the pilot was reported safe.

Seven out of eight Zeros attacking a Kwangsi base were intercepted and shot down. More than forty bombers and fighters were intercepted over the target in Hunan, the attacking formations losing three Zeros, three bombers and two other planes probably destroyed.

The crommunique said the Japanese caused minor damage to installations.

U. S. Planes Hit Hankow, Tokio Radio Announces

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 27.—The Tokio radio reported today that 20 American bombers yesterday raided the Japanese base at Hankow in Hupeh Province, China.

The broadcast, recorded by Reuters, said four of the raiders were shot down. There was no immediate official confirmation from Allied sources.

YANKS 2,100 YARDS FROM JAP AIRBASE

New Advances Scored In Jungle Mile And Fifth From Munda

SPENCER

Veterans Drive Through Strong Defenses—Salamana Bombed Anew

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Wednesday, July 28—Green-clad American soldiers and marines, slugging steadily forward through the jungles of New Georgia, have scored new advances which have carried them to within less than a mile and one-fifth of the strategic Japanese airbase at Munda.

The jungle veterans drove through strong Japanese defenses to the east of the airdrome yesterday in the second consecutive day of advance. A spokesman at General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the new thrust took the Americans to within 2,100 yards of the airdrome.

Considerable Advance

Driving forward in what the spokesman called "a considerable advance" all along the battle line, the Americans passed the coastal village of Tetere.

General MacArthur's communique said they "continued their pressure against the enemy cenetrs of resistance." These centers probably are dugouts p'aced so that machine-gun fire can cover advances against each post.

Allied bombers again attacked the Salamaua area in New Guinea, dropping 123 tons of high explosive on enemy installations. It was the second consecutive day of concentrated bombing of that area. The day before 137 tons of bombs were dropped in the heaviest single day's assault on Salamaua.

35-Minute Attack

Liberators and Mitchells in the largest number ever used against Salamaua made yesterday's attack, which lasted only about 35 minutes.

Groups of the bombers went in, one after another, and delivered a sustained pounding. Scarcely four minutes elapsed between the time one flight of bombers left until the next one was over the target.

Returning pilots reported great fires and heavy explosions all the way from Salamaua to Kela. Bombs were seen landing squarely on gun positions, barracks, and the Salamaua wireless station.

Lae Bombed

Medium bombers attacked enemy barge concentrations and supply dumps at Lae, causing explosions and fires. Four enmy fighters were in the air over Lae but did not venture to intercept.

The Japanese also were busy in the air. An enemy plane dropped four bombs on Woodlark Island to the east of New Guinea in the first bombing of that little island since Allied forces occupied it at the start of the new Southwest Pacific offensive, June 30.

Other Japanese bombers attacked American positions north of Salus Lake in the Nassau Bay area. The communique said the attacks were ineffective.

Kahili Raided

Flying Fortresses from the Thirteenth Air Force raided the Kahili airdrome on Bougainville Island before dawn yesterday, scoring direct hits on the runway area. We lost one Fortress to Japanese night fighters. It was the first reported instance of an enemy night fighter shooting down one of our bombers in the Southwest Pacific area.

Other targets for our bombers included Koepang, Timor; the Vitu Islands, just north of New Britain; Gasmata, New Britain, and the Vila airdrome on Kolombangara Island.

Two small Japanese coastal ships, beached after earlier attacks by our bombers at Jacquinot Bay, New Britain, were set afire by medium bombers and long-range fighters. The ships were believed a total loss.

Japs Reinforced

The forward movement toward Munda, on New Georgia Island, was made with the support of Avengers and Dauntless bombers which hurled thirty-five tons of explosives upon enemy positions. Last week nearly 600 tons of explosives were cascaded upon the Japanese in the airdrome area.

The ground advance apparently was made despite Japanese reinforcements. Reports from Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific headquarters said that material aid had reached the enemy from Kolombanga Island a few miles north of New Georgia.

Such reinforcements must have been made under the cover of darkness across the narrow Kula Gulf. Attempts to aid Munda have resulted in the sinking of at least seventeen Japanese warships.

While the ground forces struggled forward, the air service continued its softening up process by dropping eighty-two tons of bombs Monday on gun positions and troop targets around the large base.

U. S. Ground Forces Attack Munda After Week of Bombing

By the Associated Press. McDANIEL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 27.—Presaged by a 600-ton air and sea bombardment, the American ground offensive against the strategic Munda airbase in the Central Solomons was under way today.

Softened up by a week's continual bombing, the Japanese gave ground grudgingly all along the perimeter of Munda's defenses yesterday, 500 yards in one sector, and while details of the fighting were lacking it undoubtedly was the start of the long-heralded advance.

This first general offensive reported since the battle for New Georgia Island began four weeks ago followed a destructive attack Monday morning by Navy Dauntless and Avenger bombers which braved intense ground fire to dump 82 tons of bombs on pin-pointed gun positions and personnel targets around the big base.

An unspecified number and type of Allied warships earlier had lobbed shells into the Munda defenses in what a spokesman for Gen. MacArthur termed a "heavy bombardment."

The beleauguered Japanese at Munda have been blockaded effectively by Allied planes and ships. The latest attempt to run the Allied gantlet into New Georgia occurred the night of July 23-24 when a group of barges heading into Kula Gulf under cover of darkness was spotted by a light surface force which sank one barge and damaged two others, although a few small craft may have broken through.

To the west on New Guinea, formations of Liberators and Flying Fortresses dumped 137 tons of bombs on the Salamaua area—the heaviest bomb load yet dropped in a single day on that sector.

More than 30 Zeroes challenged the American air superiority, but it cost the enemy 11 and probably 16 of their fighters against the loss of one of ours.

Liberators, escorted by a strong fighter screen, bombed dispersal and bivouac areas of the Buin-Faisi airdrome where airmen had reported an enemy plane concentration. Fighters swept the field with cannon and machine-gun fire.

Mitchells bombed and strafed supply areas at Vila on Kolombangara Island, causing fires which burned for hours. Buin on Bougainville also was heavily hit.

South of Salamaua, Allied forces at Nassau Bay and at Tambu Bay a few miles to the north were attacked ineffectively by Japanese bombers.

U.S. Drive on Munda Is On; Japs Resisting to Last Man

Americans Slash Through Jungle in Slow Advance — New Offensive Follows Aerial Softening of Enemy.

South Pacific Headquarters, July 27 (AP).—United States troops are slashing forward from several directions in the drive on the strategic Munda airfield, a naval spokesman said today, but the Japs apparently are determined to follow the disastrous "fight-to-the-last-man" tactics of the Attu campaign.

The heavy drive for the key point on New Georgia Island in the central Solomons began Sunday morning in a co-ordinated ship-plane attack in which well over 200 of our aircraft dropped 186 tons of bombs and Navy vessels laid a heavy bombardment on the Munda Peninsula.

The naval spokesman indicated the Japanese have been able to re-inforce Munda slightly, but not in any considerable number. This was probably accomplished by small barges which sneaked to port at night.

[Today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported our light naval craft intercepted enemy barges attempting to run supplies into New Georgia by night. One barge was sunk, two others damaged. It was believed others managed to get through.]

American troops made good progress in the face of stubborn ground resistance by the beleaguered enemy, the spokesman said. Light tanks were used where the jungle terrain allowed.

[Our troops advanced 500 yards closer to the Munda airfield yesterday, according to MacArthur's communique.]

The Americans—Marines and soldiers—are finding it necessary to search out every Jap and kill him, the Navy officer said, since there appears to be no surrendering. So it was in the bitter campaign in which the Nipponese lost Attu in the Aleutian Islands with hardly any soldiers left to take prisoners.

Loss of the Munda airfield will not necessarily mean an end to Jap resistance on New Georgia, for the remnants may attempt to flee in the jungle hills and continue resistance. It is unlikely, however, that many will escape.

Lt. Richard Bong Top Ace in Pacific

By the Associated Press.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA July 27. (Delayed)—First Lt. Richard Bong of Poplar, Wis., steped into the leadership as the premier fighter ace in the Southwest Pacific area during a spectacular battle with Japanese planes yesterday.

Speedy P-38s attacked a formation of enemy bombers and fighters near Lae, New Guinea, shot down 11 and destroyed or possibly damaged at least five more.

The battle was highlighted by the performance of Lt. Bong and Capt. James Watkins of Crystal Springs, Miss., who shot down four planes each—an achievement believed unprecedented in this area.

One of the Lightnings was shot down but the pilot parachuted out and was believed safe.

Lt. Bong already had 11 enemy planes to his credit, and his new total of 15 placed him at the head of American aces in the Southwest Pacific theater.

Capt. Watkins had downed one plane previously, so he entered the rank of aces which is limited to pilots with five or more planes to their credit.

Argentina to Rule 6 U.S. Firms

Assumes Supervision Also of British Plant in Move to Investigate Violations.

Buenos Aires, July 27 (A. P.).—The Argentine Government in a decree today assumed supervision of eight important industrial establishments, including six American-owned plants engaged in the production of farm machinery, automobiles and tires.

The United States firms affected were the Ford Motor Company, General Motors of Argentina, International Harvester Company of Argentina, Goodyear Neumatico Sociedad Anonima (corporation), Firestone de la Argentina Sociedad Anonima and Michelin Sociedad Anonima Argentina de Neumaticos.

The British-owned Dunlop Pneumatic Tire Company also came under the measure. The eighth company was not named.

The decree said action was being taken to investigate charges that the firms violated commercial laws which fix maximum prices and require adequate stocks to be maintained.

The Ministry of Agriculture in an announcement described the move as "interventorship"—a system under which Government installs officials as supervisors of private business firms.

The announcement said the books of all establishments would be examined carefully and that their inventories would be scrutinized.

Branches Included.

"The measures extends to headquarters (in Buenos Aires) as well as to outlying branches throughout the country, "the Ministry statement said, "thus bringing about more equitable distribution of supplies available and rooting out speculation." The statement added that "numerous functionaries and technicians" already had gone into action to carry out the decree.

The automotive establishments listed all had been operating under restrictions imposed by war. All maintain assembly plants—depending on parts from the United States—which normally turn out cars and farm machinery.

Wallace Sends Letter To Latin-American Unit

Havana, July 27 (AP)—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, of the United States, in a message to the Confederation of Latin-American Workers, today said post-war progress "shall rest fundamentally on a standard of living that will permit the material well-being and spiritual liberty of each and every one."

The Vice-President's letter in Spanish said the existence of the Confederation "shows that solidarity among the peoples of the Americas is not a myth, a mere agreement between governments, but a living reality."

U. S. 'Chutists with Bazookas Halt Big Nazi Tanks in Sicily

WASHINGTON, July 27 — (AP) A parachute combat team, landing in Sicily in the darkness and going into action for the first time, held off a German armored division for 30 hours and blocked its attempt to drive to the sea between American beach landings, Major General Joseph M. Swing reported today.

"It was the largest simultaneous airborne effort ever undertaken," the general said at a press conference. "We landed them by the thousands in Sicily, and we hope to land them by tens of thousands next time."

Armed with bazookas, light 75 mm. howitzers and 50-caliber machine guns as well as small arms, the paratroops came down about six miles inland and between the first and 45th divisions, which were landing on the beaches at Gala and Scoglitti.

Even the huge 60-ton Mark 6 German tanks were turned back by the howitzers and bazookas of the American paratroops, General Swing reported.

He credited the paratroops' success against the 15th Panzer division to their courage, saying that the men waited until the lumbering tanks were no more than 50 yards away before opening fire.

"We had youngsters crawling on their bellies up through the light brush toward approaching tanks, trying to fire through the slits in front with their rifles," he continued.

"Is that effective?" he was asked.

"If you hit the slit, it's effective, all right—there's a driver right behind the slit," General Swing retorted.

Commander of the 11th airborne division, he went to North Africa to serve as advisor on American airborne operations to General Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, commander of ground forces in the Sicilian invasion.

GEN. GILES NAMED CHIEF OF AIR STAFF

Succeeds Stratemeyer, Who Has Secret Assignment of 'Extreme Importance'

HERO OF CAPE COD RESCUE

Holder of New Headquarters Post Was Overseas in Last War, Rose From Ranks

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Barney McK. Giles was appointed chief of air staff today, succeeding Maj. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, who has received "an undisclosed assignment of extreme importance."

General Giles, who has been serving as Assistant Chief of Air Staff for Operations, Commitments and Requirements, was born in Mineola, Texas, Sept. 13, 1892. He entered the Army as an enlisted man in the aviation section of the Signal Corps in 1917 and served overseas in World War I with the 168th Observation Squadron.

In 1935, as a major, General Giles was one of the first officers to fly a four-motored airplane—one of the original B-17 Flying Fortresses. He won the Distinguished Flying Cross in 1936 for leading the heroic rescue of seven CCC youths who had been adrift on the ice off Cape Cod for twenty-three hours.

Soon after the start of this war he was appointed general in Command of the 4th Air Service Command at San Francisco. Before reporting to Washington for service at headquarters last March, he commanded successively the 4th Bomber Command and the 4th Air Force.

As Assistant Chief of Air Staff, General Giles determined tactics and technique of aerial warfare and requirements for trained personnel and for aircraft, equipment and supplies. He had full control of War Organization and Movement of the Air Corps. Miss Jacqueline Cochran, Director of Women Pilots, was one of his special assistants in the department.

General Stratemeyer was born in Cincinnati Nov. 24, 1890, and was graduated from West Point in 1915. He was graduated from the Command and General Staff School in 1932 and from the Air Corps Tactical School in 1930. He was assigned at Air Forces Headquarters after his graduation from the Army War College in 1939.

JUL 28 1943

WASHINGTON, July 27 — (AP) Deneen A. Watson, national chairman of the Republican Post-War Policy association, denied today that his group is trying to "split the Republican party" or that it would "bolt" to the Democrats if the G.O.P. failed to name a candidate and adopt a platform next year favoring a "forthright" foreign policy.

Mr. Watson came here with an eastern committee to present association resolutions for a strong international cooperation program to Chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the Republican National committee, for consideration at the National committee's Post-War Advisory council meeting at Mackinac island, Mich., Sept. 6 and 7.

At separate press conferences held afterward by Mr. Spangler and Mr. Watson the tension between the association and National committee groups which has been evident only under the surface broke into the open for the first time.

Letters Charge Split

While Mr. Spangler described the meeting as amicable and said there was "no evidence" that the association was trying to disrupt the party, Mr. Watson told reporters later at his hotel that Mr. Spangler read to the association committee a letter from an unidentified westerner saying the association was trying to split the Republican party and remarked that similar letters were arriving from others.

"Our reply to that," Mr. Watson said, "was that unless we bring this foreign policy issue to the forefront now and acquaint the rank and file with its meaning we will really split the party. We asked that the issue be fought out now and not wait until the bells at Cleveland or Chicago are tolled at the National convention."

Mr. Watson, a Chicago lawyer, said he did not want his organization to be "placed in the position of bolters if we don't get our way."

"We are only reciting facts," he said, "that the party can't win in 1944 unless it adopts a four-square foreign policy."

Besides the resolutions, Mr. Watson read to Mr. Spangler a formal statement saying:

"Above all we urge that you and your council do not heed those timid or short-sighted advocates of political expediency within the party who would have our party spokesmen evade the issue of foreign policy which will dominate all other issues in the campaign of 1944.

Faction Is Cited

"It is unbelievable that the Republican party would seek to evade the question of foreign affairs in the 1944 campaign, and attempt to limit the campaign debate to domestic issues. But there are those within the party who have made this suggestion. x x x

"The Republican Post-War Policy association is committed to the principle of active participation by the United States in world affairs, and to the establishment of a world organization to restrain aggression and to cooperate in the peaceful solution of world problems. The basis of such participation is enlightened self-interest."

Mr. Spangler also issued a formal statement which, like Mr. Watson's, was prepared in advance of the meeting. In it he promised to lay the association resolutions before the Mackinac island meeting, as well as ideas from other groups. He said the council will welcome any constructive suggestions from any other groups or from individual Republicans.

But he asserted out that "our committee and our advisory council are both proceeding upon the premise that the true philosophy and principles of a political party under our form of government come, not from the opinion of any individual or any group of individuals but from the combined thoughts and aspirations of the people who compose it. This is the very essence of our system of government by the people."

ALLIES CHARTERING U. S. CARGO SHIPS

Nations with Surplus Seamen Obtain Vessels for Duration.

WASHINGTON, July 27 — (AP) Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, War Shipping administrator, said tonight that American-built merchant ships are being chartered to United Nations "which have excess pools of maritime personnel due to severe ship losses during the war and which are in need of tonnage."

Admiral Land, in letters to Chairman Bailey (D-NC) of the Senate Commerce committee and Chairman Bland (D-Va) of the House Merchant Marine committee, reported an increase of 250 per cent in the American merchant fleet since Pearl Harbor. He said American-built ships already had been chartered to Norway and Britain, and others would be sent to those and other Allied nations.

After Pearl Harbor, Admiral Land wrote, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill agreed that this country would "be the merchant shipbuilder for our cause," with the British yards devoted largely to construction of naval vessels.

Under instructions from President Roosevelt, he added, the charters to foreign operators are "for the period of the war only."

So far the Norwegians have chartered 80,000 deadweight tons, and the British five ships of unspecified tonnage, with arrangements for the transfer of 15 to 20 ships a month to Britain for a 10-month period.

Arrangements also have been made to charter three vessels to the Dutch government, and two to the Greek government.

WAKE IS BLASTED BY ARMY PLANES DESPITE 30 ZEROS

Many Hits Are Scored; One Liberator Lost; Kiska Lashed.

WASHINGTON, July 27 — (AP) Evidence that Japan is becoming alarmed over the security of its central Pacific chain of island defenses was revealed today in a Navy war bulletin reporting the raid by Army Liberator bombers on enemy held Wake island.

The communique reported that the bombers had to fight their way through two groups of Zero fighters totalling more than 30 planes in order to reach their objective. Despite the fighters and heavy anti-aircraft fire, the Liberators scored many hits on enemy positions, caused a large explosion on the runway and returned to their base with only one plane missing.

The Japanese on the other hand lost nine Zeros definitely destroyed, four probably destroyed and five others damaged.

Steady Poundings

The Wake island raid was made Saturday. On Sunday in the north Pacific, Army Warhawk fighter planes ferried bombs over Japanese-held Kiska island in ten raids to raise the total of attacks in two days to 20. The Sunday bombings were followed up shortly after midnight Monday morning by an unusual one-plane raid on the Gertrude cove area of Kiska. This apparently was intended to keep the Japs from getting any relief or rest from attack.

The Warhawks were credited with hits on the Japanese air field and anti-aircraft positions at North Head which guards the entrance to Kiska harbor and also with strafing the main camp area, North head and Little Kiska island which guards the southern approaches to the harbor.

"Fires were started at Little Kiska and a large explosion was observed on North Head," the communique said.

The lone plane raid, which was made by a Navy Catalina patrol bomber, started fires at Gertrude cove, which lies southwest of the harbor, the Navy reported. These 11 attacks Sunday and early Monday raised to 41 the total number of raids made on Kiska so far this month as a part of what appears to be a pre-invasion softening of enemy defenses.

Pressure at Both Ends

The attacks on Kiska, in conjunction with the offensive under General MacArthur in the southwest Pacific, leave the enemy's first line of defense in the western Pacific under pressure at both ends.

The Japanese could reasonably expect that as part of the developing offensive pressure would be placed on the central portion of the line as well. That they are preparing for it was indicated by the presence of such a large number of fighter planes at Wake. Thirty Zero fighters intercepted the Liberators some distance from the base and another group of unreported number met them nearer the objective, but failed entirely to halt the attack.

WAKE AND KISKA BLASTED BY U. S.

Washington, July 27 (A. P.).—Army fighter-bombers, pounding Kiska Island with pre-invasion thoroughness, made ten more raids on Jap installations, the Navy reported today, and this series of attacks was followed up Sunday night by an unusual single plane assault.

At the same time Secretary Knox reported a flight of Liberator heavy bombers raided Wake Island, and pounded that Japanese base "promiscously and generally."

The lone night bomber which raided Kiska was a Navy Catalina patrol craft, which made probably the first night assault ever delivered against the North Pacific outpost. The Catalina's bombs dropped in sleep-dispelling succession on Gertrude Cove and the main camp section. Fires were started at Gertrude Cove.

The ten raids Sunday and the one shortly after midnight raised to forty-one the total of air attacks on Kiska so far this month. Saturday also had been a ten-round day. The twenty attacks Saturday and Sunday were made by Curtiss Warhawk fighters equipped with bombs. The Navy offered no explanation why heavier planes were not used.

The Navy communique also reported on the Wake Island raid Saturday by Army Liberator heavy bombers. Damage to the Jap-held island in the central Pacific was considerable. The raid destroyed nine fighters of thirty which attempted to intercept. Four other Zeros were listed as probably destroyed, five others were damaged.

One United States plane is missing.

Navy Gives Additions To Its Casualty List

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP).—The Navy announced today twenty-one casualties, including twelve dead and nine missing. In addition, five men previously listed as missing and two as prisoners of war are reported as dead.

This brings to 27,417 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,542 dead, 4,779 wounded, 10,297 missing and 3,799 prisoners of war.

The casualties announced today (those listed are Navy enlisted men unless otherwise specified):

New York

MAJCHER, MATTHEW JOSEPH, aviation machinist's mate, second class, dead (previously reported missing); father, Matthew Majcher, 61 Garden Stree Yonkers.

New Jersey

HARVEY, JOSEPH VOLNEY WILSON, lieutenant (junior grade), dead (reporte missing on May 24); uncle, Captain Gi Robb Wilson, State Aviation Department Trenton.

HUFF, ROBERT J., staff sergeant, Marines dead; father, Benjamin Huff, Wyomin Village, Millburn.

New Device For Sea Warfare Developed

Philadelphia, July 27 (AP)—"New and urgently needed mechanisms for more effectively waging the war at sea" are being developed by the Brown Instrument Company, Capt. Roy W. Bruner, USN, said today in presenting the army-navy "E" award to employes of the concern, a division of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company.

"In this wide field of industrial effort you indeed are contributing most effectively to the great goal of victory," Captain Bruner, who formerly was on the staff of Admiral Thomas C. Hart, said in a prepared address.

Richard P. Brown, chairman of the board, said in accepting the award on behalf of employes that the firm's "great increase" in production has been accomplished without building of new facilities.

Nazi Sub Sinks Ship, Takes Two Of Crew Aboard

Miami, Fla., July 27 (AP)—Two members of the crew of a medium-sized American merchant vessel, torpedoed in the South Atlantic Ocean in mid-July were taken aboard the attacking Nazi submarine for questioning, but were returned to their mates.

Lieut. (j. g.) J. O. Phillips, of Jacksonville, Fla., commander of the navy gun crew, told the story of the sinking upon his arrival here by airplane from South America.

Two torpedoes struck the ship, he related, and she sank a minute after the second exploded.

Only one of the eighty-three men aboard was lost. He was blasted overboard.

Virtually All Attu Wounded Have Been Returned to States

By DANIEL MARSTON

SEATTLE, July 27. — (AP) The first American casualties in the battle of Attu reached the comfort and care of Pacific coast hospitals even before final Japanese organized resistance on the island was overcome, the Seattle post surgeon has disclosed.

Today, Col. Louis Brecheman, Jr., said nearly all the wounded have been brought more than 3,000 miles back to the states from the frosty, fog-ridden beaches of the Aleutian outpost.

"I should say that close to 95 per cent of them are down here now," Colonel Brecheman said in an interview. "A few may remain in well equipped garrison hospitals in the Aleutians, but most have been brought south, either on transports or flown down."

Colonel Brecheman, veteran of many years in the service, and his staff, meet all transports bringing wounded. A hospital train was at the dock when one arrived this month and stretcher cases and the "walking wounded" immediately were placed aboard to be taken to a northwest hospital.

1535 Casualties

(The War department announced at Washington on June 4 a total of 1,535 Attu casualties, 342 dead, 1,135 wounded and 58 missing.

(Contrasting with the care given American wounded, Associated Press staffer William L. Worden told in a Cories lake, Attu, dispatch on May 30 how a Japanese prisoner said seriously wounded Japanese were shot by their own officers, before the last final desperate counter-attack.)

The first casualties arrived here by transport on May 27, Colonel Brecheman said. It was not until May 30, according to a War department communique, that the last main enemy resistance on the island was overcome although scattered pockets remained to be "cleaned up." The first landings were on May 12.

Mr. Worden said in a May 31 dispatch that the battle of Attu ended that day, with the capture of Attu village. Both he and Eugene Burns, also an Associated Press staffer, told of the many casualties from frostbite which men suffered fighting in the snow for days.

The Army and Navy transports which landed the first forces on the Attu beaches took off wounded a few days later, Col. Brecheman said.

Surgeons on Hand

The transports had surgeries and trained medical personnel aboard and one of the garrison hospitals to which some wounded were moved has facilities for 500 patients. The Army Transport service is part of the Transportation corps.

After touching at intermediate points, the transports brought wounded south to Seattle, San Francisco and San Diego. A "shuttle service" was maintained in the Aleutians from one island point to Attu, with one ship making several trips.

The Navy, in one flight with a specially-outfitted plane, brought 22 Army casualties south, landing at a northwest city on June 6.

Devon Army Chaplain Killed in Pacific War

Rev. Neil J. Doyle Died from Wounds, Telegram to Parents Reveals.

DEVON, July 27.—The death of an army chaplain, the Rev. Neil J. Doyle, first lieutenant, from wounds received at the front in the Pacific area, was revealed last night in a telegram from the Secretary of War to Father Doyle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Doyle of 8 Housatonic Drive.

Father Doyle was ordained on May 30, 1935 in the St. Joseph's Cathedral, Hartford, and said his first mass in St. Ann's church Devon, on June 3, that year.

He served as curate in the Immaculate Conception church, Waterbury, the Sacred Heart church, New Haven, and the Blessed Sacrament church, Waterbury, from which he left to enter the Army.

TOKYO POLICY STANDS, SHIGEMITSU ASSERTS

Foreign Minister Confers With Nazi and Italian Envoys

Domei, official Japanese News agency, in a broadcast by the Tokyo radio yesterday, said that Foreign Minister Mamoru Shingemitsu told the Japanese Cabinet that Japan's war policy would remain completely unchanged despite any new developments that might follow the resignation of Benito Mussolini. The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press.

Meanwhile, according to Domei, political quarters in Tokyo expressed belief that developments in Italy would in no way affect Japan's situation. They said Japan was determined to continue her efforts to accomplish her great aims—construction of a Greater East Asia and the consummation of the present war.

At the same time, Domei reported, close attention was being paid by Japanese officials to the proclamation of Premier Pietro Badoglio that the "war will continue."

The Berlin radio quoted dispatches from Tokyo yesterday as saying that Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu had conferred with German Ambassador Heinrich G. Stahmer for an hour on Monday "on the European situation," the Office of War Information reported.

The conference was requested by Mr. Shigemitsu, the broadcast said.

A Tokyo broadcast recorded in London said Italian Ambassador Mario Indelli had assured the Japanese Foreign Minister in an hour-long interview that Italy's war policy based on the Axis pact was not affected.

A Berlin broadcast, recorded by Reuter in London, also reported that Mr. Shigemitsu had made a report to the Diet on developments in Italy.

Postwar Confusion Provided Basis for Mussolini's Success

(How Mussolini seized power in Italy is related by Richard G. Massock, chief of the former Associated Press bureau in Rome, in this second of four articles detailing the rise and fall of the Fascist leader.)

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

The aftermath of World War I was made to order for Mussolini's rise to power.

Italy was in a mess.

Many felt that she had been cheated of the full spoils of war at the peace table. These were the nationalists.

Many felt the intense economic depression, the growing unemployment, the heavily mounting taxes, the inflation-lowered wages. These were the workers.

The Bolsheviks had established themselves in power in Russia. Emboldened by this, the Italian revolutionaries sought to accomplish a similar upheaval in their country. They fomented labor and political disturbances, food riots, violent seizure of property and street brawls, often bloody.

Formed New Party

To exploit this postwar unrest and to seize leadership of the revolutionary wing, Mussolini, who had been a Socialist leader, formed a new revolutionary nucleus in Milan. Thus Fascism was born.

On March 23, 1919, he formally established the Fasci Italiani di Combattimento, literally Italian fighting groups, at a meeting in Milan of 145 followers. They dressed in military breeches, black shirts and tasseled fezzes.

Mussolini still professed to be a social revolutionary. He told the gathering, "We must lead the workers; we must affirm the demands of the working class."

His official program called for a heavy tax on capital, limitation of private fortunes, confiscation of unproductive capital, confiscation of property belonging to religious orders, parceling of landed estates among the peasants, management of industry, transportation and public services by syndicates of technicians and workers, proclamation of an Italian republic and creation of a national constituent assembly as the Italian section of "The International Constitutent Assembly of the Peoples," which sounded much like a Communist international.

Turned Against Socialists

In his bid for power, Mussolini's Fascists turned their violence particularly against the Italian Socialist party, the more moderate organization, which controlled the General Confederation of Labor, with a membership of nearly 2,225,000 workers.

But the Fascists battled Socialists and Communists alike, for they represented the proletarian masses of whom Mussolini wanted to be the Duce (leader).

The Fascists broke the fighting spirit of Socialism by burning of its clubs, co-operative societies and chambers of commerce, destruction of private houses, slayings of individuals, systematic bludgeonings and dosing with castor oil.

Mussolini wrote on June 2, 1921:

"To say that the Bolshevik still exists in Italy represents an attempt to substitute fear for reality, from motives of self-interest. Bolshevism has been disowned by the leaders and the people."

With Socialism in retreat, Communism cowed and the threat of a Bolshevik revolution dispelled, Mussolini had eliminated the biggest obstacle in his path to power—the proletarian organizations on which the government might rely for defense of the state.

Government Was Weak

A weak parliament and government invited direct defiance.

Mussolini had organized the Fascists as a political party in the spring of 1921.

Consumed by ambition, gifted with an astute political sense and an extraordinary singleness of purpose, devoid of scruples, Mussolini relied on the manpower of his private army, intimidation and brainpower to gain his aim—control of the state.

After a 100-to-1 defeat in his first campaign for a seat in Parliament in 1919, Mussolini had been able to enter the Chamber of Deputies, with a handful of followers, in the 1921 elections. But the democratic parliamentary process of attaining power was too slow for him.

Better, for his plans, was a march on Rome. This he organized after a Fascist party congress in Naples, at which he took "a solemn oath that either the government of the country must be given peacefully to the Fascists or we will take it by force."

Pledges Loyalty to King

To win the sympthies of the army, which was anti-republican, he declared, for the first time, his allegiance to the King.

After a quadrumvirate of lieutenants had mobilized and armed his supporters, Mussolini ordered the march on the capital in his newspaper on October 27. Premier Facta declared martial law, but King Victor Emmanuel, to avert civil war, he said, refused to sign the decree.

Instead, he summoned Mussolini to Rome to form a cabinet.

Mussolini took a night train from Milan, was met at Civitavecchia by the King's motor car and proceeded directly to the palace, where he apologized to the King for his soiled black shirt.

Armed Fascist guards, unresisted, began to enter Rome, where on October 31, they paraded, 40,000 strong, before the Duce and the King. The so-called Fascist revolution had taken place.

Consolidated Victory

The Fascists were still a minority in the first coalition government of Mussolini, but the new Prime Minister soon obtained full powers from Parliament. With his militia, he consolidated the victory.

The Socialist opposition persisted until the elections of April 6, 1924, when Mussolini gained his first majority of the seats in the Chamber. Through their leader, Giacomo Matteotti, the Socialists demanded annulment of the elections with charges of violence and fraud by the Fascists.

Matteotti disappeared. More than two months later his headless body was found in a ditch outside Rome.

Of all the crimes charged against Mussolini and his Fascists, the murder of Matteotti was the blackest. The indignation it aroused nearly wrecked them.

But Mussolini sailed through the crisis. The parliamentary opposition had withdrawn to the Aventine, one of Rome's seven hills, and its rage, without the leadership of another Matteotti, was impotent.

Mussolini, who had first denied the charges of political murder, was so emboldened by the weakness of his opponents that he boldly announced on January 3, 1925, his personal responsibility for Fascist action, outrages and all.

Determined to destroy his enemies, he declared the banishment of all parties other than his own.

From that day on, Mussolini was an absolute dictator.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A formal warning to Italy that she will be "seared and scarred and blackened" unless she breaks utterly with her Nazi overlords has been sounded by Prime Minister Churchill.

In effect, Mr. Churchill outlined to Italy the only terms on which an armistice would be granted. They represent by implication some modification of the "unconditional surrender" pattern mapped for the foe at Casablanca. They also confirm first impressions that the Washington and London authorities are prepared to deal with the still nebulous situation in Italy now only on a strictly military basis.

The Allies will make no political deals with a tottering foe. They deem continued Italian resistance futile in any event. They are prepared to take by force what they need to press the war vigorously on the prime enemy, Nazi Germany.

That does not include Allied occupation of all Italy. Mr. Churchill made that clear in his outline of the situation to Parliament. It would be a mistake, he said, "to break down the whole structure and expression of the Italian state".

"We certainly do not seek to reduce Italian life to a condition of chaos and anarchy and find ourselves without any authorities with whom to deal", he added.

That clearly indicates Allied willingness to accept capitulation from the Badoglio government or any other government with authority to speak and the power to maintain orderly processes in such Italian territory as is not needed by the Allies to press the attack on Germany. It contemplates no general disarmament of Italian forces, no Allied policing of all Italy; but only surrender of "all the indispensable requirements we demand for carrying on the war against our prime and capital foe, which is not Italy, but Germany."

Demands in Essence

Reduced to concrete terms, those demands probably include:

(1)—Complete Italian repudiation of Germany and the Axis, regardless of whether that results in Italian-Nazi conflicts in Italy or elsewhere.

(2)—Surrender to the Allies undamaged of such bases in Italy as may be required for pressing the attack on Germany. Sardinia and Corsica as well as strategic centers on the Italian "boot" or elsewhere probably would be included.

(3)—Demilitarization if not surrender of the Italian war fleet, and actual transfer of Italian merchant shipping to Allied hands.

(4)—Prompt withdrawal of all Italian forces outside Italy proper, whether in France, on the Greek peninsula, on the islands of the Aegean, including the Italian Dodecanese group, or in Russia.

(5)—Dismantlement of Italian war factories not needed to maintain such troops as required for police purposes in unoccupied Italy.

On those terms or something very like them, Italy would not only be spared the "avalanche" of Allied air, sea and amphibious attack, but probably would be assured of Allied help in meeting any German attempts to retaliate against her.

Withheld Specific Requirements

Mr. Churchill naturally did not specify the "indispensable requirements" demanded of Italy, other than divorcement of the Axis and Germany. To have done so would have furnished Berlin with valuable military information as to where and when the next Allied blows from the south would fall.

It is self-evident, however, that Allied commitments to the French in Africa and the people of continental France must dictate occupation of Sardinia and Corsica. General Eisenhower's bombers are already moving in against Sardinia from Sicily. Sardinia is one of the natural stepping stones to the south coast of France.

It is also obvious that great events are impending in the eastern Mediterranean which could be expedited by Allied possession of Italian mainland bases commanding the Adriatic approaches to Albania and Greece. The process of softening up Crete by aerial attack has already started. Balkan routes to take Hitler's eastern armies in the flank and rear offer alluring prospects.

UPON HULS.

IN ADDITION TO HITS ON TWO RUBBER PLANTS STARTING FIRES AT HAMBURG, THE PORT'S MAIN RAILWAY STATION, AN OIL BURNER FACTORY AND GASWORKS WERE RIPPED BY BOMBS.

HAMBURG STILL WAS BURNING FROM THE HEAVY RAF ATTACK OF SATURDAY NIGHT AND THE FORTRESS ASSAULT SUNDAY WHEN AMERICAN PLANES RETURNED YESTERDAY AND LAID BOMBS IN A BLANKET ON THE HOWALDTSWERKE SHIPYARDS AND BLOEHM VOSS YARDS WHERE A SCORE OF SUBMARINES AT A TIME CAN BE UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

JUL 28 1943

MANY HITS WERE REPORTED ON U-BOATS BEING ASSEMBLED AS WELL AS UPON A DIESEL ENGINE FACTORY AND MANY SUBSIDIARY PLANTS.

HEADQUARTERS SAID ONE DRYDOCK APPARENTLY WAS SUNK AND ANOTHER PARTLY CAPSIZED.

"THE FIGHTERS AT HANNOVER WERE TOUGH," SAID CAPT.ROBERT P.HILLIKEN OF ADRIAN, MICH., BOMBARDIER OF "WABBIT TWACK III."

"THE FLAK WAS PRETTY INTENSE, TOO," HE ADDED, "BUT WE GOT TO THE TARGET AND THEY WON'T BE PRODUCING ANYTHING AT THAT PLANT FOR SOME TIME TO COME."

"I SAW SOME OF THEM FAR BELOW STANDING ON THEIR TAILS AND SHOOTING UP AT US," LAUGHINGLY REPORTED FIRST LIEUT.KENNETH S.KNOULTON OF MEMPHIS, TENN., PILOT OF "DARLING DOLLY."

"ALTOGETHER THERE MUST HAVE BEEN 100 TO 150 NAZIS. MY CREW CLAIMS TO HAVE SHOT DOWN FIVE OF THEM."

THE TAIL GUNNER OF "MASON'S MORONS," STAFF SERGT.ROBERT L.BICKFORD OF WEST WEBSTER CITY IOWA, BAGGED TWO FOCKE WULFS.

"THEY CAME IN BUNCHES OF FIVE," HE RECOUNTED, "AND I PICKED ONE

[illegible] ONE EACH TIME. TWICE JERRIES WENT DOWN IN EXACTLY THE SAME WAY. I MUST HAVE SHOT THE PILOTS FOR THE PLANES SEEMED TO STOP IN MID-AIR. THEN THERE WAS AN EXPLOSION."

LONDON--FIRST ADD NIGHT LEAD AERIAL XXX 175,000 WORKERS.

CAPT.JOHN LIPSCOMB OF HUNTINGTON, W.VA., PILOT OF ONE OF THE AMERICAN PLANES WHICH BOMBED TRICQUEVILLE SAID DESPITE CAMOUFLAGE THE BOMBERS HAD LITTLE DIFFICULTY IN LOCATING TARGETS AND STAFF SGT.JOHN VACAMTI OF OMAHA, NEB., SAID HE SAW SEVERAL BURSTS WHICH STARTED FIRES.

FIRST LIEUT.JAMES F.HUNT OF SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF., PILOT OF THE "SAD SACK," SAID HE WAS SURPRISED AT THE LACK OF ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE AND FIGHTER OPPOSITION.

THIS BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WAS ACCOMPANIED BY ANOTHER PURPORTING TO QUOTE SWEDISH NEWSPAPER REPORTS FROM SWITZERLAND THAT A COMMUNIQUE ON THE CONVERSATIONS WAS EXPECTED TO BE ISSUED FROM ROME.

CHURCHILL'S DECLARATION FOLLOWED SWEDISH PRESS REPORTS THAT PREPARATIONS FOR ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS ALREADY WERE BEING MADE BETWEEN THE ALLIES AND ITALY.

"IN SWISS DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES IT IS SAID THAT PREPARATIONS FOR ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS ALREADY ARE BEING MADE BETWEEN THE ALLIES AND ITALY, APPARENTLY WITH THE HELP OF THE VATICAN," SAID THE SWEDISH NEWSPAPER, SVENSKA DAGBLADET, IN A DISPATCH FROM BERN. "BUT THIS IS UNCONFIRMED EITHER BY OFFICIAL OR UNOFFICIAL NEWS."

SWISS DISPATCHES SAID, HOWEVER, THAT THE SVENSKA DAGBLADET REPORT CONCERNED OLD PEACE FEELERS BEFORE PREMIER MUSSOLINI RESIGNED.

THE SWEDISH NEWSPAPER ALSO SAID THAT "UNCONFIRMED REPORTS SAY THAT

BADOGLIO'S SON IS IN CONTACT WITH THE ALLIES IN ALGIERS," AND THAT THE APPOINTMENT OF THE "ITALIAN AMBASSADOR IN ANKARA AS FOREIGN MINISTER GAVE GROUND FOR CERTAIN RUMORS REGARDING PRELIMINARY ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS IN ANKARA."

MEANWHILE, THE ROME RADIO, IN A BROADCAST GIVING THE FIRST DESCRIPTION OF LIFE IN THE ITALIAN CAPITAL UNDER THE NEW GOVERNMENT, SAID THE CITY HAD RETURNED TO NORMAL AFTER ENTHUSIASTIC DEMONSTRATIONS THAT WERE TOUCHED OFF BY THE NEWS OF BADOGLIO'S TAKING OVER THE POWER.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID PUBLIC SERVICES CONTINUED TO FUNCTION SMOOTHLY AND THAT PUBLIC AND PRIVATE BUSINESS WAS PROCEEDING WITHOUT INTERRUPTION. IT REPORTED THAT THE POPULATION WAS SCRUPULOUSLY OBEYING THE ORDERS OF THE NEW REGIME.

"THE NEW GOVERNMENT IS MADE UP OF PERSONALITIES OF EXTREME INTEGRITY WITHOUT POLITICAL COLOR, TOGETHER WITH MILITARY OFFICERS OF PROVED VALOR AND ABILITY," IT ADDED.

JUL 28 1943

(A SWISS BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID FIVE POLITICAL PARTIES AT TURIN HAD PUBLISHED A JOINT MANIFESTO URGING THE ITALIAN PEOPLE TO "DETERMINE THEIR OWN LAWS").

...FANI NEWS AGENCY BROADCAST FROM ROME LAST NIGHT SAID MUSSOLINI'S RESIGNATION WAS PRECEDED SATURDAY NIGHT BY A MEETING OF THE FASCIST GRAND COUNCIL AT WHICH THE PREMIER MADE A STATEMENT ON THE POLITICAL AND MILITARY SITUATION IN ITALY.

REUTERS QUOTED STEFANI AS SAYING THAT THE COUNCIL PASSED A RESOLUTION PRESENTED BY COUNT DINO GRANDI, PRESIDENT OF THE CHAMBER OF FASCES AND GUILDS, INVITING MUSSOLINI TO ASK THE KING TO ASSUME COMMAND OF THE LAND, SEA AND AIR FORCES. THE VOTE WAS GIVEN AS 19 TO 7 IN FAVOR OF THE RESOLUTION.

THE MEETING OF THE GRAND COUNCIL WAS THE FIRST SINCE DEC.7, 1939, SIX MONTHS BEFORE ITALY ENTERED THE WAR.

LONDON, JULY 27-(AP)-IN FULL PACK, WITH NUMBERS CHALKED ON THEIR HELMETS TO KEEP THE GROUPS TOGETHER, WACS NOW ARE PASSING THROUGH LONDON IN CONSIDERABLE NUMBER -- WITH EACH OUTGOING AND INCOMING UNIT SURROUNDED BY CURIOUS BRITONS, ESPECIALLY WOMEN IN UNIFORM.

MANY OF THE WACS ARE EN ROUTE TO VARIOUS EIGHTH AIR FORCE STATIONS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY, WITH SOME OF THEM GOING DIRECTLY FROM ORIENTATION CENTERS TO BOMBER-FIGHTER POSTS.

JUL 28 1943

ALTHOUGH HEAVILY LADEN, PRIVATE EVELYN O'NEIL OF WASHINGTON, D.C., BROUGHT ALONG A BLACK, GREEN-EYED KITTEN NAMED DUSTY, WHICH WAS GIVEN TO HER AT AN ORIENTATION CENTER BY AN AMERICAN SOLDIER.

SERGEANT DOROTHY RUTH FIELD, KANSAS CITY, MO., WAS ESPECIALLY HAPPY. SHE HAS GOTTEN IN TOUCH WITH HER FIANCE, WARRANT OFFICER DONALD FOUNIER OF DETROIT, WHOM SHE HAD NOT SEEN FOR TWO YEARS.

NOT LONG AGO, SERGEANT JACK SAUNDERS OF WAVERLY, TENN., WROTE PRIVATE ETHEL WYATT OF NASHVILLE, TENN., ASKING FOR HER PICTURE. SHE SAID, CHUCKLING, THAT SHE HAD JUST DROPPED HIM A NOTE THAT SHE DIDN'T HAVE A PICTURE, BUT WOULD A PERSONAL APPEARANCE DO?

ACCEPTING THE HONOR, THE AMBASSADOR SAID HE HOPED TO SEE MEN EVERYWHERE "REDEEM THEMSELVES FROM ECONOMIC WANT AND THUS FROM THE ENDLESS THREAT OF WAR."

CHINESE AMBASSADOR V.K.WELLINGTON KOO, WHO ALSO RECEIVED THE FREEDOM OF THE CITY, URGED THAT JAPAN BE "TREATED TO A SIMILAR POTENT DOSE OF ALLIED FIGHTING POWER AS IS NOW BEING ADMINISTERED TO THE COMMON ENEMY IN EUROPE." HE SAID SUCH ACTION WOULD HELP BRING AN EARLY DECISION IN THE FAR EAST.

BERN, JULY 27-(AP)-FIGHTING BETWEEN DIE-HARD FASCIST ELEMENTS AND ITALIAN TROOPS WAS REPORTED IN MILAN TONIGHT AS SWISS TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY DISPATCHES FROM THE ITALIAN FRONTIER DECLARED--WITHOUT OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION--THAT THE NEW ITALIAN REGIME WAS "DISCUSSING THE CONDITIONS OF AN ARMISTICE" WITH THE ALLIES IN ROME.

SOME REPORTS DESCRIBED THE OUTBREAK OF FIGHTING IN MILAN AS MINIATURE CIVIL WAR, ALTHOUGH SO FAR AS COULD BE LEARNED THE OUTBREAK OF FASCIST MILITIA RESISTANCE THERE WAS MERELY AN ISOLATED INSTANCE.

FIRST LEAD RUSSIAN

BY WILLIAM MCGAFFIN

MOSCOW, JULY 27-(AP)-RAIN CAME TO THE AID OF DESPERATELY RESISTING GERMANS IN THE OREL SECTOR AND SLOWED DOWN SOMEWHAT THE POWERFUL RUSSIAN ADVANCE, ALTHOUGH INTENSIVE BATTLES CONTINUED, THE RUSSIAN ARMY NEWSPAPER RED STAR REPORTED TODAY.

FRONT LINE DISPATCHES SAID THE GERMANS THREW IN BIG FORCES OF INFANTRY AND TANKS IN A GRIM EFFORT TO KEEP ONE IMPORTANT LINE OPEN NORTH OF BELEAGUERED OREL, THE NOW ALL-BUT-SURROUNDED GERMAN BASTION. TWO GERMAN INFANTRY REGIMENTS WITH FROM 50 TO 70 TANKS MANAGED TO DELAY THE RUSSIANS IN THIS SECTOR.

JUL 28 1943

ELSEWHERE, HOWEVER, PARTICULARLY SOUTHEAST OF ZHIZDRA, THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY MAINTAINED THEIR ADVANCE, CAPTURING SUCH IMPORTANT JUNCTIONS AS MEKHOVAYA AND BERESTNA, ACCORDING TO RED STAR. ZHIZDRA IS ON THE EXTREME RIGHT FLANK OF THE NORTHERN ADVANCE, APPROXIMATELY 75 MILES NORTHWEST OF OREL. BERESTNA IS 19 MILES EAST-SOUTHEAST OF ZHIZDRA.

THE STRATEGY OF THE SOVIET FORCES, WHICH REPORTED ONLY A GENERAL ADVANCE OF THREE TO SIX MILES, APPARENTLY WAS AIMED AT CONSOLIDATING POSITIONS. NONE OF THE 70 FRESHLY CAPTURED TOWNS MENTIONED IN AN EARLIER COMMUNIQUE WERE ANY NEARER OREL THAN PREVIOUSLY MENTIONED PLACES.

NOR WAS THERE ANY INDICATION THAT THE OREL-BRYANSK RAILWAY HAD BEEN CUT. THE CLOSEST POINT THE RUSSIANS HAVE REACHED TO THAT LINE, ACCORDING TO LATEST REPORTS, IS STUDENKOVO, FIVE MILES TO THE NORTH.

THE GERMANS COUNTER-ATTACKED ALL UP AND DOWN THE OREL FRONT, LAUNCHING 17 SUCCESSIVE ATTACKS IN ONE NARROW SECTOR IN A SINGLE DAY.

(TODAY'S GERMAN COMMUNIQUE GAVE ONLY A FEW WORDS TO THIS FRONT, SAYING THAT THE BRUNT OF THE BATTLE YESTERDAY WAS IN THE OREL AREA. IT ADDED THAT GERMAN TROOPS, SUPPORTED BY STRONG FORMATIONS OF AIRCRAFT, REPULSED SEVERAL ENEMY ATTEMPTS TO BREAK THROUGH SOUTH, EAST AND NORTH OF OREL AFTER "FLUCTUATING FIGHTING.")

GERMAN LOSSES WERE REPORTED RUNNING HIGH AS THE NAZIS COUNTER-ATTACKED DESPERATELY TO HOLD OREL AND TO RELIEVE THE PRESSURE ALREADY BEING FELT AT BRYANSK, AN IMPORTANT RAIL BASE TO THE WEST. THE SOVIET MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT 5,000 GERMANS WERE KILLED IN THE DAY'S FIGHTING.

JUL 28 1943

THE WAR BULLETIN DISCLOSED THAT RUSSIAN TROOPS HAD CROSSED THE OKA RIVER NORTH OF OREL AND WERE CUTTING IN BEHIND THE CITY TO THREATEN THE OREL-BRYANSK RAILWAY, ONLY AVENUE OF ESCAPE FOR THE GERMANS. ONE SOVIET COLUMN OF THE NORTHERN SPEARHEAD HAS REACHED BERESTNA, 45 MILES TO THE NORTHWEST, THE RUSSIANS SAID.

THE SOUTHERN FLANK OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY IS FOLLOWING THE LINE OF THE KURSK RAILWAY AND HAS TAKEN SEVERAL TOWNS IN AN ADVANCE REACHING TO YEROPKINA, ONLY 17 MILES FROM OREL, THE BULLETIN ADDED.

THE COMMUNIQUE TOLD OF FURIOUS FIGHTING, ESPECIALLY IN THE GLAZUNOVSKAYA AREA WHERE THE NAZIS WERE SAID TO HAVE COUNTERATTACKED FIVE TIMES BEFORE THEY YIELDED, LEAVING 600 DEAD ON THE FIELD. IN ANOTHER SECTOR RUSSIAN ARMORED UNITS WERE FORCED TO COME TO THE AID OF INFANTRYMEN WHO WERE ATTEMPTING TO CAPTURE A GERMAN-HELD VILLAGE, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

ELSEWHERE ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT THE RED ARMY CONDUCTED SCOUTING AND RECONNAISSANCE ACTIVITIES. IN THE BELGOROD AREA FIGHTING "OF LOCAL IMPORTANCE" RESULTED IN THE RED ARMY IMPROVING ITS POSITIONS, THE BULLETIN SAID. SIMILAR OPERATIONS ALSO TOOK PLACE IN THE DONETS BASIN AREA SOUTH OF IZYUM AND SOUTHWEST OF VOROSHILOVGRAD.

IN THE LATTER AREA, THE RUSSIANS SAID, THEY CAPTURED A LARGE QUANTITY OF ARMS AND AMMUNITION AND OTHER WAR MATERIAL.

SOUTH OF IZYUM FOUR RUSSIAN PLANES WERE REPORTED TO HAVE BROKEN UP A FIGHTER ESCORTED FORMATION OF 25 GERMAN BOMBERS, KNOCKING DOWN FOUR OF THE RAIDERS AND CAUSING THE REST TO JETTISON THEIR BOMBS AND FLEE.

OTHER RUSSIAN AIRCRAFT OPERATING OVER THE BARENTS SEA ABOVE THE ARCTIC CIRCLE ATTACKED A GERMAN CONVOY CONSISTING OF FIVE TRANSPORTS AND SEVERAL TRAWLERS AND PATROL SHIPS. A DIRECT HIT WAS REPORTED SCORED ON A 12,000 TON SHIP.

SICILIAN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 27-(AP)-AMERICAN ARMORED FORCES AND INFANTRY WERE SNAPPING AT THE HEELS OF THE DEMORALIZED REMNANTS OF THE ITALIAN ARMY IN SICILY TODAY AS THEY RETREATED EASTWARD ALONG THE NORTH COAST OF THE ISLAND TOWARD ESCAPE OR A LAST-DITCH STAND BEFORE MESSINA.

WHILE CANADIANS FURTHER INLAND HAMMERED AT THE FLANK OF THE LINE WHICH STUBBORN GERMAN FORCES HAVE ESTABLISHED WEST OF MT. ETNA AND THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY FELT OUT NAZI DEFENSES SOUTH OF CATANIA, THE AMERICANS WERE REPORTED PUSHING FORWARD AGAINST LITTLE RESISTANCE.

THE LATEST TOWN OFFICIALLY REPORTED TO HAVE FALLEN INTO THE HANDS OF LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON, JR.'S TROOPS WAS TERMINI, 20 MILES TO THE

30.24-6609

EAST OF PALERMO, BUT THE ADVANCE GUARD OF THE AMERICAN FORCES WAS BELIEVED TO BE WELL TO THE EAST OF THAT POINT.

THE AMERICAN ADVANCE RESULTED IN THE CAPTURE OF 7,000 ADDITIONAL ITALIANS TROOPS, SWELLING THE TOTAL OF PRISONERS THUS FAR TAKEN IN THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN TO 70,000, OF WHICH 56,000 HAVE BEEN TAKEN BY UNITED STATES FORCES.

THERE WAS LITTLE OF THE HEAVY FIGHTING YESTERDAY SUCH AS THAT WHICH MARKED THE EARLY DAYS OF THE CAMPAIGN AND IT WAS APPARENT THAT THE AXIS FORCES UNDER NAZI FIELD MARSHAL GEN.ALBERT KESSELRING WERE MAKING FRANTIC PREPARATIONS FOR THE GENERAL ALLIED ASSAULT WHICH APPEARS IMMINENT.

KESSELRING, IT WAS BELIEVED, HAD THREE AND A HALF GERMAN DIVISIONS AVAILABLE FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE MESSINA TRIANGLE. THESE INCLUDED THE HERMANN GOERING DIVISION, THE 29TH MOTORIZED DIVISION, AND THE 15TH ARMORED DIVISION PLEDGED TO FIGHT "TO THE LAST CARTRIDGE" ON SICILY WHILE THE NAZI HIGH COMMAND RESHAPED ITS PLANS IN THE LIGHT OF THE COLLAPSE OF THE MUSSOLINI GOVERNMENT IN ITALY.

WHETHER THESE GERMAN TROOPS COULD EXPECT ANY ASSISTANCE FROM THE ITALIANS REMAINING IN SICILY WAS PROBLEMATICAL. THERE WERE BELIEVED TO BE ITALIANS TO THE NUMERICAL STRENGTH OF THREE DIVISIONS REMAINING ON THE ISLAND, BUT IN THE MOST RECENT PHASES OF THE STRUGGLE THEY HAVE SHOWN LITTLE DISPOSITION TO FIGHT.

THE BRITISH WERE STILL FINDING THE NAZI LINES AT CATANIA A TOUGH NUT TO CRACK. THE CANADIANS LIKEWISE WERE MEETING WITH STIFF RESISTANCE BUT WERE MAKING HEADWAY. IT APPEARED THAT A GENERAL ASSAULT WOULD WAIT UPON THE ARRIVAL OF FULL AMERICAN STRENGTH AT THE NORTHERN END OF THE LINE.

WHILE THE GROUND FORCES HAD SOMEWHAT OF A BREATHER, THE ALLIED AIR FORCES WERE BUSY BOTH OVER AXIS DEPOTS ON THE ISLAND AND ON THE MAINLAND.

MILAZZO, 18 MILES WEST OF MESSINA, WAS PLASTERED SATURDAY NIGHT BY ALLIED BOMBERS. THE PORT HAD BEEN USED BY THE GERMANS AS AN ALTERNATIVE TO BADLY BATTERED MESSINA. ROAD COMMUNICATIONS AT ORLANDO ON THE NORTH SHORE WERE ATTACKED AND MALTA-BASED AIRCRAFT SWEPT OVER ADRANO, CERAMI, TROINA AND NOVARA.

BY JOHN A.NORDO III

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY, JULY 21-(DELAYED)-(AP)-TALKS I HAVE HAD WITH ITALIANS DURING THE LAST FEW DAYS HAVE GIVEN ME A VIVID PICTURE OF HOW HARD LIFE WAS UNDER MUSSOLINI--AND THEY HAVE LEFT ME WITH THE IMPRESSION THAT ITALY WILL SOON QUIT THE WAR.

SICILIANS TOLD ME THAT ITALY ITSELF WOULD BE EASIER TO CONQUER THAN THIS ISLAND, BECAUSE THE SICILIAN TERRAIN IS MORE DIFFICULT AND BECAUSE ITALY IS DEFENDED MAINLY BY YOUNG SOLDIERS. THEY SAID MOST OF THE VETERANS HAD BEEN SENT TO RUSSIA AND FRANCE. ITALIAN SOLDIERS IN SICILY, THE NATIVES CLAIMED, WERE MAINLY ELDERLY AND UNTRAINED, OR MEN WHO HAD BEEN FORCED INTO THE ARMY AND SENT AWAY BECAUSE THEY REFUSED TO JOIN THE FASCIST PARTY.

ENSIGN JOSEPH PISANO OF 180 LESTER ST., PROVIDENCE, R.I., HELPED ME A LOT IN TALKING WITH THE NATIVES. THE PEOPLE SAID THAT WHEN MUSSOLINI FACED AN ALLIED INVASION HE FLOODED SICILY WITH PROPAGANDA AND LITTLE ELSE. MODERN WEAPONS HAD BEEN SENT TO TOBRUK EARLIER IN THE WAR AND NEVER REPLACED.

SICILIANS WERE NOT TOLD THAT TUNISIA HAD FALLEN. INSTEAD THEY WERE INFORMED THAT THE AMERICANS LACKED COURAGE AND WERE SAVAGE RAPISTS. MY CONVERSATIONS DISCLOSED THAT THE YANKS HAD SUCCEEDED IN CUTTING COMMUNICATIONS TO ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS WITHIN 19 MINUTES AFTER THEY LANDED.

ONE MAN TOLD ME HE SAW GERMAN OFFICERS SHOOT DOWN TWO ITALIAN SOLDIERS. ONCE, HE SAID, A SHELL FROM AN AMERICAN DESTROYER SENT SAND INTO THE EYES OF AN ITALIAN, WHO DREW A WHITE HANDKERCHIEF TO WIPE THEM. HE WAS SHOT IN THE BACK WHEN A NAZI THOUGHT THE HANDKERCHIEF WAS A SIGN OF SURRENDER.

FARMERS IN SICILY HAD A DIFFICULT TIME, ALTHOUGH THEIR CROPS OF WHEAT, OLIVES, FRUITS AND GRAPES WERE PLENTIFUL. PERMITTING THE FARMERS TO KEEP A SMALL PART OF THEIR PRODUCE, THE FASCISTS BOUGHT MUCH OF THE REST OF IT AT 75 PER CENT BELOW MARKET VALUE AND TOOK A THIRD OF THEIR INCOME AS WELL.

THE PEOPLE WERE AMAZED AT AMERICAN AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS. THEY COULD NOT UNDERSTAND HOW THE AMERICANS HAD LEARNED IN ADVANCE ABOUT UNDEFENDED BEACHES AND THE LOCATION OF BATTERIES WHICH WERE WIPED OUT BY SHIPS SHOOTING IN THE DARK.

THEY SAID THEY HAD BEEN TOLD THAT AXIS SUBMARINES WERE SINKING ALL ALLIED SHIPS. THUS THE APPEARANCE OF SO MANY STURDY SHIPS OFF THE SICILIAN COAST HAD A TERRIFIC UNDERMINING EFFECT ON THE DEFENDERS' MORALE.

AXIS PRISONERS WERE AFRAID OF TRAVELING ON OUR SHIPS BECAUSE OF THE SUBS. WE TOLD THEM WE CAME ALL THE WAY FROM AMERICA WITHOUT LOSING A SHIP AND THEY DIDN'T BELIEVE ---

AN AIR BASE IN SICILY, JULY 23-(DELAYED)-(AP)-SITTING ON A PILE OF OLD LUMBER WAITING FOR A PLANE, THEY DIDN'T LOOK LIKE FOUR FLEA-BITTEN GIRLS WHO HAD BEEN ROUGHING IT WITH THE ARMY FOR FOUR DAYS, EATING FIELD RATIONS, RAIDING ORCHARDS AND WATERMELON PATCHES, AND SLEEPING WHEREVER THE NEAREST HOSPITAL COULD FIND BEDS.

THEIR COMBAT HELMETS SPARKLED LIKE THEY HAD BEEN SCRUBBED, AND THEIR BLUE SLACKS AND BLOUSES WERE CLEAN--EVEN PRESSED. IT WAS EASY TO SEE THAT THEY WERE READY TO LEAVE.

AS TOLD BY FLYING NURSE AGNES SMITH OF 25200 SHIAWASSEE ST., DETROIT, MICH., THEY HAD COME OVER FOUR DAYS AFTER THE INVASION BEGAN, EXPECTING TO GO BACK IMMEDIATELY WITH PATIENTS.

"GOOD HEAVENS!" SHE SAID, "WE DIDN'T BRING ANYTHING EXCEPT WHAT WE HAD ON. THE NEXT THING WE KNEW WE WERE TOLD WE MIGHT BE HERE THREE OR FOUR DAYS. THEN THE HOSPITAL TOLD US WE WERE WELCOME TO SLEEP IN WHATEVER BEDS WERE NOT FILLED UP WITH WOUNDED, BUT THEY KEPT BRING MORE WOUNDED IN THAN THEY WERE TAKING OUT."

"FLEAS FOUND US THE VERY FIRST NIGHT AND WE WERE BITTEN TO DEATH. THERE WERE MOSQUITOES, TOO. WE HAD TO SLEEP IN OUR CLOTHES AND WITH ONE BLANKET. THANK GOODNESS WE BROUGHT OUR COMBAT HELMETS. AT LEAST WE HAD SOMETHING TO WASH OUR THINGS IN."

ONE BRIGHT SPOT, HOWEVER, SAID LIEUT.ALLEDA KREISER, 1620 ORANGE STREET, BERWICK,PA., IS THE FACT THAT SICILY HAS "SOME OF THE NICEST GRAPES AND PLUMS WE'VE EVER EATEN."

THEY DIDN'T CARE MUCH, HOWEVER, FOR THE RED WINE, AND FOUND THE

-4-

30.24-6611

WATERMELONS WEREN'T VERY ripe AND THE ALMONDS WERE A BIT SOUR.

NOBODY SEEMED TO MIND THEIR HELPING THEMSELVES IN THE ORCHARDS SURROUNDING THE HOSPITAL, LIEUTENANT KREISER SAID. THE SICILIANS WHO SAW THEM WERE MORE INTERESTED IN THE SLACKS THEY WERE WEARING THAN WHAT THEY WERE TAKING FROM THE TREES AND VINES.

"I DON'T THINK THEY EVER SAW SLACKS OVER HERE BEFORE. THE WOMEN DON'T SEEM TO KNOW WHAT TO MAKE OF IT. THE MEN LAUGH."

LIEUT.ALDEA LUTZ OF FREELAND, MICH., HAD A WORD TO PUT IN ABOUT SHOES:

JUL 28 1943

"WOMEN ACTUALLY COME UP TO SEE MINE," SHE SAID. "THEY ALL SEEM TO THINK THAT IT WON'T BE LONG, NOW THAT WE ARE HERE, UNTIL THEY HAVE PLENTY OF EVERYTHING."

THE FOURTH GIRL IN THE GROUP, LIEUT.JOSEPHINE F.SANSONE, 1415 NORTH JACKSON ST., MILWAUKEE,WIS., HAD BEEN WONDERING ABOUT THE FUTURE OF SICILY.

"IT'S SO FILTHY IT'S EVEN WORSE THAN AFRICA," SHE SAID. "FROM THE PRACTICAL NURSING STANDPOINT I DON'T SEE HOW SOME OF THESE PEOPLE CAN LIVE. I SEE ONLY ONE REALLY SATISFACTORY SOLUTION. THAT'S TO TEAR THE BUILDINGS DOWN AND START ALL OVER AGAIN."

THE FLYING NURSES BELONG TO A SQUADRON OF THE AIR EVACUATION TRANSPORT COMMAND.

THE SQUADRON'S 24 NURSES UNDER CHIEF NURSE FIRST LIEUT.CATHERINE CROGRAN OF 200 WOODROW ST., COLUMBUS,OHIO, EVACUATED UPWARDS OF 18,000 ALLIED AND ENEMY CASUALTIES FROM THE TUNISIAN FRONT TO REAR HOSPITALS IN THE LAST FOUR MONTHS OF THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN. NOW THEY ARE LOOKING FORWARD TO SEEING ITALY SOON.

PALERMO Ed-A XX intern

"FASCISM IS FINISHED AT LAST," THE PROCLAMATION SAID, "AND THE PEOPLE WHO HAVE IN COMMON WITH US THE IDEALS OF LIBERTY AND DEMOCRACY HAVE COME TO US TO GIVE US THEIR HELP IN CLEANING OUT THE REGIME WHICH HAS BEEN THE WORST IN ALL OUR HISTORY. OUR HEARTFELT FEELINGS OF GRATITUDE GO OUT TO THEM. WE ARE ENTERING INTO A NEW PHASE OF OUR 3,000 YEARS OF HISTORY. OUR HIGHEST AMBITION HAS ALWAYS BEEN INDEPENDENCE, AND SICILY HAS ALWAYS ASPIRED TO BE A SEPARATE STATE IN CONFORMITY WITH ITS HISTORICAL POSITION AND ITS MORAL AND MATERIAL INTERESTS. X X X

JUL 28 1943

"THE NEW FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATE OF SICILY, WITH A REPUBLICAN REGIME, MUST AND WILL ARISE BECAUSE IT IS THE UNTIRING WILL OF THE SICILIAN PEOPLE TO HAVE UNFURLED THE GLORIOUS FLAG OF VESPERS, SYMBOL OF OUR STRUGGLE AGAINST ALL EXTERNAL AND INTERNAL OPPRESSION.

"FOR THIS PURPOSE, CERTAIN MEN OF PROVED LOYALTY AND LONG EXPERIENCE HAVE GATHERED TOGETHER TO TAKE THE NECESSARY STEPS TO ENLIST THE SUPPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS IN BEHALF OF A CONSTITUTION FOR THE NEW STATE OF SICILY,/ 59 583 194.-589, 91 - 049;8'89,-) &9;34,.3,5 -,$ TO THE ADMISSION OF A SICILIAN DELEGATION TO THE FUTURE PEACE CONFERENCE, IN WHICH OUR NATION WILL PARTICIPATE AS A GOOD FRIEND TO ENGLAND AND AMERICA AND THE OTHER ALLIED POWERS."

THE SUPPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS IN BEHALF OF A CONSTITUTION FOR THE NEW STATE OF SICILY, TO THE FORMATION OF A PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT AND TO THE ADMISSION OF A SICILIAN DELEGATION TO THE FUTURE PEACE CONFERENCE, IN WHICH OUR NATION WILL PARTICIPATE AS A GOOD FRIEND TO ENGLAND AND AMERICA AND THE OTHER ALLIED POWERS."

THESE ARE THE OUTSTANDING PARTS OF THE MANIFESTO. AS A MATTER OF FACT, THE GROWTH OF THE INDEPENDENCE MOVEMENT HAS BEEN PERCEPTIBLE IN SICILY FOR SOME TIME, AND AFTER THE FIRST YEAR OF THE WAR IT REALLY BEGAN TO SHOW SIGNS OF LIFE. AT THE HEAD OF THE MOVEMENT ARE POLITICIANS OF THE OLD REGIME AT PALERMO. IT IS HEADED BY THE FORMER SICILIAN DEPUTY AND FORMER MINISTER, ANDREA FINOCCHIARO APRILE.

WITH THE INCREASE IN THE DIFFICULTIES OF LIFE CAUSED BY THE WAR, THIS FEELING HAS MADE PROGRESS IN THE MINDS OF SICILIANS. IT IS SAID THAT ROOSEVELT AND CHURCHILL HAVE BEEN INFORMED OF THIS MOVEMENT BY MEANS OF THE VATICAN. IN ANY CASE, IT IS CERTAIN THAT ONE EFFECT OF THE WAR HAS BEEN TO OPEN THE EYES OF THESE CIVILIANS TO THE TRUE FACTS OF THEIR SITUATION.

JUL 28 1943

IT MUST BE SAID THAT THE ISLAND HAS NEVER BEEN OPENLY SYMPATHETIC TO THE FASCIST REGIME. SICILIANS REMAINED MORE OR LESS PASSIVE DURING THE EARLY PART OF THIS REGIME. BUT DURING THE WAR THEY HAVE ADOPTED A DISTINCTLY HOSTILE ATTITUDE TOWARD THE REGIME AND ITS LEADERS.

A LITTLE LATER ANOTHER AMERICAN COLUMN REACHED MONREALE, A SUBURB TO THE SOUTHWEST. HERE THE RECEPTION WAS REALLY DELIRIOUS. THREE THOUSAND MADLY HAPPY PALMERANS ACCLAIMED THE TRIUMPH OF THE LIBERATING SOLDIERS. THEY WAVED FLAGS OF THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN COLORS, BROKE INTO WILD APPLAUSE AND THREW FOLOWERS AT THE CONQUERORS.

TONIGHT THE CITY HAS REGAINED THE TRANQUILITY OF A NIGHT IN PEACETIME.

LIEUT. JOHN RICKERSHAUSER OF 1348 ORANGE AVE., UNION, N.J., REPORTED THAT SOME OF THE PEOPLE IN LINE HADN'T EATEN FOR EIGHT DAYS.

AMONG THE SOLDIERS DISTRIBUTING STORES WERE PVT.LOREN BENT OF 289 MAIN STREET EXTENSION, WESTERN PORT, MD.; SERGT.BENJAMIN CLEVENGER OF PORTLAND, ORE.; CORP. FRANK R.PIRES OF 216 T AND U STREETS, SACRAMENTO, CALIF.; SERGT.WILLIAM SIMPSON, RFD FOUR, BOX 60, WHEELING W.VA., AND PVT.SVEN NORLING, MC INTOSH, MINN.

STOCKHOLM, JULY 27-(AP)-BERLIN INSISTED LAST NIGHT THAT IT STILL WAS "IN CONTACT AS USUAL" WITH ROME BUT AT THE SAME TIME ADMITTED IT WAS WITHOUT INFORMATION ENOUGH "TO ESTIMATE THE CHANGE IN THE REGIME IN ROME AND THE CONSEQUENCES."

JUL 28 1943

BERLIN DISPATCHES TO THE SWEDISH PRESS SAID THERE STILL WAS NO CONCRETE OFFICIAL GERMAN DECLARATION ON BENITO MUSSOLINI'S RESIGNATION, ALTHOUGH A GERMAN FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN WAS QUOTED AS SAYING DEVELOPMENTS IN ITALY WOULD HAVE "NO IMMEDIATE INFLUENCE ON GERMANY." VOICES THEY DISCUSSED THE SITUATION EVERYWHERE.

"THE FIRST REACTION WAS NOT OPTIMISTIC AND EVEN THE MOST UNFAVORABLE NEWS FROM ROME HEREAFTER WILL NOT BE REGARDED AS SURPRISING. THE GERMAN PEOPLE ARE EXPECTING A DECLARATION FROM THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT ON THE SITUATION."

ISTANBUL--FIRST ADD GUARIGLIA X X X AFTER THE TALK.

THE MEETING MAY BE ONE OF THE MOST SIGNIFICANT DEVELOPMENTS IN THE EUROPEAN WAR SINCE THE RESIGNATION OF MUSSOLINI.

THE FACT THAT THE MEETING TOOK PLACE AT ALL IS A DEMONSTRATION OF ITS EXTREME URGENCY, SINCE THE METICULOUS TURKISH FOREIGN MINISTER USUALLY REFUSES TO SEE FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES EXCEPT AT HIS MINISTRY IN ANKARA. THE FACT THAT IT WAS HELD ABOARD A LAUNCH AT SEA WITH ONLY

30.24-6613

ONE UNIDENTIFIED WITNESS ABOARD PROVES THAT MATTERS DISCUSSED MUST HAVE BEEN OF THE UTMOST SECRECY.

ONLY A RELATIVELY FEW PEOPLE LEARNED OF THE MEETING WHILE IT WAS STILL IN PROGRESS AND THEY IMMEDIATELY SUGGESTED THAT MENEMENCIOGLU WAS BEING ASKED TO ACT AS AN INTERMEDIARY IN PEACE TALKS BETWEEN THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT AND THE ALLIES.

GUARIGLIA ONLY ARRIVED IN TURKEY AS AMBASSADOR ABOUT THREE MONTHS AGO AND AT THAT TIME IT WAS AN OPEN SECRET HE WAS NOT THE ITALIAN FIRST CHOICE FOR THE JOB. ROME APPARENTLY WISHED TO SEND AN AMBASSADOR WHO WAS KNOWN TO BE PRO-ALLIED BUT THE GERMANS PREVENTED THAT AND GUARIGLIA WAS SENT INSTEAD.

JUL 28 1943

THE NEW ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER IS NOT KNOWN AS PRO-ALLIED BUT HIS ENTHUSIASM FOR THE FASCIST PARTY HAS COOLED CONSIDERABLY. HE WAS CONSIDERED A COMPROMISE CHOICE BETWEEN THE ORIGINAL NOMINEE AND A RED HOT PARTY MEMBER.

THERE WERE RUMORS WHICH COULD NOT BE SUBSTANTIATED THAT MUSSOLINI'S SON-IN-LAW, COUNT GALEAZZO CIANO, NOW ENVOY TO THE VATICAN, WOULD COME TO TURKEY TO SUCCEED GUARAGLIA AS AMBASSADOR.

CORPORAL SNYDER, FIRST STRING PITCHER FOR THE LEATHERNECK TEAM HERE, HAS FACED BOTH.

"THE MARINES MAKE UP IN SPORTSMANSHIP AND SPIRIT WHAT THEY LACK IN ABILITY," HE SAID. "THEY'RE OUT TO WIN WHETHER IT'S ON A BALLFIELD OR A BATTLEFIELD."

CORPORAL SNYDER, WHO NEARLY MADE THE CUBAN HALL OF FAME, MISSING A NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME ON A MISJUDGED FLY-BALL, BEGAN HIS BASEBALL CAREER WHILE ATTENDING TREVORTON (PA.) HIGH SCHOOL. LATER HE WENT INTO THE SEMI-PRO POWER AND VALE LEAGUE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

HE JOINED ROCHESTER IN 1939 AND PLAYED IN THE INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE FOR A YEAR. IN 1940, THE CARDINALS SENT HIM TO THEIR FARM AT HAMILTON (ONT.), CANADA. IN 1941, HE WAS TRANSFERRED TO THE VIRGINIA LEAGUE AT ROANOKE.

HOPING TO GIVE HIS LEFT ARM A MUCH NEEDED REST, CORP.SNYDER LEFT BASEBALL AND TOOK A JOB AS A RUBBER GRINDER IN HIS HOME TOWN. A FEW MONTHS LATER HE ENLISTED.

CORP.SNYDER IS A SON OF MRS.BERTHA HICKS OF 8172 TOPE AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA. HE BECAME A CORPORAL LAST FEBRUARY.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA,JULY 22-(DELAYED)-(AP)-FOR MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT LIEUT.GENERAL GEORGE C.KENNEY, CHIEF OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA, AWARDED 15 OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER.

THE CLUSTER WAS GIVEN THESE MEN IN LIEU OF AN ADDITIONAL AWARD OF THE AIR MEDAL.

JUL 28 1943

THE CITATION IS:

"FOR MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT WHILE PARTICIPATING IN 25 OPERATIONAL FLIGHT MISSION IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA DURING WHICH HOSTILE CONTACT WAS PROBABLE AND EXPECTED. THESE OPERATIONS INCLUDED ESCORTING BOMBERS AND TRANSPORT AIRCRAFT, INTERCEPTION, AND ATTACK MISSIONS, AND PATROL AND RECONNAISSANCE FLIGHTS. IN THE COURSE OF THESE OPERATIONS, STRAFING AND DIVE-BOMBING ATTACKS WERE MADE FROM DANGEROUSLY LOW ALTITUDES, DESTROYING AND DAMAGING ENEMY INSTALLATIONS AND EQUIPMENT."

30.24-6615

THOSE AWARDED AND PERIODS OF FLIGHT COVERED INCLUDED:

1ST LIEUT.HARRY S.SCHEERER, 1114 MARTIN AVE., TOLEDO, O., NOV.16, 1942, TO JAN.25, 1943; 2ND LIEUT.LOUIS J. SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JULY 26--(DELAYED)--(AP)--WHEN ALLIED HEAVY BOMBERS DROPPED A 70-TON LOAD OF 1,000 AND 500-POUND BOMBS ON SALAMAUA TODAY, ONE BOMB ALMOST DIDN'T GET AWAY.

1ST LIEUT.FRANCIS HAAG, JR., OF PELHAM, N.Y., WAS FORCED TO MAKE A SECOND RUN AFTER HE BECAME AWARE THAT A THOUSAND POUND BOMB WAS CAUGHT ON A CLAMP AND WAS HANGING FROM HIS SHIP.

2ND LIEUT.WILLIAM SPENCER, ROANOKE, W.VA., WORKED FEVERISHLY ON THE BOMB FOR TEN MINUTES BEFORE MANAGING TO DROP IT SQUARE UPON SALAMAUA.

NEW GUINEA

FIRST LIEUT.GEORGE PRENTICE, CLEVELAND HEIGHTS, OHIO, WITH ONE ZERO TO HIS CREDIT, GOT ANOTHER TODAY.

MAJOR THOMAS LYNCH, CATASAUQUA, PENN., WHO WAS TIED WITH

BONG FOR TOP HONORS AT 11 EACH, CAME OUT OF THE ENCOUNTER WITH ONE "PROBABLE." OTHER SCORERS INCLUDED:

CAPTAIN CHARLES SULLIVAN, ROANOKE, ILL., ONE PROBABLE, ONE DAMAGED.

2ND LIEUT.WAYNE ROTHGEB, NEW HAVEN, IND., ONE PROBABLE.

THE JAPANESE BOMBERS, WITH ESCORT FIGHTERS, WERE RETURNING TO LAE FROM AN AFTERNOON ATTACK ON ALLIED FORWARD UNITS NEAR NASSAU BAY WHEN THEY WERE INTERCEPTED BY THE P-38'S.

UNDATED AXIS ITALIAN

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JUL 28 1943

AXIS PROPAGANDISTS, STILL SEEKING TO EXPLAIN ITALY'S GOVERNMENTAL UPHEAVAL TO THE SATISFACTION OF THEIR PEOPLES AND THE FUEHRER, DECIDED YESTERDAY (TUESDAY) THAT THE FAILURE OF FASCISM RATHER THAN FAILING HEALTH FORCED OUT BENITO MUSSOLINI.

THEY SEIZED UPON THE NEW LINE---IN ITSELF HARDLY COMPLIMENTARY TO RELATED NAZIISM---AFTER 48 HOURS OF FUMBLING.

MUSSOLINI'S REGIME FAILED "TO BRING ABOUT THE CONCENTRATION OF FORCES NECESSARY TO FULFILL WAR TASKS," THE GERMAN TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY SAID, QUOTING RADIO ROME.

"THEREFORE THE FORMER REGIME HAD TO HAND THE FATE OF ITALY TO OTHERS, WHO ARE NOW COLLECTING THE FORCES NEEDED TO SAVE ITALY," IT WAS STATED.

TRANSOCEAN DECLARED THAT "SO LONG AS THE ENEMY IS AT ITALY'S THRESHOLD, THE ITALIAN PEOPLE HAVE ONLY ONE MOTTO: 'THE WAR WILL GO ON.'" IT DENIED A MORAL BREAKDOWN.

SUGGESTIONS THAT ILL HEALTH CAUSED MUSSOLINI'S RESIGNATION, WHICH EARLIER HAD STREAMED FROM AXIS TRANSMITTERS, WERE DROPPED.

ALTHOUGH RIOTOUS ITALIAN GROUPS HAVE TORN DOWN FASCIST SYMBOLS AND DEMONSTRATED AGAINST FASCIST OFFICES, "NO OFFICIAL DECISIONS HAVE SO FAR BEEN MADE" AS TO THE FUTURE OF THE PARTY, TRANSOCEAN SAID. THE DEMONSTRATIONS WERE DESCRIBED AS "INSIGNIFICANT DISTURBANCES WHICH HAVE BEEN COMPLETELY SUPPRESSED."

"COMPETENT ITALIAN QUARTERS" WERE QUOTED AS SAYING "THE CHANGE OF GOVERNMENT WAS NEITHER A REVOLUTION NOR A COUP D'ETAT, BUT A CONSTITUTIONAL CRISIS SOLVED CONSTITUTIONALLY."

JUL 28 1943

THIS OBVIOUSLY APPEALED TO THE NAZI LEGAL MIND. TRANSOCEAN DEVOTED ABOUT 300 WORDS TO THE IDEA.

"ON THE BASIS OF A VOTE TAKEN BY THE GRAND FASCIST COUNCIL, THE CHIEF OF GOVERNMENT TENDERED HIS RESIGNATION TO THE KING," IT SAID. "ON THE BASIS OF A RESOLUTION OF A LARGE MAJORITY OF THE FASCIST COUNCIL THE KING TOOK CONSTITUTIONAL MEASURES BY TAKING OVER SUPREME COMMAND OF THE ARMED FORCES AND SUPREME GOVERNMENT POWERS. ITALY'S FOREIGN POLICY REMAINS UNCHANGED. ITALY WILL KEEP ITS PLEDGED WORD."

THE NAZI AGENCY SAID THAT MUSSOLINI "CONTINUES TO ENJOY ALL THE RIGHTS TO WHICH HE IS ENTITLED AS A KNIGHT OF THE ORDER OF THE ANNUNZIATA. THE ROME NEWSPAPER TRIBUNA WAS CONFISCATED MONDAY FOR PUBLISHING FALSE REPORTS ABOUT ARRESTS."

APPARENTLY SEEKING TO AVOID OFFENDING GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO FRANCO BY THE DENUNCIATION OF ITALIAN FASCISM, THE BERLIN RADIO BROADCAST A MADRID DISPATCH SAYING THE SPANISH DICTATOR TOLD HIS CABINET COUNCIL MONDAY NIGHT THAT THERE WERE SOME "FUNDAMENTAL DIFFERENCES" BETWEEN ROME'S TOTALITARIANISM AND THE MADRID REGIME.

"HE EMPHASIZED AT THE SAME TIME THAT THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT WAS COMPLETELY INDEPENDENT AND NOT CONTROLLED BY ANY OUTSIDE INFLUENCES," THE DISPATCH SAID.

THE PHRASEOLOGY AS WELL AS THE VERY FACT THE DISPATCH WAS BROADCAST SUGGESTED THAT BERLIN WAS TAKING PRECAUTIONS IN AN ATTEMPT TO AVOID FURTHER DEMORALIZATION IN THE RANKS OF TOTALITARIAN GROUPS.

[redacted] ITALY-IN-WAR

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE BOASTFUL FASCIST FORCES OF BENITO MUSSOLINI, ERSTWHILE JUNIOR PARTNER IN THE AXIS, SCORED SEVERAL MINOR AND SCATTERED SUCCESSES EARLY IN THE WAR WHEN THE GOING WAS EASY--BUT WHEN CONFRONTED WITH ANYTHING LIKE EQUAL OPPOSITION THE ITALIANS EITHER WERE BEATEN OR HAD TO BE RESCUED BY SENIOR PARTNER ADOLF HITLER.

MUSSOLINI FIGURED HE WAS PICKING AN AUSPICIOUS TIME TO ENTER THE WAR WHEN ITALY OPENED HOSTILITIES AGAINST FRANCE ON JUNE 10, 1940, A MERE WEEK BEFORE MARSHAL PETAIN SUED FOR PEACE TO SAVE HIS OVERPOWERED FRENCH ARMIES FROM BEING CUT TO PIECES BY THE NAZI PANZERS. A "STAB IN THE BACK," PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CALLED IT.

WHILE FASCIST TROOPS ENTERED TOTTERING FRANCE, ITALY BEGAN A PROGRAM OF HIT-AND-RUN AERIAL RAIDS ON BRITISH HOLDINGS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND AFRICA.

ON AUG.19, 1940 ABOUT TWO WEEKS AFTER THE ITALIANS INVADED

30.24 - 6617

BRITISH SOMALILAND, THE BRITISH ABANDONED IT TO THEM. AFTER THAT THINGS BEGAN TO LOOK BAD FOR MUSSOLINI'S FIGHTERS, ALTHOUGH HIS PROPAGANDA EXPERTS TRIED TO MAKE IT APPEAR OTHERWISE.

AS EARLY AS OCT.12, 1940 LITTLE MORE THAN FOUR MONTHS AFTER ITALY ENTERED THE WAR, THE BRITISH SANK THREE ITALIAN WARSHIPS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. THIS MARKED THE BEGINNING OF A SEVERE DROP IN ITALY'S SEA WARFARE STOCK. AS TIME PASSED HER WARSHIPS NOT ONLY TURNED TAIL AND FLED FROM ENGAGEMENTS, BUT EVENTUALLY SHE KEPT WHAT WAS LEFT OF HER FLEET SAFE AT HOME TO CHALK UP A BIG DEFAULT IN THE DEFENSE OF SICILY.

JUL 28 1943

ON OCT.27, 1940 ITALIAN PLANES OSTENTATIOUSLY BOMBED GREECE. ITALIAN TROOPS FOLLOWED THEM INTO GREECE BUT WERE THROWN BACK TO ALBANIA BY THE NUMERICALLY INFERIOR BUT TOUGHER GREEKS. IN RESPONSE TO MUSSOLINI'S S.O.S., POWERFUL GERMAN FORCES SWEPT THROUGH GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA AS WELL.

IN 1941, BRITISH TROOPS SMASHED ITALIAN RESISTANCE IN ETHIOPIA AND MUSSOLINI WAS FORCED TO SEND ANOTHER CALL TO HITLER FOR HELP IN NORTH AFRICA.

THE YEARS OF 1941 AND 1942 WERE SAD ONES FOR ITALY. HER TROOPS THAT WERE DRAFTED BY HITLER FOR THE NAZI INVASION OF RUSSIA WERE MAULED BY THE RED ARMIES AND THE RUSSIAN WINTER.

IMPORTANT ITALIAN INDUSTRIAL CITIES WERE SUBJECTED TO DEVASTATING AERIAL BOMBARDMENTS. DISASTER BEFELL REMAINING ITALIAN TROOPS IN NORTH AFRICA, CLIMAXED BY THE LANDING OF A POWERFUL AMERICAN ARMY ON AFRICAN SOIL.

STEP-BY-STEP ITALY LOST HER EMPIRE AND YIELDED TO THE ALLIES ON HER NATIVE SOIL. FROM NORTH AFRICA STRONGHOLDS THE ALLIES SWOOPED DOWN ON ITALIAN ISLANDS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. WITH THE ALLIES NOW STOUTLY ENTRENCHED IN SICILY AND READY TO INVADE HER MAINLAND PENINSULA, ITALY HAS FOUND WAR WITH THE DEMOCRACIES A DECIDEDLY COSTLY PROPOSITION.

UNDATED MUSSOLINI REACTION

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JUL 28 1943

REPORTS OF POSSIBLE ITALIAN PEACE FEELERS SPREAD TODAY AGAINST A BACKGROUND OF RENEWED ALLIED DETERMINATION TO POUR ON "THE MAXIMUM AVALANCHE OF FIRE AND STEEL" UNTIL ITALY DOES CAPITULATE.

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL SET THE KEYNOTE WHEN HE DECLARED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS IN LONDON THAT "ITALY WILL BE SEARED AND SCARRED AND BLACKENED FROM ONE END TO THE OTHER" UNLESS AND UNTIL MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO, SUCCESSOR TO THE DEPOSED BENITO MUSSOLINI, RAISES THE WHITE FLAG.

IN WASHINGTON, SECRETARY KNOX KEPT THE PEACE POT BOILING WITH A STATEMENT TO NEWSMEN THAT DEVELOPMENTS IN ITALY INDICATED AN ATTEMPT, IN THE REASONABLY NEAR FUTURE, TO TAKE THAT COUNTRY OUT OF THE WAR.

MEANWHILE, BERN, SWITZERLAND, RECORDED REPORTS FROM ROME THAT THE ITALIAN PEOPLE EXPECTED THAT ONE OF THE FIRST ACTS OF THE NEW BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT WOULD BE TO SUE FOR AN ARMISTICE. ALSO FROM BERN CAME A DISPATCH TO STOCKHOLM'S SVENSKA DAGBLADET REPORTING THAT PRELIMINARY NEGOTIATIONS FOR AN ARMISTICE ALREADY HAD BEGUN IN THE VATICAN.

THESE REPORTS LACKED CONFIRMATION, AND CHURCHILL FLATLY TOLD COMMONS THAT NO OVERTURES FOR PEACE HAD BEEN RECEIVED FROM THE NEW ITALIAN GOVERNMENT AND THAT, THEREFORE, THE ALLIES HAD BEEN FACED WITH NO NEW DECISION.

ON THE AXIS SIDE OF THE PICTURE THERE WAS EVIDENCE OF SOME CONFUSION. IN LONDON IT WAS NOTED THAT THE GERMAN PROPAGANDA MACHINE HAD BEEN UNUSUALLY SLOW IN POUNDING OUT A DEFINITE STAND ON THE FALL OF MUSSOLINI, INDICATING EITHER INDECISION OR UNCERTAINTY AS TO WHAT MIGHT COME NEXT.

JUL 28 1943

ELSEWHERE KIND WORDS FOR MUSSOLINI REMAINED FEW. IN "AMIRABAD," THE RECENTLY COMPLETED CAMP OF THE UNITED STATES PERSIAN GULF SERVICE COMMAND, THE SOLDIERS WERE INFORMED OF THE ROME UPSET WITH A BULLETIN HEADED, "ITALY BOOTS BENITO." THERE WAS LITTLE REACTION FROM THE SOLDIERS EXCEPT THAT THEY MIGHT GET HOME EARLIER. AND IN JERUSALEM THE ARABIC NEWSPAPER "PALESTINE" HEADLINED AN EDITORIAL ON MUSSOLINI WITH THE EXPRESSION, "ILA HAYTHU" MEANING "TO THE DEVIL."

UNDATED ITALIAN BOMBING

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALLIED AIR ACTIVITY OVER THE ITALIAN MAINLAND HAS FALLEN INTO A LULL SINCE SUNDAY, THE LIST OF BOMBED OBJECTIVES ANNOUNCED BY ALLIED HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUES DISCLOSED TODAY, BUT THERE WAS NO EXPLANATION OF THE REASON.

ONLY ONE MAINLAND TARGET, RAILWAY COMMUNICATIONS AT MARINA DI PAOLA ON THE ITALIAN TOE, WAS BOMBED YESTERDAY. NO TARGETS WERE ATTACKED ON SUNDAY, BUT THAT WAS BEFORE IT WAS KNOWN THAT A NEW REGIME WAS TAKING OVER IN ITALY.

TODAY'S ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE REPORTED, WITHOUT ALLIED CONFIRMATION, A NEW BOMBING OF NAPLES.

IN THE FIVE OTHER DAYS FOLLOWING THE BOMBING OF ROME A WEEK AGO MONDAY, ALLIED BOMBERS SWEPT OVER NUMEROUS ITALIAN CITIES, UNLOADING BOMBS ON AIRFIELDS AND RAILWAYS. LEGHORN WAS HIT BY AN RAF SHUTTLE BOMBING SATURDAY NIGHT, AND FLYING FORTRESSES MADE A RECORD HOP FOR THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER TO BLAST BOLOGNA IN NORTHERN ITALY THAT DAY, WHILE OTHER ALLIED FLIERS SMASHED AT MORE THAN HALF A DOZEN OTHER TOWNS.

JUL 28 1943

OTHER PLACES BOMBED LAST TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY AND FRIDAY INCLUDED AQUINO, CROTONE, SALERNO, LEVERANO, PRATICA DI MJRE, FOGGIA, BATTAPAGLIA, GROSSETO, TARGETS NEAR NAPLES AND AT LEAST FOUR AIRFIELDS.

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL TODAY SAID THE ALLIED COMMANDERS ALREADY HAD BEEN ORDERED TO PILE THE BLOWS ON ITALY. THE LULL MAY BE DUE TO WEATHER OR BECAUSE ITALY'S RAILWAY COMMUNICATIONS ALREADY HAVE BEEN POUNDED SUFFICIENTLY FOR THE TIME.

TODAY'S ALLIED HEADQUARTERS DISPATCHES SHOWED THE ALLIED AIR FORCES HAD BEEN EXTREMELY ACTIVE OVER SICILY.

PRECEDE NEW YORK OWI

WASHINGTON, JULY 27-(AP)-THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION (OWI) DECLARED TODAY THAT THE NEW GOVERNMENT OF ITALY IS REGARDED AS AN ENEMY THE SAME AS MUSSOLINI'S REGIME.

CLARIFYING THE TONE OF ITS RADIO BROADCASTS TO EUROPE, AN OWI OFFICIAL SAID:

"THIS ITALIAN GOVERNMENT, COMPOSED AS IT IS MOSTLY OF PEOPLE

FORMERLY ASSOCIATED WITH FASCISM, DECLARED AS ONE OF ITS FIRST ACTS ALLEGIANCE TO HITLER AND THE AXIS, AND THEREFORE IS AN ENEMY OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND THE WAR WILL GO ON TO UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER."

IT WAS UNDERSTOOD, HOWEVER, THAT THE GENERAL POLICY OF OWI IN ITS BROADCASTS TO CONTINENTAL EUROPE IS TO REFRAIN FROM MAKING ANY PERSONAL CRITICISM OF EITHER KING VITTORIO EMANUELE OR MARSHAL BADOGLIO. CERTAIN ENGLISH-LANGUAGE BROADCASTS BY OWI, QUOTING A COLUMNIST AS CALLING THE KING "MORONIC," WERE DESCRIBED AS BEING MERELY A PART OF A REGULAR SERVICE TO INFORM ENGLISH-SPEAKING PEOPLE OF THE TREND OF PRINTED OPINION IN THIS COUNTRY.

LIBERALS, IN POWER

SINCE 1934 (600)

(ADVANCE) TORONTO, JULY 27-(AP)-ONTARIO, WEALTHIEST AND MOST POPULOUS PROVINCE OF CANADA, WILL ELECT A NEW 90-MEMBER LEGISLATURE ON AUG. 4 IN A DUAL CHALLENGE TO THE LIBERAL PARTY WHICH HAS BEEN IN

JUL 28 1943

30.24 - 6619

POWER SINCE 1934.

SHOULD THE LIBERALS BE DEFEATED, THE MANDATE WOULD GO EITHER TO THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVES, NEW DESIGNATION FOR THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY, OR TO THE CO-OPERATIVE COMMONWEALTH FEDERATION, SOCIALIST PARTY WHICH HAS A MINORITY FOLLOWING IN THE PARLIAMENT AT OTTAWA AND A SCATTERING MEMBERSHIP IN PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURES.

JUL 28 1943

THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVES ARE TRADITIONAL OPPONENTS OF THE LIBERALS IN A SYSTEM THAT HAS SEEN THESE TWO PARTIES COMPETING FOR OFFICE IN BOTH DOMINION AND PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS FOR 76 YEARS.

THE CO-OPERATIVE COMMONWEALTH FEDERATION, WHICH HAD ITS INCEPTION AFTER THE FIRST WORLD WAR, IS HEADED BY ED JOLLIFFE, 34-YEAR OLD LAWYER AND RHODES SCHOLAR AND A WORKER FOR YEARS IN PARTY AND LABOR UNION CIRCLES.

HEADING THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVES IS LIEUT.COL.GEORGE DREW, 49-YEAR OLD LAWYER, A WAR VETERAN AND SON-IN-LAW OF EDWARD JOHNSON, GENERAL MANAGER OF THE METROPOLITAN OPERA IN NEW YORK.

WHEN MITCHELL F.HEPBURN RESIGNED THE PREMIERSHIP LAST OCTOBER--HIS REASONS NEVER WERE MADE CLEAR--HE PASSED THE OFFICE ALONG TO GORDON CONANT, HIS ATTORNEY GENERAL, WHO LOST THE LEADERSHIP IN APRIL TO HARRY NIXON. NIXON CALLED THE ELECTION IN DISREGARD OF A VOTE OF THE LEGISLATURE EXTENDING ITS LIFE FOR A YEAR, BECAUSE OF THE WAR.

FORMER PREMIER HEPBURN, WHO IS RUNNING IN THIS ELECTION, ALTHOUGH NOT AS LEADER, BECAME NATIONALLY KNOWN AS HEAD OF THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT, PRINCIPALLY BECAUSE OF HIS OPPOSITION TO THE PARENT LIBERAL GOVERNMENT AT OTTAWA AND ITS LEADER, PRIME MINISTER W. .

MACKENZIE KING.

A NATIONAL ELEMENT HAS BEEN INJECTED INTO THE CAMPAIGN WITH CHARGES THAT NIXON IS MERELY A PUPPET OF THE PRIME MINISTER AND THAT KING ORDERED HIM TO CALL THE ELECTION TO SEE HOW THE WIND WAS BLOWING. NIXON HAS DECLARED IN REPLY THAT ONLY A UNANIMOUS VOTE WOULD HAVE OBVIATED THE NECESSITY OF CHOOSING A NEW LEGISLATURE, AND THE CONSERVATIVES VOTED AGAINST EXTENDING ITS LIFE.

JUL 28 1943

NIXON WAS NEVER IN AGREEMENT WITH HEPBURN IN HIS ENMITY FOR KING, ESPECIALLY SINCE THE WAR BEGAN AND HEPBURN HAS ATTACKED THE OTTAWA GOVERNMENT ON ITS WAR RECORD.

THE PLATFORMS OF ALL PARTY LEADERS, WHO ARE NOW ON SPEAKING TOURS, EMPHASIZE POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION AND STRESS THE WAR AS TODAY'S FIRST CONCERN. BOTH LIBERAL AND PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE PROGRAMS UPHOLD AND ENCOURAGE PRIVATE ENTERPRISE, EMPHASIZING HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER DEVELOPMENT. THEY ALSO STRESS HEALTH AND EDUCATION.

THE C.C.F. PROGRAM, UNDER JOLLIFFE, CALLS FOR A PLANNING COMMISSION TO BE SET UP IMMEDIATELY AS GROUNDWORK FOR POST-WAR EMPLOYMENT AND "RELEASE FROM THE GRIP OF THE GREAT CORPORATIONS."

ABOUT 1,500,000 ONTARIO CITIZENS ARE EXPECTED TO VOTE. IN 1937 THE LIBERALS ELECTED 64 MEMBERS WITH 798,716 VOTES AND THE CONSERVATIVES NAMED 23 WITH 627,740 BALLOTS. TWO LIBERAL-PROGRESSIVES AND ONE INDEPENDENT WON OFFICE AS WELL. THE C.C.F. POLLED 77,744 VOTE BUT ELECTED NO ONE. HOWEVER, THIS MINORITY PARTY HAS SINCE ORGANIZE EXTENSIVELY AND IS MAKING A DEFINITE BID FOR POWER.

MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES STATIONED IN ONTARIO WILL VOTE IN SPECIAL BALLOT BOXES, WHILE SERVICE MEN AND WOMEN OUTSIDE THE PROVINCE HAVE BEEN ASKED TO VOTE BY PROXY. FORMS HAVE BEEN PROVIDED ON WHICH THEY ARE TO DESIGNATE FRIENDS AND RELATIVES BACK HOME TO VOTE FOR THEM.

THE PROXY SYSTEM HAS BEEN A POINT OF ISSUE IN CAMPAIGN SPEECHES. THE PROGRESSIVES AND THE C.C.F., WHILE DISAGREEING ON VIRTUALLY EVERYTHING ELSE, HAVE CHARGED THAT IT DESTROYS SECRECY OF VOTING AND ALSO THAT THERE IS INSUFFICIENT TIME TO GET PROXIES BACK FROM OVERSEAS.

THE SWIFTLY MOVING ALLIED SUCCESSES IN RUSSIA AND SICILY WERE CROWDING HERR HITLER INTO A MIGHTY TIGHT CORNER EVEN BEFORE MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL CAME TO INCREASE THE DIFFICULTIES OF THE NAZI POSITION.

THESE WIDELY SEPARATED OPERATIONS STRANGELY ENOUGH ARE CREATING A SQUEEZE WHICH, IRRESPECTIVE OF DEVELOPMENTS ON THE ITALIAN MAINLAND, MAY IN DUE COURSE FORCE THE FUEHRER TO PULL BACK HIS ENTIRE BATTLE-LINE ON THE EASTERN FRONT. THIS WOULD BE ONE OF THE GREATEST WITHDRAWALS IN HISTORY. THAT LINE REPRESENTS MORE THAN A THOUSAND MILES OF DEFENSES WHICH HAVE BEEN BUTTRESSED WITH THE BODIES OF HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF GERMAN YOUTH.

THE POINT IS, AS PREVIOUSLY POINTED OUT IN THIS COLUMN, THAT THE NAZI CHIEF IS COMPELLED TO REGARD THE ASSAULT ON SICILY AS THE POSSIBLE FORERUNNER OF AN ALLIED DRIVE UP THROUGH THE BALKANS. THE DANGER IS MULTIPILIED BY THE ITALIAN POLITICAL UPHEAVAL WHICH MAY RESULT IN A SEPARATE PEACE. AN INVASION OF THE BALKANS WOULD CREATE A GRAVE THREAT TO THE WHOLE GERMAN RIGHT WING, WHICH ALREADY IS SHAKING UNDER THE HAMMERING BY THE RED ARMIES.

OF COURSE, THE ANGLO-AMERICAN TEAM HAS HITLER--AND THE WORLD, FOR THAT MATTER--GUESSING AS TO WHERE THEY MAY STRIKE NEXT. POSSIBLY THE ALLIES THEMSELVES ARE KEEPING OPEN-MINDS, SINCE A QUICK SURRENDER OF ITALY WOULD MAKE THE BALKAN ADVENTURE DECIDEDLY MORE ATTRACTIVE. SHOULD MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO WITHDRAW FROM YUGOSLAVIA AND GREECE THE ITALIAN TROOPS WHICH REPRESENT THE MAIN AXIS DEFENSE THERE (AND HE IS UNOFFICIALLY REPORTED TO HAVE ISSUED SUCH AN ORDER ALREADY), IT WOULD OPEN UP POSSIBILITIES WHICH THE ALLIES COULD SURELY IGNORE.

JUL 28 1943

IN ANY EVENT, IT WOULD BE FOLLY FOR THE NAZI GANGSTER TO DISREGARD THE CONTINGENCY OF AN EARLY ASSAULT THROUGH THE BALKANS. HIS HOPE OF AVOIDING A WHOLESALE READJUSTMENT OF HIS HARD-WON POSITIONS IN RUSSIA MUST LIE IN STALLING THE WESTERN ALLIES OFF UNTIL THE BAD AUTUMN WEATHER ARRIVES TO IMPEDE MILITARY OPERATIONS ON THE BALKAN PENINSULA. THIS LIKELY ACCOUNTS FOR HIS ORDERS TO HIS FORCES IN SICILY TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH.

HOWEVER, EVEN IF ITALY DOESN'T MAKE A QUICK SURRENDER AND THUS END THE WHOLE SHOW, THE NAZI FORCES WHICH ARE COOPED UP IN THE NORTHEAST CORNER OF SICILY HAVE SMALL CHANCE OF HOLDING OUT LONG. WITH GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S VETERAN EIGHTH ARMY SMASHING AT THE GERMAN LEFT WING IN THE VICINITY OF CATANIA, AND OUR HARD-BOILED GENERAL PATTON'S SEVENTH ARMY ADVANCING ON THE RIGHT FLANK, IT CAN BE ONLY A SHORT TIME BEFORE THE HITLERITES COLLAPSE.

SHOULD HITLER BE COMPELLED TO PULL BACK HIS FRONT IN RUSSIA, THE FIRST WITHDRAWAL PRESUMABLY WOULD BE TO THE LINE OF THE GREAT RIVER DNIEPER, WHICH EMPTIES INTO THE BLACK SEA AT ODESSA. THAT WOULD BRING HIS RIGHT WING ANCHOR CLOSE TO RUMANIA, WHICH HE HOPES--UNDOUBTEDLY WITH MUCH MISGIVING--WILL GO ON FIGHTING FOR HIM AND CONTINUE TO PROVIDE THE ONLY SOURCE OF NATURAL OIL LEFT TO HIM.

IT HAS BEEN THE FUEHRER'S PLAN THAT RUMANIA, BULGARIA AND HUNGARY SHOULD STAND IN THE WAY OF AN ALLIED INVASION UP THE BALKANS. BUT HIS HOLD ON THESE SMALL SATELLITES WAS GETTING SHAKY EVEN BEFORE THE COLLAPSE OF MUSSOLINI. FEAR HAS KEPT THEM FAIRLY WELL IN LINE, BUT THEIR COURAGE TO REVOLT HAS GROWN STRONGER AS THE REICH HAS BECOME WEAKER. THE DEBACLE IN ROME WILL FURTHER STRENGTHEN THEIR RESISTANCE TO HITLER.

JUL 28 1943

THUS IF THE GERMANS SHOULD BE COMPELLED TO START A WITHDRAWAL, IT MIGHT NOT STOP LONG AT THE DNIEPER BUT CONTINUE CLEAR BACK INTO POLAND. INDEED, IF THE RUSSIANS SHOULD HAVE THE RESERVE STRENGTH TO FOLLOW THE NAZIS UP, A ROUT MIGHT BE PRODUCED, FOR A RETREAT IS A TERRIBLY DANGEROUS OPERATION.

WHATEVER DEVELOPS FROM THE ALLIED THREAT TO THE BALKANS, HITLER'S FAILING STRENGTH ULTIMATELY WILL FORCE HIM TO MOVE BACK ON ALL FRONTS IN ORDER TO ESTABLISH A POSITION AGAINST CONCERTED ATTACK. PROBABLY THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN THE SMART THING FOR HIM TO DO RIGHT AFTER HE HAD RAPED POLAND, INSTEAD OF TRYING TO CONQUER THE WORLD.

LONDON, JULY 27-(AP)-TWELVE UNITED STATES AIRMEN, ONE OF THEM A 28-YEAR-OLD COLONEL NOW LISTED AS MISSING IN ACTION AFTER LEADING FIGHTERS IN 42 COMBAT MISSIONS, WERE AWARDED THE SILVER STAR TODAY BY MAJ. GEN. IRA C. EAKER, COMMANDER OF THE EIGHTH ARMY AIR FORCE.

THE DECORATIONS, THE ARMY'S THIRD HIGHEST AWARDS, WENT TO SIX

OFFICERS AND SIX SERGEANTS FROM 11 STATES.

THE MISSING OFFICER WAS COL. ARMAN PETERSON OF FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ., WHO PREVIOUSLY WAS AWARDED THE AIR MEDAL WITH THREE OAK LEAF CLUSTERS AND THE DFC.

ANOTHER YOUNG COLONEL--27-YEAR-OLD HUBERT ZEMKE OF MISSOULA, MONT.--GOT TWO OTHER MEDALS AT THE SAME TIME HE WAS HANDED THE SILVER STAR. HE HAD BEEN TOO BUSY TO TAKE TIME OUT BEFORE TO COLLECT THE DFC AND AIR MEDAL. ZEMKE PARTICIPATED IN APPROXIMATELY 30 COMBAT MISSIONS.

JUL 28 1943

BOTH PETERSON AND ZEMKE WERE CITED FOR "BRILLIANT LEADERSHIP" AND FOR SETTING AN INSPIRING EXAMPLE FOR THE MEMBERS OF THEIR COMMAND.

ONE AWARD WAS MADE POSTHUMOUSLY TO 2ND LIEUT. FREDERICK L. ANGEL OF DENVER, COL. OTHERS DECORATED WERE:

CAPT.BRUCE A.GARDNER OF SAINT JOHNS, ARIZ.

FIRST LIEUT.JAMES F.KELLEY OF SILVER SPRINGS, MD.

SECOND LIEUT.BENJAMIN C.FINCHER OF MATTHEWS, N.C.

SGT.TIMOTHY RIORDAN OF ROXBURY, MASS.

SGT.KENNETH W.GORSUCH OF SANTA FE, N.M.

SGT.CLAIRE DICKINSON OF BLOOMINGBURG, N.Y.

SGT.JAMES A.WATSON OF HOULTON, ME.

SGT.JOSEPH S.KLASNICK OF PITTSBURGH, PA.

SGT.JOHN E.BREEN OF CHICAGO, ILL.

ANGEL, NAVIGATOR OF A FLYING FORTRESS, WAS CRITICALLY WOUNDED IN A RAID ON GERMANY JUNE 11. "SHORTLY THEREAFTER," THE CITATION SAID, "A FIERCE BLAZE STARTED IN THE NOSE COMPARTMENT OF THE PLANE. WITH UTTER DISREGARD FOR HIS SEVERE WOUNDS AND OWN SAFETY, LIEUT.ANGEL, AIDED BY THE BOMBARDIER, HEROICALLY BEAT OUT THE FLAMES WITH HIS OWN HANDS AND IN SO DOING HE GAVE HIS OWN LIFE."

FINCHER, BOMBARDIER ON THE SAME PLANE, ASSISTED ANGEL IN BEATING OUT THE FLAMES ALTHOUGH SERIOUSLY WOUNDED BY A CANNONSHELL WHICH EXPLODED IN THE NOSE COMPARTMENT.

WITH THE AWARD TO BREEN THE ENTIRE CREW OF THE FLYING FORTRESS "OLD BILL" HAS NOW BEEN GIVEN THE SILVER STAR FOR THEIR PART IN A RUNNING BATTLE WITH GERMAN FIGHTERS DURING THE DAYLIGHT RAID ON NORTH-WEST GERMANY MAY 15. BREEN, WAIST-GUNNER, WAS CITED FOR STICKING TO HIS GUNS AND AFTER THE FIGHTING GIVING INVALUABLE FIRST AID TO HIS CREW MATES--SEVEN OF WHOM WERE WOUNDED AND ONE OF WHOM WAS KILLED DURING THE FIGHT.

JUL 28 1943

KELLEY WAS DECORATED FOR COURAGEOUSLY CONTINUING TO PERFORM THE DUTIES OF NAVIGATOR AND SKILLFULLY MANNING THE NOSE GUNS IN FIGHTING OFF REPEATED ENEMY ATTACKS DURING A RAID ON GERMANY JUNE 25 EVEN THOUGH HE WAS SERIOUSLY WOUNDED.

RIORDAN, TURRET GUNNER OF A HEAVY BOMBER, WAS SERIOUSLY WOUNDED ON A MISSION ON APRIL 4 HIS CITATION SAID BUT "WITH UTTER DISREGARD FOR HIS PERSONAL SAFETY HE BRAVELY AND SKILLFULLY CONTINUED TO FIRE HIS GUNS UNTIL THE LAST ENEMY PLANE HAD BEEN DRIVEN OFF" AND SHOT DOWN ONE.

THE EXTRAORDINARY RESCUE OF A CREW MATE LEFT DANGLING UNDER THE PLANE WHEN HIS PARACHUTE HARNESS CAUGHT AS HE ATTEMPTED TO BAIL OUT OF A DAMAGED BOMBER ON MAY 19 WON THE SILVER STAR FOR GORSUCH.

CREW MEMBERS LOWERED GORSUCH THROUGH THE ESCAPE DOOR WHILE HE TIED A ROPE AROUND THE BODY OF THE CREW MATE TO PULL HIM TO SAFETY. THE

30.24-6623

CITATION SAID BALL TURRET GUNNER GORSUCH TOOK OFF HIS ELECTRICALLY HEATED GLOVES FOR THE RESCUE, KNOWING SEVERE FROSTBITE WOULD BE THE RESULT.

DICKINSON, TAIL GUNNER ON A HEAVY BOMBER, WAS WOUNDED BEFORE REACHING THE TARGET IN A RAID ON GERMANY JUNE 13 BUT KEPT TO HIS GUNS AND FOUGHT PERSISTENT ENEMY FIGHTER ATTACKS.

WATSON WAS TOP TURRET GUNNER AND ENGINEER ON A FLYING FORTRESS WHICH WAS BADLY DAMAGED AND FORCED OUT OF FORMATION IN A MISSION OVER GERMANY JUNE 25. DURING THE RAID HE ALTERNATELY FOUGHT OFF ENEMY FIGHTERS AT THE GUNS AND ATTEMPTED MUCH NEEDED EMERGENCY REPAIRS TO THE PLANE. WHEN OVER FRIENDLY TERRITORY AND THE SKIPPER ORDERED THE CREW TO BAIL OUT, WATSON SUPERVISED AND ASSISTED THE OTHERS DOING THIS.

KLASNICK, LEFT WAIST GUNNER IN A RAID ON GERMANY JUNE 25, KEPT AT HIS GUNS DESPITE SERIOUS WOUNDS TO DRIVE OFF ENEMY FIGHTERS ATTACKING THE DAMAGED PLANE.

JUL 28 1943

GARDNER WAS THE BOMBARDIER OF THE LEADING PLANE IN A HEAVY BOMBARDMENT WING ATTACKING A GERMAN TARGET ON MAY 19. HIS PLANE CAUGHT FIRE AND ONE ENGINE WAS DISABLED BEFORE REACHING THE TARGET BUT EVEN UNDER THESE DIFFICULTIES GARDNER DROPPED HIS BOMBS WITH SUCH SKILL AND ACCURACY THAT ALL THE FOLLOWING PLANES HIT THE TARGET. AFTER RELEASING HIS BOMBS THE CAPTAIN THEN MANNED THE NOSE GUNS AND FOUGHT OFF DETERMINED FRONTAL ASSAULTS OF ENEMY FIGHTERS.

BALBOA, CANAL ZONE, JULY 27-(AP)-ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE NAVY RALPH A. BARD TODAY URGED A REDOUBLED PRODUCTION EFFOR TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE WEAKNESS ON THE AXIS FRONT CREATED BY THE DOWNFALL OF BENITO MUSSOLINI.

"LET'S POUR IT ON IN ALL DIRECTIONS," HE SAID AT A PRESS CONFERENCE AT HEADQUARTERS OF THE 15TH NAVAL DISTRICT FOLLOWING PRESENTATION OF A SECRETARY OF THE NAVY'S WAR BOND FLAG TO CIVILIAN EMPLOYES OF THIS DISTRICT FOR SETTING THE PACE IN THE NAVY'S WAR BOND BUYING.

IN HIS COMMENT ON THE ITALIAN SITUATION, BARD SAID;

JUL 28 1943

"ONE THING IMPRESSES ME: THIS IS NO TIME FOR RELAXATION ON THE PART OF ANYBODY. WE MUST REDOUBLE OUR EFFORT IN ALL DIRECTIONS--MORE SHIPS, MORE PLANES, MORE EVERYTHING NEEDED TO CARRY ON THE WAR--AND POUR IT ON IN ALL DIRECTIONS.

"LET'S TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE WEAKNESS THAT HAS DEVELOPED.

"WE ALL WANT A SHORT WAR--THE HARDER WE CARRY IT ON THE SHORTER IT WILL BE OVER."

the plane left san jose july 24 en route for david, panama and its two companions, said it crashed ~~here~~ about 63 miles south of here in the santa maria de bota mountains. search parties have been organized to find the two ~~xxxx~~ man crew.

LONDON, JULY 27 - (AP) - THE VICTORIA CROSS, BRITAIN'S HIGHEST MILITARY DECORATION, WAS AWARDED POSTHUMOUSLY TODAY TO COMPANY HAVILDAR-MAJOR CHHELU (CORRECT) RAM OF THE INDIAN ARMY FOR CONSPICUOUS BRAVERY IN THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN.

JUL 28 1943

RAM, THE SENIOR NONCOMMISSIONED OFFICER OF HIS COMPANY, LED HIS MEN IN A VITAL ATTACK ON DJEBEL GARCI APRIL 19 AFTER HIS COMMANDER WAS KILLED AND HE HIMSELF WAS TWICE WOUNDED.

FIRST HE APPROACHED A MACHINE GUN POSITION WHICH WAS HOLDING UP THE ADVANCE AND WIPED IT OUT WITH A TOMMYGUN. THEN, WHEN THE COMMANDER FELL, HE RALLIED THE RANKS AND LED THEM IN HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING WHICH CAPTURED THE HILL. RAM DIED A FEW MINUTES AFTER THE POSITION WAS STORMED.

NEW YORK, JULY 27-(AP)-GENERAL CHARLES DE GAULLE, IN A BROADCAST OVER THE ALGIERS RADIO, SAID TONIGHT THAT N O SETTLEMENT WITH ITALY COULD BE MADE WITHOUT THE PARTICIPATION OF FRANCE, THE U. S. FOREIGN BROADCAST INTELLIGENCE SERVICE REPORTED TONIGHT.

THIS ~~xxxxx~~ BROADCAST ~~WAS~~ HAD BEEN PRECEDED BY AN ANNOUNCEMENT THAT AN IMPORTANT STATEMENT SOON WOULD BE HEARD.

IT WAS ADDED THAT THE FRENCH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION, OF WHICH GEN. DE GAULLE IS CO-HEAD WITH GEN. HENRI GIRAUD, MET IN A PLENARY SESSION TODAY.

(TWO HUNDRED ALLIED BOMBERS BLASTED MUNDA, KEY JAPANESE POINT IN NEW GEORGIA, WITH 186 TONS OF BOMBS SUNDAY IN THE HEAVIEST RAID YET MADE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC. AN ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT, LEIF ERICKSON, RODE IN ONE OF THE PLANES, AND GIVES AN EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT OF THE ATTACK IN THE FOLLOWING DISPATCH).

BY LEIF ERICKSON

GUADALCANAL, JULY 25-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE MIGHTIEST AERIAL BOMBARDMENT EVER UNLOOSED IN THE PACIFIC WAR SHATTERED AND ROCKED JAPANESE JUNGLE AND HILL POSITIONS ON MUNDA PENINSULA TODAY.

IT WAS AN AWESOMELY DESTRUCTIVE AND PRECISELY COORDINATED ATTACK.

THE TERRIFIC CONCENTRATED BOMBING FOLLOWED A 38-MINUUTE DAWN SHELLING OF THE SAME TARGET AREA BY LIGHT NAVAL FORCES FROM RENDOVA STRAIGHT. THE SHIPS' GUNS RAKED MUNDA POINT FROM

30.24 – 6625

THE BEACH BACK THROUGH THE HILL STRONG POINTS.

I WITNESSED THE ATTACK FROM ONE OF THE BOMBERS WHEELING AND DIVING OVER THE ENEMY'S LAST-DITCH POSITION OF RESISTANCE ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND. I STOOD UP UNDER THE CANOPY BETWEEN THE PILOT AND THE REAR-TURRET GUNNER IN A NAVY FIGHTER PLANE, CLINGING TO A METAL FRAME SUPPORT.

THE SUPPORT CAME IN HANDY AS LT. (JG) FRANCIS "RED" SANBORN OF TRAVERSE CITY, MICH., PUT HIS PLANE INTO A STEEP GLIDE DOWN 7000 FEET TO HURL HIS HEAVY BOMB ON BIBILO HILL. JUL 28 1943

OUR SHIPS AND BOMBERS WERE PROTECTED FROM INTERFERENCE OF JAPANESE PLANES BY ESCORT FIGHTERS CIRCLING TO THE NORTH OVER KULA GULF AND KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND. THE TOTAL PLANE FORCE OF OVER 200 WAS THE LARGEST EVER USED IN A SINGLE AIR ASSAULT IN THE PACIFIC.

OBJECTIVE OF THE SHIP-PLANE BARRAGE OF MORE THAN 320 TONS OF STEEL EXPLOSIVES WAS TO PARALYZED THE STUBBORN NIPPONESE ENEMY FOR THE FINAL DRIVE TO WIPE OUT THE MUNDA DEFENDERS WHO HAVE BEEN MATERIALLY REINFORCED FROM KOLOMBANGARA SINCE THE START OF OUR NEW GEORGIA OFFENSE JUNE 30.

(THIS WAS THE FIRST DIRECT REFERENCE TO REINFORCEMENTS OF MUNDA AIRDROME ALTHOUGH THE ALLIED HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE FOR TODAY MENTIONED SMALL ENEMY CRAFT ATTEMPTING TO RUN INTO KULA GULF UNDER THE cover of darkness ENEMY'S FRONT LINE, HOWEVER, COULD NOT BE BOMBED OR SHELLED BECAUSE OF THE DANGER OF HITTING OUR OWN ADVANCING GROUND TROOPS.

IF THE FRONT LINE BREAK-THROUGH CAN BE ACHIEVED WITHOUT A HALT, IT IS THE HOPE OF OUR COMMANDERS THAT THE JAPANESE REAR POSITIONS WILL BE SO BLASTED THAT THE NIPPONESE WILL BE UNABLE TO MAKE ANOTHER STRONG STAND.

THE COMMANDER OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC AMPHIBIOUS FORCE REPORTED ONE INFANTRY SPEARHEAD, IN AN ASSAULT AFTER THE BOMBARDMENT, BROKE THROUGH THE CENTER OF THE ENEMY'S FRONT LINE MACHINE-GUN PILLBOXES TO ADVANCE 500 YARDS BY NOON. MEANWHILE, OUR GROUND TROOPS LANDED FROM RENDOVA ON THE SHORE OF ROVINA LAGOON ARE PRESSING ON MUNDA AIRDROME FROM THE EAST.

LIBERATORS AND FLYING FORTRESSES OPENED UP THE BLASTING AT 6:30 A.M. DROPPING BOMBS FROM A MEDIUM ALTITUDE ALONG THE BEACH EAST OF MUNDA AIRSTRIP. JUL 28 1943

TBF'S PEELING OFF FROM TIGHT FORMATIONS GLIDED STEEPLY DOWN TO HIS THE BIBILO HILL RING NORTHEAST OF THE ENEMY'

AIRFIELD. A FINAL WAVE OF DIVE BOMBERS TOOK CARE OF ACK-ACK GUNS WHOSE POSITIONS WERE DISCLOSED BY FIRE ON THE HEAVY BOMBERS AND TBF'S.

AS LT.SANBORN, WITH WHOM I WAS RIDING, LED HIS TBF DIVISION TOWARD THE TARGET, I COULD SEE THE LAST FLASHES OF THE SHIPS' GUNS BEFORE THEY TURNED SHARPLY AND SPEEDED SOUTHWARD.

I COULD SEE, TOO, THE RESULTS OF THE BOMBARDMENT ON THE MUNDA PENINSULA. GROUND-CLINGING DARK SMOKE SOLIDLY COVERED THE BLUNT ARROWHEAD OF LAND. HEAVY COLUMNS OF LIGHTER SMOKE PLAINLY FROM LARGE FIRES OF STORES OR AMMUNITION AROSE A THOUSAND FEET IN THE AIR AND SLANTED WESTWARD IN THE WIND.

DURING THE BOMBARDMENT, I STRAINED TO LOOK THROUGH THE SIDE OF THE CANOPY IN THE DAUNTLESS BUT COULDN'T SEE OUR OWN BOMB BURST. BUT THE PLANE BUMPED SEVERAL FEET WHEN THE BOMB EXPLODED SOON AFTER SANBORN PULLED OUT OF HIS GLIDE. AS WE CIRCLED AWAY, I COULD SEE PLANE AFTER PLANE FOLLOWING OVER THE TARGET AND THEIR BOMBS EXPLODING.

LT.COMDR.ROBERT JONES MARQUETTE, MICH., 7BF SQUADRON COMMANDER, WATCHED THE ENTIRE ATTACK BY BOTH SHIPS AND PLANES FROM AN OBSERVATION PLANE. HE SAID THAT AT TIMES HE SAW THREE LINES OF PLANES DIVING ON MUNDA SIMULTANEOUSLY. JONES ALSO SAW AN OCCASIONAL FLASH OF AN ACK-ACK GUN ON THE EXTREME TIP OF MUNDA POINT.

A SINGLE PLANE APPARENTLY ASSIGNED TO GET THAT GUN CIRCLED DELIBERATELY UNTIL IT HAD BEEN FULLY SPOTTED. "THAT BOY PEELED OVER STRAIGHT DOWN AND GAVE THAT GUN THE WORKS," JONES REPORTED. "THEN HE PULLED OUT AND SEEMED TO SWAGGER AWAY.

ONE OF OUR PLANES FAILED TO RETURN FROM THE MUNDA RAID.

THE ENEMY SENT OUT A RETALIATION FORCE OF 30 DIVE BOMBERS ESCORTED BY 30 ZEROS WHICH WERE INTERCEPTED OVER RENDOVA ABOUT 10 A.M. OUR PATROLLING FIGHTERS SCRAMBLED WITH THE ZEROS, SHOOTING DOWN AT LEAST EIGHT.

THE DIVE BOMBERS WERE TURNED BACK. FOUR OF OUR FIGHTERS WERE LOS

JUL 28 1943

A BIG LIBERATOR RECONNAISSANCE PLANE JUMPED BY SEVEN ZEROS AND SHOT DOWN ONE. P-40'S DROVE OFF THE OTHERS.

THE BLACKJACKS, A NAVY WILDCAT SQUADRON COMMANDED BY LT.CMDR. CHARLES H.OSTROM, MIAMI, FLA., BAGGED FIVE ZEROS TODAY, BRINGING THE TOTAL SINCE JUNE 30 TO 58.

LT.(JG) THOMAS S.MOORE, LAKEVIEW, S.C., GOT TWO AND LT. (JG) JOHN C.SYMMES, PHILADELPHIA, DOWNED ONE ZERO TO REACH THE ACE SCORE OF FIVE.

ENSIGN CHARLES S.WILLIAMS, AUBURN, N.Y., SENT ONE ZERO DOWN BURNING. WITH HIS PLANE SHOT UP, HE MADE A CRASH LANDING AT THE BASE FIELD. ENSIGN MARTIN DILLON, BIRMINGHAM, ALA., ACCOUNTED FOR THE BLACKJACKS' FIFTH ZERO.

OR WHERE YOU WALK UP TO A BAMBOO HUT TO DISCOVER FORMER HIGH SCHOOL FRIENDS. THESE ISLANDS HAVE BECOME CROSSROADS THAT REMIND ONE, ALMOST, OF TIMES SQUARE.

LAST WEDNESDAY, NAVY SEABEE CHIEF HUBERT G. HUTTON, A FORMER SPORTS PROMOTER OF 1195 CONCORD STREET, FRAMINGHAM, MASSACHUSETTS, WAS DOZING UNDER A COCONUT TREE FOLLOWING A HEARTY MEAL. A TAP ON THE SHOULDER WOKE HIM AND HE LOOKED UP TO SEE HIS SON, 22-YEAR-OLD HUBERT, JR., A SERGEANT IN THE AIR CORPS.

ANOTHER SPECTACULAR FATHER AND SON MEETING HAD OCCURRED ONLY TWO WEEKS BEFORE WHEN CHIEF BOATSWAIN'S MATE ARCHIE C. GODDARD, U. S. N. R., WAS STANDING ON THE DOCK, WATCHING A SHIP COME IN. DOWN THE GANGPLANK CAME A CONTINGENT OF MARINES FROM THE STATES. ONE OF THE FIRST TO STEP ASHORE WAS GODDARD'S 19-YEAR-OLD SON, CORPORAL ROBERT A. GODDARD!

THEY HAD LAST SEEN EACH OTHER WHEN YOUNG GODDARD WAS HOME ON A FURLOUGH IN MAY, 1942, SHORTLY BEFORE CHIEF GODDARD JOINED UP.

THEY IMMEDIATELY WROTE A JOINT LETTER TO "MOTHER" AT 1729 QUEEN STREET, SOUTH, ST. PETERSBURG, FLORIDA.

ANOTHER COINCIDENTAL MEETING OCCURRED RECENTLY WHEN FORMER TRACK STAR LOU ZAMPERINI, AN AMERICAN AIR PILOT, LANDED AT A NEARBY BASE AFTER A RAID ON JAPANESE TERRITORY. THE FIRST MAN TO GREET ZAMPERINI AS HE CRAWLED FROM HIS COCKPIT WAS NAVY LIEUTENANT (J.G.), ART READING, 24, OF 11572 232ND STREET, ST. ALBANS, N.Y., WHO HAD BEEN ON THE SAME TRACK TEAM WITH ZAMPERINI AT THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIAE

ONE MARINE COMPANY OUT HERE HAS TWO MEN TO RECENTLY RAN ACROSS THEIR BROTHERS.

GLENN MASTEN, NOW A MEMBER OF THE CANDIDATES CLASS, MARINE BARRACKS, QUANTICO, VA., HASN'T PACKED AWAY HIS RUNNING TRUNKS AND SHOES FOR THE DURATION.

DURING THE DAY HE UNDERGOES THE STRENUOUS TRAINING OF AN OFFICER CANDIDATE. IN THE EVENING, WHEN HIS SHIPMATES ARE GRATEFUL FOR A FEW MOMENTS RELAXATION ON THEIR BUNKS, THE TWO-MILE RUNNING SENSATION OF COLGATE HOUNDS THEM FOR SOMEONE TO PACE HIM. FAILING IN THIS, HE RUNS BY HIMSELF.

MASTEN, WHO PUSHED GREG RICE INTO A NEW WORLD MARK OF 8:51 AT

JUL 28.1943
JUL 28 1943

CLEVELAND LAST WINTER, FIRST ENTERED THE MARINE CORPS IN 1941, VIA THE PLATOON LEADERS CLASS, SCHOOLED AT QUANTICO AND PHILADELPHIA. AS A RESERVIST, HE WAS CALLED TO ACTIVE DUTY ON MAY 4, 1943, AND WAS TRANSFERRED TO PARRIS ISLAND,S.C., TO UNDERGO PRELIMINARY INSTRUCTION BEFORE ENTERING THE CANDIDATES CLASS AT QUANTICO.

AT PARRIS ISLAND, A PRIVATE FIRST CLASS, HE WAS INVITED TO RUN AGAINST RICE AND GUNDER HAEGG. BUT, BELIEVING IT WOULD INTERFERE WITH HIS PROGRESS IN THE MARINES, MASTEN DECLINED.

"I THINK IT IS MORE IMPORTANT TO GET A COMMISSION THAN IT IS TO WIN RACES," HE EXPLAINED.

AS EVIDENCE OF HIS FINE PHYSICAL CONDITION: MASTEN WEIGHED 135 POUNDS WHEN HE ENTERED ACTIVE SERVICE. NOW, AFTER NEARLY THREE MONTHS OF STRENUOUS CONDITIONING, HIS FIVE FOOT TEN AND A HALF INCH FRAME CARRIES EXACTLY THE SAME WEIGHT. MOST MEN LOST CONSIDERABLY DURING THIS PERIOD.

JUL 28 1943

GLENN WAS BORN JUST 48 HOURS AFTER WORLD WAR 1 ARMISTICE DAY. HE IS THE SON OF VERNON A.MASTEN, 20 MAPLE AVENUE, CORTLAND,N.Y.

AT COLGATE, YOUNG MASTEN MAJORED IN ENGLISH LITERATURE, AND RECEIVED A B.A. DEGREE. HE PARTICIPATED IN TRACK EVENTS DURING HIS FOUR YEARS AT SCHOOL, AND IS A MEMBER OF THE THETA CHI FRATERNITY.

THE 32D CANDIDATES CLASS, TO WHICH MASTEN BELONGS, IS SCHEDULED FOR GRADUATION AND COMMISSIONS AUG.25, AFTER WHICH THE NEW MARINE SECOND LIEUTENANTS WILL ENTER THE RESERVE OFFICERS CLASS FOR 10 WEEKS ADDITIONAL TRAINING.

NEW YORK, JULY 27-(AP)-LIEUTENANT WILLIAM CRAWFORD, JR., OF NILES, OHIO, RECOGNIZED AS ONE OF THE HEROES OF THE BATTLE OF THE BISMARCK SEA, TOLD THE STORY TODAY OF HOW 11 CREW MEMBERS OF THE FLYING FORTRESS "LOOSE GOOSE" WERE SAVED FROM 27 JAPANESE ZERO FIGHTER PLANES AFTER THEIR SHIP WAS RIDDLED BY GROUND FIRE.

"A JAP SHELL CAME THROUGH THE BOMB BAY," SAID THE 26-YEAR-OLD LIEUTENANT HERE ON HIS FIRST LEAVE. "IT EXPLODED INSIDE AND DESTROYED MOST OF THE INTERNAL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING THZSSALVO HANDLE IN THE COCK-PIT, THE OXYGEN SYSTEM AND THE HYDRAULIC SYSTEM.

"WE WERE TRAVELING AT A PRETTY FAST RATE OF SPEED THEN AND THE WHISTLING OF THE WIND THROUGH THAT HOLE MADE A TREMENDOUS SCREECHING SOUND. A FIRE BROKE OUT IN THE FUSELAGE. A SINGLE BOMB STILL HUNG IN THE RACK IN THE BOMB BAY."

ORDINARILY THE REMAINING BOMB COULD HAVE BEEN RELEASED FROM THE COCKPIT. BUT SINCE THE SALVO HANDLE WAS SMASHED, LIEUT.JOHN L.GIBBS OF HATTISBURG, MISS., THE CO-PILOT, HAD TO GO DOWN THROUGH THE HATCH INTO THE BOMB BAY TO SIGNAL BOMBARDIER TO RELEASE THE MISSILE.

"THE SWEATING OUT OF THAT BOMB PROBABLY TOOK ONLY A MINUTE AND A HALF," SAID CRAWFORD, "BUT IT SEEMED LIKE THREE HOURS."

SHORTLY AFTERWARDS THE CREW MANAGED TO BEAT OUT THE FLAMES AND ESCAPED THE 27 PURSUING JAPANESE PLANES BY STEERING THEIR SHIP INTO A BANK OF CLOUDS.

IN THE END, THE "LOOSE GOOSE" MADE AN EMERGENCY LANDING AT AN AMERICAN ADVANCED BASE WHERE, LIEUT.CRAWFORD SAID, THE CREW MEMBERS "KISSED THE GROUND, DOING ALL THAT SALAAMING STUFF" IN THEIR RELIEF AT BEING SAVED.

CRAWFORD HOLDS EIGHT DECORATIONS AND HAS BEEN WOUNDED TWICE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC. HIS ACHIEVEMENTS INCLUDE BRINGING BACK DISABLED FLYING FORTRESSES ON TWO OTHER OCCASIONS, SHOOTING DOWN ENEMY PLANES, SINKING THREE JAPANESE WARSHIPS AND AN 8,000-TON TRANSPORT TOOK AN 8,000-FOOT NOSE DIVE WITH THE CONTROLS JAMMED.

HUNGER SPURS
FRENCH ANGER
AGAINST FOES

DISEASE MOUNTSR
AS NAZIS GRAB
FOOD SUPPLY (700)

BY FRANK BRUTTO

(ADVANCE) BERN--(AP)-THE FRENCH MASSES, VISITED WITH TERRIBLE AND CONSTANT HUNGER WHILE THEIR NAZI CONQUERORS FEED ON THEIR CROPS, ARE BUILDING UP AN ANGER WHICH WILL EXPLODE WITH DEVASTATING EFFECT AT THE FIRST ALLIED INVASION LANDING, SAYS A DISPATCH FROM FRANCE TO THE BASLER NACHRICHTEN.

THE SITUATION, THE PAPER SAID, HAS REACHED A POINT WHICH MAY PROVE CATASTROPHIC FOR FRANCE UNLESS SOON RELIEVED.

THE SPECTER OF INABILITY TO BRIDGE THE GAP UNTIL THE NEW CROP IS HARVESTED HANGS OVER THE COUNTRY, AGGRAVATED BY THE FACT THAT 800,000 PEASANT PRISONERS ARE STILL IN GERMANY AND HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF YOUTHS ARE ENROLLED IN NAZI FORCED LABOR RANKS. BUT THE EXISTING FOOD SHORTAGE, SAID THE NACHRICHTEN, "WITHOUT QUESTION IS DUE TO

30.24-6629

FEES AND REQUISITIONS OF THE GERMANS".

BREAD RIOTS HAVE OCCURRED IN VARIOUS CITIES, AMONG THEM GRENOBLE AND GEX.

MORE RECENTLY A THRONG OF MADDENED HOUSEWIVES IN VICHY ASSAILED THE PARC HOTEL--MARSHAL PETAIN'S QUARTERS--AFTER A 15-DAY ABSENCE OF FRUIT AND VEGETABLES FROM THE CITY'S MARKETS. THEY SHOUTED THAT THEY WANTED TO TELL THE MARSHAL "WHAT WE THINK ABOUT IT". A DOUBLED POLICE GUARD FORCIBLY DISPELLED THE MOB AND BARRICADED THE HOTEL CELLARS, WHOSE STOCKS THEY HAD THREATENED TO PILLAGE, BUT NOT UNTIL THE HOUSEWIVES SUCCEEDED IN GRABBING AN ARRIVAL OF VEGETABLES SCHEDULED FOR LATER SALE. THE HOUSEWIVES FEARED THEY WOULD FIND THEIR WAY TO RESTAURANTS AND THE BLACK MARKETS AS THEY DID IN THE PAST, AND NOT TO THE PUBLIC MARTS.

THROUGHOUT FRANCE HUNGER IS INCREASING. CHILDREN WHOSE FACES ARE PINCHED AND LEGS SPINDLY ARE FALLING EASY VICTIMS OF DISEASE WHILE THEIR PARENTS MUTTER HELPLESSLY.

IN VICHY, LYONS AND OTHER METROPOLITAN SECTORS, SAID THE REPORT FROM FRANCE TO THE NACHRICHTEN, ONE ALWAYS SEES "THE SAME PITIFUL LINES STANDING IN FRONT OF SHOPS IN THE GREY DAWN HOURS." WHAT ONE GETS IS SO SMALL ONE WONDERS WHETHER THE PEOPLE WILL NOT DIE OF WEAKNESS. ALMOST DAILY THE SIGNS "NO FRUIT" AND "NO VEGETABLES" ARE POSTED IN SHOP WINDOWS.

THE PEOPLE ARE AWARE THAT GERMAN FUNCTIONARIES AND THE PRIVIL FEW "STUFF THEMSELVES" WHILE THE HUMBLE PEOPLE AND THEIR CHILDREN DEPRIVED OF EVERYTHING AND ARE ONLY ABLE TO MURMUR.

PROPAGANDA AGAINST RUSSIA, THE DISPATCH SAID, HAS BOOMERANGED,

THE PEOPLE SIMPLY CONSIDERING IT AN EXPRESSION OF BENEFIT TO GERMANY. NEW MEASURES TO RECRUIT LABOR IN GERMANY ARE DOOMED TO MORE SERIOUS FAILURES THAN THE FIRST ATTEMPT. SCARCELY A FOURTH CALLED RESPONDED, AND THE AUTHORITIES, HELPLESS, FACE THOUSANDS OF RECALCITRANTS.

LYONS MARKETS WHICH NORMALLY RECEIVED 400 TONS OF FRUIT AND VEGETABLES DAILY FOR ITS HALF MILLION POPULATION NOW GET NO MORE THAN 50. OF 150 TONS OF VEGETABLES SHIPPED FROM THE BOURG REGION ONLY 10 REACH LYONS. OF MEAT, THE DISPATCH SAID, "BETTER NOT TALK". THE PEOPLE OF LYONS GET 90 GRAMS ONCE EVERY 15 DAYS--THE SITUATION IS THE SAME IN ALL CITIES AND VILLAGES IN HAUTE SAVOIE PROVINCE.

JUL 28 1943

BREAD, MEAT, MILK, BUTTER, FRUIT, WINE AND LIQUORS WERE TAKEN IN ADVANCE BY NAZIS IN SUCH PROPORTIONS, SAID THE BASLER NACHRICHTEN REPORT FROM FRANCE, THAT FEEDING THE NATIVE POPULATION WAS IMPOSSIBLE. AS A RESULT THE FRENCH ARE BITTER TOWARD NAZI "INFLATED" FUNCTIONARIES WHO GET "THREE AND FOUR TIMES THE NORMAL RATIONS", EXHAUSTING THE COUNTRY'S SUBSTANCE.

THE PEOPLE OF LYONS HAVE NOT HAD SALAD THIS YEAR. A BIT OF LETTUCE COSTS 50 TO 60 FRANCS. EVERY DAY 6,000 TO 7,000 MEN AND WOMEN OF LYONS MOUNT BICYCLES AND PEDAL 25 TO 50 KILOMETERS ON A USUALLY FUTILE HUNT FOR CABBAGES, TURNIPS AND SPINACH.

AT VILLEURBANNE, HOUSEWIVES IN WORKERS QUARTERS STAND STILENTLY FROM 6 A.M. UNTIL 11 A.M. DAILY TO GET A HALF POUND OF ERSATZ "NATIONAL CHOCOLATE" BADLY NEEDED BY THEIR CHILDREN, WHOSE EMACIATED FACES SHOW THE HARDSHIPS OF THE TIMES.

FROM NICE IT IS REPORTED THERE IS NO MEANT. BUTTER ON THE BLACK MARKET COSTS 1,200 FRANCS. THE POOR MUST BE CONTENT WITH VEGETABLES AND BOILED WATER. INHABITANTS OF THE REGION ARE SO EMACIATED AND WEAKENED THAT MEDICAL BULLETINS REVEAL A DISQUIETING INCREASE IN DISEASES.

THE TUBERCULOSIS INDEX IS MOUNTING AT AN ALARMING RATE. AT MARSEILLE A CLASS OF 40 CHILDREN EARLY THIS YEAR SHOWED NO TRACE OF TUBERCULOSIS. RE-EXAMINED RECENTLY, ALL GAVE A POSITIVE REACTION. LAST YEAR IT WAS ALREADY DETERMINED THAT 60 PER CENT OF WORKERS' CHILDREN WERE RACHITIC AND 40 PER CENT ANEMIC.

BALKAN CRISIS EXPECTED WITH FALL OF ITALY

MIGHT START A SCRAMBLE TO ESCAPE WAR (800)
BY E.C.DANIEL

JUL 28 1943

LONDON, JULY 24-(AP)-ALLIED MILITARY AND PROPAGANDA FORCES BATTERING AT ITALIAN MORALE ARE PLAYING FOR MUCH BIGGER STAKES THAN THE MERE COLLAPSE OF ITALY.

THEY INTEND TO KNOCK THE MAIN PROP FROM UNDER GERMANY'S ENTIRE SOUTHEASTERN MILITARY STRUCTURE--A SHAKY EDIFICE ERECTED ON FEAR, JEALOUSY AND GREED FOR TERRITORY.

CAPITULATION OF ITALY MIGHT AT ONE STROKE WITHDRAW A FOURTH OR MORE OF ALL THE AXIS DIVISIONS WHICH ARE HOLDING THIS JERRY-BUILT ORGANIZATION TOGETHER AND SET UP A 400-MILE STRING OF AIR BASES

30.24-6631

WITHIN EASY RANGE OF EVERY NAZI SATELLITE CAPITAL IN THE BALKANS.

THE EFFECT OF ELIMINATING ITALY'S ESTIMATED 27 BALKAN DIVISIONS--A DROP OF THREE SINCE THE CONQUEST OF TUNISIA--MIGHT BE COMPARED IN ITS STRATEGIC EFFECT TO THE OPENING OF THE BREACH IN THE ALLIED FRONT IN FLANDERS IN 1940 WHEN LEOPOLD ORDERED THE BELGIAN ARMY TO CEASE FIGHTING.

IF THE CAPITULATION OF ITALY CAUSED A CRACKUP THROUGHOUT THE BALKANS, GERMANY MIGHT FIND THE FLANK AND REAR OF ITS EASTERN FRONT EXPOSED TO ANGLO-AMERICAN ATTACK.

WITHDRAWAL MIGHT BE HITLER'S ONLY RESOURCE--WITH THE CONCURRENT LOSS OF THE RUMANIAN OIL FIELDS, WHICH IT IS ESTIMATED HERE REPRESENT ONE QUARTER OF GEFMANY'S TOTAL OIL SOURCES.

JUL 28 1943

THESE ARE AT BEST LONG-RANGE POSSIBILITIES AND NOT IMMEDIATE PROSPECTS, BUT THEY WOULD BE FULLY IN ACCORD WITH INDICATED ALLIED STRATEGY AND WITH THE KNOWN FACTS OF UNEASINESS IN THE BALKANS.

THE LATEST LONDON ESTIMATES OF AXIS ARMED FORCES IN THE BALKANS ARE 27 ITALIAN DIVISIONS, 20 BULGARIAN, 15 GERMAN (AN INCREASE OF NEARLY 100 PER CENT IN THE LAST THREE MONTHS), 12 RUMANIAN AND ABOUT 300,000 HUNGARIANS.

MUTINIES OF ITALIAN TROOPS IN SICILY AGAINST THEIR GERMAN OFFICERS AND MASS SURRENDERS IN THE WESTERN PART OF THE ISLAND SUGGEST THAT ITALIANS IN THE BALKANS, TOO, HAVE LITTLE INCENTIVE LEFT.

MUSSOLINI, HOWEVER, HAS SHOWN NO INCLINATION TO GIVE UP, AND REPORTS FROM THE CONTINENT SAY IL DUCE HAD BEEN OFFERED COMPLETE HEADQUARTERS IN VIENNA IN CASE HE IS DRIVEN FROM ITALY. WHETHER HE WOULD BE ABLE TO HOLD THE BULK OF THE ARMY TO THE FASCIST STANDARD WOULD APPEAR TO BE HIGHLY QUESTIONABLE, HOWEVER. THE ABILITY OF THE GERMANS TO SUPPLY THEM WOULD APPEAR TO BE EQUALLY DOUBTFUL.

EXCEPT FOR THE GERMANS, THE QUALITY AND MORALE OF AXIS FORCES IN THE BALKANS IS DEMONSTRABLY POOR. DISPATCHES FROM SICILY HAVE TOLD REPEATEDLY OF THE DEPLORABLE QUALITY OF THE ITALIAN EQUIPMENT, AND THERE IS NO REASON WHATEVER TO THINK THAT THE BULGARIANS, HUNGARIANS AND RUMANIANS ARE BETTER OFF.

JUL 28 1943

SCANTINESS OF GERMAN RESERVES AT THE TIME OF THE FIRST TWO-FRONT ATTACK OF THE WAR HAS BEEN SUGGESTED BY CAIRO REPORTS THAT THE ITALIANS, EVEN IN CRETE, PRIZE GERMAN OUTPOST, OUTNUMBER THE GERMANS THREE TO TWO, AND THAT THE PROTECTION OF ALL MACEDONIA, EXCEPT FOR THE KEY SALONIKA REGION, HAS BEEN TURNED OVER TO THE BULGARIANS.

THE WEAKNESS OF THE SATELLITE TROOPS HAS BEEN DEMONSTRATED MOST CLEARLY BY THEIR OBVIOUS INABILITY TO SQUELCH YUGOSLAVIA AND GREECE.

INDIRECT TESTIMONY TO THE VIGOR OF THE YUGOSLAVIAN RESISTANCE WAS GIVEN BY A GERMAN REPORT THAT 10,000 GUERRILLAS HAD BEEN KILLED IN A VIOLENT BATTLE IN MONTENEGRO, AND BY A REPORT FROM MADRID THAT THE GERMANS HAD OFFERED 100,000 GOLD MARKS FOR THE HEAD OF THE CROAT GUERRILLA CHIEFTAIN.

OFFICIAL INFORMATION FROM CAIRO THAT BRITISH LIAISON OFFICERS ARE SERVING WITH THE NEWLY RECONCILED PARTISAN AND MIHAILOVIC FORCES AND SUPPLYING THEM WITH ARMS HAS FORESHADOWED THE DAY WHEN YUGOSLAVIA WILL BECOME A FULL-FLEDGED FIGHTING FRONT, COORDINATED COMPLETELY WITH UNITED NATIONS EFFORTS ELSEWHERE. ALLIED AIR BASES ONLY 120 MILES ACROSS THE ADRIATIC FROM THE YUGOSLAV COAST MIGHT SOON BRING OVERPOWERING ALLIED AIR FLEETS TO AID THE GUERRILLA FIGHTERS.

AN ASSAULT ON THE BALKANS FROM THE MIDDLE EAST AND CONTINUED PRESSURE OF THE RUSSIANS ON THE GERMAN FORCES FROM THE NORTHEAST MIGHT QUICKLY PUT THE QUEASY BALKANS UNDER A THREE-SIDED THREAT.

FOREIGN EDITOR CHARLES FOLEY OF THE LONDON DAILY EXPRESS REPORTED FROM THE MIDDLE EAST THIS WEEK THAT HE FOUND THE "VERY LARGE FORCES" OF LIEUTENANT GENERAL W.G.HOLMES OF THE BRITISH NINTH ARMY WERE "READY AND EAGER TO STRIKE"--AND THE NINTH ARMY IS ONLY ONE OF THE TWO OR THREE IN THAT AREA.

JUL 28 1943

BALKAN DISTASTE FOR THE WAR IS A FAMILIAR STORY. THIS WEEK'S REPORTS SERVE ONLY TO DOCUMENT IT FURTHER--A NEW CASE OF JITTERS IN SOFIA, WHERE PARLIAMENT WAS CALLED INTO SESSION; RUMORS OF AN IRON GUARD REVOLT STIRRING IN RUMANIA; AND THE HUNGARIAN DENIAL OF MASS PROTESTS FOR PEACE.

SHOULD ITALIAN INFECTION SPREAD QUICKLY TO THESE SATELLITES, NOBODY IN LONDON WOULD BE SURPRISED. UNTIL ITALY HERSELF BECAME A SATELLITE OF GERMANY, THESE TWO WERE RIVALS IN THE BALKANS, NOT PARTNERS, AND HUNGARY ESPECIALLY VACILLATED BETWEEN THE TWO. AS RECENTLY AS APRIL, NICHOLAS KALLAY, HUNGARIAN FOREIGN MINISTER, WAS IN ROME EXPLORING FOREIGN POLICY. ITALY'S EXAMPLE CERTAINLY WOULD NOT BE IGNORED IN THE BALKANS.

THE MILKMAN IN GELA, WHERE AMERICANS MADE THEIR CENTRAL LANDING, DELIVERS HIS PRODUCT ON THE HOOF. HE DRIVES A GREAT, RED, HORNED COW WITH A CALF AND A DOZEN GOATS THROUGH THE STREETS. THE COW HAS A BIG BELL ON HER NECK TO LET THE PEOPLE KNOW THAT FRESH MILK IS ON THE WAY.

AT HIS CUSTOMER'S DOOR THE MILKMAN HOBBLES THE HIND LEG OF THE COW OR ONE OF THE GOATS WITH A ROPE. THE WOMAN OF THE HOUSEHOLD COMES OUT WITH A CONTAINER AND MILKS THE COW OR GOAT HERSELF OF AS MUCH AS SHE WANTS. SHE PAYS, AND THE MILKMAN DRIVES ON TO THE NEXT STOP. IT'S ALL QUITE CHUMMY AND THE COW DOESN'T SEEM TO MIND, BUT THE CALF MAY.

MANY FOLKS BACK HOME THINK UP CLEVER IDEAS TO GIVE RELATIVES IN THE SERVICE A LAUGH. ONE OF THE BEST IS A TYPEWRITTEN BOOKLET OF JOKES AND CLIPPED MAGAZINE CARTOONS COMPILED BY MRS.M.E.RICHARDSON OF SAN FRANCISCO, FOR HER BROTHER, JACK C.BRIGGS, CARPENTER'S MATE 2ND CLASS OF 7608 SOUTH ESSEX STREET, CHICAGO, ILL., WHERE HE IS HALF OWNER OF A SIGN COMPANY.

"ONCE A WEEK SINCE LAST SEPTEMBER SHE HAS BEEN SENDING THEM TO ME," SAID BRIGGS. "IT IS SOMETHING DIFFERENT, SOMETHING YOU COULDN'T BUY. IT'S A GOOD PEPPER-UPPER. THEY MAKE THE ROUNDS OF THE SHIP AND ALL THE FELLOWS LIKE TO READ THEM VERY MUCH.

"SHE DOES THE SAME THING FOR HER NEPHEW, JACK MOSS OF SACRAMENTO, CALIF., A MARINE IN THE SOLOMONS. SHE MAKES THEM ALL BY HAND, AND IT MUST TAKE HER HOURS EVERY WEEK TO TURN THEM OUT."

WAR HAS ITS TOLL OF ACCIDENTS. BEFORE AMERICAN TROOPS COULD DISARM EIGHT ITALIAN SMALL TANKS CAPTURED IN AGRIGENTO, A SMALL SICILIAN BOY CRAWLED UNOBSERVED INTO ONE OF THEM AND BEGAN FOOLING WITH THE MECHANISM. HE PRESSED A BUTTON AND THE GUN WENT OFF WITH

HE HAD TO GO OUT OF HIS WAY TO DELIVER THEM TO SOME MILITARY POLICE AND AS THE RESULT WAS DELAYED IN COMPLETING HIS MISSION. WHEN HE REPORTED THE REASON TO HIS SUPERIORS THEY SOUNDLY BAWLED HIM OUT FOR PICKING UP "UNAUTHORIZED MILITARY PERSONNEL."

BY LYNN HEINZERLING

(ADVANCE) LONDON-(AP)-ONSTANTIN VON NEURATH, FORMER GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER AND THE FIRST GERMAN "PROTECTOR" OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA, IS BEING DRESSED UP AS A "FRONT MAN" WHO COULD BE PRESENTED TO THE WORLD AS A "CONSERVATIVE" GERMAN STATESMAN WHEN THE INEVITABLE COLLAPSE COMES, GERMAN REFUGEE CIRCLES IN LONDON BELIEVE.

AT THE SAME TIME, THESE SOURCES SAY, THE NAZI PARTY ARMY (SCHUTZ STAFFELL, OR ELITE GUARD, KNOWN AS SS) IS BEING EXPANDED TO IMPRESSIVE STRENGTH TO COPE WITH ANY INTERNAL DIFFICULTIES GROWING

OUT OF THE INCREASING ALLIED PRESSURE ON THE "EUROPEAN FORTRESS."

IT IS OBVIOUS THAT HEINRICH HIMMLER, HEAD OF ALL GERMAN POLICE ORGANIZATIONS, IS MAKING PREPARATIONS FOR EVERY CONCEIVABLE DEVELOPMENT WITHIN GERMANY, EVEN TO CIVIL WAR. THE ULTIMATE GOAL OF THIS ACTIVITY IS TO MAKE CERTAIN IF POSSIBLE THAT THE NAZI PARTY, ITS ARMY, ITS IDEAS AND OBJECTIVES SURVIVE IN SOME FORM IN THE GERMANY OF TOMORROW.

JUL 28 1943

THE RECENT PROMOTION OF NEURATH TO THE RANK OF "OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER" OR GENERAL IN THE SS WAS ACCEPTED BY MANY GERMANS HERE AS EVIDENCE THAT NEURATH WAS BEING PREPARED FOR PRESENTATION AS A REPRESENTATIVE OF A CONSERVATIVE FACTION WITH WHICH ALLIED GOVERNMENTS MIGHT DEAL, ALTHOUGH ALLIED LEADERS HAVE REPEATEDLY EMPHASIZED THERE WOULD BE NO DEALING WITH ANYONE BEARING THE NAZI TAINT, HOWEVER FAINT.

NEURATH WAS PROMOTED TO PARTY GENERAL RANK ALONG WITH 17 OTHER DILIGENT NAZI LEADERS. THE PROMOTIONS, WHICH USUALLY ARE ANNOUNCED WITH GREAT CEREMONY ON PARTY HOLIDAYS, WERE ANNOUNCED IN BERLIN QUITE UNEXPECTEDLY AS THE GERMAN ARMY LAY IDLE ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT AND THE RUHR VALLEY TREMBLED UNDER THE AERIAL BOMBARDMENT OF BRITISH AND UNITED STATES PLANES. TUNISIA HAD FALLEN ONLY A FEW WEEKS BEFORE, BRINGING WITH IT A PROFOUND SOBERING EFFECT.

DIE ZEITUNG, A GERMAN-LANGUAGE WEEKLY PUBLISHED IN LONDON, POINTED OUT RECENTLY THAT NEURATH STILL RETAINS HIS POSITION AS PRESIDENT OF THE SECRET CABINET COUNCIL--A POSITION AWARDED HIM WHEN HE WAS REMOVED AS FOREIGN MINISTER--AND NOTED THAT AT THE TIME OF HIS RECENT PROMOTION GERMAN PROPAGANDISTS HAD REFERRED OBLIQUELY TO "TASKS WHICH MIGHT AWAIT HIM" IN CASE HITLER, IN A MOMENT OF CRISIS, SHOULD BE FORCED TO DEVOTE ALL HIS ATTENTION TO MILITARY MATTERS.

"THIS IS VERY SIGNIFICANT," DIE ZEITUNG SAID, "BECAUSE IT SHOWS

30.24-6637

THERE IS A PLAN TO PRESENT NEURATH TO THE WORLD AND THE GERMAN PEOPLE AS CHIEF OF AN INTERIM GOVERNMENT IN THE MOMENT OF THE COLLAPSE. SINCE AT THE SAME TIME HE ALSO HAS THE HIGH RANK IN THE SS IT WILL BE DECLARED THAT NEURATH IS THE MAN TO LEAD THE SS OVER INTO THE POST-WAR PERIOD."

JUL 28 1943

GERMANS HERE, WHO FOLLOW EVENTS IN THE REICH WITH MINUTE CARE AND PATIENCE, ESTIMATE THAT THE SS ARMY HAS NOW GROWN TO AT LEAST 500,000 MEN.

NEURATH WAS ONE OF THE FEW REPUBLICAN DIPLOMATS AND GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS OF HIGH RANK WHO WERE CARRIED OVER INTO THE NAZI REGIME. FRANZ VON PAPEN, THE NAZI "FIXER" AND PRESENT AMBASSADOR TO TURKEY, IS ANOTHER.

NEURATH, WHO IS 70 YEARS OLD, HAS WIDE CONNECTIONS IN DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES THROUGHOUT EUROPE. AFTER SERVING IN VARIOUS POSTS FOR IMPERIAL GERMANY AND LATER THE REPUBLIC, INCLUDING TERMS AT ISTANBUL, COPENHAGEN AND ROME, HE BECAME AMBASSADOR TO GREAT BRITAIN IN 1930 AND CONTINUED IN THAT POSITION FOR TWO YEARS.

CALLED BACK TO GERMANY, HE BECAME MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS AND CONTINUED IN THAT POST UNDER HITLER UNTIL HE WAS REPLACED BY JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP IN 1938.

NEURATH WAS ONE OF THE FIRST NON-NAZI MINISTERS OF GERMANY TO ACCEPT MEMBERSHIP IN THE PARTY AFTER HITLER'S ASSUMPTION OF POWER IN 1933 AND HE WAS REWARDED BY HIMMLER WITH THE RANK OF BRIGADE LEADER IN THE SS. HIS ACTION WAS INSTRUMENTAL IN BRINGING OTHER RECALCITRANT REPUBLICANS INTO THE GOVERNMENT.

SOME OF THE OTHER PROMOTIONS ANNOUNCED WITH NEURATH'S INDICATED INTERESTING TRENDS. MOST OF THEM WERE UNDERSTANDABLE TO ANYONE WHO HAS FOLLOWED THE NAZI PATTERN FOR GETTING AHEAD IN THE WORLD, BUT THE ADVANCE OF BRIGADE LEADER JULIUS SCHAUB TO OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER PUZZLED

SOME GERMANS UNTIL THEY HEARD THE GERMAN RADIO ANNOUNCE THAT THE PROMOTIONS HAD UNITED ALL CLASSES OF GERMANS IN THE PARTY.

SCHAUB IS HITLER'S CHAUFFEUR. HANDY WITH HIS FISTS AND A GUN, HE WAS ACTIVE IN THE EARLY BRAWLS OF THE NAZI PARTY AND WAS REWARDED WITH THE JOB OF PROTECTING THE FUEHRER'S LIFE. HITLER RARELY APPEARS IN PUBLIC WITHOUT HIM.

THE NAMING OF 18 NEW "GENERALS" AT ONE TIME RAISED THE NUMBER OF ACTIVE OBERGRUPPENFUEHRERS TO ABOUT 50, AN UNUSUALLY HIGH NUMBER WHEN THE RELATIVE SIZES OF THE REGULAR ARMY AND THE SS ARE COMPARED.

THE NEW OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER FRIEDRICH ALPERS IS CHIEF FOREST INSPECTOR OF THE REICH AND HIS PROMOTION WAS INTERPRETED BY DIE ZEITUNG AS A MOVE TO PUT THE FOREST INSPECTORS UNDER THE IMMEDIATE CONTROL OF THE SS AS A MEANS OF QUELLING IMMEDIATELY ANY UNREST IN REMOTE SECTIONS ON THE PART OF HOSTILE ELEMENTS.

OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER OTTO HOFFMAN IS THE SS POLICE LEADER IN SOUTH-WESTERN GERMANY AND THE ANNEXED FRENCH PROVINCE OF ALSACE, WHERE EFFORTS AT NAZIFICATION HAVE BEEN HIGHLY UNSUCCESSFUL.

HANS JUETTNER, ANOTHER NEW OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER, IS CHIEF OF WHAT CORRESPONDS TO THE GENERAL STAFF OF THE ARM IN THE ARMED FORCES OF THE SS AND HIS PROMOTION OBVIOUSLY RESULTED FROM THE RAPID BUILDING UP OF THE SS ARMY. ANOTHER, ERNST KALTENBRUNNER, SUCCEEDED THE LATE REINHARD HEYDRICH AS CHIEF OF THE GESTAPO AND THE SAFETY SERVICE OF THE SS AFTER HEYDRICH WAS SLAIN BY CZECH PATRIOTS JUST OUTSIDE PRAGUE.

THE NEW OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER ERNST WILHELM BOHLE IS A SECRETARY OF STATE IN THE FOREIGN OFFICE AND LEADER OF NAZI ORGANIZATIONS ABROAD, SOME OF WHICH SERVED AS FIFTH COLUMNS IN THE EARLY DAYS OF THE WAR AND, IN SOME PLACES, ARE STILL SERVING.

OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER JOACHIM ECCELING IS GAULEITER FOR THE HALLE-MERSEBURG DISTRICT, WHERE THE FEELING TOWARD THE PARTY IS REPORTED TO BE NOTORIOUSLY LUKEWARM. THREE OF THE OBERGRUPPENFUEHRERS ARE AUSTRIANS, INDICATING A NEW-FOUND RESPECT FOR THE TALENTS OF AUSTRIAN PARTY MEMBERS. THEY ARE AUGUST EIGRUBER, HUGO JURY AND FRIEDRICH RAINER, ALL GAULEITERS.

OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER KARL HERMANN FRANK PRESUMABLY WAS REWARDED FOR HIS TERRORIZING TACTICS IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, WHERE HE IS STATE SECRETARY TO THE REICHSPROTECTOR. NO PARTICULAR SIGNIFICANCE WAS ATTACHED TO THE OTHER PROMOTIONS HERE.

(ADVANCE) TURRIALBA, COSTA RICA-(AP)-A COMPLETE AND EXTENSIVE INTER-AMERICAN POST-GRADUATE INSTITUTE OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH IS

JUL 28 1943

RAPIDLY ON ITS WAY TO REALIZATION IN THIS VALLEY AT THE FOOT OF COSTA RICA'S GREAT VOLCANO OF TURRIALBA.

LONG THE DREAM OF PAN-AMERICAN PLANNERS AND AGRICULTURALISTS FROM ALL THE AMERICAS, THE INSTITUTE WILL BE EXACTLY WHAT ITS NAME STATES--THE INTER-AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH. SUPPORTED BY THE REPUBLICS OF THE HEMISPHERE, IT WILL WORK FOR THE WELFARE OF LATIN AMERICA'S ORIGINAL FORGOTTEN MAN--THE CAMPESINO OR SMALL SARMER.

JUL 28 1943

THE FIRST STONE IN THE VAST CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM WAS LAID BY VICE-PRESIDENT HENRY A. WALLACE IN COMPANY WITH COSTA RICAN PRESIDENT RAFAEL ANGEL CALDERON GUARDIA DURING WALLACE'S RECENT LATIN AMERICAN TOUR. ACTUAL CONSTRUCTION WILL START WITH ARRIVAL OF MATERIALS ALREADY PURCHASED AND ON THEIR WAY.

THIS IS NO HALF-WAY PROJECT WHICH THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION IS SPONSORING. IT IS A 1000-HECTARE DEVELOPMENT OF EXTREMELY SUITABLE LAND TOGETHER WITH A SEVERAL HUNDRED-THOUSAND DOLLAR EXPENDITURE FOR ADMINISTRATION BUILDING, DORMITORY, STAFF HOMES, SCHOOL AND HOSPITAL ON A CAMPUS UNSURPASSED IN SCENIC BEAUTY.

DR.EARL N.BRESSMAN, DIRECTOR, ALREADY HAS ESTABLISHED HIMSELF HERE AND SPENDS MUCH OF HIS TIME HERE AND AT OTHER EXPERIMENTAL STATIONS OF VARIOUS LATIN GOVERNMENTS WHICH WILL COOPERATE. THE INSTITUTE WILL BE THE CENTER, BUT ITS PROGRAM WILL BE DIFFUSED AND WIDE-SPREAD.

ITS PURPOSE IS TO STUDY, EXPERIMENT WITH AND DO RESEARCH IN ALL CROPS RAISED IN THE AMERICAS. STUDENTS OF AGRICULTURE FROM ALL OVER THE HEMISPHERE WILL PARTICIPATE AND FROM THEIR WORK WILL BE GATHERED AOSRSRRG KPATED INFORMATION ON A MYRIAD OF AGRICULTURAL SUBJECTS RELATIVE TO LATIN AMERICA ABOUT WHICH LITTLE IS YET KNOWN SCIENTIFICALLY.

SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA-(AP)-BOOMING COSTA RICA, ITS BASIC COST OF LIVING UP MORE THAN 44 PER CENT IN ONE YEAR, PRESENTLY FINDS ITSELF FACING A GRAVE ECONOMIC PROBLEM ON WHICH THE GOVERNMENT OF PRESIDENT RAFAEL ANGEL CALDERON GUARDIA IS SERIOUSLY WORKING.

IN A LENGTHY AND DETAILED REPORT READ TO CONGRESS THIS WEEK, MINISTER OF FINANCE AND PUBLIC EDUCATION DEMETRIO TINICO CASTRO PRESENTED THE GOVERNMENT'S POSITION IN THE RUN-AWAY RISE IN PRICES OCCASIONED BY WAR-TIME CONSTRUCTION MONEY, ESPECIALLY THE PAN-AMERICAN HIGHWAY, WITH A FOUR-POINT PLAN TO COMBAT IT.

AT THE SAME TIME, CONGRESS IS CONSIDERING A NEW PROFIT-LIMITATIONS LAW AIMED AT SPECULATING MERCHANTS.

THE LAW--SO SEVERE IT ALLOWS FOR NO FINE FOR INFRACTIONS BUT SPECIFIES JAIL TERMS--WOULD LIMIT BOTH IMPORTER, RETAILER AND LOCAL MANUFACTURER TO A 20 PER CENT PROFIT IN ALL SALES.

THE GOVERNMENT'S FOUR-POINT PLAN CALLS FOR STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION OF BASIC AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS WHICH BECAUSE OF THEIR SCARCITY AND CONSEQUENT HIGH PRICE USE UP AN ESTIMATED 50 PER CENT OF THE EXPENDITURES OF THE AVERAGE COUNTRY LABORER; A REVISION OF BANKING LAWS AND UPPING OF INCOME TAXES TO TAKE OUT OF CIRCULATION SOME OF THE OVER-ABUNDANCE OF MONEY; STRINGENT LAWS TO TAKE AWAY IMPORT LICENSES OF SPECULATORS ON FOREIGN IMPORTATIONS; AND THE UPPING OF SALARIES OF PUBLIC EMPLOYEES.

THE LATTER PROVISION, THOUGH APPEARING A CONTRADICTION IN THE FACE OF PLANS TO REMOVE MONEY FROM CIRCULATION, IS IMMEDIATELY

NECESSARY TO OFFSET THE RISE IN COST OF LIVING EFFECTED WITHOUT A SIMILAR RISE IN PUBLIC SALARIES. THE RESULT HAS BEEN A NEAR-CRITICAL SITUATION AMONG EMPLOYEES WHO HAVE SEEN RISING PRICES MAKE THAT FIXED SALARY SEEM EVER SMALLER.

WITH NO SOURCE OF FUEL WITHIN ITS BORDERS, THE COUNTRY IS WHOLLY DEPENDENT ON IMPORTS.

THE STATE-OWNED MONTEVIDEO POWER PLANT, AFTER AN UNEFFECTIVE APPEAL TO THE POPULATION TO REDUCE THE CONSUMPTION OF ELECTRICITY, BANNED THE USE OF ELECTRIC LIGHTS IN ALL SHOP-WINDOWS.

JUL 28 1943

NOW THE STREETS IN DOWNTOWN MONTEVIDEO PRESENT THE DISMAL ASPECT OF ERSTWHILE BRIGHTLY LIGHTED WINDOWS WITH ONLY A FEW TREMBLING CANDLES OR ALCOHOL LAMPS.

THE GOVERNMENT ALSO ORDERED ALL BUSINESS TO WORK ONLY FROM 9:30 A.M., TO 5:30 P.M.

OTHER PUBLIC SERVICES ARE UNDER A SIMILAR PINCH. THE GAS COMPANY, A BRITISH CONCERN, IS WARNING THE PUBLIC THAT IT MAY BE UNABLE TO SERVE PRIVATE HOMES AFTER JULY. FOR MORE THAN A YEAR IT HAS REFUSED ALL NEW APPLICATIONS.

WHILE THERE IS NO BAN ON MOTOR CARS, THEIR GASOLINE QUOTA HAS BEEN SO REDUCED THAT MANY HAVE BEEN CONVERTED TO WOOD-BURNING GENERATORS, AND THE REST ARE REMAIN IDLE MOST OF THE TIME.

THERE HAVE BEEN COMPLAINTS, HOWEVER, THAT THERE IS A FLOURISHING BLACK-MARKET OF GASOLINE.

THE PLANS FOR THE MIXED STATE-AND-PRIVATE INTERESTS COMPANY WERE FIRST APPROVED BY THE FORMER GOVERNMENT, UNDER GEN. ALFREDO BALDOMIR. Roosevelt Says Mussolini Will Be Punished, Pledges 'Total Victory'; Italian-Nazi Fighting In North Italy Reported; Planes Pound Reich

PRESIDENT HAILS MUSSOLINI'S FALL AS 'CRACK IN AXIS'

'Much Bigger Fights Ahead,' He Says, Pledging Offensive Against Japan.

TO PRESS ON IN ITALY

Length of War Depends on United Front Abroad and at Home, He Declares.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(AP) President Roosevelt virtually counted Italy out of the war in a report to the American people tonight and indicated greater things in the offing with the prediction:

"Ahead of us are much bigger fights."

He said the Allies would accept nothing less than "total victory" over the Axis, with defeat for "Hitler and Tojo on their own home grounds."

He called the Italian cause already "lost" but asserted the war would go on until the people of that country "realize the futility of continuing to fight" in a cause "to which the people of Italy never gave their whole hearted approval and support."

"The plans we made for the knocking out of Mussolini and his gang have largely succeeded," the President said. "But we still have to knock out Hitler and his gang and Tojo and his gang."

Predicts Pacific Offensive

Almost pointedly the President refrained in his broadcast speech from going into future plans for action against Germany, but for the Japanese he had a word of warning:

"If the Japanese are basing their future plans for the Pacific on a long period in which they will be permitted to consolidate and exploit their conquered resources, they had better start revising their plans now. I give that to them merely as a helpful suggestion. Let us remeber how far we were, a year ago, from any of our objectives in the European theater. We are pushing forward to occupation of positions which in time will enable us to attack the Japanese islands themselves from the north, from the south, from the east and from the west."

The Chief Executive, in an analysis of the war broadcast to the American people, promised that Benito Mussolini and "his Fascist gang" would be "brought to book and punished for their crimes against humanity." He said "no criminal will be allowed to escape by the expedient of 'resignation.'"

It was a rosy-hued picture of the war which the President drew, depicting the "criminal, corrupt Fascist regime in Italy" as "going to pieces." And he gave a new assurance that the terms of the Allies to Italy, as to Germany and Japan, still are "unconditional surrender."

He spoke of the manner in which Russia had turned a new German offensive into a counter offensive and of the manner in which the Japanese were being pressed in the Pacific.

Long Fight Ahead

Yet he warned that it would not be an easy matter "to knock out Hitler and his gang and Tojo and his gang'" even though plans for eliminating Mussolini and his gang had largely succeeded. The length of the war, he said, will depend upon an uninterrupted continuance of an "all out effort on the fighting fronts and here at home."

Looking ahead toward the post-war world, the Chief Executive said the United Nations were substantially agreed on general objectives but also were agreed that the time had not arrived for an international discussion of all the terms of peace and all the details of the future.

"We must not relax our pressure on the enemy," he said, "by taking time out to define every boundary and settle every political controversy in every part of the world. The all-important thing now is to get on with the war—and to win it."

Post-War Plans

Yet he did outline a specific six point plan for taking care of members of the armed forces after their fighting is done and America can begin conversion to a peacetime basis. The President said the least to which these fighting men are entitled is:

"1. Mustering-out pay large enough to take care of the time between discharge and the finding of a new job.

2. Unemployment insurance in case no job is found after diligent search.

3. An opportunity for further education or trade training financed by the government.

4. Credit allowance under employment compensation and Federal old age insurance for the period of service, just as if there had been continuous employment in private industry.

5. Broader provisions for hospitalization, rehabilitation and medical care of the disabled.

6. Sufficient pensions for disabled members of the armed forces.

Disclosing that he planned a new radio address to the nation within a few weeks Mr. Roosevelt asserted:

"Your government is drawing up other serious, constructive plans for certain immediate forward moves. They concern food, manpower, and other domestic problems but they tie in with our armed forces.

"Within a few weeks I shall speak with you again in regard to definite actions to be taken by the executive branch of the government and specific recommendations for new legislation by the Congress."

To Press on in Italy

Of the war in Sicily and Italy, the Chief Executive said it would go on "until the Italian people realize the futility of continuing to fight in a lost cause—a cause to which the people of Italy never gave their whole-hearted approval and support."

He recalled a prophecy he made to Congress more than a year and one half ago that "the militarists in Berlin, Rome and Tokyo started this war, but the mass, angered forces of common humanity will finish it."

That prophecy, he said, is in the process of being fulfilled adding:

"The mass, angered forces of common humanity are on the march. They are going forward on the Russian front, in the vast Pacific area and into Europe, converging upon their ultimate objectives, Berlin and Tokyo."

Analyzing the crack-up in Italy, Mr. Roosevelt remarked that the "pirate philosophy" of the Fascists and Nazis cannot stand adversity, and said that military superiority of the United Nations had been applied in the right place and at the right time.

Says Hitler Deserted Italy

Then, in words which appeared to be directed as much toward the Italian people as his own, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that Hitler had refused sufficient help to save Mussolini and the Nazi troops in Sicily even had stolen Italian motor equipment and left Italian soldiers stranded and with no choice but surrender.

"Once again," he said, "the Germans betrayed their Italian allies as they had done time and time again on the Russian front and in the long retreat from Egypt, through Libya and Tripoli to the final surrender in Tunisia."

Without qualification, the President said that "we will have no truck with Fascism in any way, shape or manner," and that "we will permit no vestige of Fascism to remain."

To the Italian people, he held out again the prospect that eventually they would be allowed to choose their own government under democratic principles and promised that the Axis pattern of pillage and starvation for occupied countries would not be followed by the United Nations.

Already, Mr. Roosevelt said, the United Nations have started to make good in their determination to restore conquered peoples to the dignity of human beings, masters of their own fate, entitled to freedom of speech, freedom of religion and freedom from want and fear.

"I am sorry," Mr. Roosevelt said, "if I step on the toes of those Americans, who, playing party politics at home, called that kind of foreign policy 'crazy altruism' and 'starry-eyed dreaming'."

At another point he struck at what he termed a few Americans who complain about inconveniences of life here at home, saying they should learn lessons from the civilian populations of our Allies and the enemy-occupied lands.

Coffee Rationing Ends

He had some good news for civilians at home—that coffee rationing was being terminated tonight and that greatly increased allowances of sugar could be expected shortly.

The reason, he said, is that ship losses have decreased and the destruction of submarines has mounted.

The President told his fellow countrymen they had heard it said that while we are succeeding greatly on the fighting front, we are failing miserably on the home front. He called this "another of those immaturities—a false slogan easy to state but untrue in the essential facts."

Then, as he did at a press and radio conference yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt asserted no one could draw a line down the center of a page and label one side the fighting front and the other side the home front because the two were "inexorably tied together."

He said careful planning both at home and abroad were required to guarantee such victories as have been achieved in North Africa and Sicily.

"I think that the personal convenience of the individual or the individual family back home here in the United States," he said, "will appear somewhat less important when I tell you that the initial assault force on Sicily involved 3,000 ships which carried 160,000 men, together with 14,000 vehicles, 600 tanks and 1,800 guns.

"This force was followed every day and every night by thousands of reinforcements."

Planned Six Months Ago

Mr. Roosevelt said the Sicilian campaign was planned six months ago, which places the planning at the time of his conference at Casablanca with Prime Minister Churchill of Britain.

Mr. Roosevelt went into an exceptionally detailed appraisal of war in Russia and in the Pacific.

The heaviest and most decisive fighting today is going on in Russia, he said, and he asserted he was glad Britain and the United States could contribute somewhat to Russian striking power.

"The success of the Russian armies has shown," he declared, "that it is dangerous to make prophesies about them—a fact forcibly brought home to that mystic master of strategic intuition, Herr Hitler."

Sees Germans 'Desperate'

The German offensive begun this month he characterized as a desperate attempt to bolster German morale, which did not fool the Russians. The latter, he said, went ahead with their own plans for attack which coordinated with the offensive strategy of all the United Nations.

Singing high praises for the Russian people, armies and leadership, the American President said this country should be glad always to be a good neighbor and sincere friend in the world of the future to a nation which was helping save the world from the Nazi menace.

In the Pacific theater, Mr. Roosevelt said that "we are pushing the Japs around from the Aleutians to New Guinea," where we have taken the initiative and are not going to let go of it.

With the Japs having lost more planes and ships than they have been able to replace, the Chief Executive said, the process of attrition and whittling down was working against them.

Predicting that they would be pushed back from lines running from Burma and Siam and the Straits Settlement through the Dutch East Indies to New Guinea and the Solomons, Mr. Roosevelt said there was good reason to believe their shipping and air power could not support such outposts.

To Keep Pressing Japan

Apparently in answer to those who have contended that the Japanese are being allowed to consolidate their positions while the United Nations concentrate on the Axis in Europe Mr. Roosevelt said that our naval, land and air strength in the Pacific was growing constantly. He advised the Japanese to start revising their plans if they based them on a long period in which they would be allowed to consolidate and exploit conquered resources.

The President asserted that "we must do more at all costs" to deliver planes and vital war supplies for the heroic armies of China. The air supply line from India to China continues, he said, despite attempted Japanese interference and the initiative in the air over Burma has been seized. With air superiority, we are bombing Japanese installations in China, Indo-China and Burma.

While we still are far from the main objectives in the war against the Nipponese, the President said, we are pushing ahead to occupy positions which "in time" will permit attacks on the Japanese islands themselves from all directions.

WASHINGTON, July 28. — (AP) The text of President Roosevelt's radio address tonight:

Over a year and a half ago I said to the Congress: "The militarists in Berlin, Rome and Tokyo started this war, but the massed, angered forces of common humanity will finish it."

That prophecy is in the process of being fulfilled. The massed, angered forces of common humanity are on the march. They are going forward—on the Russian front, in the vast Pacific area, and into Europe—converging upon their ultimate objectives, Berlin and Tokyo.

The first crack in the Axis has come. The criminal, corrupt Fascist regime in Italy is going to pieces.

The pirate philosophy of the Fascists and Nazis cannot stand adversity. The military superiority of the United Nations—on sea and land, and in the air—has been applied in the right place and at the right time.

Hitler refused to send sufficient help to save Mussolini. In fact, Hitler's troops in Sicily stole the Italians' motor equipment, leaving Italian soldiers so stranded that they had no choice but to surrender. Once again the Germans betrayed their Italian allies, as they had done time and time again on the Russian front and in the long retreat from Egypt, through Libya and Tripoli, to the final surrender in Tunisia.

Mussolini came to the reluctant conclusion that the "jig was up;" he could see the shadow of the long arm of justice.

But he and his Fascist gang will be brought to book, and punished for their crimes against humanity.

No criminal will be allowed to escape by the expedient of "resignation."

Our terms to Italy are still the same as our terms to Germany and Japan—"unconditional surrender."

We will have no truck with Fascism in any way, shape or manner. We will permit no vestige of Fascism to remain.

Up to Italian People

Eventually Italy will reconstitute herself. It will be the people of Italy who will do that, choosing their own government in accordance with the basic democratic principles of liberty and equality. In the meantime, the United Nations will not follow the pattern set by Mussolini and Hitler and the Japanese for the treatment of occupied countries — the pattern of pillage and starvation.

We are already helping the Italian people in Sicily. With their cordial cooperation, we are establishing and maintaining security and order—we are dissolving the organizations which have kept them under Fascist tyranny—we are providing them with the necessities of life until the time comes when they can fully provide for themselves.

Indeed, the people in Sicily today are rejoicing in the fact that, for the first time in years, they are permitted to enjoy the fruits of their own labors — they can eat what they themselves grow instead of having it stolen from them by the Fascists and the Nazis.

In every country conquered by the Nazis, the Fascists or the Japanese militarists, the people have been reduced to the status of slaves or chattels.

To Restore Freedom

It is our determination to restore these conquered peoples to the dignity of human beings, masters of their own fate, entitled to freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want, freedom from fear.

We have started to make good on that promise.

I am sorry if I step on the toes of those Americans who, playing party politics at home, call that kind of foreign policy "crazy altruism" and "starry-eyed dreaming."

Meanwhile the war in Sicily and Italy goes on. It must go on, and will go on, until the Italian people realize the futility of continuing to fight in a lost cause—a cause to which the people of Italy never gave their whole-hearted approval and support.

It is a little over a year since we planned the North African campaign. It is six months since we planned the Sicilian campaign. I confess that I am of an impatient disposition, but I think that I understand, and that most people understand, the amount of time necessary to prepare for any major military or naval operation. We cannot just pick up the telephone and order a new campaign to start the next week.

For example, behind the invasion forces of North Africa were thousands of ships and planes guarding the long, perilous sea lanes, carrying the men, the equipment and the supplies to the point of attack. And behind all these were the railroad lines and highways that carried the men and the munitions to the ports of embarkation — there were the factories and the mines and the arms that turned out the materials — there were the training camps where the men learned how to perform the strange and difficult and dangerous tasks which were to meet them on the beaches and in the deserts and the mountains.

All this had to be repeated in the attack on Sicily. Here the factor of air attack was added—for we could use North Africa as the base for softening up the landing places and lines of defense in Sicily, and the lines of supply in Italy.

Cites Need of Gasoline

It is interesting for us to realize that every Flying Fortress that bombed harbor installations at Naples from its base in North Africa required 1,110 gallons of gasoline for each single mission, and that this is the equal of about 375 "A" ration tickets—enough gas to drive your car five times across the continent. You will better understand your part in the war—and what gasoline rationing means—if you multiply this by the gasoline needs of thousands of planes and hundreds of thousands of jeeps, trucks and tanks now serving overseas.

I think that the personal convenience of the individual or the individual family back home here in the United States will appear somewhat less important when I tell you that the initial assault force on Sicily involved 3,000 ships which carried 160,000 men — Americans, British, Canadians and French—together with 14,000 vehicles, 600 tanks and 1,800 guns. This initial force was followed every day and every night by thousands of reinforcements.

The meticulous care with which the operation in Sicily was planned has paid dividends. For our casualties in men, ships and materiel have been low—in fact, far below our estimate.

All of us are proud of the superb skill and courage of the officers and men who have conducted and are conducting this operation. The toughest resistance developed on the front of the British Eighth army, which included the Canadians. But that is no new experience for that magnificent fighting force which has made the Germans pay a heavy price for each hour of delay in the final victory. The American Seventh army, after a stormy landing on the exposed beaches of southern Sicily, swept with record speed across the island into Palermo. For many of our troops this was their first battle experience but they have carried themselves like veterans.

Pays Tribute to Leaders

And we must give credit for the coordination of the diverse forces in the field, and for the planning of the whole campaign, to the wise and skillful leadership of General Eisenhower. Admiral Cunningham, General Alexander and Air Marshal Tedder have been towers of strength in handling the complex details of naval, ground and air activities.

You have heard some people say that the British and the Americans can never get along well together—you have heard some people say that the army and navy and air forces can never get along well together—that real cooperation between them is impossible. Tunisia and Sicily have given the lie, once and for all, to these narrow-minded prejudices.

The dauntless fighting spirit of the British people in this war has been expressed in the historic words and deeds of Winston Churchill—and the world knows how the American people feel about him.

JUL 29 1943

Bigger Fights Ahead

Ahead of us are much bigger fights. We and our Allies will go into them as we went into Sicily—together. And we shall carry on together.

Today our production of ships is almost unbelievable. This year we are producing over 19 million tons of merchant shipping and next year our production will be over 21 million tons. And in addition to our shipments across the Atlantic we must realize that in this war, we are operating in the Aleutians, in the distant parts of the Southwest Pacific, in India and off the shores of South America.

For several months we have been losing fewer ships by sinkings, and we have been destroying more and more U-boats. We hope this will continue. But we cannot be sure. We must not lower our guard for one single instant.

One tangible result of our great increase in merchant shipping—which will be good news to civilians at home—is that tonight we are able to terminate the rationing of coffee. We also expect that within a short time we shall get greatly increased allowances of sugar.

Those few Americans who grouse and complain about the inconveniences of life here in the United States should learn some lessons from the civilian populations of our Allies—Britain, China, Russia—and of all the lands occupied by our common enemies.

Hails Aid to Russia

The heaviest and most decisive fighting today is going on in Russia. I am glad that the British and we have been able to contribute somewhat to the striking power of the Russian armies.

In 1941-1942 the Russians were able to retire without breaking, to move many of their war plants from Western Russia far into the interior, to stand together with complete unanimity in the defense of their homeland.

The success of the Russian armies has shown that it is dangerous to make prophecies about them—a fact forcibly brought home to that mystic master of strategic intuition, Herr Hitler.

The short-lived German offensive, launched early this month, was a desperate attempt to bolster the morale of the German people. The Russians were not fooled by this. They went ahead with their own plans for attack—plans which coordinate with the whole United Nations' offensive strategy.

The world has never seen greater devotion, determination and self-sacrifice than have been displayed by the Russian people and their armies, under the leadership of Marshal Joseph Stalin.

With a nation which, in saving itself is thereby helping to save all the world from the Nazi menace, this country should always be glad to be a good neighbor and a sincere friend in the world of the future.

In the Pacific we are pushing the Japs around from the Aleutians to New Guinea. There, too, we have taken the initiative—and we are not going to let go of it.

It becomes clearer and clearer that the attrition, the whittling down process against the Japanese is working. The Japs have lost more planes and more ships than they have been able to replace.

The continuous and energetic prosecution of the war of attrition will drive the Japs back from their over-extended line running from Burma and Siam and the Straits Settlement through the Netherlands Indies to Eastern New Guinea and the Solomons. We have good reason to believe that their shipping and their air power cannot support such outposts.

Gain Strength in Pacific

Our naval, land and air strength in the Pacific is constantly growing. If the Japanese are basing their future plans for the Pacific on a long period in which they will be permitted to consolidate and exploit their conquered resources, they had better start revising their plans now. I give that to them merely as a helpful suggestion.

We are delivering planes and vital war supplies for the heroic armies of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, and we must do more at all costs.

Our air supply line from India to China across enemy territory continues despite attempted Japanese interference. We have seized the initiative from the Japanese in the air over Burma and now enjoy superiority. We are bombing Japanese communications, supply dumps, and bases in China, Indo-China and Burma.

But, we are still far from our main objectives in the war against Japan. Let us remember how far we were, a year ago, from any of our objectives in the European theater. We are pushing forward to occupation of positions which in time will enable us to attack the Japanese islands themselves from the north, from the south, from the east, and from the west.

You have heard it said that while we are succeeding greatly on the fighting front, we are failing miserably on the home front. This is another of these immaturities—a false slogan easy to state but untrue in the essential facts.

For, the longer this war goes on the clearer it becomes that no one can draw a blue pencil down the middle of a page and call one side "the fighting front" and the other side "the home front". The two of them are inexorably tied together.

Every combat division, every naval task force, every squadron of fighting planes is dependent for its equipment and ammunition and fuel and food, as indeed it is for its manpower, on the American people in civilian clothes in the offices and in the factories and on the farms at home.

The same kind of careful planning that gained victory in North Africa and Sicily is required if we are to make victory an enduring reality and do our share in building the kind of peaceful world which will justify the sacrifices made in this war.

Can't Relax Pressure

The United Nations are substantially agreed on the general objectives for the post-war world. They are also agreed that this is not the time to engage in an international discussion of all the terms of peace and all the details of the future. We must not relax our pressure on the enemy by taking time out to define every boundary and settle every political controversy in every part of the world. The all-important thing now is to get on with the war—and to win it.

While concentrating on military victory, we are not neglecting the planning of the things to come, the freedoms which we know will make for more decency and greater justice throughout the world.

Among many other things we are, today, laying plans for the return to civilian life of our gallant men and women in the armed services. They must not be demobilized into an environment of inflation and unemployment, to a place on a bread line or on a corner selling apples. We must, this time, have plans ready—instead of waiting to do a hasty, inefficient, and all-considered job at the last moment.

I have assured our men in the armed forces that the American people would not let them down when the war is won.

I hope that the Congress will

30.24-6643

help in carrying out this assurance, for obviously the executive branch of the government cannot do it alone. May the Congress do its duty in this regard. The American people will insist on fulfilling this American obligation to the men and women in the armed forces who are winning this war for us.

Of course, the returning soldier and sailor and marine are a part of the problem of demobilizing the rest of the millions of Americans who have been working and living in a war economy since 1941. That larger objective of reconverting war-time America to a peace-time basis is one for which your government is laying plans to be submitted to the Congress for action.

But the members of the armed forces have been compelled to make greater economic sacrifice and every other kind of sacrifice than the rest of us, and are entitled to definite action to help take care of their special problems.

Outlines Program

The least to which they are entitled, it seems to me, is something like this:

1—Mustering-out pay to every member of the armed forces and merchant marine when he or she is honorably discharged, large enough in each case to cover a reasonable period of time between his discharge and the finding of a new job.

2—In case no job is found after diligent search, then unemployment insurance if the individual registers with the United States Employment Service.

3—An opportunity for members of the armed services to get further education or trade training at the cost of their government.

4—Allowance of credit to all members of the armed forces, under unemployment compensation and Federal old-age and survivors' insurance, for their period of service. For these purposes they should be treated as if they had continued their employment in private industry.

5—Improved and liberalized provisions for hospitalization, rehabilitation and medical care of disabled members of the armed forces and merchant marine.

6—Sufficient pensions for disabled members of the armed forces.

Your government is drawing up other serious, constructive plans for certain immediate forward moves. They concern food, manpower, and other domestic problems but they tie in with our armed forces. Within a few weeks I shall speak with you again in regard to definite actions to be taken by the executive branch of the government and specific recommendations for new legislation by the Congress.

All our calculations for the future, however, must be based on clear understanding of the problems involved. And that can be gained only by straight thinking—not guess work or political manipulation.

I confess that I myself am some times bewildered by conflicting statements that I see in the press. One day I read an "authoritative" statement that we shall win the war this year, 1943—and the next day comes another statement equally "authoritative", that the war will still be going on in 1949.

Of course both extremes — of optimism and pessimism — are wrong.

The length of the war will depend upon the uninterrupted continuance of all-out effort on the fighting fronts and here at home. The effort is all one.

The American soldier does not like the necessity of waging war. And yet—if he lays off for one single instant he may lose his own life and sacrifice the lives of his comrades.

By the same token—a worker here at home may not like the driving, wartime conditions under which he has to work or live. And yet—if he gets complacent or indifferent and slacks on his job he, too, may sacrifice the lives of American soldiers and contribute to the loss of an important battle.

Attacks Complacency

The next time anyone says to you that this war is "in the bag" and "it's all over but the shouting", you should ask him these questions:

"Are you working full time on your job?"

"Are you growing all the food you can?"

'Are you buying your limit of war bonds?"

"Are you loyally, cheerfully cooperating with your government in preventing inflation and profiteering and in making rationing work with fairness to all?"

"Because—if your answer is 'no'—then the war is going to last a lot longer than you think."

The plans we made for the knocking out of Mussolini and his gang have largely succeeded. But we still have to knock out Hitler and his gang and Tojo and his gang. No one of us pretends that this will be an easy matter.

We still have to defeat Hitler and Tojo on their own home grounds. But this will require a far greater concentration of our national energy and our ingenuity and our skill. It is not too much to say that we must pour into this war the entire strength and intelligence and will power of the United States. We are a great nation—a rich nation—but we are not so great or so rich that we can afford to waste our substance or the lives of our men by relaxing along the way.

We shall not settle for less than total victory. That is the determination of every American on the fighting fronts. That must be, and will be, the determination of every American here at home.

MADRID REPORTS OPEN WARFARE IN NORTH OF ITALY

Germans Opposed in Move to Withdraw Defense to Po, London Hears.

DISORDERS IN MILAN

Workers Leave Jobs, Impatient at Badoglio's Delay on Peace Move.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, July 28.—Violent fighting has broken out between Italian and German troops in northern Italy according to reports seeping out of the war weary land of fallen Fascism, where grave disorders bordering on outright revolution were said to be sweeping Milan.

Accounts reaching Madrid said active Italian military resistance in the north at Milan and Turin was blocking a German attempt to pour 10 divisions into a line along the Po river, where the Germans were believed to have established a defense system in betrayal of pledge to Marshal Badoglio to help hold all Italy.

Ankara heard reports that Italy will now negotiate peace.

A Rome spokesman in a closely-censored telephone conversation with Bern, Switzerland, declined to confirm or deny that Italy had already asked for an armistice.

Workers Leave Jobs

Reports which were not confirmed but which were received in Switzerland from the Italian border said that all workers in Milan had left their jobs and that there was gunfire when the people apparently became uneasy at the delay of the new government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio in making peace.

The Allies still watched for definite indication whether Italy is staying in or getting out of the war.

The disturbances were said to have been in spite of a state of siege declared by military authorities.

Later, a Swiss radio broadcast, heard here by the Associated Press said the Milan situation had become worse and "armed forces have intervened."

Meanwhile, a series of announcements from Rome and reports reaching neighboring countries emphasized the dramatic overturn that had taken place with the collapse of Benito Mussolini's generation of dictatorship.

Fascists Dissolved

The Rome radio announced the dissolution of the Fascist party, an action ordered yesterday at the very first meeting of Badoglio's new cabinet.

The cabinet also abrogated the 14-year-old law by which the Fascist Grand Council had appropriated the functions of the government, and suppressed the special tribunal for defense of the state—the court which had tried political offenders. The tribunal's functions will pass to the army for the duration.

A fresh crop of rumors of preparatory peace moves reached London from neutral capitals, but in the House of Commons Prime Minister Churchill declared no official reply had been received to the July 16 demand of himself and President Roosevelt for the honorable capitulation of Italy.

As seen in London, Badoglio was under heavy two-sided pressure, from the Germans to stay in the fight and from his war-weary people who expected peace.

Reports reaching Madrid from Rome said Italian troop trains, carrying one German soldier for every two Italians, were seen moving southward through Rome on Monday, indicating that the Germans were hastily increasing their share of the defense of Southern Italy.

Dispatches from Istanbul, Turkey, said reports from the Balkans indicated that Italian troops were being evacuated from Albania and Greece, at least in part.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Economic Warfare said groups of Italian workers in Germany had been returning home for two months and only about 270,000 out of 350,000 were left in the Reich.

Among the more promising peace reports was a broadcast from Ankara, recorded here by Reuters News Agency, which said:

"News reaching Turkey tonight says the Italian government shows willingness to negotiate with the Allies.

JUL 29 1943

"The main difficulty seems to be the fate of the German divisions in Sicily and Southern Italy."

This followed a mysterious conference yesterday between Raffaele Guariglia, Badoglio's new foreign minister, and Turkish Foreign Minister, Numan Menemencioglu, who boarded the Italian embassy launch for a long talk on the Sea of Marmora.

Later, the German radio said President Ismet Inonu had broken off an inspection trip and hurried back to Ankara, apparently to meet Menemencioglu.

Guariglia, whose movements were closely watched because his former post of minister to Turkey may have placed him in touch with any earlier peace feelers, was said by the Berlin broadcast to have left for Rome.

Peace Demands Heard

The demonstrative peace demands in Milan were accompanied by an account in the Corriere Della Sera of Milan, received at the Swiss frontier, of continued Fascist resistance to the Badoglio regime.

Corriere Della Sera said nests of Fascists barricaded in buildings and roofs still were holding out here and there after a bloody fight with troops.

The Rome radio frequently interrupted its programs with appeals to the populace not to believe wild rumors.

Among evidences of the changed regime in Italy were these:

The Rome radio announced that the daily, Italia, founded in 1859 by Count Cavour, had resumed publication. Count Cavour was the 19th century Italian statesman who took the lead in throwing off the Austrian yoke. He favored a liberal monarchy rather than republicanism.

The broadcast quoted the paper as saying "no enemy would esteem a country that renounces or is inclined to renounce its material possibilities of life and even its will to survive."

Ask Support of King

The paper said it was the duty of all to support the King and the government in "firm resolves" which they will indicate.

Reports in Madrid from Rome said two new liberal publications, Numbo and Riscoso, had begun publication in Rome.

Two Fascist papers, Il Popolo di Roma and Lavoro Fascista, were under new direction, the latter under a new name, Lavoro Italiano.

The chief of Ovra, Mussolini's secret police chief, was reported a casualty of early Monday demonstrations, and the head of Stefani, Mussolini's news agency, was reported a suicide.

Italian Fascist party branches in Spain were closed.

Mussolini's picture disappeared in event of her "honorable capitulation" Madrid.

In the House of Commons, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden answered "no sir" to a query whether the Allies would return to Italy all her North African possessions in event of her "honorable capitulation."

SOLDIERS SAID TO SEEK TO BLOCK NAZI DIVISIONS BOUND FOR PO RIVER LINE

Madrid Dispatches Tell Of Suspicion Reinforcements From France Would Not Be Sent To Help Battle In Southern Sector

FOLTZ

[By the Associated Press]

Madrid, July 28—Violent fighting between Italian and German troops in northern Italy was reported tonight after the Germans were said to have sent ten divisions from France in an apparent effort to take over the Po river defense line, which Berlin deems indispensable to safeguard Germany.

Italians here said that regular troops, aided by Italian civilians and railwaymen turned saboteurs, were trying to block the entry of the Nazi troops north of Milan and Turin.

They gave this picture of the development:

The Germans were sent from concentration centers at Toulouse and Avignon, supposedly in accord with a Nazi assertion that they were going to southern Italy to fight the Allies.

But the Italians, suspicious of this belated reinforcement, reacted militarily in the belief that the Germans really intend to take over the Po valley.

Problem For New Regime

The new Rome Government was said to be in a delicate position, trying to determine actual German intentions — whether the troops actually are to defend southern Italy or pull a double-cross in the north.

Italians who arrived by plane from Rome yesterday said that Adolf Hitler had told Benito Mussolini that the German high command considered the Po valley line the only defendable part of Italy. That was supposed to be what caused Mussolini's downfall when he proposed to accept it.

The situation in Italy is getting riper hourly for Allied intervention on a purely military basis, but United Nations' officials here naturally view many of these reports warily because of their source and the difficulty of getting any quick confirmation.

Rally Around Anti-Fascists

Another significant detail in the Italian picture was a report that several divisions of Italian troops in southern France secretly have organized around anti-Fascist political prisoners called into military service from Lipari Island and other political prisons.

The Fascist Government, soon after Italy entered the war, decided that these prisoners should be inducted into the army for service on the mainland.

With Axis reverses in Africa these men have become front-line troops. With Mussolini's downfall, it is said, they also have created the nucleus of anti-Axis forces inside the Italian army.

Worry Is Reported

MADRID, July 28 (AP)—Dispatches from Berlin said today that the Germans were worried.

"Germans walked to their homes or to work with worry such as I have never seen written on German faces," the Berlin correspondent for the Spanish newspaper Ya said.

Everybody in Germany agreed that the war had entered a new phase, the correspondent said. Dr. Paul Schmidt, the Foreign Office spokesman, "mastered his nerves more than ever before in his effort to appear calm" at a press conference.

TANKS BATTLE FASCIST UNITS IN MILAN RIOT

Swiss Reports Describe Disorders As Nearing Civil War

Say Peace Delay May Give Regime's Opponents Upper Hand

By FRANK BRUTTO

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, July 28—Gun battles with Fascist remnants holding women and children as hostages, rising peace calls, bloodshed and strikes bordering on civil war were reported tonight sweeping Milan and other Italian cities.

Dispatches reaching Switzerland gave this picture:

The Badoglio Government strove, without success, to calm the masses growing dangerous because of the new regime's failure to declare immediately that it is seeking an armistice with the Allies.

Rush From Factories

In Milan workers rushed from factories to join women and children in mobs crying: "We want peace." Some shots were fired, but most of the troops refused official orders from Rome to use such means to break up the surging crowds.

JUL 29 1943

Regular army troops moving against nests of Fascist resistance in Milan now are using tanks. The Fascist groups still were holding out tonight, it was reported.

Vito Mussolini, nephew of the ousted Il Duce and director of the defunct Fascist newspaper Popolo d'Italia, was reported among seventy Fascists who barricaded themselves—along with women and children as hostages—at Il Covo, the birthplace of Fascism.

Soldiers, civilians, and Fascists were among those killed in today's rioting and gun clashes.

Defy Order On Assemblies

Members of the Socialist, Communist, and other liberal parties in Milan spent the entire day making anti-Fascist speeches in public squares—despite military orders against public assemblies.

The speakers condemned the Badoglio Government for letting the Fascists go free, although there was no indication that the Government was doing any such thing.

Troops have taken over Fascist party headquarters, and other points, and now are fighting islands of Fascist resistance in various cities.

Several persons also were reported killed in Naples.

To Be Shot Immediately

The military commander at Milan, General Canale, late tonight issued a communique saying that anyone caught "flagrantly" violating military orders would be shot immediately, and he reminded the rioting Milanese that his soldiers had been ordered to fire without challenge on any group of more than three persons.

"The supreme interest of the country demands that work, order, and normal life immediately be resumed at any cost," he said. "I'll proceed with inflexible rigor against violators who are brought before the military tribunal."

Censorship had hit the outspoken Italian press. The night edition of Milan's Correire Della Serra appeared with great blank spaces. The article most heavily deleted was entitled "A Day in Milan."

Clamor For Leaders' Heads

Rome's announcement that the Fascist party had been dissolved apparently had not lessened the clamor in Milan for the heads of Fascist ringleaders.

The Corriere della Serra in Milan said the situation was grave, that workers had refused to resume their jobs. Banks were closed. Many factories were unable to pay workers' salaries, increasing the tension.

Extremists, including Communists, were reported feeding the fires of agitation. Some workers paraded with flags and slogans favoring Russia.

But Milan was not the only center of trouble. Peace demonstrations occurred in Trieste, Venice and Turin in northern Italy and in Bari, Taranto, Naples and other southern cities.

The Gazetta del Popolo of Turin appealed to the people that "peace cannot be made in two days," advising them to return to work and remain calm.

All reports agreed that parts of Italy were on the verge of open revolt—and Marshal Badoglio's Government may be forced to show its hand soon.

In a sharply censored telephone conversation with Rome an official spokesman there declined either to confirm or deny reports that armistice negotiations were going on in Vatican City or at Quirinal Palace.

Grave Situation Reported Amid Rioting in Milan

Mobs Are Declared Shouting for Peace; Workers Leave Jobs

By the Associated Press.

BRUTTO

BERN, Switzerland, July 28.—Unconfirmed reports received at the Italian frontier today said an insurrection among the people, verging on revolution, had broken out at Milan.

Mobs swept through the streets, despite a state of siege proclaimed by the military authorities, shouting "Liberty," and "We want peace," the reports said.

Shots were fired.

The situation was described as extremely grave.

All workers were reported to have left their jobs.

Earlier the Corriere Della Sera of Milan had reported islands of Fascist resistance were holding out against Italian troops at Milan and indicated that uncertainty over the new government's course between peace and war was producing restlessness among the people.

Rome Radio Warns of Rumors.

The Rome radio, in frequent interruptions of musical programs, warned the people against "sensational" rumors circulated by irresponsible persons.

Tullio Giordana, new director of the Gazzetta del Popolo at Turin, was quoted in dispatches as urging patience on the people advising them that it was not possible to make peace in two days.

Il Corriere Della Sera reported that in Morgagni street, Milan Fascists battled three hours during the night, firing from the windows and roof of a building. The structure was said now to be encircled by troops but all the Fascists had not yet been captured.

Other small centers of resistance in various parts of the city by "elements refusing to comply with the new order" were reported by the Italian paper.

Armistice Reports Unconfirmed.

Commenting on an "effervescent atmosphere," the paper added that following the demonstrations of national enthusiasm at the fall of Fascism "a certain unrest has risen among the people."

The newspaper presented this account of happenings:

Outbreaks in the center of Milan were limited and the gravest resistance occurred in the suburbs where the Fascists barricaded themselves in buildings and fired on crowds of civilians as well as soldiers.

The fight to reduce these nests was "long, difficult and bloody."

Workers generally responded to the request of the military commander of Milan, Gen. Canale, to return to their work, but in some quarters there was "hesitation and resistance."

In some factories of Milan workers who presented themselves in the morning failed to show up in the afternoon. Troops had to intervene at certain quarters to prevent gatherings and demonstrations which resulted.

Outbreak at Prison.

Another outbreak occurred in the great Milan prison of Cellulare where one internee was killed and many were wounded in an attempted prison break.

The inmates continued to mutiny and burned part of the prison.

Bomb-blasted Naples was the scene of fights in which several were killed and wounded as the people celebrated the fall of Fascism.

There were demonstrations also at Bari, Taranto and other southern cities, and at Trieste and Venice in the north, and Turin was the scene of continuous demonstrations.

No incidents had yet been reported from the Crotian frontier.

Swiss Telegraph Agency reports from the Italian frontier insisted that the new Italian regime was "discussing conditions of an armistice" with Allied representatives in Vatican City but they were absolutely without confirmation.

(The NBC correspondent in Bern, in a broadcast, said the Rome radio had declared reports of Italian peace overtures were "unfounded," and had denied that British and American representatives in Vatican City had been instrumental in bringing about a contact for peace negotiations.

("So far, official Rome has stood pat on the principle that fighting continues," said the NBC broadcast.

(The Italian communique today continued to emphasize the exclusive role of German aircraft in attacking Allied objectives, declaring Nazi planes sank a corvette and tanker and set fire to six transports at Augusta and Syracuse in Sicily. Italian aircraft limited themselves to fighting off Allied air attacks, the communique indicated.

(The bulletin reported an attack by an Italian submarine on an Allied aircraft carrier in the Atlantic, however, and said two direct hits were scored.)

German garrison troops in Milan, who had been guarded in their barracks by Italian soldiers since the announcement of Benito Mussolini's downfall Sunday night, can no longer be seen in the city, according to the Swiss telegraph agency.

The Corriere Della Sera of Milan editorialized that beneath a Milan joyous over the overthrow of Fascism there is "a serious Milan, grave, even worried, which says, 'Up to now everything has been easy; the difficulties are about to begin.'"

The newspaper declared that "soon ever Italian will be called on for the dangerous honor of deciding if he wants to be a free citizen of a free Italy."

Praise for King Victor Emmanuel's part in the displacement of Mussolini from the government came from Carlo Delcroix, president of the Italian Association of Wounded Veterans, who sent a message to members declaring that the House of Savoy "by its historic gesture accomplished its mission in assuming the responsibility of supreme decisions."

"The people awaited this manifestation of the will of the King and received with discipline the new government. The Italian people today knows it is fighting only to defend its honor," he said.

(A Rome radio broadcast, recorded in London, said that King Victor Emmanuel had accepted the resignation of the Fascist president of the Italian Senate, Count Giacomo Suardo, and had appointed Don Paolo de Velle in his place. The King also met with the new Italian cabinet in audience yesterday, the Rome radio said.)

Italy Seen Continuing In Axis Only if Nazis Defend Whole Country

Germans Reported Trying To Convince Badoglio Po Plan Has Been Dropped

By the Associated Press. FOLTZ

MADRID, July 28.—Italians who arrived here by plane from Rome during the past 24 hours declared today that Italy would continue the war on the side of the Axis only if Germany gives adequate aid to the defense of Southern Italy against the threat of Allied invasion.

The last direct word from Rome received here, apart from official communiques from the new government, indicated that the Germans were still trying to convince Premier Pietro Badoglio that they have abandoned a plan to retire behind the Po River and would fight with Italy in defense of Central and Southern Italy against any Allied thrust.

These reports said, however, that Badoglio and King Victor Emmanuel must decide how long they can ride the wave of enthusiasm which greeted the virtual end of Fascism and whether the people, after their wild demonstrations over what seemed to them liberation, could buckle down and continue the fight beside the Nazis—the allies chosen by the regime whose downfall they celebrated.

Vatican Reported Active.

What Badoglio may decide to do in this respect is not yet known, but dispatches to Spanish newspapers reported that Vatican City was a beehive of activity. It was pointed out here that if Badoglio wants to talk to the Allies, Vatican City would be an ideal place for the conversations.

Representatives of the Vatican in Madrid were silent regarding possibilities of peace talks between Italy and the Allies being conducted in Vatican City.

Italians who left Rome last night asserted that Prime Minister Churchill's speech to the House of Commons had a larger radio audience in Italy than any Allied broadcast since Italy entered the war. The speech was broadcast in Italian by the British Broadcasting Corp.

Churchill's Warning Heard.

The Fascist ban on foreign broadcasts had disappeared with the downfall of Mussolini, these Italians said, and Mr. Churchill's warning that the Badoglio government had not yet approached the United Nations fell on receptive ears.

Stefani, Italian news agency, broke a two-day silence on news from Italy with dispatches saying that public services were operating normally today with the majority of stores and shops open. Stefani added that "dispositions were taken by the authorities to safeguard the public order, which was observed by the public with strict discipline."

Another Rome dispatch noted a visit by Queen Elena to the Reina Elena Hospital where she talked to persons who were injured in the American air raid on Rome. The visit, the dispatch said, "gave occasion for enthusiastic demonstrations of support to the House of Savoy."

ITALY STILL SILENT, COMMONS IS TOLD

Churchill Answers 'No' When House Asks if She Has Replied to Bid to Yield

NEW ROME RAIDS POSSIBLE

Prime Minister Says Reuse of Marshaling Yards Would Invite More Bombs

LONDON, July 28 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill answered with a short "No" today when asked in the House of Commons whether any reply had been received to repeated requests for Italian capitulation.

"No official reply has been received to the message from President Roosevelt and myself," he said, "unless the disappearance of Mussolini is to be considered a reply to it."

His reference to former Premier Mussolini brought a burst of laughter from the members.

Asked if he felt that an apology for bombing Rome would serve any useful purpose, the Prime Minister replied:

"His Majety's Government have not made any apology for bombing the marshaling yards near Rome. On the contrary, if they are repaired and hostile military traffic is resumed they will no doubt have to be bombed again."

Mr. Churchill said that all his information concerning the political, military and social consequences of the Rome raid were "highly encouraging."

The House enjoyed another laugh when Oliver Locker-Lampson asked whether Signor Mussolini was in Eire. There was no reply.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Minister, asssured the House that "any motive to exact an eye for an eye or a tooth for a tooth is entirely foreign to our thought."

Asked if he would agree that it would be impossible to avoid damage to ancient monuments when bombs were dropped from a height of 20,000 feet, Mr. Sinclair said:

"We are only concerned with the bombing of important military targets.

"We cannot be prevented from bombing important military targets because, unfortunately, they happen to be close to beautiful monuments," he added.

Mr. Sinclair said it had been made clear to the people of Germany, Italy and of all occupied territories that "the Allied nations intend to attack from the air all centers working for the Axis war machine," and that civilians remain in such centers at their own risk.

Asked what conditions would have to be fulfilled before Rome would be considered an open city, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden replied:

"If the Italian Government approaches us in the matter we would consider the matter in the light of the circumstances then existing."

Madrid Hears Il Duce Is Moved To New Villa

Madrid, July 28 (AP)—Latest reports said today that Benito Mussolini has been transferred—for his own safety—from a villa on the Ostia road to the royal villa at Viareggio, on the Gulf of Genoa.

The royal villa is between Pisa—twenty miles north of Leghorn on the west side of the top of Italy's boot — and Carrera, forty miles north of Pisa. It is south of the northern chain of the Appenines and Po Valley which may become the German defense line.

The former Duce is said to be under guard of regular army troops responsible directly to Marshal Badoglio.

Europe Still in Doubt As to Fate of Mussolini

Neutral Europe continued to speculate yesterday on the whereabouts — and fate — of Benito Mussolini.

Madrid, according to The Associated Press, heard that Italy's former leader had been transferred from a villa near Rome to the royal residence at Viareggio and was under guard of troops responsible to Marshal Badoglio.

The Algiers radio, Reuter said, broadcast an unconfirmed report from Spain that Mussolini had arrived there.

And meanwhile, in Berne, there was a story that Mussolini not only had been killed—but killed some time ago.

Nazi Troops Move To Northern Italy, Algiers Radio Says

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 28.—The Algiers radio reported today that considerable numbers of German troops were moving northward through Italy and suggested that Nazi leaders might be doubtful of the new Italian government's intentions.

Swiss dispatches published last night in London newspapers said the Germans appeared to be preparing a strong defense line along the Po River in Northern Italy.

London, July 28 (A. P.).—The Ankara radio, in a broadcast heard by Reuters reported that news reaching Turkey tonight says the Italian Government shows willingness to negotiate with the Allies. "The main difficulty seems to be the fate of German divisions in Sicily and southern Italy," the broadcast added.

LIGHT ON BADOGLIO

Palermo, Sicily, July 27 (Delayed) (A. P.).—A letter found in official files here disclosed that two years ago Marshal Pietro Badoglio, new premier of Italy, distrusted Germany as an ally and refused to recognize the right of the Fascist party "to act as supreme censor of the work of the Italian General Staff." Badoglio's views were given in a letter, identified as written by him to Roberto Farinacci, then Fascist party secretary.

At that time the Albanian campaign was going badly and the Greeks were making the Italian Army look bad. As a result Badoglio was removed as chief of the general staff and given a tongue lashing by Farinacci.

Stefani's Chief Dead.

Berne, July 28 (A. P.).—Italian newspapers received here today carried official announcements of the death of Senator Manilo Morgagni, who had been ousted as president of the official Italian news agency, Stefani, and of Alfred Petrillo, Under-Secretary of State immediately before the advent of Fascism. Unconfirmed reports to the frontier said that Morgagni had committed suicide.

U.S. Freeing Political Captives

To Release 300 Victims of Fascist Party Persecution From Sicilian Jails.

Palermo, Sicily, July 26 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Three hundred Italian political prisoners held in Sicilian jails are to be freed immediately by Allied military authorities.

These victims of Fascist party politics have been languishing in jail many months and some are reported to have been on the verge of starvation. No effort was made to remove them from bombed areas, although Fascist officials themselves went to their country villas when the Allies began bombing Sicily's ports.

American military leaders have announced they have no intention of mixing in the island's internal politics. Forty young Sicilians who called yesterday to explain a move for Sicilian independence were told that no political activities would be permitted until the war ends.

Edict Brings Flood of Captives.

The posting of a proclamation that any Italian soldiers found in civilian clothes would be treated by the military government as spies, subject to the death penalty, brought a great influx to prison camps.

American officers had known for days that hundreds of Italian soldiers had been discarding their uniforms and filtering through the battle zones in civilian garb, but they were too busy conquering the western half of the island to do much about it. Soon after the proclamation went up on the city's walls, however, scores of Italian soldiers out of uniform began surrendering to local police and were put into camps with other captured troops.

Wheat Brought to Mills.

"It's all in the day's work," commented the American chief civil affairs officer, whose big job the last few days has been to get this city of 500,000 back on its municipal feet. Shops slowly are reopening and the huge task of removing debris from the bomb-damaged areas has begun.

The civil affairs officer borrowed 5,000,000 lire ($50,000) from the Sicilian banks to buy wheat and sent thirty trucks through the countryside to bring it to the mills. There it is being converted into flour to be sold through normal commercial channels. There is plenty of wheat to feed the people. It is just a question of getting it in from the farms.

TRAPANI REMAINS GHOST TOWN AFTER ALLIED BOMBING

American Soldiers in Sicily Tell of Havoc Wrought from A[illegible]

TRAPA[illegible]uly 24 (Delayed) — (AP) Bombed Trapani is the ghost town of all Sicily.

Only American soldiers and a few remaining residents move through the all but deserted streets of this fourth largest city on the island. In the perimeter of the town there is comparatively little damage, but areas near the port which the Axis used as a supply center during its abortive North African campaign are heavily battered.

Allied air bombs made a shambles of the piers and warehouses and spars of sunken ships mark another watery graveyard for Hitler and Mussolini's vanishing merchant marine in this blue corner of the Mediterranean.

From this harbor apex of destruction only four persons are visible—"an old man sitting silent in a chair, his head in his hands, and three little brown-eyed Italian girls, one so young the others are pushing her in a baby buggy. They asked for candy. The old man said nothing, sitting still as an unhappy gargoyle—just another ruined figure along a ruined street.

"Everybody moved out for their own safety," said Private Wiley Brooks of Savannah, Ga., who came down the street later with Private Curtis F. Parsons of Rush, N. Y. "They are beginning to come back. We are helping guard against rioting. Everything is under control now."

Gas seeping from broken mains made one avenue malodorous. Other streets were blocked by huge chunks of masonry tossed about by bomb blasts as if they were no heavier than tumbled children's blocks.

Soldiers Have Swim

Four soldiers came swinging along one street after a dip in the Mediterranean—the first bath they had had on Sicily — and told how the city had fallen.

Said Private Joseph Haymer, of Chicago, proudly:

"The infantry moved in under cover of artillery fire. An hour or two of shelling was all it took. The troops just walked on in after that. The only resistance was a little mortar and artillery fire. The Italians came out in droves to give up. I heard we took 10,000 prisoners in this area."

With Haymer were Private Robert E. Compston, Quincy, Mass., Corp. Philip Lewandowski, Chicago, and George Mead, South St. Paul, Minn.

"Some Italian women have been bringing wine to prisoners at one camp," said Mead, who sounded a bit envious. "There still are some pockets of resistance in the hills, but they are being cleaned out rapidly. Fires were burning everywhere when we first came into this town. We were with the artillery. All of us wanted to come in with the infantry to do the mopping up.

Outside Trapani the airport adjoining the road to Palermo had been literally smashed apart by Allied raiders who for weeks had made it one of their principal targets.

Craters of shocking size in the billiard table surface of the field were mementoes of spots where "blockbuster" bombs came to earth. The hangars and administration buildings were shattered and scores of wrecked and burned German fighters and bombers rested in one corner of the field.

The Nazis had more time to get out here, however, and left behind no large numbers of operational aircraft as they were forced to do at Comiso and other airports in the eastern and central parts of Sicily. Among the planes destroyed on the ground were a couple of six-motored Merseburg 323's. These lumbering transports seem to catch it the worst during raids. They are such big easy targets. One sees them smashed on the field so often one wonders if they ever spend any time in the air.

Railroad Lines Destroyed

The most concentrated scene of air-wrought destruction lay a few miles farther on toward Palermo at the Erice Napola station. The railroad yards themselves were a blackened mass of twisted and burned steel wreckage.

An Italian peasant said a lone American strafing plane had set fire to fuel and ammunition trains. Exploding ammunition had ripped huge holes in the ground. The railroad fuel tanks were crumpled like tin cans and blown yards away. Boxcars gutted to fragments of steel stood in this cradle of Axis disaster with their frames dropping like wet spaghetti.

For hundreds of feet in every direction the seared grass was strewn with chunks of metal. One great span of railroad trackage had been lifted intact and hurled more than 100 yards up the mountainside like a giant javelin.

This solitary American raider had tied up the railroad so completely that the Axis could ship nothing in or out because of the havoc resulting from the colossal explosions of the ammunition train.

LOOTERS HARASS SICILIANS NOW

Former Chicago Candy

Maker Tells of Troubles at Marsala, Blames Duce.

BOYLE

MARSALA Sicily July 25—(Delayed) — (AP) Leonard Giacolone, who saved enough money as a candy maker in Chicago to come back to Sicily and buy a farm and three houses stood in the wrecked doorway of one of those homes today, swinging an iron pike to guard his property against vandals.

Looking down the street devastated by Allied bombing to the ruined port, Giacolone, a small, meek-looking man with a week's stubble of beard on his face, said:

"The Sicilians don't blame the Americans for these bombings and damage to their homes. That is war. They blame Mussolini—he is the crazy man who got us into this.

"The war has cost thousands of lives and it is all Mussolini's fault—all his fault," said Giacolone, all three of whose houses suffered during the bombing of this former Axis port which for its size appeared to be the most heavily devastated city in Sicily.

Paring off a piece of cheese with a knife and putting it on a chunk of Italian gray bread, Giacolone said:

"What we need now is more guards. Otherwise the gangs of boys and looters will steal everything. Only a few people are left here. Many went to live in holes and old quarries outside the town where they felt safer."

Giacolone said he formerly lived in Chicago, and produced a faded Illinois hunting license issued to him in 1929. He said a brother still living there. He has been working as a farmer since his return to Sicily.

"The Germans used the port to send supplies to their troops in Tunis," he said, adding that the city had been heavily bombed four times. He said a raid May 11 had caused the most extensive damage in the harbor area and cost a large loss of life.

Debris was piled 15 to 20 feet deep on some streets fringing the port, which contained a number of sunken vessels. Among other casualties was a winery which produces the sweet Marsala wine famous throughout the world in peacetime years. Since the war began the Axis converted some Sicilian wines to military uses.

Secret Turkish-Italian Parley Thought Prelude to Peace Move

Rome's Envoy Confers at Sea With Ankara's Foreign Chief; to Fly Home

FRANK O'DRIEN

By the Associated Press.

ISTANBUL, July 28.—Turkey was projected dramatically into the role of a possible mediator between the United Nations and Italy today by a hasty and mysterious conference between the new Italian Foreign Minister, Rafaele Guariglia, and Turkish Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioglu.

The meeting was held amid every indication of secrecy and urgency aboard the Italian Embassy launch in the sea of Marmora yesterday. Immediately after the conference Mr. Menemencioglu left hurriedly for the capital at Ankara and it was disclosed that Signor Guariglia—who has been in Turkey as ambassador under the Fascist regime of Benito Mussolini—would leave by plane today for Rome.

The circumstances under which the meeting was held were in themselves sufficient to arouse intense interest.

Mr. Menemencioglu waited at the Moda Club, a fashionable resort at Moda Bay near Istanbul, and boarded the launch as soon as it arrived at the club pier. The launch turned seaward immediately. Beside the crew there was only one other person—who remained unidentified—seen to board the launch.

The fact that the Turkish minister agreed to see Guariglia at Istanbul instead of the foreign office in Ankara indicated the importance of the conference. Turkey, as a neutral power maintaining close diplomatic relations with both the United States and Great Britain, as a logical choice as the medium for possible Italian peace overtures.

Mr. Menemencioglu returned to Istanbul after the conference and then proceeded on to Ankara. It was disclosed that arrangements had been made for Signor Guariglia to leave for Rome on a plane bearing special markings to insure safe passage home.

Not Ardent Fascist.

Mr. Guariglia was appointed to the Turkish post three months ago and at the time it was understood that he was not the Italians first choice for the job. Rome, it was understood, wanted to appoint an ambassador with pro-Allied leanings, but the suggestion apparently was vetoed by Berlin, Italy's Axis partner. Signor Guariglia, who is not known to have exhibited any particular Allied sympathies, is known to have been only lukewarm toward the Fascist party.

There were unconfirmed rumors in Istanbul that Signor Guariglia's successor as Ambassador to Turkey would be Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, who was removed as Fascist Foreign Secretary and sent to the Vatican as Ambassador early this year.

The Turkish press reacted favorably to the news of the collapse of the Mussolini regime in Italy, most editors expressing the opinion that Italy would soon be out of the war.

Promises Friendship.

Hussein Yalchin, veteran Turkish legislator and popular writer, said: "It cannot be doubted that Mussolini's fall means the fall of Fascism. There is not the slightest reason for Italy to stay in the war. For Italy's sake we are glad Mussolini resigned. Italy can be sure that as soon as she discards imperialism she will find friends in Turkey."

Zekeriya Sertel, editor of Tan, the second largest paper in Turkey, saw Mussolini's resignation as a "crack in the Axis structure."

"It is the beginning of the collapse of Fascism," he said. "This will not fail to affect both Germany and the Balkans."

Necmeddin Sadak, a deputy in the National Assembly and editor of Aksham, predicted that "Italy will try to make peace."

Even the pro-Axis Tasviri Efkar saw the handwriting on the wall for the Axis in Mussolini's fall.

"Mussolini's resignation must be considered a breach in the European fortress," the paper commented. "If Italy withdraws from the war now the situation will compare to the closing period of the last war."

Italy Reported Taking Men From Balkans

By the Associated Press.

ISTANBUL, July 26 (Delayed).—Reports from the Balkans today indicated that Italian troops are being partially evacuated from Albania and Greece.

General evacuation of Italian units from Albania and Greece was believed here to have been one of the main subjects of last week's conference between Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler, with the latter refusing to consent to a wholesale withdrawal.

Reports from the Balkans said that the leading Bulgarian generals had conferred with the Italian commander in Albania within the past five days, arousing speculation that Bulgarian troops would replace Italian forces evacuated from Albania. Published reports that Hungarian troops would move into Albania were doubted here.

Hungary apparently is not anxious to increase her commitments to the Axis and is steadily withdrawing her troops from the Russian front. Recent statements by Hungarian Premier Nicholas Kallay indicate that he intends to eliminate Hungary as an active partner in the war if he is able to do so over threats of Axis occupation of his country if he refuses further co-operation.

German troops are massing at several points along the Hungarian frontier, according to reports reaching here.

The Germans are known to have been exerting considerable pressure upon Hungary in an attempt to swerve the government from its apparent determination to withdraw from active participation in the war.

China Backs Allies on Italy

CHUNGKING, July 28 (AP).—The Chinese government fully indorses the views expressed by Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Secretary of State Cordell Hull that nothing short of Italy's unconditional surrender will satisfy the United Nations, Chang Tao-fan, Minister of Information, said today. He said he favored punishing former Premier Benito Mussolini as "an arch-criminal."

GAYDA IS REPORTED SLAIN OR ARRESTED

JUL 29 1943

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dispatches from Madrid last night reported that Virginio Gayda, former editor of Il Giornale d'Italia and a top spokesman for Italy's now-departed Fascist party, had been slain during "revenge hunts" that flared in Italy following Benito Mussolini's resignation.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, however, in a French language broadcast recorded by U. S. government monitors, said Gayda and three other Fascist editors had been arrested by the new Italian regime and charged with high treason.

This report said the editors arrested with Gayda were Giovanni Ansaldo, of Count Ciano's Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, and the editors of Il Popolo di Roma and La Stampa.

Facts and Rumors About Italy

By The Associated Press

Facts known about Italy's position in the war were few last night, four days after the resignation of Benito Mussolini, and in the vacuum rumors ran rampant.

This Was Known:

ITALY: Rome radio had announced Mussolini resigned, Marshal Badoglio and a military dictatorship in power; Fascism abolished; foreign relations unchanged, with war continuing. Populace cheered passing of Mussolini and Fascism; rioting in some cities, notably Milan and Turin, between Fascists and anti-Fascists. Some liberal and democratic newspapers and organizations had reappeared.

ALLIES' POSITION: President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had repeated their call for unconditional surrender; war proceeded. Allied leaders regarded Mussolini's fall as enemy crumbling.

GERMANY'S POSITION: Berlin radio said Italy's problem was solely domestic, that Fascism was inadequate for war duty and Axis was unaffected.

MILITARY: Fighting continued in Sicily, with Axis resistance stiff.

A Few of the Rumors:

ARMISTICE: Allied and Badoglio representatives said to be discussing armistice terms under Vatican auspices. Hungary reported moving for peace.

MILITARY: German troops rushing south from Brenner Pass into Italy; German troops rushing northward to the Brenner Pass out of Italy; German and Italian troops fighting in northern Italy; Italian troops being withdrawn from Balkans and France.

MUSSOLINI: Variously reported in Switzerland, Spain and arrested trying to get to Germany; most persistent report, and one given most credence, that he was held under guard in Italy.

Mussolini's Reforms Cost Italy's People Loss of Freedoms

The regimentation of Italy under Mussolini's dictatorship is described by Richard Massock, chief of the former Associated Press Bureau in Rome, in this third of four daily stories detailing the rise and fall of "The Great Chin."

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK.

White thousands cheered and others groaned, Mussolini devoted himself for 10 years to dusting off Rome's former glory, shaking a semblance of efficiency into Italian life and promoting his personal power.

The first 10 years of his absolute dictatorship, 1925 to 1935, were relatively peaceful for the Italians who conformed to Fascism.

Mussolini was busy with a program of domestic reforms to justify his dictatorship and building the Fascist state to perpetuate it.

Among those who believed him the savior of the Western World from Bolshevism, it was easy to win further admiration by his forceful efforts to inject discipline into Italian life.

Safety at a Price.

Others regarded him as an executive genius who got things done in a seemingly efficient manner. Italy was made safe and orderly, the tourists found. She was given a social and economic program that appeared promising.

For a decade, Italian national life showed to the casual observer an outward health and vigor it never before had enjoyed. But the cost to the Italians was great, indeed, for they lost two freedoms—freedom of speech and freedom from fear. They failed to gain another — freedom from want.

They retained only one, the freedom of religion. Mussolini was astute enough to realize the influence of the church on Italians. Although Fascism and the Vatican were frequently in conflict, Mussolini made his peace in that sector with the Lateran Accord of 1929, perhaps his only sound diplomatic achievement for Italy.

Mussolini became the state. As its embodiment, he imposed social peace by outlawing strikes and lockouts. He expanded the railways and public works, the merchant marine, the highway system, the aqueducts and power plants.

He reclaimed thousands of acres, especially in the Pontine Marshes near Rome, to make new fields for the growing of crops. He gave the workers a labor charter, social insurance, summer camps for children. He provided schools for all.

Democratic countries, of course, were doing similar things without demanding such a sacrifice of the people's liberties.

Reassured by Mussolini that Fascism was not an article of export, his admirers abroad excused Fascism in Italy with the remark that its methods were needed there, although in the non-Italian countries, they said, such things were unthinkable.

Mussolini set up a super-regimented form of economic nationalism in a so-called corporative system, with employers' guilds, called corporations, and syndicates of workers, all under his state control through the Fascist party.

Required Membership.

The worker had to belong to a Fascist syndicate to work. The employers had to accept a party control which reached into every phase of their industrial and commercial operations. This government control, exercised through instruments of a single party, spawned a host of grafters, large and small.

The terror of Fascism appeared more or less latent by the end of its first decade, but it was there, always ready with its clubs, its castor oil and its arbitrary imprisonments.

Mussolini legalized his personal army, the Fascist Militia—first such institution in the history of Europe, later the model for the Nazi Brownshirts in Germany.

He set up a special tribunal, its judges officers of the militia, which tried anti-Fascists, with no appeal from its arbitrary sentences of banishment to towns in the interior of Italy or to the Lipari Islands off Sicily.

Detection of the anti-Fascists was the work of the militia and of the secret police, called the OVRA.

Mussolini was repeatedly the target of assassins.

In 1925 Gen. Zaniboni was convicted of setting up a rifle in a window from which he could fire on the Duce when Mussolini appeared on his balcony to address a crowd.

In 1926 an Irish woman fired a pistol at Mussolini during a ceremony in Rome, the bullet scratching his nose. A shot was fired at him from a crowd of cheering Blackshirts as they pressed around his open car in Bologna. An anarchist threw a bomb against Mussolini's car.

There were other abortive attempts, not always publicized, against his life.

The police repression of the people was tightened.

Government censorship of the press reduced the newspapers to servile collaboration with the regime, until the Fascist party eventually controlled all the organs of opinion.

Mussolini regimented and disciplined the people until almost everybody was in some sort of uniform. Boys were drilled in Fascist corps for the army service into which they were graduated.

Girls were put into uniforms, too, but they were drilled for motherhood, for Mussolini used all the persuasion of his dictatorial position, and cash prizes as well, for the propagation of offspring to make good his boast of 8,000,000 bayonets against any foe.

Textbooks Distorted.

Education was molded in the Fascist pattern, with the textbooks rewritten to exalt the Duce, glorify war and distort history to suit the aims of the dictator's budding foreign policy.

Parliament became a rubber stamp, the Senate a club of political dodoes.

Mussolini gloried in the adultation of those about him. A master showman, in the gaudy manner of Italian opera, he affected uniforms that flattered his short, dumpy body. With bulging eyes and jutting chin, he shouted flambouyant phrases at a corralled audience from the balcony of his palace.

He liked to exhibit himself, wielding a pick in the demolition of a slum block, forking wheat at threshing time in the "battle of the grain" (which he decreed to make Italy self-sufficient in food), driving a motor cycle, an automobile, a speedboat, an airplane.

But to be a Caesar, Mussolini had to pay the penalty of loneliness. Nobody ever has claimed to have been a dear and affectionate friend of the Duce. Mussolini never had one, so far as the records go, outside his family.

Fond of His Children.

He rarely relaxed in the presence of others, always kept them at attention. Never a hand-shaker, he ordered the stiff salute of the outflung arm as the Fascist mode of greeting.

In his fondness for his children, he was the normal Italian parent. His daughter Edda was the apple of his eye; Bruno, who was killed in a bombing plane accident, his favorite son. Yet his writings show that while he found lonely relaxation in playing his violin, he always exacted a more than filial respect from his three sons and two daughters when they were in his presence.

BALKAN AREAS MAY QUIT AXIS

Drift Of Hungary, Rumania And Bulgaria Toward Allies Is Predicted

Writer Says Diplomats Claim Peace Feelers Already Have Been Put Out

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

[Former Chief, Associated Press Bureau in Rome]

Washington, July 28—Watch for a gradual attempt of the Axis satellites — Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria—to drift toward our side now that Sicily has been invaded.

That is the expectation in Washington, as the American and British armies move closer to the little countries who may never have had much faith in Germany but knuckled down to the Nazi power because it was next door to them.

See Headaches Ahead

The United Nations authorities suspect indeed that they are in for a headache from this quarter—from Hungarian, Rumanian and Bulgarian leaders who will try to convince them that they were for the Allies all along but couldn't do anything about it because the Germans bore down on them and occupied their territory.

Feelers for a separate peace have been put out by all three countries, diplomats say. They have been repulsed with the "unconditional surrender" requirement set up for the enemies by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain.

Nevertheless, since unconditional surrender does not necessarily mean abject surrender, but rather surrender on the victor's terms alone, the Hungarians, Rumanians and Bulgarians are believed to hope for less severe treatment than will be meted out to the Germans.

U. S. STAKE IN ITALY

Washington, July 28 (A. P.).—America's financial stake in war-weary Italy aggregates some $150,000,000—half of it in industrial properties—according to latest estimates available here.

Italian investments in the United States, on the other hand, represent only $55,000,000.

The Mussolini Government in June, 1941, ordered registration of all Italian-held assets in retaliation for Washington action freezing Axis funds here. The registration order was the last definite word on the American property.

Presumably the peace conference will take up these property tangles and Congress probably would have to act on the disposition of frozen alien assets for which there now are no governing laws.

State Dept. and OWI Officials Discuss 'Policy' Toward Italy

WASHINGTON, July 28 — (AP) State department and Office of War Information officials met to coordinate their policies with regard to Italy.

Robert E. Sherwood, director of OWI overseas service, said the purpose was to "get our policy on the beam." Those who met with Secretary Hull were Sherwood, Milton Eisenhower, acting director of OWI, James P. Warburg, director of OWI's overseas service in New York, Michael McDermott, press relations chief of the State department, and Robert Pell, its liaison officer.

The conference followed President Roosevelt's repudiation of an OWI broadcast in which King Vittorio Emauele and Marshal Pietro Badoglio were called Fascists, with a reference to "the little moronic king."

Sherwood said the "late unpleasantness" was not discussed, but added:

"We won't be caught off base again."

Sherwood added that Hull had given the conferees a detailed picture of the State department's policy on Italy.

"Beaming" the United States' policy toward Italy, Sherwood said, is a "little difficult at present" because of the uncertainty concerning conditions there.

ROME BROADCAST SEES 'NO CHANGE' IN WAR POSITION

Ousting of Mussolini Strictly a 'Home Affair,' British, U. S. Told.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rome radio in its first detailed exposition of Italy's position following the fall of Benito Mussolini declared last night that, with Fascism "abolished," there remains "but one thing for Italy to do—continue to fight—fight for liberty and for honor."

The Italian people, the announcer said in an English language broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, "were at war, and they remain at war."

There has been no change in the relation between Italy and Great Britain, the broadcast said.

"What has happened in Italy is strictly a home affair," it asserted. "Italy has found it necessary to rid herself of a political system which she found harmful to the nation; this political system has been done away with.

"Fascism in Italy is over! Forever!"

Italy is now orderly and united under the leadership of the king and the head of the government, the broadcast said "and all the Italian people realize that the most urgent and necessary matter to attend to is to fight their foreign enemies."

Say Fascism "Dead"

"When there was Fascism in Italy, the British government kept on saying that they were fighting Fascism alone and not Italy," the broadcast said. "But now that Fascism no longer exists, the British continue to declare that they want to destroy and lay waste to Italy from one end of the country to the other. Thus the British government itself gives the lie to its former declaration.

"Italy is faced by an enemy who has declared that he wants Italy's destruction.

"Under these conditions there is but one thing for Italy to do. Continue to fight! And Italy will fight —fight for liberty and for honor."

Replies to Churchill

The broadcast referred to Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons yesterday that the Italian people must decide whether they want peace or see their country "seared and scarred and blackened."

Rome radio said this was no surprise to the Italian people because the statements "were what might have been expected from the leader of a government at war with Italy."

Churchill's declarations were "quite natural as a matter regarding the home affairs of Great Britain" but if he thought he could influence the Italians by threatening them "he might just as well have kept silent.

"The Italian people needed no further statements by the British prime minister in order to be told things of which they are already perfectly well aware."

"The British and the Americans," continued the broadcast, "have nothing to do with the end of Fascism in Italy. And actually they have frequently declared they are not at war with the Italian people but with Fascism.

"The Italians have never believed it. They have always known that such statements were made merely for propagandistic reasons with the object to create disunion and disorder in Italy.

"Great Britain has always hoped that the attack on Italy from the outside made by British ships and aircraft might be aided and supported from within by an anti-Fascist revolution, by riots and by civil war. All this did not happen."

Badoglio Regime Dissolves Entire Party of Ex-Duce---Purges State Of Grand Council Rule.

JUL 29 1943

The Rome radio announced today that the complete dissolution of the National Fascist party had been ordered at the first meeting of the new Italian Cabinet, held yesterday under the presidency of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the new Premier.

In a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, Rome said that the Cabinet also decided: (1) To abrogate the fourteen-year-old law under which the Fascist Grand Council became an organ of the State, the law being "incompatible with the return to constitutional normality"; and (2) to suppress the Special Tribunal for the Defense of the State, all cases ordinarily tried by this tribunal to be transferred to Military Courts of the Army Corps for the duration of actual war.

The text of the broadcast follows:

"The first meeting of the Council of Ministers was held on Tuesday, July 27, in the Quirinal under the presidency of his excellency, Marshal Badoglio.

"The council, in view of the new situation which has arisen in the political life of the land, has ordered the complete dissolution of the National Fascist party.

"Measures have been taken to the end that auxiliary institutions, of education and sports, which depended in part upon it, will continue to function.

"In addition, the same meeting of the Council of Ministers decided, among other things, to abrogate the law of December 9, 1928, No. 2,693, concerning the Fascist Grand Council, as incompatible with the return to constitutional normality.

"Finally the council ordered the suppression of the Special Tribunal for the Defense of the State. Affairs which have been handled by this tribunal will be taken over by military tribunals of the Army Corps during the entire duration of actual war.

RAF Blasts Hamburg For Its Sixth Time Within Four Days

Germans Acknowledge Great Fires and High Casualties In City

30.24 - 6647

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 28.—RAF bombers returned to Hamburg in great force last night, the British announced today, to heap further destruction on the great North German port which has been the object of continuing round-the-clock attacks since Saturday night.

About 5,000 tons of bombs have fallen on the city since Saturday night—within a few hundred tons of the total Germany dropped on all Britain in the fall of 1940 during the worst days of the Battle of Britain.

It was the RAF's fourth successive night assault on the battered city, which in normal times has a population of more than 1,000,000. Sandwiched in between these night raids were two smashing daylight attacks by American bombers on Sunday and Monday.

There was no letup in the Allied attack as strong formations of fighters and fighter-bombers continued to assault in daylight today, shuttling forth and back across the Channel to the Low Countries. The attacks continued past midday.

Admits Casualties.

(The German high command, in a communique broadcast by the Berlin radio, said that "strong enemy bomber formations continued their terror attacks on Hamburg last night. There were further devastations and conflagrations caused in several parts of the city. The population again suffered losses."

(It claimed that 47 of the attacking bombers were shot down.)

Targets in the Ruhr Valley, site of many important German war industries, also were bombed during the night, said an Air Ministry communique, which acknowledged the loss of 18 bombers.

Mosquitoes of the fighter command at the same time carried out offensive patrols over Germany, Holland and France, attacking airfields and railway communications, the bulletin said.

The attack on Hamburg was described by the Air Ministry as "concentrated and effective."

Hamburg is now bracketed with Bremen in second place on the list of the world's most often-bombed cities. Both targets have been struck 104 times, while Cologne—at the top of the list—has been bombed 120 times.

No Aircraft Lost.

A total of 2,300 long tons of explosives and incendiary bombs were dropped on Hamburg Monday night alone. Speedy Mosquito bombers carried forward the attack Sunday and Monday nights.

In addition to the heavy assault on Hamburg, Mitchell bombers swept across the Channel last evening to attack the airfield at Schipol in Holland. Four enemy fighters were destroyed in combat but no Allied aircraft were lost, the Air Ministry said.

Allied aircraft maintained the terrific schedule of attack on German targets throughout the day yesterday. United States medium bombers staged a daylight raid on the airfield at Tricqueville in France, and American Thunderbolts, flying at a great height, escorted twin-engined bombers which pounded other targets in Northern France.

Fighters and light bombers struck at Zeebrugge on the Belgian coast in another daylight attack, and returning pilots said that there was no opposition from enemy fighters.

Belgian Airports Bombed.

Five-hundred-pound bombs were dumped on airfields in Courtrai, Belgium, and Woensdrecht, Holland, by Ventura bombers escorted by Spitfires. Other Spitfires swept over German territory from Ypres in Belgium to Hulst in Holland.

The Air Ministry News Service reported that Allied aircraft destroyed 15 German planes yesterday and last evening. A German bomber was shot down over the Channel and nine Focke Wulf-190s were destroyed by Spitfires escorting American medium bombers to the Tricqueville attack in addition to four Messerschmitts shot down as they attempted to break up the raid on Schipol. The 15th plane was shot down over the Channel by Spitfires on rescue patrol.

Two Allied fighters were lost in the Tricqueville raid, but the pilots were reported saved.

FORTRESSES RAID PLANT NEAR BERLIN

U. S. Bombers Penetrate Deeper Than Ever Before Into Germany

RAF Flyers Dump Biggest Bomb Load In History On Hamburg

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 28—Flying Fortresses penetrated deeper into Germany than ever before today to attack an airplane factory at Oschersleben, eighty miles southwest of Berlin, after British night raiders had cast the greatest bomb load in history on the submarine center of Hamburg in the sixth Allied raid there in three days.

Late last night there appeared to be no sign of a letup in the aerial assault on Europe as waves of heavy bombers headed from the southeast coast over the English Channel.

[The Federal Communications Commission in Washington reported the Calais and Paris radios in France had gone off the air.]

Meanwhile, a brief alert was sounded in London early today.

23 Bombers Lost

The American bombers also battered a German plane factory at Kassel and destroyed more than sixty Nazi fighters in battles in which twenty-three heavy bombers and one Allied fighter were lost.

United States medium bombers attacked industrial targets in Belgium and British fighters raided German air bases in northern France and Belgium in the sustained day-and-night aerial offensive.

The Air Ministry said "just over" 2,300 long tons (2,576 United States tons) of bombs were loosed upon Hamburg last night, shattering the record set by the RAF on Saturday night, and that more than 5,000 tons had fallen in the current bombing cycle on the port.

Plane Plant Hit

The first central German target of the Flying Fortresses was an aircraft assembly plant at Oschersleben near Magdeburg, which lies 460 miles east of the nearest bit of English coastline. The Fortresses flew at least 335 miles over Europe to deliver their attack and probably spanned more than 1,000 miles on the round trip.

"Bomb bursts were seen in both target areas," a joint United States and British communique said of the attacks on Oschersleben and Kassel.

The Fortresses flew without escort—their incursion was too deep for fighters—and encountered "large numbers of fighters." Escorts of United States Thunderbolts, British, Dominion and Allied Spitfire fighters picked up the heavy bombers on their return.

Nine Shot Down

The Thunderbolts alone shot down nine challenging Nazis, running the score for the day to more than 69 to 24.

Other Spitfire squadrons swept the Dutch coast while medium United States bombers with Spitfire escorts blasted Belgian coke ovens at Zeebrugge.

The mediums attacked the coke ovens with such accuracy, said Col. Herbert D. Thatcher, of Chevy Chase, Md., leader of a formation, that "it looked like one solid bomb hit."

British Typhoon bombers attacked German airfields at Courtrai, in Belgium, and Melville, in northern France. Boston bombers hit Amsterdam, in Holland.

Fourth Exploit In 5 Days

It was the fourth exploit in five days for the Fortresses. Most German fighters stayed out of reach of the four-engined craft. One formation of twenty Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs which had lurked in waiting for the Fortresses "dived away to safety" when they were challenged by a Spitfire wing, the British Air Ministry said.

Hamburg took its place as one of the most terribly scarred cities of Germany. Pilots said last night's attack, concentrated in forty-five minutes, was "even more destructive" than previous raids on the port.

Glow Visible 200 Miles

"A very dense cloud of smoke" rose three miles above the city of 1,000,000 and some flyers found smoke up to 24,000 feet—nearly five miles. Glows were visible for 200 miles.

The defenses of Hamburg had been reinforced and German night fighters had to negotiate their own flak barrage to engage the bombers over the bubbling target.

Even before last night's raid, great damage to Hamburg was shown in reconnaissance photographs taken at noon Tuesday. The Air Ministry said the pictures showed fires still licking the docks.

Fresh Damage Discovered

"At least nine very important buildings" in the Blohm and Voss submarine yards were hit, the Ministry said.

Other fresh damage was discovered, including the detstruction of two main gas holders in the municipal gas works. A warehouse in the Hansa Hafen district covering four acres was obliterated completely.

"There is no question that when the full count can be made of damage done before last night that it will extend to hundreds of acres," the Air Ministry added.

The time of the Hamburg raid was five minutes less than the previous record smash on Saturday.

"Every such cut in the bombing period means greater destruction and greater safety for our men and aircraft," the Air Ministry news service explained.

Returning pilots reported that between 150 and 200 German fighters attacked the American bomber formations today, driving in groups of twenty-five and putting up a hard, running fight for two hours, until the Fortresses picked up their Thunderbolt escorts on the way back.

Only One Bomber Lost

Nevertheless, only one bomber was reported lost from the flight that led the raid and bore the first brunt of the Nazi attack. Photographs showed the Americans' bombs blanketed their targets.

With last night's attack, Hamburg, latest German city to be marked for doom by Allied air power, had been blasted by at least 5,000 tons of bombs since last Saturday night—within a few hundred tons of the total weight the Nazis dropped on all Britain in the fall of 1940 at the height of the battle of Britain.

Raided 6 Times In 72 Hours

That German port, one of the biggest bases for building U-boats and rehabilitating and retraining their crews for the battle of the Atlantic, was attacked again last night by the RAF—the sixth raid on the city within seventy-two hours.

British and American heavy bombers have alternated in pyramiding destruction on the blazing port since Saturday night, the British hitting by night, the Americans by day.

Added to the two great night loads dropped by the RAF were probably more than 500 tons hurled by American Flying Fortresses at special targets, such as the yards where U-boats are built and repaired, and a comparatively few tons dropped by RAF Mosquito bombers Sunday and Monday nights.

It was authoritatively estimated that the German air force dropped only 5,800 tons of bombs on Britain during September, October and November, 1940.

"Blazing Like Paper Box"

Describing Hamburg during last night's attack, Canadian flyers said it was "blazing like a paper box. The town was just one big fire when we left."

An official communique said that visibility over Hamburg was excellent and that preliminary information showed the attack to have been "concentrated and effective."

The assault probably put Hamburg close to, if not ahead of, Essen in total weight of bombs suffered since the war began. Essen is estimated to have been blasted by more than 12,000 tons.

While the bombers were over Germany, Mosquitoes made offensive patrols over northern France, attacking three airfields and several railway targets. Altogether, the night's operations were reported to have cost the British and Canadians eighteen planes. The Air Ministry announced that five enemy craft were destroyed in an attack on Schipol airfield in Holland.

6 MORE TOWNS IN SICILY FALL TO AMERICANS

Cefalu New North Coast Base For Yank Advance On San Stefano

Nazis Assume Burden Of Messina Defense—Rush Reserves Into Italy

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 28—Six more important Sicilian towns and a host of villages have fallen to American columns driving against the newly fortified flank of the German Etna line at San Stefano, it was announced today as Hitler gambled some of his best troops on a chance of keeping Italy in the war.

Cefalu — ninety miles west of Messina—was captured Monday by Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s hard-fisted infantry and armored crews, and became a new north coast base for the advance on San Stefano, seventeen miles away.

Other Inland Points Taken

A belated official announcement also said the Americans had taken the inland communication points of Collesano, Petralia, Calteveturo, Polizzia and Alimena—representing an additional occupied area of more than 200 square miles.

Alimena is twenty-five miles southeast of Cefalu, putting the Americans within sixteen miles of Nicosia, a main inland base of the Etna line.

All official reports released by headquarters said the Germans were frantically bringing fresh troops and equipment into Sicily and messages from Europe described German reserves being rushed to Italy through the Brenner Pass from the Reich.

These reports, if true, indicated the German high command at last was committed to full-fledged defense of Italy's territory despite the danger of Italy's suing for separate peace.

Italian "Military Serfs"

Three and a half divisions of some of Hitler's best troops are arrayed on the Etna line from San Stefano in the north to Catania in the east, and they undertook full responsibility from the Italians for the fate of the Messina bridgehead.

Like military serfs, the Italians were put to pick and shovel labor, excavating entrenchments, erecting tank blocks across roads, and sandbagging German field guns. Only a relative handful of Mussolini's ill-famed "Eight Million Bayonets" still was permitted to handle weapons in combat. Survivors of the Livorno Division and another unidentified Italian field division sank to the class of menials.

San Stefano loomed ahead of the Americans as importantly as Hill 609 whose capture split the Axis front in northern Tunisia. Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the canny Missourian who outsmarted the Nazis at Hill 609, is commanding one of Patton's corps in the Messina push.

A vital north-south road runs from San Stefano to Nicosia, key to the central sector where Americans and Canadians are fighting shoulder to shoulder. Once the Americans get into San Stefano, the Axis would be compelled to pull back probably twenty miles overnight and Nicosia would be gravely outflanked.

Eighth Army Still Stymied

Canadian troops in the central sector hacked deeper into the Germans' mountain defenses, today's communique said, but the British Eighth Army was stymied for the thirteenth day outside Catania by mine fields and German artillery commanding the plains.

The Canadians apparently are fighting near Agira, central pivot of the Axis defense arc, and only sixteen miles from Allied-held Enna.

Petralia, swept up in the American advance, is nine miles north of Alimena, Collesano and Calteveturo are nine and seventeen miles southwest of Cefalu, and Polizzia is just forward of Calteveturo.

Estimate Of Prisoners Reduced

More prisoners, in undisclosed numbers, have been taken, the communique reported, but it was officially disclosed that "the bulk of two Italian field divisions" had escaped from western Sicily before the American trap closed in there.

This apparently would reduce previous official estimates that 110,000 Axis troops had been trapped in the campaign. The latest report listed "over 70,000" enemy soldiers in Allied prison pens.

Clearly dominating the air, Allied planes still were hammering mainly at Axis island communications and at airdromes and ports in Sicily and the mainland.

Terrain Favors Americans

They were not yet thrown in in great weight as aerial artillery to blast the road open for Allied troops, in the classic manner in which, concentrating on an extremely narrow sector, they tore open the path of the British First Army in Tunisia for the final rapid advance upon Tunis.

The terrain favors a knockout blow by the Americans along the north coast, with a wider shelf and lower mountains than along the eastern edge of Sicily. But supply difficulties, mountain defenses and fierce resistance of some 50,000 or more German troops indicated hard and probably slow fighting ahead until the stage could be set for final devastating blows.

[Axis communiques reported greater artillery actions and said British and American attacks in the central sector collapsed or were repulsed by counter assaults.]

In the non-stop air war, Flying Fortresses pounded Capua airfield north of Naples and hit railroad yards at Lioni and Calitri, knocking down three enemy fighters. This followed an attack the night before on Capodichino airdrome near Naples by RAF Wellingtons.

New destruction was piled over other southern Italy areas, with American Mitchells and Marauders bombing Scalea airfield on the Italian "toe" and destroying at least twenty grounded planes, and RAF and Canadian Wellingtons hitting Monte Corvino Ravella airdrome by night. From mid-East bases, RAF Liberators and Halifaxes hammered the airfield at Reggio Calabria Monday night.

30.24-6649

Reinforcement Funnel Bombed

In Sicily, the port of Milazzo, German reinforcement funnel twenty miles west of Messina, was attacked nine times by RAF Bostons and Baltimores, with railways, docks and buildings hit, and RAF Bostons started fires at Agira. Fighter-bombers raided communications at Milazzo, Francavilla, and a bridge at Rockalumera, and also destroyed an ammunition barge near Reggio Calabria across the strait.

The day's operations cost three Allied planes, with five enemy ships shot down.

Italians Report Action.

London, July 28 (A. P.).—The Italian communique today said Allied attacks in Sicily again had been repelled despite intense artillery fire and announced new Allied air attacks on Reggio Calabria on the Italian toe.

The communique, recorded from the Rome radio by the Associated Press, said Axis bombers had attacked Augusta and Syracuse, Sicilian ports in Allied hands.

In the Atlantic, Italian submarines scored two torpedo hits on an Allied aircraft carrier, the communique said.

A corvette and a tanker were sunk by the Axis air attacks at Augusta and Syracuse, the communique claimed, and six transports were set on fire.

Reggio Calabria Is Blasted

CAIRO, July 28 (AP).—R. A. F. Liberators and Halifax heavy bombers from the Middle East Air Command bombed the airdrome at Reggio Calabria, on the toe of the Italian boot, Monday night and yesterday morning, an Allied communique reported today.

The communique said that the bombers scored hits on the airdrome surface and caused fires.

Beaufighters staged a daylight attack on Axis shipping in the Aegean Sea, off the coast of Greece, with bombs, cannon and machine-gun fire, the bulletin said.

An Italian vessel towing a large barge, off Melos Island, was badly damaged. Returning pilots said that white smoke and steam were seen after the attack. A motor torpedo boat also was attacked.

Allied aircraft suffered no losses in the operations, the communique declared.

FRENCH COMMITTEE FACING NEW CRISIS

Giraud Held Opposed to Actions Taken in His Absence

JUL 29 1943

ALGIERS, July 28 (AP)—A new crisis was threatened in the French Committee of National Liberation today, precipitated by Gen. Henri-Honoré Giraud's objection to a number of actions taken during his absence in the United States and Canada.

General Giraud was reported to be opposed to a decision to lower the age limit for officers in the armed forces and to a number of appointments in the colonial administration.

The committee has met every day for the past three days. Sessions were previously spaced two or three days apart.

There has been further discussion of the international position that might develop if peace talks between Italy and the Allies occurred. Committee members were reported to have agreed that French interests must be represented and asked for further clarification of the American and British attitudes toward recognizing the committee as the trustee government of the French.

GERMANS REVEAL ROMMEL IN GREECE

Former African Commander at Salonika to Guard Gateway to Balkans.

JUL 29 1943

LONDON, Thursday, July 29. — (AP) The German radio said today that the "secret surrounding Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's whereabouts has been ended" through the publication in Berlin morning papers of pictures showing the former North African commander arriving in Salonika, Greece.

Greece is the gateway to the German-held Balkans, largely garrisoned by Italian troops, and an Allied invasion through Salonika in the First World War led to the defeat of Germany.

The possible collapse of Italy has exposed the Axis' vulnerability in Greece and other Balkan countries where the Germans depended on the Italians for a great part of the police work in those rebellious areas.

There were reports that the Italians already were beginning to leave for their homeland.

A DNB dispatch told of Rommel's dispatch to Greece which is threatened by Allied armies in the Middle East. Previous reports had said Rommel was in France or Greece, and one recent rumor said he had been shot down while flying to Sicily after the Allied invasion there.

Berlin has guarded jealously the prestige of the former commander of German and Italian African forces that almost reached the Nile valley a year ago.

When the British Eighth army broke his drive into Egypt and hurled him back across Africa last fall and winter, Berlin recalled Rommel before the total collapse of his armies. Col.-Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim was left in Tunisia to take the rap for an Axis defeat there.

U.S. PARATROOPERS HALTED GERMANS

Washington, July 28 (A. P.).—The boys in the ankle-high boots slid down out of the skies over Sicily, crawled through the brush to take on tanks with their rifles, and then—bringing up airborne bazookas, howitzers and machine-guns—blocked a Nazi Panzer unit cold for thirty hours.

Thus the paratroopers closed the gap between the First and Forty-fifth divisions on Sicilian sands and held the Allied invasion lines solid between beachheads. The story of how they did it was told yesterday by Major-Gen. Joseph M. Swing who was there. And, during the press conference after his return to Washington, he said:

"We landed them by the thousands in Sicily, and we hope to land them by the tens of thousands next time."

Gen. Swing said the Fifteenth German Panzer Division was stabbing between the landings at Geala and Scoglitti, to split the invading forces, when "the largest simultaneous airborne effort ever undertaken" parachuted down in its pathway, about six miles inland. Sharp-shooting through the tank slits to pick off the drivers, the troopers waited until the giant 60-ton Mark VI's were only fifty yards away. Then they cut loose with 75-mm. howitzers, bazookas and machine guns and turned them back.

The General said that courage was the success secret of the original paratroop combat team which held the line until it was reinforced by glider troops, additional paratroops and heavier equipment. Jeeps and 37-mm. anti-tank guns came in on the gliders, until the entire 82d Airborne Division was in action as an infantry unit between the two beach-landing divisions, he said.

Commander of the Eleventh Airborne Division, Swing went to Africa as adviser on American Airborne operations to Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, ground force commander of the Sicilian invasion.

OVER 1,500 BOATS USED BY NAVY IN SICILIAN DRIVE

More Than 40,000 Officers and Men Handled Gigantic Task.

JUL 29 1943

WASHINGTON, July 28 — (AP) The Navy disclosed today that more than 1,500 of its vessels, ranging from cruisers to small landing craft, effected the landing of U. S. invasion forces on the island of Sicily. The ships were handled by a force totalling more than 40,000 officers and men.

Revealing details of naval participation in the Allied drive into the Italian island, the Navy said that the huge fleet included not only large combat units and many sizes of landing craft but also a number of anti-submarine patrol vessels and "a swarm of motor torpedo boats."

The men had been especially trained for months in the operation which they carried out on the Sicilian coast but the Navy said that success of the invasion from the naval standpoint was essentially a story of the success of specialized landing craft "which have been developed to break down the coastal walls of the Axis European fortress."

The landing craft were not described in great detail. Pictures have shown they included small barges for transporting men, tank and guns and fairly large ships which are completely seaworthy and capable of striking at Europe from ports in the United States.

Under Admiral Hewitt

The American naval units engaged in the largest amphibious operation in history were under immediate direction of Vice Admiral H. K. Hewitt, commander of U. S. naval forces in North African waters. Hewitt was part of the Allied force under the general operational control of British Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, supreme chief of naval forces under General Eisenhower.

The American units were part of the United States Atlantic Fleet commanded by Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll. Under Hewitt were Rear Admiral Alan G. Kirk, Rear Admiral John L. Hall and Rear Admiral Richard L. Conolly.

"The actual landing on the Sicilian shore was only the culmination of long months of extensive preparation, of intensive training in the complex maneuvers of amphibious warfare, of worknig out logistical problems, and of meticulous planning on a vast scale to insure that every vessel would be at the proper spot at the proper moment," the Navy said. "The training of personnel was continued in North Africa until the last moment before shoving off."

There were about 2,500 ships and craft of various kinds in the total amphibious force thrown against Sicily and the Navy noted that those under the American flag "constituted by far the greatest number in the invasion fleet."

Crossed Mediterranean

One of the initial waves of American troops was taken across the Mediterranean from North Africa entirely by landing vessels. Hundreds of boats proceeded to the first rendezvous accompanied only by patrol craft and without the protection of larger combat vessels. The seas were rough and sometimes the propulsion machinery of the small vessels broke down but special repair crews accompanying the force quickly put them in shape again.

"Experienced officers marvelled at the seamanship of the crews—many of whom had never seen the ocean a year ago," the Navy said.

Some of the American forces engaged at Sicily had been transported across the Atlantic specifically for the job. "Huge convoys took over the men and supplies and so securely were they ringed by naval escort vessels, including cruisers, that neither convoy was once attacked," the Navy said.

Soviet Envoy to London Named Vice Foreign Chief

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 28.—Ivan Maisky, Russian Ambassador to London who is now in Moscow, has been appointed Soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, it was announced today.

The significance of the appointment was not immediately ascertainable, but it was said it would not preclude Mr. Maisky's return to London.

It was recalled that Maxim Litvinov also was named a vice commissar at the same time he was sent to Washington in the role of Ambassador.

There are at present five other vice commissars besides Mr. Maisky.

"Mission To Moscow" Has Showing In Russia

Moscow, July 28 (AP)—The smiling face of former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies looked down on the milling streets of Moscow today from big colored posters on the fronts of movie houses showing his "Mission to Moscow."

The picture had its first public showing here last night and was well received, though Russian audiences were amused at some of Hollywood's ideas of Russian life.

Only minor cuts were made in the version shown here. For instance, a scene in the American Embassy where the secretaries tell Davies that walls have been tapped was deleted. Russians watched the famous Moscow trial scenes with intense interest.

Battle Against Axis Bridgehead Reaches 'Slugging Stage'

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 28.—American troops of the 7th Army, sweeping eastward toward the tip of Sicily, have captured Cefalu, 90 miles west of Messina Strait, and are advancing against strongly prepared German defenses at San Stefano, it was announced at Allied headquarters today.

The Americans are slashing forward on a deep front along the north coast, and have also captured Alimena, 25 miles southeast of Cefalu, and four other towns behind a line from Cefalu to Alimena.

The other four are Petralia, 9 miles north of Alimena; Collesano, 9 miles southwest of Cefalu; Calteveturo, 17 miles southwest of Cefalu, and Pollizzia, just forward of Calteveturo.

The battle of the bridgehead had reached the "slugging stage" as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters communique announced that Canadian troops in the center of the front also had made progress in hard fighting and against bitter opposition.

8th Army Stopped at Catania.

The British 8th Army still was stopped dead before Catania, in the eastern sector, for the 13th successive day—longer than it was stopped either at El Alamein in Egypt, when it took up the offensive, or at the Mareth line in Tunisia.

Announcement of the fall of Cefalu came at least 36 hours late and, while there were no more official reports on progress, it was plain that the heaviest American forces were being drawn up for an allout blow along the north coast.

The Germans still were getting in reinforcements and it was disclosed that "the bulk of two Italian field divisions" had escaped into the bridgehead from the west. This appeared to trim down previous official estimates that 110,000 Axis soldiers had been trapped since the start of the campaign. "Over 70,000" was the last official count of prisoners.

Front dispatches said the Germans were completely in charge of the strong Etna line running from San Stefano to Nicosia, Agira, Catenanuova to the Dittaino River and had put Italian survivors of two field divisions which escaped the American encirclement of Western Sicily to digging trenches and preparing road blocks.

The same report, however, said that "political developments do not appear yet to have interfered with the German habit of sandwiching Italians in at the firing line."

It is believed that only a small number of Italians actually continued as combat troops.

Airfield North of Naples Bombed.

The Canadians, driving northeast through difficult country, were meeting strong opposition and engaged in bitter fighting, today's communique declared.

More prisoners have been taken, it added, without specifying the number.

The British at the outskirts of Catania sent patrols exploring the German line, but there was no sign when Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery might launch a powerful new offensive.

American pressure along the north coast obviously was mounting against newly established German positions.

Flying Fortresses again spearheaded the steady Allied air offensive against Southeastern Italy and Sicily, bombing Capua Airfield north of Naples for the first time and destroying three of 15 to 20 enemy interceptors.

Air Base on Toe of Italy Hit.

Scalea Airfield on the toe of Italy was smashed by American Mitchells and Marauders escorted by Lightnings.

Oft-bombed Capodichino Airdrome near Naples sprouted huge fires the preceding night when RAF Wellingtons delivered a heavy attack. Returning airmen saw explosions 20 miles from the target.

RAF Liberators and Halifaxes from the Middle East pounded the airfield at Reggio Calabria on the toe of the Italian boot Monday night and Tuesday morning in another blow to knock out Axis air power. Beaufighters also struck at Axis shipping in the Aegean Sea. Both operations were completed without loss to Allied planes.

Both RAF and Canadian Wellingtons bludgeoned Monte Corvina Ravella Airdrome in Southern Italy by night, setting buildings afire.

New targets in the railroad yards at Lioni and Calitri were added to the Fortresses' record of superlative destruction. It was over Lioni that 15 to 20 enemy fighters attacked. Two Messerchmitts and one Focke Wulf were shot down.

80 Per Cent of Field Covered.

Mitchell and Marauder crewmen said their bomb patterns covered 80 per cent of the field at Scalea, starting fires and subsequent explosions, and photographs indicated at least 20 grounded aircraft were destroyed. No enemy fighters or anti-aircraft fire were encountered.

With the German defenders of the Messina bridgehead strongly entrenched on the northeastern mountain line, Allied warplanes continued to support ground forces with scourging attacks on front and rear enemy bases.

RAF Bostons and Baltimores made nine separate attacks on Milazzo, 20 miles west of Messina, through which the Germans still are getting reinforcements from the mainland. Bomb bursts covered railyards, docks, installations, waterfront buildings and quays. The RAF formations suffered no loss, and only two enemy aircraft were sighted during these operations.

Center of Nazi Line Blasted.

Agira in the center of the Etna line was attacked by R. A. F. Bostons which started fires and demolished buildings.

American invader fighter-bombers went on a rampage over enemy lines, attacking road vehicles at Fratello, barges and rail sidings at Milazzo, buildings at Francavilla, a bridge north of Fockalumera, and then ranged over the Messina Strait to destroy an ammunition barge at Reggio Calabria on the mainland side.

Although supreme over Sicily, the Allied airforce was not furnishing the kind of front-line barrage which it gave in the historic breakthrough from the Medjerda Valley to Tunis. They still are concentrating on communications and supply lines of the enemy instead of field batteries and troop concentrations. It was believed that an effective air battering comparable to the Tunisian campaign would be forthcoming once all Allied ground forces were in position for a concerted drive to Messina.

Terrain Favors Americans.

The Terrain favored the hopes of the Americans that theirs would be the decisive push of the Sicilian campaign. The eastern flank of the Etna line based on the rugged slopes of the volcano itself has stopped the British Eighth Army veterans for thirteen days. There is a wider stretch of coastal shelf in the north facing the Americans. The northern range of mountains also is much lower than 10,000-foot Mount Etna, and its ridges are susceptible to a variety of outflanking maneuvers.

More than ever, time is a vital factor. Given any breathing spell such as they gained around Catania, the Germans are sure to turn the northern coast into a maze of mine fields. Experience in Tunisia proved that minefields adequately backed up by artillery are one of the most potent weapons of defense in this war. Just such a defense as this is holding up the British in Catania.

The enemy has a quicker and shorter supply route from southern Italy than does Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr., who is forced to bring up supplies for his advance guard along the shores of the Tyrrhenian Sea from dumps established on the opposite side of the island where the Americans first landed.

Nazis Join in Small Attacks.

The Germans were reported continuing small counter-attacks trying like an agile prizefighter to keep a heavier and stronger foe off balance.

[The German radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said that Nazi troops were consolidating their positions and "there is no possibility for Allied forces to outflank the German and Italian defense positions."]

Until a crucial breakthrough is made by the Allies, it is expected that the Nazi force estimated at 50,000 men or more would fight with traditional ferocity despite the crackup of the Italian morale.

But the Allies pack a knockout punch once they can strike a vital spot. Allied ground troops are superior numerically and better equipped. Besides air domination, Allied warships control almost all the coastal waters of the island. But the possibility increased that—despite popular hopes for a quick and complete victory—the fighting in Sicily would take on the character of a battle for position until enough key points are in Allied hands for a final smash to the Messina Strait.

Nazis Force Soviet Prisoners to Dig Defenses for Orel

Russians Continue Three-Way Advance On Strategic Base

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 28.—Retreating Germans are burning villages, impressing the inhabitants into labor gangs and forcing them to dig trenches and dugouts for the last desperate defense of Orel on the Central Russian front, Red Army dispatches declared today.

A Russian communique reported that Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge's army was continuing to fall back as the Soviets pressed in on three sides of the big Nazi base.

Savage battles were being fought on the sector northwest of Orel, where the Russian troops were cutting in toward the Bryansk railway. The exact locality was not identified in the Russian dispatches but it was believed to be in the vicinity of the Orel-Bryansk railway which the Russians have had under artillery fire since the capture of Studenkovo. The town is five miles from the railway which is the only avenue of escape for German forces facing encirclement in Orel.

Resistance Stubborn.

It was believed that the Red Army artillery barrage has seriously hampered, if not halted traffic on the railway but there is no indication from the Russian reports that the line has yet been cut.

Resistance was stubborn, the Russians said, declaring they had switched to flank attacks and encirclement moves when unable to penetrate German defenses in frontal assault.

The midnight communique reported the capture of 50 more villages as the Soviet line advanced from two to four miles closer to the encirclement and capture of Orel.

The outflanking tactics were working well, the Russians said. One unidentified railroad station was reported seized by encirclement when terrific land and air resistance halted the Russian frontal attack. The Russians feinted a frontal attack and sent the main forces around the flanks and to the rear. The threatened Germans retired to escape capture, the Russians said.

400 Germans Killed.

The Red Army war machine captured an important hill and several villages on the drive north of the city toward the Bryansk railway, the communique said, killing about 400 Germans and smashing 14 tanks and 4 armored cars.

East of Orel the Germans launched several counterattacks which were beaten off, the Germans leaving 800 dead and 18 tanks and 6 self-propelling guns on the field, the war bulletin added.

The Nazis were reported striving to hold an intermediate line south of Orel to bar the way to the right flank of the Russian pincer movement, but were giving ground under Red Army pressure.

On the Belgorod front, at the foot of the Kursk bulge 165 miles from Orel, action was limited to what the communique described as "active reconnaissance operations." In one sector Russians stormed a trench, killing 80 Germans and taking prisoners and war material.

Nazis Counterattack.

The war bulletin said that Germans had counterattacked Russian positions in the area southwest of Voroshilovgrad but that all were repelled by the Red Army with heavy losses to the Nazis in men and equipment.

South of Izyum in the Donets basin Soviet gunners smashed 40 German firing positions, two six-barreled mortars and searchlight installations. Other action was limited to scouting activity, the Russians said.

On the Leningrad front Russian troops fought engagements of local importance in the area north and east of Mga, the communique declared.

It added that in the day's fighting Russian troops destroyed 90 tanks and 44 German planes.

A Tass dispatch said that rains had greatly hampered offensive operations in the past few days, but that the Red Army had "overcome all difficulties."

German defenses outside Orel were acknowledged to be extremely formidable, extending to a depth of three or four miles and crisscrossed with anti-tank ditches, barbed wire and trenches, the latter connected by a maze of underground corridors.

Nazi Communique.

Today's German communique reported that the Russians continued to attack "with undiminished violence" in the Orel area, but said all yesterday's thrusts were thrown back with heavy losses. Elsewhere, it said, the Soviet attack decreased in strength.

RUSSIANS BATTER GERMAN RESERVES TO GAIN ON OREL

Reds, Pressing on for 17th day, Advance Four Miles, Take Railway Town.

1,000 NAZIS KILLED

Enemy Weakening as Soviet Bombers Raid Transport, Moscow Claims.

LONDON, Thursday, July 29. —(AP) More than 2,500 Germans fell before the slugging Russian army advancing toward Orel today despite frantic German attempts to plug the crescent-shaped front with tired reserves and hastily shifted armored divisions.

The Russians announced gains of two-and-a-half to four miles and the capture of over 30 populated places —including the railway station of Stanovoy Kolodets, 11 miles southeast of Orel, the nerve center of German resistance.

The Soviet midnight communique recorded by the Soviet monitor indicated new signs of German weakening under the 17th day of steady Russian attack. Reserves were pushed directly into the fighting north of Orel the moment they arrived at the front but the Nazis were dislodged from a number of populated places in this area. The Russians were last reported at Optukha, nine miles from Orel.

A tank regiment was transferred to east of Orel by the Germans in an attempt to counter-attack. The Russians absorbed the blow, then pursued the weakened enemy to a strongly fortified resistance center —which now is Russian.

Over 1,000 Germans were killed, 11 tanks destroyed and five guns wrecked in this battle while two artillery pieces and over a hundred machine guns and other material were taken, incomplete reports said. East of Orel the Russians were last reported at Zolatarevo, 13 miles away.

Three counter-attacks were beaten back by the advancing Russians south of Orel and the battlefield was littered with 1,500 German dead as Russians moved in.

Bomb Rail Junctions

Soviet night bombers aided the land advance as they raided rail junctions at Orel and Bryansk through which Nazi men and supplies for the embattled front were moving. Military trains were hit and enemy airdromes holding large concentrations of German aircraft were attacked, the Moscow radio said.

A Berlin broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, admitted the Soviets were "greatly superior" to the German defenders in men and material but said the Russians were unable to pierce German positions either at Orel or east of Leningrad. It said 164 Russian tanks were destroyed Tuesday.

The Soviet communique merely recorded artillery duels southeast of Leningrad. An earlier special communique said there were "intensive reconnaissance activities" in the area.

Reconnaissance activities only were reported in the Belgorod, Donets basin and Krasnodar areas.

Claim 32 German Tanks

Yesterday, said the communique, the Soviets accounted for 32 German tanks and 62 planes.

A German broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, finally announced the fall of Bolkhov, which the Russians said they captured last Thursday. Bolkhov is 31 miles north of Orel. The Germans said they evacuated it as part of their "elastically conducted defense fighting."

But the Germans were fighting grimly and the Russians admitted the going was hard.

"Every inch of land won is the result of hard work and stubborn battles," a dispatch in Komsomolskaya Pravda, Soviet youth newspaper, said. Other dispatches said the retreating Germans were burning villages, and conscripting Russian civilians into labor gangs to dig trenches.

"Heavy defensive fighting in the Orel sector continued," the German communique, recorded from the Berlin radio, said. "The enemy yesterday attacked with undiminished violence. All enemy attacks collapsed with high losses inflicted."

The Germans said that Russians attacks diminished in other active sectors and that Nazi arms had frustrated Soviet drives at the Kuban bridgehead, protecting the Caucasus port of Novorossisk, on the Mius river before Taganrog, in the Donets Basin, and south of Lake Ladoga outside Leningrad. The Russians officially described these actions as local.

Commons Members Use Fists

Capt. Cunningham-Reid and Accuser Fight It Out in Corridor After Words in House.

London, July 28 (A. P.).—A sizzling feud between two members of the House of Commons, Capt. Alec Cunningham-Reid and Oliver Locker-Lampson, came to a climax with fisticuffs in the corridor near the entrance to the House of Lords today.

The incident followed a verbal exchange in Commons centering around questions put by Mr. Locker-Lampson, who once called Capt. Cunningham-Reid "cad."

Capt. Cunningham-Reid asked Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in the Commons the nature of the disability that Prince Paul of Yugoslavia was suffering which necessitated the Prince's removal from Kenya to South Africa but before Mr. Eden could answer, Mr. Locker-Lampson put in:

"What medical disability was Capt. Cunningham-Reid suffering when he left England in the blitz?"

Capt. Cunningham-Reid retorted that Mr. Locker-Lampson reminded him of the cukoo which "makes a nuisance of itself in other people's nests."

Capt. Cunningham-Reid on another occasion had been charged by Minister of Information Brendan Bracken of beachcombing in Honululu during the battle of Britain.

Capt. Cunningham-Reid last April replied in Commons to Mr. Bracken's charge, asserting he had gone to Hawaii during the heavy air attacks upon Britain to arrange with Mrs. Doris Duke Cromwell for evacuation of 500 children to the United States.

Explaining the fistcuffs, Capt. Cunningham-Reid said that he drew Mr. Locker-Lampson aside after the session and asked if he were going "to continue making these personal attacks upon me." An argument followed.

When he called Mr. Locker-Lampson "a nasty old man," the latter demanded: "Take it back, or I'll hit you."

"Well, hit me," Capt. Cunningham-Reid said he replied.

Then the bruised captain gave this play-by-play account:

"He (Mr. Locker-Lampson) ran at me whirling his arms around his head and struck me in the chest. I retaliated by hitting him on the head. He went down on his knees. I helped him up and by that time other members had gotten between us."

Mr. Locker-Lampson, former weight lifting champion of Eton, had a lump on his head. He is 63 years old, Capt. Cunningham-Reid is 47.

weight-lifting champion at Eton, came out of it with a lump on his head. His younger opponent was described as "bruised." Only a few members saw the encounter, and they voted it a draw.

The difficulty arose when Cunningham-Reid asked Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden the nature of the disability Prince Paul of Yugoslavia was suffering which necessitated the Prince's removal from Kenya to South Africa.

Locker-Thompson broke in to inquire "what medical disability was Captain Cunningham-Reid suffering when he left England in the blitz?"

This referred to a trip Cunningham-Reid made to Hawaii during the heavy air attacks on Britain. He explained in Commons last April that he had gone to Hawaii to arrange with Mrs. Doris Duke Cromwell for the evacuation of 500 British children to the United States.

Angered at Locker-Lampson's question today, the captain commented that his detractor reminded him of the cuckoo, which "makes a nuisance of itself in other people's nests."

When Commons adjourned, Cunningham-Reid said he drew Locker-Lampson aside and asked if he was going "to continue making these personal attacks on me." Then, it seems, he called Locker-Lampson a "nasty old man," and in no time they were swinging lustily.

Cunningham-Reid said he scored a knockdown, but there was no official count.

thing through," Eden said.

"When at long last the immediate miiltary tasks are ended . . . we in the British Commonwealth will wish to work with China as equal partners in the work of reconstruction."

Hopes For Better Land Link

Soong replied that he hoped that favorable developments in the Mediterranean would permit an opportunity to reopen land communications with China "thus bringing effective material aid which will enable us to launch our massive counter-attack in the seventh year of our war with Japan."

"It is but natural," he said, "for us to feel that time is of the essence and that the destruction of the enemy in Asia should be encompassed in the shortest time."

Britain Not Informed Of Moscow German Group

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 28.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons in response to a question today that the British government was not informed in advance of the establishment of the "Free German Committee" in Moscow, disclosed in Russian dispatches last week.

Mr. Eden drew cheers when he added that the government did "not propose to recognize any similar committee in this country."

(Moscow had announced that a committee of German war prisoners and refuges had been formed in Russia to work in cooperation with the Allies for overthrow of the Nazi regime.)

Return Of Possessions To Italy Not In Prospect

London, July 28 (AP)—Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, made it clear today that the Allies would not return to Italy all her North African possessions in event of her "honorable capitulation."

The Foreign Secretary answered "No sir," when asked in the House of Commons by the Liberal member, Thomas Magnay, concerning this possibility.

The question was not raised whether Italy might expect to get back some of her former holdings.

BRITISH BATTLE ENEMY BOATS OFF CHERBOURG

LONDON, July 28.—(AP) Light British naval forces fought a close-range battle with a dozen enemy armed trawlers and motor torpedo boats off Cherbourg, France, early yesterday and left two German ships blazing, an Admiralty communique reported today.

One British warship was hit seriously, but was taken in tow and with the aid of a smoke screen successfully taken to port, the communique said. Enemy shore batteries also participated in the brief engagement, but without effect.

The communique said that the fight was at "close range and at high speed," and that the British vessels suffered some casualties and damage.

merchantmen and damaged three in an attack on a convoy in the Atlantic. Other German broadcasts said this action was off Portugal.

German patrol boats engaged British motor-torpedo boats off the Dutch coast and sank one and damaged one.

A Berlin broadcast said U-boat sinkings in July now totaled 336,000 tons, or more than three times the total the Germans reported for June.

U. S. Snipers Reported In Philippine Clash

London, July 28 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio quoted advices from Manila today as saying that Jap troops had clashed with American snipers hiding in the Luzon jungles and that the American leader had been killed in the fighting. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

GERMAN GENERAL SHIFTED

Moscow Corrects Story of Trial of Gen. Christiansen

LONDON, July 28 (AP) — DNB, German news agency, reported today that Gen. Friedrich Christiansen, commander of German military forces in the Netherlands, had been relieved of the command of air forces in that area to concentrate on his military duties.

The DNB broadcast said that the change had been made at the suggestion of Reichmarshal Hermann Goering and that General Christiansen would be replaced by Colonel General Keller, at present commander of an air fleet.

overthrow the Nazi regime or incite civil war, now consists of eight divisions with front-line experience, three special divisions and enough men in training or assigned to various tasks to bring the total personnel up to 500,000 men, German sources here estimate.

This does not include the thousands of men active in the secret police or Gestapo, the safety service and various other police and administrative bodies under Himmler's jurisdiction.

The fighting divisions of the SS organization actually comprise only a small part of the huge network of policing, fighting, spying and terror which Himmler has created.

Fuehrer's Own Troops

Hitler himself has called his SS army an "army in itself." Although SS units are under the direction of the regular army command when on duty at the front, there is a separate SS high command headed by Obergruppenfuehrer Hans Juettner.

Most of the officers of the SS have been inside the halls where the officers of the regular army receive their precise training and indoctrination in German military tradition.

The German language newspaper Die Zeitung published in London recently described them as follows:

"These officers are not charged or burdened with any tradition. They have been taken out of the hopelessness of unemployment and placed before the footlights of world history by the SS of Hitler and Himmler.

"They will never forget this and,

Holland as parachutists in May, 1940. In addition to these and four motorized divisions, all of which have seen service, there is the Fuehrer's guard battalion outfitted with the most modern tanks and equipment.

Certain formations of the regular army also have been given a special status with the SS and presumably may be counted on to operate with the SS in a crisis. Such formations include the armored grenadier division and the Hermann Goering armored grenadier division, both specially outfitted. Recently the Feldherrnhalle division has been added to this group. This formation, formerly called the 60th Motorized division, was destroyed at Stalingrad but is now being reestablished.

The SS formations are being constantly enlarged and strengthened and Himmler is reported to have assured himself of the first selection of recruits from the ranks of the Hitler youth — recruits which normally would go into the ranks of the regular army.

A few recruits for the SS divisions also come from the occupied countries. The Viking division is said to be made up of Nazi sympathizers from Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark and Holland.

2 M. P.s Clash In a Fist Fight After Debate

Cunningham-Reid, 47, and Locker-Lampson, 63, in DisputeOverHawaii Trip

LONDON, July 28 (AP).—A fist fight between two members of the House of Commons vied with the war news for space on the front pages of London's newspapers today.

The principals — both Conservatives — were Captain Alec Cunningham-Reid, forty-seven years old, and Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson, sixty-three, and they went at it busily for several minutes in the corridor near the entrance to the House of Lords. It had been a long time since Parliamentary dignity had been so upset.

U. S. First With 38 News Men in Africa

London, July 28 (A. P.).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden disclosed today that the number of American newspaper correspondents covering the North African campaign exceeds that from any other of the Allied countries.

Asked if it was true that all except fifteen of the ninety-three correspondents in North Africa were Americans, he said that this was inaccurate and gave the following figures, which do not include British Empire correspondents: American news agencies, twenty; American newspapers, eighteen; British newspapers, eighteen; British news agencies, twelve.

Eden Parries Query on Nazis

LONDON, July 28 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said in the House of Commons today that he could not answer any question from Sir Leonard Lyle, M. P., as to whether "any German generals or others who are guilty, or who it is suggested might be guilty, of mass murders" are in British custody.

Nazis Say They Sank 11 Ships, Damaged 11

U-Boat Claims for July Are 3 Times Those for June

LONDON, July 28 (AP).—The German high command asserted in its communique today that eleven Allied ships and boats had been sunk and eleven others, including a light cruiser, had been damaged in various air and sea actions. The claims, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, were without Allied confirmation.

The actions were listed as follows

U-boats sank eight ships totaling 44,241 tons and damaged six freighters and a light cruiser in the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Hitler's 'Personal' Army Numbers 500,000 Troops

LONDON — (AP) In the blustering days before Sept. 1, 1939, Germans were fond of speaking of "Der Tag"—the day when Adolf Hitler's armies would fall upon his enemies and bring Nazi culture, prosperity and "the new order" to a misunderstanding world. Things have changed.

"Der Tag" now means the day when the special Nazi army known as "Die Waffen-SS" will go into action to maintain Nazi order in a Germany, crumbling from the blows of the Allies and the collapse of the regular armed forces.

This army, conceived by Hitler and Heinrich Himmler as the vehicle for thwarting any attempt to

The SS now has four armored divisions and four motorized divisions. The armored divisions are the Death's Head division, the Reich division, the Viking division and the Adolf Hitler division, some of whose members descended on

Chaplain Predicts End Of War by Christmas

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 28.—The Stars and Stripes quoted Chaplain Maurice W. Reynolds of the United States 8th Air Force today as predicting that American soldiers in the European theater would be home by Christmas.

Attack on French Leader Reported by Paris Radio

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 28.—The German-controlled Paris radio reported yesterday that an unsuccessful attempt had been made at Casablanca on the life of Gabriel Puaux, resident general of French Morocco.

The assailants, who were unidentified, escaped after killing a policeman and wounding Mr. Puaux's chauffeur, said the broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press.

Ghost Invasion Barge Found

LONDON, July 28 (AP)—An invasion barge loaded with Lockheed interceptor planes, found bobbing around without a crew in the mid-Atlantic, provided the Royal Navy with a mystery today. The barge was superficially damaged on the nose and had apparently been struck by flying debris, but it was still seaworthy enough to be towed to the Belfast docks. Several empty lifeboats were found near the barge, the occupants having apparently been picked up.

GERMANS REPULSED IN NEW AIR TACTICS

A U. S. BOMBER BASE, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 28—(AP) German fighters tried Flying Fortress tactics today, attacking in formations of 25 planes in an effort to break up an assault by the U. S. Eighth Air Force on a target in Central Germany—but the effort was futile.

One plane was lost from this base force which led the raid and bore the first brunt of the N[illegible] defensive fleet, estimated at 150 to 200 planes, as well as a heavy anti-aircraft barrage.

"They started pumping up flak for three or four minutes before we even got there," said Lieut. Col. Delmar Wilson of Ephrata, Wash., who led the raid.

"It looked like there was so much flak you were bound to get hit, but we bored right in there and I think it was a good bombing job."

Photographs showed bombs bursting right on the target.

"It was a good job of navigation," he added. "We were only 30 seconds off the estimated time of arrival at the target."

Madrid, July 28 (AP)—The Spanish Cabinet last night authorized the release of 10,015 political prisoners as part of the campaign to cut down the nation's prison population. The prisoners will be released under certain conditions when their names are published in the official bulletin.

The previous Cabinet meeting in June authorized the release of 8,932 prisoners, of which 8,713 have already been named in the official bulletin.

The prisoners have been in jails, concentration camps and work camps since the end of the Spanish Civil War in April, 1939.

Catholic Movement Against Nazis Spurs Big Gestapo Drive

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, July 28.—Numerous arrests have been made by Gestapo agents, advices from Germany said today, in a drive to stamp out the activities of Catholic students reported to be working against the Nazis in university towns and cities of Southern Germany.

With the fortunes of war turning against Germany interest in churches generally was said to be growing and tension was reported especially strong among Catholics in Bavaria.

Circulation of numerous pamphlets attacking the Nazi regime, advices said, has been causing the Gestapo great difficulties in that area.

The Gestapo was reported especially vigilant in Munich, Stuttgart, Freiburg, Ulm, Cologne and Innsbruck where 50 to 60 persons were arrested and sent to the Dachau concentration camp or executed.

As far back as February demonstrations in Munich resulted in the execution of six young Catholic students at the university. All were said to have refused the Gestapo offer of mercy in return for naming additional leaders of the movement.

The work of military chaplains on the field of battle also apparently won the respect of the army, which prior to 1940 had been more or less indifferent.

The work of the clergy in ministering to homeless victims of Allied air raids may have been another factor in the growing trend. Community houses, cloisters and other religious buildings which were closed by Nazi order have been opened and turned into shelters for the homeless.

Michael Cardinal Faulhaber was said to have been given a public ovation in the streets of Munich after he protested futilely against the Nazi order removing crucifixes from the schools in Catholic Bavaria.

Germans Pour Into Italy.

[Stockholm, July 28 (A. Men On Plane Forced Down After Trondheim Raid Allowed To Shop In Town

[By the Associated Press]

Stockholm, July 28 — Crewmen of an American Flying Fortress who participated in the bombing of Trondheim, Norway, last Saturday and then made a forced landing in Sweden are settling down to an easy life of internment at Falun.

They are living in a camp with thirty-four Poles behind barbed wire, but have full freedom to come and go, and now are spending much time in Falun shopping for civilian clothes and other necessities.

Britons Provide Soap

The crew of an RAF Lancaster interned since April helped the Americans out with soap, towels and razors the first few days.

The Fortress pilot, an officer named Jones (no other identification given) was quoted as saying he thought the Fortresses scored "excellent results" in smashing military objectives at Trondheim.

Reports reaching Stroemstad on the Norwegian frontier said the Germans had started evacuating the civilian population of Trondheim. There was no confirmation.

Motor Knocked Out

Anti-aircraft fire over Trondheim knocked out one of Jones' motors, and then a second failed, and the plane did not have enough fuel to return to base. The pilot just did make Sweden and did a "fine job" of a belly landing.

Even English-speaking Swedes in Falun are having trouble understanding the Americans' lingo—especially three Southerners.

AMERICAN PLANES BOMBARD HANKOW

WIANT

At United States 14th Air Force Headquarters in China, July 26 (Delayed) (A. P.).—United States medium bombers and fighters raided Hankow today, destroying many enemy installations and shooting down thirteen Japanese fighters in retaliation for Japanese attacks on advanced American bases in the last three days.

The toll increased to forty-four the number of enemy aircraft destroyed since the Japanese raids began July 23—the first enemy offensive action since May 17—compared with losses of two American planes.

The Japanese lost thirteen planes Friday, fourteen on Saturday, four on Sunday and thirteen again today.

All the American planes and crews returned without mishap today.

Allied Raid on Hong Kong Blocked by Flak, Japs Say

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 28.—The Tokio radio in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said today that an attempt by six Allied planes to raid Hong Kong yesterday was blocked by the city's antiaircraft defenses. Heavy flak, the radio reported, caused the planes to jettison their bombs in the water.

A later broadcast from Berlin, relaying Tokio dispatches, said about 20 American bombers also raided Hankow Sunday, the attack resulting in air battles over Hengyang in Hunan Province in which four American machines were shot down.

The imperial high command in a Tokio broadcast asserted that a United States cruiser of the San Francisco class was sunk by Japanese submarines off San Cristobal Island in the Southwest Pacific on July 20.

American Units Drive Within 200 Yards of Munda Base

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 28.—Jungle-wise American fighting men are squeezing the Japanese at Munda, New Georgia, into an ever-shrinking finger of land. SPENCER

New progress in the bitter campaign against the vitally strategic central Solomons airbase was reported in today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters. The announcement did not give the extent of the advance, but a spokesman said it was "considerable" along the entire line of battle.

The drive through strong enemy defenses east of Munda carried the Americans past the coastal village of Tetere to within 2,100 yards—less than 1⅛ miles—of the airdrome. Strong pressure was exerted against enemy "centers of resistance"—probably dugouts so placed their machine guns could meet assaults with strong crossfire.

During the first few days of the general offensive launched in the Southwest Pacific June 30, the Americans moved swiftly on Munda, located on a tapering point of land on western New Georgia. As the Japanese were compressed within their long-prepared defenses, however, resistance stiffened and for nearly three weeks positions remained virtually unchanged. Then yesterday Gen. MacArthur announced an advance of 500 yards and today another forward thrust.

Avenger and Dauntless bombers again supported the troops, plastering 35 tons of bombs against enemy positions. The bombers, which were escorted by a strong cover of fighters, reported many hits on Japanese gun emplacements despite intense antiaircraft fire.

Meanwhile on New Guinea Allied bombers heavily pounded the Salamaua area and Lae and ground patrols northeast of Mount Tambu, near Salamaua, engaged the enemy in sharp skirmishes.

There were no details on the ground fighting but a spokesman said Mitchell and Liberator bombers in the largest force ever sent against Salamaua carried 123 tons of bombs to that enemy stronghold. The bombers swept over the target area in waves four minutes apart. Pilots said their bombs caused heavy explosions and towering fires. Direct hits were scored on gun positions, a bridge, barracks and the wireless station.

Japanese night fighters shot down one of a formation of Flying Fortresses which made a predawn raid on Kahili airdrome on Bougainville Island. It was the first reported loss of one of our bombers to night fighters in the Southwest Pacific.

The Japanese harmlessly bombed Allied positions on Woodlark Island and near Nassau Bay.

JAP WARSHIP SUNK BY ALLIED BOMBS

Enemy Shipping Raided Off New Britain, New Guinea. Munda Hit Again

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Thursday, July 29—Another Japanese warship and at least one transport or cargo vessel have fallen victim to Allied bombers in the Southwest Pacific.

The destroyer and transport were sighted by a reconnaissance plane off Cape Gloucester, New Britain. Four-engined bombers were sent to the attack and direct hits were scored on both ships despite a protecting cover of Japanese fighters.

30.24-6653

Both Ships Left Burning

"Both ships were left burning fiercely," a communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said.

Damaging near misses were scored on another cargo ship, a 2,500-ton vessel, anchored near the enemy base at Manokwari, Dutch New Guinea.

Another heavy attack was delivered by torpedo and dive bombers against the Munda (New Georgia) airbase. Forty-seven tons of explosives were dropped on enemy positions in and near the airdrome. There were no reports on the progress of American jungle fighters, who are closing in on the strategic central Solomons positions.

Aerial And Surface Activity

Today's communique was limited to accounts of aerial action and some light surface activity as the Americans and Australians pressed their attacks designed to blockade Japanese garrisons from supply points farther north.

The aerial blows went forward despite Japanese attempts to block them and in one brief battle over Rein Bay, on the north coast of New Britain, nine Lightnings tangled with fifteen Zeros and shot down six and probably destroyed two more. No Allied losses were reported.

The fight occurred during a raid by our medium bombers on a barge base near Rein Bay. Seven barges and two launches were destroyed and violent explosions followed hits on inland fuel dumps.

Nine Jap Barges Destroyed

At least nine Japanese barges were destroyed by our aircraft and light surface units. Seven were destroyed and three others damaged by medium bombers in sweeps along the coast of New Guinea; four were intercepted by surface units off Kolombangara Island in the Solomons and two were sunk.

The oilfield port of Boela, on Dutch New Guinea, was bombed by heavy bombers and hits were scored on oil storage tanks, supply dumps and on the airdrome, causing seven fires.

Other bombers from General MacArthur's command attacked the airdromes at Lautem and Cape Chater on Timor; drove through adverse weather to bomb enemy installations on Larat Island in the Tanimbar group 300 miles north of Darwin; and bombed installations on Unea Island north of New Britain.

A Japanese transport aircraft was destroyed on the ground at Cape Gloucester.

WAKE AND KISKA BATTERED AGAIN

Washington, July 28 (A. P.).—Air forces of the Pacific Command striking Jap defenses with unprecedented fury, made nineteen attacks on Kiska Island in the North Pacific Monday and Tuesday, the Navy reported today, and again raided Wake Island in the central Pacific.

The nineteen raids in two days announced in a Navy communique raised to forty the number of attacks which bombers and fighter-bombers have made on embattled Kiska in a four day period. The island has been raided sixty times this month as airmen blasted the way for expected conquest of the enemy stronghold by American amphibious forces.

The raid on Wake Island was intercepted by twenty-five Zero fighters but the Army heavy Liberator bombers destroyed seven of the Jap planes, probably destroyed five and damaged three others.

Four days earlier a Liberator flight had destroyed nine Zeros, probably destroyed four and damaged five out of thirty which sought to prevent a raid.

Never before had American bombs fallen on Wake Island in raids so close together. Prior to the attack last Saturday American bombers had not made the 2,400 miles round trip from Midway to Wake since May 15.

19 More Raids Made On Kiska; Wake Bombed

Washington, July 18 (AP)—A punishing series of nineteen air raids against Kiska and a new aerial blow at Wake Island indicated today that the American high command is broadening the offensive against Japan to throw pressure on the whole of her 3,000-mile island defense line.

Delivering the nineteen attacks against Kiska in the Aleutians on Monday and Tuesday, the American flyers scored hits on the Japanese airfield and submarine base and started fires elsewhere, a navy communique revealed. Far away in the central Pacific American bombers scored hits on Wake Island targets. Intercepted by twenty-five Zero fighters, the bombers destroyed seven, probably destroyed five and damaged three.

Raids Obviously Coordinated

These raids obviously were coordinated with the campaign being waged at the southern end of the Japanese defense line by the combined forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Admiral William F. Halsey in the Solomon Island and New Guinea areas.

Kiska Raids Increased As July Fogs Lift

An Advanced Aleutians Base, July 27 (Delayed, A. P.)—A break in the usual July fogs has enabled United States Army and Navy forces in the last several days to give the Japanese on Kiska the hardest aerial and artillery pounding since the enemy occupied the bleak island thirteen months ago.

Last week the sunny weather made possible the heaviest naval bombardments yet seen in the Aleutian war theater. Various heavy fleet units steamed past Kiska just out of range of the island's comparatively small coastal guns, but within easy range of the ship's artillery.

Sunshine also permitted the series of aid raids which reached a climax with ten Saturday, some at low level.

[A uavy communique Wednesday reported thirteen raids on the enemy-held island Monday.]

These raids were mostly by army aircraft, although naval aircraft also took park. A navy flying boat made the first night attack of the entire campaign.

This ship, piloted by Lieut. Charles Hidge Holt, of Forest Beach, Sault St. Marie, Mich., made three runs over the Kiska camp at intervals of about an hour. This schedule gave the Japanese time to come out of their holes between runs. The naval plane carried medium and light bombs, along with incendiaries and anti-personnel missiles.

Swan Song For Seals

By Wi...
ANCHOR...

For the seals on St. George and St. Paul, the peace is over and war has begun again. Peace was nice while it lasted for a full year, but this season the seals' losses will be higher than ever.

The seals on these two Pribilof Islands had reason last year to be thankful to the Axis and especially to Japan. For the war begun by the Japanese gave the seals their first respite in a private war which has been going on for nearly a century and more than once has threatened the existence of the entire herd.

Temporary Breather

But this respite was temporary. This year, the natives who have waged annual war on certain of the seals under United States government direction since 1915 are again on the Pribilofs, slaughtering the young males. The government plan is to harvest more fine fur seal pelts than have been taken in 28 years. The value of these pelts is estimated at between $125,000 and $150,000, compared to $90,000 realized from pelts in the 1941 harvest. No pelts were taken last year.

Crew Battles

Battles between Japanese, Russian and American sealing ship crews were common after Alaska was sold to the United States and Jap sovereignty was established over the Kurile islands. The fur hunters began centering their activities on the Pribilof herds, which took a terrible beating.

From nearly 2,000,000 the herd declined to 125,000, and was saved from extinction finally by a sealing treaty signed in 1915 by the three nations, which outlawed pelagic sealing entirely.

The beginning of World War II for the United States meant the end of everybody's plans in connection with the Pribilof seals.

After Dutch Harbor, even the Aleuts on the Pribilof Islands were removed as a precaution against a possible Japanese attempt to take those rocky vantage points just outside Bristol Bay.

So, last summer, there was no sealing season. The year-old bull seals, from whose number the pelts are taken under the controlled killing plan, went scot-free for a full year—a generation in seal society.

South Africa Election Seen Heavily Pro-War

Pretoria, South Africa, July 28 (AP)—The first results of South Africa's election held July 7 indicated today that South Africa had overwhelmingly supported the war and the Prime Minister, Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts.

Returns have been delayed because of the necessity of recording the votes of South Africa's soldiers now on the battlefields. Voting had been heavy.

Of fifty-six seats decided by tonight's count, Smut's pro-war coalition government won fifty-four. The anti-war opposition, led by Dr. D. F. Malan, Nationalist Party leader, had only two.

Argentina Seizes French Ships in Harbor

Buenos Aires, July 28 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Segundo Storni announced today that the Argentine government had seized three French ships, the Formose, Compana and Kadiola, which had been immobilized in the port of Buenos Aires since the fall of France. He said the seizure took place without prior announcement in order to avoid the possibility of sabotage.

He added that an attempt would be made to negotiate with Vichy authorities for purchase of the vessels with the view of incorporating them in the State merchant fleet.

Mexican Youths Urged To Further Democracy

Mexico City, July 28 (A. P.).—The youth of today must carry out the ideals of democracy neglected by the pre-war world, President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico said last night in a radio broadcast opening a Western Hemisphere "youth for victory" congress. There must be two objectives—organization of democracy and utilization of resources—before the youth of the world, the President said.

"In our own hemisphere," he said, "what an enormous difference there is between what we are and what we could be. We must have a more just tomorrow, and more generous progress."

U. S. Gold Buys 3 Chilean Ships

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 28 (AP)—The Senate approved today the sale of the Chilean motorships Imperial, Copiapo and Aconcagua to the United States for gold bars. The bullion will be deposited in the Central Bank until the end of the war, when other motorships will be bought for Chile.

GENERAL MILES PRAISES RESERVES IN CANADA

QUEBEC, July 28 — (AP) Major-General Sherman Miles, commanding the American First division in the New England states, said today the training of Canada's reserve army was "somewhat ahead of that in the United States."

He pointed out at a press conference that in Canada the reserve was supported federally, while in the United States each state supported its reserve.

"A more thorough training is given the men and more material is at their disposal than in the United States," he said. "Your (Canada's) reserve army system is totally different to ours and I have found it most interesting."

RATIONING OF COFFEE TO END TODAY

JUL 29 1943

Roosevelt Says Increase In Sugar Allotments Is Probable

Attributes Moves To Gain In Shipping Space, U-Boat War

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 28—President Roosevelt announced tonight the end of coffee rationing for civilians and a probable increase in sugar allotments. He attributed the moves to a vast increase in available shipping space and greater success in the war against U-boats.

"One tangible result of our great increase in merchant shipping—which will be good news to civilians at home—is that tonight we are able to terminate the rationing of coffee," he said in his broadcast report to the nation. "We also expect that within a short time we shall get greatly increased allowances of sugar."

Must Not Lower Guard

He warned that while we have been losing fewer ships and destroying more U-boats for several months "we must not lower our guard for a single instant."

The suspension of coffee rationing will take effect tomorrow, it was announced later by the War Food Administration and the Office of Price Administration. In a joint statement they declared "the nation's stocks of green coffee are at a satisfactory level."

The two agencies declared that the action marked "the first time that a major food commodity could be released from rationing," and said that it "illustrates the policy of adjusting the rationing program whenever circumstances permit."

Continued Improvement

Purchases and sale of coffee, the two agencies said, may be made at all trade and consumer levels without the surrender or collection of coffee ration stamps or other ration currency, and banks will no longer accept coffee ration currency.

They reported that "continued improvement in the supply situation has made it safe to suspend rationing (of coffee) at this time.

"In approximately seven months after coffee rationing started," the statement said, "at a time when supplies were so critically low that establishment of rationing was difficult, the supply of green coffee in the hands of roasters has been restored to satisfactory levels. This improvement has been accelerated recently because of improved shipping conditions."

Consolation To Motorists

To another sector of the home front—the gasoline-rationed motorist—the President in his broadcast offered the consolation that they were helping bomb the Axis.

He said that every trip of a Flying Fortress from North Africa to bomb Naples required 1,100 gallons of fuel, "the equal of about 375 "A" ration tickets—enough gas to drive your car five times across this continent."

"You will better understand your part in the war—and what gasoline rationing means—if you multiply this by the gasoline needs of thousands of planes and hundreds of thousands of jeeps, trucks and tanks now serving overseas," he said.

ARCHBISHOP SPELLMAN ON WAY BACK TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(AP) The State department said today that Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York, who has been abroad for several months, was enroute back to the United States today, without intending to visit the Vatican on the way.

Asked about reports that the archbishop was proceeding to the Vatican, the department told correspondents of its information that he had left South Africa directly for the United States.

As chief of the Catholic chaplains with the American armed services, Archbishop Spellman has been touring United States military establishments overseas. He visited Pope Pius XII at the Vatican at the start of his tour.

NOBODY LIKES 'AMGOT'

WASHINGTON, July 28 — (AP) AMGOT as a brief and handy word for Allied Military Government of Occupied Territories has gotten general acceptance and considerable attention although nobody likes it very much.

The phrase and the abbreviation were coined at Allied headquarters in North Africa and AMGOT was in general use there—in cables and radio messages and as markings on freight—before it came to the attention of officials in Washington.

They say they didn't like it—it seemed to have Gestapo and OGPU connotations. Suggestions went to North Africa that it might be a good idea to drop it. The reply came back that it probably was a good idea but the thing had gone too far to be dropped that easily.

Additional Casualties Reported by the Navy

WASHINGTON, July 28 (AP).—The Navy announced today twenty-two casualties, including eight dead, twelve wounded and two missing. In addition, twenty-five men previously reported prisoners were listed as dead, and three previously reported missing were listed as dead.

This brings to 27,434 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,718 dead, 4,790 wounded, 10,152 missing and 3,774 prisoners of war.

The casualties announced today include:

NEW YORK

Dead

BERGMANN, DAVE; sister, Muriel Bergmann Munter, 1917 Avenue O, Brooklyn.
BURROUGHS, WALTER JOHN; mother, Mrs. Nettie Burroughs, Corfu.
SCHANTZ, LLOYD HOUGHTON; reported prisoner, May 14, 1943; mother, Mrs. Jesse D. Schantz, Lowville.

Wounded

AAMAN, EMANUEL BEN; notified, Rose Karp, 185 New Lots Avenue, Brooklyn.

NEW JERSEY

Dead

BRAZILIAN, MILTON WILBERT; father, Wilbert Francis Brazilian, 612 South Broad Street, Elizabeth.
LLOYD, EDWARD JAMES; reported prisoner, April 15, 1943; father, John A. Lloyd, 29 Clinton Avenue, Plainfield.

Wounded

BENNETT, FRANK SAPP; wife, Mrs. Edith Raby Bennett, Rahway.
YORIO, SALVATORE EDWARD; father, Ralph Yorio, 86 West Fifth Street, Bayonne.

Devises New World Alphabet

JUL 29 1943

Ex-Senator Owen of Oklahoma Claims System Will Remove Language Barriers.

Washington, July 28 (A. P.).—Using forty-one novel symbols and holding sixteen others in reserve, former United States Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma has developed a global alphabet he thinks capable of breaking down language barriers.

"Through it I can teach any reasonably intelligent man Chinese in two months," he said. "It is a means by which we can teach the English language to all the world at high speed and negligible cost. It will pay its own way."

Although at first glance Mr. Owen's alphabet resembles some shorthand systems, he said it is entirely different. His is based on eighteen vowel sounds, eighteen consonants and five double consonants—"ch," "sh," "th," "ng" and "wh." The forty-one regular letters are little hooks and wiggles and slashes and curves.

In case it develops that some tongue contains sounds not capable of expression by the forty-one, Mr. Owen has sixteen orthographic substitutes, chiefly angular.

Mr. Owen at 87 is blind—a handicap he scoffs at.

"I just dictated them to my secretary, by metes and bounds," he explained. "In my mind, I would picture a square, and describe to her how the character should fit into its limits."

("Metes and bounds" is a surveyors' term, used to describe the outlines of an inclosure.)

Inspired by Indian.

A former Indian agent for the five civilized tribes in Oklahoma, Mr. Owen was inspired by Sequoia, who in 1823 invented an eighty-five character alphabet which enabled his Cherokee tribesmen to learn quickly to write their own language.

An outline of his system was printed recently as Senate Document No. 49 at the request of Senator Thomas (D.-Okla.). Illustrations show the global alphabet standing in for the conventional Roman letters, for those of Greek, Japanese, and Cherokee Indian, and for Chinese sounds.

Mr. Owen said his shorter, phonetic word forms would save paper, ink and postage and simplify spelling, and with their defined pronunciation would tend to end or limit dialects."

In announcing that the copyrighted system would be "my free gift to the world," Mr. Owen stressed this:

"The global alphabet comprises a mechanical agency through which to make effective the dreams of the great men now leading the people of the United Nations in a struggle for peace, abundance, goodwill, justice and happiness. The four freedoms, the Atlantic Charter, the Twentieth century economic policy adopted by the London Chamber of Commerce could be quickly put before the world."

Axis May Attempt Air Raid On East, Gen. Royce Warns

First Air Force Chief Sees Last Desperate Move as Possible.

BOSTON, July 28 — (AP) The approach of defeat may lead Hitler to risk his prized Luftwaffe in a last-resort, desperate attack upon the American East Coast, just as the Kaiser risked his proud, German high seas fleet in the last war, a high officer of the American Air Force said tonight.

In a speech delivered at a dinner given by Mayor Maurice J. Tobin at the Hotel Statler to the Aircraft Warning Service newspaper tour, Major General Ralph Royce, commanding general of the First Air Force, said that Allied advances in the Mediterranean area emphasized the danger of an Axis raid on the East Coast, and the necessity for continued alertness by the warning service.

"There is still possibility of an Axis air raid on our Eastern coast," General Royce declared.

"The argument still holds true," he added, "that Hitler may well want to raid our coast in order to improve German morale and to keep a greater share of our aircraft and anti-aircraft on this side.

"But, I add to that, the fact that there is something annihilistic and suicidal in the Nazi and the Junker character.

"Even as Hitler moves toward defeat, this trait of character may impel him to raid us.

"Remember that when the Germany of the First World War was collapsing, the Kaiser and the Junker admirals wanted the German fleet to steam out for a last, desperate attempt to wipe out the British fleet.

"Only a mutiny by the German sailors prevented the plan from being carried out.

"It is not at all impossible that Hitler is planning the same sort of desperate move with his air fleet. The Luftwaffe is his pride, just as the German high sea fleet was the pride of the Kaiser.

"Hitler thought it would win the war for him. Is he likely to let it fall into Allied hands without throwing it against the Allies—among whom he regards America as one of his chief enemies?

"I hardly think so."

Even in the event that there never is an air raid on the coast, General Royce said, the Aircraft Warning Service will have proved its value.

BRITISH FLYER DEAD

Newport, R. I., July 28 (A. P.).—The death of a British aviator in the crash of his plane at Quonset Point last Saturday was announced today by the Navy. He was Sub-Lieut. Kenneth Lester Boddington, Royal Navy Volunteer Reserve, and the next of kin was listed as his father, A. L. Boddington of Croyden, Surrey, England. He was commissioned last April 1.

Colorado Springs, Col., July 28 (A. P.).—An Army pilot killed yesterday in a plane crash near Peyton, Col., was identified by Peterson Field officials today as Lieut. Richard Earl Good, 26 years old, of Brockport, N. Y. He was assigned to a photographic squadron at nearby Peterson Field.

GENE LANDRUM:

JUL 29 1943

Fighting General Has The Job Of Dis-Aleutianing The Japs

By CA[illegible]WARD

PENSACO[illegible]A.—(AP) Major General Eug[illegible]A. Landrum has spent most of his 50 years preparing for just the job he has today—leading the fight on the Japanese in the Aleutians.

His hometown of Pensacola still remembers him as the boy who planned an Army career almost from the time he could walk. It recalls the days he spent drilling his playmates with sticks for guns on Gage Hill, where an old British fort once stood.

Enlisted in 1910

Landrum didn't waste any time when he was old enough to become a real soldier. He enlisted as a private at Fort Barrancas in August, 1910. Last June, after rising to the rank of Brigadier General, he directed American troops in a difficult landing in the Aleutians during a driving blizzard, and defeated the strongly entrenched Japs.

For that exploit and subsequent operations in the area, the Distinguished Service Cross was awarded to him, and on April 3, 1943 (his twenty-fifth wedding anniversary), he was promoted to major general.

Pensacola was not surprised. It expected as much from the son of a captain in the confederate army, and the great grandson of two revolutionary fighters.

Wanted to Be a Bugler

Landrum's first ambition was to be a bugler, and during that period the whole neighborhood awoke regularly to reveille. When high school was finished, he went to Barton Academy in Mobile for one year, then enlisted. Five years later, while on duty in Hawaii, he won his commission as second lieutenant.

During his early military career, Landrum served in seven states and in Washington, as well as tours of duty in Hawaii, the Philippines and Russia. In World War I he was with the American Expeditionary forces in Siberia.

In 1918 while in the Philippines, Landrum was married to Miss Frances Yeater, daughter of the vice-governor of the islands. They have two children, Marianna, a student at the University of Missouri, and Eugene, Jr., now in the Army at Fort Sill, Okla.

Promotions Galore

After the first World War Landrum continued to win promotions. He served in the Adjutant General's office[illegible] of the Corresp[illegible] and in 1927, with the rank of Major, became Assistant Adjutant General of the Army. In 1936 he was graduated from the Army war college and became instructor and later executive officer at Fort Benning, Ga.

Landrum was a colonel when the Japanese struck on Dec. 7, 1941. His long service in the Pacific and his Siberian experience led to his Alaskan assignment.

Quiet and unassuming, he shies from the public acclaim of his friends. On visits to his home before his mother died 13 years ago, he wanted nothing more than to spend his time in the kitchen with her.

And he never makes a trip home without going first to inspect the Four O'Clock blossoms in the yard that he loved as a child.

General Landrum's hobby is photography. Pictures of his children adorn the walls of the home at 229 North Barcelona street, Pensacola, where three generations of the family have lived.

U. S. SHIPYARDS SET NEW RECORD

Nearly 1,500 Vessels Turned Out Since Pearl Harbor, It Is Disclosed.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(AP) United States shipyards have delivered 1,496 merchant vessels since Pearl Harbor, or more than existed in the entire American flag fleet at the outbreak of war in Europe in 1939, J. Lewis Luckenbach, president of the American Bureau of Shipping, disclosed today.

"This new production, combined with the American fleet of September, 1939, totals more than that accredited to the first ranking maritime nation in the world in pre-war days," Luckenbach added in addressing the bureau's board of managers.

"However, sinkings have occurred in the fleets of all nations and the exact totals are not available for publication due to censorship restrictions."

Luckenbach asserted, however, that:

Despite war depredations, the American merchant marine is greater in number and tonnage than the combined pre-war fleets of the Axis powers, when Japan ranked third as a maritime power and Germany and Italy ranked fifth and sixth.

Production of merchant types of sea-going vessels over 2,000 gross tons in the United States during the first six months of this year more than equaled the output for the entire year of 1942.

If the present rate of production is maintained, the industry in 1943 will considerably more than double the entire output of last year.

Luckenbach said the "unprecedented volume of merchant vessel completions in the first six months of 1943" included 65 tankers of over 1,000,000 deadweight tons and 696 cargo vessels of almost 7,350,000 deadweight tons, and five large vessels of the combined passenger and cargo type.

Breaking down the merchant vessel production for the first six months of 1943, by districts, Luckenbach said Pacific Coast shipyards completed 393 ships of approximately 4,200,000 deadweight tons, or 51 per cent of the grand total. The Atlantic Coast shipyards, he said constructed 34 per cent, or 259 vessels of over 3,000,000 deadweight tons, and the Gulf Coast completed 108 ships of 1,150,000 deadweight tons, representing 14 per cent of the total.

In addition, a number of large ore carriers were built in the Great Lakes region.

Peace Plan "Indorsed" By British Churchmen

New York, July 28 (AP)—Fourteen leaders in the British Council of Churches, including the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, were described today as having given virtually complete indorse- cluded establishment of an international collaboration as advanced by a commission of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

30.24-6655

John Foster Dulles, chairman of the commission, released the British Council's statement on the commission's proposal, which included establishment of an International "political framework."

"We agree 'that the peace must provide the political framework for a continuing collaboration of the United Nations and in due course the neutral nations,'" the British statement said. It added that 'for any of the United Nations to fail in supplying its share of contributions to the armed forces required—a share proportionate to its population, wealth and strategic situation—would be shirking a manifest duty."

Nazi Peace With France Near, Bern Report Says

New York, July 28 (AP)—Paul Archinard, NBC reporter in Bern, Switzerland, said today that according to "an unusually reliable source Germany may soon make peace with France."

Germany only granted France an armistice when hostilities ended in June, 1940.

Archinard said the peace treaty would cover the unmolested withdrawal of German troops from France and the return of French prisoners of war to their homes.

"With Italy failing the Axis, such an arrangement would relieve Germany from the necessity of singlehandedly defending a long coastline in definitely hostile French territory," Archinard said. "As matters stand today, Pierre Laval, French leader of state, would have nothing to lose in the venture nor, possibly, would Germany."

Curfew Set in Athens, Budapest Radio Says

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 28.—A Budapest radio news broadcast to occupied Europe said today that Athens has been placed under a curfew as a result "of events of the past few days," the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service reported.

The announcement said the curfew closed all establishments and halted all street traffic at 8 p.m.

Tokio Calls in Nazi Envoy For Second Talk on Italy

Japanese Continue to Dwell on Solidity of Axis Ties

The Tokio radio reported that Heinrich Georg Stahmer, German Ambassador to Japan, conferred esterday with Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu for the second time "since the recent political change in Italy."

The Associated Press said government monitors recorded the broadcast, in which the Japanese were told at the same time that "close relations are being maintained among Japan, German and Italy."

Another Tokio broadcast, recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, said that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italy's new premier, on Sunday notified the Japanese Ambassador in Rome of the impending ouster of Benito Mussolini "one hour and a half before the official notice to the foreign envoys at Rome."

"This fact speaks of the firm ties binding the relations between the tri-partite powers," Tokio said.

Pontiff Denounces Misuse of People by Leaders Who Ignore Law.

ADDRESSES SPAIN BY RADIO

Declares Basic Rights Must Be Untouchable by Rulers or Nations Become Victims.

"The Pope denounced those who dare to lay the fate of an entire nation into the hands of any single man, so that everybody becomes a victim of his passions, errors and fantastic imagination," the British radio today quoted the Vatican radio as saying in a broadcast to Spain last night.

"At times men come to power with a false mental attitude, men whose motive is their self-interest, and then the petty will of such men replaces the highest natural law," the Vatican declared, continuing, according to London:

"The Pope denounced those who misuse the people and claim the right to ignore the foundations of law. It is absolutely necessary that there be fundamental laws beyond the ruler and untouchable by any arbitrary action.

"The Pope denounced all attempts to subject the judicial system to the desires of individual classes or movements. That does not mean, however, that the Pope denounces all movements existing in a nation. Such movements can well arise out of necessity to liberate the nation."

The rebroadcast of the Pope's words from London was picked up at New York by CBS.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

An Italy completely purged of Fascism and on its way back to "constitutional normality", but with its ties with Nazi Germany as yet unbroken, was pictured to the world yesterday in Rome broadcasts.

Not only has the author of Fascism, Benito Mussolini, gone down, unwept, unhonored and unsung, but the whole one-party, totalitarian structure he reared has been dissolved by Premier Marshal Badoglio and his council of ministers within three days of Il Duce's fall. Thus the first if not the most urgent Allied demand on Italy voiced by Prime Minister Churchill as the price of escape from new Allied attacks has been met. Yet a revolutionary situation is reported developing in Milan and elsewhere in Italy against the new Rome regime because it is not moving fast enough to get out of a Fascist-made war the Italian people did not want.

If an armistice with the Allies on surrender terms sternly sketched to Parliament by Churchill is the objective of the Italian king and Marshal Badoglio, the time is ripe for overtures to London and Washington.

Must Act Speedily

Not weeks, but days, even hours, must see the Badoglio ministry reveal its intentions both of the Italian people and to Allied leadership or take the consequences that could see it also collapse under public pressure for peace in Italy.

Another major Allied stroke is close at hand in Sicily. General Eisenhower's ABC army (American-British-Canadian) is poising for a death blow to Axis resistance there. American and Canadian forces in the center of the long, looping Allied line from sea to sea across the neck of the Messina peninsula seem slated to deal it.

With American capture of Cefalu, officially confirmed, General Patton's fast moving army is already knocking at the gates of S. Stefano di Camastra, a vital communications junction of Axis defense lines.

Southward, American forces, at shoulder touch with Canadians on the British left flank, have stormed through half a dozen towns on the Termini-Nicosia highway, with the Canadians pressing in on Agira from the southwest.

The fall of any of the three towns, S. Stefano, Nicosia or Agira, but particularly Nicosia, would crack the center of the Axis defense front ringing the inshore base of towering Mount Etna from Catania to S. Stefano.

British Hold Fos

General Montgomery's powerful Birtish 8th army, held up for days south of Catania, is deliberately marking time. It is pinning powerful and highly mobile Axis armored forces to that flank by patrol operations, while Patton's lunging American 7th army storms down the north coast route on a like mission and the American and Canadian troops in the vital center move up to deliver knock-out blows.

At the rate American forces have been pushing forward both along the coast and the inshore Termini-Nicosia lateral, the final test cannot be long delayed and the fate of all Axis forces rallied along the inshore slopes of Mount Etna must soon be decided.

Unless German forces are far more numerous in Sicily than indicated from any source, their plight seems desperate. Their Italian allies are far from dependable and rumors of German withdrawals on the Italian mainland to form behind the Po river in the far north, giving up the whole Italian "boot", if true, would leave Nazi elements in Sicily doomed to sacrifice in any case. It is also clear in that event, however, that the bulk of the Italian mainland itself is to be sacrificed by the Nazis, and that should do more to force Rome to surrender on Allied terms without delay than any other known circumstance.

LONDON JULY 28-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK OF POLAND'S GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE APPEALED TODAY FOR ACCESS TO THE SEA FOR POLAND AND RESTORATION OF THOSE LANDS SEIZED FROM HIS COUNTRY IN THE PERIOD OF GERMANY'S "DRIVE TO THE EAST."

ADDRESSING THE ANGLO-AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION PF PARIS, MIKOLAJCZYK SAID THAT IF THESE CONDITIONS ARE FKLFILLED "WE SHALL BE ABLE TO PLAY A CONSTRUCTIVE ROLE IN EUROPE IN CLOSE POLITICAL AND MILITARY COOPERATION WITH GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES."

(HE REFERRED APPARENTLY TO GERMANY'S EXPANSION EASTWARD DATING FROM THE 12TH CENTURY WHEN THE "DRANG NACH OSTEN" OR DRIVE TO THE EAST BEGAN IN GERMAN STATES.)

LONDON, JULY 28-(AP)-A REUTERS DISPATCH QUOTED AN ITALIAN NEWS AGENCY BROADCAST TODAY AS ANNOUNCING THAT THE FASCIST PARTY WAS DISSOLVED YESTERDAY AT THE FIRST MEETING OF THE NEW ITALIAN CABINET.

LONDON, JULY 28-(AP)-THE TOKIO RADIO IN A BROADCAST RECORDED HERE BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS TODAY SAID THE IMPERIAL JAPANESE HIGH COMMAND HAD ANNOUNCED THE SINKING OF A UNITED CRUISER OF THE SAN FRANCISCO CLASS BY JAPANESE SUBMARINES ON JULY 20 OFF SAN CRISTOBAL ISLAND IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

THE BROADCAST SAID THE SUBMARINES BROKE THROUGH A PROTECTIVE SCREEN OF DESTROYERS TO SCORE A DIRECT HIT ON THE CRUISER. THE REPORT WAS NOT CONFIRMED BY ALLIED SOURCES.

(JANE'S FIGHTING SHIPS LISTS THE SAN FRANCISCO AS A HEAVY CRUISER DISPLACING 9,950 TONS, CARRYING A COMPLEMENT OF 594 OFFICERS AND MEN. OTHER CRUISERS IN THE SAME CLASS ARE THE ASTORIA, MINNEAPOLIS, NEW ORLEANS, TUSCALOOSA, QUINCY AND VINCENNES. THE SAN FRANCISCO WAS PLACED IN COMMISSION ON MARCH 9, 1933.)

THE QUINCY, VINCENNES AND ASTORIA WERE SUNK IN THE BATTLE FOR THE SOLOMONS ON THE NIGHT OF AUG. 8-9, 1942.)

LONDON, JULY 28-(AP)-THE BERLIN RADIO BR
REPORT BY THE INTERNATIONAL INFORMATION BUREA DA
AGENCY, TODAY WHICH ASSERTED THAT U-BOATS HA E SUNK EIGHT ALLIED MERCHANT SHIPS TOTALLING 44,200 TONS IN THE ATLANTIC. DATES OF THE ALLEGED SINKINGS WERE NOT SPECIFIED. THE BROADCAST WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

THE REPORT CLAIMED THAT THE SINKINGS BROUGHT THE TOTAL TONNAGE OF ALLIED SHIPS DESTROYED IN JUNE TO 336,000 TONS, OR MORE THAN THREE TIMES THE TOTAL FOR JUNE.

A SMALL ALLIED CRUISER AND SIX OTHER SHIPS WERE TORPEDOED IN OTHER UNSPECIFIED ACTIONS, THE REPORT CLAIMED.

LONDON, JULY 28-(AP)-CAPT.C.A.TAYLOR OF LOS ANGELES, WHO TRANSFERRED TO THE USAAF RECENTLY BUT IS STAYING WITH THE ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE UNTIL HE COMPLETES 30 OPERATIONS, PILOTED ONE BOMBER IN THE FLEET WHICH HIT HAMBURG LAST NIGHT.

OUT AGAIN.

"IT WAS A RUNNING BATTLE FOR TWO HOURS. BUT AS SOON AS P-47S, OUR WITHDRAWAL ESCORT, PICKED US UP AS WE CAME OUT, THE GERMANS JUST QUIT--THEY KNOCKED OFF FOR THE DAY."

ONE MAN WHO COULD TESTIFY ALSO THAT THE FLAK WAS RUGGED WAS LIEUT. SIDNEY LOVITT OF 18 MILLER AVE., PROVIDENCE, R.I., NAVIGATOR ON A FLYING FORTRESS PILOTED BY LIEUT.CHARLES H.SACKERSON OF CLEVELAND, O.

LOVITT TOOK ALONG A "TIN HELMET" FOR ONLY THE SECOND TIME IN 18 RAIDS.

JUL 29 1943

"MY OWN WOULDN'T FIT ME, SO JUST BEFORE WE TOOK OFF I BORROWED ONE FROM JOE ADAMS," HE SAID. HE REFERRED TO BOMBARDIER LIEUT.JOSEPH ADAMS OF JASPER, TEX.

"THE FLAK WAS HEAVY," LOVITT WENT ON. "I WAS HELPING THE BOMBARDIER-LIEUT.ANDREW DEMITROPOLOUS OF MASSACHUSETTS--(TOWN NOT LISTED) IDENTIFY THE TARGET. THIRTY SECONDS BEFORE 'BOMBS AWAY' I SAID: 'I'LL PUT ON MY HELMET.'

"TEN SECONDS AFTER 'BOMBS AWAY' THERE WAS A SWISH. A PIECE OF FLAK CAME THROUGH THE RIGHTHAND SIDE OF THE NOSE UP ABOVE."

IT HIT LOVITT ON THE HELMET, KNOCKING A HOLE AS LARGE AS A QUARTER THROUGH THE METAL, THE FIBER INNER HELMET AND THE LEATHER FLYING HELMET HE WAS WEARING UNDERNEATH. BUT HE ONLY RECEIVED A SLIGHT CUT.

"I'M TELLING YOU IT'S JUST FATE--JUST LUCK," LOVITT SAID. "THAT'S ALL. I GUESS I WASN'T SUPPOSED TO GET IT TODAY."

LOVITT WAS CAPTAIN OF THE HOCKEY TEAM AT THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT LOS ANGELES IN THE CLASS OF 1941.

OTHER CREW MEMBERS OF THE "BIG BUST" INCLUDED: CO-PILOT, LIEUT. JOHN KNEY OF FLORA PARK, LONG ISLAND; NAVIGATOR, LIEUT.EDWARD S.CHILD OF WEST HEMPSTEAD, LONG ISLAND.; GUNNER SERGEANTS DOUGLAS LANE OF ALEXANDRIA, LA., CHARLES V.KIEFER OF FREEPORT, ILL., LYLE E. LONDON--SECOND ADD THIRD NIGHT LEAD AERIAL X X X SATURDAY.

CREWMEN RETURNING FROM THE OSCHERSLEBEN RAID DECLARED THE GERMANS "THREW EVERYTHING AT US."

JUL 29 1943

STAFF SGT. STEVE MALIMWISKI, 23, OF 1230 EAST 85TH STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO, BALL TURRET GUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "KIPLING'S ERROR III," SAID "WE WERE TOO BUSY TO CONCENTRATE ON ANY ONE (ENEMY FIGHTER) AND THE BEST I COULD DO WAS JUST KEEP THEM AWAY."

TECH. SGT. HANK KACDOR, 23, OF 3295 WEST 142ND STREET, CLEVELAND, WAIST GUNNER ON THE "OLE PUSS III," CHIMED IN WITH "SO HELP ME--I COUNTED 150 OF THEM."

STAFF SGT. BUDD SCHMIDT, 24, OF BREWSTER, WASH., TAILGUNNER OF THE "WABBIT TWACKS III," SAID HE SHOT DOWN ONE JU-88.

THE GERMAN FIGHTERS USED THICK CLOUDS TO COME IN CLOSE, SAID STAFF SGT. JOSEPH V. MARCHWINSKY, 27, OF 53 LENTZ AVENUE, NEWARK, N.J., TURRET GUNNER ON THE "SCHACK UP."

LIEUT. ARVID F. DAHL, 24, FORMER HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER FROMCOLUMBUS, N.D., "SHACKEROO" NAVIGATOR, SAID THAT DESPITE THE CLOUDS THE CREWMEN

SAW THEIR BOMBS HIT THE TARGET.

TO TECH. SGT. RICHARD J. RILEY, 25, OF 2123 ELDUR STREET, CLEVELAND, FORMER ACTOR NOW RADIO OPERATOR ON "DOUBLE TROUBLE," IT LOOKED AS IF THE BOMBS "WALKED RIGHT ACROSS THE BUILDINGS AND ADJOINING RAILWAY YARDS."

HEAVY FLAK WAS MET BY THE KASSEL RAIDERS AND TECH. SGT. STANLEY WILLIAMS OF CHICAGO SAID "IT LOOKED LIKE A FOURTH OF JULY PINWHEEL THWOING RED HOT IRON THROUGH THE SKY."

SGT. MILE STEINHART, PORTLAND, ORE., BALL TURRET GUNNER ON "PICCADILLY COMMANDO," SAID HE SAW WHAT APPEARED TO BE TWO GAS TANKS GO UP.

JUL 29 1943

LIEUT. JED OWENS, MALAD CITY, IDAHO, BOMBARDIER ON A FORTRESS PILOTED BY LIEUT. JOHN A. BOOKER, LUSK, TEX., SAID HE SAW BOMBS OF THE PRECEDING GROUP LAND DIRECTLY ON AN AIRCRAFT WORKS.

"THE ENTIRE TARGET AREA WAS IN FLAMES," SAID STAFF SGT. SLABIO MIRABEL, GALLUP, N.M., BALL TURRET GUNNER ON A FORTRESS PILOTED BY LIEUT. STERLING A. BASSLER, RAPID CITY, S.D.

LIEUT. KEITH KOMLEY, PORTAGE, UTAH, PILOT OF THE "GEEZIL JUNIOR," SAID THE ENEMY FIGHTERS "WERE REALLY OUT TO GET US TODAY."

THOUGH ONE OF HIS GUNS WENT BAD, STAFF SGT. DONALD E. JOHNSON, MUSKEGON HEIGHTS, MICH., TAILGUNNER, SAID HE GOT ONE FIGHTER WITH HIS "GOOD GUN."

THE FORTRESS "RIGOR MORTIS," RAN INTO THE WORST FLAK IT HAS EVER FLOWN THROUGH, SAID THE SHIP'S BOMBARDIER, LIEUT. HOWARD A. GERDNER OF MILLINOCKET, ME.

THE MEDIUMS ATTACKED THE COKE OVEN WORKS AT ZEEBRUGE, BELGIUM, WITH SUCH ACCURACY, SAID COL. HERBERT D. THATCHER, CHEVY CHASE, MD., LEADER OF A FORMATION, THAT "IT LOOKED LIKE ONE SOLID BOMB HIT."

"BOY, IT WAS A SIGHT!" EXCLAIMED STAFF SGT. D. WESTRAN, PORTLAND, ORE., ENGINEER-GUNNER ON "TAIL-END CHARLIE" PILOTED BY LIEUT. CHARLES C. BOYER, LOMITA, CALIF.

DESPITE A HAZE THE VISIBILITY WAS GOOD OVER THE TARGET AND TECH. SGT. FRANK G. BREWER, BIRMINGHAM, ALA., SAID HE COULD SEE THE OBJECTIVE.

TECH. SGT. WALTER HASSINGER, HUTCHINSON, KAS., RADIO GUNNER ON HIS FIRST MISSION, CALMLY PICKED FLAK OUT OF HIS RADIO COMPARTMENT ON THE RETURN TRIP, AND SAID "IT WAS A SWELL TRIP."

STAFF SGTS. LEWIS BENNETT, PHILADELPHIA, AND JAMES A. MYERS, BIG SPRING, TEX., BOTH SAID ENEMY FIGHTERS STARTED TO ATTACK THEIR PLANE BUT BEFORE THEY COULD GET THEM SPITFIRES DROVE OFF THE GERMANS.

LONDON, JULY 29-(AP)-THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF AMERICAN NAVAL FORCES IN COMBAT WITH THE ENEMY ON FAR-FLUNG FRONTS IN THIS WAR WILL LIVE MORE VIVIDLY IN THE MEMORIES OF THIS AND FUTURE GENERATIONS AS A RESULT OF THE BRUSH-WORK OF LIEUT. DWIGHT SHEPLER, U.S.N.R., 37-YEAR-OLD NAVY COMBAT ARTIST FROM CHESTNUT HILL, MASS.

SHEPLER, THE FIRST NAVY COMBAT ARTIST TO SERVE IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS, ARRIVED IN LONDON RECENTLY AFTER MONTHS OF WORK IN THE PACIFIC, RESULTING IN SEVENTY PAINTINGS AND DRAWINGS DEPICTING AMERICAN ACTION AGAINST THE JAPANESE. HE SAW ACTION ABOARD A DESTROYER, AN AREA-AIRCRAFT CRUISER, A BATTLESHIP, AND ON GUADALCANAL WITH THE MARINES.

ASHORE WITH THE LEATHERNECKS, SHEPLER DID AS THEY DID--LIVED IN

30.24-6659

A TENT, SAW FRONT LINE ACTION WITH ARTILLERY AND INFANTRY UNITS AND SPOTTED HIS SHARE OF JAPS ON PATROLS BEYOND THE FRONTLINES.

AT SEA, WITH THE NAVY, HE PARTICIPATED IN AN ACTION-PACKED RAID AGAINST SHIPPING NEAR A JAP-HELD ISLAND, WAS IN THE THICK OF THE BATTLE OF SANTA CRUZ,--STOOD REGULAR WATCHES. HIS BATTLE STATION WAS ASSISTANT TO THE GUNNERY OFFICER.

JUL 29 1943

FROM THE BEACH AT GUADALCANAL, HE WATCHED THE THRILLING SEA ENGAGEMENT OF THE BATTLE OF LUNGA POINT.

BETWEEN BATTLE ENGAGEMENTS AND DURING HIS OFF-HOURS, LIEUT. SHEPLER, RESUMED HIS ROLE OF ARTIST. FROM WHAT HE ACTUALLY SAW AND EXPERIENCED, HE RECORDED HIS IMPRESSIONS OF THE BATTLES, GAVE THEM STRATEGICAL CORRECTNESS THROUGH DATA TAKEN FROM THE REPORTS OF THE FIGHTING SHIPS.

"DRAWING BATTLE SCENES FOR THE NAVY IS NOT GUESSWORK," SHEPLER SAID, "EVERY MINUTE DETAIL MUST BE HISTORICALLY CORRECT."

THAT SHEPLER SHOULD MIX PAINTS AND GUNPOWDER IS CONSISTENT WITH THE DIVERSITY OF HIS PEACE-TIME PURSUITS. AFTER GRADUATING FROM HARVARD COLLEGE IN 1928, HE ACHIEVED DISTINCTION BOTH FOR HIS PAINTINGS, AND AS A RIGHT WING OF AN All-AMERICAN HOCKEY TEAM WHICH TOURED EUROPE IN 1934.

THE SEA HAS AN OLD STORY TO HIM. HE WAS ONCE MATE OF A SCHOONER YACHT THAT SAILED FROM CAPE COD TO THE GALAPAGOS ISLANDS AND BACK, AND HE PAINTED THE SEA BECAUSE HE UNDERSTOOD IT. BY THE SAME TOKEN, HE PAINTED SKI PICTURES, BECAUSE HE WAS AN ARDENT SKIIER.

MARRIED, AND THE FATHER OF TWO YOUNG DAUGHTERS, LIEUT.SHEPLER GAVE UP PAINTING TO JOIN THE NAVY AS A LINE DUTY OFFICER. HE WAS COMMISSIONED BECAUSE OF HIS SEA-GOING EXPERIENCE, THEN LATER THE NAVY CHOSE HIM AS ONE OF ITS SIX COMBAT ARTISTS.

MOST OF SHEPLER'S WORKS ARE WATER COLORS, ALTHOUGH HE IS NOW COMPLETING SOME OILS OF ACTION IN THE PACIFIC. HE WENT TO ENGLAND ABOARD A LIBERTY SHIP AND GATHERED IDEAS FOR A SERIES OF DRAWINGS ON ATLANTIC CONVOYS AND NAVY ARMED GUARD GUNNERS.

THE OTHER ARTISTS DOING WAR ASSIGNMENTS FOR THE NAVY ARE: LIEUT WILLIAM DRAPER, USNR, BOSTON, THE ALEUTIAN CAMPAIGN, LT.ALBERT K. MURRAY, USNR, NEW YORK, THE SOUTH ATLANTIC AND CARIBBEAN, AND ENSIGN MITCHELL JAMIESON, USNR, WASHINGTON, AFRICA AND THE MEDITERRANEAN.

LIEUT.COMDR.MCCLELLAND BARCLAY, NATIONALLY KNOWN ARTIST WAS REPORTED MISSING IN ACTION IN THE PACIFIC AREA WHERE HE WAS MAKING NAVY PAINTINGS AND SKETCHES IN AUSTRALIA AND NEW GUINEA.

UNDER NAVY SANCTION, BOTH COLOR, AND BLACK AND WHITE PRINTS OF THE COMBAT ARTISTS' DRAWINGS AND PAINTINGS, WILL APPEAR IN BOOK FORM UNDER THE TITLE, "THE NAVY AT WAR."

JUL 29 1943

THE ROME RADIO WARNED THE PEOPLE TO DISCOUNT "SENSATIONAL RUMORS," BUT THIS ONLY INTENSIFIED THE RESTLESSNESS OF A PEOPLE RELEASED FROM MUSSOLINI'S LONG DICTATORSHIP.

SUDDEN, UNEXPLAINED DEATHS AMONG THE FASCIST HIERARCHY OCCURRED. THE DEATH OF SENATOR MANLIO MORGAGNI, OUSTED PRESIDENT OF STEFANI

NEWS AGENCY AND A CLOSE COLLABORATOR OF BENITO MUSSOLINI'S, WAS ANNOUNCED IN ROME.

ONE UNCONFIRMED REPORT SAID THAT HE HAD COMMITTED SUICIDE.

GAZETTA DEL POPOLO, IN AN EDITORIAL ADDRESSED TO "ITALIANS DEMANDING IMMEDIATE PEACE," FRANKLY ADMITTED THAT "IF INTERNAL ORDER IS NOT MAINTAINED THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT WILL BE OBLIGED TO ACCEPT A PREMATURE ARMISTICE."

THIS WAS THE SHARPEST HINT YET THAT BADOGLIO INTENDS EVENTUALLY TO SUE FOR PEACE ON THE BEST POSSIBLE BARGAIN WITH THE ALLIES.

"OUR GOAL IS PEACE," THE EDITORIAL SAID, "BUT THE ENEMY, WHO FORMERLY DECLARED HE DID NOT WISH TO DEAL WITH FASCISM, TODAY DEMANDS THE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OF ITALY.

JUL 29 1943

"HE DEMANDS THAT WITHOUT ARMS AND HONOR WE PLACE IN HIS HANDS ALL OF ITALY. BUT WE ARE UNABLE TO ENDURE ENEMY OCCUPATION.

"IF INTERNAL ORDER IS NOT MAINTAINED THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT WILL BE OBLIGED TO ACCEPT A PREMATURE ARMISTICE. THE ADVERSARY WILL BE ABLE TO UNDERTAKE AN OCCUPATION OF JUSTIFIED NECESSITY BECAUSE OF DISORDER IN OUR COUNTRY.

"IF PEACE MUST BE ACCEPTED BY THE NEW GOVERNMENT BECAUSE THE COUNTRY DEMANDS IT AT ANY PRICE, WE MUST ACCEPT ALL CONDITIONS IMPOSED.... WE MUST OBEY THE GOVERNMENT LEST WE RISK FALLING FROM FASCIST TYRANNY INTO UNSUPPORTABLE SERVITUDE TO A FOREIGN OCCUPATION."

MUSSOLINI'S WHEREABOUTS STILL WERE A MYSTERY. ADDED TO REPORTS THAT HE STILL WAS UNDER ARMED GUARD IN A VILLA NEAR ROME WERE FRESH RUMORS THAT HE HAD EITHER FLED TO SPAIN OR WAS ABOUT TO GO THERE.

CORRIERE DELLA SERRA'S ACCOUNT OF FIGHTING IN MILAN, MOSTLY ON THE OUTSKIRTS, SAID THE EFFORT TO REDUCE THE FASCIST NESTS WAS "A LONG, DIFFICULT AND BLOODY" ONE.

THE GROUPS STILL WERE HOLDING OUT TONIGHT, IT WAS REPORTED. THEIR POSSESSION OF MACHINEGUNS FORCED ITALIAN TROOPS TO TAKE TO TANKS.

GENERAL CANALE WAS IN CHARGE OF MILITARY FORCES IN THE CITY.

ONE OUTBREAK OCCURRED IN THE CELLULARE PRISON WHERE AN INTERNEE WAS KILLED AND MANY WERE WOUNDED IN ATTEMPTED BREAK FOR FREEDOM. IN THEIR MUTINY THE PRISONERS MANAGED TO BURN PART OF THE PRISON.

PARADES AND DEMONSTRATIONS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE CEASED IN ROME. SOCIALIST NEWSPAPERS, WHICH HAD APPEARED JUBILANTLY MONDAY AFTER MUSSOLINI'S FALL, WERE BANNED TODAY UNDER A STRONG CENSORSHIP. FOOD SUPPLIES WERE SAID TO BE NORMAL, THAT IS, ON A PAR WITH THOSE EXISTING UNDER MUSSOLINI'S RULE.

JUL 29 1943

ALTHOUGH A SPOKESMAN REFUSED COMMENT ON REPORTS OF PEACE DISCUSSIONS, ONE ROME DISPATCH SAID THERE WAS AN ATMOSPHERE OF SHARP EXPECTANCY THAT SOME ANNOUNCEMENT WOULD BE FORTHCOMING SOON.

MADRID JULY 29 -

A MOB DEMONSTRATED BEFORE THE GRAN HOTEL, HOWEVER, WHERE ROBERTO FARANACCI, FORMER SECRETARY OF THE FASCIST PARTY AND LEADER OF THE PRO-GERMAN FACTION OF THE PARTY, HAD HIS RESIDENCE.

THE ITALIAN EMBASSY IN MADRID ALREADY HAS REMOVED THE PORTRAIT OF MUSSOLINI FROM ITS OFFICES. MADRID OFFICES OF THE FASCIST PARTY ALREADY HAVE BEEN CLOSED, AND THE HEAD OF THE GROUP IN SPAIN, CONDE SAN MARZANNO, HAS QUIT WORK.

THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF ABC CONFIRMED THE YA CORRESPONDENT'S REPORT ABOUT GERMAN REACTION AND SAID IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE "TO LOOK AT THE ITALIAN SITUATION WITHOUT RECALLING FRANCE'S POSITION WHEN MARSHAL PETAIN TOOK POWER FROM REYNAUD, WHO NEVER WOULD HAVE MADE PEACE WITH THE CONQUEROR."

DISPATCHES TO THE SPANISH PRESS INCLUDED ONE FROM ISTANBUL REPORTING THAT CONTRARY TO PREVIOUS REPORTS GUARIGLIA HAD NOT LEFT TURKEY.

FROM LISBON CAME THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT PREMIER ANTONIO DE OLIVIERA SALAZAR HAD HELD A LONG CONVERSATION WITH THE MINISTER FROM RUMANIA.

JUL 29 1943

ROME DISPATCHES TODAY INCLUDED AN OBSERVATION THAT BOTH IL POPOLO DI ROMA AND LAVORO FASCISTA HAVE NEW DIRECTORS. THE LATTER PAPER CAME OUT WITH A NEW NAME, LAVORO ITALIANO.

ITALIANS WHO ARRIVED XXX FIRST GRAF PREVIOUS.

PALERMO-FIRST ADD BADOGLIO XXX FARINACCI.

REFERRING TO GERMANY, HE SAID, "IF IT IS RIGHT TO HAVE AN ALLY, IT IS NOT RIGHT TO TRUST IN FULL TO THE HELP OF THIS ALLY. THAT MAY LEAD TO HISTORICAL CONSEQUENCES OF ENORMOUS SCOPE WHICH WILL WEIGH HEAVILY IN THE LIFE OF THE NATION."

THE TEXT OF THE LETTER FOUND HERE SAID:

"I SHOULD NOT HAVE ABANDONED THE SILENCE WHICH I HAVE IMPOSED ON MYSELF IN THE CAMPAIGN UNLEASHED AGAINST ME IN CERTAIN QUARTERS, IN PARTICULAR BY A WELL-KNOWN PAPER OF CREMONA (FARINACCI'S NEWSPAPER), HAD IT NOT ASSUMED ITS PRESENT FORM, A FORM WHICH IS A REPROACH TO THE PERSON WHO IS SEEKING TO RAISE AGAINST MY PERSON PUBLIC DISAPPROVAL AND CONTEMPT.

"I BREAK THIS SILENCE BECAUSE THE CRITICISM OF WHICH THE LAWYER FARINACCI HAS MADE HIMSELF THE MOUTH PIECE GOES BEYOND MY PERSON AND AFFECTS THE ITALIAN GENERAL STAFF. SUCH CRITICISMS AT A MOMENT IN WHICH EVERY DISCORDANT VOICE SHOULD BE SILENT BEFORE THE SUPREME NECESSITY OF THE COUNTRY, HAVE DISCREDITED BOTH AT HOME AND ABROAD THE WORK AND VALUE OF THE ITALIAN GENERAL STAFF."

WITH THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY IN WESTERN SICILY, JULY 25 -(DELAYED)-(AP)-FOUR AMERICAN SOLDIERS WHO CAPTURED AN ENTIRE AIRPORT AND 200 ITALIAN TROOPS WERE WELCOMED BY THEIR PRISONERS WITH 30-YEAR-OLD WINE AND A CHICKEN DINNER.

"IT'S THE ODDEST THING I'VE EVER HEARD OF IN THIS TOPSY-TURVY WAR," SAID LIEUT. RICHARD A. KAHN, 2332 WASHINGTON AVE., SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., WHO WAS DIRECTING THE WORK OF A GROUP OF SOLDIERS SALVAGING PARTS FROM A GROUP OF 40 WRECKED AXIS PLANES WHICH THE ENEMY HAD TOWED INTO A SMALL OLIVE GROVE NEAR THE FIELD.

"I WAS DRIVING ALONG THE ROAD BETWEEN TRAPANI AND MARSALA YESTERDAY WITH SERGT. VIRGIL BUTLER OF AKRON, OHIO, AND TWO OTHER SOLDIERS WHEN WE SAW A WHITE FLAG FLYING FROM THE BARRACKS BY A LITTLE ITALIAN AIRPORT.

"WE WENT UP CAUTIOUSLY, TAKING NO CHANCES THAT IT MIGHT BE A TRICK, BUT THE GROUP OF ITALIAN SOLDIERS WE RAN INTO GAVE UP READILY. ALL THEY WANTED TO DO WAS SURRENDER. THEY SHOWED US WHERE THEY HAD STACKED THEIR GUNS IN A SMALL WELL NEARBY.

"THEY TOLD US THEIR COMMANDING OFFICER COULD BE FOUND UP THE HILL IN ANOTHER BUILDING. I WENT UP WITH ANOTHER SOLDIER AND FOUND AN ITALIAN CAPTAIN WAITING THERE. HE DIDN'T WANT ANY TROUBLE EITHER AND SEEMED HAPPY TO BE TAKEN SAFELY INTO OUR CUSTODY. IN FACT, HE WAS SO GLAD THAT HE BROKE OUT A BOTTLE OF 30-YEAR-OLD WINE TO SHOW HIS APPRECIATION. IT WASN'T BAD, NOT BAD AT ALL.

"WHEN I GOT BACK TO THE BARRACKS THERE WAS SERGEANT BUTLER SITTING DOWN TO A FINE DINNER OF CHICKEN, MELON AND WINE PREPARED FOR HIM BY THE ITALIAN SOLDIERS. WHAT A WAR! BUT OF COURSE THIS DOESN'T HAPPEN EVERY DAY.

"BEFORE WE LEFT THE AIRPORT WE COLLECTED 200 PRISONERS--- AND THEY WERE A REAL PROBLEM FOR FOUR MEN TO KEEP IN ORDER. MOST OF THEM SAID THEY HOPED THEY WOULD BE SHIPPED TO NEW YORK WHERE SOME HAVE RELATIVES.

JUL 29 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC,JULY 29 (THURSDAY)-(AP)-THE GROWING AIR FORCE OF THE ALLIES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC CONTINUED ITS CEASELESS POUNDING OF THE JAPANESE TODAY AFTER ANOTHER "HEAVIEST" RAID OF THE WAR IN THIS AREA.

SALAMAUA, STRONG ENEMY AIR BASE ON THE NORTHEAST COAST OF NEW GUINEA, WAS HIT BY 123 TONS OF BOMBS DROPPED BY THE LARGEST FORCE OF BOMBERS EVER USED AGAINST THAT PORT.

THE WEDNESDAY COMMUNIQUE OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS REPORTED THAT DIRECT HITS WERE MADE ON THE WIRELESS STATION, GUN POSITIONS, BARRACKS AND A BRIDGE. RETURNING PILOTS TOLD OF HEAVY EXPLOSIONS AND TOWERING FIRES THAT INDICATED HEAVY DAMAGE.

A SECOND JAPANESE AIR BASE AT LAE, LESS THAN 20 MILES FROM SALAMAUA, WAS THE TARGET OF ANOTHER ATTACK WHICH CAUSED EXPLOSIONS AND FIRES IN SUPPLY DUMP AREAS AMONG BARGE CONCENTRATIONS.

IN THE THIRD HEAVY ATTACK REPORTED ON WEDNESDAY TORPEDO AND DIVE BOMBERS DROPPED 35 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES ON THE ENEMY DEFENDERS OF THE MUNDA AIR BASE ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, 700 MILES EAST OF NEW GUINEA.

JUL 29 1943

THE MUNDA BOMBING WAS IN SUPPORT OF GROUND FORCES WHICH A SPOKESMAN SAID HAD ADVANCED TO A POINT ONE AND ONE-FIFTH MILES FROM THE AIRDROME. THE AMERICAN JUNGLE FIGHTERS PASSED THE COASTAL VILLAGE OF TETERE EAST OF MUNDA. THIS FOLLOWED A GAIN OF 500 YARDS REPORTED ON TUESDAY. THE PROGRESS MADE ON THE TWO DAYS WAS THE FIRST REPORTED IN ABOUT THREE WEEKS.

ALLIED AIRMEN ALSO STRUCK AT NEW BRITAIN, NORTHEAST OF NEW GUINEA. TWO ENEMY CARGO SHIPS BEACHED ON THAT ISLAND AS A RESULT OF A PREVIOUS ATTACK WERE SET FIRE AND CONSIDERED TO BE A TOTAL LOSS. AT GASMATA, NEW BRITAIN, A WHARF WAS DESTROYED AND FIRES WERE STARTED.

JAPANESE RAIDS, WHICH CAUSED NO DAMAGE, WERE ON WOODLARK ISLAND AND NASSAU BAY, NEAR MUNDA, WHERE AMERICAN TROOPS LANDED AT THE START OF THE PRESENT OFFENSIVE ACTION ON JUNE 30.

london, july 28-(ap)--jan de hartog, 29-year-old dutch author and scenarist, has reached england after a hazardous escape from german occupation authorities in ~~xxxxx~~ holland, aneta, official netherlands news agency, announced.

JUL 29 1943

Though limping from bullet wounds received while eluding his pursuers, hartog declared "I am now ready for the second round." He was under death sentence in absentia at the time of his escape.

While living under nazi occupation hartog wrote a ~~xxx~~ book, "holland's glory," which became a national sensation. Tipped off that he was slated for arrest as a hostage, he went underground last summer and remained in hiding until this spring, when he decided it was too risky to remain longer in holland.

Aneta said details of his escape could not be disclosed.

on the german frontier, july 28-(ap)-the nazis in berlin have greeted with increasing gloom the developments in italy, where manifestations of the people drove the nation steadily away from over two decades of fascism.

travelers leaving the italian capital have told the story of how the newspapers quickly were bought out monday morning, how the people exclaimed to friends:

JUL 29 1943

"God, this is the beginning."

the nazis said the same thing, but added that this first crack in the axis certainly would be extended into the balkans. for the nazis, the outlook is not a happy one.

there is evidence that the wilhelmstrasse was caught by increased surprise by the fall of benito mussolini. no propaganda, no advance preparation to the people cushioned the news, in itself sufficient demonstration that the nazi press machine did not have ample opportunity to create a plausible explanation.

furthermore, persons right within the propaganda ministry have acknowledged they had not known, it was reported. the nazis by declarations thus far have implied they had written off italy as lost so far as effective cooperation in the war was concerned.

frontier reports quoted a spokesman of the wilhelmstrasse as acknowledging today that the german-italian alliance was built on the personal relations between hitler and mussolini and adding that "to deny this would be senseless."

likewise, the speaker, nazi press chief paul schmidt, was quoted as referring to the interrelation and development of the fascist -- now gone -- and national socialist parties. schmidt was said to have declared, however, that those relationships were n "not at all the determining factors" behind the alliance.

JUL 29 1943

schmidt also was quoted as asserting he believed there was an increase in signs showing that the new italian premier, marshal pietro badoglio, and italy's king were "on the way to organize resistance to pursue the war."

it was reported that schmidt added that the wilhelmstrasse lacked real details and was "awaiting an exact explanation of the whole affair by the end of the week, and even under certain circumstances had reckoned with the formation of the new government in italy."

the voelkischer beobachter said:

30.24-6665

"official berlin is watching the anglo-american reactions to the events in italy very closely."

stockholm, july 28-(ap)-the king of sweden has summoned his ministers for a special cabinet meeting tomorrow at bastad on sweden's west coast, where the king is spending the summer. lieut.-gen. nordenskjoeld, head of the swedish air force, arrived there tonight.

sweden at present is rounding out her wartime peak of military preparations because of the swiftly changing international situation, and is considering a stoppage of german military transit through the nation at an early date.

[illegible]EWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, JULY --(DELAYED)-- MARINE CORPS RAI[illegible]ERS MADE THEMSELVES TARGETS TO LOCATE JAP SNIPERS DURING THE INITIAL INV[illegible]ION OF RENDOVA ISLAND.

THIS WAS RELATED BY ELECTRICIAN'S MATE IRVING GOLDBERG, U.S. N., 3F 1056 OCEAN AVENUE, BROOKLYN, NEW YORK, THE FIRST EVACUEE FROM THE LATEST SOLOMON ISLANDS BATTLING,

GOLDBERG, WHO SUFFERED A BACK FRACTURE DURING THE INVASION, SAID:

"I HAD TO WATCH MOST OF THE INVASION STRETCHED OUT ON THE BEACH. ABOUT THE GREATEST THING I'VE EVER SEEN WERE MARINE RAIDERS STEPPING INTO THE OPEN AND ALLOWING THEMSELVES TO BE SHOT AT, SO THAT THEY COULD LOCATE ENEMY SNIPERS.

"WHAT FEW JAPS DIDN'T RUN INTO THE HILLS WHEN WE LANDED WERE EASILY ROUNDED UP BY MARINES. THE JAPS MUST HAVE BEEN POOR SHOTS BECAUSE I WAS THE ONLY MEMBER OF THE FIRST INVADING WAVE WHO HAD TO BE EVACUATED--AND I WASN'T THE VICTIM OF A JAP BULLET. I DROPPED 22 FEET FROM A CARGO NET INTO A LANDING BARGE."

JUL 29 1943

GOLDBERG, A NAVY "SEABEE" ATTACHED TO THE MARINE CORPS, SAID THE RENDOVE INVASION WAS CARRIED OUT PERFECTLY.

"WE HAD PRACTICED LEAPING OFF INVADING BARGES CARRYING FULL PACKS FOR WEEKS," HE SAID. "BUT WHEN WE GOT TO RENDOVA, WE DIDN'T HAVE TO JUMP BECAUSE THERE WEREN'T ANY JAPS IN SIGHT, EXCEPT THOSE RUNNING AWAY. THE MEN WENT OFF THE BARGES JUST AS NONCHLANTLY AS THOUGH THEY WERE GOING TO A PICNIC."

CONDITIONS WERE IDEAL FOR AN INVASION, GOLDBERG STATED, IT BEING PITCH-BLACK DARK.

"THE ONLY THING TO BE SEEN," HE SAID, "WAS BURNING JAP PLANES. ONE JAP PLANE HIT THE U.S.S.MCCAWLEY (THE AMERICAN TRANSPORT WHICH THE NAVY DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCED AS SUNK) BUT IT TOOK TWO TORPEDOES FROM A JAPANESE SUBMARINE TO SINK IT."

ITALY'S FAST BUT LIGHTLY ARMORED NAVY WHICH HAS REMAINED DISCREETLY IN PORT BECAUSE OF ALLIED DOMINANCE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN WAS LAST REPORTED DIVIDED BETWEEN LA SPEZIA ON THE GULF OF GENOA IN THE WEST AND TARANTO IN SOUTHEASTERN ITALY.

ITS MAIN SERVICE IN RECENT MONTHS HAS BEEN AS A TARGET FOR ALLIED AIRMEN, AND ALLIED CONTROL OF THE APPROACHES TO THE STRAIT OF MESSINA MAKES IT UNLIKELY THAT THE ITALIANS EVER WILL BE ABLE TO REGROUP THEIR SHIPS INTO A SINGLE STRIKING FORMATION.

THE ITALIAN FLEET AT LAST REPORTS WAS HEADED BY AS MANY AS SEVEN OR EIGHT BATTLESHIPS OF TWO CLASSES--THE LITTORIO AND THE CESARE.

THE FOUR SHIPS OF THE LITTORIO CLASS ARE MODERN 35,000-TON VESSELS CARRYING NINE 15-INCH GUNS. THE LITTORIO ITSELF WAS TORPEDOED AND DISABLED IN THE BRITISH ATTACK AT TARANTO IN NOVEMBER, 1940.

THE VITTORIO VENETO WAS DAMAGED BY BRITISH TORPEDO HITS IN MARCH, 1941. THE IMPERO AND THE ROMA WERE BELIEVED TO BE STILL UNDER CONSTRUCTION A YEAR AGO BUT MAY HAVE BEEN PUT INTO COMMISSION BY THIS TIME.

THE FOUR SHIPS OF THE CESARE CLASS WERE BUILT PRIOR TO THE FIRST WORLD WAR AND ORIGINALLY OUTFITTED WITH TEN 12.6-INCH GUNS. THESE 23,000-TON VESSELS WERE THE GIULIO CESARE, THE CAIO DUILIO, THE ANDREA DORIA AND THE CAVOUR. THE CAVOUR WAS DAMAGED AT TARANTO AND EITHER THE DUILIO OR DORIA ALSO WAS HIT.

ITALY'S DISMAL PREDICAMENT AND ITS FAR-REACHING MORAL EFFECT ARE LIKELY TO MAKE THE WAY OF TRANSGRESSOR HITLER EXCEEDING HARD IN THE NOT DISTANT FUTURE.

THE WAY THINGS NOW ARE DEVELOPING IT WOULDN'T BE SURPRISING TO SEE THE NAZI CHIEF ATTEMPT THE MAJOR OPERATION OF MAKING A SWEEPING WITHDRAWAL ON ALL FRONTS TO RESTRICTED BOUNDARIES WHICH HE WOULD TRY TO DEFEND AGAINST THE ALLIES--COME ONE, COME ALL. STRENGTHENED BY THIS CONSOLIDATION HE WOULD BATTLE FOR A STALEMATE, HOPING NOT ONLY TO SAVE THE REICH BUT SALVAGE SOME OF HIS ILL-GOT GAINS.

THE LENGTH OF TIME WHICH MUST ELAPSE BEFORE THE ALL HIGHEST UNDERTAKES SUCH W LAST-STAND MOVE OBVIOUSLY DEPENDS ON HOW HARD THE ALLIES ARE ABLE TO PUSH HIM. THAT IN TURN HINGES ON THE SPEED WITH WHICH THE ANGLO-AMERICAN BROTHERHOOD IS ABLE TO CLEAN UP THE ITALIAN SITUATION AND STRIKE ELSEWHERE.

IN YESTERDAY'S COLUMN I POINTED OUT THE GREAT THREAT WHICH WOULD BE CREATED TO THE PRESENT GERMAN BATTLE-LINE IN RUSSIA IF THE WESTERN ALLIES SHOULD FOLLOW THE ITALIAN COLLAPSE WITH AN INVASION OF THE BALKANS. A SUCCESSFUL DRIVE UP THE BALKAN PENINSULA WOULD FORCE THE NAZIS TO UNDERTAKE THE TERRIBLY DANGEROUS FEAT OF PULLING BACK THEIR ENTIRE FRONT, ASSUMING THAT SOVIET PRESSURE WAS MAINTAINED.

IT'S MOST UNLIKELY THAT THIS COULD BE ACHIEVED WITHOUT CORRESPONDING WITHDRAWALS IN WESTERN EUROPE. HITLER'S POSITION WOULD BE SO PRECARIOUS ON THE EASTERN FRONT DURING HIS RETREAT THAT HE WOULDN'T DARE LEAVE HIS FORCES SCATTERED THROUGHOUT THE OCCUPIED AREAS OF THE WEST. MOREOVER, WE ARE REMINDED OF ANOTHER CIRCUMSTANCE BY BRITISH PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL WHO YESTERDAY TOLD A CHEERING HOUSE OF COMMONS:

"THE SPIRIT OF REVOLT RISES HIGHER IN ALL SUBJUGATED LANDS. GERMAN RULE IS MAINTAINED FROM THE NORTH CAPE OF NORWAY TO THE ISLAND OF CRETE ONLY BY HIDEOUS AND RUTHLESS CRUELTY, REPRISALS AND MASSACRES."

JUL 29 1943

THE GREEKS, THE YUGOSLAVS, THE CZECHOSLOVAKIANS, THE POLES, THE FRENCH, THE BELGIANS, THE DUTCH, THE NORWEGIANS--ALL THESE TORTURED FOLK ARE MERELY WAITING FOR THE SIGNAL TO THROW THEMSELVES ON THEIR OPPRESSORS. INDEED, YUGOSLAV GUERRILLA FORCES NEVER HAVE CEASED TO WAGE BITTER WAR ON THE INVADERS, AND THE FEROCITY OF THESE ATTACKS HAS INCREASED WITH THE WEAKENING OF ITALY.

THE IDEA OF HITLER WITHDRAWING TO A RESTRICTED AREA FOR FINAL DEFENSE ISN'T NEW. MILITARY OBSERVERS LONG HAVE FORESEEN ITS INEVITABILITY WHEN THE GERMANS GOT HARD PRESSED. THE FUEHRER, PERHAPS ON THE INSISTENCE OF HIS HIGH COMMAND, HAS HAD HIS FINAL DEFENSES PREPARED.

THE FIRST STAGE OF A GENERAL WITHDRAWAL IN RUSSIA PRESUMABLY WOULD BE TO THE LINE OF THE RIVER DNIEPER, AS REMARKED YESTERDAY. HOWEVER, IF THINGS WERE GOING BADLY WITH THE GERMANS THIS WOULD BE ONLY AN INTERMEDIATE STOP, FOR THEIR FINAL DESTINATION WOULDUCARRY THEM AT LEAST INTO POLAND.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, HITLER IS SAID TO HAVE HAD THE TWO VAST AND "INVULNERABLE" FORTIFIED LINES WITH WHICH THE WAR STARTED --THE FRENCH MAGINOT AND THE GERMAN WESTWALL--PREPARED FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE FATHERLAND. MANY OTHER STRATEGIC STRONG POINTS HAVE BEEN GOT READY FOR THE SHOW-DOWN.

JUL 29 1943

IT REMAINS TO BE SEEN WHETHER HITLER WILL MAKE HIS WITHDRAWALS WHILE HE STILL IS STRONG OR WAIT UNTIL HE ABSOLUTELY IS DRIVEN TO IT. AS CHURCHILL REMARKED IN HIS SPEECH YESTERDAY, THE "GERMAN NATIONAL STRENGTH IS STILL MASSIVE." IF THE FUEHRER SHOULD ACT SOON, AND BE ABLE TO MAKE THESE DIFFICULT CHANGES WITHOUT DISASTER, HE CERTAINLY WOULD PRESENT A FORMIDABLE FRONT. THAT'S WHERE THE ALLIED AIR NAVIES WOULD COME IN, TO CRACK THE INTERIOR OF HIS FORTRESS AND NEW AN ENTRANCE FOR OUR ARMIES.

Rome Radio Says 'Unconditional Surrender' Terms Are Too Harsh.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, July 29.—An offer of peace terms by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower dangled before Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio and the Italian people tonight as the new government, casting loose the last ties with repudiated Fascism, dissolved the Mussolini-formed Italian legislature.

Italian broadcasts, meanwhile, asserted that "unconditional surrender" was too bitter a pill to swallow. Rome radio, in a significant broadcast which might be an attempt to sway Allied opinion, said Allied terms were too drastic—that Italy could not accept a peace which would wipe out the country.

It harped on the new propaganda line—echoed by Berlin and Tokyo—that not Fascism but the Italian nation was the Allied target. Rome radio added that Italy had fought so hard and bravely against overwhelming odds it could not bow to "a formula which is empty of political sense."

But the taste of liberty was good to Italians. From Bern came reports that thousands were parading in the industrial centers of Milan and Turin with placards demanding peace and "we want our sons back."

Troops answered the call by putting more machine guns in the public squares. Fascist and regular troops were reported battling in many cities.

Peace Pleas Pressed

There was evidence that Italian masses expected peace and were worried at the truculent tone of their new government. Five anti-Fascist parties, demanding that the war be ended, said "we are going from one dictatorship to another."

Both German and Italian troops were dispatched to Fiume and Trieste to combat separatist demonstrations among the 600,000 Croats and Slovenes of Istria, Swiss dispatches said.

The Allies threw out what was presumably their choicest bait to entice Italy out of the war — a pledge by General Eisenhower to trade prisoners on a basis that probably would favor Italy three-to-one with immediate peace "under honorable conditions which our governments have already offered you."

Peace Bid on Radio

Italian language broadcasts to Italy from North Africa carried the message of General Eisenhower, the Allied commander who had been entrusted with full authority to deal with any peace offers.

"Provided all British and Allied prisoners now in your hands are restored safely to us and not taken away to Germany," he said, "the hundreds of thousands of Italian prisoners captured by us in Tunisia and Sicily will return to the countless Italian homes who long for them."

The Allies captured 248,000 or more Axis soldiers in Tunisia and have seized 75,000 thus far in the Sicilian campaign, the bulk of them Italians in each case.

The fall of the chamber of Fasci and Corporations — the legislative instrument set up by Benito Mussolini after the old Chamber of Deputies was dissolved Dec. 14, 1938 — was announced by the Rome radio, which said King Vittorio Emanuele III approved.

"A new chamber of deputies will be elected within four months after the termination of the war and a new legislature will be set up," it said.

Formation of new political parties and the wearing of any political symbol other than the tricolor was forbidden for the duration. The radio said release of political prisoners had started; one Rome dispatch said 4,000 already were released.

Many prefects were dismissed in the general housecleaning.

Many Arrested

New arrests have swelled prison populations to capacity in the Domodossola region, said a dispatch to the Geneva newspaper La Suisse.

Mass demonstrations in Milan, Turin, Genoa and other cities apparently approached closer and closer to the proportions of a social revolution. Communist placards demanded ending of the war. A Bern dispatch said the women of Turin, Italian fashion center, were wearing red turbans.

The Swiss newspaper Berner Tagwacht told of the military occupation of the Istrian Peninsula, Adriatic region which was ceded to Italy by Austria after the First World War. It said the Croats and Slovenes demanded that Istria be incorporated into a Slavic state.

A Rome dispatch to the Tribune De Geneve said Badoglio's regime was "just as anxious as Mussolini's to maintain satisfactory relations with Germany," but qualified the declaration with a statement that the premier marshal was governed solely by military considerations whereas Mussolini's reasons were ideological and political.

Nebulous rumors of negotiations for an Italian-Allied armistice persisted. Italian broadcasts repeatedly told the populace not to believe false rumors "which will continue to be put in circulation." The Rome station continued to issue belligerent statements for home consumption, apparently seeking to deflect some of the unloosed anger from the Fascists to the Allies.

"Italy will continue to fight for her freedom and honor," it said. "Therefore Anglo-American propaganda is at the moment ill-humored."

Peace Rumors Heard

Reports of peace moves by Italy also were heard at Stockholm. These were still without recognition from official Allied sources.

References to clashes between German and Italian troops, which had been reported in dispatches from Bern and Madrid earlier in the week, dropped from the news and a censored message from Rome published by the Tribune De Geneve said that Nazi soldiers again were moving freely in the kingdom's capital.

Indications developed that Bulgaria might be the first Balkan satellite to break away from the Axis if Italy surrendered, a dispatch from Istanbul said. The downfall of Mussolini was reported affecting other Balkan powers to a lesser extent.

BULLETIN.

LONDON (AP).—Italy's Chamber of Fasci and Corporations has been dissolved by order of Premier Badoglio's government, the Rome radio announced today. The body took the place of the Chamber of Deputies when that legislative agency was dissolved in 1938. It was made up of 150 members of the National Fascist Council, headed by Mussolini, and 500 members of the National Council of Corporations.

ITALY URGED TO STOP AIDING NAZI FORCES

Eisenhower Cites Move As One Price Of Honorable Peace

JUL 30 1943

Message Lauds Italians And King For Getting Rid Of Mussolini

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 29—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower asked the Italian people today to "cease immediately any assistance to German military forces in your country" as one price for "peace under honorable conditions."

"If you do this we will rid you of the Germans and deliver you from the horrors of war," he said in a broadcast which commended the Italians and the Royal House of Savoy for dropping Benito Mussolini—"the man who involved them in the war as a tool of Hitler and brought them to the verge of disaster."

[The Swiss Telegraphic Agency "published with reserve" a dispatch from the Italian border saying it had been "learned in Rome that the Badoglio Government is examining the conditions of peace sent by General Eisenhower."]

The Allied commander in chief also offered to return the "hundreds of thousands" of Italian prisoners taken in Tunisia and Sicily if all Allied prisoners "now in your hands are restored safely to us and and not taken away to Germany."

"We are coming to you as liberators," he continued. "As you have already seen in Sicily our occupation will be mild and beneficent.

"The only remaining obstacle on the road to peace is the German aggressor who is still on Italian soil.

Offers Peace Immediately

"You want peace. You can have peace immediately and peace under honorable conditions which our Governments have already offered you.

"The ancient traditions of your country will be restored."

The General's message was broadcast uninterruptedly for two hours in Italian, French, German and English, and every fifteen minutes a special program in Italian containing his main points was given.

The five salient points of the general's message were:

1. Only the Germans in Italy are blocking an immediate peace.
2. Cessation of hostilities is possible immediately under honorable terms.
3. Discontinuance of assistance by the Italians to German armed forces is a prerequisite for peace.
4. A pledge that Italian war prisoners will be returned to their homes, provided Allied prisoners now held by the Italians are restored.

5. The liberties and traditions of Italy will be restored.

The references to "honorable conditions" already offered the Italians apparently referred to the Roosevelt-Churchill message to the Italian people July 17 before the overthrow of Mussolini.

"The sole hope for Italy's survival lies in honorable capitulation to the overwhelming power of the military forces of the United Nations," that message said. "The time has come for you to decide whether Italians shall die for Mussolini and Hitler—or live for Italy, and for civilization."

General Eisenhower's commendation of the people and their King for ridding themselves of Mussolini was the first from any Allied leader. The general is entrusted with any Italian peace offers.

BRUTTO

Mimeographed Copies of Peace Program Circulated Despite Censors.

BERN, Switzerland, Friday, July 30.—(AP) Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's peace terms, officially banned from publication in Italy quickly appeared today on the streets of the prinicipal cities in mimeographed form.

Nothing else was discussed on streetcars, in cafes and among friends by the Italians, who were in the throes of a virtual social revolution.

Strikes continued in a number of important northern factories and fighting broke out in sectors north of Rome.

Peace and liberty of political thought were the main objectives of demonstrators in every Italian center, who found to their dismay that the new government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio had suddenly clamped on authoritarian measures that smacked of the ousted Fascism.

Rigid Censorship

Four days after the fall of Mussolini the government ordered a censorship that cut short the jubilation which had been roused in the Italian masses since Sunday. Officials in Rome, for the first time, made clear to the populace that relations would be carried on with the Germans as before and that the war would be continued.

Although the Badoglio government announced the arrest of all high Fascists, it also sharpened its orders to halt any political activity that would prove embarrassing.

Italian political leaders were beginning to doubt the wisdom of using the army as a police force and the arrests of popular leaders by army men was creating the feeling that the military were associating themselves with reactionary ideals.

Liberal and leftist Italian political leaders were growing bitter and many were convinced that Badoglio created a sham drama of liberalism by allowing the press and the people two days of free expression in order to discover the government's secret opponents.

Peace remained the immediate hope of the people and the ultimate objective of Badoglio and the King but the unconditional surrender demand of the Allies made his course more difficult.

Paraders Demand Peace

BERNE, Switzerland, Friday, July 30 (AP)—Thousands of Italians carrying placards saying, "We Demand Peace" and "We Want Our Sons Back," paraded in Milan and Turin last night despite military warnings that troops would fire on demonstrators, frontier dispatches said early today.

Troops began putting more machine-guns in public squares at Milan, said these reports, which gave this outline of the situation inside Italy:

Fighting between Fascists and regular troops continued in many cities, while the Italian masses appeared increasingly worried over the failure of Marshal Badoglio's government to sue for an armistice.

Five anti-Fascist parties, which united to demand that the government find a way to end the war, last night issued a new protest against measures directed at suppressing all political activities. The Badoglio measures, the protest said, gave the people the impression that "we are going from one dictatorship to another."

A full censorship has been clamped on the Italian press after its first two days of free reporting following Mussolini's fall.

The Corriere della Sera of Milan, its pages mutilated by military censors, declared yesterday:

"The limpid truths of the first few hours following the collapse of dictatorship have been succeeded by an atmosphere of perplexity and uncertainty, causing a feeling that the evolution has not reached the last stage."

Eisenhower's Terms to Italy

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 29.—The complete text of the broadcast to the Italian people today by General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief in this war theater, follows:

We commend the Italian people and the House of Savoy for ridding themselves of Mussolini, the man who involved them in the war as a tool of Hitler and brought them to the verge of disaster.

The greatest possible obstacle which divided the Italian people from the United Nations has been removed by the Italians themselves.

The only remaining obstacle on the road to peace is the German aggressor, who is still on Italian soil.

You want peace. You can have peace immediately, and peace under the honorable conditions which our governments have already offered you.

We are coming to you as liberators.

Your part is to cease immediately any assistance to German military forces in your country.

If you do this, we will rid you of the Germans and deliver you from the horrors of war.

As you have already seen in Sicily, our occupation will be mild and beneficent.

Your men will return to their normal life and to their productive avocations, and, provided all British and Allied prisoners now in your hands are restored safely to us and not taken away to Germany, the hundreds of thousands of Italian prisoners captured by us in Tunisia and Sicily will return to the countless Italian homes who long for them.

Ancient traditions and liberties of your country will be restored.

EISENHOWER.

ITALY NEAR PEACE, NAZI OFFICERS SAY

Traveler From Berlin Quotes Them as Predicting Event 'Within Next 10 Days'

HIGH COMMAND WORRIED

JUL 30 1943

Swift Ouster of Mussolini Evokes Fears of Similar Possibility in Reich

SHANKE

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 29 (AP)—A traveler just arrived from Berlin declared today that German Army officers were predicting that Italy would be out of the war within the next ten days.

He declared that Benito Mussolini's fall had a "shattering" effect on the spirits of the Italian people, and gave this account of German reaction:

Word of Mussolini's fall spread before it was announced by the German radio, making it apparent that the people had been listening to British or American broadcasts, and little groups gathered on the streets. Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels was so annoyed that he ordered the Nazi press to blast "unpatriotic" Germans who listened to foreign radios and spread "Allied rumors."

Germans on the street expressed their reaction by saying, "Well, the war will soon come to an end."

The severe fight in the East and in Sicily was almost forgotten under the impact of collapsing Italy.

It was something the Germans always feared. They scorned the Italian as a soldier.

Fears of Another Sort Arise

Fears of another sort were awakened among the Nazis by the ease with which Mussolini's twenty-year-old regime fell into discard. They were anxious about notions it might plant in the minds of the masses of Germans because correspondents had reported from Rome that the Italians began asking themselves: "It was so easy, why didn't we do it long ago."

The German High Command took control of all telephone lines, claiming at the moment that it was "most important to save the military situation."

Dr. Goebbel's office was in the same fix and had to go to the army for information. This would explain the delay in the Nazi propaganda line and the groping weakness once the Wilhelmstrasse did venture comment by describing Mussolini's fall as purely an internal affair due to Mussolini's bad health.

Higher German officers did not appear greatly surprised, indicating perhaps that they had been asked by Mussolini for more troops two weeks ago before the Hitler-Mussolini Verona meeting.

A new wave of anti-Nazi placarding of Berlin walls has been under way in recent weeks, requiring storm trooper clean-up squads to tour the capital every morning and remove them.

Some Germans See Italy Out of War Next Week

StockholmHasReportThatNazi Officers Are Predicting It

STOCKHOLM, July 29 (AP).—An informant who arrived from Berlin said today some German officers were openly predicting that Italy would be out of the war before the end of the first week of August.

This source, who would not permit the use of his name, said that the collapse of Benito Mussolini and Fascism had a "shattering" effect on the spirits of the German people.

He said that Monday morning, hours before the Nazi press and radio had released the news, Berliners gathered in excited knots everywhere to discuss the lightning dissolution of Mussolini's regime. The word obviously was spread by listeners to London and other foreign radio stations, he said, and the news was so generally known that Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels ordered a press blast at "unpatriotic" Germans.

Italians Rush Troops To Fiume and Trieste To Combat Uprising

Croats and Slovenes Seek New Slav State In North Provinces

By the Associated Press.

BERN, July 29.—Italian and German troops were reported rushed today to Fiume and Trieste, where Croats and Slovenes were demonstrating for separation of the Istrian Peninsula from Italy, and the situation in other eastern sections of the kingdom was described as tense.

Swiss newspaper dispatches told of the crisis in Istria, soil which Italy annexed from Austro-Hungary after World War I. It juts into the Adriatic Sea between Italy and the Croatian coast.

The Berner Tagwacht said Croats and Slovenes, who number 600,000 on the peninsula, were demanding the inclusion of Istria in a south Slav state. Additional clashes between Fascists and anti-Fascists were reported as Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio struggled to maintain order and save the country from chaos.

Communists Attack Monarchy.

News of an insurrection in Milan was partly blacked out today by Marshal Bodoglio's military censorship. However, a dispatch from Chiasso, Switzerland, said strikes in the Milan industrial region had assumed important proportions, with Communists attacking the monarchy.

Walls in Northern Italy—despite Badoglio's restriction of placarding and slogans—were reported plastered with inscriptions bearing the words: "Mussolini is liquidated—now the war must be liquidated. Long live the social republic!"

(A British radio broadcast recorded by CBS said today the families of numerous Fascist officials were reported "to have arrived by plane in Berlin.")

Hundreds Killed.

Reports reaching the Swiss border said hundreds of persons had been killed in widespread riots and that tension was growing hourly.

The anti-Fascist outbreaks, paralleled by massed peace demonstrations, occurred in widely separated cities despite Badoglio's stern orders to the army to fire into groups of more than three persons.

Badoglio assumed control of the government five days ago in the hope of organizing and stabilizing a new authoritarian regime, advices from Rome indicated, but the nation-wide demonstrations for peace, the rioting and fighting, strikes in Italy's most important war and industrial factories, combined with increasing political agitation, apparently has brought the country to the verge of civil war.

The crisis in Italy's internal affairs has reached the stage where even a spokesman for the Berlin Foreign Office reportedly admitted the probability of a new government in Rome before the end of the week. Berlin political circles went so far as to mention Crown Prince Umberto as a rallying point around which a new regime would be set up.

Milan, Turin and Genoa, according to information reaching Bern, were centers of peace demonstrations, open fighting and political revolts. In all three of these industrial cities, gangs of Fascist militia were reported resisting regular army units striving to maintain order and enforce Badoglio's decree abolishing the Fascist party. Significant also was the suppression, after two days of free expression, of Republican newspapers which had been under the Fascist ban for 20 years.

Communists were reported demonstrating in many cities, but it was asserted by travelers leaving Italy that they were not counting on a Sovietized regime because their numbers are small in comparison with the great masses of Republican, Liberal and Socialist cliques.

Promises Declaration.

Badoglio, in response to petitions asking assurances that liberal and democratic political ideals would prevail from now on, was reported to have promised an early declaration of a "positive nature."

The crux of today's tense situation, as analyzed from all reports, was that Badoglio appeared determined to carry on the war against the Allies in accordance with his original proclamation of last Sunday. To do this he was counting on the army and the huge reserves of materials cached at the big arsenals at Klagenfurt, Austria, which apparently have been placed at his disposal by Germany. This report was confirmed, it was said, by the sudden increase in heavy traffic through the Brenner Pass into Italy.

Official Italian circles, according to other reports reaching here, have made it known that Badoglio hopes, in accordance with his discussions with Nazi leaders, to fight a "slowing down action" against the Allies in Sicily, in order to give the Axis time to extricate itself from the precarious situation created by Mussolini's abrupt removal from power.

Seeking Peace Terms.

Meanwhile, it was reported, discussions are continuing in Vatican City looking toward an armistice despite all denials to the contrary. In this connection Badoglio was said to hope to arrive at terms with the Allies that would not involve occupation of the Italian mainland.

One of the greatest impediments to peace now, so far as Italy is concerned, was said to be Badoglio's reported ambition to win something better than unconditional surrender in order to create an authoritarian regime similar to that of France.

As tension in Italy mounted, reports of revolt and sabotage in Nazi-occupied countries reached Bern.

Hungarian workers in Budapest were reported demonstrating against Germany and demanding a more democratic constitution. The newspaper Pester Lloyd called all Hungarians to "unite solidly in these historic times," and told them that the great demands of the period were work, discipline and a spirit of sacrifice.

Spain Pictures Shift in Italy to Bar Nazi Army

Travelers Say Badoglio Demanded 40 Divisions, Then Decided to Quit War

FOLTZ

MADRID, July 29 (AP).—Accounts of developments in Italy made available today by Italians now at Madrid gave a picture of disagreement and distrust between the Germans and Italians which was said to have halted, at least temporarily, plans for German reinforcement of Italy.

One version described that new Italian Premier, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, as convinced that his government could not continue the war and as having told the German Ambassabor at Rome that the game was up.

[News is taken from Italy to Spain by travelers and newspapers carried by the Italian air line Ala Roma. Some of it may be disseminated for propaganda purposes. Much is not confirmed by other sources.]

Accounts Summarized

A summary of these Italian accounts of events since Badoglio supplanted Benito Mussolini Sunday follows:

King Victor Emmanuel III, Badoglio and Count Galeazzo Ciano, former Foreign Minister and Mussolini's son-in-law, agreed that Mussolini was so identified with Fascism that his downfall meant the collapse of the whole system, and that collapse of the system, in turn, meant that Italy would be unable to continue the war.

German Ambassador Hans-Georg Viktor von Mackensen, who was kept informed of events at the Fascist party grand council meeting Saturday, was called in to confer with Badoglio at the Royal Palace for the first time at 11 a. m. Sunday. By that time, although there was still no public announcement of the crises, rumors of what had taken place at the council meeting already were running through the city and little groups gathered on Rome's sidewalks.

Telephones to Berlin

Mackensen telephoned to Berlin immediately from his embassy reporting on Badoglio's ultimatum—either Berlin would abandon its plan to retire behind the Po valley and would give full support to defense of southern and central Italy, or Italy would sue for peace.

What Mackensen added to that message is not known, but it is probable he even then was able to tell Berlin of the coming complete collapse of Fascism, chaos in Italian transport and the probability that Badoglio himself would not be able to force the Italian army to continue the fight on Germany's side. In any event, he was back at the palace Sunday afternoon with a German pledge to support "within reason" the Badoglio government's defense of southern Italy.

Badoglio told him the Germans might have to send forty divisions to Italy in addition to the estimated twenty already there. That information also was telephoned to Berlin, and Mackensen was forced to return to the palace for a third time to report that while such a quantity of troops was not immediately available, some already were being moved toward the northern frontiers, and Germany pledged the rest.

This statement was said to have aroused Badoglio's suspicions that, in the guise of sending troops and munitions to southern and central Italy, the Germans might be planning to move into the Po valley and stay there.

According to Italian sources, the Marshal therefore asked the German ambassador to bring the forces in slowly and keep them moving. Badoglio then advised his army commanders in northern Italy to watch the movements and keep him advised.

Then the announcement of Mussolini's resignation was made on the nation's radios.

The resulting outburst of enthusiasm, chaos and release of long-pent-up vows of revenge against Fascism, particularly the reaction in northern Italy, was such that by Monday noon reports reaching Mackensen must have been gloomy, from his point of view. Still, he advised Badoglio, who was mainly concerned at the time with keeping order in Milan and other cities, that Germany was sending the necessary reinforcements.

Says Italy Can't Go On

Badoglio, however, needed no further evidence that the war could not be continued by his government nor any other in Italy, and, according to Italian sources, he told Mackensen the game was up. He asked the German Ambassador to halt the flow of German troops, and, just to be sure it was halted, advised the Italian army commanders in northern Italy of his decision.

German commanders of troops moving into northern Italy were reported to have notified their superiors it was not a question of supporting an army that was routed but of occupying an area where the Italian Army was in complete command of the situation and where the people only needed the army's permission to join them in ousting the Germans.

From Monday night, when Mackensen's report reached Berlin, the movement of German troops and munitions into the Po Valley slowed up, and at Rome on Tuesday Badoglio issued orders they be stopped.

On Wednesday the order announcing that the Fascist party was dissolved appeared in the press, after a Cabinet meeting the night before had made the decision. At the same time Badoglio authorized the police to approve all requests for exit permits from German and Japanese officials and private persons, who had been storming police offices since early Monday.

Nazis Send Rommel To Greek Command

Germans Replace Italians In Responsible Posts

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 29.—Coinciding with reports from Turkey that German forces have seized direct military command from Italian troops throughout Greece, the Berlin radio said today that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, former Axis commander in North Africa, had arrived at Salonika.

The German broadcast said pictures published in Berlin newspapers showing Marshal Rommel's arrival ended the "secret" surrounding his whereabouts.

Benito Mussolini's resignation as Italian premier was the signal for Nazi occupying forces to take over all commands formerly held by the Italians, who had been doing a great part of the police work in the rebellious area, dispatches from Istanbul said.

Greece, gateway to the Balkans and a possible invasion route to Germany, has been the target of recent Allied aerial blows aimed at knocking out her Axis-held airports and a heavy attack recently was launched against the island of Crete just off the southeast coast.

Marshal Rommel, whose forces almost reached the Nile Valley a year ago before the British 8th Army broke his drive and drove him back across Africa, was recalled to Berlin just before his armies collapsed and surrendered in Tunisia.

Other reports from Eastern Greece relayed through Istanbul said that Greek administration officers at Salonika, who had functioned under German supervision, had been replaced by Nazi officials shortly after the announcement of Mussolini's resignation.

Those reports attributed the action to Greek jubilation over Mussolini's fall.

Goering Reported in Rome

LONDON, July 29 (AP).—A Moscow broadcast recorded here today said a Tass (Soviet news agency) dispatch from Geneva reported that Reich Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goering was believed to be in Rome.

MILAN CROWDS WANT TOSCANINI TO RETURN

BERN, Switzerland, July 29. — (AP) The Swiss Telegraphic Agency said tonight that Milan's famous opera theater—La Scala—put out welcome signs for Arturo Toscanini, its most famous conductor, who broke with Fascism and is now an exile in the United States.

Demonstrating Milanese residents have painted the facade of the theater with signs saying "Toscanini we await you," "Toscanini must open the new season at La Scala."

All Italian newspapers printed a telegram which the agency said had been sent by the minister of education to Toscanini inviting him to return to Italy. How a telegram could be sent from Italy to the United States was not explained.

(In New York city Toscanini was unavailable for comment. His housekeeper said he and his family had gone to the country for the weekend and could not be reached. (Toscanini, who refused to play the Fascist hymn, Giovinezza, heard the first announcement of Mussolini's resignation Sunday while conducting a radio symphony orchestra concert in New York.)

Rome Made Safe for Nazis

STOCKHOLM, July 29 (AP). — The German military can walk in Rome streets "unhindered again—which wasn't the case on Sunday night," the Rome correspondent of "Stockholm's Tidningen" said in a delayed dispatch published today. He said that Italy's new premier, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, was insisting that German soldiers be "handled correctly."

Reported at Coastal Town

MADRID, July 29 (AP)—Benito Mussolini spent his sixtieth birthday today under guard in an Italian seacoast town not far from the Isle of Elba, Italians in Spain said.

It was not a happy birthday any way the former Duce looked at it. His favorite daughter, Edda, and son-in-law, Count Ciano, were not with him. The count was one of those Fascist leaders who brought about his downfall and was reported to have sought safety in the Vatican with his wife.

The only similarity between Mussolini's position and that of the man who lived on Elba seemed to be geographical. Napoleon made a comeback later, but if Mussolini listened in to world events as broadcast by Rome radio, he must have felt everything he stood for in Italy was dead and gone.

The palace where he was reported held had been prepared for a visit by the royal family before the Sicilian campaign began.

There were rumors of German plots to take Mussolini with them when they moved north through Italy toward the Po Valley, but it seemed unlikely, in view of the outburst of Italian enthusiasm at his resignation, which made him of doubtful value as a symbol.

[In contrast to past years, there was no verbose birthday greeting from Hitler to Mussolini, but the Berlin radio reported a Foreign Office spokesman as saying that "notwithstanding present events, historic and moral justice ordain remembrance of the tremendous creative achievements of this statesman, this revolutionary, this glowing patriot." This pat for Mussolini was said in the broadcast, recorded in New York by The Associated Press, to have been bestowed at a press conference.]

Furthermore Mussolini's guards were professional army soldiers who bore fascism no love and were responsible directly to Marshal Badoglio for his safekeeping.

A Lugano dispatch from the Neue Zuercher Zeitung said that the Fascist editor and zealot, Robert Farinacci, had arrived at Como, near the Swiss frontier.

Gayda, Duce's 'Mouthpiece,' Killed by Mob, Madrid Hears

Well-Known Fascist Writer Was Editor Of Milan Newspaper

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, July 29. — Virginio Gayda, former editor of the Giornale d'Italia and one of the chief spokesmen of Fascism, was one of those killed in Italy during anti-Fascist "revenge hunts" that began shortly after the downfall of Benito Mussolini, according to reports received here from Italy.

(A BBC report, recorded by United States Government monitors, said that Gayda was arrested and charged with high treason. The broadcast, which quoted a Bern report, said Roberto Farinacci, former secretary general of the Fascist party, and Mario Appelius, a Rome radio commentator, also had been arrested. Other editors reported in custody were Giovanni Ansaldo of Count Ciano's Il Telegrafo of Leghorn and the editors of Il Popolo di Roma and La Stampa.)

Enemies of Roberto Farinacci made a determined hunt for him, but the former Fascist party secretary general, who lived in a Rome hotel, slipped out a back room while a mob stormed into the building past his guards, these reports said.

Italians reaching Spain said anti-Fascist demonstrations which surged around the offices of the newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia in Milan following Mussolini's fall had developed into a pitched battle.

A number of Fascist district leaders had gone to the newspaper offices to get news from Rome, they said, and after the announcement of the Duce's resignation a mob formed quickly before the building.

As the mob tried to break through the doors and hurled paving stones through the windows, Fascists inside the building tossed hand grenades at them.

Soldiers were said to have joined the attackers and sniped at the defenders until the commander of the army garrison of Milan arrived with orders from Marshal Badoglio to obtain the surrender of the defenders.

Before he could act, however, the mob, encouraged by the presence of soldiers, rushed the building, broke in and killed the Fascists, the Italian travelers reported.

Cardinal At Palermo Offers Patton Church's Cooperation

Prelate Tells General He Hopes Struggle On Italian Soil Soon Will Be Ended

[By the Associated Press]

Palermo, Sicily, July 26 (Delayed)—Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., commanding United States forces in Sicily, received today from Luigi Cardinal Lavitrino an offer of cooperation by the Catholic Church and the people in occupied territory.

The prelate told the American commander he hoped the struggle on Italian soil would be ended soon.

Patton visited the Cardinal in a near-by city to which he moved some time ago from his town residence because of heavy Allied air raids on Palermo.

Cathedral Not Damaged

His residence has not been damaged, however, nor has the historic Palermo Cathedral.

The Cardinal, who is the Archbishop of Palermo and prelate of the eparchy of Piana Dei Creci, received the general in a small room of the abbey of the Sisters of Charity. He was dressed in ceremonial robes and was surrounded by high church dignitaries.

Patton was accompanied by his deputy commander, Maj. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, and an American colonel of Italian descent who acted as interpreter. They chatted pleasantly for three quarters of an hour.

A return visit is to be made by the Cardinal tomorrow.

Cements Friendly Ties

The meeting between ranking military and religious leaders cemented the friendly cooperation that has existed between the Italian church and the American army since the invasion began.

Italian priests have complied with requests by United States Army civil affairs officers that they explain to their congregations the decrees promulgated by AMGOT—Allied Military Government of Occupied Territory.

Numbers of Italian soldiers in the captured cities have surrendered through the church as an intermediary and others have been yielding their weapons to local priests and bishops who turned them over to Allied military authorities.

BOMBING OF ROME HELD 'SUCCESSFUL'

More Than 1,100 Tons of Explosives Dropped; Railway Lines Disabled.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 29. — (AP) More than 1,100 tons of bombs were dropped on military objectives in the raid on Rome 10 days ago, which was "one of the most successful operations of the war," Allied headquarters announced today.

The attacking force, predominantly American, comprised 500 bombers and 200 fighters, five of which were lost.

Eighty hits were registered on the Littorio railway yards, at least 50 of which struck rolling stock or roadbeds. A railway bridge was hit. A locomotive depot was damaged. A workshop was battered.

Probably even more rolling stock was blown to pieces at the San Lorenzo yards where Flying Fortresses exploded 500-pounders in round-houses, repair shops and freight yard tracks.

Similar damage was reported in Naples where 600 tons of bombs fell on the arsenal, torpedo factory, a textile plant and marshalling yards. Round-houses and turntable areas absorbed 30 direct hits. Most tracks in the northern end of the yards were destroyed.

Headquarters said there was some indication that aerial bombardment had disorganized the Italian railroads to such an extent that the main arteries were broken and urgent war traffic was being diverted to longer inland channels via Foggia.

...n Tours North Africa

...d Headquarters in North ...rica, July 29 (AP)—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson has been touring the North African battlefields, it was disclosed officially today. He stayed at headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and saw a large number of troops in Tunisia.

Roosevelt Son in Naval Action

AN ALLIED COMMAND POST IN SICILY, July 28 (delayed) (AP) —The United States destroyer on which Lieut. Franklin Roosevelt Jr. is serving as executive officer was singled out for a severe attack by German Junkers-88 dive bombers recently off the Sicilian coast, it was disclosed here today. The vessel fought off the planes without receiving a direct hit. Lieutenant Roosevelt, who since has been ashore, was uninjured.

Keyes Is Aide to Patton

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 29 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes is commanding a provisional United States Army Corps on Sicily and is deputy commander to Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., it was stated officially today. It was announced last Saturday that General Keyes was commanding an American unit in the invasion, but not that he was in charge of a corps, which consists of two or more divisions.

GUARIGLIA IS ON WAY TO ITALY FROM TURKEY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 29. — (AP) Raffaele Guariglia, the Italian foreign minister, left by plane today after spending Wednesday seeing former diplomatic colleagues in Turkey, most of whom are vacationing in Istanbul.

Guariglia's stay in Turkey wound up, however, with another long interview with Franz Von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, lasting late into the night. One story sprang up here that the two discussed the possibility Von Papen might soon play in Germany the role of Marshal Badoglio now is filling in Italy.

More likely than this, was a report that Von Papen had an assignment from Berlin to try to delay or weaken whatever effort toward peace for Italy that Guariglia might make.

Turkish Exporters Halt Most Shipments to Italy

Stability of All Nazi Satellite States Held Uncertain

ISTANBUL, July 29 (AP).—Turkish exporters said today they had largely ceased shipments to the Balkan states and Italy because they considered such commerce risky. An Istanbul exporter said the stability of all German satellite states was considered uncertain as a result of the Italian crisis.

Run on Banks Continues

ISTANBUL, July 28 (Delayed) (AP).—A heavy run on Istanbul's two Italian banks which developed Monday, the day after Benito Mussolini's resignation, continued today, and both banks were reported facing a virtual extinction of depositors' funds.

All mementos of Mussolini and Fascism have disappeared from Italian Embassies and Consulates here, as well as from the banks.

Allied Terms Too Drastic, Charges Axis Propaganda

Italy Would Be Wiped Out, Says Berlin Radio; Call Promises Empty.

JUL 30 1943

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rome radio in an English-language broadcast apparently directed at the Allies took the line today that the Allies were demanding too drastic terms for peace—perhaps a bargaining attempt to soften Allied demands.

The broadcast complained that Great Britain wants a "Carthagenian peace"—that is, a peace which would completely wipe out the defeated—and said "Great Britain is fighting against Italy with the aim of not only eliminating but also of destroying Italy as a vital, progressive and history making nation."

"Great Britain wants to pen us up with limited frontieirs, pen up more than 46,000,000 Italians with the intent of strangling them politically and economically."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, continued:

"After such a peace, as Mr. Churchill says, Italy will be allowed to resume her place among the European states. Perhaps the British Prime Minister meant a place in a prison cell.

Sham Target Charged

"Again we note that Fascism was a sham target of British guns. The truth is that the real target is the Italian nation."

The broadcast made the first reference heard from Rome radio to Benito Mussolini since his resignation by saying he had "disappeared."

Referring to Foreign Minister Anthony Eden's statement to the British House of Commons that Italy would not be allowed to retain her North African possessions after an honorable surrender, the broadcast said:

"Please note that Mr. Eden's words were spoke on July 28, three days after the disappearance of Mussolini and after the fall of the Fascist regime."

The broadcast painted Italy as putting up a brilliant fight in its three years of war against overwhelming odds.

Italian Valor Lauded

It said Italy was "a country which on land, on sea and in the air has fought heavily and with a valor which has been recognized by all its adversaries, not those of the radio and the press but those it met on the battle field."

It went on:

"If President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, as they proclaimed at Casablanca, should demand the surrender of an army who after three years of fighting has inflicted telling and heavy blows on forces far superior to their own; on enemy forces coming from the entire British empire; from the whole of the United States and having Greeks, Poles, Serbs and the more or less united Frenchmen as their Allies, what would they have done to a nation, the armies of which had turned their backs on a triumphant march of the enemies' horses?"

A Stefani News agency dispatch, also broadcast from Rome in English and recorded by the Associated Press, said that unconditional surrender was "a formula which is empty of any political sense."

This dispatch, which also seemed to be arguing with the Allies for better peace terms, said that the demand for unconditional surrender is "a fanatic Anglo-Saxon mistake which repeats itself today as yesterday. Our enemies are showing they do not know us and they ignore the Italians.

"The Anglo-Saxons forget that the Italians are fighting also for Europe. The German divisions which are barring on the eastern front the way to invasion of Bolshevism are also fighting for Europe. Today the enemy is on the threshhold of our beautiful territory. Today, for our misfortune and not for our fault, more serious dangers are apt to rise at the horizon but the English must also be aware that a much greater threat hangs over them—the threat of a political defeat of a large extent having consequences much more extended than a territorial invasion or occupation."

King Sole Protagonist

Stefani said that the King is the sole "protagonist of Italian history" and the Italian people "have closed around his dynasty."

The Italians, the broadcast went on, "do not understand empty words because they are depository of a wisdom which goes beyond all contingencies. Cities can be reduced in ashes, houses can be destroyed by the brutal force of machines. But the spirit of the Italian nation, conscious of its history and of its situation in the world, can not be conquered."

F. D. R.'s Speech Rouses Nazis

New York, July 29 (AP)—Dr. Paul Schmidt, head of the press department in the German Foreign Office, said today that President Roosevelt's speech last night convinced him that "Washington's sole aim is annihilation of the national existence of the big European powers and their Allies."

The Nazi official's comment, the first German reaction to the speech, was broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press here.

"The whole talk of fighting for humanity and Democracy against Fascism and National Socialism was nothing but pretext and camouflage," he said, remarking that the war against Italy was continuing despite the "death" of Fascism. "This fight can only end with total annihilation or total victory."

He termed the President's charge that Germany failed to give Italy sufficient military help a "clumsy lie" and said such statements gave the German people a "hearty laugh."

NAZ... IM ITALY'S PO...S 'UNCHANGED'

...SOCIATED PRESS

The ...adio quoted a Rome dispat... as reporting that the new Italian cabinet had met with Premier Marshal Badoglio and 'passed a resolution to the effort that Italy's foreign policy was to remain unchanged."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Italian home policy also was to be conducted "on the same principles as hitherto."

There was no amplification of the meaning and no explanation of how the "same principles" could apply after previous announcements of the banning of Fascism and a changed governmental situation.

Berlin Reports Envoy From Italy Is Missing

New York, July 29 (AP)—A Berlin broadcast said tonight that Dino Alfieri, Italian Ambassador to Berlin, took part in the Fascist Council session in Rome which ousted Mussolini Sunday, but Berlin said he has not returned to his post and added mysteriously "nothing is known here as to his present whereabouts."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, called the council session "historic."

YANKS CAPTURE BASE AT NICOSIA IN SWIFT ADVANCE

JUL 30 19...

Paves Way for Push on Messina; Canadians Meanwhile Overrun Agira.

PERIL AXIS FLANKS

AUG 12 IN

Enemy Communications Cut with Nazis Penned at Catania by British.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 29. — (AP) American and Canadian troops have cracked the mountainous core of the Messina bridgehead to raise hopes tonight of a quick conquest of northeastern Sicily.

In a swift 12-mile overnight advance the Americans captured the inland road junction of Nicosia at the base of the Axis triangle, and the Canadians overran the village of Agira, seven miles to the southeast in a race for the western side of Mount Etna.

The seizure of the two towns threatened to collapse both Axis flanks, the northern one based at Stefano Di Camastro on the Tyrrhenian Sea, and the eastern anchor at Catania on the Ionian sea.

(In Washington Undersecretary of War Patterson said the final conquest of Sicily was "a matter of days.")

Strategic Gains

The two seizures were described as the most important strategical developments of the past week for they cut direct communications between the two Axis flanks, and threatened to cause a general German withdrawal from the Catania area where the British Eighth army long has been tied down in trench warfare.

Fifty miles ahead of the Americans under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., is Tromina, eastern coast city midway between Catania and Messina. The Seventh Army column is beyond Nicosia tonight, striking for the intermediate points of Troina and Randazzo above Mount Etna.

It is estimated that 40,000 Germans are spread between Catania and the north coast along the Mount Etna foothills. The capture of Nicosia and Agira, however, deprived them on means to rush reinforcements into the central area except for circutious coastal roads running through Messina at the northeastern tip of their bridgehead.

The break-through came just when reinforced German divisions had been digging in for a siege, utilizing the natural mountainous defenses.

But General Patton and his corps commander, Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, are old hands at mountain fighting since they walloped the Germans amid the spiny-backed djebels of Tunisia. "Outflank and attack" is their doctrine.

The American spurt through Nicosia was regarded as all the more significant because fresh German troops were awaiting their arrival there, and the Americans had spent weary days in cleaning up central and western Sicily before turning methodically eastward to crack the Axis lines there.

Axis Lines Threatened

Axis positions along the northern and eastern coasts may roll back almost automatically if the American-Canadian drive reaches the road rimming the western side of Mount Etna. The Americans have about 30 miles to go to reach Randazzo, the Canadians about 20 miles for their apparent goal of Adrano farther south.

Stefano di Camastro, the northern anchor, probably will fall soon to another American column pushing along the coast now that Nicosia, 20 miles inland, has been overrun.

While Lieut. General Patton's Americans were fighting through steep, forested hills to take Nicosia, the Canadian Maple Leaf First division made an attack to capture Agira, some seven miles to the southeast, sending the crack 15th

30.24-6677

German armored division reeling back toward Regalbute.

The Canadians, on a road running southwest from Mt. Etna, were only 30 miles from Catania, where the British Eighth army was locked in trench warfare with the Hermann Goering division. The Americans at Nicosia were only some 50 miles from the east coast port of Taormina, halfway between Catania and Messina.

Bayonets Rout Nazis

The Canadians' victory at Agira was gained after prolonged, bloody fighting, in which bayonet charges finally cleaned the Nazi machine-guns out of the town's fortified outskirts. The Americans, on the other hand, outsmarted and outflanked German outposts around Nicosia and made its capture look as easy as the sudden conquest of notorious Hill 609 in Tunisia.

A massive, concerted Allied push against the enemy's shrinking bridgehead on the island is expected to begin within the next few days.

The Americans thrust their armored spearheads deeper into the northern salient yesterday with the capture of Pollina, Castelbuono and Gangi, while the Canadians smashing up from central Sicily throttled Axis communications in that sector by taking the important road junction of Leonforte after bitter fighting.

Plunging eastward along a front of approximately 40 miles, the American forces were less than 75 miles from Messina and were steadily pushing the enemy back toward the parallel range of forests and hills where it was assumed the reinforced Axis armies were preparing to make a desperate stand.

75,000 Prisoners

It was announced that 75,000 Axis prisoners already were in Allied hands, three-quarters of them having been captured by the Americans. A German prisoner was reported to have admitted to his captors that Nazi forces defending Sicily were shooting their Italian allies whenever the Italians attempted to surrender.

Allied headquarters watching the swift tempo of the American and Canadian advance, said the capture of San Stefano and Nicosia would initiate a "critical stage" in the campaign to exterminate the more than 100,000 Axis troops remaining in Sicily.

There was no official word of the stern fighting in progress before Catania, at the eastern anchor of the Axis line, where the British Eighth army has for more than a week been clawing its way into the enemy's stubborn defenses.

An Italian communique described the fighting in the north and center as bitter, with the Allies attacking "more violently, with masses of planes in support."

Allied air forces were taking a hand in the main battle, abandoning targets on the Italian mainland temporarily to bomb and cannonade the enemy's frontline positions, communications, supply depots and shipping. Axis fighter opposition continued almost non-existent, leading Allied observers to express the belief that a serious delay had developed between the production and delivery of enemy planes to the fighting front.

Swarms of fighters and fighter-bombers ranged over the battlefield and immediately behind, pouring steel and explosives on every target they could find. The towns of Regalbute Milazzo and areas around Troina, Cesaro and Randazzo at the foot of Mount Etna were subjected to a series of day-long attacks. Axis fighter opposition continued almost non-existent, leading Allied observers to express the belief that a serious delay had developed between the production and delivery of enemy planes to the fighting front.

Five Lost In Rome Raid

It was announced that of 500 Allied bombers and 200 fighters that dropped more than 1,100 tons of bombs on military targets in Rome July 19 only five were lost. The Rome raid was described officially as "one of the most successful of the war," with the raiding planes meeting practically no opposition.

Military observers estimated that Axis forces defending the Mount Etna line are composed of some 70,000 German troops and several good Italian divisions which escaped from the Americans' lightning conquest of the western part of the island.

Bring In Reinforcements

The enemy still was bringing reinforcements, however. German parachute battalions were among the latest arrivals and they were reported to be resisting with a fanatical fury reminiscent of the Japanese. In one instance, 250 of these troops were surrounded in a small area and more than 200 died before the remainder quit.

One of those taken prisoner suddenly grabbed a British officer's hand and bit it through, while another spat in the face of an intelligence officer during an interrogation.

In addition to fighting with a cold fury, the Nazis were strewing tens of thousands of mines in the path of the invaders and using demolition tactics to slow the Allied advance.

Heavy Casualties Are Inflicted on Retreating Axis

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 29.—American and Canadian troops, pushing steadily into Northeastern Sicily under strong aerial support, have captured four more towns, including the vital central road junction of Leonforte, and have inflicted heavy casualties on retreating Axis forces, the Allies announced today.

Canadian columns smashed their way into Leonforte, 8 miles northeast of Enna, in fierce fighting while the American 7th Army, pounding eastward along the coast from Palermo, captured the towns of Pollina, Castelbuono and Gangi.

With the occupation of Pollina, representing a one-day advance of about 8 miles from the port of Cefalu, which was taken the previous day, the American armored spearhead had reached a point only 75 miles from Messina, jumping-off place for Axis forces defending the island.

Drive Progressing Steadily.

Castelbuono and Gangi are inland towns, on an approximate line between Pollina and Leonforte, and announcement of their fall disclosed that the American-Candian eastward push was a co-ordinated, dovetailing advance that the enemy apparently was powerless to stop.

Today's brief Allied communique telling of the "steady progress" of this drive made no mention of the fighting around Catania, southern anchor of the Axis Mount Etna defense line, where the British 8th Army has been stalled against the enemy's stubborn defense for nearly a week.

The right wing of the American onrush over a 40-mile front was about 12 miles from Leonforte, from which the Canadians were driving forward.

Beating back elite regiments of the 15th German Armored Division, the Canadians found Nazi dead piled in heaps on the outskirts of one unnamed city, an official report said.

Capture of Leonforte cut the important north-south highway, which is well behind Axis lines on the north coast and has been a major artery for movements of troops between the enemy center and left wing.

Nazis Reported Killing Italians.

A German prisoner was officially reported to have said that the Nazis were killing their Italian allies whenever the latter attempted to surrender.

San Stefano, northern anchor of the Axis defense line, is 10 miles east of the American forward elements. This town and Nicosia, 7 miles east of Leonforte, are the next key points along the American and Canadian advance. Their capture virtually would clear the entire central and northern areas of the Etna Line and initiate the final critical stage of the campaign in the complex foothills and mountains near Messina.

(The German radio reported today that Axis forces had abandoned Nicosia.)

Today's Allied communique said "fierce fighting continues on the on the enemy. Steady progress is being made. The town of Leonforte is now in our hands.

"In the north the advance of the (American) 7th Army continues and the towns of Pollina, Castelbuono and Gangi have been captured."

American Flyers Busy.

American Invader and Warhawk planes subjected enemy defenses and communications to heavy assaults yesterday and were credited with the destruction of at least 30 motor vehicles.

(The Italian high command said in a communique broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press that Allied pressure in central and northern sectors of Sicily had been renewed "more violently, with masses of planes in support." It described the fighting as bitter.)

Medium bombers hammered Regalbuto, important tactical position at the center of the Axis line, and Milazzo. The air forces concentrated mainly along the battle zone and against enemy supply points in Sicily. Ground forces were getting heavier air support.

Meanwhile a recapitulation of reports of the Rome raid said it was "one of the most successful of the war."

Ships Bombed at Mainland City.

Towns and roads around the base of Mount Etna, near the east coast north of Catania, received the heaviest fire from Allied fighters and fighter-bombers.

Hits were scored on an Axis merchantman at Riposto and barges and landing craft were bombed at Reggio Calabria, mainland city on the Strait of Messina.

(The Rome communique said Allied airmen raided the suburbs of Naples and localities in Salerno Province, southeast of that major port. It said "the damage caused was slight and casualties were few." In all operations, the bulletin said, 12 Allied aircraft were shot down.

(German bombers were reported by the Italian communique to have damaged six Allied merchantmen, totaling 29,000 tons, during a night attack on Gela, Allied-occupied port of Southern Sicily.)

A Middle East air communique issued in Cairo said RAF fighter planes damaged two enemy merchant vessels yesterday in patrols over the Aegean Sea, leaving one burning and the other riddled with cannon fire.

The announcement also said that British aircraft had sunk three enemy schooners and damaged two others in the Ionian Sea Tuesday.

All planes returned from the sweeps, the communique added.

RUSSIANS FORCE NAZIS TO YIELD 6 MILES AT OREL

Desperate Germans Reported Using Reserves from France and Reich.

FEAR ENTRAPMENT

Red Artillery and Cavalry Press Fight in Rain, Slay 3,300 of Foe.

LONDON, Friday, July 30—(AP) German units from as far as France and Germany rushed into the threatened Orel sector of the Russian front today as the formidable Red artillery pounded the drenched countryside and Russian cavalry charged through the mud to batter the weary German defenders, who were pushed back six miles and pried from 40 villages.

The Soviet midnight communique giving these new details said the Germans were snatching reinforcements from every available front in their determination to prevent a major debacle at Orel, a keystone in the entire German defenses.

The communique described them as "march battalions", a German expression meaning troops hurriedly organized and sent to the front before completing their full training.

More than 3,300 Germans were killed in the Orel fighting yesterday as the battle burned brightly despite the rain and muck that sent troops floundering and splashing in attack and counter-attack.

Cavalry Press On

One Red army cavalry unit smashed through weary German defenders at three strongly fortified places north of Orel. The Germans ran, leaving behind them 600 of their dead comrades and large quantities of arms, the communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said.

In another sector a regiment of German infantry, supported by 30 tanks, made two attempts to counter-attack. They were met by a hail of Soviet fire and gave up their attempt after 10 German tanks were disabled or burnt out and a battalion of men lay dead.

South of Orel the Russians took to the offensive again and in one sector 1,500 Germans were killed as the Red troops moved on. In another sector the Germans took cover behind a water barrier and covered the front with protecting fire. The Soviet troops crossed the river and captured the German occupied areas with a loss to the defenders of 400 dead, 16 ammunition dumps and other materials.

Projectiles and massed big guns, one of Russia's most effective weapons in the present war, were described by a German war reporter as "cursed Russian artillery fire." The report, broadcast by Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said the Russians were "waging a war of attrition against us. They try to make us lose our nerve in this artillery duel. Shells are whistling over our heads. Our tank grenadiers stand up to it all."

Weaken in Belgorod Sector

In the Belgorod direction, south of Orel, weakened German morale was indicated by the Soviet communique. Red reconnaissance groups were conducting active operations when a large force of Germans, taking a raid by scouts to be an attack, began to take flight. The scouts wiped out 60 Germans until the infantry arrived to help them in the unexpected victory and together they took over a populated place.

In another sector of this front three German counter-attacks beat vainly at the Russian defenses until it receded, defeated, leaving the battlefield littered with abandoned equipment.

One machine gunner in the Donets Basin area where operations were confined to reconnaissance, the communique said, killed 40 Germans when a Nazi automatic rifle company tried a flanking movement. The rest of the Germans backed down.

Artillery and mortar units poured shell after shell into defense fortifications at the Leningrad front. They demolished 36 blockhouses and blew up ammunition and fuel dumps. Soviet airmen aided the drive by bombing five German troop trains.

Battle in Trenches

On the northwestern front between Leningrad and Moscow a scene reminiscent of the World war trench fighting in France was described by the communique. First artillery fire battered at an enemy resistance center. Suddenly the barrage lifted and transferred to the depth of the German defense. Red troops poured from their hiding places and broke into the German trenches where a hand-to-hand battle began. Over 100 Germans were wiped out in the attack and equipment and prisoners captured.

Thirty-eight more German tanks were knocked out and 63 planes shot down Wednesday, a special Soviet communique announced earlier.

A Moscow dispatch said the Germans were pulling guns and supplies by hand in places where the clinging mud had bogged down machines and even mules.

The capture of the railroad town of Stanovoy Kolodets on the line leading to Kursk placed Russian siege forces 11 miles southeast of Orel. Other forces were within eight miles on the east and north. A column aimed at the lone remaining German railway to Bryansk was meeting desperate resistance five miles north of the line. One report said Russian patrols had torn up sections of the railway in darting hit-and-run attacks.

German Lines "Swaying"

The Germans said officially their lines were "swaying" at Orel.

Their communique, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, asserted:

"At several points of the Orel sector, the bulk of our troops, supported by strong German Air Force formations, were fighting a heavy defensive battle the whole day (Wednesday). All enemy attempts at a break through were repulsed after a swaying battle." The communique said 186 Russian tanks were destroyed, 100 on a single sector north of Orel.

Sharp fighting continued on the Leningrad front at the top of the Russian-German battlefield and Moscow dispatches said the combats possibly were turning into a major battle. Elsewhere the Germans acknowledged local Russian gains, saying Soviet attacks "were repulsed partly in very embittered fighting or in counterthrusts." These engagements apparently referred to Russian pressure in the Belgorod area 50 miles north of Kharkov, along the Sea of Azov near Taganrog, in the Donets Basin of the eastern Ukraine and in the northwest Caucasus around Novorossisk.

Outer Nazi Defenses Of Orel Base Pierced By Reds From South

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 29.—The Russian column advancing on Orel from the south drove over the bodies of 1,500 Germans yesterday to force that claw of the giant pincers tighter about the vital city and keep pace with the northern and eastern onslaughts, the Russians said today.

Front-line dispatches indicated the masses of Red Army troops and tanks, in general advances of from 2½ to 4 miles, now had battered down the Germans' outer hedgehog defense systems and were storming the enemy bastion's strongest defenses.

Stanovoy Kolodets, railway station 11 miles southeast of Orel, fell to the Russians yesterday, a communique said.

Other Columns Advance.

Russian advices said the column advancing on Orel from the north was fighting its way through swamps and across streams raised to flood stage by recent rains.

The going was said to be heavy and the Russians acknowledged that the offensive in this area had inevitably been slowed down, but declared that even so the advance was continuing.

The Russian half-circle thrown about the bitterly resisting German Army last was reported nearest the city on the north, where it encompassed Optukha. The column attacking frontally from the east had overrun Zolatarevo at last reports, 13 miles away.

The Germans also threw fresh, newly-arrived reserves into the battles north and east of Orel yesterday, the Russians said, but reported that although the Nazis counterattacked stubbornly and fought viciously the Red Army retained the initiative at all points.

29 Tanks Blasted.

Altogther, the Russians said they overran 30 occupied places, left more than 2,500 dead upon the field and knocked out 29 German tanks yesterday in the Orel sector alone.

(The Berlin radio yesterday acknowledged the German withdrawal from Bolkhov, 31 miles above Orel, which the Russians announced last week they had captured. It was evacuated, the broadcast said, as a part of their "elastically conducted defense fighting."

(Another German broadcast attributed the Russian successes to "greatly superior" forces but said the Red Army had been unable to pierce German positions either at Orel or east of Leningrad. It also said 164 Russian tanks were knocked out in Tuesday's fighting.)

The Russian communique said that Soviet forces had maintained their steady pressure against the Germans in the Belgorod region of the Upper Donets River, in the Donets Basin, and on the Northern Leningrad front, where it reported a heavy artillery barrage had demolished blockhouses and silenced enemy gunners.

Six German planes were downed in aerial combat and three were destroyed by antiaircraft fire in the Leningrad area, the Russians said.

Correspondent Reports A Big Change After Leave Of Six Months

AUG 1 1943

Vegetable Gardens Planted In All Available Parks And Back Yards

Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press chief of bureau in Moscow and author of "Moscow Dateline," has returned from New York to the Russian capital after six months leave. This dispatch tells of transformations in the Soviet Union since he left.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, July 29—The Soviet Union in the six months since the battle of Stalingrad has changed from a grim nation struggling desperately for life to a cheerful country fighting confidently for victory.

The transition becomes apparent in a roundtrip such as I made from Moscow to New York last February after the battle of Stalingrad and now back to Moscow.

It is apparent all through Russia from Baku in the south through Kuibyshev on the Volga to Moscow.

For Russians, Stalingrad evidently has become the turning point of the war.

It is symbolized by the yard beneath my window.

Cabbage In Yard

In February the yard was covered by dirty snow across which pathetic women hauled wood to take the chill off freezing rooms.

Now the yard is almost filled by a cabbage patch around which shouting children play hide and seek.

The Russians do not seem overconfident. They realize a bitter struggle is ahead. Those to whom I have talked do not even think the war will end very soon. They know preparations already have been made for the winter campaign. They think the end will come next year.

The victory at Stalingrad and the collapse of the German summer offensive, as well as the Allied conquest of Tunisia, the invasion of Sicily and the departure of Mussolini, all have had a cheering effect which now is the most striking change in everyday Russian life.

Noticeable On Landing

It is noticeable immediately upon landing at Baku. There, the tension which accompanied last year's German penetration of the Caucasus has disappeared. A smiling woman customs inspector looks through baggage, wise-cracking about chewing gum in American suitcases. Around the airfield, pumps of oil wells churn and chimneys of refineries smoke peacefully.

Between Baku and Kuibyshev, wheat fields ripple in the breeze ripening fast under the summer sun. The signs of the battle which were fought over these fields last summer already have been largely erased, although Stalingrad remains a blackened monument of ruins.

Stalingrad has become a temporary tent city for thousands of laborers in reconstruction.

Accustomed To Role

Kuibyshev, a provincial town which suddenly became the seat of the diplomatic corps and a large industrial center in 1941, now has become accustomed to its metropolitan role. While the leading American and British envoys have returned to Moscow, others, including the Japanese and Bulgarians, conduct their normal work from Kuibyshev.

Factories, which were transplanted from the west, now are solidly established on the Volga and surrounded by neat new housing colonies for workers.

Everywhere, the newest feature of the Russian countryside is the Soviet counterpart of American victory gardens. While the eastern cities have been industrialized, Moscow has gone agricultural.

Parks Are Planted

Yards, parks and all available open spaces of the capital have been planted to potatoes, cabbage, carrots, cucumbers, onions and sunflowers, the seed of which provide the Russian version of chewing gum. Chickens scratch the country yards of the American Embassy opposite the Kremlin.

The produce from gardens already has done much to relieve what threatened to be a serious food shortage. The people are now getting vegetables from their own plots while American lard and butter in the stores help swell their meager larders.

Food still is the uppermost question in the Soviet Union, but the people seem to think they will overcome this just as they overcame the Germans.

Two Airplane Plants In Central Germany Hit by 'Fortresses'

60 Nazi Fighters Downed In Raid That Cost 23 Big American Bombers

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 29.—Boldly defying Hitler's fading air strength, swarms of American Flying Fortresses flew unescorted and in broad daylight yesterday to within 80 miles of Berlin to smash the Nazi aircraft plant at Oschersleben.

Kassel, site of a big Focke-Wulf assembly plant, about 200 miles southwest of Berlin, also was battered by the big American bombers, which were reported to have shot down upward of 60 Nazi fighters attempting to beat them off. The Americans lost 23 bombers during the round-trip of more than 1,000 miles, a communique said. One Allied fighter plane also was lost.

Squadrons of RAF fighters crossed and recrossed the Channel this morning in a continuation of widespread sweeps over Northern France and Belgium, and later Allied bombers headed over the coast with more squadrons of fighters.

British fighters destroyed three enemy fighters this morning without loss.

The Oschersleben raid was the deepest American daylight thrust of the war into Germany.

British Strike Again.

Indicating that the round-the-clock bombings had extended into last night, the Berlin radio reported today that British planes had made scattered "nuisance raids" on Northwestern Germany during the night. There was no immediate confirmation.

The American blow at enemy aircraft production followed a night raid by the RAF on smoldering Hamburg, in which more than 2,300 long tons were loosed—the greatest bomb load in history.

The raid on Hamburg, submarine center and North German industrial port, was the sixth on that city in a series of American and British day and night attacks which began Saturday night.

In bombing Oschersleben, the American Fortresses flew almost 200 miles into the German territory Hitler once said would never feel the shock of an enemy bomb.

Raids Successful.

"Bomb bursts were seen in both target areas," said a joint United States-British communique of the Kassel and Oschersleben raids.

The big planes were picked up on their return trip by escorting American Thunderbolts and other Allied fighters. The Thunderbolts alone shot down nine Nazi fighters, to bring the day's total to more than 69 German planes.

It was the fourth long sweep in five days for the Fortresses and most of the German fighters stayed out of range of their massed fire power.

Returning RAF pilots said Tuesday night's raid on Hamburg lasted 45 minutes and was "even more destructive than previous raids on the port." The raiders encountered smoke from the stricken city rising almost 5 miles and said that fire glows were visible for 200 miles.

Great Damage to Hamburg.

Photographs of the seared city made on Tuesday, before the RAF went back that night to finish the job, revealed great damage and fires still licking the docks, the Air Ministry said. At least nine "very important buildings" were hit in the submarine yards, the announcement said, and damage done the city of more than 1,000,000 population even before the Tuesday night raid extended to hundreds of acres.

American medium bombers also were active over France and Belgium yesterday, attacking industrial targets and airfields, and Spitfire squadrons strafed the Dutch coast.

German raiders again hit back weakly at Britain last night, dropping bombs on "one or two points" in East Anglia. London had a brief air alert. An Air Ministry and Home Security communique said that damage was slight and no casualties resulted.

U. S. Fortresses Bomb Kiel, Heinkel Plant

Blast Way Deep Into Germany; Shoot Down 30 Enemy Planes.

AUG 1943

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, July 29.—(AP) Strong formations of Flying Fortresses hacking their way through Nazi fighter packs deep inside Germany rained explosives on the Kiel U-boat slips and the Heinkel aircraft factory at Warnemuende on the Baltic today and shot down more than 30 enemy planes.

"Good bombing results were observed on both targets," the U. S. Army Headquarters communique said. Ten heavy American bombers were lost.

"Fairly strong fighter opposition was encountered by the unescorted Fortresses at Kiel, but there was little opposition at Warnemuende," the bulletin added. "Preliminary claims totalled more than 30 enemy fighters destroyed by the bombers."

Tide Turning

Brig. Gen. Frederick L. Anderson, chief of the 8th Air Force Bomber Command, declared: "The battle of Germany is swinging in our favor."

General Anderson said that more than 200 German fighters had been destroyed since Saturday in addition to many more probably destroyed or damaged.

Returning crewmen said the tight-flying bombers encountered most of their opposition on the homeward flight, the Nazis attacking in great packs in the sunlit summer sky.

American Thunderbolts, R.A.F., Dominion, and Allied Spitfires supported the big target-busters part of the way to and from Germany, and Canadian fighters knocked down three German planes.

Late today Boston and Typhoon bombers attacked a power station near Rouen and an airfield at Mervinne in France, and U. S. medium bombers struck an airfield at Fortruge near St. Omer.

Escorting Norwegian Spitfire pilots knocked down two enemy fighters.

From these subsidiary operations three Allied fighters were missing.

Missing Fliers Saved

Some of the Fortress crews missing from previous raids over northern Germany have been rescued, the Air Ministry said tonight.

At least 49 Americans were picked up from the North Sea and landed in the 50 hours ending the evening of July 27.

The ministry said that more than 200 British aircraft as well as American planes searched by day and night for crews of lost planes and guarded dinghies and lifeboats from enemy interference in the greatest air-sea rescue operations of the war.

Most of the rescued airmen were more than 100 miles from England when found. One crew of nine Americans was saved by a lifeboat dropped by parachute only 60 miles from the German-held Danish coast.

Another crew of nine had been picked up by a foreign trawler which headed for the European coast. But the guns of a British Halifax "persuaded" the trawler to turn about and go to England, the ministry said.

The double assault was the fifth in six days by United States heavy bombers and followed raids yesterday in which Flying Fortresses flew unescorted to within 80 miles of Berlin and battered the aircraft factory at Oschersleben among other targets. They flew about 50 miles farther to hit Warnemuende today.

The bombers were less numerous than the great fleets that have shattered Hamburg and Essen in three nights this week with four times the 1,500 tons the Luftwaffe dropped on all Britain in the first six months of this year.

The Air Ministry News Service, contrasting the Allied raids against Germany with the attacks on Britain during the week ended at dawn Wednesday, said the R.A.F. Bomber Command dropped "some 7,000 tons of bombs upon Hamburg, Essen and other targets in Germany alone with an average loss of less than three per cent of the bombers engaged" in those seven days and nights.

German Losses Heavy

The Luftwaffe in the same period lost 15 per cent of the small force that crossed the coast of Britain, and German bombs failed to inflict a casualty and caused "only the most trivial damage," the News Service said.

In the same week, R.A.F. fighters made "some 2,000" day and night sorties and destroyed 33 aircraft at a cost of 21.

As to the U. S. raids, the Berlin radio in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press acknowledged that one attack on Hamburg was "very heavy" but withheld details. The broadcast maintained that some U. S. attacks were "against open places in the country" and "of no purpose."

The Berlin version was that as of Wednesday, 35 U. S. four-engined bombers had been shot down in Germany and "German fighters lost nine planes."

CAIRO, July 29 (AP).—Royal Air Force fighter planes damaged two enemy merchant vessels yesterday in patrols over the Aegean Sea, leaving one burning and the other riddled with cannon fire, a Middle East air communique announced today. DANGLES IN SPACE TO LOOSEN BOMBS

Gunner Risks Life To Save Fortress And Crew In Warnemuende Raid

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 29—One of the oldest gunners of the Eighth Air Force figured today in a breathtaking incident which saved a Flying Fortress and possibly the lives of all the crew during the bombing of Warnemuende.

He is Sergt. Joseph L. Baya, of Jacksonville, Fla., 41, waistgunner on the "Double Trouble" who volunteered to risk his life by being suspended in the bomb bay to release incendiary bombs with a screwdriver.

Flak Severs Cable

"When we went in over the target a piece of flak severed the control cable to the bomb release, making it impossible to work it electrically," said the pilot, Lieut. Heyward V. Simpson, of Anderson, South Carolina.

"Due to the limited gas supply it was impossible to get back without those bombs having been unloaded."

This was where Baya, whose hair is graying around the edges, stepped up to become a hero.

Held By Parachute Strap

With the bomb bay doors open and with two fellow-crewmen holding him by his parachute strap, Baya dropped through the hatch and tripped the bomb releases. Above him the strap was held by Lieut. Alfonso J. Amato, of 249 Humpert, New Haven, Conn., the bombardier, and Sergt. Richard J Riley, radio gunner, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Baya dangled there below the ship's belly over the Baltic for fifteen minutes.

It was necessary to repeat the operation many times, and each time he cut one loose he had to wiggle out of the way of the falling bomb.

FIGHTER COMMANDER DESTROYS TWO NAZIS

LONDON, July 29.—(AP) A 39-year-old American fighter group commander scored a double victory over German fighters yesterday knocking down two, U. S. Army headquarters announced today.

Colonel Edward W. Anderson, Long Beach, Calif., shot down the two German fighters while covering Flying Fortresses returning from a raid on Central Germany.

Anderson's formation of Thunderbolts saw a group of Nazi fighters attacking a lame Fortress separated from its formation. He and his wing man, Captain Carl H. Miley, Toledo, Ohio, tore into the swarming Germans and Miley scored his first victory getting a ME-109E. Anderson dived under the Fortress to pour bursts into the German planes which were seen to go down.

Six other United States Thunderbolt pilots shot down German planes yesterday.

Previous doubles were scored by First Lieuts. August V. Ganaro, New Haven, Conn., and Ernest Beattie, Albany, Ga.

Brauchitsch Reported Confined By Nazis

London, July 29 (AP)—Reuters said a Tass dispatch received in Stockholm today reported that Field Marshal General Walther von Brauchitsch, former commander in chief of the Germany army, had been confined in a fortress by the Nazi Government.

Von Brauchitsch frequently has been reported at odds with Hitler. He was reported in 1941 to have been fired from the supreme German command, but advices received last summer said he had been restored. Last December he was reported to be the leader of a military clique bent on "isolating" Hitler and making peace with the Allies.

All the other 15 persons aboard the plane were injured.

Pope Sends $20,000 To Malta

London, July 29 (AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Valletta said today Pope Pius XII had sent $20,000 to the Archbishop of Malta for relief of war victims on that British island. Last March the Pope sent a similar sum for reconstruction of Maltese churches damaged by Axis raids, it said.

England Spots Fly In Ointment

London, Friday, July 30 (AP)—Britain's manpower problem, already a pain in the head, would be aggravated if Italy surrendered on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's terms allowing Italian prisoners to go home.

The Italians in England have been a big help on the farms. And many of them have been so happy they would like to bring their families here instead of returning to Italy.

Their release would force Ernest Bevin, minister of Labor and National Service, to reconsider his decision to stop recruiting for the women's land army.

CHELSEA SAILOR KILLED

BELFAST, July 29 — (AP) Howard N. Marshall, 42, a shipfitter third class of Chelsea, Mass., was killed in an accident, details of which were withheld, while returning from leave to the U. DROUGHT IS REPORTED HITTING FRENCH CROPS

BERN, Switzerland, July 29.—(AP) A Paris dispatch in Le Petit Dauphinois quoted Minister of Agriculture and Food Bonnafus today as saying a drought was spreading throughout France and in the south was reaching "disastrous" proportions.

In the Toulon area the drought's equal has not been seen in a hundred years, the dispatch said.

The country's already severe food problem was described as aggravated by the "deplorable" lack of fodder and vegetables. Dauphinois also reported from Paris that 65 restaurants were closed in the city during the week for violating food price laws.

Lisbon Reports End of Strikes And Riots Over Food Shortage

LISBON, July 29 (AP).—Rioting and three days of strikes by tens of thousands of Portuguese workers over the shortage of food for the working classes have ended, it was announced today.

The Portuguese government censorship released news of the strikes and rioting after three days of silence.

[The British radio, quoting a message from Lisbon, said "the Portuguese War Minister ordered the strikers to be arrested and inducted into special labor battalions." The broadcast, recorded by the Columbia Broadcasting System did not indicate whether the strikes had any connection with the events in Italy.

[A United Press dispatch from Lisbon said that because of "sporadic and unlawful" paralyzations of work in some factories, a special delegate was appointed in the War Ministry to enforce mornal service in the factories by applying penalties.]

The strikes started in Barreiro, on the south bank of the Tagus River—a heavy industrial area. All telephone communication with Lisbon, a short distance away, was cut, and until the morning newspapers today carried stories of the strikes few citizens of the capital knew of the situation.

Women and children led in the rioting over the lack of olive oil, codfish, potatoes and rice. It was quelled by police and soldiers who mounted machine guns in the streets. Hundreds were arrested and taken to prisons in street cars.

U. S. Airmen in China Smash 57 Enemy Planes

Destroy 8 Bombers in 4-Day Attack on Airfields

CHUNGKING, July 29 (AP).—American airmen destroyed at least eight Japanese bombers and forty-nine fighters in a powerful offensive, during which enemy airdromes at Hankow, Hainan Island, and Hongkong were attacked in the four days ending Tuesday, Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today. Forty-two other enemy planes probably were destroyed, the announcement said.

Fourteenth Air Force losses were one pilot killed in combat, one plane destroyed and two other planes lost by enemy action in both offensive and defensive operations in the period July 23-27, inclusive.

Liberators two days ago concentrated their action against shipping in Samah Bay, Hainan Island, scoring direct hits on ships of 3,500 and 6,000 tons and near misses against a 250-foot vessel, and bombing warehouses and dock installations.

A day later B-25 Mitchells and P-40 Warhawks attacked Japanese military installations at Hongkong. The headquarters announcement said only that they caused damage.

Yanks Sink Jap Ship After 800-Mile Foray

Enemy Radio Station On Diamond Island Hit

By the Associated Press.

NEW DELHI, July 29.—Cruising 800 miles deep into Japanese-held territory, American Liberator bombers from India sank a 250-foot enemy merchant ship off Tavoy Island, south of Thailand, a United States Army Air Force communique reported today.

Flights of B-24s also shot up a flat-topped vessel about 175 feet long, 30 miles north of Pagoda Point in Burma, the communique said, but did not make it clear whether the ship was an aircraft carrier of not.

Other B-24s deluged a Japanese radio station on Diamond Island with high explosives and bombed Japanese installations at Kaingthaung at the mouth of the Irrawaddy. A building on Diamond Island was destroyed.

Medium bombers scored hits on the runway at an airfield on Pagoda Point.

During the day's operations one Japanese fighter was destroyed and another damaged.

Evidence of the growing strength of the American air forces attacking Burma came in the Tavoy Island raid. The island is about 800 miles from the nearest Allied airfield. The ship sank in three minutes.

PINCERS SQUEEZING SLOWLY ON MUNDA

Gen. MacArthur Says Drive Is Going Satisfactorily— 200 Yards Gained

SECOND DESTROYER SUNK

Enemy Admits Sinking of One Sharp Struggles Taking Place Near Salamaua

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Friday, July 30 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today that American troops had made further advances on the Japanese air base at Munda, New Georgia, and declared the campaign against the strategic position in the central Solomons was progressing satisfactorily and according to plan.

The enemy's supply has been cut to the very bone by ceaseless pounding from the air and sea, said the commanding general.

A spokesman at headquarters said the new advance had carried the Americans to within 1,900 yards of the airdrome—a gain of 200 yards since Tuesday. It was a substantial advance, inasmuch as the Japanese are defending stubbornly every inch against the attacking soldiers and mariness.

Meanwhile, further details of an attack on Japanese shipping off Cape Gloucester, New Britain, Wednesday and Thursday, disclosed that a second enemy destroyer had been sunk by Allied medium bombers. Another destroyer and a transport, which previously had been reported burning fiercely after being attacked by bombers, were beached.

"Two of eleven enemy fighters endeavoring to protect the convoy were shot down," the communiqué said. "The following morning our bombers again attacked and demolished the grounded destroyer.

"The other vessel was observed beached and still burning and has become a wreck.

"Escorting fighters shot down an enemy reconnaissance plane. The enemy's total loss amounted to two destroyers and one transport sunk or destroyed and three planes shot down."

Salamaua Heavily Bombed

Salamaua, the large Japanese base on Huon Gulf, New Guinea, was subjected to a concentrated attack by Allied medium and heavy bombers that placed ninety-four tons of fragmentation and demolition bombs on enemy installations in seventeen minutes.

"The building areas were extensively damaged and defensive positions hit," the communiqué said. "Numerous explosions and fires visible for forty miles resulted."

Sharp ground fighting broke out at Bobdubi, five miles southwest of Salamaua, and in the area northeast of Tambu Bay.

Two-engined bombers, in a night attack, dropped bombs directly on parked motor transports, on the barracks and airdrome installations at Kupang and the adjoining Penfu airdrome on Timor. Heavy explosions resulted and fires were visible fifty miles.

In the Tanimbar Islands, 3,000 miles north of Darwin, long-range fighters heavily strafed enemy-

200-Yard Gain Made at Munda By Americans

U. S. Bombers Hit 50 Yards Ahead of Troops in Slow, Bitter Jungle Warfare

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 30 (Friday).—American soldiers and marines, fighting bitterly for every inch of ground, have made new short advances upon the strategic Japanese air base at Munda, New Georgia.

A communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the Americans were increasing their encircling pressure and had moved forward against determined resistance by the enemy from strongly prepared positions.

It was the first progress reported since Tuesday, when the Americans edged forward to within 2,100 yards of the airdrome. A spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters said that the new advance carried the Americans to within 1,900 yards of the airfield.

General MacArthur said today the campaign against the Japanese airbase at Munda is progressing satisfactorily and according to plan. The enemy's supply has been cut to the very bone by ceaseless pounding from the air and sea, the supreme commander of the Southwest Pacific forces declared.

WITH UNITED STATES INVASION FORCES OUTSIDE MUNDA, New Georgia, July 26, (Delayed) (AP).—American soldiers and Marines have fought their way to within sight of their goal, the Munda airfield, but it may be well into next month before a foothold is secured.

The troops are pressing forward in the face of indescribable conditions, and are slowly approaching Lambeti Plantation en ruote to the besieged Japanese garrison at Munda.

The terrain and undergrowth are the worst yet encountered. A daily gain of 200 yards is considered remarkable, as against miles traversed in European and African sorties.

The Nipponese, entrenched in the hills, cover the defiles between the attacking forces and the objective. As our men creep forward foot by foot, yard by yard rod by rod, mortars and heavy and light machine guns rake our positions with fire, slowing up our progress.

There is no doubt in this observer's mind that Munda will be a tough nut to crack. The most optimistic forecasts point past Aug. 1 before the edge of the air base can be gained. It may be mid-August before we gain a foothold.

Munda Hero, Shot Six Times, Refuses to Quit

Lieut. Sarcona, of New York, Destroys Japanese Gun Nests, Then Gets First Aid

WITH UNITED STATES INVASION FORCES OUTSIDE MUNDA, July 23 (Delayed) (AP).—Second Lieutenant Joseph Sarcona, of New York City, is a hard man to stop. The Japanese found out a half dozen or more bullet wounds weren't enough to put the American officer out of action in the bitter fighting for Munda on New Georgia Island.

Leading a platoon against strong Nipponese positions protected by machine guns, Sarcona was wounded by two bullets. But he continued his advance.

Within a few yards, two more bulets struck him. He never faltered. Instead, he continued to storm pill boxes. Just as he reached his objective, another pair of Japanese slugs struck him.

Twelve hours after receiving his first wound, the last machine-gun emplacement assigned his platoon had fallen. Then Sarcona walked unaided 300 yards to a medical-aid station and after treatment had to be forcibly evacuated.

Surgeons said he would recover.

Parents Proud of Son

Lieutenant Sarcona is a son of Rosaria and Angelina Sarcona, of 225-15 Ninety-fifth Avenue, Bellerose, Queens. He is twenty-eight years old, was born in Brooklyn and was graduated from Sewanhaka High School, Stewart Manor, Queens. He was an accountant before being inducted into the Army on April 1, 1941.

His parents, of Italian descent, received with quiet pride yesterday the news of their son's heroism. They said they were proud of him, but "oh, how we wish he was home." Mr. and Mrs. Sarcona live in a neat brick house surrounded by shrubbery. Another son, Casper, twenty-five, also a second lieutenant, is stationed at the Officers School at Fort Sill, Okla., as an instructor. A third son, Jack, twenty-three, is married and works for the Sperry Gyroscope Company.

BRIDGEPORT FLIER BOMBS JAP SHIP

Lieut. Robert Morris Scores Near Hit in First Try at Destroyer.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, July 28.—(Delayed)—(AP) A veteran pilot and navigator, with a green crew, flying a Liberator bomber on reconnaissance sighted three Japanese destroyers today and dropped a 1,000-pound bomb within 50 feet of them.

The action took place in St. George's channel between New Britain and New Ireland, 20 miles from Rabaul, New Britain.

(A communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters told of the destruction of two destroyers and a transport by bombers off Cape Gloucester at the other end of New Britain.)

Had Two Bombs Left

The plane had only two bombs in its racks when the destroyers were spotted. It was the first strike mission for the bombardier, Second Lieut. Robert Morris, of Bridgeport, Conn., and he received congratulations for scoring a near miss on his first attempt at a fast moving target.

The two old hands on the flight were the pilot, Capt. Arthur Curren, of Paterson, N. J., and the navigator, First Lieut. Clement Kinkaid, of Wichita, Kas. Each has 45 missions to his credit and together they have sunk one Japanese heavy cruiser, one destroyer, and one transport.

Other crew members included the co-pilot, First Lieut. John Parran of Bolivar, Tenn.; the radioman, Tech. Sgt. Donald Mayer of Lakewood, O.; the assistant radioman, Tech. Sgt. James Till, of Chicago; and the gunners, Staff Sgts. James Robinson of Falling Spring, Va., John Mooney of South Attleboro, Mass., and Sam Shapiro of Chicago.

Raiders Bombing Wake Met More Opposition

A Bomber Base, Hawaiian Islands, July 29 (AP)—Enemy opposition to the army bomber raid on Wake Island Sunday was the heaviest ever encountered at that Japanese "hornet's nest," crews of the attacking Liberators said today.

The raid, led by Col. William J. Holzapfel, Jr., of Racine, Wis., was the first since mid-May, and was declared successful despite the fighter and anti-aircraft opposition encountered.

Intercepted In Storm

Twelve to fifteen Zero fighters intercepted the raiders in a storm half an hour before they reached the target, said one of the pilots, First Lieutenant Ivan M. Osborne, 23, of Bakersfield, Cal.

[A navy communique July 27 said thirty Zeros in all challenged the attacking bombers as they approached Wake. Nine of the Japanese planes were destroyed, four probably destroyed and five others damaged. One Liberator was lost.]

Osborne and four members of his crew told of engaging the Zeros in a running fight at high altitude that lasted fifty minutes.

10 Jap Vessels Sunk, Four Others Damaged By U. S. Submarines

WASHINGTON, July 29. — (AP) American submarines have sunk ten more Japanese merchant ships and damaged four in their war of attrition against enemy sea power, the Navy reported today.

The vessels destroyed included two large transports. The 14 successful attacks raised to 297 the number of Japanese war and merchant ships which have been reported successfully attacked since the war started. Included in the total are 210 ships sunk, 29 probably sunk and 58 damaged.

While the Navy communique, giving the latest reports on submarine activities in the Pacific and China sea areas, contained no details of the operations, it was regarded here as further evidence of the success of American strategy in reducing sharply Japan's ability to maintain her far-flung empire which is dependent on shipping for its existence.

President Roosevelt emphasized this aspect of the war in the Pacific in his address to the nation last night, declaring that the government has "good reason to believe" that the enemy's shipping and airpower actually has been slashed to the point at which it is virtually incapable of maintaining the line of island positions running east and west in the waters north of Australia.

The Japanese, the President said, have lost more planes and more ships than they have been able to replace.

Their losses in ships have been due in very great degree to the bold and resourceful actions of United States undersea raiders which operate not only along the extremities of the supply lines from Japan but also in the waters immediately surrounding the Japanese islands.

In addition to the two large transports sunk, the Navy reported today that two large and three medium sized cargo vessels, two medium sized tankers and one small cargo vessel were sunk. Listed as damaged were a large cargo vessel and three medium sized cargo ships.

VICTORY MARGIN GROWS FOR SMUTS

South African Premier Wins Backing for War Policies in Election.

PRETORIA, Union of South Africa, July 29.—(AP) Prime Minister Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts and all of his cabinet were reelected in the July 7 general voting, belated returns showed tonight, in a victory which reflected among other things an Allied success over Axis radio propaganda.

The Axis radio had beamed broadcasts to South Africa throughout the campaign urging defeat of Marshal Smuts and his war participation policy, and urging election of the opposition, which favored an anti-war, isolationist policy.

With 16 of the House's 150 seats at stake still to be decided, Smuts already was assured of a representation of government benches greater than that with which he has pursued his war policies for nearly four years. Smuts and his cabinet all received substantial majorities in their constituencies.

The counting thus far showed the combined government parties had won 100 seats.

The combined opposition, which campaigned to quit the war and end "the British connection," had won 34 seats up to tonight's count.

The government parties occupied 87 seats in the last House. The Nationalist, New Order and African parties—the opposition, under Dr. D. F. Malan—held 66 seats in the old House.

The counting was delayed three weeks by the gathering of the votes of soldiers on active service.

Brazil Gets 3 Sub-Chasers

Rio de Janeiro, July 29 (AP)—Three new submarine chasers built in the United States were incorporated into the Brazilian navy today. Vice-Admiral Enrique Aristides, the Navy Minister, said the ships would strengthen Brazilian and United States naval forces engaged in heavy battles against Axis submarines in the South Atlantic.

53 of British Crew Picked Up

BUENOS AIRES, July 29 (AP).—Port authorities said today they had received a message from the skipper of the Argentine tanker Tacito saying his ship had picked up fifty-three survivors from a British merchantman 100 miles off Bahia, Brazil. They said they assumed that the British ship had been torpedoed.

RAID ON HONGKONG

There was no Allied confirmation of the raid.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced in a communique today that U. S. planes raided Hongkong two days ago, a raid first reported by the Japanese.

Spangler Hits Roosevelt Speech as 4th Term Bid

JUL 30 1943

G.O.P. Chairman Demands OWI Relay 'Implications' to Servicemen.

WASHINGTON, July 29 — (AP) Harrison E. Spangler, chairman of the Republican National committee declared today that President Roosevelt's speech last night was the beginning of "his campaign for a fourth and perhaps continuing term, a bold bid for the vote of our soldiers and sailors who are risking their lives for freedom.

Spangler made a formal demand on the Office of War Information and the War and Navy department that statements by Republican Congress members and others, commenting on "the political implications" of the speech, be distributed to the armed forces through army newspapers, ships' bulletins and other channels.

On Capitol Hill, several Congress members said Mr. Roosevelt sounded like a fourth term candidate, while backers of the President denied that any political considerations were involved in the speech.

Senators Smith (D-S.C.) and Taft (R-Ohio) told reporters that Mr. Roosevelt's outline of a series of government benefits proposed for members of the armed forces after the war appeared to be a bid for soldier votes. Rep. Ditter of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican National Congressional committee, said the speech "degenerated into the official opening of the four term campaign."

Guffey Denies Charges

Senator Guffey (D-Pa), a New Dealer, replied quickly that there were 'no political aspects" to the speech.

Spangler sent the following telegram to Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, and Robert Sherwood, head of the Overseas division of the OWI:

"Last night over world wide radio President Roosevelt launched his campaign for a fourth and perhaps continuing term in the White House. Under the pretext of a major report on the war situation, he made a straight-out political speech and a bold bid for the vote of our soldiers and sailors who are risking their lives for freedom.

"You will appreciate, I am sure, the dangers to our democratic institutions of the Commander-in-Chief stooping to this type of politics among those who instead of thinking of him as a cunning political leader should have confidence that he is thinking only of winning the war, getting them back home quickly and at work in jobs with opportunity ahead. Every American is determined to take care of these returning heroes and it will be the nation that does it and not a personal beneficence of the President.

"These boys and girls as thinking citizens should not be made political serfs. They are entitled to all sides of all questions so that they can make up their own minds how they will vote next year.

Wants "Implication" Bared

"A number of members of Congress, including Senator Bridges of New Hampshire and Rep Ditter of Pensylvania and newspaper writers have already pointed out the political implications of the President's speech.

"I therefore formally request of you that these comments be just as widely distributed to our armed forces as it is possible through the facilities at your command. I request that they be published, with the President's statements, in the army newspapers and the ships' Bulletins. I request that they be communicated immediately through your news communication channels to our troops overseas.

"I know that you will recognize as I do the perils to our free institutions unless we do maintain the right of free political discussion. Will you please confirm to me that you have taken such steps as are necessary to insure that the comments of Congress are reaching the armed forces."

Smith, a critic of administration policies, said he read into the speech "a bid for the soldiers' vote for a fourth term." In addition, he said the President's announcement that coffee rationing had been abandoned and that more sugar is on the way to housewives' tables looked like an effort to reduce complaints against wartime regulations.

"It's my opinion," he declared, "that we will see more letting up on rigid rationing as time goes on. That's all a part of a campaign to pacify the home front before the next election."

Taft said Mr. Roosevelt's promise of benefits for soldiers when they are mustered out "sounds very much like an appeal for 1944 votes."

"I don't know how much good that will do the President politically," he said, "because Congress has always been more generous to war veterans than the President. Congress already has provided for hospitalization and compensation and has greatly expanded the provisions for vocational rehabilitation for returning servicemen."

Program for Servicemen

The President's program provided for mustering out pay, unemployment insurance, trade education, social security benefits, improved hospitalization and rehabilitation and pensions for disabled veterans.

Few in Congress thought there would be any opposition to such a program, although Smith said there might be difficulty in finding money to finance it.

Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind) said everybody could subscribe to such benefits and Senator Davis (R-Pa) commented that he and other Republicans already had proposed enabling legislation for at least part of the President's proposal, including that for mustering out pay.

Senator Guffey said it was his opinion the President had hit the nail on the head with the soldier benefit suggestions and predicted their early adoption by Congress.

He said Mr. Roosevelt had spoken in the language of the man on the street in his broadcast and said it could not be regarded as anything but a progress report on the war at home and abroad.

"Everybody knows I'm for Roosevelt for a fourth term, but I am sure the speech had no political aspects," Guffey added.

Senator Bridges (R-NH) also issued a critical statement, saying that "Mr. Roosevelt dangled before the eyes of the soldiers a gift of their own tax money. You could almost hear him telling them not to forget in November, 1944, who it was that offered to give them a lot of new, free things."

Bridges said the President gave no indication of thought about "getting rid of economic hot-water bags and building a sound, dynamic economy in which men and women will find their own security."

CARGO SHIP OUTPUT NEARS RATE SOUGHT

To Meet This Year's Schedule Graph Will Swing Upward, Then Level Off in 1944

FASTER VESSELS PLANNED

Victory Freighter Will Succeed Liberty, Designers Having Eye on Post-War Competition

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)— America's merchant shipbuilding program has reached the leveling off stage and thus becomes the first of the major war efforts to reach a production rate approximating its ultimate goal.

The shipbuilding graph will swing slightly upward in the last half of this year and settle back a little in 1944, but the change from the present rate of production will not be substantial on the basis of overall figures.

President Roosevelt's statement that next year's goal calls for 21,000,000 deadweight tons—carrying capacity—of merchant shipping was interpreted today as reflecting a marked improvement recently in the submarine situation.

Present facilities, worked to their utmost and provided with ample steel and labor, could exceed that output by several million tons. The Maritime Commission has estimated potential capacity of present yards at about 25,000,000 tons.

To reach this years goal of 19,000,000 tons ship yards must deliver nealy 11,000,000 tons in the final six months, a rate slightly higher than necessary to meet next year's objective.

June production, 168 vessels totaling 1,676,500 dead weight tons, was at an annual rate exceeding 20,000,000 tons.

In the first half of 1943, 879 ships aggregating 8,818,622 deadweight tons were delivered into service, compared with 746 ships of 8,089,732 tons in all of 1942.

Next year's program will center on faster, harder-to-build vessels than the mass production Liberty ship, partly on the theory that the faster freighters will be more suitable for post-war competitive trade.

The Victory ship, successor to the Liberty, will go into production in the spring, with yards shifting to it throughout the rest of the year. With a speed of fifteen to seventeen knots the Victory is several knots faster than the Liberty and there is little difference in the carrying capacity.

WAVES WILL MARK FIRST BIRTHDAY IN SERVICE TODAY

Admiral King Praises Their Work; Plan to Expand Group to 91,000.

WASHINGTON, July 29. — (AP) Plans to swell the strength of the WAVES to 91,000 by the end of 1944 were announced today by the Navy as it reported that the Women's Naval Auxiliary, by taking over shore jobs, already has released enough officers and bluejackets to man a major task force.

Just a year old tomorrow, with the demand for their services multiplying and the variety of their assignments increasing, the WAVES now number 27,000, or nearly triple the enrollment anticipated by the Navy when President Roosevelt signed the act creating the organization July 30, 1942.

Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U. S. Fleet and chief of naval operations, summing up the measure of their achievement, said:

"The expectations of the Navy in you have been justified by your hard work and sincere dedication to duty. You who are members of the women's reserve have won the respect of the naval service by your acceptance of military requirements, readiness for responsibility and already valuable contribution to the work of winning the war."

27,000 on Duty

Of the 27,000 WAVES now on duty, about 10,000 are still in training. The largest group is on duty in Washington with more than 3,000 officers and enlisted women billeted in the office of the commander in chief, U. S. Fleet, and the chief of naval operations. Approximately 2,000 more are on duty in other offices of the Navy department.

Officers in charge of shore establishments, attaches explained, are requesting more and more uniformed women for assignment in their offices.

When the women's reserve was established a year ago plans called for 1,000 officers and 10,000 enlisted women.

16 Training Schools

Today, the 16 training schools for enlisted women and the naval reserve midshipmen's school for officers have a combined capacity for training more than that number at one time, the Navy says, adding:

"What was originally planned to be mostly an office force has expanded into gunnery and blind flying instruction, aerology, aviation ground crew work, navigation and other fields.

"In addition, there are large numbers serving in Navy communications, one of the first fields in which it was recognized that trained women could replace Navy men. Other large numbers are also doing office work and in time to come, they will probably replace all enlisted men serving in such billets at shore stations in continental United States."

PROBE IS OPENED IN PLANE CRASH IN WHICH 20 DIED

AUG 1 1943

Mother, Baby Among Kentucky Victims; Two Survivors in Hospital.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., July 29 —(AP) Charred bodies of 20 victims of an American Airlines transport plane which plowed into a field near Trammel, Ky., and burned last night were removed from the wreckage late today and brought here and to Nashville, Tenn., while the two lone survivors remained in a hospital here.

The crash, which took the lives of several military officers, important industrial leaders and a young mother and her baby, was being investigated by Civil Aeronautics board officials and representatives of the airline.

S. K. Hoffman, of Williamsport, Pa., chief engineer of the Lycoming division of American Aviation, Inc., and First Lieut. Glenn Fellows, of Love Field, Texas., escaped through a kick-off window of the plane. Both were in the Bowling Green hospital.

Hoffman, who suffered a broken ankle and minor bruises and burns said with moist eyes, "I feel swell. I would feel good no matter what was wrong with me right now. At least I'm alive."

Fellows, who was given plasma treatment, was not in condition to talk. Miss Katie Blake, hospital floor supervisor, said the extent of his injuries had not yet been determined.

The plane, piloted by Capt. Harry A. Stiller, of Cleveland, Ohio, according to Airlines officials, left Louisville, Ky., for Nashville, Tenn., at 9:54 p. m. yesterday and was last heard from at 10:30 p. m. at Smith Grove, Ky. The crash occurred shortly afterwards.

Tells of Crash

An account of the crash was given by Hoffman who said:

"We were coming in, evidently trying to land because of the weather. The pilot had cut the engine down but apparently saw he was in the wrong place and gave her the gun.

"We bounced a couple of times and stopped. Everybody was trying to get to the door. The lights went out, I pushed a window out and sprawled on the ground."

Hoffman said he had tried to open the plane door but failed. "Then I tried the window but it was an oven inside and I couldn't make it. I kept hoping the mother and baby who had sat behind me had somehow gotten out."

Mother, Baby Die

The Airline casualty list included the names of Mrs. Lucy Frickel Beasly, former air line stewardess and wife of Major Lynn Beasly, of Nashville and Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and their eleven-months old daughter, Joan.

Ernest Williams, a Kentucky highway patrolman, quoted Lieut. Fellows as saying a man had fallen across the door and the others piled on him in their efforts to get out after the plane had crash-landed. The body of the child was under that of a man in the doorway, indicating that he had attempted to carry the infant to safety. Close by was the mother's body.

Looks To Eisenhower For Italy's Surrender

Washington, July 29 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull indicated today that the United States relies on General Eisenhower, American commander of the Allied forces, to obtain Italy's unconditional surrender.

Asked at his press conference if the Italians had made any approaches, Hull said there was none to his knowledge, but that the War Department probably would be the first to hear about it.

He then tacitly indorsed Eisenhower's declaration to the Italians today, with an assertion of his supreme confidence in the Allied commander's sound judgment in dealing with military affairs at the front. Eisenhower told the Italian people in a broadcast today that the presence of German troops in Italy is the only obstacle to an honorable peace.

Population of U. S. Falls As Armed Forces Grow

2.4% Drop Is Noted With N. Y. as the Heaviest Loser

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP). — Despite a record birth rate, the civilian population of the United States declined 3,100,000 between April 1, 1940, and last March 1, the Census Bureau reported today.

The 2.4 per cent drop — from 131,300,000 to 128,200,000—reflects the growth of the armed services at a rate far outstripping natural increases, the bureau said.

Discussing population shifts occasioned by the war, it noted that of the four geographical areas only the West showed a gain during the thirty-five-month period, although twelve states and the District of Columbia reported increases.

Northwestern, North Central and Southern States lost an aggregate of more than 6,000,000 persons to the West and to the armed services, the bureau said, although their net loss in civilian population was only 3,700,000.

The District of Columbia reported the largest population increase, 27.5 per cent, while Nevada led the states showing gains with 22.4 per cent. Other percentage increases were Arizona, 15.5; Florida and Maryland, 8.8 each; California, 7.7; Washington, 7.2; Utah, 6.2; Oregon, 4.9; Virginia, 4.7; Connecticut, 2.7; Delaware, 2.4, and Michigan, 0.4 per cent.

New York was the heaviest loser, the bureau reported, with a drop of 650,000 or 4.9 per cent of its civilian population, although South Dakota's 105,000 decline represented the largest percentage, 16.4.

New Type Destroyer-Escort Ships Pack Big Punch Against U-Boats

JUL 30 194-

ABOARD A U.S. NAVY DESTROYER ESCORT SHIP, at Sea, July 29—(AP) The deck resounded to the drumming of scores of running feet even before the last echo died away after the loudspeakers' call of, "all hands, man your battle stations!"

Soon came the staccato bark of the rapid-fire, anti-aircraft guns, the thunderous "blam" of the ship's three-inchers, and the breath-taking boom of depth bombs.

The afternoon calm was torn to pieces as the Navy showed off one of its new destroyer-escort ships.

We had sailed in the early morning — a dozen newspapermen and photographers aboard—to see the fighting ability of this slim, graceful warship, one of the fleet on which a dozen great shipyards and nearly all the U. S. Navy yards are rushing construction.

Built in two sizes, the larger about 300 feet long, and the other a little shorter, they are part of the Navy's answer to the threat of enemy U-boat and air-raider.

Ours was one of the larger ships, dull in her war-time gray paint, but already fiercely loved by her officers and crew. Swift and maneuverable. She took full rudder turns at full speed.

High in the conning tower, loftiest deck in the ship, was her skipper, Lieut.-Commander Fred C. Billing, of Short Hills, N. J., an Annapolis graduate who had retired from naval service. In private life, he had been in the banking business in New York, an assistant secretary of the J. P. Morgan and Co. firm, till the war called him back to sea.

Crew Dons Helmets

As the crew members reached their battle stations, donning the new-type steel helmets, the skipper disdained use of the loudspeaker system as he leaned over the bridge rail to order, "you may fire when you are ready."

In turn every gun on the ship was fired, the three-inchers throwing shrapnel so high that it was seconds before the puff of smoke appeared — followed by the sound of the exploding shell, the Oerlikon anti-aircraft guns, and four-barrelled pom-poms spitting out tracer shells that followed each other into the air so closely they seemed like cherry-red streamers that stretched from their muzzles high into the blue sky.

Then came the depth-charges, the night-marish terror to Axis U-boat crews.

First a couple were rolled off the stern racks, blasting great holes in the sea over which we had just sped.

'K-Guns' Speak

Then the "K-guns," pipe-like affairs set at an outward angle along the stern quarter of the ship, went into action.

There were K-guns on each side, and they were fired one after another, tossing the 600-pound bombs like giant hammers far out on each side of the ship.

At the same time, two more depth bombs were released from the stern racks.

For a moment there was nothing, only the subsiding splashes where the bombs had landed.

Then our world was filled with sound—a blast that almost knocked us from our feet as the ship leaped and the ocean rose in twisting, churning columns all about our stern.

Eight of the charges had exploded almost simultaneously, and two others a second or so later, tossing what looked like millions of gallons of water 50 feet or more into the air.

"How," asked a naval officer standing near me, "would you have liked to be in a submarine under that?"

Ford, 80, Calls Industry Key to A Good Society

Says Increased Production Is Only Way to Freedom; His Health Is Excellent

JUL 30 194-

DETROIT, July 29 (AP).—Henry Ford, who will observe his eightieth birthday anniversary tomorrow in excellent health and as optimistic as ever, asserted today that business and industry "must build the physical basis of the good society."

And, he added, business and industrial effort must be developed around the philosophy that the only real benefit is the general benefit.

"There must be more and more industry," Mr. Ford said. "It is essential to political and economic freedom, and anything that hinders industry is harmful to the American ideal."

Mr. Ford comes to his eightieth birthday with heavier responsibilities than he has had in about a quarter century, but seemingly in splendid health and thoroughly able to carry on. After a lapse of almost twenty-five years, Mr. Ford took over again the presidency and general managership of the Ford Motor Company following the death several weeks ago of his son, Edsel B. Ford.

"We never made money our main object," he said. "We regarded it as one of the tools, one of the by-products of business, and as a result we always found that we had enough.

"Money is just a part of a practical life—it saves time in exchanging goods—and is no good for anything else. People who desire to live off money, thinking that money is wealth, easily become parasites. . . . We never believed that we could be prosperous alone. Real prosperity is prosperity for all."

Only industry, Mr. Ford said, can abolish poverty.

"It can give the only social security human beings can know—the security of being able to produce what they need," he added.

Air Liner Falls And Blows Up, 20 of 22 Killed

Mother and Baby, Soldiers, Plant Officials Among Dead in Kentucky Crash

By The Associated Press

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., July 29.—Twenty of the twenty-two persons aboard an American Airlines passenger plane died last night when the big transport crashed and burned near Trammel, Ky., twenty miles southeast of here, and one of the two survivors was quoted today as saying that another passenger fell across the doorway, blocking escape, after the plane crash-landed.

The charred bodies of the twenty, including a young mother and her baby girl, were removed from the wreckage late today and were brought here and to Nashville, Tenn. The two survivors remained in a hospital here.

The crash, which took the lives of several military officers and industrial executives, was being investigated by officials of the Civil Aeronautics Board and representatives of the air line.

S. K. Hoffman, of Williamsport, Pa., chief engineer of the Lycoming division of American Aviation, Inc., and First Lieutenant Glenn W. Fellowes, of Love Field, Dallas, Tex., escaped through a kick-off window of the plane. Mr. Hoffman suffered a broken ankle and minor bruises and burns. Lieutenant Fellowes received plasma treatment, but was not in condition to talk, and Miss Katie Blake, hospital floor supervisor, said the extent of his injuries had not yet been determined.

The plane, piloted by Captain Harry A. Stiller, of Cleveland, according to officials of the air line, left Louisville for Nashville at 9:54 p. m. yesterday and was last heard from at 10:30 p. m. at Smith Grove, Ky. The crash occurred shortly afterward.

The air line's casualty list included the names of Mrs. Lucille Frickel Beasley, former air-line stewardess and wife of Major Lynn Beasley, of Nashville and Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and their eleven-month-old daughter, Joan.

Other Victims Listed

Others on the list of the dead were:

Passengers

Lieutenant George W. Turrell, of Love Field.

Technical Sergeant William N. Lightfoot, of Love Field.

Lieutenant Mark Rainsford, of Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. [Lieutenant Rainsford was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Laurence Frederick Rainsford, of Rye, N. Y. He and his wife, the former Elizabeth E. Dodge, of Riverdale, have a daughter, Gale.]

W. K. Cooper, vice-president of sales of the Aviation Corporation, Williamsport, Pa.

Harold Caminez, chief engineer of the air-cooled engine division, Lycoming division, Aviation Corporation.

L. D. Ougheltree, chief engineer Dak Knight Corporation, Monrovia, Calif. Residence, Pasadena.

Warrant Officer Neland Hall, Ferry Command, Long Beach, Calif.

R. H. Anderson, business manager of the Vultee Aircraft Corporation, Nashville, Tenn.

Lieutenant Gordon Richter, of Cleveland.

J. B. Mahoney, of the Arcturus Manufacturing Company, Santa Monica, Calif.

Paul A. Rauf, of the Cardox Company, Cleveland.

Roger Ingram, of the Permold Company, Medina, Ohio.

H. D. Cameron, of the General Tire and Rubber Company, Akron.

Eugene Lebenguth, of Nashville.

Crew

First Officer Robert M. McClure.

Stewardess Josephine Kane.

Captain Bayard A. Carpenter, of 36-19 Bowen Street, Flushing, Queens, N. Y., riding as the third member of the flight crew.

Survivor Describes Crash

An account of the crash was given by Mr. Hoffman, who said:

"We were coming in, evidently trying to land because of the weather. The pilot had cut the engine down but apparently saw he was in the wrong place and gave her the gun.

"We bounced a couple of times and stopped. Everybody was trying to get to the door. The lights went out. . . . I pushed a window out and sprawled on the ground."

Mr. Hoffman said he had tried to open the plane door but failed, "then I tried the window but it was an oven inside and I couldn't make it. I kept hoping the mother and baby who had sat behind me had somehow gotten out."

Ernest Williams, a Kentucky highway patrolman, quoted Lieutenant Fellowes as saying a man had fallen across the door and the others piled on him in their efforts to get out after the plane had crash-landed. The body of the child was under that of a man in the doorway, indicating that he had attempted to carry the infant to safety. Close by was the mother's body.

Mr. Williams quoted Lieutenant Fellowes as saying that the man who tripped and fell across the doorway blocked the escape of most of the remaining live occupants.

"I went the other way and kicked a window out of the plane and got out. I rushed around and tried to get the door open but fifteen seconds later the plane exploded," Mr. Williams quoted Lieutenant Fellowes as saying.

Witnesses at the inquest today testified that parts of the plane were found over a half-mile radius and one of the plane's engines was found 125 yards away from the fuselage.

Lieutenant Fellowes, although injured, walked three-quarters of a mile to the home of Press Howell, on whose farm the plane crashed, and summoned aid.

Rainsford an Enlistee

Lieutenant Mark Rainsford, word of whose death near Bowling Green, Ky., in the crash of an American Airlines plane, was received here yesterday, was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Laurence Frederick Rainsford, of 135 Highland Road, Rye, N. Y., and grandson of Mrs. William Stephen Rainsford, of Garrison, N. Y., and the late Dr. Rainsford, rector of St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square, from 1882 to 1906.

Lieutenant Rainsford enlisted in the Army in June, 1941, shortly after his graduation from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. A student painter at the time, he was interested in camouflage and was assigned to that type of work with the regiment of Army engineers to which he was attached.

After passing several months camouflaging air bases on the west coast, Lieutenant Rainsford was promoted to the rank of sergeant, and shortly thereafter was assigned to officer's training in the camouflage division of the Engineers' School at Fort Belvoir, Va. He received his commission on June 24, 1942.

Less than a month later he was married in the Riverdale, N. Y., Presbyterian Church to Miss Elizabeth E. Dodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland E. Dodge, of Riverdale. A daughter, Gale Rainsford, was born last April 2.

Lieutenant Rainsford was assigned to duty in Nevada after his marriage, and was only recently ordered to Dayton, Ohio, where he was stationed at the time of his death. His wife was visiting at the time with her mother nea Clayton, N. Y.

Lieutenant Rainsford, who was twenty-five years old, prepared for college at Rye Country Day School, Greenwich, Conn., and at Middlesex School, Concord, Mass. At Trinity he was a member of Alpha Chi Rho. During his vacations from college he studied portrait painting under Wayman Adams.

A brother, Dr. Laurence Kerr Rainsford, of Rye, also survives.

Veteran Pilot Aboard

Captain Bayard Arnold Carpenter, of 36-19 Bowen Street, Flushing, Queens, veteran pilot for American Airlines, who lost his life in the same crash with Lieutenant Rainsford, was not in command of the ship at the time of the accident, air-line officials said yesterday.

Captain Carpenter, who was forty-one years old, was born in Carl Junction, Mo. He entered the company's employ as a pilot in 1928 and, up to April, 1941, had put in 13,502 flying hours at the controls of American Airlines planes. Air-line officials said they believed he was married, but efforts to reach a Mrs. Anderson at the Flushing address last night were unavailing.

Pilot's Wife in Hospital

TARENTUM, Pa., July 29 (AP).—The wife of Captain Harry A. Stiller, thirty-two years old, killed when the American Airlines plane he was piloting crashed near Bowling Green, Ky., last night, is in a Cleveland hospital with an infant son born last week, his parents said here today. Captain Stiller, who operated an airport here before going to the air line four years ago, had one son a year and a half old in addition to the child born last week. Captain Stiller had flown all routes of the air line, his friends said. He was transferred from New York to Cleveland only a few months ago.

20 Soldiers Die As Two Planes Crash in South

One Four-Engined Bomber Falls in Texas, Another Near New Mexico Town

EL PASO, Tex., July 29 (AP).—Twenty officers and enlisted men from Biggs Field and Fort Bliss were killed and an enlisted man was injured in two plane crashes, the airfield public relations office announced today.

Eleven men were killed and one was injured when a four-engined bomber crashed ten miles east of Biggs Field last night.

The eleven were Second Lieutenants Robert C. Clark, of Ogden, Utah; Clarence W. Digh, of Walla Walla, Wash.; Cecil E. Wilson, of Versailles, Ky., and Lee E. Oman, of Millbrae, Calif., and Sergeants Bernard F. Marrek, of Perth Amboy, N. J.; Lad A. Lauerman, of Cicero, Ill.; James F. Gould, of Danbury, Conn.; Lyle W. Robinson, of Shelbina, Mo., and Benjamin H. Osgatharp jr., of Winslow, Ind., all of Biggs Field, and First Lieutenants Herman L. Moser and James Kral, passengers from Fort Bliss.

Sergeant John Yachaima, of Forrest City, Pa., was injured but was expected to recover.

In the crash of a Biggs Field four-engine bomber near Belen, N. M., about midnight Tuesday, the following were listed as dead: Second Lieutenants Charles R. Briggs, of Gala, Ill.; Theodore W. Hattly, of Pittsburgh, and John Andrysishn, of Bayonne, N. J., and Sergeants Charles L. Randall, of Cleelum, Wash.; Joseph S. Moulton, of Louisville; Daniel J. Relihan, of the Bronx, N. Y.; John F. Lynes, of Great Falls, Mont.; Granville B. Gibson, of Hollister, Mo., and Jack C. Walker, of Richland, Mich.

Two Flyers Killed in Crash

PENSACOLA, Fla., July 29 (AP).—Ensign Stanley E. McCarroll, Navy air instructor, and Aviation Cadet Leroy van Schuyver, were killed in the crash of their plane on a navigation flight. The crash occurred while landing at the Saufley Auxiliary Field of the Pensacola naval air training center, public relations reported today. Ensign McCarroll is survived by his wife, of Pensacola, and his mother, Mrs. Edna B. McCarroll, of Syracuse.

Tarkington, 74, Chides Duce on Keeping at It

By The Associated Press.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Me., July 29—Work on a short story occupied Booth Tarkington on his seventy-fourth birthday today.

Mr. Tarkington, who has summered here annually since 1917, noted that he and Benito Mussolini shared the same natal day and said in a letter to a friend:

"I hear Mr. Mussolini has retired, but I'm still at it."

Today was Mussolini's sixtieth birthday.

WILL ROGERS JR. MAPS PLAN FOR JEWISH AID

NEW YORK, July 29. — (AP) Rep. Will Rogers, Jr., (D., Calif.) has left by airplane for London to seek British support of a program to rescue an estimated 4,000,000 Jews in Europe, his wife said here tonight.

A statement left by Rogers and made public by his wife said the plan called for an arrangement with Turkey "to offer transit across its country to all Jews who manage to struggle out of those border Axis countries"—Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary and Yugoslavia.

Mrs. Rogers said other objectives of her husband were the establishment of a central agency to deal with the Jewish problem and the formation of a Jewish army.

The Congressmn, a member of the House Foreign Affairs committee, is making the trip at his own expense as a representative of a committee formed at a recent conference here to save the Jews of Europe, she said. He left here on Tuesday.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Foundering, floundering Italy is on notice from General Eisenhower, Allied generalissimo in the western and central Mediterranean war theater, to jettison the Nazis along with Fascism—or go down in utter ruin.

There is no middle course. Rome has now heard the capitulation terms from the three men who hold Italy's fate in their hands, Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and General Eisenhower. It has heard also from Eisenhower that once the German army in Italy is driven out with at least passive Italian help, an honorable and "beneficent" peace will come to the hapless nation wrecked by the mad ambitions of Mussolini.

"You want peace," said the Eisenhower surrender summons dinned endlessly into Italian ears from African and other broadcasting stations. "You can have peace, immediately, and peace under honorable conditions which our governments have already offered you."

It was by acts more than words, however, that General Eisenhower drove home his ultimatum. Under intensifying pressure of his mighty army in Sicily, the whole right wing of Nazi-Fascist resistance from the northern sea coast to the central pivot west of the Mount Etna bastion was crumbling.

Master Plan Working Out

Eisenhower deployed his forces to hit his hardest blow in the center while his British right flank tied down major enemy armor and mobile forces on the Catania front and his left put pressure relentlessly on the weaker north coast positions. That plan is yielding dazzlingly swift results. The battle of Mount Etna is all but over, by every indication, almost before it began and with minimum Allied losses.

The pattern followed avoided a costly British frontal assault on the terribly formidable east coast Etna shelf. The whole Etna position is in process of being cracked in the center and turned from the north in a classic example of modern military tactics. It bids fair to leave what is left of the Axis garrison in Sicily penned up on the meagre, mountainous tip of the Messina peninsula as Axis forces in Tunisia were trapped on Cape Bon.

Hope of Escape Fades

Their escape under the avalanche of bombs awaiting an effort to cross the narrow Messina Strait to the mainland would be a terribly costly business. The Tunisian example suggests their mass surrender instead, once the Etna barrier finally gives way to permit a converging American - Canadian-British pursuit from three sides simultaneously.

Meanwhile Allied longer range planes are blasting steadily at every communication key or air field which could help defend the Italian mainland boot itself from immediate invasion. The bulging "toe" and narrow, high "heel" of the boot that flank the Gulf of Taranto and a wide strip of the "ankle" and "instep" are being progressively prepared for prompt Anglo-American occupation from Sicily.

There are vitally important air and sea bases on the Italian boot for Allied use in driving across the Adriatic into the Greek peninsula to come to grips with Germany in the Balkans. As the campaign is developing it seems impossible that Italy could keep them out of Allied hands very long, with or without Nazi help.

Rome must reckon with those stark military facts in making its decision. It would take a bold man to say now that tomorrow or next day might not see the final Italian collapse, and unquestioning acceptance of the Churchill-Roosevelt-Eisenhower surrender terms.

Canada Soon To Send Minister To Mexico

Ottawa, July 29 (AP)—Appointment of a Canadian minister to Mexico may be expected soon, an External Affairs Department spokesman said today.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told the House recently that he contemplated opening new legations in Mexico, Peru and Cuba, and indicated that Mexico would be the first.

LONDON, JULY 29--(AP)--BRITISH WOMEN'S AUXILIARY SERVICES ARE NEARLY UP TO FULL STRENGTH AND NO FURTHER AGE GROUPS WILL BE CONSCRIPTED UNDER THE NATIONAL SERVICE ACTS, LABOR MINISTER ERNEST BEVIN TOLD COMMONS TODAY.

ALL WOMEN IN GROUPS NOW SUBJECT TO CONSCRIPTION WILL BE ASKED TO ENTER AIRCRAFT FACTORIES AND THE GOVERNMENT WILL EXTEND THE REGISTRATION AGE OF WOMEN AVAILABLE FOR EMPLOYMENT TO INCLUDE THOSE OF 50 YEARS, BEVIN SAID.

TO EASE THE LABOR SHORTAGE IN THE COAL MINES, BEVIN SAID, ALL MEN ELIGIBLE FOR MILITARY SERVICE WILL BE GIVEN THE OPTION OF ENTERING THE MINES. HERETOFORE THIS OPTION HAD BEEN EXTENDED ONLY TO MEN OVER

"IF A SUFFICIENT NUMBER DO NOT EXERCISE THE OPTION," BEVIN DECLARED, "MY FIRST LINE OF APPROACH WILL BE TO DIRECT MEN BETWEEN 18 AND 25, WHO WOULD OTHERWISE BE CALLED TO THE FORCES, TO ENTER THE MINES INSTEAD."

LONDON, JULY 30-(FRIDAY)-(AP)-THE LONDON DAILY MAIL TODAY PUBLISHED A DISPATCH DATED "THE ITALIAN FRONTIER, JULY 29" WHICH SAID THAT KING VITTORIO EMANUELE AND PREMIER PIETRO BADOGLIO HAD BEEN FORCED TO YIELD A POINT BY ANNOUNCING THAT THE AIM OF THE GOVERNMENT WAS PEACE.

"BUT IT MUST BE PEACE WHICH ALLOWS ITALY TO REMAIN UNOCCUPIED," THE DISPATCH SAID.

JUL 30 1943

(THE NEW PREMIER HAS INSISTED IN OFFICIAL PROCLAMATIONS, THAT ITALY WOULD CONTINUE THE WAR, AND THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION THAT THE NEW ITALIAN GOVERNMENT HAD ANNOUNCED PEACE AS ITS AIM.

(THE DISPATCH'S REFERENCE TO OCCUPATION RECALLED THE MESSAGE OF GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE YESTERDAY IN WHICH HE TOLD THEM THE ALLIES "ARE COMING TO YOU AS LIBERATORS" AND PROMISED A "MILD AND BENEFICIENT" OCCUPATION.")

LONDON--SECOND ADD FIRST LEAD ITALIAN X X X OF CORPORATIONS.

THE ROME RADIO ANNOUNCED THE DISSOLUTION OF THE CHAMBER IN A BROADCAST WHICH SAID BADOGLIO'S GOVERNMENT HAD BANNED THE FORMATION OF ANY POLITICAL PARTY FOR THE DURATION OF THE WAR AND ALSO PROHIBITED DISPLAY OF ANY POLITICAL INSIGNIA.

THE BROADCAST WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT THE RELEASE OF POLITICAL PRISONERS--OF WHOM THOUSANDS HAD BEEN ROUNDED UP UNDER MUSSOLINI'S RULE--WAS ALREADY IN PROGRESS.

REPORTS OF SPREADING REVOLTS SUGGESTED THAT CONTROL OF ITALY MIGHT BE WRESTED FROM BADOGLIO AND THAT HE MIGHT BE COMPELLED TO SUE FOR AN IMMEDIATE PEACE.

"THE ONLY EMBLEM PERMISSIBLE NOW IS THE TRICOLOR," THE ROME RADIO SAID.

"A NEW CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES WILL BE ELECTED WITHIN FOUR MONTHS AFTER THE TERMINATION OF THE WAR AND A NEW LEGISLATURE WILL BE SET UP.

"THE CABINET ALSO DECIDED TO ABROGATE ALL FASCIST LEGISLATION AND THE KING IMMEDIATELY APPROVED ALL THE MEASURES.

JUL 30

"THE LIBERATION OF POLITICAL PRISONERS ALREADY STARTED.

"TO PLACE THE NEW MEASURES IN PRACTICE WITH THE LEAST POSSIBLE DELAY, ALL RED TAPE WAS ORDERED CUT.

"PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES FOR MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC ORDER HAVE BEEN TAKEN. NUMEROUS PERSONS WHO BELONGED TO THE DISSOLVED FASCIST PARTY HAVE BEEN ROUNDED UP."

AT A U.S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, JULY 29-(AP)-THE CREEW OF THE FLYING FORTRESS "PISTOL BALL" RODE HOME FROM THE DAYLIGHT BOMBING OF KIEL TODAY ATOP THE PROVERBIAL "POWDER KEG" IN THE SHAPE OF THREE LIVE BOMBS WHICH REFUSED TO DROP--AND AT THE SAME TIME FOUGHT OFF GERMAN FIGHTERS AND HAD TO WEAVE THROUGH LANES OF FLAK.

BUT THEY GOT BACK SAFELY AND, WITH OTHER FLIERS, ENTHUSIASTICALLY DESCRIBED AS ENORMOUS THE DAMAGE THEY WROUGHT--WHICH PHOTOGRAPHS CONFIRMED. ALSO, FLYING FORTRESSES IN THE RAID DROPPED PROPAGANDA LEAFLETS, AS THEY DID YESTERDAY.

THE FORTRESSES ZIG-ZAGGED THROUGH DENSE FLAK TO HIT KIEL, AND IT WASN'T UNTIL THEY WERE COMING HOME THAT THEY ENCOUNTERED ENEMY FIGHTER PLANES. THE MEN ESTIMATED THAT 70 GERMAN AIR FORCE CRAFT OF ALL TYPES, INCLUDING NIGHT FIGHTERS, SWARMED ABOUT AND MAINTAINED A PERSISTENT ATTACK UNTIL THE FORTRESSES WERE 50 MILES OUT OVER THE NORTH SEA.

GUNNERS FROM THIS STATION CLAIMED 10 FIGHTERS DESTROYED, NINE PROBABLY DESTROYED AND SEVEN DAMAGED.

THE "PISTOL BALL", PILOTED BY LIEUT.CARL W.WILSON OF CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX., HAD JUST TURNED OFF THE TARGET TOWARDS HOME WHEN THREE EXPLOSIVE INCENDIARIES--THEIR SAFETY PINS REMOVED--WERE DISCOVERED TANGLED IN THE BOMB BAY.

FROM THE MOMENT THEY WERE DISCOVERED, THE CREW WRESTLED FRANTICALLY TO DISLODGE THE LETHAL LEAD. THEY SUCCEEDED, BUT ONLY WHEN ALMOST IN SIGHT OF THE ENGLISH COAST.

INCENDIARY BOMBS ORDINARILY DO NOT EXPLODE EXCEPT ON IMPACT, THE FLIERS EXPLAINED, BUT THEIR POSITION WAS MADE FAR MORE UNTENABLE BY THE FACT THAT ONE OF THE THREE BOMBS WAS LOOSE, RUNNING WILD INSIDE THE BOMB BAY, STRIKING THE WALLS WITH EACH PITCH AND ROLL.

WHILE THE OTHER GUNNERS BLAZED AWAY AT THE GERMANS, LIEUT.STANLEY CHENOWETH OF SANTA BARBARA, CALIF., WEARING NEITHER PARACHUTE NOR SAFETY BELT, CLIMBED DOWN TO THE BOMB COMPARTMENT WHILE THE BOMB BAY DOORS FLAPPED WIDE.

JUL 30 1943

SGT.WILLIAM DEAN OF GOOD WATER, ALA., LEFT WAISTGUNNER, LEANED DOWN FROM THE FUSELAGE TO TRY TO HELP. THE BOMB WOULD NOT BUDGE.

WILSON THEN TRIED HIS HAND. HE HAD SOME SUCCESS. BY JIGGLING THE CONTROLS AND CAUSING THE PLANE TO ROCK, HE FORCED TWO OF THE BOMBS TO BREAK FREE.

ONCE MORE, CHENOWETH CLIMBED BELOW, MEANING TO TIE THE REMAINING BOMB DOWN WITH A ROPE WHILE THE BOMB BAY DOOR WAS CLOSED. FIRS, HE RENDERED THE EXPLOSIVE HARMLESS BY SEVERING IO WITH "ARMING WIRE," AND THAT SOMEHOW UNTANGLED IT AND IT SMASHED HALFWAY THROUGH THE CLOSED DOOR. IT STUCK THERE.

BUT THE DOORS WERE OPENED SUDDENLY AND THAT SENT THE INCENDIARY HURTLING INTO THE SEA.

"WE WERE REALLY SWEATING BLOOD UP THERE TODAY," DEAN EXCLAIMED, AND SGT.MILLS M.KELLY, FRESNO, CALIF., TOP TURRET GUNNER, AGREED.

HIS "MAE WEST."

"I FELT SOMETHING HIT ME BUT WAS AFRAID TO LOOK AND SEE IF I WAS HURT," HE SAID.

HE WASN'T.

WINCHESTER AND THREE OTHER MEMBERS OF THE CREW SAID THEY DESTROYED AN ENEMY PLANE APIECE. OTHERS WERE CLAIMED BY SERGEANTS LAUREL E. LARSON, FLANDREAU, S.D., TOP TURRET GUNNER; NICHOLAS SIDORICK, BLOOMFIELD, N.J., TAIL GUNNER; AND DEAN. OTHER MEMBERS WERE LIEUT. JAMES B.PENROD, KANSAS CITY, MO., CO-PILOT; LIEUT.MORRIS EAGLE, RICHMOND, VA., NAVIGATOR; AND SERGEANT ALFRED TERLIZZI, BROOKLYN, N.Y., BALL TURRET GUNNER.

JUL 30 1943

FLIERS ON OTHER SHIPS SAID THEY ENCOUNTERED CLOUDS AND HAZE DURING MOST OF THE TRIP BUT FOUND THE VISIBILITY EXCELLENT OVER THE TARGET.

"IT STOOD OUT LIKE A PICTURE AND WE STARTED PLENTY OF FIRES," SAID LIEUT.ARCHER M.BAIRD, GREENSBORO, N.C., BOMBARDIER ON "EAGGER EAGLE."

LIEUT.JAMES O.RADLEY, CINCINNATI, OHIO, BOMBARDIER ON THE "AIN'T IT GRUESOME," PILOTED BY ELIZIA LADOUX, EUNICE, LA., WHICH LED THE FORTRESSES FROM THIS STATION, SAID "I'M SURE WE HIT THE TARGET. WE GOT THE BOMBS AWAY AT THE RIGHT TIME."

"OUR BOMBS LANDED RIGHT ON THOSE SUB PENS," REPORTED LIEUT.CHARLES M.SHAW, CLAYTON, MO., NAVIGATOR ON THE "LINDA BALL."

FLIGHT OFFICER ROBERT Y.FONTAINE, JOPLIN, MO., CO-PILOT WHO RODE AS TAILGUNNER ON LADOUX'S SHIP, BECAME THE FIRST CO-PILOT FROM THIS STATION TO DESTROY AN ENEMY PLANE. HE SHOT DOWN AN FW-190.

"BY THE TIME WE FINISHED THE BOMB RUN OVER THE TARGET THE AREA WAS THICK WITH SMOKE," FONTAINE RELATED. "WE DID PLENTY OF DAMAGE THERE TODAY."

SGT.MARTIN M.KENISTON, PLAINVIEW, TEX., BALL TURRET GUNNER, SAID HE SHOT DOWN AN ENEMY PLANE WHICH ZOOMED WITHIN 100 YARDS OF HIS FORTRESS BEFORE ONE OF THE ENEMY'S WINGS RIPPED OFF AND THE PLANE PLUMMETED EARTHWARD.

2ND.LT.J.HALL SCHENICK OF CAYUGA,N.Y., SAID HE SAW 70 LUFTWAFFE FIGHTERS. TECH.ST.DONALD D.HENDERSON OF ASBURY PARK,N.J., SAID "THERE WAS A HELL OF A LOT OF LEAD FLYING AROUND."

BOMB HITS ON KIEL TARGETS WERE REPORTED BY MAJ.ELIZIA LEDOUX OF EUNICE, LA., 2D.LT.ARCHER M.BAIRED OF GREENSBORO,N.C., TECH. SGT.ANGELO FULLIN OF ALLENTOWN, PA., AND 2D.LT.JAMES O.BRADLEY OF CINCINNATI, O.

JUL 30

COL.IRVIN M.RENDLE OF RAWLINS, WYO., A GROUP COMMANDER, ASSERTED THE KIEL RAID WAS "A GOOD JOB." THERE WERE CLOUDS BUT VISIBILITY WAS GOOD, SAID 1ST.LT.CHARLES O.OWL OF SUMMIT HILL, PA.

2D. LT. GEORGE W.HEINZ OF SKOKIE, ILL., SAID HE SHOT DOWN A MESSERSCHMITT 109 WHICH GOT WITHIN TEN FEET OF HIM.

THE CREW OF THE FORTRESS "TS SECOND" CLAIMED FOUR ENEMY VICTORIES--BY STAFF SGTS. WADE M.COOK OF HOWALL, MICH., ARTHUR L.TUCKER OF RIVERBANK, CALIF., JAMES J.O'DONNEL OF DUMONT, N.J., AND LORENZO H. BARRINGEON OF LOS ANGELES.

BEFORE HIS PLANE REACHED KIEL, STAFF SGT. GEORGE G.HOLZ OF PHOENIX, ARIZ., SAID HE SAW TWO LARGE CLOUDS OF SMOKE AND FIRE AT 25,000 FEET--APPARENTLY COMING FROM HAMBURG.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS FAIRLY HEAVY AND "SEEMED TO BE A NEW KIND OF STUFF--AND PRETTY," SAID 1ST. LT. JACK P. KERN OF SKIATOOK, OKLA.

ONE FORMATION, LED BY CAPT. RAYMOND P. KETELSON, 24, OF HOUSTON, TEX., RAN INTO FIGHTERS AFTER COMBING THE AIRFIELDS OF THE NORTHERN COAST OF GERMANY AND CLAIMED MORE THAN A DOZEN VICTIMS IN A 45-MINUTE ENGAGEMENT.

TECH. SGT. DENNIS J. LANE, COLLEGE POINT, N.Y., WHO CELEBRATED HIS 29TH BIRTHDAY YESTERDAY BY SHOOTING DOWN A FIGHTER, CLAIMED ANOTHER TODAY.

CLAIMS ALSO WERE MADE BY STAFF SGTS. KEATING S. PHARR, 30, GAINESVILLE, GA., HOWARD D. PARKS, 21, SEASIDE, ORE., ARCHIE ROTHERFORD, 20, ARCADIA, IND., WILLIAM A. FELTON, QUANAH, TEX., GEORGE KENDALL, 29, RANDOLPH, VT., JAMES J. MCKEON, 22, BOSTON, MASS., AND CLAUDE R. LESLIE, 28, DAYTON, O., AND TECH. SGT. MELVIN E. HANSEN, 29, BOISE CITY, IDA.

STAFF SGT. LOUIS D. BRINZEY, 24, ECORSE, MICH., TAIL-GUNNER, CLAIMED TWO.

BY JAMES F. KING

(ADVANCE) LONDON, JULY 21-(AP)-THE GERMAN GENERAL STAFF CAN BE EXPECTED TO ELIMINATE HITLER WHEN GERMANY'S COMPLETE COLLAPSE APPEARS INEVITABLE--THAT PREDICTION CAME TODAY FROM A HIGH SOURCE WHOSE JOB INSIDE GERMANY FOR YEARS WAS TO KEEP TABS ON THE REICH MILITARY.

BUT GETTING RID OF HITLER, THIS OBSERVER SAID, WOULD BE ONLY THE BEGINNING IN BREAKING GERMANY AS A WAR-MAKER FOREVER.

THE BIG JOB--AND BIG DANGER, IF IT FAILS, HE SAID--WOULD BE WIPING OUT THE LEGEND OF THE "UNDEFEATED GERMAN ARMY"--A LEGEND THAT THE GERMAN MILITARY CLIQUE --THE JUNKERS--SOLD TO THE GERMAN PEOPLE. THE THEME WAS THAT THE GERMAN ARMY NEVER SURRENDERED IN 1918--IT WAS THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT WHICH QUIT.

THE ARMY, THE JUNKERS ARGUED, WAS "STABBED IN THE BACK" BY COMMUNISTS AND SOCIAL DEMOCRATS IN AND OUTSIDE THE GOVERNMENT.

THE JUNKERS WON'T GIVE UP EASILY, THIS SOURCE SAID, EVEN THOUGH BEATEN IN BATTLE. THEY WILL TRY TO FIND A WAY AGAIN TO KEEP THE DOOR OPEN FOR THEM TO RETIRE BEHIND THE SMOKESCREEN OF GENTLEMEN OFFICERS WHILE THEY PLOT ANOTHER WAR.

WHEN THE TIME COMES, HE ADDED, THE GERMAN GENERAL STAFF --NOT HITLER--WILL DECIDE TO CALL IT QUITS. THEY MAY BE ALREADY PLAYING WITH THE IDEA OF WRITING OFF THIS WAR, HE THINKS, EVEN THOUGH THERE'S LONG AND BITTER FIGHTING AHEAD.

TWO THINGS, HE SAID, WOULD LEAD TO THE FINAL DECISION--WHEN THE BOMBING REACHES A POINT WHERE THE GERMAN PEOPLE ARE BEGINNING TO DEVELOP A HORROR OF WAR THEY'LL NEVER FORGET; WHEN FIGHTING ON SOIL BECOMES INEVITABLE.

APS5

THEN WATCH OUT FOR THEIR CAMPAIGN TO MAINTAIN THE MYTH OF THE "UNDEFEATED GERMAN ARMY."

THIS OBSERVER SAID THEY WOULD PROBABLY OPERATE THIS WAY:

FIRST, ELIMINATE HITLER--EVEN AT THE RISK OF CIVIL WAR WITH THE FUEHRER'S OWN SS TROOPS AND THE GESTAPO.

SECONDLY, BEGIN A CAMPAIGN TO WIN SYMPATHY, ARGUING THEY WERE FORCED INTO WAGING WAR.

LATER, IF THE CHANCE CAME TO SOW THE SEEDS FOR ANOTHER WAR, THEY WOULD REVIVE THE SAME OLD TUNE--INVINCIBILITY OF THE GERMAN ARMY.

IN BEATING THE DRUMS, THEY WOULD TRY TO BURY THEIR SECOND FAILURE WITH A NEW CRY--THAT THEY CALLED A HALT BECAUSE OF "INHUMAN WARFARE." THEY WOULD PLAY UP THE ALLIED BOMBINGS IN AN ATTEMPT TO BLIND THE SHORT-MEMORIED GERMAN PEOPLE TO THE FACT THAT THE LUFTWAFFE INVENTED WHOLESALE BOMBING AND "TOTAL WARFARE."

JUL 30 1943

THE GERMAN MILITARY CLIQUE HAS RUN THE REICH SINCE THE FRANCO-GERMAN WAR IN 1870 IN THE OPINION OF THIS OBSERVER. WHEN HITLER FIRST APPEARED IN THE GERMAN POLITICAL PICTURE, HE SAID, THEY FACED THE DECISION OF CRUSHING HIM OR USING HIM. THEY CHOOSE TO USE HIM.

AS LONG AS HITLER'S "INTUITION" WORKED OR FELL IN LINE WITH THEIR PLANS, HE SAID, HIS DIRECTION OF THE WAR WAS NOT CHALLENGED.

BUT NOW IT IS APPROACHING THE TIME FOR THE JUNKERS TO THINK OF SAVING THEMSELVES IN THE SAME WAY THEY DID BEFORE--HOLDING UP THE GERMAN ARMY AS INVINCIBLE IN THE EYES OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE WHILE THEY THREW OTHERS OFF-GUARD WITH A POSE AS GENTLEMEN OFFICERS.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 29-(AP)-THE SWISS TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY SAID TODAY IT HAD RECEIVED A DISPATCH FROM CHIASSO STATING IT HAD BEEN "LEARNED FROM ROME THAT THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT IS EXAMINING THE CONDITIONS OF PEACE SENT BY (GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER."

THE AGENCY APPENDED AN EDITORIAL NOTE THAT IT "PUBLISHED THE DISPATCH WITH RESERVE."

BERN, SWITZERLAND, FRIDAY, JULY 30-(AP)-THE SWISS TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY IN A ROME DISPATCH EARLY TODAY QUOTED GOVERNMENT CIRCLES AS SAYING THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL SPEECHES HAD NOT MODIFIED THE CASABLANCA FORMULA OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER WHICH ITALY "COULD NEVER ACCEPT WITHOUT RENOUNCING THE MOST ELEMENTAL SENSE OF DIGNITY."

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 29-(AP)-A ROME DISPATCH TO THE TRIBUNE DE GENEVE SAID TODAY THAT THE NEW BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT "IS JUST AS ANXIOUS AS MUSSOLINI'S TO MAINTAIN SATISFACTORY RELATIONS WITH GERMANY."

THE SWISS NEWSPAPER SAID IT WAS THE FIRST DISPATCH THE NEW ITALIAN CENSORSHIP HAD PASSED TO IT.

JUL 30 1943

IT WAS SUGGESTED THAT IT POSSIBLY INDICATED THAT THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT HAD BEEN UNABLE TO NEGOTIATE AN ARMISTICE FOR WHICH THERE HAS BEEN A CLAMOR WITHIN ITALY SINCE MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL.

BERN (add)

THE GENEVA NEWSPAPER LA SUISSE SAID PRISONS IN THE DOMODOSSOLA REGION WERE BULGING TO CAPACITY, SO NUMEROUS HAVE BEEN THE NEW ARRESTS. A ROME WRITER SAID MORE THAN 4,000 POLITICAL PRISONERS HAD BEEN RELEASED AND THAT MANY EXILED UNDER THE FASCIST REGIME WERE EXPECTED TO RETURN TO ITALY.

BORDER CONTROLS WERE REPORTED TIGHTENED. A CORRESPONDENT OF LA SUISSE SAID THE ITALIANS HAD STOPPED A RATHER HIGH ITALIAN DIMPLOMAT WHO WAS SEEKING TO JOIN HIS SON IN SWITZERLAND.

ITALIAN ECONOMICS HAVE BEEN HEAVILY AFFECTED BY THE FALL OF

30.24-6689

FASCISM. A SINGLE MEAL COSTS ABOUT 30 LIRE. MOST WORKERS AVERAGE 35 LIRE DAILY.

A ROUNDABOUT REPORT PUBLISHED BY LIBERA STAMPA OF LUGANO SAID SOME HIGH FASCISTS HAD BEEN KILLED AT TURIN.

A NEW PROCLAMATION BY FIVE ANTI-FASCIST PARTIES THAT DEMANDED THAT BADOGLIO END THE WAR WAS PUBLISHED IN TURIN NEWSPAPERS.

IT TOLD THE PEOPLE THAT CLARIFICATION OF THE GOVERNMENT WAS AWAITED AND ASKED REASSURANCE THAT THE GOVERNMENT WOULD "INDICATE THE ROAD TO SOCIAL AND POLITICAL RECONSTRUCTION."

JUL 30 1943

THE FIVE PARTIES SAID THE DIFFICULTIES CONFRONTING BADOGLIO'S MINISTRY WERE RECOGNIZED, BUT THAT THE PARTIES WERE AWARE OF THE ITALIANS' FEELINGS AND ASPIRATIONS, "THE MOST URGENT OF WHICH IS THE IMMEDIATE LIBERATION OF POLITICAL VICTIMS."

MEANWHILE, JOHANN VON LEERS, A PROMINENT NAZI PROFESSOR, OBVIOUSLY WRITING UNDER PRESSURE OF THE DOWNFALL OF BENITO MUSSOLINI, WROTE IN DER ANGRIFF THAT THE NAZIS "STAND AT THE TURNING POINT."

HE SAID THAT ONCE AGAIN GERMANY WAS PLACED BEFORE THE SAME GREAT TEST AS IN 1918. IN 1918, HE ASSERTED, GERMANY WAS CONQUERED FROM WITHIN BY JEWS BUT "NOW THAT THE JEWS HAVE NOTHING TO SAY WE WILL SEE HOW STRONG OUR RESISTANCE IS."

MADRID, JULY 29-(AP)-GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO FRANCO HAS CANCELLED PLANS TO LEAVE FOR HIS SUMMER HOME IN GALICIA, IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY, AS UNCONFIRMED REPORTS OF FIGHTING BETWEEN ITALIAN AND GERMAN TROOPS IN NORTHERN ITALY EMPHASIZED THE GROWING SERIOUSNESS OF THE SITUATION THERE.

FOREIGN MINISTER COUNT GOMEZ JORDANA, WHO HAD INTENDED TO GO TO SAN SEBASTIAN THIS WEEK FOR THE SUMMER, ALSO IS REMAINING IN MADRID TO FOLLOW ITALIAN DEVELOPMENTS AT FIRST HAND.

THE REPORTS OF FIGHTING BETWEEN GERMAN AND ITALIAN TROOPS SAID THAT ITALIAN REGULARS, AIDED BY CIVILIANS AND RAILWAYMEN, HAD TRIED TO BLOCK THE ENTRY OF NAZI FORCES NORTH OF MILAN AND TURIN.

WHILE THE REPORTS COULD NOT BE CONFIRMED AND THERE WAS NO AUTHENTIC EVIDENCE OF WIDESPREAD RESISTANCE TO THE MOVEMENT OF GERMAN TROOPS, THERE SEEMED NO REASON TO DOUBT THAT ITALIAN RAILROAD WORKERS -- MANY OF WHOM HAVE LONG BEEN UNSYMPATHETIC TO FASCISM -- MIGHT BE MAKING TRAVEL DIFFICULT AND UNCOMFORTABLE FOR THE NAZIS.

THE POSSIBILITY ALSO WAS SEEN THAT ISOLATED CLASHES MIGHT HAVE TAKEN PLACE BETWEEN GERMAN AND ITALIAN SOLDIERS IN NORTHERN ITALY IF THE NAZIS HAD TRIED TO USE ARMS TO ENFORCE REQUISITION ORDERS DATED PRIOR TO MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL.

THERE WERE REPORTS THAT IN MANY CASES ITALIAN MILITARY STORE-KEEPERS HAD REFUSED TO RECOGNIZE THE VALIDITY OF THESE FASCIST ORDERS.

THE MOVE APPARENTLY WAS A STEP TOWARD THE OCCUPATION OF ALL THAT TERRITORY NORTH OF THE PO RIVER WHICH THE GERMANS DEEM VITAL TO THEIR DEFENSE PLANS.

"I WENT WITH THE ITALIAN OFFICERS TO THEIR COMMAND POST IN AN OLD QUARRY AND WHEN THE SHELLING STARTED THEY GAVE ME A PAIR OF BINOCULARS SO I COULD WATCH THE SHOW. WHEN THE BATTLE WAS OVER THEY HANDED THEIR GUNS TO ME AND SURRENDERED. WE WENT DOWN THE ROAD AND I FOUND SOME AMERICAN PARACHUTE TROOPS WHO TOOK THE ITALIANS INTO CUSTODY. THEY INCLUDED ONE LIEUTENANT COLONEL, ONE MAJOR, TWO CAPTAINS, FOUR LIEUTENANTS AND 27 ENLISTED MEN," BAUTH CONCLUDED.

WITH CANADIANS IN CENTRAL SICILY, JULY 28-(DELAYED)-EASTERN CANADA INFANTRY HAS DRIVEN THE GERMANS OUT OF THE MOUNTAIN STRONGHOLD OF LEONFORTE AND THE BATTERED TOWN IS COMPLETELY IN CANADIAN HANDS.

IN A TWO-DAY BATTLE FOR THE TOWN AND NEARBY CLIFFS, CANADIAN INFANTRY ATTACKS WERE FINALLY SUCCESSFUL LATE TUESDAY WHEN THE LAST SNIPERS WERE CORNERED IN A HOUSE AND FIGHTING SIMMERED OUT.

THE GERMANS WITHDREW TO HIGH GROUND NORTH OF THE TOWN WHERE IT APPEARED THEY WERE GOING TO TRY TO MAKE A DETERMINED DEFENSIVE STAND.

AS CLEARER INFORMATION COMES FROM THE FRONT, AN ONTARIO REGIMENT IS BEING LAUDED FOR AN HEROIC ASSAULT UP A CLIFFSIDE TWO NIGHTS AGO AND A SMASH INTO ASSORO.

(ASSORO IS ALMOST AT THE OUTSKIRTS OF LEONFORTE. THIS WAS THE FIRST REFERENCE TO ITS CAPTURE BY CANADIAN TROOPS.)

EXPLOITS OF THE ROYAL CANADIAN ENGINEERS IN REBUILDING A BLOWN BRIDGE AT NIGHT OUTSIDE LEONFORTE UNDER DIRECT MACHINE-GUN AND MORTAR FIRE WAS ANOTHER HIGHLIGHT OF THE CENTRAL FRONT OPERATIONS.

AS THE CANADIANS CONTINUE THEIR PRESSURE HERE AGAINST STRONG OPPOSITION, THE AMERICANS ARE PUSHING AHEAD TO THE WEST WITH VERY LITTLE OPPOSITION.

THE GERMANS SEEM TO BE FALLING BACK ON A GENERAL LINE RUNNING FROM NORTH OF LEONFORTE TO THE TYRRHENIAN COAST, BUT THE PRINCIPAL STAND AND THE FINAL BATTLE FOR SICILY ARE LIKELY TO BE FURTHER TO THE NORTHEAST, AROUND MOUNT ETNA.

THEY SANK A 3,500-TON CARGO VESSEL, BADLY DAMAGED TWO OTHERS AGGREGATING ABOUT 9,000 TONS, AND THEN DESTROYED 13 NAVAL ZERO PLANES AN PROBABLY DESTROYED FOUR OTHERS IN A SAVAGE AERIAL BATTLE LASTING 45 MINUTES.

ALL THE LIBERATORS RETURNED SAFELY TO THEIR BASE, SOME BEARING HOLES WHICH GAVE EVIDENCE OF THE BITTERNESS OF THE BATTLE. TWO AMERICAN FLIERS WERE SLIGHTLY WOUNDED.

"ABOUT 30 ZEROS SWARMED AROUND US LIKE BEES OUT OF A HIVE AFTER WE DROPPED OUR BOMBS AND HEADED FOR HOME," MAJOR WALTER S. (BRUCE) BEAT, 24, OF ST.PETERSBURG, FLA., A SQUADRON COMMANDER AND LEADER OF ONE FLIGHT, DECLARED.

THE PLANES IN BEAT'S FORMATION WERE CREDITED WITH SINKING THE SINGLE VESSEL DESTROYED. LIBERATORS LED BY MAJOR HENRY G.BRADY, JR., 25, OF COLUMBIA S.C., SQUADRON COMMANDER, DAMAGED THE OTHERS SO BADLY THEY MAY HAVE SUNK LATER.

A BOMBER PILOTED BY SECOND LIEUT.FREDERICK MCNEELAND, 24, OF BRIDGE-WATER, MASS. AND CO-PILOTED BY SECOND LIEUT.MEREL JONES, 21, OF DUNSMUIR, CALIF., SHOT DOWN FOUR ZEROS. WAISTGUNNER SERGEANT PHILIP REEDER, 33, OF LAPORTE, IND., WHO DESTROYED ONE, DECLARED, "SO MANY ZEROS CAME AT US SO FAST IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE NOT TO GET AT LEAST ONE."

JUL 30 1943

REEDER SAID "THE ZERO I SHOT DOWN WAS THE FIRST I EVER SAW. IT SURE WAS A PRETTY SIGHT TO SEE HIM BURST INTO FLAMES AND SPIN CRAZILY TOWARD THE EARTH."

LIEUT.MATT QUACKENBUSH, 23, OF ALBANY, N.Y., MCNEELANDS NAVIGATOR, DESTROYED A ZERO WHICH DOVE THROUGH THE MIDDLE OF THEIR FORMATION. OTHERS IN THE SAME PLANE SCORING SINGLE VICTORIES ARE SERGEANTS HARRY B.QUEEN, OF ONSET, MASS., AND CHARLES D.GINN, OF FRANKFORT, IND.

ONE ZERO APIECE WERE CREDITED TO SERGEANTS STANLEY L.MARSHALL, OF GLENWOOD CITY, WIS., JOSEPH H.LAMB, OF COTOPAXI, COLO.; LAWRENCE A COONEY, OF 3516 NORTH PAULINA ST., CHICAGO; GERARD LABRIE OF SELKIRK, N.Y.; DONALD B.SCHELL, OF TEMPLE, PA.; JAMES R.MCILRATH, OF 1915 PORTLAN ST., ST.PAUL, MINN., AND FLIGHT OFFICER HENRY B.TYRA, JR., OF WHITEFACE, TEX.

THE 12TH ZERO WAS JOINTLY SHOT TO PIECES BY SECOND LIEUTS.HAROLD V.SMITH, OF SPENCERPORT, N.Y., AND LEO S.BEHRENS, OF MADISONVILLE, LA., AND THE 13TH BY THE WHOLE FORMATION.

LIEUT.EDWARD M.MULLIKIN, OF SPRINGFIELD, MO., A PILOT WHO SUPERBLY LANDED A CRIPPLED LIBERATOR, SAID, "THEY CAME AT US HEAD-ON. ONE BARELY MISSED OUR RIGHT WING. I NEVER HAD SO MUCH EXCITEMENT PACKED INTO ONE DAY."

ISTANBUL, JULY 29-(AP)-A SERIOUS BULGARIAN CRISIS APPEARS TO BE DEVELOPING AS A RESULT OF BENITO MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL AND THERE ARE INDICATIONS THAT BULGARIA MAY BE THE FIRST BALKAN SATELLITE TO BREAK AWAY FROM THE AXIS IF ITALY SURRENDERS.

JUL 30 1943

BULGARIA'S POSITION, AND THAT OF THE OTHER BALKAN POWERS TO A LESSER EXTENT, IS REPORTED TO HAVE CHANGED RAPIDLY SINCE THE ITALIAN UPHEAVAL. AN IMMEDIATE COLLAPSE OF GERMANY'S JUNIOR PARTNERS HAD BEEN CONSIDERED ONLY A REMOTE POSSIBILITY BEFORE THIS WEEK.

DIRECT NEWS FROM THE BALKANS SINCE MUSSOLINI'S RESIGNATION REMAINS SCANTY, BUT WHAT IS AVAILABLE INDICATES CLEARLY THAT THE PEOPLE THERE BELIEVE ITALY IS FINISHED.

BULGARIA, ONE OF GERMANY'S MOST FAVORED LESSER ALLIES, NOW HOLDS ALL OF YUGOSLAV MACEDONIA AND PART OF GRECIAN MACEDONIA, AND AN ITALIAN COLLAPSE WOULD AFFECT HER QUICKER AND MORE DIRECTLY THAN ANY OTHER OF THE SOUTHEASTERN EUROPEAN NATIONS IN THE GERMAN CAMP.

THE BULGARIANS HAVE ALWAYS REGARDED ITALY AS THEIR MAIN BARRIER AGAINST INVASION. IT IS ONLY ABOUT 100 MILES FROM BRINDISI IN ITALY'S HEEL TO BULGARIA'S FRONTIERS IN MACEDONIA, AND ONLY ABOUT 300 MILES TO SOFIA.

OFFICIAL BULGARIAN PROPAGANDA HAS REPEATEDLY ASSURED THE PEOPLE

3024-6693

THAT ITALY WAS CAPABLE OF RESISTING ANY INVASION AIMED AT HER MAINLAND, AND ALLIED SUCCESSES IN SICILY, TOGETHER WITH THE OVERTHROW OF THE FASCIST REGIME, ARE VIEWED HERE AS A GREAT SHOCK TO BULGARIAN MORALE.

OTHER HINTS OF BULGARIAN DIFFICULTIES HAVE BEEN DROPPED BY OFFICIALS HERE ON GOVERNMENT BUSINESS. THEY ARE SAID TO HAVE INDICATED THEIR BELIEF THE BULGARIAN GOVERNMENT IS IN "SERIOUS TROUBLE."

ANOTHER RECENT TRAVELER PREDICTED FLATLY THAT A GENERAL UPRISING WOULD FOLLOW AN ITALIAN COLLAPSE.

IN THE LIGHT OF SUBSEQUENT DEVELOPMENTS, CONSIDERABLE SIGNIFICANCE HAS BEEN PLACED ON THE EXTRAORDINARY SESSION OF THE BULGARIAN PARLIAMENT WHICH WAS CALLED ON JULY 20, THE FIRST EVER CALLED IN JULY.

JUL 30 1943

IN A SPEECH QUOTED BY THE SOFIA PRESS, PREMIER BOGDAN PHILOV URGED THE PASSAGE OF APPROPRIATION BILLS ON THE GROUNDS THE POLICE NEEDED MORE FUNDS TO COMBAT "TERRORISM."

IT SEEMED POSSIBLE THAT PARLIAMENT WAS WARNED DURING THE SESSION OF THE ITALIAN CRISIS AND THAT MOST OF THE WORK WAS DEVOTED TO PREPARATIONS FOR AN EXPECTED UPRISING AGAINST THE GERMAN ALLIANCE.

THERE IS LITTLE DOUBT THAT BULGARIAN FEAR AND UNREST ARE MOUNTING. SINCE THE SICILIAN INVASION, BULGARIAN NEWSPAPERS HAVE PUBLISHED NUMEROUS CARTOONS WARNING AGAINST RUMOR MONGERING AND RIDICULING ANY FEAR OF BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

THE FORM A BULGARIAN COLLAPSE MIGHT TAKE IS UNCERTAIN, FOR IT IS POSSIBLE THAT KING BORIS, FACED WITH INVASION AND DEFEAT, MIGHT ATTEMPT TO AVERT A POPULAR UPHEAVAL, WHICH PROBABLY WOULD COST HIM HIS THRONE, BY DISCARDING THE PHILOV GOVERNMENT AND INSTALLING ANOTHER INSTRUCTED TO ARRANGE PEACE.

THE SITUATION IS REGARDED AS SO TENSE, HOWEVER, THAT A RELATIVELY MINOR INCIDENT MIGHT BE SUFFICIENT TO TOUCH OFF A REVOLUTION.

ALWAYS A TINDER BOX, EVEN IN PEACETIME, ALL THE BALKANS HAVE BEEN STIRRED BY THE ITALIAN CRISIS.

FROM RUMANIA CAME REPORTS THAT LEAFLETS WERE DISTRIBUTED MONDAY IN BUCHAREST DEMANDING IMMEDIATE PEACE FOR RUMANIA AND ENDING:

"DOWN WITH HITLER -- DOWN WITH (PREMIER) ANTONESCU."

JUL 30 1943

AN ALBANIAN SAID ALBANIAN PRIME MINISTER EKREM LIBOHOVA HAD LEFT ALBANIA AND VICE PREMIER ILYAS AGUSHI HAD DELIVERED A PROCLAMATION URING THE PEOPLE TO MAINTAIN DISCIPLINE. THE ITALIAN GENERAL REPRESENTING THE KING OF ITALY ALSO WAS SAID TO HAVE LEFT THE COUNTRY.

FROM GREECE CAME REPORTS OF INCREASED GUERRILLA ACTIVITIES ON THE HEELS OF MUSSOLINI'S DOWNFALL ALONG WITH INDICATIONS SOME OF THE ITALIAN GARRISONS WERE MOVING NORTH TOWARD ALBANIA.

CHRISTOPHER DE KALLAY, SON OF THE HUNGARIAN PRIME MINISTER, ARRIVED IN TURKEY ON A SPECIAL DIPLOMATIC MISSION. HE WAS BELIEVED CARRYING URGENT DISPATCHES FROM HIS FATHER TO THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT.

NIGHT LEAD SOUTH PACIFIC

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, JULY 30-(FRIDAY)-(AP)-PRECISE LOW-LEVEL BOMBING THAT CRASHES UPON THE JAPANESE IN THE JUNGLES JUST 50 YARDS FROM OUR OWN TROOPS IS SPEEDING THE AMERICAN OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE IMPORTANT MUNDA AIR BASE ON NEW

GEORGIA ISLAND IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS.

DAILY SINCE THE PRESENT DRIVE STARTED ON JUNE 30, THE COMMUNIQUES FROM GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS HAVE REPORTED THE BOMBING OF THE JAPANESE AT MUNDA.

A WEEK AGO MO

E THAN 200 PLANES DROPPED 186 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES IN THE HEAVIEST RAID EVER MADE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC. THE THURSDAY COMMUNIQUE REPORTED A 47-TON RAID. BUT THE NUMBER OF TONS OF BOMBS DROPPED IS ONLY PART OF THE STORY.

J. NORMAN LODGE, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WITH THE INVASION FORCES JUST OUTSIDE OF MUNDA TELLS THE OTHER PART AS FOLLOWS:

"THE TROOPS GOT A THRILL IN THE DAWN AIR STRIKE IN WHICH OOUR PLANES LAID THE PRETTIEST PATTERN BOMBING IMAGINABLE. HIGH ALTITUDE HEAVIES LAID EGGS ON EVERY SQUARE YARD OF GROUND OCCUPIED BY THE JAPANESE. THEN THE DIVE BOMBERS CAME IN.

"THESE BOYS, WHO DESERVE A SPECIAL NICHE IN AMERICA'S HEART, PEELED OFF AND DOVE DOWN TO WITHIN AN UNBELIEVABLE NEARNESS TO THE GROUND BEFORE PULLING OUT AND DROPPING THEIR EGGS. THAT WAS NECESSARY BECAUSE HARDLY 50 YARDS SEPARATED THE ATTACK FROM THE DEFENSE AND THE SLIGHTEST ERROR OF JUDGMENT WOULD HAVE CAUSED CASUALTIES AMONG OUR OWN TROOPS.

"BUT WE INCURRED NONE, SO GREAT WAS THE ACCURACY WITH WHICH THE BOMBING WAS DONE."

THIS BOMBING, COMBINED WITH NAVAL SHELLING AND LAND-BASED MORTAR FIRE, IS SOFTENING THE ENEMY DEFENSES BUT EVEN THEN THE GREEN-CLAD AMERICAN JUNGLE TROOPS FACE INDESCRIBABLE TOUGH GOING.

LODGE REPORTED THAT A DAILY GAIN OF 200 YARDS WAS CONSIDERED REMARKABLE AS AGAINST MILES TRAVERSED IN EUROPEAN AND AFRICAN SORTIES. DESPITE SUCH JUNGLE BARRIERS OUR SOLDIERS GAINED 500 YARDS ONE DAY THIS WEEK AND THE LATEST REPORT PLACED THEM 2,100 YARDS FROM THE MUNDA AIRDROME.

THE JAPANESE ARE FIRMLY ENTRENCHED IN PILLBOXES AND CAVES IN THE HILLS BETWEEN THE AMERICAN LINES AND MUNDA AND ONLY A LITTLE PROGRESS DAILY IS EXPECTED. EVEN TANKS HAVE BEEN STOPPED BY THE TERRAIN AND UNDERGROWTH.

AT SEA THE PACIFIC OFFENSIVE BROUGHT ADDITIONAL DAMAGE TO JAPANESE SHIPPING. AIR AND SURFACE UNITS OFF NEW BRITAIN SET FIRE TO A DESTROYER AND A TRANSPORT WHICH SCORED NEAR MISSES ON A FREIGHTER AND DESTROYED 13 BARGES.

JUL 30 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, JULY 29-(AP)-GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR TODAY AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS TO TECH.SGT.GEORGE H.BENGEL, ROUTE 1, LAKEWOOD,FLA., FOR "EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM IN ACTION."

BENGEL WAS THE BOMBARDIER AND FRONT GUNNER IN ONE OF A FLIGHT OF MEDIUM BOMBERS WHICH MADE A RAID ON LAE, NEW GUINEA, LAST MAY 25.

"INTERCEPTED BY FIVE ENEMY FIGHTERS BEFORE REACHING THE TARGET," THE CITATION SAID, "BENGEL DROVE OFF TWO ATTEMPTS AT HEADON ATTACK. DESPITE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE AND CONTINUED INTERCEPTION, HE PLACED HIS BOMBS WELL IN A LINE DOWN THE RUNWAY. ONE ENGINE OF HIS PLANE WAS DISABLED. BENGEL ABLY DEFENDED IT FROM FRONTAL ATTACKS, HIS ACCURATE GUNNERY CAUSING ONE ENEMY FIGHTER TO CRASH INTO THE SEA.

30.24-6695

"A FEW MINUTES LATER HIS OWN PLANE WAS FORCED TO A WATER LANDING.

"IN THIS ACTION AND MANY OTHERS BENGEL'S COURAGE AND HIS SKILL AS A BOMBARDIER AND GUNNER WERE AN INSPIRATION TO HIS COMRADES."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JULY 28-(DELAYED)-(AP)-LIEUT.GEN.GEORGE C.KENNEY TODAY ANNOUNCED THE POSTHUMOUS AWARD OF AN AIR MEDAL TO SGT.JAMES A.CARTER, OF OLWEIN, IOWA, FOR 25 BOMBING MISSIONS AGAINST THE JAPANESE.

THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS FOR PARTICIPATION IN 50 BOMBING MISSIONS WAS AWARDED POSTHUMOUSLY TO STAFF SGT.FRANKLIN L.TIMBERLAKE, WHOSE MOTHER, MRS.MAE TIMBERLAKE, LIVES AT STEVENSON, ALA., AND STAFF SGT.MICHAEL J.PAZ, WHOSE FATHER, MICHAEL PAZ, LIVES IN OAK LANE, BRIDGEPORT, N.J. PAZ, A FLYING FORTRESS GUNNER, HAD FLOWN MORE THAN 200 HOURS IN COMBAT.

THEIR BOMBER AND TWO OTHERS OF ITS FLIGHT TUMBLED THROUGH ABOUT FOUR HOURS OF STORMY WEATHER, INCLUDING LIGHTNING, BEFORE REACHING WAKE AT 11:35 A.M. THERE THEY BROKE OUT INTO A BEAUTIFUL SKY.

LIEUTENANT OSBORNE SAID "WE MADE ONE RUN, DROPPED OUR BOMBS AND STARTED FOR HOME IN THE MIDST OF STRONG ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE. AT OUR HIGH ALTITUDE, IT WAS HARD TO SEE MUCH."

BOMBARDIER BEER, WHO COULD SEE BETTER FROM HIS POSITION, REPORTED: "WE HIT SOME BARRACKS AND THE RUNWAY AND I SAW SOME ZEROS TAKING OFF AS WE CROSSED THE TARGET."

THIS BOMBERS' GUNS WERE "GOING ALL THE TIME," THE CREW MEMBERS SAID, AS THE ZEROS PRESSED IN FROM ALL SIDES.

IN A LATER RAID, TUESDAY, THE ZERO PILOTS WERE "MORE RELUCTANT," OSBORNE AND HIS AIDES SAID THEY WERE INFORMED BY FLIERS TAKING PART.

(THE NAVY DEPARTMENT, REPORTING WEDNESDAY ON THIS SECOND WAKE ATTACK, SAID ABOUT 25 ZEROS ATTEMPTED INTERCEPTION, AND OF THE 25, 16 WERE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED. THERE WAS NO LOSS OF AMERICAN PLANES OR PERSONNEL.)

GOODENOUGH ISLAND, D'ENTRECASTREAUX GROUP, JULY 29-(AP)-TO THE MANY AMERICANS STATIONED ON THIS ISLAND OFF NEW GUINEA, THE WORD NEWSPAPER IS SYNONOMOUS WITH THE "TROPICAL TIMES," A SUNDAY-MORNING WEEKLY.

OTHER NEWSPAPERS ARE WEEKS, SOMETIMES MONTHS, OLD BY THE TIME THEY REACH THIS BASE, BUT THE TIMES, ORIGINATED IN MAY BY AN AMERICAN CHAPLAIN, OFFERS HOT NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD, AS WELL AS MANY COLUMNS REGARDING AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN TROOPS IN THE VICINITY.

THE TIMES WAS FOUNDED BY FIRST LT.HARMON D.MOORE, FORMER METHODIST PASTOR AT WEDOWEE, ALA., NEAR ANNISTON, WHO SAID "WE WERE ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT NEWS OF WHAT WAS GOING ON ELSEWHERE."

NOW, UNDER THE DIRECTION OF PVT.DENTON T.YAPLE OF (41-36 76TH ST.) JACKSON HEIGHTS, LONG ISLAND, THE TROPICAL TIMES CONSISTS OF TEN MIMEOGRAPHED SHEETS, COMPLETE WITH COLORED ART WORK.

AT THE START, SAID YAPLE, FORMER ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT EMPLOYE OF THE NEW YORK TIMES, "WE HAD TO USE A SURGICAL SCALPEL TO CUT HOLES IN THE STENCIL FOR PICTURES. LATER, WE USED A PAIR OF SCISSORS AND A HEMOSTAT AND PEN-KNIFE FOR THE SAME PURPOSE. WE USED ADHESIVE TAPE TO FASTEN THE STENCILS.

"OUR STAFF INCLUDES AUSTRALIANS AS WELL AS AMERICANS, AND WE TRY TO PRINT NEWS OF INTEREST TO BOTH ARMIES. OUR CIRCULATION IS GROWING--THE PAPER IS DISTRIBUTED FREE--AND WITH THE CURRENT
